At the Granville Theatre, cosy in winter, and cool and comfy in the summer months, by reason of its sliding roof, Mr. Robert W. Duce again provides a very excellent programme full of brightness and originality, and calculated to rouse his patrons to enthusiasm even under the stress of the recent heat-wave. The bright particular star this week is Miss Victoria Monks, coon comedienne. Her latest success, "Eliza Brown," evokes intense acclamation and rapturous applause, and certainly it is rendered in irresistibly droll and characteristic fashion. This smart little lady has undoubtedly quite a style of her own, and her verve, vivacity and vitality appeal to the audience in a manner that will not be denied. Miss Lena Willard is another comedienne who possesses the necessary qualifications for success, and is full of "go," chic, and sparkle; and her animation and love of her work carry all before her. She has a couple of capital songs, "Brigit Molloy" and an imitation of the types of music-hall stageland in the shape of the high-kicking serio, the Spanish dancer, a Swiss jödeller, a gay Parisienne, and the inevitable coon singer Miss Lillie Soutter is an artist with a rich fund of humour, and a good deal of daring and dexterity. Her song of the country girl who opines that "It's a very, very funny place is London" is drolly delivered, and her broad low-comedy carol, "There's a man wanted here," accompanied by descriptive patter and a characteristic dance causes screams of laughter. John E. Coyle is an excruciatingly comic comedian of the George Robey and Wilkie Bard type; his facial expression and his dry way of making his points must be seen and heard to be properly appreciated. His ditties, "Don't be silly" and "Bathing in the sea," are excellent vehicles for the exploitation of his particular style of humour. The Delormes are a pair of marvellous clog dancers, exceedingly clever and resourceful in their line of business, and their unobtrusive, modest, and natural manner enhances the merit of their performance. Russell Wallett as "The Lady in Black," is the wonder of Walham Green; and many a fair patron of the Granville Theatre of Varieties enters into argument with her escort as to the sex of this Gibson-girl type of artist, until Mr. Wallett discards his wig and speaks in stentorian and unmistakably male accents. His song, given at the piano, about an amorous swain serenading his lady-love in the rain—the passionate love-song being punctuated with sneezes—is highly diverting and clever, and his description of married life, how to get a husband, and the skirt dance, with which he winds up his performance, are things of joy and wonder to the audience. Lee and Kingston provide a capital turn as a comedy duo. The lady is very particular, and after endeavouring to please her by masquerading as a sailor, soldier, musician, and what not—all in vain, as he is never of the right denomination—the lover's efforts are at length rewarded by her pointed rendering of the refrain, "I was only, only, teasing you!" Jack and Evelyn are quite above the ordinary cut of comedy entertainers and dancers, and Jack's efforts in palmistry and other occult sciences, and Evelyn's intense and tragic manner in support, and their clever calisthenics complete a very agreeable entertainment. Charles Berte's realistic detective-sketch of modern life is interpreted in the right spirit by all concerned. The Millionaire, another sketch by Johnny Holland, is very bright and breezy. Miss Lilian Boanas, an Australian vocalist with a remarkably powerful and sweet voice, who deputised for Walter Norman on Tuesday night, should be in demand, as she is a singer of especial excellence and ability. The Vernon Bioscope is as interesting as ever with its tableau "How the jail-bird ran," and "Wanted a wife." Cora Casselli, the clever high-kick dancer; Will Lytton, comedian; and Drew and Alders in their comedy act complete the programme. We must not forget to mention the excellent service rendered by Mr. W. S. Bassett and the Granville orchestra under his direction.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

To combat the powerful influence exercised by the abnormally hot weather is no light task, but the management of the Islington Empire have certainly done their best by providing this week an attractive, well-varied programme. One of the principal features is the sensational episode in three scenes, entitled The Girl I Love, which we noticed last week when it was played at Walthamstow Palace. The little piece may be described as an Adelphi drama in miniature, for it contains nearly all the ingredients to which we were accustomed in those popular productions. The hero, Max Donovan, who makes his appearance in the becoming uniform of a Highland soldier, not only displays those manly qualities which are always associated with a part of this kind, but supplies the comic relief in a scene with the heroine, the daughter of a colonel. The young soldier, brave as a lion in battle, is rendered extremely nervous by the presence of the girl for whom he has a secret admiration. His bungling attempts to hand his fair visitor a cup of tea excite the heartiest merriment, and this purely domestic scene offers the greatest possible contrast to the later ones in which the tragic element predominates, and culminating in a very sensational piece of business. The hero horsewhips the villain, but is in turn overcome by superior force, tied to a tree, stripped to the waist, and flogged. The part of Max Donovan is exceedingly well played by Mr. Frederick Maxwell, who combines vigour and power with a keen sense of humour. Miss Lois du Cane is a graceful and pleasing representative of Rose Adair, the heroine, who throughout remains true to her soldier lover. Mr. Charles Levey portrays in capital style the villain, Captain Stephen Adair, Mr. Sam Harcourt ably doubles the characters of Colonel Adair and Colonel Grant, Mr. Gerald Blake is effective in a blind old man part, and Miss Louise Biddulph wins success as Bessie Donovan, the girl who is first betrayed and then brutally murdered by the wicked Captain.

An important engagement is that of Yukio Tani, the well-known exponent of ju-jitsu. The display of skill given by the Japanese light-weight, who is ready to try conclusions with any man, "no matter how big he may be," is remarkable as well as interesting; and the promise made by Tani to hand over to any man who defeats him the sum of £100, or £20 to any one he fails to defeat in fifteen minutes, gives an additional interest to the contests, by means of which local students of the art of ju-jitsu have no doubt had some useful lessons.

The return—though not for the first time—of Mr. George D'Albert to the hall with which he was so long associated as a leading member of the Mohawk Minstrels, is an event of interest, and from his reception nightly it is quite evident that local audiences have not forgotten an old favourite. Mr. D'Albert wins success with a song in which the ladies of England are contrasted with those of other countries; and the topical allusions introduced are greatly appreciated. Mr. G. H. Elliott, described as the "original chocolate-coloured coon," addresses himself in songs to a damsel who dwells in a pretty little wayside cottage. The vocal appeal has in due course its intended effect, and the lady appears at the window; then she joins her dark-skinned lover, and the two voices unite pleasingly in the song. Mr. Elliott is quite an expert dancer, and the exhibition of his ability in this direction meets with generous applause. The Bohemians consist of a lady and gentleman, who play popular melodies on various musical instruments, and are well received. Miss Daisy Davidson, a soprano vocalist from New Zealand, is the possessor of a rich, cultivated voice, and uses it with excellent effect. Collins and Hawley hail from America, and have won renown as dancing experts. In this particular department they display remarkable ability and agility, and their success is beyond question. The Three San Remo Girls also score as speciality dancers; they work hard, but happily their efforts obtain deserved recognition. Miss Irene Meldon, comedienne and dancer, also contributes to the programme, and the Bioscope depicts "A Trip to South America." The overture this week consists of selections from The Geisha, played by the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. A. Petersen; while the front of the house has the active supervision of Mr. George L. Wilson, manager, and Mr. Harry Blight, acting-manager.

MR. ALFRED LESTER, who has made a name for himself in the halls as the sceneshifter who can't make up his mind whether Hamlet is supposed to be funny, goes into the new Gaiety burlesque Aladdin, to play a policeman. Always studying his characters from life, he has been taking a keen interest in the manners and methods of men in blue ever since he was cast to appear as one of them. Apropos to the discovery of types for the stage, Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald's enthusiasm once carried him to the length of exclaiming, when he happened to see a casual acquaintance lifting his hat to a lady in the street, "Excuse me, but I must have your hair!" On being assured that it was not a case of scalping, the casual acquaintance was flattered that the popular comedian should care to take a mental note of his peculiar hair, to be used at some future date as an idea for a comic stage wig.

MESSRS. CARL AND CARR were, by the courtesy of Mr. Harry Marvello, given a benefit on Wednesday at the Harbour Green Pavilion, Portobello, when the place was completely packed. The beneficiaries have been great favourites during their sixteen weeks' engagement with the Geisha entertainers. Mr. Marvello will continue his show until October. The company this week includes Sam Thomson, Wilfred E. Brandon, Celestine Brandon, Rosie Morris, Ted Curtis and piccaninnies, Tony Freedman, Fred Smart, Loo Best, Clifton Hall, Max Carl, Harry Carr, and Harry Marvello, in his magical and ventriloquial performances.

IN connection with the visit of Curtis and Vanity to the King's, Gateshead, this week, Mr. Joe May, the general-manager, arranged a cake-walk competition, cash prizes to the value of £3 being offered.

MABEL O'CONNOR has written and composed an original song, entitled "Good-bye, Coon Johnson, Good-bye," expressly for that rising young comedienne, Miss Gertie Gitana, who is scoring with the number at all her engagements.

THE HIPPODROME EARTHQUAKE.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Entirely New Spectacular Sensation,
by Alicia Ramsay and Rudolph de Cordova,
Music by Clarence C. Corri, entitled
"THE EARTHQUAKE."

Frank Preston .....Mr. Hal Forde
Ulysses T. Preston ..Mr. Cecil Morton York
Mick O'Sullivan .....Mr. J. Windham Guise
Li Lung .....Mr. Arthur Powell
Father Dan .....Mr. Scott Craven
Bessie .....Miss Simeta Marsden

It was the delightful Mr. Perkyn Middlewick, we believe, who, in cross-examining his son Charles as to his travelling experiences in Italy, was wont to give expression to his disappointment when told by his junior that he had seen Vesuvius, but there was no eruption. "No eruption, Charley! You might have hordered one, yer know; I didn't limit you!" In much the same way Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, and Mr. Frank Allen have ordered an earthquake at the Hippodrome, and Mr. Frank Parker, the equestrian and stage-director-in-chief, who has had a free hand, has seen that they have got what they asked for.

We have had many thrills in former triumphant pieces of stage realism, but the earthquake at the Hippodrome will become celebrated in theatrical history as the most successful realisation of tragic earth disturbance that has been seen since De Loutherburgh invented scenes. What science may be able to accomplish further in the way of sensations we know not, but many decades will pass, we think, ere so startling a spectacle as that to be seen in the arena and on the stage of the London Hippodrome will be eclipsed in its momentous tragedy of despair. It may be guessed that the city square referred to in the synopsis of scenery is in San Francisco, and the "Golden Gate of the West," is the arena of the events written in as a prologue to the great stage catastrophe by Mr. Rudolph de Cordova and Miss Alicia Ramsay.

We must confess that we are not deeply interested in the few characters presented, and the best thing to be said about them is that they serve the purpose of introducing dialogue. Frank Preston has just won a trotting race with a real flyer, and, with his companions of the city, is celebrating the event by drinking champagne, when his father, Ulysses T. Preston, an American millionaire, arrives on the scene, having just done Europe. Ulysses brings with him Frank's sweetheart Bessie, who has spent forty-nine days in doing Europe—a week-end sufficing for England and two minutes for Russia. Here the authors do not write according to facts, for most Americans love to linger in Shakespeare's country for quite a week. Ulysses loves to fling about his dollars, and takes the revellers from the street into his house. An Irish constable is put in for comic relief, and as an incidental there is a quarrel between a couple of Chinamen. Just before the seismic disturbance, Father Dan, a Catholic priest, utters a jeremiad against the sins of the city, and foretells its utter destruction; but the joyous crowd sing and dance, and Frank and Bessie each sing a song, the former in praise of the vintage of champagne with a clinking chorus, and the latter a sentimental coon song with a Texan ranchman for hero. The distant rumblings of a storm presage the coming trouble. With a peal of loud thunder and vivid flashes of lightning, the sides of houses crash down into the street, roofs collapse; scared citizens rush into the street in all sorts of attire; parents with their children are seen escaping from the higher stories of the skyscrapers by means of ropes; frantic mothers clasp their babes as they hasten into the square, where desolation rules; pillars topple over; and, just as the upheaval seems to have spent its fury, and horror-struck citizens are fleeing from numerous conflagrations, a huge tidal wave completes the work of destruction, and the curtain falls on a desolation as complete as the buried cities of the plain.

The marvellous ingenuity of the whole thing is simply indescribable; in one word, as a stage sensation it is prodigious. Of such acting possibilities as there are, full advantage is taken by the cast, which is headed by Mr. Hal Forde, who plays the young American with much spirit and bonhomie. He sings the verses in praise of champagne with all the requisite fire and energy. Miss Simeta Marsden makes an engaging figure of Bessie, the up-to-date American girl, and her coon song is much enjoyed. Mr. Cecil Morton York does all that is possible with the rôle of the New York millionaire; Mr. Windham Guise is quite in his element as the Irish policeman; Mr. Arthur Powell makes some capital out of the peculiarities of Li Lung, a Chinese butler; and Mr. Scott Craven cuts a dramatic figure as the priest. Tiller's Eight Snowdrops dance with much vim and abandon; and the music by Mr. Clarence Corri adds to the dramatic effect.

In the variety portion of the programme, the Three Brothers Willé, balancers and acrobats, are responsible for some wonderful feats of equipoise with a ladder and a long pole; Gudzow is a marvellous Cossack equestrian, and, like another Mazeppa, rides the wild horse of Tartary as it has rarely been ridden; the Abdullah Arabs, all of them true sons of the desert, are absolutely bewildering in their whirling manœuvres; the Brothers Griffiths, when they reach the really humorous part of their turn, are diverting as burlesquers; Mlle. Doris is a graceful and pretty equestrienne; and Alf. Daniels and Lavater Lee are very welcome as fun-makers, being ably assisted by that excellent "feeder," Mr. Otho Twigg, the popular ringmaster. Other names in a fine and attractive bill are the Kauffmann Troupe of lady cyclists; Lucie and Viata, in a wire act; the Leamy Troupe of aerial lady gymnasts, a fine combination of beauty and muscle; the Althoffs, Galletti's monkey comedians, the Henry Taylor Trio, and Lloyd Langdon.

Donaldson Bros. and Ardell go to the Hackney Empire next week. On the occasion of their last voyage to South Africa one of the Donaldsons played a joke on the passengers. The swimming sheet had been got out and duly fixed at the side of the ship. Everyone who could swim at once plunged overboard, and disported in the improvised lake. Just as the passengers were at the height of their enjoyment, Mr. Donaldson threw one of his dummy figures into the shoot, and for a few minutes many of the swimmers imagined a man had really fallen overboard, and all made frantic efforts at a "rescue." Those who reached the dummy first and discovered the joke at once entered into the fun of the situation, and promptly made the lay figure into a kind of tug-of-war machine, thus turning the tables on Mr. Donaldson, who had to witness one of his costly dummies being torn limb from limb, without a single chance of preventing the mutilation.

The Secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £3 10s. 6d. from Mr. Fred Miller, collected in the Canterbury pence-box during the past month.

Miss Kitty Grey, who took her benefit at the Marina, Ramsgate, on the 30th ult., was presented by the staff of that house with a handsome lady's dressing-case, and a set of toilet mats came from Miss Eva Ward. To Mr. Ryder Davis, who stage-managed for this night only, was given a smoker's companion and a gold cigarette-case. About twenty artists appeared, including the Ramsgate Royal Mascots, the concert terminating with a grand ball.

A site has been procured in Leigh-road, Leigh, for a new theatre of varieties for the town.

CHAT WITH MR. WILLIAM PAYNE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Experience of life in different parts of the world is undoubtedly of assistance to a music-hall manager, and there are at least three in London at the present time who have "roughed it" in a far-off land. Mr. Blyth-Pratt, the new manager of the Oxford, is one; Mr. Fred McAvoy is another; and Mr. William Payne, the new manager of the South London Palace, is a third. It is of the latter that we now wish to speak. Mr. Payne is a gentleman who has acquired a wide store of knowledge upon a variety of subjects, and when, as nowadays, the music hall deals with practically every phase of life, and many of those phases are of an exotic character, a person, circumstanced as is the subject of this interview, is in a position of great advantage over some at least of his brother managers who have never stepped out of their own country. Mr. Payne, who was educated in France and Belgium, has travelled extensively on the Continent as well as in South America, where for some time he was engaged upon engineering work on the construction of a railway. He has some lively recollections of his sojourn on the Brazilian frontier. On several occasions when camping his party was surprised during the night by Indian horse-dealers, and there were frequent encounters with the natives who, as Mr. Payne puts it, were, to say the least, very uncivilised. In fact, it was not safe for any member of the expedition to go about unarmed.

If Mr. Payne's English friends and the patrons of the South London could go back fifteen years, and, instead of being able to recognise him in a frock coat and silk topper, or in evening dress, were to find him in the guise of a cowboy, what a shock they would receive! For, at one time, Mr. Payne, for reasons of personal safety and diplomacy, donned the flowing, picturesque dress of the Gaucho or Orientales, the gaudily coloured panuelo used to adorn the neck, the artistic, Bohemian poncho which in the daytime served as the horseman's cloak and at night as a blanket, the accommodating bombachos, or trousers, which, though unsightly, Mr. Payne assures us are very comfortable, and the raw-hide botas, or brown top-boots, and the broad-brimmed sombrero. "It was a delightfully free and easy life," says Mr. Payne, "but it had its responsibilities and its dangers. The average Brazilian and Uruguayan are anything but lovers of the English, and awful threats of vengeance were flung at Mr. Payne's surveying party by the native landowners, the majority of whom having never seen a railway, imagined that the world was about to come to an end."

MR. WILLIAM PAYNE,

Now to more recent events. Mr. Payne has had sound experience of the management of a music-hall and of variety affairs generally. The recent death of Mr. Frank Weeks brought about a vacant managership at the South London. Mr. Payne who had then just recently resigned his position of manager of the Tottenham Palace, an establishment where he won esteem and respect from all classes, ample evidence of which was afforded by a farewell benefit performance given in his honour by the townspeople under the patronage of the leading local councillors and other public men, was offered a similar post at the South London. In appointing Mr. Payne, the directors considered him to be particularly well qualified for the duties of manager in view of the fact that he had for five years successfully conducted the affairs of another hall run on the principle of two houses a night, and Mr. Payne commenced his term of office, which it is to be hoped will prove a long and happy one, on the 13th of August.

The healthful outdoor life led by Mr. Payne at an earlier period has endowed him with splendid physical proportions and a strong constitution. Apart from his athletic accomplishments, he speaks and writes French and Spanish fluently. He was educated in France and won honours at the Université de Paris. He comes of a good old family, his mother being a daughter of the late, and, in his day, well-known Dr. Maclure, of Harley Street, and his father was for thirty years officer in charge of the Indian overland mails. It is of interest, in these days of commercial changes, to note that his great grandfather was the founder of the celebrated banking firm of Smith, Payne, and Smith, which was only a few years ago merged into the wealthy Union of London and Smiths Bank.

Mr. Payne's grandfather, by the way, won the Derby in 1817 with his horse Azor, and his great uncle, George Payne, the veteran sportsman, was the founder of the Payne Stakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Millard (Ada Brogden), two popular performers with Astley Brothers' Cadets, Fleetwood, took their benefit on Aug. 29. A large crowd gathered, and gave them a good reception. Every available seat was taken, and an attractive programme was presented. During the performance they were the recipients of presents from the management and members of the company.

So great is the success which that delightful "chanteuse," Miss Nina Martino, has achieved this week at the Euston and Chelsea Palace with Signor and Mme. Borelli's charming waltz-song, "Come to me, my love," that the Monte Carlo Publishing Company has accepted it for immediate publication.

Mr. Harry Leaton, the popular comedian and vocalist, who has so successfully managed Mr. Tom Prechard's Royal Pierrots at Kinver this season, took his benefit last Monday. Several well-known artists came from Birmingham, West Bromwich, Dudley, Oldbury, &c. Mr. Leaton was presented with a massive gold seal by the members of the company.

MR. CHARLES EVANS' BENEFIT.

Wednesday night was set apart for the annual complimentary benefit to Mr. Charles Evans, the popular general manager at the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, who has not only won the confidence of his employer and the patrons of the place, but is on the best of terms with all the artists and representatives of the Music Hall profession, with the result that when occasion arises, and the exigencies of engagements permit, he has a large number of helpers to swell the bill at his annual festival. On Wednesday there were many additional turns, and as many more would have been available if arrangements had permitted, but with a display of fireworks sandwiched between the concert and the grand ball, the variety entertainment had to be somewhat limited.

Gus Garrick, who is "resting" for a week, had been working like a Trojan for his old friend. He always seemed to have some novelty in the shape of attractive advertisement up his sleeve. One day he was to be seen manfully tugging at one oar of a boat, in which a band was playing as it was rowed up and down the front of the promenade; on other occasions he was seen to be driving in a brake, or bathing in a costume fashioned out of one of the benefit bills—printed on linen, of course.

Among those who contributed to the variety entertainment were Florence Carlow, comedienne and dancer; the Five Casino Girls, brass instrumentalists; Zasma, gentleman society gymnast, in his scena, An Evening's Pleasure; Harry Maynard, vocal comedian; and The Redferns, premier lady banjoists, vocalists and banjo dancers, all of whom had very flattering receptions and gained repeated encores. Leonard Leslie, operatic vocalist; Mdlle. Florizell, the flexible lady aerial beauty; Reuben Hill, character comedian and vocalist; Lilian Elfrida, mimic, who impersonated Marie Lloyd, Kate Carney, Victoria Monks, Gus Elen, etc.; Bosanquet, in his illuminated speciality musical scena; Zanfretta and Napio, the clever musical eccentrics; Luigo's Serenaders, in their nautical scena, Ashore in Venice; and last, but not least, the inimitable and indefatigable Gus Garrick, in his "Music Hall Tit-Bits," with impersonations of Sam Mayo, Harry Champion, and his burlesque on Mdlle. Fougère, which created roars of laughter.

Following the entertainment there was a capital display of fireworks in the brilliantly illuminated grounds by Wells, of Alexandra Park fame, and then came the grand ball. The ball-room, one of the most ornate and spacious anywhere on the coast, presented an animated picture of moving colour. Every available inch of the floor was occupied by dancers, who were watched by a big crowd of onlookers, amongst whom were to be caught occasional glimpses of the beaming face of the bénéficiaire, as he threaded his tortuous way through a maze of many friends, one and all of whom would insist for a moment on congratulating him on the success of the benefit. Dancing was kept up to midnight, an extension of time having been granted by the magistrates.

THE FORESTERS'.

Two dramatic sketches in less than two hours and in one programme seem rather strong meat when we are sweltering under 129 degrees, but at the Foresters' this week the Vaudeville Dramatic Company in the railroad sensation, The Iron Road, and Mr. Percy Murray and Company in the Russian playlet, For the Czar, have interested the audiences that have assembled with exciting situations. The Iron Road tells the story of how Eric Marsh, the wayward son of a millionaire, is being kept out of his father's affections by two or three scheming rogues. The plot is most absorbing, and one's eyes are rivetted to the stage while the tale is gradually being unfolded. Mr. Ernest Wingfield as Colonel Cloud, the principal villain, acts in a vigorous and dashing manner, while Mr. Leslie Vyner gives a capital character-study of a German, the third member of "the syndicate of sinner," Anna Baynard, being forcefully and tragically represented by Miss Helena Walbran. Mr. Herbert Pearson pleases us as Eric Marsh, and Miss Marguerite Trevosper gains our sympathy and admiration for a pretty and girlish interpretation of the part of the heroine, while Mr. F. Fellows Bassett as the millionaire and Mr. Frank Bassett as Detective Alstin adequately fulfil the requirements of their parts.

Kavados, the juggler, submits an attractive act in which with wonderful skill and neatness he catches tennis balls and racquets thrown up in the air one after the other. Then his balancing abilities are brought into requisition what time he steadies a wine-bottle and glass upon his head. The catching and manipulation of the cannon ball demonstrate the strength and agility of the performer. The Melroses appear in an entertaining burlesque turn, their original singing and patter and dancing finding great favour with the house. Mr. Charles Lilburn is as comical as one could wish him to be, and his song about a certain individual whose principal failing was that he loved not work and who died of a broken heart after sweeping with a broom for a quarter of an hour rouses the audience to hearty laughter. Messrs. Wake and Dean are extremely diverting with their argumentative patter, and Miss Grace Langley contrives to excite one's risible faculties with her anecdotes concerning the adventures of a young lady. She is, too, a graceful and sprightly dancer. The Three Sisters Transfield produce exquisite melody by means of the xylophone, the hanging bells and other instruments, and their work gives evidence of musical talents and initiative.

Miss Cora Duncan and Mr. Albert Brasque are seen in the episode, A Dressing-Room Romance. The story of how a doctor falls in love with a stage favourite, and she with him, and how a convict husband is the obstacle to their happiness—an obstacle subsequently removed by the hand of death—is told in excellent style by these artists. Miss Flo Melville wins golden opinions for her agreeable rendering of a couple of songs, "Can't you see that I'm lonely" and "I want your love." She is extremely popular with Eastenders. Mr. Percy Murray is presenting the well-known sketch For the Czar, by Percival H. T Sykes. The chief incidents need no recapitulation at this time, being already familiar to music-hall habitués. The sketch is well produced, the company working together with excellent results. Mr. Percy Murray, in the character of Karl Monarchos, treats us to a finished study of a typical Russian official to whom duty to his King and country must come before affairs of the heart. From Raymond's Bio-Tableaux we get a beautiful series of pictures, "The Dog Detective" set being specially praiseworthy.

After a most successful season, the Irish Animated Photo. Company entered on their final week at the Round Room, Rotunda, Dublin, on Monday, when a large and appreciative audience was present, both at the afternoon and evening performances.

Many of the patrons of the Margate Hippodrome will regret to hear that Mr. H. R. Smith, the bioscope operator, after completing his twelve months' engagement, is leaving at the end of next week.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your Variety Gossip of Sept. 1 you say, "Mr. Frank Lynne has just sold to Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, a novelty song, entitled, 'Do, my honey dew.'" My friend, Mr. Lynne, sold the song in conjunction with the author-composer,—Always yours faithfully, Ronald Bagnall, 12, Empire-terrace, Margate, Sept. 5.

CHAT WITH MR. H. J. HITCHINS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

He is one of the most homely men we have met. A long association with stage affairs has failed to make him theatrical. That statement seems almost paradoxical, but it is true, for Mr. H. J. Hitchins has a contemptuous disregard for that kind of personal notoriety which, according to the enlightened judgment of a halfpenny journal that recently devoted an hysterical article to the subject, is a trait inseparable from the character of everyone connected with the theatre.

Mr. Hitchins has had charge of the Empire Theatre, Leicester Square, for twenty-two years, and it is rather a curious fact that in spite of the many vicissitudes which have been identified with the house in question, he has throughout held the same position. We cannot recall an instance in the history of the better class music halls where one man has managed for so long and unbroken a period.

Mr. Hitchins played with the late J. L. Toole at the old Gaiety Theatre some thirty years ago, and he tells us that he found the famous comedian always most generous to young actors, and if a man in Toole's company showed ability he had every opportunity of advancement. Asked for an anecdote about Toole, Mr. Hitchins remarks that he well recollects playing with him in Bardell v. Pickwick. Mr. Hitchins, as Skimpton used to hold out a brief which really contained Toole's part, and from which he prompted Toole. On one occasion, Mr. Toole got stuck with the lines of "Chops and tomato sauce, gentlemen of the jury, what do chops and tomato sauce mean?" He seemed unable to break himself away from that sentence, however hard Mr. Hitchins tried to make him take the new line. Finally, Mr. Hitchins became emphatic, and said, "Confound you, sir, will you say——?" The shocking impertinence of a young member of Toole's company speaking sharply to his chief quite startled the great comedian, and recalled him to his part.

We come nearer home, and learn that it was at Mr. Hitchins' suggestion that the place of entertainment he controls was called the Empire. The original idea was to name it the Queen's. And here it is interesting to mention that the Empire stands on what may be regarded as historic ground. In 1636, part of the site was occupied by Leicester House, which from 1712 to 1760 was the residence of the then Prince of Wales, which eventually passed into the hands of Ashton Lever, who there started a museum of curiosities called "Holophusikon." In 1791 the place was burnt down, and after rebuilding, the new establishment was opened under the name of Walhalla, with a miscellaneous entertainment, and in 1865 the title was changed to the Eldorado. A little later the building was again destroyed by fire, and among those who assisted in putting out the flames was the Prince of Wales, now King Edward. Once more the premises were rebuilt, and opened with a panorama of Balaclava. Subsequently, the interior was converted into a theatre, and on April 17, 1884, it was opened with the ballet Chilperic.

Mr. Hitchins was educated at the London University School, and on being launched out into the world the course mapped out for him was finance, and he entered the employment of the London and County Bank. After a while he got tired of copying letters, ruling ledgers, shovelling gold and rustling notes which were to provide food and frolic for others, so he looked about for a change.

"Having saved a little money," he tells us, "I resolved to leave the bank and become a pupil of Soutar and Maclean at the Gaiety. The students at that theatre gave occasional matinées, and at one of these we performed A Serious Family. I represented Charles Torrance, and I concealed my identity by calling myself on the programme 'Mr. H. Tempest.' It happened that John Hollingshead was present, and when the curtain had fallen he engaged me for the Gaiety. Thus, I, or rather Mr. H. Tempest, became a professional actor. I had to wait some weeks before I was allowed to create a part, but the opportunity had a fortunate result. The piece was H. J. Byron's Wait and Hope, which was produced on March 1, 1871, with Nellie Farren in the principal rôle. Byron liked my acting, and forthwith booked me for the Globe, where H. J. Montague, in October that year, brought out his Partners for Life, in which I played Goppinger. My year at the Gaiety remains among my pleasantest recollections, despite the fact that my salary was only a guinea a week.

Mr. Hitchins's appearances at the Globe Theatre were followed by a lengthy provincial tour, after which he took up the reins of management at the Princess's Theatre at the time that such stars as Charles Dillon and Mrs. Rousby were appearing on the boards of the Oxford-street playhouse. Then he became acting-manager of the Charing Cross Theatre, which was later on known by the respective names of the Folly Theatre and Toole's Theatre, and which is of course now no longer in existence, having been pulled down to make way for an extension to the Charing Cross Hospital. For some years Mr. Hitchins was manager at the Criterion, under Mr. Alexander Henderson and Mr. (now Sir) Charles Wyndham, who produced such successful comedies as The Great Divorce Case, Pink Dominoes, Truth, and Betsy. Subsequently Mr. Hitchins was appointed to represent Mr. Henderson at the Strand Theatre, where Mrs. Swanborough had general charge of affairs during the time that such popular plays as Madame Favart, Olivette, and The Mascotte first saw the light. On Mr. Hitchins leaving the Strand, a short season as manager of the Olympic ensued, and this was followed by his going to the Empire, where he has been ever since.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"DAYLIGHT GHOSTS."

A "Comedy of Terrors," in One Scene,
Invented and Written by J. N. Maskelyne and David Devant, Produced at St. George's Hall On Monday, September 3.

Perkins .....Mr. J. B. Hansard
Candler ..... } The Ghost of the Careless Gardener ..... } Mr. Edward Morehen
Forster ..... } The Ghost of the Cat ..... } Mr. C. F. Terry
Charles ..... } The Ghost of the Grandmother ..... } Mr. Charles Glenrose
Patricia .....Miss Cassie Bruce

Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant are prodigal in the surprises they spring upon their interested audiences at St. George's Hall, and as conjurers and "deceivers ever" they have a "nice derangement" of tricks wherewith to puzzle the large number of country visitors who are just now visiting the great metropolis. The newest of these forms the clou of an amusing farce, to which the title of Daylight Ghosts has been given. It has a well-defined plot, in which a couple of lovers, Patricia and Charles, are much annoyed at the meddling interference of a fussy old gardener, who will deposit his tools in a summer house wherein they are wont to spoon. To frighten the old gentleman they invent stories of ghosts haunting the place. There is the "wraith" of a careless gardener, who revisits the earth in spirit form as a punishment for starving to death a harmless, necessary cat in the very same summer house. The feline, which was a pet of Patricia's great-grandmother, is another ghost, and the third is the interesting old lady herself. In the carrying out of the plot Charles disguises himself as the ancient dame, and the groom, Candler, and the Buttons, Forster, respectively make up as the gardener and the cat. A rare game of hide-and-seek is played, the "ghosts" entering and leaving the summer house at their own sweet will without any discovery being made as to their methods of entrance or exit. Two invited members of the audience sitting near the back cloth, intently watch the summer house—which, by the way, is well above the stage and away from all scenery—without getting the slightest inkling of how it is done. The farce admirably serves its purpose, and its humour is highly appreciated. Mr. J. B. Hansard as the puzzled gardener Perkins resumes his connection with the company, and is responsible for a rendering of the part which gives full effect to the nervous apprehension of the cultivator of the soil. Mr. Edward Morehen puts plenty of character into the part of the groom; Mr. Charles Glenrose makes good use of his opportunities as Charles; and Miss Cassie Bruce is an interesting and attractive Patricia.

Dr. Hardly's Experiment and The Problem of Diogenes still occupy a prominent place in the excellent bill, to which variety is given by M. Gintaro, the dexterous Japanese juggler; C. Tamamoto, with an extraordinary display on the perpendicular rope; and Mr. Barclay Gammon and a piano. This really humorous entertainer has an excellent parody—all too short—of poor Frank Moir's song, "Down the vale," entitled "Maida Vale," in which the motor-'bus nuisance is cleverly satirised. He also gives a couple of amusing skits, by Mr. Fred E. Rome, on the sensational stories written in newspapers to advertise various patent medicines. It is evident that Mr. Gammon never intends to grow stale, and his popularity at St. George's Hall is well deserved. Mr. David Devant, with his charming sister Dora, is responsible for some interesting feats in "mental magnetism"; and Mr. F. Cramer and his bijou orchestra during the entertainment play a capital selection descriptive of a motor ride. We should add that the pretty garden which serves as the rendezvous of Daylight Ghosts is from the brush of the clever scenic artist, Mr. J. T. Bull. Mr. Ernest Maskelyne is the courteous manager of this very pleasant theatre of mystery and mirth.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On arrival at Stafford the door on the offside was found to be open and the compartment empty. There was a quantity of luggage on the racks and seats, and as there appeared to have been an accident a light engine was at once despatched up the line to search the track. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body. On Sunday afternoon she had recovered consciousness, but had no recollection of how the accident occurred. It is supposed that she was under the impression that she was travelling in a corridor car, and on opening the door fell to the ground. Asked how she could account for the accident, Miss Stephens remarked, "The railway carriage was stuffy, and I went to open the window. After that I recollect nothing more till I regained consciousness in the hospital."

DAVID GARRICK.

Mr. H. B. Irving is contributing to the Fortnightly Review a series of articles, under the title of "The English Stage in the Eighteenth Century." In the second article of the series he speaks of Robert Wilks, Barton Booth, and Mrs. Oldfield as the principal figures in stage history during Cibber's time, remarking that, "if not three of the greatest, they are three of the most amiable and distinguished persons who have ever adopted the calling of a player. Many are apt to think that the actors of the past were people of obscure and vulgar origin—mere strollers, who sacrificed little in following an ignoble and despised occupation. Such a view is incorrect. The majority of those players who attained to fame were of gentle birth, many of them the equals in manners and culture of the distinguished persons with whom the successful actor or actress of the day was invited to associate."

After giving interesting details concerning the career of each of the above-mentioned prime stage-favourites of that day, reference is made to James Quin, who scored his first success in 1720, as Falstaff in The Merry Wives of Windsor; Mrs. Cibber, who married the worthless son of Colley Cibber, and Mrs. Pritchard—in the opinion of Mrs. Siddons the greatest of all Lady Macbeths, and, according to Dr. Johnson, a "vulgar idiot" in private life. Mrs. Woffington, and Mrs. Clive, are also mentioned, the last two being described as "generous, good-hearted women, who spent the greater part of their earnings in supporting poor relations; very troublesome in the theatre, worrying the life out of their managers, and quarrelling violently at times with each other."

Mr. Irving pays an eloquent tribute to the greatest actor and most accomplished manager of his time, David Garrick. He says:—"In the history of the English drama there are two great occasions on which an actor, hitherto unknown to the London public, won an immediate triumph on his first appearance, before a scanty and sceptical audience, converted, by the force of his genius, cold critics into astonished admirers, and achieved this signal success in a play which had in it no element of novelty, but depended almost entirely for its interest that night on the performance of the particular player. One such occasion was David Garrick's performance of Richard III. at the Goodman's Fields Theatre, on Oct. 19, 1741; a second, the first appearance of Edmund Kean as Shylock, at Drury Lane, on Jan. 26, 1814. Garrick was only twenty-three years of age at the time of his first appearance, Kean twenty-seven. But Kean had been on the stage since his childhood; Garrick had only played a short season at Ipswich before he faced the ordeal at Goodman's Fields. Garrick was an actor born, if ever there was one, 'an actor, a complete actor, and nothing but an actor,' says Dibdin, 'as Pope, during the whole course of his life, was a poet, and nothing but a poet.' It was Pope who, on seeing Garrick play, declared the young man never had his equal as an actor, and never would have a rival. Garrick had rivals, plenty of them, during his career—Quin, Macklin, Barry, Mossop, Henderson; but they never seriously affected his position. They may have played some parts better than he, but they could not challenge his versatility, the fire and rapidity, the liveliness and spirit of all that he did and said on the stage.

"The moment of his appearance was undoubtedly propitious for the success of one gifted as he was. There is something naïve in the reasons assigned by the writers of the day for the peculiar impression made by the young actor; they reveal a deplorable condition of the stage—the prevalence of a thoroughly vicious and meaningless style of acting. The critics are astonished that Mr. Garrick should identify himself so completely with his part, that he should speak naturally, and not in the accustomed 'demi-chant,' his voice neither whining, bellowing, nor grumbling; he neither struts nor minces, is neither stiff nor slouching. "When others are on the stage with him," they remark, with astonishment, "he is attentive to whatever is spoke, and never drops his character when he has finished his speech, by either looking contemptuously on an inferior performer, unnecessary spitting, or suffering his eyes to wander through the whole circle of spectators." Here was indeed a Daniel come to judgment, if these virtues in Garrick attest the vices of the older actors; the success of this mercurial youth, the grandson, be it remembered, of French refugees, graceful, easy, vivacious in an unwonted degree, is less surprising when it comes as a relief from such a style of acting as these criticisms suggest. Mackin, an actor of far less spirit, had, earlier in the same year, made a profound impression by breaking away from theatrical convention in his performance of Shylock. He made the Jew for the first time a serious character. Physically a man of strong and rugged feature, rough, a "sour-faced dog," according to Fielding, Macklin imported into the part of Shylock an element of the strong and terrible that has never been equalled. When Sir Robert Walpole lamented to King George II. that there was no way of frightening the House of Commons, the King, who had the night before visited Drury Lane, and been greatly impressed by Macklin's performance, replied, "What do you think of sending them to the theatre to see that Irishman play Shylock?"

"Of this genius of Garrick's, how difficult it is to form for one's self, much more to convey to others, any adequate notion! A rather short figure, but perfectly symmetrical, and graceful in all its movements, dark, restless, piercing eyes, and a face mobile in every feature, these would seem to have been the physical characteristics of the player. Many critics dwell on the completeness of his physical equipment, the perfect harmony of voice, feature, and figure, that made them unite with imperceptible ease to give expression to the actor's thought. Grimm, the French philosopher, describes with enthusiasm the skill and conviction with which Garrick got up in a drawing-room and, after thrilling his hearers by his delivery of the 'dagger' speech in Macbeth, convulsed them with laughter by his imitation of a baker's boy who, carrying a tray of cakes on his head, lets it fall into the mud, and bursts into tears at his misfortune. This drawing-room performance epitomises the whole art of the player who could achieve equal success in the pathetic tragedy of Lear and the low comedy of Abel Drugger. And this success was gained by a natural, unforced, spontaneous method of playing that astonished and delighted both an English and a French spectator, for the French stage in these days suffered, as the English, from the conventional actor's sing-song, mechanical habit of ladling out his lines. In all probability Lear was Garrick's greatest part. Here, in spite of his comparative shortness, of the unsuitability of his attire—he walked with a crutch—his delivery of the curse was held to be terrific, his madness simple and pathetic. The testimony of his fellow players is perhaps the most conclusive of his extraordinary powers. Mrs. Siddons was terrified by the power of his eye in Richard III.; Mrs. Clive swore he could act a gridiron; Bannister said that in Lear his very stick acted; Smith wrote, 'I never can speak of him but with idolatry, and have ever looked upon it as one of the greatest blessings of my life to have lived in the days of Garrick.' Garrick had his limitations; in parts such as Othello, Faulconbridge, Hotspur, where physical force and powerful declamation were demanded, he was inadequate. But these failures were, as a contemporary critic observed, 'spots on the sun, only visible to long-sighted astronomers.' As an actor, from the age of twenty-three till he retired at fifty-nine, Garrick was the greatest master and exponent of his art."

CIBBER ON BETTERTON.

When Nat. Lee's famous tragedy, Alexander the Great, from its being too frequently acted, was worn out, and came to be deserted by the Town, upon the sudden Death of Montfort, who had play'd Alexander with Success for several Years, the Part, says Colley Cibber in his "Apology for his Life," was given to Betterton, which, under this great Disadvantage of the Satiety it had given, he immediately reviv'd with so new a Lustre that for three Days together it fill'd the House; and had his then declining Strength been equal to the Fatigue the Action gave him, it probably might have doubled its Success; an uncommon Instance of the Power and intrinsick Merit of an Actor. This I mention not only to prove what irresistable Pleasure may arise from a judicious Elocution, with scarce Sense to assist it; but to shew you too, that tho' Betterton never wanted Fire and Force when his Character demanded it; yet, where it was not demanded, he never prostituted his Power to the low Ambition of a false Applause. And further, that when, from a too advanced Age, he resigned that toilsome Part of Alexander, the Play for many years after never was able to impose upon the Publick; and I look upon his so particularly supporting the false Fire and Extravagancies of that Character to be a more surprizing Proof of his Skill than his being eminent in those of Shakespear; because there, Truth and Nature coming to his Assistance, he had not the same Difficulties to combat, and consequently we must be less amaz'd at his Success where we are more able to account for it.

Notwithstanding the extraordinary Power he shew'd in blowing Alexander once more into a blaze of Admiration, Betterton had so just a sense of what was true or false Applause, that I have heard him say, he never thought any kind of it equal to an attentive Silence; that there were many ways of deceiving an Audience into a loud one; but to keep them husht and quiet was an Applause which only Truth and Merit could arrive at: Of which Art there never was an equal Master to himself. From these various Excellencies, he had so full a Possession of the Esteem and Regard of his Auditors, that upon his Entrance into every Scene he seem'd to seize upon the Eyes and Ears of the Giddy and Inadvertent! To have talk'd or look'd another way would then have been thought Insensibility or Ignorance. In all his Soliloquies of moment, the strong Intelligence of his Attitude and Aspect drew you into such an impatient Gaze and eager Expectation, that you almost imbib'd the Sentiment with your Eye before the Ear could reach it.

As Betterton is the Centre to which all my Observations upon Action tend, you will give me leave, under his Character, to enlarge upon that Head. In the just Delivery of Poetical Numbers, particularly where the Sentiments are pathetick, it is scarce credible upon how minute an Article of Sound depends their greatest Beauty or Inaffection. The Voice of a Singer is not more strictly ty'd to Time and Tune, than that of an Actor in Theatrical Elocution: The least Syllable too long or too slightly dwelt upon in a Period depreciates it to nothing; which very Syllable if rightly touch'd shall, like the heightening Stroke of Light from a Master's Pencil, give Life and Spirit to the whole. I never heard a Line in Tragedy come from Betterton wherein my Judgment, my Ear, and my Imagination were not fully satisfy'd; which, since his Time, I cannot equally say of any one Actor whatsoever: Not but it is possible to be much his Inferior, with great Excellencies; which I shall observe in another Place. Had it been practicable to have ty'd down the clattering Hands of all the ill judges who were commonly the Majority of an Audience, to what amazing Perfection might the English Theatre have arrived with so just an Actor as Betterton at the Head of it!

If you remember Estcourt, you must have know that he was long enough upon the Stage not to be under the least Restraint from Fear in his Performance: This Man was so amazing and extraordinary a Mimick, that no Man or Woman, from the Coquette to the Privy-Counsellor, ever mov'd or spoke before him, but he could carry their Voice, Look, Mien, and Motion, instantly into another Company: I have heard him make long Harangues and form various Arguments, even in the manner of thinking of an eminent Pleader at the Bar, with every the least Article and Singularity of his Utterance so perfectly imitated, that he was the very alter ipse, scarce to be distinguish'd from his Original. Yet more; I have seen upon the Margin of the written Part of Falstaff which he acted, his own Notes and Observations upon almost every Speech of it, describing the true Spirit of the Humour, and with what Tone of Voice, Look, and Gesture, each of them ought to be delivered. Yet in his Execution upon the Stage he seem'd to have lost all those just Ideas he had form'd of it, and almost thro' the Character labour'd under a heavy Load of Flatness: In a word, with all his Skill in Mimickry and Knowledge of what ought to be done, he never upon the Stage could bring it truly into Practice, but was upon the whole a languid, unaffecting Actor. What Talents will infallibly form an Actor? This I confess is one of Nature's Secrets, too deep for me to dive into; let us content our selves therefore with affirming, That Genius, which Nature only gives, only can complete him. This Genius then was so strong in Betterton, that it shone out in every Speech and Motion of him. Yet Voice and Person are such necessary Supports to it, that by the Multitude they have been preferr'd to Genius itself, or at least often mistaken for it. Betterton had a Voice of that kind which gave more Spirit to Terror than to the softer Passions; of more Strength than Melody. The Rage and Jealousy of Othello became him better than the Sighs and Tenderness of Castalio. For though in Castalio he only excell'd others, in Othello he excell'd himself; which you will easily believe when you consider that, in spite of his Complexion, Othello has more natural Beauties than the best Actor can find in all the Magazine of Poetry to animate his Power and delight his Judgment with.

The Person of this excellent Actor was suitable to his Voice, more manly than sweet, not exceeding the Middle Stature, inclining to the corpulent; of a serious and penetrating Aspect; his Limbs nearer the athletick than the delicate Proportion; yet however form'd, there arose from the Harmony of the whole a commanding Mien of Majesty, which the fairer-fac'd or (as Shakespear calls 'em) the curled Darlings of his Time ever wanted something to be equal Masters of. There was some Years ago to be had, almost in every Print-shop, a Metzotinto from Kneller, extremely like him.

In all I have said of Betterton, I confine myself to the Time of his Strength and highest Power in Action, that you may make Allowances from what he was able to execute at Fifty, to what you might have seen of him at past Seventy; for tho' to the last he was without his Equal, he might not then be equal to his former Self; yet so far was he from being ever overtaken, that for many Years after his Decease I seldom saw any of his Parts in Shakespear supply'd by others but it drew from me the Lamentation of Ophelia upon Hamlet's being unlike what she had seen him.

——Ah! woe is me!
T'have seen what I have seen, see what I see!

The last Part this great Master of his Profession acted was Melantius in the Maid's Tragedy, for his own Benefit; when being suddenly seiz'd by the Gout, he submitted, by extraordinary Applications, to have his Foot so far reliev'd that he might be able to walk on the Stage in a Slipper, rather than wholly disappoint his Auditors. He was observ'd that Day to have exerted a more than ordinary Spirit, and met with suitable Applause; but the unhappy Consequence of tampering with his Distemper was, that it flew into his Head, and kill'd him in three Days, (I think) in the seventy-fourth Year of his Age.

SIR WALTER SCOTT AND THE THEATRE.

Lockhart, in his "Life of Sir Walter Scott," bears testimony to the interest which the famous novelist and poet took in theatrical affairs. In one of the early chapters Scott's biographer writes: "He had from his boyish days a great love for theatrical representation, and so soon as circumstances enabled him to practise extended hospitality, the chief actors of his time, whenever they happened to be in Scotland, were among the most acceptable of his guests. Mr. Charles Young was, I believe, the first of them of whom he saw much. As early as 1803 I find him writing of that gentleman to the Marchioness of Abercorn as a valuable addition to the society of Edinburgh; and down to the end of Scott's life Mr. Young was never in the north without visiting him."

Charles Mayne Young, the actor here referred to, greatly distinguished himself in Shakespeare's tragedies. Edmund Kean wrote of him: "I had never seen Young act! Everyone about me told me he could not hold a farthing rushlight to me; but he can! He is an actor; and though I flatter myself he could not act Othello as I do, yet what chance should I have in Iago after him, with his personal advantages and his d—— musical voice? I don't believe he could play Jaffier as well as I can; but fancy me in Pierre after him! I tell you what; Young is not only an actor such as I did not dream him to have been, but he is a gentleman!"

Lockhart continues: "Another graceful and intelligent performer in whom he took a special interest, and of whom he saw a good deal in his private circle, was Miss Smith, afterwards Mrs. Bartley. But at the period of which I am now treating his principal theatrical intimacy was with John Philip Kemble, and his sister, Mrs. Siddons, both of whom he appears to have often met at Lord Abercorn's villa near Stanmore during his spring visits to London after the first establishment of his poetical celebrity. Of John Kemble's personal character and manners he has recorded his impressions in a pleasing reviewal of Mr. Boaden's memoir. The great tragedian's love of black-letter learning, especially of dramatic antiquities, afforded a strong bond of fellowship; and I have heard Scott say that the only man who ever seduced him into very deep potations in his middle life was Kemble. He was frequently at Ashestiel, and the 'fat Scotch butler, whom Mr. Skene has described to us, by name John Macbeth, made sore complaints of the bad hours kept on such occasions in one of the most regular of households; but the watchings of the night were not more grievous to 'Cousin Macbeth,' as Kemble called the honest beauffetier, than were the hazards and fatigues of the morning to the representative of 'the Scotch usurper.' Kemble's miseries during a rough gallop were quite as grotesque as those of his namesake, and it must be owned that species of distress was one from the contemplation of which his host could never derive anything but amusement. I have heard Scott chuckle with particular glee over the recollection of an excursion to the vale of the Ettrick, near which river the party were pursued by a bull. 'Come, King John,' said he, 'we must even take the water.' Accordingly he and his daughter plunged into the stream. But King John, halting on the bank and surveying the river, which happened to be full and turbid, exclaimed in his usual solemn manner:

'The flood is angry, Sheriff;
Methinks I'll get up into a tree.'

It was well that the dogs had succeeded in diverting the bull, because there was no tree at hand which could have sustained King John; nor, had that been otherwise, could so stately a personage have dismounted and ascended with such alacrity as circumstances would have required. He at length followed his friends through the river with the rueful dignity of Don Quixote."

In a footnote Lockhart adds: "John Kemble's most familiar table-talk often flowed into blank verse; and so, indeed, did his sister's. Scott (who was a capital mimic) often repeated her tragic exclamation to a footboy during a dinner at Ashestiel—'You've brought me water, boy; I asked for beer.' Another time, dining with the Provost of Edinburgh, she ejaculated, in answer to her host's apology for his pièce de résistance: 'Beef cannot be too salt for me, my Lord!'

"It was this intercourse [with Kemble] which led Scott to exert himself very strenuously, when some change in the administration of the Edinburgh Theatre became necessary—I believe in 1808—to prevail on Mr. Henry Siddons, a nephew of Kemble, to undertake the lease and management. Such an arrangement would, he expected, induce both Kemble and his sister to be more in Scotland than hitherto; and what he had seen of young Siddons himself led him to prognosticate a great improvement in the whole conduct of the northern stage. His wishes were at length accomplished in the summer of 1809. On this occasion he purchased a share and became one of the acting trustees for the general body of proprietors; and thenceforth, during a long series of years, he continued to take a very lively concern in the proceedings of the Edinburgh company.

"The first new play produced by Henry Siddons was The Family Legend, of Joanna Baillie. This was, I believe, the first of her dramas that ever underwent the test of representation in her native kingdom; and Scott appears to have exerted himself most indefatigably in its behalf. He was consulted about all the minutiæ of costume, attended every rehearsal, and supplied the prologue. The play was better received than any other which the gifted authoress has since subjected to the same experiment; and how ardently Scott enjoyed its success will appear from a few specimens of the many letters which he addressed to his friend on the occasion."

The following is an extract from the first of these letters, dated Edinburgh, Oct. 27, 1809, whither he had gone for the purpose of entering his eldest boy at the High School: "With regard to the equipment of The Family Legend, I have been much diverted with a discovery which I have made. I had occasion to visit our Lord Provost (by profession a stocking weaver), and was surprised to find the worthy magistrate filled with a new-born zeal for the drama. He spoke of Mr. Siddons' merits with enthusiasm, and of Miss Baillie's powers almost with tears of rapture. Being a curious investigator of cause and effect, I never rested until I found out that this theatric rage, which had seized his lordship of a sudden, was owing to a large order for hose, pantaloons, and plaids for equipping the rival clans of Campbell and Maclean, and which Siddons was sensible enough to send to the warehouse of our excellent provost."

In another letter to Miss Baillie, who was then a resident of Hampstead, Scott gives a full account of the successful production of The Family Legend. There were rumours of a strong opposition, but these proved groundless. Scott awaited the rise of the curtain with "extreme anxiety." He writes: "But in a short time I saw there was no ground whatever for apprehension; and yet I sat the whole time shaking for fear a scene-shifter, or a carpenter, or some of the subaltern actors, should make some blunder, and interrupt the feeling of deep and general interest which soon seized on the whole pit, box, and gallery."

The Family Legend, which had a continuous run of fourteen nights, was produced at Drury Lane on May 29, 1815, with Mrs. Bartley as Helen, Wallack as Maclean, S. Penley as Sir Hubert de Grey, and Bartley as the Earl. The last-mentioned actor, George Bartley, was a comedian who gained considerable renown for his Falstaff. His wife, already referred to as an actress well known to Scott, was considered impressive in Lady Macbeth.

THE OPEN AIR SHOWS AT EASTBOURNE.

Eastbourne has a reputation for elegance to maintain, and so long as the Olympian Concert Party is the open-air attraction of the pier, she stands in no danger of losing her reputation. They are a troupe of pierrots, Mr. J. M. Campbell is at their head, and his répertoire of mimicry and vocal caricature makes him worthy of his giddy eminence. Miss Edith Blanchard is the contralto; she uses a splendid voice splendidly. Pierrette should be gay, and Miss Blanchard's gaiety is seen in her duets with Mr. Campbell and Mr. Hugh E. Wright.

One associates irresponsibility with Pierrot, but never was there such a sparkling spontaneity and irrepressible humour as Mr. Wright's. If he could keep serious for long enough Mr. Wright would be a tragedian of high merit; witness his recitation of the monologue, Devil-may-care, but, happily, we have no reason to suppose he could keep serious for any length of time. Mr. Bernard Davies is the baritone, and to hear him sing "The Trumpeter" is a revelation of how such a song should be sung. Mr. Harry King is a recent addition to the merry troupe, and is a comedian of ability and a mimic of considerable power. With such a troupe much depends on the accompanist, and in Mr. Eustace Wallis the Eastbourne pierrots have a sympathetic and artistic musician, whose piano solo is invariably one of the most fascinating turns of the entertainment.

In their concerted pieces the troupe is heard at its best. The introductory chorus to the tune of "La Maxixe" sets the ball of fun rolling merrily, but the pierrots (to quote one of Mr. Davies' songs) are simply delightful in anything at all.

From the pier, strolling along the beach, we came to the immense crowd attracted by "Uncle Ben's Royal Eastbourne Minstrels," under the direction of Mr. Ben Stoddart (Uncle Ben), Eastbourne's premier open-air entertainer, who for twenty years past has organised and managed the high-class Christy Minstrel shows on the beach. The comedians of this season, in addition to Uncle Ben, include Mr. Mackney (Uncle Tom) and Mr. Montague. The other members of the troupe are—F. Kelly (violinist), G. Peterson (harpist), and T. Rock (guitarist).

It is imagined by some that nigger performances at the seaside are losing popular favour, but this is certainly not so with Uncle Ben and his merry Blacks, for far and away the biggest crowd at any of the alfresco performances was found enjoying the really up-to-date and highly-amusing show given by this capitally managed troupe.

The "Invicta Concert Party" consists of the following talented artists:—Charles Vincent, Fred Terry, Frank Irwin, Charles Marsden, and Herbert Knight. Their single turns and their duets and concerted pieces were of the best kind, and manifestly delighted the large crowd that gathered around their open-air stage.

The Corporation of Eastbourne deserve every praise for the excellent diversity and well-ordered arrangements for their crowds of visitors, in addition to the open-air entertainers at their properly-appointed pitches on the beach; there are three bands at bandstands along the great stretch of sea front, and without mentioning the splendid entertainments at Devonshire Park, provision is made for the amusement of all sorts and conditions of people whom good fortune has led to select "Elegant Eastbourne" for their summer holiday.

THE SOCIAL SIDE OF SHOW LIFE.

We are indebted to a showman correspondent travelling the Scotch fairs for the following interesting notes from Greenock Fair.

The temperance propaganda work under the fostering wing of Miss Millington, of York, was again a feature of the fair, and the special showman orator was Mr. Styles, of Gould and Styles's Exhibition, and with him in the good crusade were Messrs. Salvona and Henderson, well-known showmen of Scotland.

Mr. Styles by his speech betrayed the fact that he was an Englishman. He complimented his fellow showmen on the higher standard of the business in Scotland. It was more and more being recognised as a commercial enterprise, and men engaged in it required to have their minds clear and active if they would meet the competition that was now so keen. Hence the pressing need, apart from other reasons, for temperance. Mr. Styles also said that it was the first time he had been in Scotland, and he was glad to say that he was taking away with him a most pleasant recollection of the respectability, sobriety, and general good conduct of the Scotch travellers.

At the close a bouquet of flowers was presented to each of those present, being a gift from many friends in town. A number of the travellers signed the pledge.

THE MIDNIGHT CONCERT.

When the toot-toot of the whistles has ceased to make itself heard any longer, when the last shout of "Just about to commence, ladies and gentlemen," has ceased, it is an annual habit with the showmen, their gaily dressed women folks, and their bright-eyed children, to adjourn to the British Women's Temperance Tent and hold a concert on the Friday evening. The special feature of this year's entertainment was the presence of Miss Millington of "The Caravan," a paper distributed amongst these travelling folks. The concert, which was organised by Miss Wilmot, was most social and genial. In the absence of Mr. Jas. Wilmot, who has presided at former concerts, the chair was occupied by Mr. Arthur Henderson, ably assisted by Mr. Swallow. It is a feature of the concert to have two chairmen. They were supported on the platform by Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot, sen., Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Swallow, and Miss Helen Wilmot, Mr. and Mrs. Styles, Mrs. Hunter, and Mrs. John M'Cadick, jun., Mr. Gould, and several local friends of the showpeople.

The programme was a long and interesting one, and although it extended till a comparatively late morning hour, the interest was kept up till the end. Songs were given by Miss Merrick, Mrs. Testo, Mrs. Dunseath, and Mrs. Roberts, and by Messrs. W. Paton, A. Henderson, jun., J. Docherty Styles, G. Merrick, J. Roberts, J. Ross, J. Salvona, H. Barr, and "Jolly Jumbo." Recitations were given by Mrs. Cyclops, Joe Salvona, H. Barr, and Mr. Arthur Henderson. A cake-walk was cleverly danced by Miss Jessie and Master George Knight. Mr. Styles gave as a one-man play a thrilling representation of "At the Telephone," and Mr. Bert Naylor, a clever impersonator of comic artists. Two young comedians, Messrs. Grigor and Grigora, gave a very amusing example of their art.

The collections for "The Caravan," which were taken up during the evening, including subscriptions from absent travellers, amounted to £6 7s. 8½d., and, including the collection taken at a similar concert at Bridge-of-Allan, amounting to £1 13s. 6d., the sum of £8 1s. 2½d. was handed to Miss Millington for "The Caravan."

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Henderson for the use of his tent and his admirable conduct in the chair closed a very successful concert and a very happy evening.

We heartily congratulate that veteran showman of Scotland, Mr. John Wilmot, that his whole family takes so keen an interest (along with himself and Mrs. Wilmot) in all that makes for the good of the people of the road. Especially is this true of his earnest-minded daughter, Miss Wilmot.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

MR. JOSEPH STUDT commenced his annual visit to Reading on Monday, and is doing first-class business in the Cattle Market enclosure. The attractions include a novel motor-car track, galloping horses, a fine display of living pictures, and numerous other novelties and specialities.

IN the Chancery Division, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Gibson, on Tuesday, Mr. Horan (instructed by Messrs. Keating and Keating) applied, on behalf of the plaintiff, Mary J. Keating, for an order for liberty to issue a summons to join Reuben E. Mellon, of Glencoe, Greystones, co. Wicklow, building contractor, with her as plaintiff. The action was brought for an injunction against William Toft, now of Greystones, to restrain him from continuing an establishment consisting of merry-go-rounds, hobby-horses, &c., carried on for public amusements at Greystones. The matter had been already partly heard before the Court. Counsel relied on the affidavits of the plaintiff. His Lordship granted the application.

WORK on the new Hippodrome, Paisley, at present being built by Mr. E. H. Bostock, of the Zoo, Glasgow, is proceeding rapidly, and the hall is expected to be ready for opening next month. Mr. Bostock is sparing no expense in booking the best talent, and is laying out a considerable sum on the building. The place will be fitted on a lavish scale, with all the latest improvements. Special attention will be directed to the interior decoration.

THE city of Leeds, the centre of an enormous population exceeding four millions of people, finds a necessary outlet for amusement and recreation in its encircling belt of suburban fairs, locally known as feasts. Two of the most important of these coincide on the first four days of September, those of Armley and Halton, both of them immense gathering grounds of show novelties. Halton serves the east end of Leeds—a vast industrial centre, with an outer fringe of collieries. For this year's feast the principal shows were Chipperfield's menagerie, Randall Williams' (Monti Bros.) superb theatre of animated photography and empire of varieties, Testo's cinematograph, Wm. Murphy's electric motor-cars, Collins' ostrich farm, Waddington's steam yachts, Hamilton's galloping horses, Morley and Burgin's steam swings, and manual swings by Dobson and Riley, Houldsworth's slipping-the-slip, Dobson's Japanese air-ship, three sets of gem swings and horses, three football frames, three rifle saloons, and varieties, fairground novelties by Messrs. Baynes, Ashcroft, Jameson, Cutler, Dobson, and some twenty or thirty others. The fair, under the banner of Mr. Wm. Murphy, was admirably set out by his senior agent and business-manager, Mr. J. B. Whitehead.

ARMLEY Feast serves the west end of "Woollenopolis," and here again there is splendid opportunity for expert arrangement of the fairground and management of its varied interests. The shows and other entertainments were:—Tuby and Sons' coliseum, Professor Gibson's temple of mystery, E. Ball's marvellous midgets, Westray's two ground booths, Professor Watson's boxers, four sets of motors, one set of galloping horses, steam swings, and manual swings were provided by Tuby and Sons, Marshall, Redfern, Bottomley, Jervis, and Hughes. The fairing and toy bazaars were provided by J. Seed and A. Gladstone, and a special feature of this fair was E. P. Holland's machine novelty, whirling the whirl. There were also four rifle saloons, twelve bottle-smashers, twenty-three Emma sheets, twenty cokers, ten roll-up boards, six pannum stalls, four football frames, and streets and streets of minor novelties.

GREAT HORTON, Bradford, kept its feast on Sept. 1, 2, 3, and 4, and here were Relph and Pedley's magnificent electrograph, J. Proctor's cinematograph, J. Hastings' two ground booths, and the athletic show, the lady wrestlers. Relph and Pedley also exhibited the Japanese air-ship, whirling the whirl, and J. Amos provided steam swings. The variety entertainers and novelty caterers were Blake, Houldsworth, Powell, Thompson, Ashcroft, Rhodes, and some thirty others.

ANOTHER good business fixture in Yorkshire is Cleckheaton, situated on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway line, with its own population exceeding 12,000. Its business importance lies rather in the fact that it draws its crowds from a much-congested industrial area counting its hundreds of thousands of toil-worn workers. It is in such centres that the showman does his best work and finds the best scope for his up-to-date enterprise. The shows and novelties included Crichton and Farrer with cinematograph exhibitions, Ben Howden and Sons with motor-car track and whirling the whirl, Joe Corrigan with steam swings, and Messrs. Houldsworth and Burgess with shooting concerns; and thirty minor novelties and varieties by other caterers.

LANCASHIRE sends us word of Chorley Wakes, where the principal novelties were Captain Tom Payne's bioscope, Wm. Payne's novelty show, John Green's motor-cars and Venetian gondolas, Wilson and Taylor's galloping horses, flying ostriches and steam yachts by Mrs. Holden and T. Holden, big boats by Webb, highfliers and swings by Sharp, Webb, and Taylor, juvenile horses by Sharp, tunnel railway by Williams, Harrison's helter-skelter, Bowker's slippery slope, shooting concerns by Wilson, Grant, Williams, Taylor, Sharp, and Dewhurst; throwing games and varieties of many kinds by Messrs. Taylor, Richmond, Garlick, Ficer, Ingham, Cubbins, Redfern, and Pablo.

GORTON WAKES, Manchester, this year begins a new lease of vigorous life, Messrs. Hurst and J. Collins having secured much better-situated and more commodious fairground than the one hitherto used. We were very much impressed when we visited the fair with the well-thought-out and expert arrangements, the fairground being large enough to admit of experiments in this direction that on a smaller ground would be impossible. The most important of these improvements was the massing of the roundabouts and steam yachts, with their loud-voiced orchestrophones, on a site as far aloof as possible from the exhibitions and side shows. This is a step in the right direction, and we heartily congratulate Messrs. Hurst and Collins on the innovation. We also noticed a feature that is very much forgotten at the average fairs, and that is, ample ground space for the crowd before the principal shows, wide and commanding entrances, and well-planned avenues of minor novelties.

THE principal shows were Colonel Clark's classical entertainment of living picture and variety turns, Professor Haydn's second-sight seance, including the marvellous "Clytie," Mrs. Birch's freak exhibits, and two or three side shows by Messrs. White, Jordan, and Shaw. The machines were:—J. Collins' wheely-whirly, the steam yachts and roundabout, one of T. Hurst's farmyard sets, Hibbert's flying horses and gem set, Royle's horses and swings, and swings and gem sets by other caterers, including W. Chaplain and S. Mercer. The shooting galleries included the well-known concerns of G. H. Cornwell and Mrs. John Cornwell. There were crowds of other well-known caterers on the Manchester Round, including Marsden, Fletcher, Burton, Horton, Worthington, Humphries, Hughes, Martin, and Barker.

MR. FRED BIBBY made an excellent proposal at the close of the Gorton meeting, when discussing the best means of raising funds for the work of the Showmen's Guild. He reminded the meeting that showmen were proverbially generous in their support of hospitals and other institutions, but that their charity ought sometimes to begin at home. "Why not," he demanded, "have a vandwellers' day, as well as hospital days, and take up the collection for the benefit of their own society?" He suggested that a good day to do this would be the Friday in the week of Nottingham Goose Fair, and urged that committeemen and friends of the Society, properly authorised to do so, should go from show to show, from stall to stall, and take subscriptions on every fairground in the United Kingdom in support of the old Society. He threw that out as a suggestion, and would be very glad to do his utmost to bring it to a successful conclusion.

A SCOTCH correspondent sends us word of the sudden death, owing to heart failure, of the well-known and highly-respected showman, Thomas Wright. His death took place in his own caravan as they were journeying to Stirling Fair. The deceased has been in broken health for some time past, and we feel quite sure that the sympathy of the whole showman world will go out to the family.

IN connection with the observance of Lady Mary's Fair, lively scenes were recently witnessed in Dundee. The fair, which originated in 1296, entitles all and sundry to erect booths and sell commodities anywhere within the ancient royalty of the city. In recent years shopkeepers complained of the booths interfering with their business, and this year a number of them took the precaution of renting stands in front of their premises. Despite this precaution, however, a number of itinerant merchants erected their stands on the rented sites and refused to leave. Ultimately a force of police was requisitioned to forcibly eject the stallholders. The "cheap Jacks" took up a collection and put the matter in the hands of a solicitor.

EVESHAM is an important market town in Worcestershire, sixteen miles from Redditch, fourteen from Worcester, and six from Pershore. It has stations on the Midland and Great Western Railways. An important cattle market is held here. The great pleasure and hiring fair will be held on Friday, Oct. 5, on Merstow-green, and also in Vine-street. Space is also let to showmen and others at the Fleece Meadow. The chief industry is market gardening, fruit growing, &c. Population, 7100.

ULLENHALL Wakes Fair was maintained by Herberts, of Redditch, who had on the wakes ground roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, cokernut sheets, stalls, pipe-smasher, and other amusements.

WINCHCOMBE is a very ancient market town in Gloucestershire, seven miles from Cheltenham, eleven from Tewkesbury, and eleven from Evesham. Hiring fairs are held here on the Saturdays before and after October 10. Railway, the Great Western; population, 2700; market day, Saturday. Large horse fairs are also held here. Industries, chiefly agricultural and fruit growing.

AT Redditch Flower Show the local caterer, Mr. C. Herbert, supplied amusements, viz., roundabouts, swing-boats, shooting saloons, cokernut gardens, and numerous other attractions.

GEO. WHITE'S electric motor-cars and other novelties finished the season at Fraserburg, N.B., on Tuesday. The large electric pavilion of cinematography and vaudeville has been packed to the doors, the pictures being of the very latest, with an entire change each show. The chief operator, Mr. Hutchins, being a practical photographer, new films are frequently produced. Dr. Oliver, the descriptive lecturer and entertainer, is a host in himself, his dramatic interpretation of various subjects finding great favour with all patrons. The Freemans do well in comedy songs, and Little Fanny Newsome ably sustains the traditions of her family by her clever singing and dancing. Funny little Lewis is clever as a solo pianist and pantomimist; Mlle. Jeanette, handcuff queen, is very smart; and Mme. Herculine well sustains her reputation of great strength.

MRS. J. D. HUMPHREYS writes:—"On behalf of myself and family, I wish to thank all the ladies and gentlemen who so generously subscribed to the J. D. Humphreys Fund; also the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift (hon. treasurer) for their kindly services."

THE marriage took place in Liverpool on Wednesday last of Harold Rufus Hibbert, fourth son of James Hibbert, amusement caterer, Bloomstreet, Stockport, and Alice Collins, eldest daughter of John Collins, of the "World's Fair" and Overton-street, Liverpool. The honeymoon is being spent at Brighton and Eastbourne.

BOSCO'S CIRCUS is visiting the following towns in Ireland—Ballina, Enniscrone, Castlebar, Westport, &c.—and is showing to fair business. Amongst the turns are the Monon Troupe of Continental musical and comedy acrobats; Little Sid, who, as clown, is well received; and the Yelding Trio of jockeys, wire, and globe artists, Bob Yelding and Miss Lena making big hits with their dashing acts; Will Manchester, song and dance artist, is also in the bill, which includes that thrilling spectacle The Redskins.

MR. SAM JONES, the popular and respected leader of Bosco's band, broke his leg at Claremorris on Monday, this regrettable accident necessitating his removal to the hospital in that town, but we are pleased to learn that he is making favourable progress towards recovery.

ACCORDING to advices to hand from America, Miss Lillian Davies, the dashing and fearless bare-backed equestrienne, is meeting with huge success nightly with Barnum and Bailey's great show on their American circuit. It may not be generally known that Miss Davies is the daughter of Mrs. L. Davies, the well-known Irish circus proprietress, who retired to a well-earned rest last season, after some forty years' tenting. Miss Davies met with great success at the opening of the Hippodrome last season at Mansfield. She has as a working partner on her American tour Miss Millie Ginnett, the well-known and handsome haute-école rider.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. W. (Hemel Hempstead).—The correspondence you sent is kept over for consideration, and possible use next week.

J. MILLER.—We are writing you fully by post, and thank you for the reassuring information.

J. BEAUMONT (West Hartlepool).—The address you ask us for is Mr. T. Orton, Orton and Sons, Carriage Builders, Burton-on-Trent.

A. WHITMEE.—Extremely sorry, but pressure of work has prevented me seeing you this week, and paucity of space in our Showman World columns prevents me also dealing with your matter further this week.

F. C. (UNCLE FRED).—Your letter and the acrostic to hand. Crowded out this week. Many thanks. It does your heart credit.

THE staff of the New Palace Theatre, Plymouth, had their annual outing last week, and were favoured by climatic conditions, which made the trip most enjoyable. The towns of Totnes and Newton Abbot, and the seaside places of Torquay and Paignton, were respectively visited, and a most pleasant day was spent.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

MEETING AT GORTON.

The first of a series of meetings organised by the executive of the Showmen's Guild for the purpose of informing the Showman World of the necessity of greater financial support for the work of trade defence was held at the biggest gathering ground of Lancashire showmen on Sunday afternoon last.

As we announced last week, the Rev. T. Horne was the principal speaker, supported by Mr. Fred Bibby, who was voted to the chair, and the following members of the Executive Council of the Guild:—Wm. Mitchell, V.P. and treasurer; G. H. Cornwell, V.P.; Wm. Clark, V.P.; E. Holland, Wm. Gibson, Wm. Chaplain, J. Geoghegan, members of the committee; T. Hurst, hon. secretary; and Messrs. S. Mercer, Ingham, Haydn, Brown, Mitchell, Rawlings, and a great gathering of notable show people. In opening the proceedings, Mr. Fred Bibby said that "The object that we have met here to-day to set out clearly before the Showman World is the policy and work of the United Kingdom Showmen and Vandwellers' Protection Association, known as 'The Showmen's Guild,' what it has done in the past, and what it has still to do in the future. I have been closely identified with this society from its inception, and I took no small part in the framing of its rules and constitution. Although I have no axe to grind or personal object to serve, I am proud to number myself amongst 'the Bohemians of the Road.' I claim to have as clear a knowledge of the workings of this society as anyone, I have subscribed to its funds, and have been a member from the very beginning, and I am here to-day to testify that my confidence in its executive officials is greater now than ever in the past, and I am also here to commend with all the force I possess its important work to your continued confidence and increased financial support. We will presently hear from Mr. Horne the story of the Guild's work during the years of its busy and ever-increasing work, and also to warn you, my brothers and sisters of the road, that great as the dangers were through which the Guild has safely carried you, there are still serious dangers ahead. These dangers can only be met by the continued zeal, ability, and constant vigilance of your trade protection society. At the close of this meeting I shall be glad to hear questions arising out of the subject matter of Mr. Horne's address, and I can assure you that the officials of the Guild will only be too glad to clear away all doubts and difficulties that may yet linger in the minds of those who should be unanimous in the support of the Guild's policy and work. I know that you are here to-day to hear your honorary chaplain deliver his address, and therefore I will not any longer stand between him and the meeting. I now ask Mr. Horne to speak to us on the policy and work of the Showmen's Guild."

On rising to deliver his address, the hon. chaplain was most warmly received, and, after a humorous reference to the heat of the day, and a little preliminary dissertation of a purely personal character, began his address, which, at all its salient points, was punctuated with approving cheers and applause. He said:—

To begin at the beginning, I would like to say that the Guild was cradled in the offices of The Era newspaper, being the practical business idea of its manager, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, and has been steadily supported and fostered by that paper with all the influence and energy at its command; and a landmark of its triumphant success was the splendid presentation to Lord George Sanger, the president, recently, at the Agricultural Hall.

For the purpose of this address I have looked through every report and pamphlet and every financial balance-sheet of the Guild since its foundation in the year 1890.

In the first sixteen months of your Society's life you held public meetings, many of them under the presidency of Members of Parliament, Mayors, and Borough and County Councillors, in London, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Hull, Newcastle, Nottingham, York, Oxford, Peterborough, King's Lynn, Rotherham, Wigan, Ashton, Stalybridge, Burslem, Hanley, Rochdale, and Cardiff, besides a number of smaller gatherings on the fair-grounds of the country. You sent twenty huge petitions to Parliament against the Movable Dwellings Bill of George Smith and his friends. You circulated in refutation of the vile slander on your domestic life over forty thousand pamphlets and letters. You tasted the joy of battle in a good cause, and you fought as men who feared not defeat. The first regular report in 1892 sets out the policy of your Society, the policy from which it has never departed, and never will so long as I have anything to do with its management or the guidance of its policy. "Our characters," says the report, "having been attacked by misguided and mischievous persons, and being threatened with losing our rights and liberties through unnecessary and fussy legislation, we recognised the necessity of uniting and presenting a firm front to our common enemy." The report closes with these words, "The fundamental purpose for which our Society was formed is—to protect our members and their interests against unnecessary and injurious legislation, to secure the rights and liberties so dear to all Englishmen, and to protect our wives and families and the sanctity of our hearths and homes from the prying eyes of a curious, and perhaps insolent and tipsy, village constable."

I shall draw your attention again at a later period in my address to this fundamental principle of the Guild work and policy, and show you how it answers completely the criticisms upon our work to-day that have been so freely and so frankly bestowed upon the executive officials. Your fight then and your fight to-day is for your good name and for your rights as citizens of the commonwealth and as sons of the Empire to enjoy the liberty of free-born Britons.

That you need no fussy class or special legislation, and that, though carrying on an extraordinary trade in the nation's life, you are but ordinary men and women, subject to the statute and common law of the land like other loyal subjects of the King. You ask for fair treatment, and you are justified in agitating for your rights unfettered by any special legislation, that always carries a stigma of shame and reproach with it.

The second report of the Society, issued January, 1893, records an abounding success and larger accession of subscribers. Again, the preservation of your good character is the theme set out, but even as early as 1893 your best advisers recognised the necessity for Parliamentary defence work, and the report chronicles the coming appointment of a Parliamentary agent to regularly attend the Lobby of the House of Commons in order to carefully watch all possible pernicious proposals dealing with show life.

Here you have the second fundamental principle of the work and policy of the Guild.

The next year's report—1894—records the high-water mark of the first half dozen years of the Society's work. The report issued by the committee was from the capable pen of Mr. Salva. I am tempted to quote it in full, but time forbids. I give you the salient features—twenty well-attended public meetings. The fight with George Smith was still raging. The most notable of these meetings was the Nottingham one, with the Bishop of the Diocese in the chair and myself as one of the principal speakers. It was a triumphant year. We went down to Coalville after Nottingham, and carried an indignation meeting against George Smith and all his ways and works in his own town, and voiced by neighbours of his who were ashamed of him. From that time the Movable Dwellings Bill was doomed. We carried the war triumphantly into the enemy's land. It was the crowning effort of five years' preparation. The result was magnificent, the victory certain.

From the reports of the next three years the principal achievements of the Guild were, first, the Walsall Fair case in the High Court, wherein it was held that shows and fair-ground tackle do constitute a fair, and that trading or selling articles of commerce are not essentials of a fair. In other words, the catering of amusement constitutes a fair in the legal sense. The next important work, involving immense time, expert knowledge, and ability, was the deputation to the Railway Clearing-house on the matter of restrictions sought to be imposed by the companies, and the increase of rates for show goods. This work was successfully done, and the whole body of showmen benefited by that work, and still benefit to this day. There can be no doubt that the fact that you were properly organised, and that representatives spoke with knowledge and authority, saved your commercial interests from a staggering blow.

Your organisation in these years—1894 to 1897—was fast becoming a recognised power in the land. Your trade and business was now being better understood, and your status as trained craftsmen and traders recognised, and your proper position given you at last as the providers of open-air amusement for the people. About this time, largely owing to the extension of municipal and local government, the tyranny of bad by-laws was becoming more and more felt. I was able to give a great portion of my always busy life to the question, and went thoroughly into the whole matter. I then compiled the standard work of reference on the question. I codified all the by-laws of the country, and arranged them under easily-understood lists. This was the beginning of my series of original contributions to the "Showmen's Year Book."

This was put by the Society into every member's hands, and remains to-day as a most useful compendium of the law with regard to your business in local areas. We did more than that. We tried to stop the evil at the fountain-head. I spent a whole holiday of mine interviewing the authorities at the Home Office, the Local Government Board, and the Board of Trade, and trying various methods to get information in time to oppose bad by-laws. Very little comfort was given at these great Departments of State. The officials of those days seemed to marvel at the audacity of showmen wanting to know how to prevent their foes injuring them. That was in 1898. Compared with to-day and what we can do now, and how we are received at the Home Office and in the House of Commons, it might well be ages ago (the dark ages of show life). Yet it is really only eight years ago when we were solemnly assured that the travelling showman had no locus standi, that a resident ratepayer only had a right to oppose by-laws, and so on, and so on.

Well, the work of the Guild has changed all that, and to-day it is our model by-law, that is the standard at the Home Office and the Local Government Board. In our despair we tried to organise our friends (and their name is legion) in the towns and country places to watch local events and to scrutinise the local papers, and to tell us in time enough to take action or to get a local showman to do it. With sorrow I confess it that on some occasions, when we found our local showman all our work was lost because he would not take action in our interests and of the whole body.

This absorbed a great deal of my time—more than the world will ever know—in fact, I took no record of it. There seemed to be no one else ready at hand, and with the information at his tongue tip, but poor labour-ridden me. I have often sighed when critical committeemen and others have suggested more meetings. "People won't subscribe without hearing more about it." I felt like the poor man in the fable—between the devil and the deep sea. Here, in some far corner of the country, is a fair in danger of being abolished; in another place bad by-laws need fighting. What can I do? Send for committeemen engaged in getting their living, call a meeting, and talk about it, or go straight off and do the necessary work myself at the right moment and in the right way? It is easy to criticise, and I know you too well to break my heart over what you may say without accurate knowledge, but this has always been my guiding principle in life: Make up your mind, be sure you are right, and go straight away and do the right thing according to the best of your powers, and trust to the sound sense of your fellow-men to properly judge and appreciate your work. Why, you know how a fond mother often persuades her sick child to take some nasty medicine or to do some irksome task. She will say, "Do it for mamma's sake." Yet all the time it is for the child's good, and the child's alone. This Society is like that mother. We have to persuade you to do your duty for our sake, when, after all, it is for your own sake. I have heard people say, "You've done well, Mr. Horne, at the meeting; how much have you made?" As though the money came to me!

Well, that's my little homily, by the way. I reach now the next great stage in the onward progress and growth of the Society's work and policy. The thing foreseen in 1893 had come to pass with a vengeance. Corporations all over the country were putting additional powers clauses in private Bills. Forty or more Bills every Session of Parliament were introduced by corporations for water, gas, electricity, tram, and other improvements, and in most of these were insidious though innocent-looking clauses seeking additional powers, either to make their own by-laws where they had no such power, or in cases where they had power already to make by-laws to abolish the show business or to severely penalise it.

This private Bill legislation threatened your means of existence; it meant driving you out of business and the ruin of your life's work, and the loss, too, of your invested capital. Here was work second only to the first great enterprise, the killing of the Movable Dwellings Bill. This meant larger means and more expensive expert assistance.

Any private Bill containing clauses detrimental to the trade interest or curtailing the liberty of the individual may be opposed by the trade or person concerned. First, the opposition to the Bill must set out in a petition its grievance. The petitioners must establish a locus standi, or right to appear and object. Then they must employ Parliamentary solicitors, agents, and counsel.

All must be done in conformity with the Standing Orders of the House of Commons governing private Bill legislation. Any error in these forms is fatal to the cause of the petitioners. The petitioners apply to be allowed to appear by counsel, and to tender evidence in support of the grievance alleged. Then, when the Bill is before the Committee, the next stage is to prove the case as set out in the petition.

I have with me a number of these petitions. You may see for yourselves the highly technical and difficult work that Parliamentary defence is. Nothing short of the best professional help is any use to give the briefest possible summary of this work as dealt with year by year since the Guild began it. In 1900 forty Bills came under scrutiny by the Parliamentary agent. Of these he found six containing restrictive measures. Three of these had saving clauses, and were, therefore, unopposed. Of two others, those of Coventry and Hastings, the objectionable clauses were withdrawn, and, let us remember, it was because the promoters knew that those clauses would be opposed, and that that opposition would compel them to eliminate those clauses, that they were withdrawn. In 1901 thirty-nine Bills were examined, and again a number of them contained bad clauses. Most of these were struck out by friendly arrangement, and two of the remaining Bills successfully opposed—the Eccles Corporation Bill and the Corporation of Mansfield's Bill. Eccles we had to fight twice over; first, to establish our right to be heard at all (not being ratepayers), and then again (when our locus standi as individual traders was admitted) as petitioning against the Bill. Mansfield was on the question of closing hours. In both cases we won. Our next big fight—perhaps our greatest victory, the one certainly of far-reaching influence—was with the mighty Corporation of Halifax. In 1902 they sought to raise the tolls and to gain a monopoly in fairs in their borough. This we defeated, and so we thus carried our trade to a securer basis of legal protection—no monopoly, free trade, and open competition in fairs under the ordinary safeguards of the law for all alike. Had Halifax won it would have dealt a deadly blow at private venture fairs and all private business. By the Eccles victory we demonstrated that public bodies have no legal right to make regulations in restraint of trade. By the Mansfield victory we obtained the acknowledgment that the ordinary restrictions of law with regard to both the hours of closing and Sunday trading were quite sufficient for the business of the fair-ground, and that special legislation to the contrary was not necessary. In this year we petitioned with success against Bills promoted by Swansea, Knaresborough, Buxton, and Newport (Salop). The year 1903 was a busy and expensive one for Parliamentary work. Without a fight we gained our end with Aston and Birmingham, Gateshead, Erith, Leigh, New Hunstanton, and Llandrindod Wells; and with a fight we won our way with Hyde and East Ham Corporations. Each a signal victory after hard work. At the end of this Session of 1903 the Parliamentary Defence Fund was set up in order to maintain with all necessary efficiency the Parliamentary work, and, if possible, to set the old Guild free from the financial strain of so big an enterprise. In the year 1904 we again settled with a number of corporations, getting them to drop their bad clauses without a fight. We had to petition against Rotherham, Radcliffe, Selby, and Acton. The one that came to a fight in the end was Acton, and our signal victory over, that public body marked (we confidently anticipate) the beginning of the end of our Parliamentary trouble and grave anxiety. Acton was not only defeated, but also ordered to pay the costs of the petitioners—a rare and remarkable event in the House of Commons.

Corporations will hesitate to measure themselves against the Guild when they know that they run the risk of being condemned in costs. From 1898 to 1905 it is the story of unbroken success; in every case, either by private negotiations or persistent opposition, the Guild has caused the bad clauses in private Bills to be thrown out.

A critical examination of the work accomplished each year demonstrates the interesting and satisfactory truth that corporations show an increasing willingness to negotiate a settlement rather than face an expensive defeat before Parliament. Although the work of vigilant scrutiny must continue, the unbroken record of success achieved by the Guild leads to the gratifying conclusion that expensive opposition will become less and less a necessity, and conference and negotiation between the Guild and public bodies in all disputes will become more frequent.

So salutary has been the effect of the Guild's work that in the Session of Parliament of 1905 there were only some half dozen private Bills introduced containing bad clauses. The significance of this will be understood when we contrast it with the year 1898, when twenty Bills were introduced containing objectionable proposals. In 1898 it was difficult to open up negotiations with the Parliamentary agents of public bodies. It was regarded almost as a breach of Parliamentary decorum that travelling showmen should be organised and wealthy enough to have their own Parliamentary agents and solicitors. It was also a "surprising thing" to the permanent officials of the great public departments. The Home Office, the Board of Trade, and the Local Government Board almost refused to recognise the locus standi of the showmen of the Empire.

Of the six Bills scrutinised at the beginning of the 1905 Sessions five of them were immediately settled by private negotiations, and only one—the Corporation of Colne Bill—remained unsettled for a time. This necessitated a somewhat serious outlay, two petitions, one by local showmen and the other by the Guild collectively, having to be presented against the Bill. This determination of the Guild to oppose the Bill ultimately influenced the Corporation to reopen negotiations, which were carried to a successful conclusion in friendly conference between the officials of the Corporation and the Guild. As an indication of the expensive character of this very necessary work, we may state that even a friendly compromise, as in the case of Colne, cost no less a sum than £70.

That brings us down to the present year 1906. We had to petition against Pontefract, Wallasey, and the Middlesex County Council. The first two were arranged with on satisfactory lines; but the County Council of Middlesex did not attempt negotiations until we showed by our array of witnesses, petitioners, and counsel at the Private Bills Committee-room that we meant business. Then they opened a friendly discussion, and were willing to give us even more than we ultimately decided would fully meet the justice of the case. They suggested strictly confining their compromise to the known members of the Guild, but as that would have injured our poorer brothers of the road and would have created a monopoly as against the poor man who cannot subscribe to our funds, we refused, and threw Middlesex open to all travellers and fair-ground traders, whether Guild members or not.

But, great as the Parliamentary and trade defence work has been in its relation to Private Bills and to obnoxious by-laws that does not constitute anything like the full story of the Guild's activity. We have constantly defended the interests of showpeople when attacked by ignorant critics in the public Press, and my correspondence alone exceeds over a thousand letters a year, not only defending you from vile slander and abuse, but instructing, guiding, and forming a public opinion that is now so strongly interested in you, that you can claim, and do receive, from an enlightened and sympathetic public, justice and generous support.

Well, of course all this means constant attention to your interests, and trained and expert ability in dealing with the various, and, in very many cases, vicious, attacks upon you and your business, and I claim that this branch of the work is not less important than trade defence in Parliament and with regard to bad by-laws. I could tell you, did time permit, the long list of the towns where local prejudice has endeavoured, and by petition to the Home Secretary, sought to abolish the fairs and holidays of the people, and I could tell you also how that, in sending up petitions to the Home Secretary against these misguided proposals, we have been encouraged in our work by the increased sympathy and appreciation that have rewarded our efforts in this important branch of trade defence work. So great and growing is this appreciation by the general public by our policy of work, that corporations and public bodies write to us for our opinion upon matters affecting the show business. I often think that this part of our work is better understood by the outside public than it is by you, the men and women of the road, to whom it is a matter of daily livelihood.

If I were asked to-day to name the most valuable asset belonging to you and your business, I should say without doubt it is this protection bulwark of the Showmen's Guild, which stands as an impregnable wall of defence between you and your enemies; and I want to reiterate here that I have often said before, that this society works for and protects the whole body of open-air amusement caterers. Touching, it has been estimated, the daily work of 70,000 people. We do not limit our protective work to our members—nay, more, we have steadily refused to claim or ask for favours that were not applicable to all show people, whether members of the Guild or not. The Guild is a trades union; but it is more than that—it stands for the intellectual, the educational, the social, and moral advancement of the whole body of fair-ground traders. It has no sectional or party interests; it stands above the separate and distinct class interests that may divide tenant from lessee, and employer from workman, but although it stands above the sectional interests, which in all human society tends to division and friction, it never neglects to devote its energies, its expert knowledge and ability, to those higher and much more important considerations that affect the whole travelling community, and the various traders supplying the necessities of the fair-ground, and the whole of the dependent industries connected with the show business. It is not because having "eyes we see not, or having ears we hear not," or having hearts we feel not. The wrongs often keenly felt are very pressing that divide tenants and lessees, the big traders and the small traders, but that our supreme work is—to regard those greater matters, and to give of our best to the preservation of your trade and business from the persistent attacks of those who would destroy it root and branch, and to defend the holidays of the people, to whom it is your work to minister. I am well aware that in the eyes of certain critics this devotion of the Guild to the higher sphere of work in the region of trade defence, and its refusal to come down to the considerations that loom so largely in the vision of the narrow-minded and class partisan, has lost the support as well as the sympathy of those of whom it is said "they can never see any further than the length of their own nose."

Well, all that I can say to such selfish persons is this—that there would have been no cause whatever to quarrel over rent and position on fair-grounds if the vast army of the enemies of the showman had been successful during the past seventeen years. There would be few fairs to quarrel over at all. I admit to the full that rent and all other charges should be just and reasonable between man and man, and that in fixing such charges consideration should be paid to the fluctuations and uncertainties of a business that always depends upon the changing circumstances of good trade and fine weather. I have already put before you the fundamental principles of the Guild's policy and work—first, to defend your character whenever traduced, and, in the second place, to defend your trade and business whenever threatened or attacked. These two things at every point have been our object, our policy, and our work, and I now call upon you to recognise the fact that your very existence as a class and as a body of workers in the Commonwealth demands that you should give such full and generous support to the funds of the Guild that its Executive Council may never be compelled either to hesitate in the necessary work of defending your interests for lack of money, or from the sense that you do not yet fully understand and appreciate the work of those who stand between you and your enemies.

Having dealt (as briefly as I possibly could do) with the work of the past, I have to ask your attention to a startling and most pernicious Bill now before Parliament, a Bill which revives under worse conditions some of the most objectionable features of the notorious Movable Dwellings Bill of the late George Smith. The ostensible object of the Bill is to provide for the education of vagrant children, but it is so badly drafted that all children of parents whose work in life necessitates moving from place to place would be brought under the powers and penalties of the Act should it unfortunately become law. There is not the slightest effort made to distinguish the child of the respectable showman, or fair-ground trader, from the child of the habitual tramp and wandering criminal, and I have not the slightest hesitation in saying that you are face to face with the greatest invasion of your domestic rights, and are liable to the most terrible degradation ever attempted against you and your avocation in life.

But let me read you the extraordinary provisions of the Bill—a Bill, mind you, that is backed by the following Members of Parliament:—Sir John Kennaway, Mr. Spicer, Mr. Toulmin, Mr. Cameron Corbett, Mr. Lewis Haslam, Mr. Vivian, and Mr. McLean:—

Be it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. When a child is so moved from place to place as to prevent such child from receiving regular education under the Elementary Education Acts, 1870 to 1902, the parent or person having the custody or charge of such child shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable, upon summary conviction, to imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding three months, and such child may be adjudged to be a child of vagrant parents within the meaning of this Act.
2. Any constable may take into custody without a warrant and charge before a Justice of the Peace with the commission of an offence under Section 1 of this Act, any person whom he shall have cause to suspect of having committed such an offence, and such Justice of the Peace may order the detention of such person in prison until the charge is heard and such constable may take charge of any child in respect of which an offence is suspected, and deliver him for safe custody to the master of the workhouse of the parish or union in which the aforesaid person has been apprehended until the charge is heard.
3. When any parent has been convicted of an offence under Section 1 of this Act, the Court may adjudge any child in respect of which an offence has been committed to be a child of vagrant parents, and may order that the child of vagrant parents shall be received into the workhouse of the union in which the parent was taken into custody, or the child was adjudged to be a child of vagrant parents, whereupon Section 1 of the Poor Law Act, 1889, as amended by Section 1 of the Poor Law Act, 1899, shall apply, and the Guardians of the poor of such union shall be empowered, as regards such child of vagrant parents, to pass a resolution vesting in themselves, as provided by the said section the rights of the parent or parents of such child. If the Court orders such child of vagrant parents to be received into a workhouse, the Court may order that the whole or any part of the cost of the maintenance of such child shall be provided by the parent of such child, and paid to the Guardians by whom such child is maintained.

There are other clauses in this precious Bill providing for certain contingencies as to the cost of maintenance or the emigration of children at the hands of the Guardians of the Poor, and to be met by the County Council. The material clauses I now deal with. The whole Bill I set out in an exhaustive article in The Era on July 14 last.

First of all notice that the Bill would create an entirely new offence: it makes the parents guilty of a criminal offence if they move from place to place taking their children with them. No attempt is made to distinguish between parents and parents, children and children, showmen and itinerant traders. Circus, variety, and theatrical children, and their parents would all come under the stigma and power of this law, and would be classed with criminal parents and tramps as being vagrants, and subject to the pains and penalties of the Act. In the second clause it gives any constable power, on suspicion, without any warrant, to apprehend the parent and to take the child to the nearest workhouse. Now, I want you to imagine how this would affect some of the most interesting of our travelling shows. You all know the kind of show I mean—the small circus or variety show in which every member of the family takes part.

The show enters a town; the constable, with the responsibility of this Act upon his shoulders, notices that one or two of the children appear to him to be under the age of fourteen. He is empowered, without any warrant from a magistrate, to lodge the parents in prison, and to take the children suspected to be under fourteen to the nearest workhouse. The parents are in prison, the children are pauperised, and the show is sold up to pay the expenses of the prosecution. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent the picture I have drawn you from being realised in fact. You must not forget that in all legislation that it is not the pious intentions of the legislators that becomes law, but the actual wording of the Bill when it passes Parliament and has become part and parcel of the statute law of the land.

Can we dare, in the face of the serious dangers to you and your domestic peace threatened in this Bill, to relinquish our vigilant and ever-increasing watch and guard over your interests? Two things of recent occurrence clearly demonstrate the necessity for maintaining our organisation in the highest state of working perfection. The fight for the fair rights at Mitcham, which will be brought before the High Court of Justice for judicial decision, and the very successful conference with the London County Council concerning the admission of living vans upon the open spaces under their control. With the London County Council, the deputation of London showmen, headed by Lord George Sanger, Mr. Pedgrift of The Era, and myself, succeeded in obtaining the allowance of the living vans upon the grounds. But the Mitcham fight still remains to be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. We certainly won the fair for this year, and we carried the vast majority of the people of Mitcham with us, and a record vote in favour of the continuance of the fair.

Now a word or two about the finance of this movement. It is probably the most significant of the facts that I have brought before you this afternoon. Think of it, you have been over sixteen years in existence, you have opposed dozens of private Bills promoted by corporations, you have killed one Bill (the Movable Dwellings Bill of the late George Smith), and in the present Parliament you are opposing the Vagrant Children's Education Bill; you have conducted with success scores of public meetings, you have sent a considerable number of petitions to the Home Secretary against proposals to abolish the pleasure-fairs of the people, and in almost every case with success—nearly seventeen years' work of trade defence—and all this has been done for £4000. Of that £4000, £2400 have been spent on Parliamentary and legal work. And now what have you spent in working expenses? Why, you have only spent in wages £30 a year, your only paid official being a secretary to keep your books and to deal, under my direction, with the business correspondence of the Guild. It is no exaggeration to say that this is a unique record in the history of Trades Unionism, and that three of the corporations whom you successfully opposed before Parliament—Halifax, Hyde, and Eccles—spent considerably more against you. In going through your balance-sheets (duly certified by chartered accountants down to the end of last year), I have been amazed at the smallness of the sum you have really spent in fighting issues so fraught with serious consequences to you and your working life, and it is a significant fact that nearly £1000 of the total £4000 is the contribution of one man—our revered and honoured President, George Sanger.

I think that I have attained the object I started out to achieve, that is, I have shown you what are the policy, the work, and the extraordinary successes of the Showmen's Guild, and I now leave the matter in your hands with every confidence that you will not allow such work to be hindered or starved for lack of the necessary means. I have also built up truth—which I consider is the best way to cast out error—and I ask you, for your own sake and for your children's sake, to strengthen the hands of the executive workers of the Mother Society of all showmen societies by liberal contributions to its economically-managed funds, so that its work may be prospered in the future, even as it has been successful in the past.

Mr. Horne concluded amidst a great ovation of applause, and sat down after a speech which occupied nearly two hours in its delivery.

The Chairman (Mr. F. Bibby) invited questions.

Mr. E. Holland (as a member of the committee) complained, first, that he had not been summoned to committee meetings during the past two years, and, further, that he objected to the work of the Society being done at meetings of the Roundabout Proprietors' Combine; and, in the second place, he thought that the Guild ought to have taken up his case with the Bolton Corporation. He also objected to the Guild being a "one man show," that however able (and he admitted to the full the ability) Mr. Horne might be, it was not right that the committee should be ignored and work done without being consulted. He also wanted to know what work the Guild had done that was of any use during the past two years.

Mr. Bibby dealt with the personal question of Mr. Holland's action against the Bolton Corporation, and referred Mr. Holland to Rule 19 of the Guild, wherein it is stated that "the Association's principal object being to protect the interests of the travelling community as a body, they can only support such actions at law as affect the whole community," and that "the Committee desire it to be distinctly understood that no financial help can be given for any legal action by, or against, an individual member which is of a personal nature." Mr. Bibby assured Mr. Holland that, as he was concerned in the drafting of that rule, he could speak with authority, and that the Guild was never intended to take up such cases as the one of which complaint had been made. With regard to Mr. Holland's charge of the Society being a "one man show," he could only say that to no man living were the Bohemians of the road more indebted for the preservation of their rights and liberties than to Mr. Horne, and that, in his judgment, it would be a sorry day for them as a body when such champions as their honorary chaplain did not stand forth to defend them. He would now ask Mr. Horne to reply.

The honorary chaplain referred Mr. Holland to the rule which provides for the calling of committees. Under Rule 10, notice in The Era a week before is full and proper notice to every committeeman, and the question whether a postcard be sent at the same time is a matter of detail, but not of essential obligation. It was curious to notice, he added, that Mr. Holland's complaint covered the same period of time that he had been settled in London, and dates from the break up of his Manchester work. Of course there have been committee meetings for the dispatch of Guild business, but these, for convenience and economy, had been held in London, and attended by London members of the committee. All the important work involving serious outlay of money had been determined at the annual general meetings in Manchester and London, especially the most expensive item—the Parliamentary work—had been deliberated upon and decided in full committee after the London meeting. That Mr. Holland was not present at the London committee meeting was not in any sense the fault of the Guild, but his own. There were two things that he utterly repudiated and definitely contradicted, and these were the charges that the Guild was under the control of, or managed at, the meetings of the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union, or that the Guild was (if the reference was meant for himself or any other member of the committee) a "one man show." He also desired to supplement what Mr. Bibby had said with regard to Mr. Holland's action against the Bolton Corporation. It is a fact that, however desirable and just individual actions may be, and however important for individual showmen the trials of such actions may be, the Guild, up to the present moment, has never been rich enough in funds to take up such cases. With regard to the work of the Guild during the past two years, Mr. Holland was a party to the issuing of the annual reports of 1904-5—surely it was not yet ancient history? We have opposed and defeated the private Bills of Selby, Rotherham, Radcliffe, Acton, Colne, Pontefract, Wallossey and the Middlesex County Council. We have stopped the Education Bill, to which I have already referred; we have fought and won fair rights at various places; and, altogether, I have no hesitation in saying that the best two years' work we have done was done in the period that Mr. Holland enquires about.

Mr. Wm. Gibson (proprietor of Gibson's Temple of Occult Mystery) delivered an extremely interesting and well-reasoned speech, in the course of which he pleaded that all minor, petty, and personal matters should be put on one side, and the really urgent and broad questions of general policy to safeguard the whole showman world be considered and fully supported. He strongly deprecated any newspaper discussion of either real or imaginary wrongs of individual showmen or classes of workers in the show community. He was a worker and an official of the Stallholders' Federation, and so convinced was he of the necessity of united action on the greater and broader subjects affecting their life, that he had given equal zeal and attention to the work of the Guild, and, as one of its committeemen, had done his very best to convince his fellow-showmen that the parent Society deserved the united support of all the societies representing the sectional interests of showland. He had co-operated with Mr. Horne in bringing the claims of the Guild for larger support before the showmen of the North and of Wales, and in these enterprises he had the satisfaction of knowing that he carried with him the intelligence and the best feeling of all those who travelled from fair to fair. Mr. Gibson concluded his most telling speech by an earnest exhortation to drop all disputes and bickerings, and to rally as a united body to the defence of the greater concerns of their life under the banner of the Vandwellers' Society.

The usual complimentary votes were passed to the chairman, and to Mr. Wm. Clark for the use of the Pavilion for the purposes of the meeting.

ST. GILES'S FAIR AT OXFORD.

There is a curious connection between the simple faith of early Christian days and the adoption of popular patron or titular saints for various trades and industries. An example of this is St. Giles, who is the patron saint of Bohemians and wandering craftsmen of all kinds. For this reason many fairs bear his name; and also he is the patron saint of "The Gate," the necessary halting-place of the stranger seeking admission within the city walls. We therefore find a number of ancient churches just outside the city, or embedded in the city walls, dedicated to St. Giles. The most notable examples are at Winchester, Edinburgh, and Oxford. It is a popular but unwarranted opinion that, whilst all England has been moving and keeping pace with modern enterprise, that our University cities have remained monuments of mediæval stagnation; but in reality this is not so, the ancient Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, rich in the undying treasures of a venerable and honourable past, are also quick and very much alive with the best spirit of modern times.

A most interesting proof of this is modern St. Giles's Fair, in Oxford. Stretching along the spacious boulevard, The Broad, with its magnificent mise en scène of ancient college buildings, admirably set out, the shows, roundabouts, and fair-ground novelties are seen to the very best advantage. In fact, any lover of old England who is also inspired with the best force of the modern spirit, visiting the Fair of St. Giles at Oxford, must admit that here we have, as regards one of England's greatest institutions—the fair—the very best possible example, and one that has in it all the elements of undying glory.

A very cursory glance at the style and quality of the concerns attending the fair demonstrates that the crowd patronising it are of the better type, and with money enough to purchase or to patronise its expensive fairings or superior novelties. Walk with me then in thought down The Broad, and see the shows, the roundabouts, and the whole host of other novelties and attractions. The first noticeable feature is the magnificent array of the most popular type of the modern show—the theatre of cinématography and coliseum of varieties. These were the well-known concerns of Wm. Taylor, Jacob Studt, Thurston, Alfred Ball, and Chipperfield. Sandwiched in between these big shows were an interesting variety of the side show, and the shows of an older type—Buckley's, Ridley's, Ruby's, Samouda's, Chipperfield's No. 2, and Taylor's Boxers.

The machine list included the very best mechanical exhibitions travelling the Southern Counties—switchback gondolas, motor-cars, flying ostriches, racing cockerels, Cape ponies, and galloping and jumping horses, big wheels, and a long array of high-flyers and park swings. There were also a great gathering of shooting concerns—Winchester ranges, rifle galleries, and bottle and egg batteries. The stalls and throwing games, arranged in four long avenues, would have literally stretched two miles in length had they been placed end to end, and it is overwhelming proof of the business value of Oxford Fair that these stalls were crowded with fairings and novelties for the vast crowds that take possession of Oxford on the two days of the fair. Nowhere else in England can we find so well-dressed or so jolly a crowd, bubbling over with fun and jollity, yet never forgetting that liberty must not degenerate into licence; and here we notice the wonderful power of a fair—it blends all classes in the commonwealth and comradeship of a united effort to enjoy, and to help others to enjoy, all the fun of the fair. This is indeed the special charm of Oxford Fair, the Fair of St. Giles, full of the modern spirit, in this unique setting of the dear old college buildings, the friendly, worn, and sheltering walls, towers, and steeples that we caught glimpses of in the gaps between the shows, or saw them towering above the highest show fronts, or whirling circles of steam or electric roundabout. The roundabout proprietors were Thurston, Barker, C. Bailey, Wilson, P. Collins, Clarke, Bird, Holmes, Ayres, and Buckland. The other principal amusement caterers were Rollins, Westrop, Bond, Bird, Edwards, Ive, Attwell, Clark, Holmes, Hearn, J. Holmes, F. Wilson, Gates, Wood, and dozens of local stallholders.

A series of misfortunes have attended the efforts of that popular showman, Alfred Ball, in getting from Strood to Oxford. In descending the hill at Dartford, his engine was overpowered, the result being his splendid back wagon and the stage truck suffering severely by damage to the wheels of both vehicles. This, however, was only a minor trouble. The front of his show was sent by rail, and on its arrival at Oxford was discovered to have been ruined by fire in transit. It did not deter the plucky Alfred, however, from showing at Oxford, where the sympathy of all the public was enlisted.

HAMLEY BROTHERS have transferred their branch at 231, High Holborn, to 35, New Oxford-street, W.C., which is constructed solely for the sale of conjuring tricks. They have also opened a new branch at 29, Ludgate-hill, E.C., where they are showing a large variety of toys, games, conjuring tricks, &c.

FAIRS THE ORIGIN OF THE PEOPLE'S HOLIDAYS.

"THE ERA" was the first newspaper to point out the intimate relation of our fairs, feasts, and wakes to the growth and development of the holiday pleasure traffic on the great railways of the kingdom. This important truth has been too long neglected, and involves in its considerations an interesting chapter in our industrial and social evolution. We have, in our former reference to the matter, only dealt in generalisations of all-round application, showing how the popular local and national holidays determined the desire of the people to travel, and also fixed the times and seasons of the migration. With the return of the fair in each locality came the impetus to the enterprise and competition of the railways to provide for the popular demand to travel and see other places, and also (a very important fact to be borne in mind) for the absent and far-away natives of the place to return and renew the pleasures of kinship and Auld Lang Syne.

This annual time of healthful change and travel, strictly governed by local circumstance and the old fixed fair time, was the origin, as we have demonstrated in general terms, of the vast and ever-increasing volume of holiday pleasure traffic. Having set this out in general terms, we will ask you now to consider a particular example. We have chosen this one as the true type of all the rest.

To Oldham wakes belongs the credit of originating the excellent thrift plan of "Going Off" clubs. In these savings banks (for that is what they are) the weekly pence of the workers is saved, and, with the added bonus or interest, at the end of the twelve months is drawn out and put to useful purpose. In order to fully investigate this thrift method we visited the great cotton centre, and on the spot went fully into the matter.

We have already, in our special report of the wakes, referred to the way in which the ordinary stay-at-home Oldhamer enjoys himself at the fair, and in doing so touched upon the financial importance of this fixed habit of thrift. We venture to say here that it is altogether a movement fraught with blessing to the people, and they owe it entirely to the fact that cessation from work at the wakes time gave them opportunity for a thorough rest, or change of scene and recreation. In our flying visit to Oldham wakes we went by the L. and N.W. non-stop express to Stockport, and thence by its connection to Oldham, the journey from Euston to Oldham only taking four hours. As we steamed into Clegg-street Station we saw an immense crowd entrain for Belle Vue Gardens. Oh, the joy of it! The people set free from toil, and off to taste life in surroundings free for a brief respite from the grind of the factory; the shouts of merriment, the hailing of friends, the songs and choruses of the men and women out for the day. It was good to be there, and good to see this side of the national life and character.

"Bless you, sir," said an intelligent porter, "that's nowt to what win dun here at Owdham these last three days. Why, we've sent scores o' trains chockblock full tut seaside and other places."

Here, then, was my starting-place, at the fountain-head of pleasure traffic in the cotton trade. The outward stream of people on pleasure bent began in the middle of the week, before the wakes, and reached flood-tide on the Friday and Saturday. The people, like a vast army on the march, could be seen, armed with their luggage, making for the stations, which were crowded with excursionists waiting for their trains. The various agencies were besieged by those who had left the matter of making their arrangements to the last minute, and from these booking-offices come reports of big bookings. Indeed, one might have thought from the rush to get away which took place that something wrong had come over the town.

It was a trying experience for the booking clerks and porters at the five stations, and it must be stated in fairness to them that all the trains were got away without a hitch.

A big feature of the traffic was the long-distance bookings, the signs pointing to the fact that people are determined to go further afield than has previously been the case. There were many tickets issued for the Continent.

Though no actual figures are given as to the number of bookings, it is expected that a record has been attained. From the booking-offices, both at the stations and the agencies, comes the information that satisfactory business has been done.

"We have done well in all directions," is the summing-up at the L. and Y. booking offices. On Friday night two specials were run to Blackpool, and on Saturday morning no less than ten special trains made the same journey. Two specials were also run from Liverpool. The Friday midnight train to Scotland was crowded, as were also the trains which caught the midnight boats for the Isle of Man and Ireland. Morecambe and Southport also claimed a large proportion of visitors, and Bristol and Nottingham were well patronised. A party left for Switzerland; whilst an unusual number chose Torquay. The resorts on the Southern Coast which came in for patronage were Bournemouth, Cromer, and Lowestoft. Being the year of "the Entente Cordiale," considerable bookings were made to France and its watering-places.

"Quite satisfied with the bookings" was the comment of the officials at the Great Central and L. and N.W. railway stations. They were extremely busy throughout the week-end, and on Friday night no less than fifteen special trains were booked out to London, the Eastern Counties, North Wales, and Holyhead (for Ireland). The L. and N.W. catered for the Irish and South Wales traffic in a very enterprising fashion, and they were extensively patronised. The train for Holyhead, containing fourteen carriages, was crowded out with excursionists for Greenore, but the pressure was relieved by extra coaches being added.

Credit is due to Mr. J. G. Gibson, district-superintendent, for arranging the non-stop corridor expresses to Torquay and London, which have been fully appreciated by Oldham people. On Saturday morning thirteen specials were despatched in all directions, several, which were crowded, leaving for the Cambrian line, embracing Aberystwyth, Barmouth, and other places, whilst Llandudno received excellent patronage.

"The greatest success has been attained in our long-distance bookings, and the non-stop corridor expresses to the South and West of England, with refreshment car attached, have been exceptionally well patronised," say Dean and Dawson. Good business has been done to Torquay and London, and several parties went to Paris, Brussels, and the Rhine. Two special trains left on Saturday for Cleethorpes, and the train to Aberystwyth was crowded. The excursion from Oldham to Boulogne on Friday was taken full advantage of, and nearly 150 tickets were booked for this journey from Manchester. At London-road Station the excursion caused animated scenes.

Cook's, the famous tourists, give an astonishing account of the heavy bookings they made. Of course, they cater for every place on the globe, from Blackpool to the Hebrides. When asked what had proved the strongest attraction for Oldham people this wakes, their vote was given strongly in favour of Blackpool, though, it was added, many had sought the pleasures and health-giving atmosphere of the Isle of Man. The South and West Coast of England were well patronised, and for the seven days' trip to Torquay several hundred tickets had been issued from their office. Tickets for Edinburgh, Glasgow, Rothesay, and the Trossachs had gone well; whilst many had decided to spend their holidays at Killarney. The chief Continental resorts which had been chosen were Paris, Boulogne, Antwerp, and Ambery.

There was a great deal of ordinary traffic on the Monday morning, the day trips not commencing till Tuesday. The large proportion of the holiday-makers, though, went on Friday and Saturday.

The above facts prove conclusively that the mill operatives are reaping the reward of the prosperity in the cotton trade. Last wakes they were content to take short trips, but this week-end they have gone further afield to such places as the South Coast, Torquay, and Ireland.

One point in thus emphasising the immense volume of trade the fairs bring to the railways and to the ever-increasing belt of pleasure resorts that girdle our isle is that the various interests, trades, and occupations concerned in this vast enterprise of ministering to the people at holiday-time may combine more definitely for their mutual benefit; may recognise that the humblest worker in the complex machine of necessary national relaxation may realise his fellowship and his place in the great social revolutions of our day and age. And we venture this pertinent question: Why has it been left to the ever-busy, and for a time unorganised, showmen of the Empire to defend, at great cost of time and money, the holidays of the people?

Have the other interests—the railways, the seaside resorts, the permanent shows of the kingdom—no concern in this vital question, the preservation of the nation's fairs and holidays?

We think we have given proof pertinent enough to show that their interests are bound up in most obvious partnership with the work and trade interests of the travelling showman.

Some years ago we strongly objected to the mistaken policy of the Blackpool authorities in seeking to clear the open fair-ground of the sands of its shows and stalls. Events have fully proved the mistake of that policy; but we refer to it now in order to emphasise what we then stated—that the fairs, feasts, and wakes maintained by itinerant entertainers, are the training grounds for, and the feeders of, the permanent and settled forms of entertainment and amusement. We noted then (and raised a warning voice) that the directorate of pleasure palaces by the sea made no effort to defend the poor showmen and traders on the sands. They thought—it was a most shortsighted view of real life—that if the people found no entertainment by the open sea, that they must, perforce, crowd the all-day shows on the sea-front.

"Human nature," you will say. "Every man for himself." And syndicates exist only and thrive as sound business enterprises. True, but life is not so simple as all that; and Blackpool found out, and variety hall managers found out, that to shut down the small show on the sands did not really mean any increase to their patronage, and that, contrariwise, a deadly dull sea front, with a wilderness of deserted sands or shingle, depreciated the drawing power of the place.

Why this homily and now? It is to show that the travelling showman, in his work and business, acts as the necessary "jackal" (if we place him no higher than that) to the "lions" of the variety and theatrical worlds. Yet, we have still to find a generous recognition of this fact. The same forces that array themselves against travelling showmen and the continuance of fairs, are ready to attack all forms of entertainments. At present the poor showman bears the brunt of the attack, and the more premanent and settled forms of amusement work in peace, behind the bulwarks of defence that poor showpeople have to man and defend at their own cost of time and money. For seventeen years the Showmen's Guild has fought in the trenches the battles of victory for the whole world of shows, big and little. Is it not time that the "lions" (to hark back to our simile) throw a generous bone to the poor jackals—the travelling showpeople?

Let there be no misunderstanding the issue. The Puritan attack—the utterly anti-Christian religiosus attack on all forms of entertainments—is now spending its forces on the travelling showman. Then, in all fairness, stretch out to him the hand of fellowship and support.

BARNET OLD FAIR.

To the showman who knows his own kingdom, and also to the historian who has corrected easy fancy with the corrective of real fact, it is amazing the nonsense that finds admission into the daily Press concerning the decay of British fairs. This is particularly the case with regard to Barnet Old Fair. It is so easy to make a pretence of much learning, and enlarge upon gipsy horse-dealers and their tricks of trade, and to detail the catalogue of the hundred and one dodges of shady dealers in horseflesh. To read your modern smart writer on Barnet Fair, one would conclude that it was sinking into well-deserved oblivion, despite the business energy of a handful of showmen and the still lingering gipsy and horse-doctoring element. But the real fact of the case is, as regards the pleasure fair, Barnet Fair of 1906 is the best, and the greatest ever held, and we doubt not that even on its purely business side (the horse and cattle fair) the Great Northern Railway Company could supply startling evidence as to the immense importance of that institution.

Year by year the fair has grown in importance on its pleasure side, for the district itself is a growing one, and becomes more and more a suburb of London. It is a yearly pilgrimage for the pent-up crowds of the great city to go forth and enjoy the glorious open-air carnival stretching nearly a mile in length, from end to end, between New Barnet and High Barnet. Admirably situated just off the road, yet with ample space for the multitude to see and hear everything, there are four separate fairground groups of concerns, linked together by avenues of stalls. In our survey of the shows we counted 150 caravans, five immense shows in the first class, six in the second class, and four interesting side-shows; nine large roundabout machines, six smaller sets, seven or eight sets of gem motors, ponies, and baby horses, the same number of swings and highfliers, a dozen or more shooting ranges and Morris tubes, thirty or forty coker and throwing games, a hundred or more stalls, doll-frames, dart-boards, and variety games—in fact, you can form a fairly good idea of the number of concerns at Barnet Fair if we ask you to remember that all the London showmen who are not able to get ground at the aristocratic Oxford, of necessity crowd to breezy Barnet. The shows proper included Wm. Biddall's royal show, Chittock's, Thurston's, and Hastings and Whayman's cinematographs. The machines were those of Barker and Thurston and Sons, F. Gray, C. Hill, Hastings and Whayman, Mrs. Pettigrove, Whittle, and Smith. Amongst the great crowd of other caterers were Messrs. Bedford, Hussey, W. Harris, Laing, F. Wilson, Purchase, Smith, Jones, Roberts, Pettigrove, Rowe, A. Taylor, Mayne, Stelling, Andrews, Draper, Bailey, Castle, Clark, Westrop, Hewitt, Ball, and Elliott.

AN application was made at the Stockport Borough Police Court on Tuesday last for permission to extend the time licence at the Armoury on Oct. 3 and 4, to enable Mr. Napoleon Bird, a local pianist, to attempt to play the piano for forty-eight consecutive hours. The application was granted, the conditions being that the Drill Hall shall be closed between the hours of 12 a.m. and 6 a.m., and that no person shall be admitted with the exception of the pianist, his wife and son, six other persons, and a police-constable. The performance will start at 10 p.m. on Oct. 2, and continue until 10 p.m. on Oct. 4. Mr. Bird is at present the world's record holder for continuous piano-playing, with forty-five hours to his credit, accomplished more than ten years ago.

Miss Millicent Marsden, whose serious illness necessitated her retiring from the Coliseum during her great success in Cavalleria, has now resumed her original part of the young American widow in The Prince of Pilsen, on tour, and is again delighting her provincial audiences. Let us hope that London will not be deprived too long of this lady's phenomenal voice and acting, which we can ill afford to spare. We sincerely congratulate her upon her recovery.

PATTI'S PRIVATE THEATRE.

Mr. Hermann Klein, in "Thirty Years of Musical Life in London," states that the gem of Craigy-nos Castle, apart from its mistress, is the theatre. It has been called "a Bayreuth theatre en miniature"—and justly. No side boxes or seats; a single gallery at the back; stalls sloping down to the orchestra so that the musicians are nearly out of sight; and a clever system of stage lighting by electricity. The pure Renaissance architecture is set off to great advantage by a singularly delicate scheme of colour—pale blue, cream, and gold—to which the deep sapphire of the curtains supplies a most effective contrast. The walls and proscenium are tastefully decorated, and between graceful columns are inscribed in panels the names of the great composers. The scenery is painted by the best theatrical artists; while the act-drop, representing Semiramide driving her war-chariot, is a spirited achievement, besides furnishing an excellent portrait of the Queen of the Castle. Also to be noted is the novel mechanism for raising the floor of the auditorium to the level of the stage, whereby the salle is converted into a handsome ball-room. It is here, every Christmas Eve, that Mme. Patti bestows her annual gifts upon the servants and tenantry of her estate.

With her professional career nearing its end, what, it may be asked, can have been the object of this great artist in enriching her home with such a structure as this? To practise and perform operas? Certainly not. True it is that on the memorable opening night now referred to the still youthful Patti, a picture of grace ablaze with diamonds, sang the first act of La Traviata, followed by the garden scene from Faust, with her husband, M. Nicolini, in his old part. Again, three days later, a performance was given of the balcony scene from Roméo and the third act of Flötow's Martha; this, like the first, being attended by a crowded audience of privileged friends and neighbours. But these were the baptismal representations. They consecrated the theatre, as it were, without precisely foreshadowing the main purpose of its existence.

The answer to this question was supplied by Mme. Patti herself early during that very sojourn at Craig-y-nos Castle: "I love the stage. I love to act and to portray every species, every shade of human emotion. Only I want freedom—more freedom than opera, with its restricted movements and its wear and tear on the voice, can possibly allow the actress. I care not whether it be comedy or tragedy, so long as I feel that I can devote my whole energy, my whole being, to realising the character that I have to delineate. Even words trouble me; they take time to commit to memory, and their utterance fatigues a singer too much. Yet I want to act, to feel myself upon the boards, playing to amuse myself and a few chosen friends on each side of the footlights. What does there remain for me to do? What but to enact scenes and plays in 'pantomime'; to utilise the ancient art of the Italian mime and express every sentiment by means of gesture, action, and facial expression? I must have music, of course; I cannot do entirely without my own art and all its wealth of suggestive force. Give me only a dramatic idea, with music that aids in depicting it, and I will play you any part you choose, from one of Sarah Bernhardt's down to Fatima in Bluebeard."

I understood. There was something more in this than mere whim or caprice. That Mme. Patti had already been demonstrating her marvellous talent for "dramatic pantomime" upon the stage of her new theatre I knew quite well. In a word, her histrionic powers, which had so conspicuously developed during the later years of her career, were now asserting their strength to a degree which in this case demanded active exercise. Knowing that I was an "old hand" at amateur stage work, she asked me if I would like to assist in one of the entertainments. I inquired which particular kind—the "Sarah Bernhardt" or the Bluebeard?

"Both," she replied, laughing. "We already have a capital arrangement of Bluebeard. We can do that to-morrow or next day. Then, if you like to write out a scenario of one of Bernhardt's plays, we will put it in hand and give it later in the month."

I suggested La Tosca—little dreaming that Puccini was then thinking of composing an opera upon Sardou's play. My hostess agreed. The casts were arranged, and forthwith we set to work. In Bluebeard I played the lover. In La Tosca young Richard Nicolini, a professional actor, enacted the painter Paul Cavaradossi, and I took the part of Scarpia. The rehearsals were a delight. They frequently took place in the afternoon, and Mme. Patti entered into them as seriously as though they were for a public performance; interesting herself in every little detail and suggesting countless bits of effective "business." It was in course of these rehearsals that I began to realise what a consummate mistress she was of the art of the stage. A bare idea, a mere hint, would suffice; whether comedy or tragedy was the theme, she would work upon it and elaborate it with wonderful skill. Once while we were rehearsing La Tosca, Sir Augustus Harris quietly slipped in and took a seat in the dark auditorium. He watched the proceedings with the amusement of a master of the game enjoying a holiday. Mme. Patti soon perceived him, and she called out:

"Gus, what are you doing there? Why don't you come on the stage and help us?"

"My dear Adelina," answered Sir Augustus, "if this were an opera or a play, I would with pleasure. But it is neither, and whatever it may be, there is no need of my help as long as you are there. I am just beginning to realise that if you had not been the world's greatest singer, you could have been one of its best actresses." He meant it—and it was true.

The Tosca performance did not come off until after the great impresario had left the castle. At the last moment we found the bill too long, so we determined to omit dramatic action and give it as a series of tableaux vivants, in which form it vastly pleased a large audience of friends from "The Valley." They missed, however, the thrilling effect of Mme. Patti's gliding, serpentine movements in the supper scene, where she stabs Scarpia; and they could not guess that the dead Minister of Police, in the person of myself, was positively shuddering as he lay prone between the two lighted candles. I had been told to keep my eyes open and stare, but that tragic look upon the countenance of La Tosca as she placed the crucifix upon my breast was so terrible that if I had not closed them I should have had to jump up before the curtain fell. Throughout, Patti's attitudes were a wonderful study, and I feel sure Sarah Bernhardt and Ternina would have given much to have seen her remarkable impersonation.

Mr. R. H. Roberts, who celebrated his fiftieth night as the Prince Chap at the Criterion last week, met with a memorable adventure at (stage) sea in the days of his early youth. He was supposed to be very old and feeble, and was drifting on a raft, in company with the hero and the villain of a melodrama, in a terrible storm in mid-ocean. A discussion took place as to the last cup of fresh water, and the villain tipped it purposely into the old man's ear. Mr. Roberts instantly sprang up, as he had threatened he would if they played any practical jokes with him on the stage, and tried to throw the other man off the raft. The villain, however, succeeded in throwing him into the sea instead. He made an attempt to swim to the wings, but an indignant stage-manager in the wings ordered him to return to the raft on pain of dismissal, so there was nothing for it but to swim back, climb into safety, assisted by the villain, and die in the limelight as the raft went down.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
Lessees and Managers,
Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.
Acknowledged to be the Leading Theatre in Barrow. The Seating Capacity (1,209) is Taxed at every Performance by Good Companies.
The Most Popular and Best Business Theatre in the Town.
As a proof of the above, Benefit Performances were given recently at various places of entertainment in Barrow, in aid of the Lifeboat Saturday Fund, with the result that the performance at His Majesty's realised more than thirteen times the amount of any other theatre in the town. The balance-sheet issued by the Town Hall is open to inspection.
The only Theatre in the Town lighted by Electricity. The only Theatre in the Town with the Lessee on the spot. There is no Theatre in Barrow that holds anything like double the amount of His Majesty's.
Bookings include Mr. Bannister Howard's Co.'s, Mr. Charles Macdona's Co.'s, Mr. Morton Powell's, Mr. Percy Hutchison's, Messrs. Dauncey and Leveaux, Mr. Chas. Harrington's, Mr. E. TWENTY WORDS, ONE SHILLING.
Each Additional Six Words, Sixpence.

WANTED, Known, at Liberty Sept. 17, Mlle. Von Etta, Mlle. Von Etta, World's only Lady Illusionist, and Lightning Change Artist. In an Act that Baffles all Description. A Genuine Artistic Success.
Read what the Rochdale Times says:—
Certainly, the great feature of the evening was the appearance of Mlle. Von Etta, in the great transformation spectacle, entitled "The Palace of Electricity." She is a remarkably clever conjurer and illusionist, with a charming and vivacious stage presence. The effects used in this scene are really dazzling. Madamoiselle herself appears in many beautiful costumes, and she is assisted in her work by footmen in gorgeous attire. She at once captivates the audience with her charming manner and clever tricks, and many of those present had tangible proof of her skill by carrying away with them flowers, cigars, and cigarettes, produced out of an, to all appearances, empty hat. The "disappearing" trick is very cleverly done, and Mademoiselle considerably startled her audience by suddenly appearing in the stalls, when she was supposed to be locked inside a box.
This Act is away from anything in the business. A combination of Beauty, Grace, Talent, and Lavish Expenditure.
Managers in want of Top of Bill Secure this High-class Speciality.
Only Vacancies until 1908 are Sept. 17, 24, Oct. 1, Nov. 26, Dec. 24 and 31, May 27, June 17 and 24, July 8 and 15, 1907. Bookings include London Hippodrome and Moss and Stoll Tour. Splendid 6-sheet and D.C. Lithos. Address, Wires or Letters, to T. M. PAUL, Empire, Rochdale.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

FUN AFTER THE WEDDING.

Code Word, BUCOLIQUE.

A young couple get married, and after the wedding a large party accompany them and go to a fair, where boating, swinging, donkey riding, &c., are indulged in with disastrous and very funny results.

660ft. The Subject £11.

SCALES OF JUSTICE.

A rich woman steals lace in a fashionable shop; a poor woman a pair of boots for one of her starving children. The former is let off by the husband paying a fine; the latter is sent to prison. A very interesting study.

215ft. The Subject £3 11s. 8d.

CUSTOMS MAN BEWITCHED by Carmen.

Code Word, BROCHURE.

The wiles and love-making of Carmen overcome the Customs man on duty at the Boundary, and the smugglers succeed in getting their contraband through. Perfect scenery.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE POACHER.

Code Word, BROUETTER.

A dramatic story, culminating in romance, in which a young lover helps his future father-in-law, who is shot at by a poacher, brings the doctor, fights the poacher, takes him to the lock-up, and is rewarded with the hand of the girl he loves. One event after another, each more exciting and enthralling.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

TRAGIC WEDDING.

Code Word, BRULOIR.

A country scene. The young and pretty peasant girl, betrayed by the evil squire, is turned away from her house by her father. She is neglected by her lover, becomes poorer and poorer with her ailing baby child. The squire is going to be married again. The betrayed girl swears revenge, and kills him coming out of the porch of the church. Intensely dramatic and soul-stirring.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

TWO MISCHIEVOUS BOYS.

These two young scapegraces combine to do the wickedest things—let off fireworks in an old gentleman's hat, put too much pepper in the food, and run riot generally. Very amusing.

396ft. The Subject £6 12s.

THE MARBLE INDUSTRY IN CARRARA.

Code word, BRESSANT.

The title almost speaks for itself. Suffice it to say that one is taken into the mountains, workshops, and homes of the people who look after this great industry. Intensely interesting.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE LITTLE NEW BROTHER.

Code Word, BRULOT.

Parents lose their young baby boy. Their other little daughter, wandering in the fields, discovers another little boy in the grass, takes him home, and the parents decide to adopt him. Very pathetic and grand quality.

264ft. The Subject £4 8s.

OUR NEW POLICEMAN.

A young man, enjoying himself with two young ladies, is joined by a friendly policeman. The latter prevails upon the youth to join the force, and they proceed together to the police-station. After a short examination by the inspector he is sworn in, and leaves headquarters in his uniform. The girls meet him outside and shower their congratulations upon him; he explains to them the dignity of his position. Producing a timepiece, he shows them how he proposes to put in force the time limit for motors, etc. Off he dashes with eager desire for his "first case."

Our hero is seen crouched down in a hedge, where he can obtain a view of racing along the picturesque country lane. As a motor comes into sight he brings out his clock and makes his calculations. When the motor is almost passing he dashes out and waves his arms, signalling the driver to stop. The motor-man, however, being already safely past, makes no attempt to pull up, but keeps straight on. He rubs his hands in self-congratulation as a motor approaches, drawn by a horse. In vain the owner explains that the machinery has broken down and the horse is pulling him along. The policeman drags him from his seat and takes his name and address, which he puts down in his note-book, and marches off looking for further fields to conquer.

An energetic cinematographer is seen arranging to take a picture before a house where an actor is playing the part of a burglar, trying to break in at the front window. Just as the picture is being taken, along comes our policeman, and with eyes only for the housebreaker enters the garden and collars his man. The officer drags him off in spite of all explanations. Two very roguish-looking young girls, with many secret signs and much laughter, follow up this arrest, and are seen to be plotting some game or other to repay the zealous policeman. Running off to a shop they purchase a rabbit. Further down the street they make off with a pot of paint while the workman is watching the arrest. These plotters then dip the animal they have purchased in the red paint. One of them drags it along the ground down to the river from a spot the policeman is likely to pass when he returns from the station. The other girl adds colour to the trail by pouring out an additional supply from the paint pot. They take the rabbit out a yard or so in the water and drop it in. Sure enough, their man, coming along the road, soon sees the sign. With "Sherlock Holmes"-like precision, he gets down on his hands and knees, and carefully follows the scent. His tormentors, walking slowly behind him, enjoy the fun. They wait quietly concealed near the water's edge as the would-be detective rushes down to the river and plunges in. After splashing about a good deal he discovers the rabbit, just as his inspector comes on the scene. The inspector, hearing laughter, turns quickly and discovers the cause of all the mischief; he at once gives chase, the girls running away as fast as their legs will carry them. This is a really comical subject, and keeps everyone in roars of laughter.

Length 500 feet. Metres 152.40. Price £12 10s. 0d.

BUTCHER'S "EMPIRE No. 1" CINEMATOGRAPH

This entirely new model has been made throughout in our own workshops on the lines of our Popular Professional Machine, the Empire No. 2, in a lighter and simpler form, and contains many unique features.
Three of its many good points are Simplicity, Reliability, Lightness.

Its Special Features are:—
A new pattern gate with spring mask and steel spring runners, which will never require to be renewed.
The eccentric film adjuster centres the picture without altering the optical centres.
Handle, film centerer, focusing pinion, all readily accessible.
The body slides on the base, automatically centering the light for projecting films or slides.
The price of the Empire No. 1 places it within the reach of all operators.

Price £16 16s., in stout travelling case.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906. In "The Era" Annual (5, Tavistock-street, Strand, 1s.), Miss Vesta Tilley breaks into verse, and a score or more of her comrades of "the boards" try their hands at fiction. The result is entertaining, and as there is added a list of new plays and revivals during the past year, with other information, the annual is worth a place on the playgoer's bookshelves.—The Yorkshire Post

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS, but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional work takes precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.

"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary. Cousin Grace has not been included. This is a little piece from the French, played at a matinée performance at the Gaiety Theatre, Dec. 4, 1884."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.

"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.

"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. George Dance's company appears this week in Lady Madcap. Miss Vera Vere makes a most delightful Lady Betty; Mr. Alexander Chentrens, with his pleasing style of acting and singing, is highly successful as the Count de St. Hubert; and Mr. H. V. Surrey is extremely amusing as Oroya Brown; Mr. Percival Knight, as Bill Stratford; Mr. Oliver Round, as Posh Jenkins; Mr. R. S. Combes, as the Colonel; and Mr. Tommy Melldon, as Corporal Ham, do their best to keep things lively; while Miss Maisie North as Gwenny Holden and Miss Peggy Primrose as Susan dance and sing very gracefully. The piece is finely staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Brothers O'Brien display an almost unsurpassable grace and precision in their gymnastic turn; and the Four Kays act very vivaciously in the diverting pantomimic sketch, The Pet of Pekin; the three Brothers Huxter make a decided success in their novel acrobatic act; and among the other artists who contribute to a first-class programme are: Mr. George Martinengo, a vocalist and instrumentalist of marked ability; the Cosmons in a piquant comedietta; Mlle. Thelma, a conspicuously clever modeller in clay; the Four Papillons, capital singers and dancers; and Mr. Gilbert Gerard, a really wonderfully good mimic.

ABERTILLERY. — THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. A. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. G. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—On Monday Miss May Douglas's company was seen in the drama, What Men Dare. Miss Maud Buchanan did well as Olga, being ably supported by Mr. Forbes Rose as Richard Wilson. Mr. Percy Norman was seen to advantage as Fedor Duigin; Mr. E. Edwards caused amusement as Stoopid; Mr. Alfred Burrows was good as Nickola; and Miss Ida Mackay did capable work as May O'Brien.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—A very good variety company opened here on Monday, when John Higgings introduced some wonderful feats in jumping. Sisters Volbecque delighted the house with their clever comedy; Texas Hattie is particularly smart on the rope; Mark Murry is exceptionally funny; a capital sketch is The Motor Maniac, played by Will Rain and company; Gross is a smart dancer; and Bessie Willows also deserves to be complimented. Some good pictures conclude.

HIPPODROME — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—The company here this week includes Barrett and Knowles, two smart entertainers; Les Bastiens is a clever turn; and Miss Lilian Rigby deserves special praise; Tod Lower is very good; and Rosie Archer must be complimented on her excellent singing. Minnie D. Aubyn is a clever artist; Sid Doody and Emmie Wright have made themselves great favourites by their smart dancing and singing. The Bio presents some good pictures. On Friday a farewell benefit was given, on the retirement of the acting-manager, Mr. L. Campkin.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The ever-popular musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, is being well presented here by Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman's company. The title-rôle is cleverly portrayed by Mr. E. Russell; Mr T. A. Shale's is a capital conception of Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. J. Goldsworthy is good as Michael; Miss Kitty Dale receives much applause for her vocal efforts as Aurora; Miss Lily Lingard as Lady Bickenfield is capable; and Mr. H. Chichester is a suitable exponent of Mr. Crank.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The company representing the play A Royal Divorce is under the management of Mr. W. W. Kelly. Miss Edith Cole, who interprets the character of Josephine, is an actress of ability; Mr. Frederick Victor impersonates Napoleon in an able manner; Miss Agnes Imlay develops, with emphasis, the attributes which the playwright has given to Marie Louise; and Miss Clara Russell is a piquante Stephanie de Beauharnais; effective delineation is given to Talleyrand by Mr. F. Joynson Powell; to General Augereau by Mr. T. Barry; and to Dr. Corvisant by Mr. W. Robbins.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting Manager, Mr. W. Leech. — Much merriment is elicited here by the clever couple Tom and Marie Motram in their comedy musical act; ventriloquism, quaint and curious, is presented by King Leo, a master of the art; Copeland and Son are funny fellows, as well as expert dancers; Polo and Florence, society acrobats, are adroit and neat performers; the Rushforths give a pleasing entertainment with illustrated songs; Beaty and Blanche command attention as tuneful duettists and dancers; Alfonzo has a decidedly novel "show"; Wyndham and Waters are seen in an amusing act, The Professor and His Pupil; and Miss Maude Kaye is a smart coon vocalist. The Bioscope depicts a touching scene in "A Wife's Forgiveness."

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. —Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—The leading attraction here this week is furnished by Mr. Charles Vandyke and company in a pantomime absurdity, entitled Sensations, in which mechanical and electrical effects play an important part. A very pleasing contribution is that of the Crown Trio, who are rightly described as "artistic and refined vocalists"; Morimura, Japanese illusionist, assisted by Miss Miako, presents some novel and startling illusions; Miss May Fallowfield is a winsome and dainty soubrette; the Custances are well received in their duologue, entitled A Game for Two; Wright and Elton, in their speciality, Eccentricities, prove themselves versatile and original entertainers; Mr. George Raper is a most amusing character comedian; and Mr. E. C. Clayton presents a highly appreciated selection of pictures, including snapshots of great local interest.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On the 6th inst. and following three nights the theatre was occupied by Mr. Arnold Bell and his company in the drama, Hoodman Blind. On the first three nights of this week Mr. Chalmers Mackay and company appeared in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Mackay is particularly happy in the character of Barney O'Hea; Mr. Charles Homer plays the part of Shamus McDermott exceedingly well, and the same may be said of Mr. H. Macauley's Michael Kenny; Mrs. Chalmers Mackay is admirable as Nora McGarth, and makes the character charmingly sweet; and Miss Nora Flensburg as Biddy McGinn is simply delightful, while her singing makes the piece go merrily.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Miss Frances Delaval's company opened here on Monday with Her Lost Self. As Wilfred Daventry Mr. Cecil Gray gave a powerful interpretation. Norman Esmond was well embodied by Mr. G. Osmond Tearle, and the part of Paul Kimberly was successfully sustained by Mr. George Lyttleton, jun. Mr. Fred Lillywhite gave a forcible and effective representation of Victor Elsworth. Mr. Frank Stewart as Tom Flyaway, and Miss Hettie Stewart as Bridget Malone played their parts with abundant vivacity and humour. Mr. L. W. Halfpenny portrayed Abraham Cohen with good effect. Mrs. Edmund Lyons as Rachel Cohen was satisfactory. Philippine Marcel found a clever exponent in Miss Frances Delaval.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Smith company is paying a return visit here. Mr. Cecil Dugne is excellent in the title-rôle; and Mr. Sydney Price is a capital Earl of Oxted. Mr. Wm. Dunlop plays delightfully as the Duke of Angleland; Mr. Austin Spencer is more than an acceptable the Hon. Dudley Dysart; and Mr. Russell Novice is a capital Jack Berkeley. Herr Deidrich Anheuser is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Geo. F. Ross; the Duchess of Angleland as played by Miss Mildred Cottle is charming; as is also Lady Margaret Hildergate as depicted by Miss Elaina Gaunt; while the Ruth Anheuser of Miss Phyllis Relph is commendable.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Private Secretary is here this week, presented by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford. Mr. Donald S. Evans gives a fine exposition of Rev. R. Spalding; Mr. Marsland, M.F.H., is well represented by Mr. W. T. Elsworthy. Harry Marsland by Mr. James P. L. Hussey, and Douglas Cattermole by Mr. Randolph Reade. Mr. Sydney Gibson is amusingly presented by Mr. Vivian Gilbert; and Miss Dora Gray is charming as Edith Marsland.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Mr. Tom Costello is here, scoring heavily with many former successes, and Dan Conroy is also a great favourite. Others are the Three Sisters Hayden, pleasing vocal character comediennes; the Jalvars, capital Oriental entertainers; Walter Wade, an amusing raconteur and mimic; the Allens, in a clever musical speciality act; and Vernon's Bioscope.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The first musical comedy of the season to be presented locally is The White Chrysanthemum by Mr. Charles Macdona's company, under the business management of Mr. Frank Withers (who is no stranger to Bath). Vocal honours are easily secured by Miss Muriel George, whose fresh young voice is heard to the greatest advantage in the numbers falling to the character of Sybil Cunningham; Miss Emily Taylor plays the knowing widow Betty Kenyon with just the necessary confidence and gives the "Delicate Hint" song in arch fashion; Cornelia Vanderdecken is smartly impersonated by Miss Nellie Groves, who is also a capital dancer; Mr. Richard Telford makes a quaint Sin Chong and displays great ability as a dancer; Mr. H. E. Garden raises plenty of laughter as Chippy Belmont, and shows that he possesses hereditary talents of no mean order; Reginald Armitage is undertaken by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce, who, having forsaken farce for musical comedy, is equally good in his new surrounding; Mr. Charles Schmiedt is well to the fore as Admiral Armitage. Great amusement is caused by Mr. James Dallas in the rôle of Private Perks, this gentleman also undertaking the heavy responsibility of stage-management. The chorus and orchestra under the excellent direction of Mr. Harry Richardson call for much praise.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—No fault can be found with the varied programme submitted for the current week, including as it does Claver and Piccolo, the former an equilibrist and juggler of wonderful achievement, and the latter a humorous attendant who greatly adds to the enjoyment of the turn. Another equally smart performance is that of Stylo, who can juggle hoops with a precision that is very effective. The Wynford Brothers continue to exhibit their marvellous jumping talents, to the astonishment of the audience; Lennie and Hast in their new fantasy, Coraline, have scored their usual success; the Ringling Trio give an acrobatic absurdity "The Manager's Lunch." Prepossessing Beatrice Bonnie secures much applause with her songs, as does Mlle. De Rose, the lady baritone vocalist. J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, also appears. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are always up to date.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week Mr. Clifton Anderson's company is occupying the boards here in the drama, Held Apart; or, The Painted Woman. Mr. Anderson is most successful as John Douglas, the Laird of Glen Ross; and Mr. John Hood portrays with ability the evil machinations of James Douglas, alias James Barlow. The part of his confederate, Quila Garcia, a creole, is excellently portrayed by Miss Ethyl Murray. Mr. A. W. Norman is good as Capt. Ford; and Mr. E. G. Batley affords much amusement in his clever embodiment of Hugh Trevor. Mr. Robert Drysdale also creates amusement as the shepherd, Andrew Macpherson. Miss Ruby Loncraine plays with much grace and feeling the part of the heroine Sybil Grey.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—The famous comedy, Charley's Aunt, has this week met with more success than ever. A capital cast deserve much commendation for their clever performance, and there is none more worthy of praise than Mr. Stanley Cooke, whose assumption of Lord Fancourt Babberley would certainly be difficult to surpass. Success has also been secured by Mr. Hastings Lynn, who was an admirable Jack Chesney; and Mr. C. B. Keston as Col. Sir Francis Chesney, Bart., must be congratulated on his fine assumption. Miss Lilyan Lait was a sweet and attractive Kitty Verdeen; and Miss Kitty Carew and Miss Gladys Storey were decidedly charming as Amy Spettigue and Ela Delahay; Miss Lena McNaughton was a capital Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez, acting with much skill; and Mr. Walter Beaumont furnished a clever character impersonation of Stephen Spettigue, solicitor; Mr. Richard B. Mason was an excellent Charley Wykeham; and Mr. Sydney Compton was the college scout, Brasset, to the life. The one-act play, by Mr. Brandon Thomas, entitled Fourchette and Co., was a capital curtain-raiser, the various parts being admirably sustained by Miss Gladys Storey and Messrs. C. B. Keston, Sydney Compton, and George Ellis.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Mr. Sam Mayo tops the bill here; and a hit of no small magnitude has been made by Hayman and Franklin, in their entertainment entitled A Matrimonial Agency; the Cee-Mee Troupe, thrill all with their sensational aerial gymnastic performance; Miss Flora Lumiere appears to advantage in her original act, entitled The Fairy Grotto; Farley, Rennie, and Farley amuse with their acrobatic absurdity, Fun at a Railway Station; and also appearing are Mr. J. Curry, comedian; Mr. Henri Bekker, a clever conjuror; Miss Adelina Yohle, songstress; and the Palace Pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Barton and Ashley top the bill, and this clever comedy duo have been most successful with their amusing act, Canal Boat Sal; a special wrestling exhibition is being furnished nightly by Mr. Pat Connolly; Miss Marie Kendall's catchy chorus songs find much favour; and Mr. Frank Lynne's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed; Miss Esta Stella is a refined comedienne and capital danseuse; and Viole plays a number of musical instruments to great advantage; Atroy's juggling feats cause much amazement; and others appearing are Mr. Steve McCarthy, comedian; and Mr. Chas. J. Johnson, "the Black Diamond," whose dancing is first-class.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Henry J. Downs.—This week, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, jun., the drama A Woman's Error has been played with great success by the Alhambra Dramatic Company. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a clever actress, furnished a sympathetic rendering of Vanda, and added further laurels to her reputation here; Mr. Herbert Cecil was an admirable Doctor Foster; and the villainies of Captain Sutley were realistically portrayed by that talented actor, Mr. Horace Denton; Mr. Cyril Grier must be congratulated on his finished impersonation of Ralph Laurence; and Mr. H. Harold Allen was the Vicar to the life. A word of praise is due to Miss Alice Clarke for her clever impersonation of Sal Gosling; and Miss Lina Nazeby was all that could be desired as Vivienne Fallacia; Mr. Henry Elmose Frith was admirable as Stott Seeley; and the humour of the piece was in the safe hands of Miss Effie Macintosh as Eliza March, and Mr. W. G. Wesley as Noah Gosling. Little Rosie and Mr. S. Moselle completed the cast. The Alhambra Bioscope presents a most amusing picture, "Those Terrible Kids," which caused roars of laughter.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here with The Woman Who Gambles. The Countess of Miss Gertrude Hunt is marked by effectiveness; Miss Florrie Halton handles the rôle of Cora with much care; Mr. James Duncan plays the part of the Count intelligently; and Mr. Horatio Sinclair's Baron is characterised by great energy.

DRILL HALL.—The benefit on the 6th inst. to Mr. Alf Brookes was a decided success. In addition to the company of pierrots, the entertainment was supplemented by the efforts of Arthur Holland, impersonator; Edward Garner, vocalist; and Misses Edie Sinclair and Nellie Turner, sopranos.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. William Maclaren's company opened on Monday in a revival of Claudian, an excellent performance attracting a crowded house. Mr. Maclaren submitted a scholarly and highly effective rendering of Claudian, receiving admirable support from Miss Lily C. Bandmann in the exacting and important rôle of Almida. Thariogalus was powerfully rendered by Mr. F. Owen Chalmers. Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner as Belos and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa played with much acceptance, and Mr. Edmund Grogan was an unexceptionable Theorus. The staging of the play was all that could be desired, and the visit of the company has given great satisfaction.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Brothers Egbert, genuinely amusing comedians, head a strong combination, which also includes Miss Elsie Roby, comedienne; Mr. Fred Poplar, comedian; Rich and Rich, patterers; Miss Lily Vane, comedienne; Miss Kitty Wager, comedienne; Drum and Major, variety artists; Denby and Dent, comedians; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—By arrangement with Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Frank Bertram's company is appearing here this week in The Breed of the Treshams. Lieut. Reresby, called "The Rat," is ably sustained by Mr. H. Tripp Edgar; Mr. Cecil C. Klein plays the part of the Hon. Francis Tresham with marked success; Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford is in the capable hands of Mr. Richard A. Greene; Mr. Oswald Lingard is to be congratulated upon his acting as Viscount Dorsington; Mr. George Traill in the rôle of Colonel Sir Henry Curwen does creditable work; Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice plays the part of Captain Stanhope with genuine ability, and Mr. Alec Flood as Colonel Bagshaw is also worthy of mention. As the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, Miss Florence Tressilian is most sympathetic; and Miss Celestine Bertram is all that can be desired as Batty.

BLACKPOOL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is in possession here this week and doing immense business with The Blue Moon. The personnel of the company is quite above the average, and with beautiful scenery, pretty dresses, and a strong and tuneful chorus the result is a complete success. Mr. Edward Lewis as Moolraj, Mr. Bert Gilbert as Private Charles Taylor, and Miss Florence Smithson as Chandra Nil carry off first honours; other favourites are Mr. Herbert Clayton, who sings and acts well as Captain Ormsby, Mr. George Mudie, jun., who plays Bobbie Scott, and Miss Lulu Valli, who presents a charming picture of Millicent Leroy. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Ernest Harman, and Mr. Robert Macdonald is the general manager of the company.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Brigadier Gerard is presented here this week by Mr. Lewis Waller's company. The title-rôle is capitally played by Mr. Loring Fernie, who infuses into the part all the requisite dash and spirit; Mr. Arthur Somers makes a good Napoleon, and Mr. George Mallett contributes a clever study of Talleyrand; Messrs. Penn Hamilton as Mons. D'Albert and Mr. James Crowe as Mons. Bassompierre likewise give every satisfaction; the Comtesse de Roquelaure has a capable representative in Miss Beatrice Lindley; and Miss Florence Denbigh is successful as Mère Lafitte. The scenery and dresses are in the best taste.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Crowded houses here accord a hearty welcome to Marie Lloyd, who is the "star" of the week. She sings her usual style of songs in her own inimitable way, and evokes a perfect tumult of applause at every performance. The Miles Stavordale Quintette are retained by reason of their great success, and the same remark applies to Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes. Other good turns are contributed by Frances Haskoll, in her illusory novelty, The Vocal Chameleon; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer; Harry Brown, the coloured comedian; Edmund Bosanquet, the violin virtuoso; the Llewelyns, operatic artists; Ernest Montefiore and company in a sketch; Madge Osmond, male impersonator; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, showing the best and latest pictures.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—A very attractive company is engaged here this week. There is no particular big-type artist, but each one is of good repute. The bill includes J. W. Rickaby, comedian; the Black Troubadours, vocalists; Nellie Martell, comedienne; Dale and Vale, singers and dancers; the New York Nippers, in a sketch entitled Bedtime; J. A. Wilson, comedian, with his dog, Towser; the Karnos, in The Traveller's Rest; Leolard Brothers, comedy clowns; the Lashmars, comedians; and the Phydoras, in their speciality act.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company, with The Shadow of a Crime, has scored a decided success here. In the character of Harry Bullington, Mr. Stephen Crossley wins success; Mr. J. H. Manley submits a well-studied impersonation of Sir Edward Bullington; Mr. Robert Forder ably sustains the part of Ralph Esmond; Mr. William Matthews gives proof of experience in the character of Jim Murdock; and the humorous element is liberally supplied by Mr. E. W. Avery and Mr. Alfred Richards, Miss May Rosaine being much in evidence as Mrs. Brown. The Loyall Norman of Miss Ina Grant is a pleasing portrayal; Miss Dorothy Riddle as Dora Bullington wins favour; and Miss B. St. Ruth as Sarah evokes applause.

HIPPODROME.—Pictures still hold the premier position in the programme provided by Mr. George E. Good, who has been liberally patronised. The variety turns for the present week have been supplied by Miss Ada Maud, described as "the ideal boy"; George Willan, quaint comedian; Amy Bathurst, a clever top boot and sand dancer; and the Two Ogdens, patter comedians.

GAIETY.—Proprietor, Mr. John Grantham; Manager, Mr. Snoudini James.—Topping the bill at the above cosy hall are the Lilian Brothers, society acrobats, in a pleasing turn; James and James, sketch artists; the Coulthards, vocalists and dancers; J. W. Shedill, mimic; Will Fordeck, clog dancer; Marie Durey, soprano; Moranda Brothers, novel entertainers; and the Gaiety Bioscope are other attractions.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company on Monday, when Oliver Twist was presented to a Bolton audience. Mr. William Mackintosh, in the arduous rôle of Fagin, the Jew, played with telling effect, his display of terror in the condemned cell being a specially fine piece of acting; Mr. Cecil A. Collins scored in his delineation of Bill Sikes, strongly bringing out the harsh and brutal nature of the burglar; Mr. T. Macfarlane was successful as the Artful Dodger; whilst his fellow members of the gang, Charlie Bates, Tom Chitling, and Barney, were respectively well embodied by Mr. Christmas Grose, Mr. Frederick Clive, and Mr. Max Montesole; Mr. E. C. Buffum effectively portrayed the benevolent old gentleman, Mr. Brownlow; Mr. Grimwig had a competent exponent in Mr. T. P. Haynes; Mr. C. H. Croker-King submitted a skilful characterisation of the villainous and mysterious Monks; and Mr. Harvey Braban was a manly Harry Maylie. The part of Oliver Twist was entrusted to Miss Maudie Ray, who played the part with much care and judgment; Miss Marie Polini gave a realistic and sympathetic interpretation of the part of Nancy; Mr. Henri C. Jacobs and Miss Betty made the most of the parts of Mr. and Mrs. Bumble; Miss Saville presented an easy and graceful portraiture of Rose Maylie, and Miss Elsie Carew as Mrs. Maylie, and Miss Helen Boucher as Mr. Brownlow's housekeeper, Mrs. Bedwin, utilised all their opportunities. Mr. Stanley Bell is the business manager.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—This week's programme includes many good turns. Among them are the Onlaw Trio, who give a clever turn as Parisian novelty equilibrists; Miss Molly Woolstenhulme, described as the Lancashire Nightingale; J. G. Aitken, comedian; Ethel Loftus, comedy girl; the Boston Twins, speciality comedians, in patter, song, and dance; the Herald Comedy Four, vocalists and dancers; Geoffreys and Benson, in their laughable comedy sketch, Spoofed; the Fitzroys give a smart entertainment as society gymnasts; Myra Love, comedienne; Percy Farrimond, the Standish singing collier; Kuroki, a clever Japanese magician; Franco Piper, banjo soloist; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Horace Moseley and company in the drama entitled The Betrayer. Mr. J. W. Wallbank gave a capital portrayal of Jack Reynolds; Miss Mollie George was pleasing as Deela Kingston; and Mr. Horace Moseley created plenty of merriment as Martin Doyle.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—This week the great attraction here is Edward Rainer in the world-famed episode, Humanity. Mr. E. Rainer as the Jew was excellent, and the other characters were well taken. The sketch, His Majesty's Coastguard, received much applause, also the comedy sketch, The Sleepwalker. The varieties include Wheeler and Wilson, comedy acrobats; Radford and Grey, Walter Bentley, and Gladys Merwade.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Mouillot's company in San Toy is the attraction this week. Miss Bessie Allayne, a comedienne of ability, plays the title-rôle with great variety; Captain Bobby Preston could not be in better hands than Mr. Arthur Cartwright's; Mr. Robert Rivers, one of the breeziest members of the company is well suited as Sir Bingo Preston; a most successful exponent of the Emperor is found in Mr. W. Jordan; and Mr. Bert Edwards as Li causes considerable laughter; Miss Lottie Sergeant is distinctly good as Dudley, a part which suits her admirably; while Miss Maud Rundell as Rose Tucker dances delightfully.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Musical comedy still reigns supreme here, and a hearty welcome greeted the return visit of Mr. William Greet's company on Monday with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. William Stephens, who retains his old character of Jim Cheese, the dog trainer, elicits roars of laughter. He has a capital colleague in Miss Jeanie Richards as Liza Shoddam. With much success Mr. Arthur Harrold fills the part of Dick Wargrave; Mr. Percy E. Wright is good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. Will Hindson's Downham is a capital performance; Mr. Greene Taylor's Mr. Talk is a good character sketch; Mr. Tom Redmond makes the most of his opportunities as Host Hazell; and Mr. Courtin is a blustering Bunker Bliss. Miss Beatrice Anderson realises the character of the Strong Lady perfectly; Miss Frances Earle charmingly fills the part of the heiress Elphin Haye; and Daisy Fallowfield is gracefully represented by Miss Gertrude Melville. Repose and dignity are features of Miss Mary Morison's impersonation of Miss Virginia Bliss, and Miss Hilda Gray is all that can be desired as Flora (Lady Rosedale). Mr. Evelyn Baker has the augmented orchestra and chorus well in hand.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Walter Melville's striking drama, Her Second Time on Earth, forms the present strong attraction. Miss Hilda Beverley has scored an unmistakable success in the part of the unscrupulous Dora Grey. As Guy Brand Mr. W. H. Porter supports her well; Mr. Frank R. Robertson plays Jack Carlton effectively; and as Laura Norman Miss Dorothy Hildebrande is good.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The centre of attraction here this week is George Lashwood, whose charm of style and personality continue to win unstinted admiration. Lottie Govell, comedienne, contributes acceptably to the programme; the Wedburns are again eliciting laughter; Lilian Lowe, on a welcome return visit, contributes some charming songs; a capital musical sketch, The Itinerant, given by the Norman Leonard Trio, meets with favour; and in their sketch, Tranquillity, Alice May and company are distinctly diverting. As an up-to-date comedy juggler, O. K. Sato, is most amusing; Dot Hardy provides extravagant fun as a little slavey; as a comedienne and dancer Marie Reeve is decidedly clever; and "Laughs" is an apt title for the turn given by the Poluskis.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—In a series of classical poses and clever ring feats those muscular and finely developed athletes, the Athlones, elicit great applause; Baker and Belphor's finely rendered songs are beautifully illustrated; Maude Beaumont presents an imposing figure as a comedienne; in their bar act Zaro and Arno are clever and grotesque; Maidie Scott has a charm and quaint style as a comedienne that are quite unique; Harry Cotton's extravagant military song is humorous; Tom Yorke, comedian, is acceptable; the Six Brothers Luck in The Demon of the Cellar are responsible for hearty laughter; and humorous pictures are shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—The New Century company have added to their list of attractions here The Chonophone, a marvellous deception in the shape of "Speaking Pictures," which are arousing much interest.

AL FRESCO PAVILION.—A burlesque, Aladdin, Esquire, and smart juggling feats by Frank Hartley, strengthen the customary programme of music and comedy.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—A large and fashionable audience was present in the Grand Pavilion on Monday evening, to do honour to the popular manager of the Parade, on the occasion of his annual benefit, when an elaborate programme was presented. Herr Winternitz and his Royal Viennese orchestra opened with that charming composition, composed by the conductor for the visit of the Lord Mayor of London, "L'Entente Cordiale," and they also gave a fine rendering of the overture to Poet and Peasant. Mr. Arthur Chenery and his Willow Pattern Serenaders contributed some of their choicest songs and choruses; Miss Annie Bartle, whose rich soprano voice has made her a favourite here, was rewarded with a double encore, as was also that charming little prodigy, Miss Haidee Voorzanger, whose violin solos were given with all the fire and dash of an accomplished musician. Mrs. Palmer, the talented wife of the beneficiare, sang with her accustomed pleasing effect, her powerful contralto voice greatly delighting the audience. Mr. Charles Beanland that delightfully original comedian, was very amusing in his humorous songs, and kept the house in roars at his many "funniosities"; Mr. H. Flockton Foster's costume comedy company gave some capital items; Mr. A. Hubner's humorous conjuring turn was laughable; and Professor A. Voorzanger contributed a finely rendered solo on the saxophone. The Loyal Dominion Animated Picture Company showed some very fine pictures in coloured animated photography; the Waterloo Pierrots, in their cleverly played sketch, The Secret, were heartily received, the part of the manservant giving Mr. Chas. Beanland a good opportunity of showing his peculiar style of humour to advantage. During an interval in the programme Mr. Palmer thanked the audience for their appreciation of his endeavours during the season to cater for the entertainment of the large crowds of visitors who flock to the Parade, and took this mark of their approval as an indication that his efforts to provide the best of talent on the Parade and in the new Pavilion was satisfactory to his patrons.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—A grand gala night on Monday was set apart for the benefit of Herr Simon Wurm, the musical director, whose fine orchestra, the Imperial Viennese Band, has been so well received at the promenade concerts during the season. Their several contributions to the programme were admirably rendered, especially that fine composition of Tschaikowsky's, "1812." Miss Margaret Cooper gave a selection of her clever "songs at the piano"; Mr. Charles Knowles sang with all that fine effect which his fine baritone voice can give; and Miss Emilie Martin's songs were very nicely sung. Those clever duettists and dancers, Misses Aidee and Doris Woods, the New Zealand twins, did their utmost to amuse; and the Strolling Players contributed several delightful songs, duets, and concerted pieces. Herr Van der Naaten gave a brilliant pianoforte solo, with orchestral accompaniment; and Herr Wurm is to be congratulated upon the crowded and appreciative audience which had assembled to show their good wishes towards him as the musical director of the delightful Spa Promenade Concerts.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. A. Hubner.—Mr. J. W. Nicholson, that delightful Yorkshire humorist, is delighting the audiences here this week with his highly amusing songs and patter; the Victoria Brothers are giving some clever international dances; Joseph Hennessey is a smart club manipulator; Miss Grace Logan sings and dances charmingly; Cinizelli does some amusing comedy juggling; and Miss Lola Vereker, a mezzo-soprano, sings some good songs. The animated pictures are kept well up to date, and the Lennards continue to please with their illustrated songs. Thursday is set apart for the benefit of Mrs. Hubner, who has made herself very popular with the frequenters of the Palace, and a big bill was provided for the occasion.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Dantoff; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Animated pictures are a new feature at this popular resort, and the Pierrots are contributing a special programme in the old "nigger minstrel" style. H. B. Coda took his benefit on the 6th inst., when he was rewarded with a full house, and a big programme was presented.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company opened a week's engagement here on Monday, with Lohengrin. The opera was superbly staged and dressed, the chorus and augmented orchestra displayed excellent work, and the duties of conductor were in the experienced hands of Mr. Eugene Goossens. Mr. Julius Walther achieved great success as Lohengrin; Miss Grace Nicoll sang and acted charmingly as Elsa; Miss Marie Alexander gave a very impressive and artistic portrayal of Ortrud; and Mr. Charles Victor was realistic as Telramund; Mr. John Ebbeler, as the King, and Mr. Frederick Clendon, as the Herald, merit warm praise. The programme for the week also included Faust, Carmen, Tannhäuser, Il Trovatore, Fidelio, and The Marriage of Figaro.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The Span of Life occupies the boards here this week. Miss Ella Willmer gives an admirable impersonation of the heroine, Kate Heathcote; and Mr. Kyburn Dellar submits a fine portrayal of the hero, Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffat is convincing as the villainous Dunstan Leech; and much fun is afforded by Miss Kitty Russell as Shrove Tuesday and Mr. Walter Dale as Nutty Brown. The Almo Trio of acrobats add considerably to the success of the drama. The piece is capitally staged, the lighthouse scene and the "human bridge" being especially noteworthy.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard. — An attractive programme is sustained here this week. Miss Mabel Bardino and company appear with distinct success in the American sketch, Nell of the Music Hall; Tom Leamore, comedian, is as popular as BROMLEY.—LYRIC THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. Carlton; Manager, Mr. H. Strong.—A successful engagement is being paid this week by the celebrated Indian actress, Go-won-go-Mohawk, in the drama Wep-ton-no-Mah. She gives an excellent representation of the title part. That of Colonel Stockton is admirably played by Mr. C. W. Charles. Mr. Pasco Bioletti enacts with credit the adventurer Manuel Lopes; and Mr. L. F. Vernon is good as Captain Franklin. The chief Go-ne Gua is ably represented by Mr. Edwin Standish. Much fun is introduced by Mr. Guy D. Hackney and Mr. Danny Ryan as Sam White and Garry Cullen respectively. Nellie Stockton is sweetly played by Miss Winnie Goepel; and Miss Dora Pass is a whimsical Miss Matilda Sniffles.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott's company is this week presenting A City of Sin to good houses. Mr. Conrad Heywood works hard and successfully as Paul Lorraine; Mr. Henry W. Hatchman is an excellent villain; Miss Edith Wallis gives a good performance of Alice Bertrand, and Mr. Wilfred Grahame works well as Zip Barzon. Many comical incidents are contributed by Mr. C. H. Spencer and Miss Elvira Stuart as Mr. and Mrs. Bibi Lebouf, and by Mr. Val. W. Gully and Miss Polly Denville as Mr. and Mrs. Titi Culotte. Ilma is well sustained by Miss Jenny Weston.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager Mr. W. C. Horner.—Crowded houses are being attracted by Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid. Mr. Colin Campbell is responsible for much fun as Meakin; Mr. Sinclair Holden gives a clever representation of Guy Scrymgeour; and Mr. Lois du Cane is an able Dr. Faussett. Mr. Stenson Liddard makes a dignified Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Edward Nainby causes many laughs as Comte Raoul; and Mr. J. R. Val does some clever dancing as Zaccary. Miss Gladys Ward as Josephine sings her songs in a charming manner; Miss Dorothy Firmin is a pleasing Lady Violet; Miss Jessie Bonney as Thisbe is most acceptable; Miss Emily Stevens is quite at home as Caroline Vokins; and Miss Ethel Holdsworth is smart as the Countess Anstruthers.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Atlas and Vulcana and the sisters Gwen and Maude Atlas head the bill here this week, and their turn is highly appreciated, the classic poses of Miss Atlas being of great beauty. Venie Clements makes quite a hit with her "Baby" impersonation; Paul Vandy is a smart and amusing juggler; Will Walton is a good comedian; and the Bros. Dean are loudly recalled for their excellent dancing. Geo. Young, a blind musician, is a good turn; the Bristons are smart in an acrobatic and cycling turn; and an extra turn, a lady who has a good voice, sings several songs in a capital manner.

BURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Love that Women Desire is being played here this week by a capable company. Mr. Fred Lloyd makes a fine Philip Carnaby, and is assisted by Miss L. Stanhope, who acts charmingly as Sibyl Thorburn; Mr. Charles Herberte is good as Frank Hardy; Mr. J. O. Stewart as Squire Abingdon, Mr. Alfred Grenville as Richard Abingdon, and Miss Alice N. Livesey as Madge Abingdon act well together. Good comedy work is put in by Miss Helen Richmond, Mr. J. Hignett, and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson.

THE CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Instead of the usual variety show, the stage is occupied by Mr. John Leopold's company in New Frivolity. The Leopolds are clever acrobats and fun-makers, and are assisted by Mr. Watson Hulme and Mr. Barry Lupino.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead, jun.—A capital programme is presented here, and includes Boccaccios, trio of Italian singers; Pichel troupe of Risley acrobats; the Dixons, baton spinners and dancers; Little Beattie, comedienne and dancer; Jack Truman, vocalist; Caillers, in a herculean act; the Weimars in a little comedy; Leon and Williams, comedians; and Calile and Walker in a little act.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.—ATHENÆUM HALL.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Crack.—The autumn season opened here on Monday night with Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King. A powerful rendering of the title-rôle is given by Mr. Horace E. Herbert, Mr. Oswald Cray being no whit behind in his clever portrayal of The Spider. Mr. Percy Foster is successful as Jaikes, and the same may be said of Mr. Seton Barnard and Mr. Ralph in their respective rôles of Cripps and Henry Corket; Mr. William Dempsey is amusing as Elijah Coombe. Miss B. Doyle gains the sympathy of the audience as Nellie Denver, acting with much charm; and Miss Madge Gillard is a pleasing Cissie.

BUXTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—What the Butler Saw made its first appearance in Buxton on Monday evening, when the farce had an excellent representation by Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company. Mr. Lionel Rignold was a host in himself as Pink (the Butler), and the audience roared with laughter at his drollery. Mr. Charles Fawcett made a bright and amusing Jack Barrington and Mr. Reddick Anderson a satisfactory Sir Charles Foden; Mr. Harry Rignold was funny as Abraham Weinstein; Mr. Louis Ringard was well suited as Sydney Clifford; and Mr. Alec Alves did well as Vere de Bogyns. Mr. Roy Byford caused much amusement as Professor Phale, and Mr. Frank Kingsley was effective as Dr. Clayton. Miss Marie Daltra acted with spirit the part of Miss Foden; and Miss Jennie Wigney was a dainty Nora. Miss Clarissa and Miss Selina Dunlop had able representatives in Miss Hylda Davies and Miss Vera O'Connell; Miss Violet Gould and Miss Annie Goward added to the merriment as Mrs. Fleming Smyth and Mrs. Hake; Miss Minnie Willett was a sprightly Sophonisba Hake and Miss Dorothy Garth well placed as Pink's Maria. Miss Ada Blanche's clever work as Mrs. Barrington cannot be too highly commended. The farce was excellently staged. On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Kendal opened with The Housekeeper.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—The Prince of Pilsen was presented on Monday evening to a full house by Mr. George Musgrove's principal company. Mr. Martin Adeson, in the part of Hans Wagner, has a rôle just suited to his abilities; Mr. Lawrence Wensley as Lord Arte is another excellent comedian, who fairly brings down the house; Mr. G. Villiers Arnold as Lieut. Wagner sings and acts very well indeed; and Mr. J. B. Fox in the title-rôle makes the part a conspicuous success. Miss Millicent Marsden as Mrs. Crocher deserves all the admiration she receives, her rendering of the captivating Yankee being quite irresistible; Miss Nellie Barnwell as Edith Adams has ample opportunities of displaying her fine vocal powers, while Miss Isa Bowman is a charming exponent of Nellie Wagner. Mr. Alfred Selby as Francois and Miss Nell Emerald as Sidonie are capital representatives of their difficult parts; the augmented orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. T. M. Tunbridge.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Duncan.—The Lights o' London is being presented here by Mr. Herbert Hollister's company. Mr. G. Montague Lane acts most effectively as Harold Armytage, and Miss Jennie Burgoyne gives a natural and sympathetic rendition of Bess; Clifford Armytage is well sustained by Mr. Raymond Thomas, and Seth Preene has a clever and faithful representative in Mr. Herbert Hollister; while a dignified Squire Armytage is found in Mr. Sidney N. Hallows.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The Two McNaughtons are at the head of the bill this week; Mlle. De Dio's dances win great admiration; Roberts, Hayes, and Roberts provide a capital turn; a laughable sketch is that of The Cuckoo, played by Chas. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum; Alice Lloyd is as charming as ever in her delightfully rendered songs; and Park's Eton Boys are a capital combination of juvenile vocalists; Jake Friedman, the one-man opera; Forest and King, skilful gymnasts; and the Bioscope, with interesting pictures, complete an excellent programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The Geisha has evidently lost little of its popularity, as the house was crowded on the opening night, and the production—by Mr. Mouillot's company—had a most hearty reception. Miss Lydia Bland pleased everyone as O Mimosa San—her numbers were rendered in good style and with artistic effect; Molly Seymour had a chic and dainty representative in Miss Edith Adeson, who soon became a warm favourite; Miss Doris Langdon acted with gaiety and animation as O Juliette Diamante, and the imposing figure and stately style of Miss Winifred Knightly were admirably suited to the character she portrayed. As Wun Hi Mr. Edward Kipling was quite up to all the traditional business of the part, his songs and dances creating the usual laughter and applause; Miss Emily Lovell made a lively little midshipman; Mr. Wilfrid Heath acquitted himself admirably as Reginald Fairfax, and sang the numbers allotted to him to the satisfaction of his audience; the Marquis Imari was successfully impersonated by Mr. J. H. Booth, who made every point tell and contributed a fine performance.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Lockhart's elephants are the big attraction this week, and the wonderful tricks performed by these intelligent animals provoked the utmost enthusiasm; Herman Melot is a marvel of deftness in conjuring, and although we have had many clever artists in the line here lately, none has had a heartier reception; Charles Banks, with his educated dog, is a popular turn, and B. H. Athol sings descriptive songs tastefully and with excellent effect; Bishop and Hanlon, smart knockabouts and funny patterers, create roars of laughter; Mack Ollive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry, in his whistling scena from The Belle of New York, makes a big hit; Raie Walters is a delightful and versatile comedienne; new pictures by the Pepiscope and cleverly executed selections by the excellent orchestra presided over by Mr. Henry Hinchcliffe are always popular items of the programme.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—The White Chrysanthemum is making its first appearance in Chatham this week, and Mr. Frank Curzon is to be congratulated upon the all-round excellence of the production. Miss Lulu Evans sustains the title-rôle in creditable style; Miss Daisy Le Hay makes a sprightly young widow of Betty Kenyon; and Miss Kate Vesey gains much popularity as the American heiress Cornelia Vanderdecken; Mr. O. E. Lennon's Sing Chong is capital; Mr. Horace Mills, as Chippy Belmont, gives a most amusing reading of the part; Mr. F. Pope Stamper makes an ideal Lieut Reginald Armitage; and Mr. W. H. Rawlins is particularly well suited to the part of Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage; and the nimble Perks of Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., must not be overlooked Dresses and scenery are admirable.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—After a lengthy interval Dutch Daly is delighting Barnard's patrons with quaint patter and clever concertina playing. Carson Hicks is a dancer with some neat steps; Florence and Lillian's musical selections are greatly appreciated; and Fred Fuller and company have a lively musical scena, The Shoeblack's Dream. Also appearing are the three Rosslyn Girls, Jack Lane (yokel comedian), and Lucy Coventry (singer and acrobatic dancer). Lacey's Erascope is responsible for pictures of the international boatrace.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Here we have Carlotta Lunn, vocalist; the Great Northern Troupe, in their well-known terpsichorean act; Victor Travers, a man with many jokes; Geo. Antill, legmania dancer; Harry Bent, with imitations of Gus Elen, Chirgwin, and other stars; Gracie Grahame, who is making a big hit with "It's a shame to take the money" and her "Fishing" song; Charles East and company, who are highly entertaining in £1,000 for a Baby; and the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—On Monday Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Levaux's company presented The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt. Mr. Reginald Dance in the title-part is cool, polished, and very clever; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton is natural and convincing as Colonel Rayner; Miss Gladys Mason is charming as Lady Clarice; Miss Mary Weigall is capital as the Marchioness; Miss May Brooke as the appalling Lady Clementina is good; Mr. Edwards Coutts and Miss Eve Titheradge are bright and youthful as the ingénue lovers, Lord Woolham and Aggie Coles; Miss Agnes Gunn gives a clever little sketch as Miss Pelling; Mr. George A. Seager as Sir Bartholomew and Mr. Russell Barry as Mr. Goddlestone act with all due point; Mr. George Percy makes the most of his small part of the parson; Miss Helen Tytter as Mrs. Mellon, Mr. V. Vernon Travers as Mr. Mellon, Mr. Gerald Henson as Alfie do well; Miss Dorothy Haigh as Miss Brevell and Miss Muriel Mason as Mary are good. The Drums of Oude precedes the comedy, affording fine opportunities for strong work on the parts of Miss Gladys Mason, Mr. Reginald Dance, and Mr. Edward Coutts.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. Wordsworth.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, with the drama The Little Bread-Winner, forms the attraction here. Mr. Eugene Santley shows ability in the part of Lord William Derrington; in the title-rôle Little Emmie Thomas is sprightly and vivacious; Miss Mary Fulton plays with sympathy the part of Margaret Daventry; Mr. Alfred Maurice well sustains the rôle of Joseph Prior; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam is deserving of praise for her portrayal of Kate Cherry. Mr. Matthew Boulton makes a sympathetic Richard Lawrence; and Mr. Allen Charles is amusing as Charles Prior.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Secretary, Mr. A. Hemingway.—This week we have a return visit from Ediscope and Barnum's animated pictures and vaudeville company, under the management of Mr. J. B. Kennedy. Vela gives a remarkably clever and acceptable wire act; the Two Ver-Vains are excellent coon singers and dancers; Stilto, the American stilt performer, is clever; as is also Vie Verney, speciality whistler. Lulu is a refined lady instrumentalist. The bill also includes the Oldham Singing Mill Girl; Mons. Reni and his clever dog; Mlle. Corlettie, songstress; Miss Queenie Vane, comedienne and dancer; and the Cedrics, refined comedy artists, all of whom are particularly effective in their various turns.

CLACTON-ON-SEA. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA. — Proprietors, Palace, Clacton-on-Sea, Ltd.—Goggin and Davis, who give a smart show, top the bill here for this week. Other turns are Field and Lewis, smart comedy artists; Ruby Wentworth, male impersonator; Edgar Berte, raconteur; Kloof and Ramsey, a smart musical comedy turn; Miss Vera Mayne, comedienne; and George Fairburn, comedian and mimic.

OPERETTA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Ch. Macdona; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. H. Rhodes.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Mr. Mouillot's principal company gave A Message from Mars to good houses. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley as Horace Parker played with force and character; and Mr. Bruce Lindley as the Tramp came out well. On Thursday and Friday, Mr. Chas. Windermere's company gave the farcical comedy, Facing the Music.

PIER PAVILION.—Mr. Foden Williams, humorist; Miss Dorothy Payn, comedienne; Mr. Bret Hayden, comedian; and Miss Birdie Bickerton, soprano, are the artists here this week. The Walturdaw animated pictures are most interesting.

BAND STAND CONCERTS.—The artists engaged this week for the Council's concerts by Mr. J. Sainton are Messrs. Frank A. Wood, tenor; and Mr. Reginald Mountfield, humorist.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—Mr. Frederick Melville's latest dramatic success, The Beast and the Beauty, is staged here this week. Mr. Milton Rosmer is worthy of high praise for his admirable rendering of the hero, Jack Barrymore; Mr. George Harvard gives a powerful embodiment of the much-wronged Ned Samson; Mr. Bernard Mervyn makes an unscrupulous Henry Denver, and is ably assisted by Miss Daisy Gwynne as Delliah Vane; Lord Loman has a good exponent in Mr. William C. Passmore; Miss Alice Bowes looks and acts charmingly as Violet, the flower girl. Mr. Harry Talbot is a clever comedian, and as Tom Chicken is the cause of much merriment; Mr. James Neal as Joe Pugsley and Mr. Harry Wimpeny as Dick Soanes also do some smart comic work.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—On Monday Mr. Charles Windermere and his company, in Facing the Music, opened here before a fashionable audience. The part of the other Mr. Smith was taken by Mr. Windermere himself, and his performance kept the house in a titter; Mr. C. C. Freer as the Curate, and Mr. Wentworth Fane as Dick Desmond, were nicely placed; whilst a capital pair were Mr. W. H. G. Wynne as the fiery Colonel, and Mr. Henry Nelson as the Vine-street Police-sergeant. Miss Kathleen Willoughby as Mabel, Miss Clare Manifield as Nora, and Miss Mary Buckstone as the Bijou girl, were each of them very fascinating; and quite a hit was made by Miss Evelyn Sherry as the tactful housekeeper, Mrs. Ponting. For Thursday the attraction was a return visit of Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—The Daunton Shaw troupe of cyclists are this week paying a return visit, and make a capital top of the bill. A big draw is Miss Lily Iris, a charming songstress, with a sextette of beautiful young ladies, who dance and pose in a most refined manner à la the Gibson girls, this turn nightly receiving vociferous applause; Eddie Stidder and Gwennie Dunbar are capital in a musical comedy speciality; Edwin Thomas is to be congratulated on his success as a comedian, this being his first week on any stage as a professional; Flora Leonard well sustains her reputation as a vocalist; and Harry Morgan shines as a coon comedian and dancer.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. George Dance's excellent company opened a week's engagement here on Monday with Veronique. As Mme. Coquenard, Miss Ethel Negretti scored a distinct success, her rendering of the air, "The Apple Tree," being loudly encored; Miss Blanche Grahame in the title-rôle sang and acted with grace and skill, presenting a most attractive heroine; Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan sustained the part capitally, singing most artistically; and there was much humour in the Loustod of Mr. Fred Lyne. Mr. Leslie Holland as Mons. Coquenard was exceedingly droll; and Miss Lena Maitland as the Countess, Miss May Leslie as Aunt Benoit, and Miss Gracie Sinclaire as Denise lent excellent aid.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The principal attraction here this week bears the title Moses and Son, and is Fred Karno's latest creation. In it some thirty artists—all Hebrews—take part. There are three scenes, and the incidents and dialogue are very laughter-provoking. The Sisters Poole, dancers and duettists, win applause; George Gulliver, ventriloquist, with his one figure, affords much amusement; the Maros, in a horizontal bar comedy act, prove themselves skilful performers; and Clare Walters gives imitations on the piano, and plays and dances at the same time. The Four Hearnes, comedy acrobats, are responsible for a performance of genuine merit.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Wm. Bennett.—A return visit of Mr. Lingford Carson's No. 1 company in the domestic play, The Drama of Life, is attracting considerable attention at this house. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton shows great dramatic power in his excellent rendering of Harry Beech; while Miss Kate Hallan is again seen in her successful impersonation of Sylvia Beech; Mr. John J. Hooker gives a good account of the villain, Walter Beech; Mr. E. B. Foote is pleasing as Richard Brenton; Mr. H. Maxwell Payne is seen to advantage as Jack Lawton; Mr. Edward Van Bienne is effective as the Count de Foi. The light side of the play is capitally presented by Mr. Harwood Roberts and Miss Florence French as Sir Dobson Wilde and Lady Wilde respectively. A special word of praise should be given Miss Elsie May, a clever juvenile actress, as Master Robert Beech.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—Tom Edwards is one of the chief turns here, and gives a ventriloquial sketch which quite justifies the honour. Sid Cotterell and company appear in an amusing sketch entitled The Substitute; Dave O'Tool, comedian, is well received, and gives some good songs; Ossi Souplessi is a clever contortionist and acrobat; Miss Lucretia, burlesque artist; Elsie Earl, comedienne; Miss Challas, a capital vocalist, are also here; and the animated pictures conclude the performance.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. William Greet's company is amusing visitors here in The Earl and the Girl. The scenery, dresses, and chorus are worthy of special mention. Mr. William Cromwell is quaint and curious in the rôle of Jim Cheese; Mr. Robert Hyett's free and easy style admirably fits the part of Dick Wargrave; Mr. Stanley Harrison is seen to advantage as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. A. E. Coleby is capitally suited to the character of A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane is the racy Yankee, Downham, to the life; Mr. Arthur Cassidy is excellent as Mr. Talk; Mr. Fred W. Pattrick makes the most of Mr. Hazel; and good work is done by Messrs. Charles Greenhill, Wilfred Norman, and F. Payne-Palmer, as Dudley, George, and Hugo. Miss Gertrude Simpson is full of life and gaiety as Elphin Haye; Miss Florence Wix is delightfully fresh as 'Liza Shoddam; Miss Nellie Grant scores in the rôle of Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Eva Bevington is bright and attractive as Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss Helen Langton is satisfactory as the charming Miss Virginia Bliss. Misses Helen Malo, Grace Massey, Dolly Hunt, and Nellie Lawrence also give a good account of themselves.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Harry Michael's company in the military drama, Death or Glory Boys, is proving attractive here this week. Mr. J. E. Manning as Colonel Fergeson is well placed; Mr. Fred Morgan as Capt. Glyn Ferrers acts with power; the rôle of Lieut. Duff is ably sustained by Mr. Bert Morley; Mr. Arthur Bawtree earns distinction as Jack Malden; Mr. J. P. Dryden as Carn is exceptionally amusing; Mr. A. P. Kaye as Nat Wilks is adequate; Mr. Ashton Winslow as Sergeant Bryan is very good; and Mr. Groves as Sam deserves praise. Miss Minnie Grey as Nena Fergeson displays talent; Miss Nellie Fletcher as Edith Malden makes a good impression; Miss May Seton is smart as Jane; and Miss C. Harris is commendable as Mrs. Bryan.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—Crowded houses here are testifying their approval of the entertainment submitted by Mr. Jay. Will Friedo is a clever comedian and dancer; Roze and Calvert, refined comedy duo, are irresistible in their whimsical act; Viviana is a smart and vigorous dancer; Irene Meldon, comedienne and dancer, deserves warm congratulations; Roxborough and Wright are amusing in sketch Cockie; Charles Mildare's whistling turn is excellent; the Elvio Comedy Trio bring down the house with their droll knock about sketch; and the animated pictures of the Boat Race are worth seeing. A big hit is made by Fred Ginnett and company in the equestrian episode, Turpin's Ride to York, the mare Black Bess being quite up to her business.

PUBLIC HALL.—Gale and Polden's animated pictures, showing scenes of naval and military life in the King's service, are winning approbation here. The show is an exceptionally good one, and the hall is being crowded nightly.

LORD JOHN SANGER'S CIRCUS visited the town yesterday, and gave two performances.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—A special attraction here this week is Mr. Louis Calvert's Sunday company. Miss Emélie Polini as Sunday plays the part to perfection; Mr. William Lockhart, in the character of Towser, is irresistibly diverting; Mr. Sidney Rennef contributes a clever study of Davy; Mr. Cecil Yapps as Lively does full justice to the part; the character of Tom Oxley is ably taken by Mr. Ernest A. Douglas; Mr. Leonard Pagden makes a typical Colonel; Mr. G. Wallace Johnston as Arthur Brinthorpe is well suited to the rôle; Mr. Arthur Vezin's Jacky is admirable; and Miss Maimée Murray and Miss Muriel Pope add to the success.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company is appearing here this week in the historical drama entitled The Days of Cromwell. Ironhand, the avenger, is in the capable hands of Mr. Henry Bolding; a capital portrayal is that of Mr. Robertson-Foulis, who undertakes the part of Sir Marsden Mardyke; Mr. T. R. White leaves little to be desired as Shadrack Shadwell; and Mr. Hardy in the rôle of Matthew Mardyke is also deserving of mention. Miss Gertrude Gilman is a pleasing Ruby Avondale; Miss Annie Clunn is good as Betsy; as is Miss May Bracey in the part of Mrs. Shadwell.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple is presenting Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 company in the sensational domestic drama, At Midnight Chimes. Mr. Percy Maitland is sufficiently villainous as Luke Dezzard; Dave Stannard has a manly exponent in Mr. John Raymond; Mary Stannard, is excellently portrayed by Miss Mary Campbell; and Mr. Herbert Belmore is a capital Ezra Gamble; the Tat Spavvin, a railway porter, of Witty Wattie Walton is, needless to say, responsible for laughter, and the popular comedian is well supported by Miss Madge Beresford as Suzette. Among the other characters worthy of mention are Miss May A. Hart, as Zamora, a Hindu girl; Miss Ethel Denville, as Little Davy; and Mr. Robert Hope, as P.C. Tibbott. The company also includes Messrs. Leonard Dalrymple, John Swire, H. Simpson, Lionel Stocken, Arthur J. Sanders, and Maurice Cook.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Harry Pleon and company in their burlesque scena, entitled, P.C. Pudden, form the chief attraction here this week, and are making the fun fast and furious. On Thursday and Friday they were to present a domestic drama, The Folly of Being Too Sure; Cole and Rags, described as America's funniest jugglers, are both diverting and clever; Linton, as a rope equilibrist, is successful; Hallam and Stanton appear to advantage in an acceptable musical comedy sketch; Lily Hayes is a charming coon comedienne; Little Tim is certainly a quaint comedian; Harry Vardon, the golfing ventriloquist, is very amusing; and the Palace Bioscope contributes to a good all-round programme.

DONCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The attraction here for Race Week is Veronique, the charming light opera, being presented by Mr. George Dance's principal company. Miss Agnes Tandy received a gratifying recognition of her ability in the part of Agatha; Miss Edith Devonshire evoked the warmest approbation by her presentation of the Countess de Champ d'Azur; Miss Nellie Wigley was delightful in the title-rôle; Miss Maude Leonard made an interesting Aunt Benoit; and Mr. Ellis Holland was well placed as Mons. Coquenard.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Grand Theatre Company; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—There have been crowded houses at the Grand Theatre to witness Mr. G. P. Huntley's clever impersonation of Mr. Popple of Ippleton. It is a distinctly fine creation, quite original, and delightfully comic. Miss Millie Legarde was a fascinating picture as La Bolero, singing her songs with excellent intention and dancing with rare grace. Mr. Basil S. Foster makes a dashing Norman Popple; Platt, as enacted by that clever low comedy merchant, Mr. Charles M. Daly, was a quaint study. Miss Nellie Hodson was a piquant soubrette; her maid Louise was excellent. The two husbands were smartly represented by Mr. Sydney Young and Mr. James Stevenson; the wives charmingly played by Miss Katie Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt. Mr. FitzSimon made the most of his chances as the Hon. Kerr Buretta, and the other parts were in excellent hands. The scenery and appointments are quite adequate, and the business arrangements are in the clever hands of that well-known actor-singer and manager, Mr. Duncan Young.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Miss Mabel Love as the heroine of The Freedom of Suzanne has quite captured the Manx visitors. Her delicacy of style, the witchery of her presence, and the real sincerity of her acting got at all sorts of temperaments. Her success as dramatic artist is as great as her previous triumphs as a dancer. Mr. Percy Hutchinson is débonnaire as Charles Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstans makes Fitzroy Harding quite a gay dog; the Lora Datchet of Mr. J. Hastings Batson is diverting; Mr. Patrick Quill endows his rôle (Sir Horace Hatton) with an air of distinction. Miss Annie Stalman is really excellent as a grande dame; while Miss Violet Ley and Miss F. Turner play prettily as two society girls. Mr. Townshend Whitling and Mr. Richard Neville also do well. The comedy is beautifully staged, and Miss Mabel Love's dresses have caused much breaking of the Tenth Commandment in feminine hearts.

THE PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—Clever programmes have drawn large crowds to the Palace, despite the fact that it is nearly the end of the season. A complimentary benefit was tendered to Mr. Harry Wood on Tuesday, when all the variety talent in the island gave their services. This was a brilliant success, artistically and financially. It was in accordance with the eternal fitness of things that it should be so. Mr. Harry Wood is a clever musician, and is "persona grata" to residents and visitors alike. The turns are practically the same as last week, and they all secure the approval of the public. They include The Violas, White Mahatmas, Jennion's Fantoches, Miss Jessie Merrilees, Miss Jessie Barrie, and Mr. Phil Smith, all clever people, who gain applause. Messrs. Griffin and Dubois present a comedy acrobatic interlude, which is greeted with shrieks of laughter.

The season at Derby Castle will close to-night (Saturday) with a representation of the Manx Mhelliah, or Harvest-home. Mr. J. W. Rowley has proved an enormous hit at Derby Castle.

Mr. F. J. Connor had a splendid benefit at the Hippodrome on Wednesday. No place of amusement in Douglas has been more popular than Mr. F. J. Connor's establishment in Parade-street. Clever artists, a clean, bright show, in which everything works smoothly. The principal items this week are a burlesque, Bull Fight, and a pantomime absurdity, Love in a Tub. There are the expected ring turns, the clowns Gregory and Woffles cause the children to shriek with laughter, and the entire performance is delightful.

Mr. Frederick Buxton's Pierrots continue to attract with new songs, sketches, and japes.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter.—That the engagement this week of Mr. Norman V. Norman and company in a répertoire of popular plays is meeting with universal approval is amply testified by the large audiences. The Adventure of Lady Ursula, David Garrick, and Nell Gwynn are included in the week's programme. In the latter play Mr. Norman V. Norman makes an imposing figure as Charles II., and has many opportunities for the display of his talent. A capital rendering of Ralph Cursitor is given by Mr. Dennis W. Cleugh, whose gallant bearing has made a most favourable impression. One of the best-played parts is that of Lord Dellans, admirably acted by Mr. Norman Leslie, while Mr. Sam Wilkinson emphasises the villainies of Colonel Blood with good effect. Mr. Frances Hope acts with a dignity and earnestness that carry conviction the part of Adam Bareacres; Mr. Kenneth Bruce puts the necessary touch of light comedy to his impersonation of Lord Rochester; while a fine example of histrionic ability is shown by Mr. Howard Brenan's easy and delightfully natural performances in the small part of Lord Killigrew. As Nell Gwynn Miss Beatrice Wilson submits a really admirable piece of acting, the comedy and pathos being well contrasted and convincing; Miss Hilda Gregory portrays Lady Castlemain with great intensity and effect; and Miss Sybil Ruskin's conception of the character of Betty Arndale is particularly worthy of praise. Miss Letty Rushforth submits a clever sketch as the Duchess of Portsmouth, her song in the third act being warmly applauded. A clever little curtain-raiser entitled Cut Off With a Shilling precedes, in which Mr. Howard Brenan wins unqualified applause by his capital impersonation of Sam Gaythorne, Mr. Francis Hope appearing with success as Colonel Berners and Miss Francis Harmon making a captivating Kitty.

THE PAVILION, PROMENADE PIER.—Lessees, the Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter.—Owing to the great success of the Scarlet Mr. E.'s, that clever company of artists have been retained for another week. They have secured the services of Miss Lili Sharp, an admirable soprano, whose items are heartily applauded. Mr. Rafaewski proves himself a violinist and pianist of fine technique; Mr. Bingley Shaw's fine voice is admirably suited to the songs he selects, Mr. Percy Banning, an excellent female impersonator, causes much amusement; Mr. Vivien Vivien's character sketches are most welcome and appreciated; Mr. Hampden Gordon sings comedy songs with taste and skill; and Mr. Walter Dowling is a hardworking and mirth-provoking jester.

THE EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Empire Palace Co.; Secretary, Mr. Chas. P. Standfield, Manager, Mr. B. H. Harland; Musical Director, Mr. J. A. Groves.—The two-houses-a-night system has been adopted here, and bids fair to become most popular. Miss Jeannie Evans, comedienne, and Mr. Harry Wright, comedian, both interest and amuse; while Miss Peggy Fame wins all hearts by her clever songs and captivating ways. Nelson and Thomas appear in a comedy sketch; Miss Nellie Gannon has an excellent style and scores as a vocalist; and Fred Southern's sketch, Lost at Sea, is received with favour.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Arthur Collins's company in Hall Caine's melodrama, The Prodigal Son, attracted a large audience here on Monday night. Mr. Henry Renouf, who appeared as Magnus, although suffering from hoarseness, displayed considerable skill and ability; Mr. Norman Partriege filled the part of Oscar in clever style, and Miss Lily Hall Caine in the dual part presented an effective reading of Thora, and was also particularly good as Elin. Mr. Henry George acted admirably as the Governor-General; and as Oscar Neilson Mr. Fred Epitaux was all that could be desired. Miss Alma Murray was well suited in the rôle of Anna, and Miss Mima Renouf scored as Margaret Neilson.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Mr. Cyril Keightley and company opened here on Monday with Messrs. Harry and Edward Paulton's latest production, Miles Carew, Highwayman. Mr. Cyril Keightley appears with great success in the interesting rôle of Sir Miles Carew; his acting is most effective. Miss Haidee Gunn submits an artistic and delightful reading of the heroine, Ruth Beyfus; Miss Alice Arden gives a dignified portrayal of Lady Mallory, whose daughter Clara is cleverly presented by Miss Ethel Dane. Mr. Henry Crocker is an exceedingly good Jeremy Gollsheaf, and Miss Theresa Gregory acts admirably as Melissa Gollsheaf. Sir Henry Frawley is played with considerable ability by Mr. B. A. Pittar, and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy-Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—The Athos troupe of acrobats and ball manipulators are paying a welcome return visit here this week; Bert Woodward, the sensational cyclist, is once more amongst us; Pattie Bella, comedienne, is responsible for some witty songs; Arthur Boyne is a good turn, as also are Hal Chapter, and Carter and Gale. The Empire Pictures conclude an enjoyable programme.

DUMFRIES.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potte; Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—For three nights this week we are favoured with a visit of Mr. Brandon Thomas's London company in Charley's Aunt. Mr. Edmund Baker as Lord Fancourt Babberley kept the house merry all the evening; Mr. Sidney Lynne was well received as Jack Chesney; Mr. Frederick Tyrell gave a good rendering of Col. Sir Francis Chesney; and Mr. Basil Lynn was well placed as Charles Wykeman. Miss Katherine Vereker played the rôle of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez in a charming manner; and Miss Margaret Morean as Kitty Verdum and Miss Eva Boyne as Amy Spettigue acted with good taste.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. C. P. Levilly's company is appearing here this week in Amorelle and La Poupée. On Monday evening Amorelle was presented before a large and appreciative house. Miss Stella Gastelle as Amorelle is as charming and vivacious as ever, her singing all through being delightful; Miss Kitty Cavendish is a pretty and sympathetic Lesbia; Miss Avis Grahame is quaintly amusing as the amorous Marina; and Miss Mabel Fanchild as Jeanette is warmly encored for her smart and graceful dancing. Mr. W. H. Powell as Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow is very amusing, his humour and byplay being greatly appreciated; Mr. Fred Seymour as old Father Dotard is excellent; Mr. Frederick Hobbs as François acts admirably, and scores with his fine singing of the "Flirtation" song. Mr. Manfred Russell is particularly good as Jules; Mr. Wm. Griffen is satisfactory as the Count; and Mr. Vernon Reed makes a droll Mayor.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A capital programme is submitted here this week, the top-liner being the dashing Marie Collins, who scores in new songs; Florence Deighton, the charming double-voiced vocalist, who has now made quite a name for herself, proves one of the tit-bits of the bill, her delightful singing winning her rounds of applause. An historical sketch, entitled Prince Arthur, staged in two scenes, is one of the best seen here for a long time, the acting of Miss Ivy Millais as Prince Arthur and Mr. Herbert Wyndham as Hubert de Burgh being superb. Bob Hamilton, always a warm favourite here, scores a prodigious success; Marie Yorke, burlesque artist; Dan Noble and George Prince, comedians; and the Forest Comedy Company all contribute excellent turns; and the Bioscope, with several capital films, completes.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—An excellent bill is submitted this week, every turn meeting with the warmest approval. Charles F. Best, an extremely clever contortionist, is successful in his new comedy act, MacBunker, the Mountebank; the Farrows present their burlesque sketch, in which Harry has plenty of scope for the display of his noted quaintness; Kriss, ventriloquist and comedian, proves very entertaining; while the Brothers Allison amuse muchly with their patter and songs. Charles Howarth is decidedly clever in his "Cosmopolitan Club" song; and Bob Nicoll's impersonations of well-known singers are excellent. Spencer and Williams present an amusing dialogue; and Lilian Travellie is successful in her songs. Little Minnie Halford gets quite an ovation for her sweet singing.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. Charles H. Phelps's company is appearing here this week in the romantic drama, The Blind Foundling. Mr. Charles H. Phelps plays the leading part of Gerald Dalton with fine feeling and effect; while Miss Mabel Hall as the blind foundling is excellent. Several new pictures are displayed by the Empire Bioscope, and prove very acceptable.

Kinnaird Hall.—The United States of America Animated Picture Company conclude a very successful visit this week. The pictures are exceptionally good, and the entertainment has been enjoyed by large and appreciative audiences. Variety is lent to the proceedings by Ellis and Watts, comedians; and David Davis, mimic.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Mrs. Russ Whytal and her company are appearing here in Alice Sit by the Fire. As Mrs. Grey Mrs. Whytal fully appreciates and cleverly portrays all the varying moods of the mother, and her performance is well received; Miss Beatrice Bramah is a most appropriate and excellent Amy Grey; Miss Lucie Verrier succeeds admirably as Leonora; Miss Lilian Lake fills every corner of the part of Richardson; Miss Ada Marius is a capital and dignified Nurse; and Miss Ninon Dudley is a very good Fanny; excellent work is done by Mr. J. J. Bartlett as Colonel Grey; Mr. Claude King is a polished and delightfully natural Stephen Rollo; and Mr. A. W. Boscomb is a most effective and characteristic Cosmo Grey.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The continued run of musical plays here has met with gratifying success, and excellent business was done the first three nights of this week by Mr. George Dance's company, which appeared in The Country Girl. Miss Maisie Grey was a bright and smiling Nan; Miss Nancy Rossiter did good work as Marjory; Miss Winifred O'Connor is possessed of a fine voice, and she used it with telling effect as Princess Melaneh; Miss Addie Lennard's work was brimful of brightness and fun; she danced well, and was a capital Sophie. Miss Ada Crampton and Miss K. Ronayne were attractive representatives of Mrs. St. Quinton and Lady Anchester; and other pretty and clever ladies filled the remaining parts. Mr. Percy Carr pleased the audience very much as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. Charles Walenn as Barry did much and admirable work, and kept the house in continual laughter; Mr. St. John Hammond was a most distinct and individual Rajah of Bhong, and his topical song was well received; Mr. J. G. Graves was a good Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. Clifton Yates, whose make-up was admirable, was effective as Granfer. He gave a clever sketch of humorous senility; Mr. Herbert Robinson was the conductor. Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) is billed for the latter part of the week, in which Mr. Charles Macdona's company appears.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—As top of the bill Hardeen is proving an attraction, and his powerful work in breaking from fetters is astounding the audiences; Germaine is an expert conjurer and mystifier; Mr. Dan Thomas returns, to again become a favourite comedian; Miss Amy Clevere is quickly a favourite with her well-sung songs; Les Belles Americaines are once more well received for their smart work; Mr. H. E. High is no stranger to the town, and gives examples of agile work on skates; Snoball and Dolia thoroughly amuse in their turn; Miss Nellie Wilson sings and dances in a pleasing manner; and the Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

Devonshire Park Baths.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Miss Kellerman, the famous lady swimmer, is giving exhibitions here during the week, and on Friday she was advertised to attempt to break the record for the ladies' mile.

ECCLES.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—La Poupee is meeting with huge success here, Mr. Herbert Ralland's company doing full credit to this ever entertaining comic opera. Mr. Harry Brayne keeps the audience in constant mirth; Miss Mysie Devine makes a dainty Alesia; Mr. Walter Balfour an excellent Father Maxime; Mr. Arthur Cozens as Launcelot repeatedly receives marked approval for his singing; and Miss Edith Hunter impersonates Madame Hilarius capably.

EDINBURGH.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. J. W. Turner was greeted with great cordiality on Monday, when, after several years absence, he reappeared with his English opera company before an Edinburgh audience in Maritana. A thoroughly artistic performance was given of this popular work, and greatly enjoyed. As Don Cæsar, Mr. Turner has ever been heard and seen at his best, both as singer and actor; Miss Kitty Brownlees also sang and acted very charmingly as Maritana, and with Miss Jessie Dennis, as Lazarino, a well-deserved encore followed the duet in the last act. Mr. Sidney Clifford was excellent as the King; Mr. John Bidding successful in the exacting rôle of Don Jose; while Mr. R. Cummings and Miss Maud Esdale were very amusing in their old parts of the Marquis and Marchioness. The chorus and orchestra shared in the merits of the performance. The Lily of Killarney was enjoyably rendered on Tuesday evening, with Mr. Turner a good Miles, Miss Brownlees a captivating Lily, and Mr. Tom Griffiths a most acceptable Danny Mann. On Wednesday, the evergreen Bohemian Girl had its place in the week's programme, achieving its wonted success; and the répertoire has also included The Waterman, with the fourth act of Il Trovatore, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George T. Minshull.—The visit of Mr. Forbes Robertson is always a prominent feature in the Edinburgh theatrical season, and a crowded audience greeted the distinguished actor and his company on Monday, when they opened a six nights' engagement here. Hamlet was played on Monday and Tuesday, Mice and Men on Wednesday and Thursday, and The Merchant of Venice was billed for Friday and Saturday. Mr. Forbes Robertson's Hamlet has been recognised as one of the greatest impersonations of the part which the playgoers of this generation have seen. The qualities of grace, poetry, and passion, and the beautiful modulation of the voice—a lesson in the art of effective utterance—have never been more strikingly exhibited than on the present occasion. The actor was loudly recalled at the close of each act, and the enthusiasm at the conclusion of the play was so intense that Mr. Robertson had to bow his acknowledgments until the clamour of the audience called forth a speech of thanks for his reception. The Claudius of Mr. Ian Robertson was a rugged, effective performance, and Mr. Hylton Allen made a genuine success in the part of Horatio; Mr. Charles Langley handled the character of Polonius with much skill; and Mr. Vernon Steel showed a restrained power as Laertes; and Mr. Percy Rhodes was a stately ghost, delivering the speeches of the part with fine elocutionary effect. Great interest was displayed in the appearance of Miss Gertrude Elliott as Ophelia. The expectations of her admirers were fully realised. From beginning to end Miss Elliott invested the character with a charm and a depth of pathos seldom reached save by actresses of genius. Miss Adeline Bourne's performance of Gertrude abounded in many meritorious touches; and Miss Dorothy Paget was an admirable Player Queen. Mr. Charles Birby, as First Gravedigger; Mr. Walter Ringham, as First Player, and as Fortinbras; Mr. J. H. Beaumont, as Rosencrantz; and Mr. Frank Bickley, as Guildenstern, were among other members of the cast who showed dramatic excellence.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Fischer.—Mr. W. A. Brabner's interesting play Life's Sweetest Sins contains all the elements of intense melodrama, none of which are overlooked by Mr. T. Arthur Jones and his specially selected company. The talented actress Miss Marie Daventry appears to advantage as Doreen Rivers, the sorely tried heiress and orphan, who finds a staunch ally and friend in Fay Colbrooke, well impersonated by Miss Mary Ainslie. In the rôle of the hero, Harold Marston, Mr. T. Arthur Jones shows judicious restraint and reserve-power; and the heavy duties of the resourceful villain, Dr. Colbrooke, sit lightly on the shoulders of Mr. Oswald Douglas; while the two confederates, Edward Gray and Kimberley Coutts, are adequately represented by Mr. Clem Horlock and Mr. Robert Sawin; and Mr. Ernest Dare does praiseworthy work as Ernie Wodstone. Welcome comic relief is provided by Mr. Bertram Lee and Mr. Fred Stephens, as an old salt and a sergeant of police, and more prominently by Mr. Edgar Morgan and Miss Elsie Walton, as the indispensable funny serving-man and lady's maid. Minor parts are carefully filled, and some novel stage effects are presented with skill and ingenuity.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—A splendid programme here introduces Mr. T. E. Dunville, whose droll style evokes as much laughter as ever; Mr. James H. Jee gives a fearless thrilling performance on the single wire; the Smythson's comedy company are very amusing in their sketch, The Lie Alarm; Lambeth and Robinson are entertaining in their act, Scots Folks a-Wooin'; and Mr. Albert le Fre shows neatness and agility in his dancing; the Ten Genis prove themselves to be daring acrobats in their Risley turn; the Monte Myro Troupe give a laughable knockabout sketch; the Stella Troupe are clever dancers; and Miss Netta Star also dances herself into the good graces of the audience; Miss Flo D'Orville, comedienne; Mr. Charles Leonard Fletcher; and Messrs. Sandford and Lyons are also in the programme.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is appearing here this week in the Two Little Vagabonds. As Dick and Wally, the Misses Lucy Beaumont and Gladys Vernon respectively realised the pathos and quaintness of their parts in a manner which elicited the sympathies of the audience. Miss Valerie Crespin as Marion Thornton was excellent; and Miss Lillian Stewart's rendering of Barbara Scarth left nothing to be desired. Mr. Douglas Vigors as George Thornton portrayed his part in a finished manner; whilst Mr. Edward McLean ably depicted Captain Darville. Mr. Lionel Ellis as Bill Mullins and Miss Violet Vivian as Biddy were also good.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—The Duchess of Dantzic (Mr. Geo. Dance's company) filled the bill for the first three nights of the week, and was received with enthusiasm by crowded houses. Miss Blanche Lynd took the leading part of Sans Gêne, afterwards the Duchess of Dantzic, and in her acting displayed a remarkable versatility; as Napoleon Mr. Alfred Iberson looked and acted the part to perfection; Mr. Leonard F. Griffiths as François gave an intelligent interpretation of the part; as the sisters of Napoleon Miss Florence Smith and Miss Sophie Albutt were pretty in appearance and caustic of tongue; Miss Lilly Hildroe was a petite and graceful Renee; Miss Daisy Brent looked well as the Empress; and as Lisette Miss Hettie Ludlow was delightful. The part of Adhémar was well taken by Mr. Cecil W. Parke, who, along with Miss Hildroe, contributed a pretty duet. Mr. Arthur Ferriss, first as a pedlar and latterly as the Court milliner, displayed more than average ability as a comedian. Mr. W. W. Meadows was the musical director. On Thursday Mr. Jack Haddon's No. 1 company opened a three nights' engagement with the drama Under the Russian Flag.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company in Napoleon the Great. The title-rôle is played in a capable and convincing manner by Mr. Hugh Montgomery; Mr. Henry Earlesmere cleverly undertakes the part of Colonel Lavarennes; Paul Laczinska is well portrayed by Mr. Bartlett Garth; and Mr. Phil Harper as Colonel Jules Merrion is all that can be desired. Miss Leslie Warner plays the part of Marie Walewska to perfection, being ably assisted by Miss Maud Russell as Leonie Marboeuf.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company is here, under the direction of Mr. Chas. M. Julian in the drama, I Defy the World. Mr. Percy Ballard as Leon Darville takes the hero's part with excellent effect, his disguises and impersonations being really good; Mr. Charles Wilton is well suited to the part of the Count; Mr. Alfred Denning makes a capital General Delaporte; Laroche is ably presented by Mr. Chas. Conway; and André is well delineated by Mr. Arthur Chisholm; Mr. Chas. M. Julian is a good Samuel Wozzle; Miss Maud Lillian an amusing Marie Wozzle; Miss Rosalie Heath takes the part of Pauline Delaporte in a tasteful manner; and Miss Violet Crawford is capable as Blanche Darville.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Mr. Popple attracted large audiences here the first part of the week. Mr. Morris Harvey's depiction of Freddy Popple was intensely funny; Mr. Herbert Dickeson's Norman Popple was excellent; George Hennay and Henry Doring were safe in the hands of Mr. Augustin Symonds and Mr. Fred Allen; Mr. Tom May made a popular Platt; Miss Mamie Brickwell as La Bolero was extremely effective; Miss Lulu Louden as Louise played and sang well; Miss Claire Pridelle distinguished herself greatly as Violet Brinton; the disconsolate wives, Mrs. Doring and Mrs. Hennay, were well represented by Miss Louie Rene and Miss Stella St. Audrie respectively; and Mr. Herbert Hulcup rendered adequate support as Lord Downe. Mr. George Dance's company, in A Country Girl, was announced to appear the latter end of the week.

Victoria Pier.—Lessees, Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co., Ltd.; Local Manager, Mr. J. Fenton Walsh.—Messrs. Gandy and Inglefield obtain considerable appreciation; Mr. Fred Frampton, who is again heartily welcomed, sings as well as ever. On Wednesday Mr. J. Fenton Walsh was accorded a well-deserved benefit, several well-known artists being booked to appear. The illuminated outdoor fêtes are well patronised.

Leas Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. A. Sitter.—Miss Florence Venning, contralto, is the vocalist here this week; Miss Olive Fox is a smart little comedienne; Mr. Joseph Blashcheck gives a performance that finds favour; the Blue Salon Band and the animated pictures also contribute to the success.

Town Hall.—Lessee, Mr. E. J. Chadwick.—"The Follies" are billed to appear her on Friday and following night.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—Mlle. Florence's variety company appeared here for three nights last week. Abex, the miniature Hercules, gave a marvellous weight-lifting turn; Mlle. Florence introduced her clever globe walking and balancing feat; the Bendons were interesting entertainers; the rest of the company consisted of the Dana Girls (duettists), Alvar (gymnast), Harry Keeble (comedian), Polly Adula, Dale and Dargan (conjurors), and Bros. Arnold in a smart illusion.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General-Manager, Mr. Joe May.—Miss Lottie Lennox, who tops the bill here this week, is delighting large audiences with her amusing songs. A daring performance is submitted by the Cumberlands, cycling acrobats; the Bensley-Evans Sketch company, which includes Miss Olive Lanty, presents an amusing trifle entitled Sally's Dilemma; Flo Warner is a comedy vocalist of ability; the Sisters Charnley make a hit in song and dance; the Three Zaracs provide an enjoyable turn; the Ladderites give an athletic act of great merit; Spencer and Marks are a pair of excellent comedians; and Oliver Conroy, a quaint comedian, and Maud Esmond, burlesque artist, complete the programme.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The top line here is occupied by the Brothers Montague with an original statue act entitled A Sculptor's Dream. The Brothers Zampah, one-legged acrobats and jumpers, are decidedly clever; the Musical Keiths present a refined entertainment; the Sisters Desmond score as character duettists; Nancy Naine is a clever young comedienne; and Downey's pictures complete the bill.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—The Dear Homeland, the new drama by David Muskerry, is drawing good "houses" here this week. Mr. Charles O'Connor's depiction of Roy Trevelyan earns for him unstinted praise; Mr. Harold C. Macartney portrays the scheming scoundrel, Duncan Tremaine, with cleverness; Judd Harley receives excellent treatment at the hands of Mr. John Cullen; for a praiseworthy Father Gregory Mr. A. Traill is responsible; and Mr. Dick Seddon as Rory Burke supplies the comic element; Miss Violet Hammersley is a sweet and womanly Doreen Trevelyan; Miss Olive Fulton gets the most out of the part of Judith Tremaine; very amusing is Miss Cissie Summers as Molly Malone; and Miss Elsie Forster is successful as Little Nell. Trained children are seen in some pretty Cornish dances.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Bert Coote's company, in The Fatal Wedding, is paying a welcome return visit this week. Mr. Ernest Outtrim capably sustains the part of Howard Wilson; Mr. S. Herbert Humber plays well as Robert Curtis; Miss Gertrude Harrison is effective as Cora Williams; Miss Madge Haines is sweetly sympathetic as Mabel Wilson; Miss Marjorie Lawrence gives a pleasing performance as Jessie; Mr. George Waring scores as O'Reilly; Mr. Cyril Melton (Peter Schwartz), Mr. C. H. Hughes (Toto), and Miss Maud Locker (Bridget) keep the audience in a merry mood. In Act 3 specialities are given by Master E. Frisby, Miss Ethel Press, Master J. Grice (clog dancer), Miss Marjorie Lawrence, Misses Nora and Essie Herbert, Miss Hetty Kelly, and Miss Shirley Sparks.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—A successful return visit is being paid this week by Miss Montague Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company in the stirring melodrama, The Way of the World. Mr. H. Shardan, in the rôle of Cecil Montague, plays with much effect. Mr. Victor Gordon gives a powerful impersonation of the villain, Capt. Fred Slade; as Matthew Malyon Mr. C. Temple submits a masterly impersonation; Mr. A. Hammond as Horatio Bluff, and Mr. F. J. Edwards as Joe Sparrow, assisted by Miss Violette Vivienne as Polly Bell, keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mr. V. Charles is a capital Sir John Slade; and Mr. Pat Quinn is highly successful as Silas Montague. Miss Sidney Crowe submits a powerful delineation of the scheming Adela de la Roche; Miss Vivienne gives a clever performance as Mlle. Bellini; Miss Laura Deering is a charming Marion Fanshaw; Miss M. Fontaine deserves special mention for her excellent portrayal in the rôle of Kate Montague.

GRAVESEND.—New Public Hall and Theatre.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—Mr. Mouillot's Blue Moon company, under the able management of Mr. Gordon Starkey, was here on Monday night. In the rôle of Major Callabone, Mr. Victor Wallace was most successful; and Mr. A. Radcliff was good as Capt. Jack Ormsby; Mr. B. Mercer as Bobbie Scott was quite at home; and as Moolraj Mr. A. Burton proved a capital exponent. The Prince was well sustained by Mr. F. Inwood; and the Private Taylor of Mr. C. Stephenson evoked roars of laughter; he was capitally assisted by Miss May Audrey, who acted the character of Millicent with brightness and vivacity rarely seen; her singing and dancing were greatly applauded. Miss M. Glanbrane as Lady Babraham was dignified and natural; Miss D. Morgan as Evelyn was perfectly at ease and winsome in manner; and Mlle. M. Naudin as Chandra acquitted herself most ably. The last three nights of the previous week Mr. Charles Harrington's No 1 American Combination was here with Uncle Tom's Cabin. On Thursday and Friday of this week, Henry E. Leigh and his company appeared in The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers and Miss Josephine Ellis are starred, and take the principal parts.

Grand Theatres of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—A good company is here for the week. Two Errolls, comedy acrobats and marvellous leapers, convulse the audience with laughter; Lillith makes a return visit with her mystery of aerial flight, and is as perplexing as heretofore; Charles Lilburn, the man with many funniosities, has been well received; Lilian Warren, the favourite illustrated song artist, has given conclusive evidence of her popularity, her contribution, "A little boy called Taps," being voted excellent; Harding and Preston, comedy artists, have done well; and Gracie Lawn, comedienne and dancer, is bright and original. As a mimic, Lillian Elfreda is clever and painstaking.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. George Dance's No. 1 company is here this week with The Orchid. Mr. Bert Lloyd is exceedingly funny as the diminutive gardener, Meakin; Mr. Fred Thompson is most amusing as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. Harry Ray acts well and dances cleverly as Zaccary; Dr. Ronald Faussett is admirably depicted by Mr. Haddon Cave; Comte Raoul de Cassignat is a capital caricature by Mr. William Benson; and Mr. Aubrey Chesterton is successfully represented by Mr. Louis du Cane. Miss Mabel Sealby is charming as Lady Violet; Josephine Zaccary is prettily depicted by Miss May Fraser; Thisbe is brightly and daintily played by Miss Constance Hamilton; and Miss Florence Vie is excellent as Caroline Vokins, singing her songs with much spirit and humour.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—The Gay Parisienne, played by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, forms the attraction here for the week. Mr. Will Harman is an unquenchable source of amusement as Ebenezer Honeycombe; Mr. T. Gideon Warren depicts the truculent Major Fossdyke most successfully; Mr. Cliffold Seyler is an agile M. Pompier; Mr. Henry J. Barrett is excellent as Amos Dingle; and Tom Everleigh, Algernon P. Ducie, and Percy Tooting are capitally represented by Mr. Edgar Ashwyn, Mr. Dutton Nicholls, and Mr. Harry Bedbrook. Miss Evelyn Hughes is very bright and vivacious as the fascinating Parisienne, Julie Bonbon; Miss Madge Soutter is quaint and humorous as Ruth; and Mrs. Honeycombe and her daughter Nora are excellently represented by Miss Holford Beringer and Miss Ethel Ivimey. The Imperial Glee Singers contribute some well-sung quartettes.

Britannia Pier Pavilion.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The Eugene Family of gymnasts are playing here this week, and their excellent act and marvellous double pirouettes and double somersaults are loudly applauded. Charles Coborn, the eminent comedian, makes a welcome reappearance, and continues a great success; Miss Florence Somers sings pleasing songs in a winning manner; Miss Ruby Bignon, dainty barefooted dancer, gives a charming little turn; Charles Woodward, actor vocalist, is well received in some good songs—notably "Dreams"; and Miss Chummie La Mara, comedienne, finds favour for her dashing style. H. B. Houghton, "the human torpedo," continues his aquatic exhibitions from the Pier daily.

Wellington Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Carl Mysto creates quite a sensation each evening; and Mlle. La Tosca is greatly admired in her graceful poses. Other artists appearing are Gus Hindell, humorist; Ada Twibell, comedienne; Paul Courtney and company in Dolly's Dimple; Sergeant Mumford, wire walker; Ted Young, comedian; Helen Charles, society entertainer; Hall's Juveniles; Geo. Rapley, eccentric comedian; and Lynn, singing newsboy.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—The greatest attractions this week are Paul Cinquevalli in his wonderful juggling act; and Mendel, the marvellous blind pianist. Horton and Linder give a clever show on the triple bars; Miss Iona Ginnett and the Humels represent equestrianism in first-class style; Mlle. Florizel proves herself an expert contortionist; and Prof. Mann's troupe of performing dogs win loud applause.

Chappell's Concert Party.—The newcomers this week are the Brothers Esdale, most amusing novelty comedians; and Joe Cookson, ventriloquial cartoonist. Other artists, previously named, continue to please, and the concerted pieces by members of the company find favour with the large audiences who crowd the huge ring.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Bulwer's company is here this week with the drama Sentenced for Life. Mr. Edward E. Louis submits a finished piece of acting as Roy Stilwell; Captain Paul Derrick is excellently represented by Mr. Ernest Vaughan; the humorous element is well sustained by Mr. James F. Firth as Percy McGentle, and he is ably assisted by Messrs. Arthur Keand and Reg. Oldroyd, who play the parts of Bill Sharkey and Toby respectively; Mr. R. Brancepeth Neville gives a clever portrayal of Sir Wallace Stilwell; and Mr. Morris Maud does well as the Rev. Martin Orris. Miss Mary Dalby fills the rôle of Lady Stilwell in a way that leaves little to be desired, and Miss Madge Douglas appears to advantage as Adele Gray.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Helen Martin, soprano vocalist, is appearing here this week and is awarded a hearty reception. Other good turns are Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers; the Fred Cullane Trio, in a laughable comedietta entitled The Ladies' School; the Pender Troupe, in an act entitled Hands Off; Ruby and Laws, in a quick-change musical comedy sketch; the Continental Stilt Walkers; and Sam Thomson, Scotch comedian.

Pavilion Theatre.—Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The star turn here this week is the Deer Family, in an act entitled Indians of the Past, which is much appreciated; Fred Curran, vocalist; Ida Brophy, soubrette; the Sisters Salter, banjoists and dancers; the Great Vincent, table expert; the Solari Duo, vocalists and instrumentalists; Katie Marsh, vocalists and dancer; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the factory singing girls; and W. H. Downes, vocalist, are also in the bill.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The second visit of The Walls of Jericho has proved highly successful, Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company being admirably suited to the requirements of the play. Mr. A. E. Anson showed sterling ability as Jack Frobisher, his delineation of the Queensland pioneer being full of natural force. Miss May Taverner admirably realised the character of Lady Alethea; Mr. Alfred S. Barber is as good as ever as Frobisher's friend, Hankey Bannister; and as the match-making Marquis of Steventon Mr. Cecil Warde accomplishes good work. The polished man of fashion, Harry Dallas, finds a capable exponent in Mr. A. W. Tyrer. Miss Nona Wynne makes a particularly vivacious Lady Lucy, and mention may also be made of Miss Marguerite Cellier as Lady Westoby.

The Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. North.—A troupe of jugglers of exceptional skill has been seen in the Max Wessely combination. Their turn includes many humorous touches, besides smart business. John Grün Marx has given a wonderful display of weight-lifting, and interesting competitions have been held nightly in connection with his turn. Lillian has proved a clever cyclist; and Rosie Lloyd, a comedienne, has attained more than ordinary popularity. There was plenty of comedy in the programme provided by Tom E. Hughes, a comedian with good songs, and Collins and Rice. Other turns were Harold Hughman, an American mimic, and Ettie Vere, who gave a smart step-dance.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—There is no more popular comedienne with Palace audiences than Madge Grey. She is a charming artist in every way, and her Lancashire dialect is above reproach. Kiss Your Father is the title of an amusing sketch which occupied a prominent position in the programme. A capital acrobatic turn was given by the Three De Veres, and the Jansons gave a smart display on the trapeze. Johnny Walker was a comedian who scored greatly, and the remainder of the programme was provided by George Ripon, comedian; the Adderley Brothers, duettists; and the Four Sisters Godfrey, vocalists and dancers.

GUERNSEY.—St. Julian's Hall.—Lessee, Mr C. Robt. Perkins.—On Friday, the 7th, Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company presented The Freedom of Suzanne to a large audience. Miss Mabel Love's impersonation of Suzanne was simply delightful; Miss Annie Stalman cleverly embodied Lady Charlotte; Mr. Templer Powell gave an admirable portraiture of Charles Trevor; and Mr. F. G. Thurstans humorously hit off the peculiarities of Fitzroy Harding.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company is presenting The Midnight Wedding here. Mr. Alfred Paumier in the chivalrous character of Paul Valmar creates a good impression; Mr. Clinton Baddeley cannot be too highly praised for his acting as the treacherous captain, and he is adequately supported by Mr. Ulick Burke; Messrs. Jas. Page, Compton, and Spalding are the funmakers; Miss Annie Saker distinguishes herself; Miss Ada Champion is well placed as the barmaid.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Miss Lancashire, Limited is with us again. Miss Florence Baines as Mary Ellen is as amusing as ever. The farce is produced twice nightly.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison. — The Three Bounding Pattersons; Francis, juggler (with Alfred); Edna Latonne, a popular chorus vocalist; Clark and Glenney, in the Haunted House; Florence Zayman, sprightly coon delineator; Alma, the upside down marvel; and the Two Bostons form the company here.

HANLEY.—Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is paying a welcome return visit in Under Two Flags. Mr. Mark Blow is seen as Cecil Royellieu and Louis Victor, and his performance is worthy of the highest praise; Miss Mary Thorne is vivacious as Cigarette; Mr. Wellesley Draper is distinctly successful as Lord Rockingham; Mr. Alfred Wellesley as the valet contributes a vigorous reading; Colonel Chantery, the Black Hawk, is capably played by Mr. Arthur Elwyn; Princess Venetia Corona finds a worthy exponent in Miss Mabel Ormonde.

Grand, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwards.—Frank and Jen Latona head the bill this week in their sketch, The Tramp and the Slavey; Neil Kenyon is here, and his songs and patter are much appreciated; Tom Lloyd returns, and is, as usual, successful; Daisy Jerome is heard in a capital song, viz., "My Lady Vi"; the New Macs present an amusing turn; the Sisters Dowell dance admirably; Oakdene is seen in a novel ventriloquial entertainment, which is most diverting; the Bros. Durant in their acrobatic turn are excellent; the pictures are, as usual, capital.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of this week we had the annual visit of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company. They opened on Monday to a very large audience in The Housekeeper. Mrs. Kendal added to her long list of triumphs by her performance of Lady Audrey Whitley. She had excellent support from Mr. Kendal as Colonel Lionel Trent; Mr. Bassett Roe was good as Lord Runswick; and Mr. Edward Vaughan excellent as the young subaltern, Robert Sledmere. Mr. Metcalfe Wood (part author) appeared as Chippenham Berkley, and made the most of a somewhat colourless part. Mrs. A. B. Tapping was very amusing as Lady Robertson; Mr. Ernest Hendrie was well placed, and gave full point to his lines as William Hickson (a highly impossible person in such a social circle); Mrs. Rillington, the widow, had an able exponent in the person of Miss Dora Fellowes. Miss Marie Lohr made a pretty Cicely Blake, and Miss Moore Lane deserves a special word of praise for her performance as Mrs. Pennington Greene. For the last three nights Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company, in What the Butler Saw, filled the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The performance on the double bars given by the Sisters Geretti is undoubtedly taking premier honours this week; the lightning-like rapidity with which the work is done causes wonderment to all beholders. A Bit of Nonsense, played by Wilson and Waring, represents much wholesome fun, which is heartily enjoyed; Claremont and Victor go through a novel gymnastic act; Harry Briggs, the triple-voiced vocalist, has a good reception; and old favourites are Ethel Dove, exc fatest successes; the Two Anartos, in a funny duologue, "The Morning Mail"; Miss Florrie Gallimore, comedienne; and new pictures on the Biograph.

HULL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, in The Three Little Maids, is an attractive force at the Paragon-street house this week. Miss Cora Lingard, Miss Daisy Silverton, and Miss Eva Weigh find full scope for their powers in representing the three maids. Mr. Eric Barrington as M. de l'Orme proves the possession of a rich, musical voice; Mr. Victor Kerr contrives to make the irresponsible gilded youth, Lord Cheyne, a striking figure in the show. The Cupid of Mr. C. Caffrey adds to the general entertainment; the Gretchen of Miss Laura Wright is a diverting performance; Mr. Guy Williams is capable as Bryan Molyneux.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—A pleasant and acceptable novelty is that provided this week in the person of A Sweet Girl, a musical comedy, closely approaching light opera. The music, from the pen of Herr Heinrich Reinhardt, has a sense of solidity and sweetness combined which place it far above the ordinary. Mr. K. Ernest Irving controls the musical forces, and is responsible for some pleasing additions. Miss Claudia Lassell plays Lola with distinctive charm, her piquant Yankeeisms are quite fetching; Miss Alice Lethbridge as Fritzi Weyringer shows us that as an exponent of the terpsichorean art her position remains unchallenged, and thereby wins the good graces of the house; Leonard Russell's rich baritone voice is heard with pleasure in that style which he has made peculiarly his own; as a comedian, Mr. Fred Eastman is inimitable, his appearance is always a sure sign that during the time he holds the stage the house will be uproariously hilarious; Mr. Geo. De Lara is a humorous secretary; as Anthony Strauss, Mr. Algernon Newark is delightfully refreshing. It is safe to say that when The Sweet Girl reaches London the provincial good opinions will be endorsed.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—That highly successful play, The Village Blacksmith, is crowding this popular house nightly. Mr. Sam Livesey again enacts with considerable success the title-rôle, and meets with a very hearty reception.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Charles Whittle tops the bill in some excellent songs; he is a big favourite. The Two Bees appear in a new scena, The Man in the Moon, which is a big success; Frank and Alice Lurin, in a musical sketch, Cinders, gain much applause. Others contributing include Fred Land, Harry Walker, Raglus, and the Royal Temples.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Herbert Darnley's company top the bill in Skirmishing. Ella Retford's songs are much appreciated; Marba and Verity are very successful in their twirling antics; Kahn and Kahn give a good conjuring performance. Other artists include Hillman and Russell, who contribute some good singing, Bessie Butt, Dunning, and Malley and Brown.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Face at the Window is being played here this week by the company of Messrs. Armadale and Warren, the rôle of Paul Gouffet, a detective, being taken in a cool and deliberate way by Mr. T. W. Dunscombe; Miss Eugénie Magnus makes an admirable Marie de Brisson; Mr. Harry Douglas is capable as Lucian Cortier; Mr. George Phythian scores as Le Blanc, the mad doctor; hilarity is provoked by Mr. C. Alan Hineson, as Peter Pottlebury; he receiving excellent aid from Miss M. Leslie Cudd as Babette; as Jean Barbelon, Mr. F. C. Raphael is successful; and Miss Marie Tennant as La Pinau is also to the front; Mr. Lionel d'Aragon is a good representative of the Chevalier Lucio Delgado.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, M. Leonard Grey.—The Lord of the Last, a new musical comedy, has been presented here this week by Mr. Fred Paul's company. Miss Louise Tinsley was funny in the part of Mrs. Jones Jones; Mr. Harry C. Morton as Sir Harry was effervescent in a droll part; Mr. Forrester Harvey made an amusing dude; and Mr. Arthur Ricketts as Jackson, the valet, evoked mirth. Miss Pauline Hague was a fascinating lady cobbler.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Warsaw Brothers, in musical instrumental performances, are the star turn here. Other items include Will Poluski, jun., in a couple of droll songs; the Katos, whose marionette performances are much applauded; Charles E. Ernest, with imitations, both vocal and instrumental; Billy Farrell, coloured comedian and dancer; Downes and Langford, burlesque artists; Rosalie Jacobs, a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and the Arleys, with their performing dogs.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—This week's attraction is Mr. George Testo Sante's company with the powerful drama entitled The Life of a Showman. Mr. L. Darra gives a forcible portrayal of the part of Hendrick Marais, while Mr. E. Warden is quite at home as the Rev. Cyril Arliss; Mr. G. Richardson is good as Stickers; Mr. Geo. Testo Santo gives a very fine performance of the part of Brein Leader, and Mr. F. Sante scores as Tommy Allthere. Miss McNeill makes the most of the part of Agatha Winter, and Miss Grace Harlington is well placed as Angelina Mutton; Miss Warden is excellent as Lynette Leader; Mr. Fred Vaughan is admirable as Ned Chuckers, and Mr. Will Lindsey causes much amusement as Ben Tic-Tac. Some excellent specialities are introduced by various members of the company.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. Mouillot's company is paying a return visit here. On Monday the popular musical comedy, The Geisha, was received with acclamation. Mr. Edward Carlton assumed the part of Wun Hi, and his performance was laughable; Mr. Cyril Thompson as Reginald Fairfax sang well; Mr. Lionel Braham was amusing as the Marquis Imari; Mr. J. Mansell Stringer as Captain Katana has a good tenor voice; Miss Louie Collier was a most fascinating O Mimosa San; Miss Florrie Saunders acted the part of Molly Seymour in a coy and dainty manner; Miss Violet Kenyon as O Juliette Dinmante and Miss Aubrey Ashton as Lady Constance Wynn, were both good. On Thursday night, A Greek Slave was given.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Messrs. Poole's Myriorama is still here, and doing good business. Friday night was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency Major-General Hugh S. Gough, CB., Lieut.-Governor of Jersey.

TRIANGLE PARK.—Victor Stevens's Pierrots terminate their engagement here this week, and Mr. John Warren took his benefit last night (Friday), on which occasion he presented to each person occupying a reserved seat a copy of his book describing his adventures in Morocco.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; General-Manager, Mr. R. S. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Carson.—A warm reception was accorded the revival of The Trumpet Call on Monday by Mr. Chas. F. Cooke's company; Mr. Leonard Yorke proves himself a sufficiently gallant representative of Cuthbert Cuthbertson; Mr. Chas. F. Cooke scores heavily as the jovial Sergt. Major; Mr. Joe Bracewell as Prof. Ginnifer is a big favourite; Mr. John Dennys is well placed as Richard Featherstone; Mr. Freddie Bentley is a smart Tommy Dutton; Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill a charming Constance; and Miss Doris Gilham's Astrea deserves to be highly commended; Miss Phyllis B. French is very pleasing as Lavinia Ginnifer.

KENDAL.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Mr. Howard Cochrane presented first-class fare on Thursday, the 6th, and two succeeding evenings last week, in that charming comedy, The Marriage of Kitty. Miss Aida Jenoure in the title-rôle earned rounds of applause; Mr. Cochran as Sir Reginald Belsize, the husband of Kitty, acted in a most capable manner, and materially assisted in the success of the play. Miss Betty Castle, Mr. Cecil Wilford, and the other members of the company filled their various parts with satisfaction, and altogether the visit was a memorable one.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and his company presented The Manxman, the first half of the week, in good style. The scene of Acts 1 and 5 was especially artistic. Mr. Cross did every justice to his part of Pete, meriting the hearty applause meted out to him. He was ably supported by Miss Minnie Watersford as Kate Cregeen. Mr. Frank Liston as Philip Christian and Mr. James Dillon as Cæsar Cregeen were admirable. Miss Dorothy Duncan was particularly pleasing as Nancy, and Mr. Wm. Durham gave a good study of the smaller part of Tom the Postman.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Drama again occupied these boards on Monday night, Under the Russian Flag being the attraction. The rôles of Ivan and Michael Romanoff were in the capable hands of Mr. Cecil Melton and Mr. Edward Avinal, both of whom showed considerable skill and judgment in their respective parts; Mr. Jack Haddon was conspicuous as Demetrius; Mr. Fred Haming deserves special mention for his rendering of the lovesick Alexis; he was the source of much amusement; Mr. Hal Forde was a clever Peter; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh was a praisworthy Vera; and Miss Violet Lytton was successful as Ogarita, being at her best in the third act. Miss Marie Rayner as Luka and Mr. W. Wilson as the Colonel were also successful.

LANCASTER. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—Another attractive programme is arranged here, at the head of which are Yamamoto and Miss Koyoshi, Japanese equilibrists, who do some clever and daring feats; Hughes and Elliott, singers and dancers, win hearty applause; and Elton and Edwin play beautifully on the banjo. Chevalier Cliquot swallows watches, swords, and an electric lamp with consummate ease. The Lovelaces, American song illustrators; Warden, Reed, and company, in a duologue, Married or Photographed? and Charles Rowen, comedian, complete the bill.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—This theatre has re-opened for the season, and for the first three nights of this week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has been appearing in Mr. Comyns Carr's adaptation of Oliver Twist. Mr. Stanley Drewitt appeared with conspicuous success as Fagin; Miss Edith Anton Laing played with quiet strength as Nancy; and Mr. James Shea's Bill Sykes was a clever study of unrelieved blackguardism and brutality; Mr. Charlie Clark was well placed as that droll young scoroundel, the Artful Dodger; and Mr. W. H. Rotherham most successfully doubled the parts of Mr. Grimwig and Monks; Miss Dorothy Mayhew, as the sympathetic Rose Maylie was very good; and the Harry Maylie of Mr. Page Lawrence, the Oliver Twist of Miss Dorothy Marsden, and the Charlie Bates of Mr. R. C. Hunter also added considerably to the success. Miss Hettie Jefferies' company came on Thursday with The Curate.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—A Girl on the Stage, the new three-act piece founded on that other favourite The Little Cherub, is deservedly popular here. The "girl" is Miss Queenie Leighton, who as Molly Montrose, the actress, has a part which suits her admirably; she charms all with her delightful singing and untiring vivacity. Admirable assistance is given by Miss Fannie Dango and Miss Valli Valli as Lady Isabel and Lady Dorothy respectively. Boisterous humour is the keynote of Mr. Lennox Pawle's conception of the Earl, and his methods are thoroughly enjoyed; whilst as Shingle, the valet, that old favourite, Mr. John Humphries, evokes continual merriment, his two topical ditties proving quite the vocal hits of the evening. Mr. J. Robert Hale is very fine as the dashing young lover, Lord Congress; the quiet humour of Mr. Arthur Longley as a society dude is vastly enjoyed; Mr. Colin Coop displays unabated vocal and histrionic abilities as Alderman Briggs; and the smart eccentric dancing contributed by Mr. Nelson Keys in the page-boy's part is a popular feature.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A thrilling drama, The Executioner's Daughter, holds the boards here, and with strong situations and exciting incidents, made the most of by Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's company, is attracting good patronage. The two principal parts are those of the executioner, Monsieur Roche, and his charming daughter, and these are played in a style which leaves nothing to be desired by Mr. Stanley Radcliffe and Miss Nellie Howitt. Excellent support is given by the other members of the cast, of whom Mr. Juan d'Alberte, Mrs. Ruddell Brown, and Miss Bella Moody are particularly prominent for good work.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Seen for the first time in this city, the thrilling drama The Great Awakening is doing good business here, the authoress, Miss Maud Hildyard, bringing a good company. Miss Hildyard herself presents the central part of Lola Selby, and in it proves herself capable of intense and impressive acting. Mr. Charles Vivian gives a fine character study of James Selby; much excellent work is done by Mr. Bernard Copping in an arduous dual rôle; whilst the adventurer, Guy Rogan, has an effective counterpart in Mr. Charles E. Linney. Mr. Herbert Evelyn and Miss Doris Digby make a pleasing pair of young people in love; a welcome leaven of comedy is infused into Miss Isa Bellington's portrayal of Selina, the servant; and of the rest Mr. Willie Scott, Mr. Eric Dane, and Mr. Edwin Gordon give capital support.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The Ten Loonies have arrived here and their original entertainment, Dotty, is cleverly conceived and effectively presented. That excellent jester, Cruikshank, is also a strong line with comedy business. Ludwig Amann, the impersonator, is again posing with marvellous accuracy as historic celebrities; Cliffe introduces his wonderful canine companion, whose intelligence seems almost human; the Vivians are very popular with their musical interlude; the Di Pace Brothers are also doing well in the musical line; and the acrobatic eccentricities practised by Redmond Brothers are both clever and amusing. Jean Seul is presenting his entertainment of mystery with the usual success; whilst a couple of favourite vocalists, Sybil St. Elmo and Marion Scott, submit new items in clever style.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Arthur Roberts is on a welcome return visit to this popular hall, and with a clever company presents the comic episode, Where's the Count? to the invariable accompaniment of uncontrollable laughter. The expert juggling of B. Troba is an enjoyable feature; the vocal abilities of Stewart and Morgan are displayed in an effective Irish song-scena; Mabel Hind finds favour with an excellent Japanese vocal speciality; Emma Don's vocal and comedy team are doing well on original lines; Mlle. Kloet appears in a succession of pleasing and attractive poses; whilst Bayne and Hope present some capital dramatic acting in the rendering of a Napoleonic episode. Of comedians there are a clever pair in Johnny Danvers and Herbert Cyril; the Sisters St. Julian are prominent with clever song and dance; and the pictures complete an interesting programme.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A burlesque comedy sketch by the Waldrons is the leading feature of this week's bill, and, being uproariously funny, is much enjoyed. That clever comedian, Harry Conlin, is always a big success locally, and this week is no exception. Sterling and Love are doing well in a vocal and instrumental comedy act; Kendrick and Laura are also popular entertainers in a similar line; Lack and Ford display remarkable flexibility of form; the Ettenas are expert specialists on the rolling globes; Janet H. Reynolds sings sweet ballads in taking style; and Rosie Coleman, comedienne and dancer, also makes a successful appearance.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's excellent company in The Eternal City is the attraction here this week. Miss Sara de Groot as Donna Roma Valonna creates an excellent impression; as the Baron Bonelli Mr. D. Lewin Mannering is fully equal to the requirements of the character; Mr. Henry Deas deserves high praise as David Rossi; and as the Pope Mr. J. Fortescue is a success. Mr. W. O'Flynn is excellent as Bruno Rocco.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The boards here are held this week by Mr. Vivian Grantham's No. 1 company in the new romantic drama, Held in Bondage, which is well dressed and staged. Mr. Charles Stirling is very good as Ivan Dronski; as Prince Mazaroff Mr. Richard Vane makes a good impression; Miss Florence Tyrrell plays with distinction as Zara; Mr. George Child is capital as Sir John Hawthorne; and Mr. Cecil Vernon Proctor is well suited as Paul. Mr. George Scully is amusing and popular as Harry Dunn, and Miss Maude Merrick makes a vivacious Lizette. Miss Joan Pereira is very successful as the Baroness Augusta Valinski.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Mr. George Robey, who is aptly programmed as "president of the laugh trust," again succeeds in keeping everyone in a continual roar of merriment. At the other end of the bill is Ethel Hayden, a charming vocalist, who receives a warm welcome for her well-rendered songs. Nipper Lupino Lane, a remarkably smart and versatile youngster, is scoring a thoroughly well-deserved success; Carabet's dogs are put through a performance which reflects the highest credit on their trainer; and Peppo's monkeys also do well. The Lupino Brothers, one as a clever instrumentalist and the other as an animal impersonator, give a popular and amusing show; Fox and Melville, in illustrated songs, are very good; Chas. Pastor, eccentric singer, creates hearty laughter; Billy Hobbs is a capital coon singer and dancer; and the American Bioscope remains an entertaining feature.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapsworth.—The principal attraction this week is Vay's Juveniles in the new comedy scena, Life in the Slums, which proves thoroughly entertaining. T. B. Fayme, comedian, scores his usual success; a special feature of the programme is Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, which is depicting in sixteen tableaux "The Miner's Daughter." Wat Tyler, character vocalist, is well received; the Two Palmers are capital comedy duettists; Mark Merritt is an excellent character vocalist; and Jenny Lynwood, comedienne, is also entertaining.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby. — The pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is being played here this week by a company of juveniles, organised by Mr. and Mrs. J. Walters. Miss Gerty McQueen makes a good principal boy, her singing being appreciated; Miss Fanny Adamson is a charming Maid Marian; as the babes, Miss Kitty Chester and Baby Blyth are exceedingly clever; Mr. A. Benson is a capital Dame Flossie; Mr. E. Thirlway is successful as the Baron; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson evoke roars of laughter as the two bold, bad men.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—A good entertainment is being given by Farren's Royal Pierrot Minstrels. Mr. Arthur Farren is a capital humorist, his songs and sketches being admired; Taylor Snowball and Charlie Leybourne contribute comic songs that please the audience; Miss Eva Barlow, soprano, is loudly encored for her fine singing; Messrs. Smith and Travis, illustrated songsters, are good, and the animated pictures excellent.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. Frank Thorne's strong play, Her One Great Sin, affords Miss Blanche St. Albans, in the rôle of Grace Warhurst, good opportunities for the display of her gifts as an emotional actress; and the villainous Squire Thornhill, who lures the erring wife from husband and child, is well portrayed by Mr. J. Leicester Jackson Mr. J. Beresford Innes makes a favourable impression by his impersonation of Reuben Warhurst; Miss Maudie Lambert plays naturally as the child, Gracie Warhurst; Miss Phyllis Damian gives an artistic picture of Charlie, the flowerseller; and the character of a disreputable tinker and his wife are realistically rendered by Mr. Charles E. Lambert and Miss Louie Walton. Jack Hundle is made a very promising youth in the hands of Mr. Harold B. Ford; and Messrs. J. Nella, J. Crondace, Tom Pollard, and C. Dale do good work as Mr. Benton, Ben Barkley, Robert Brown, and a friendly policeman. Mr. Fred Hodson as Jerry Jumble and Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy Winpenny are responsible for the fun of the piece, and the production is well staged.

LEVEN. — TOWN HALL. — On Monday the Hall was open for the benefit of Mr. J. Hamilton Urquhart, who has made himself very popular here during the summer season. The first part of the entertainment consisted of varieties, supplied by Mr. Cunningham, baritone; Mr. Traynor, song and dance; Mr. J. H. Urquhart, elocutionist; the O'Donnell Boys, song and dance; and Sphinx and Sphinx, who gave a capital conjuring turn. The most interesting item of the evening was the sketch, Oh! that Major! written by the beneficiaire, and produced for the first time.

LLANDUDNO.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—Mr. E. Lockwood and Mr. R. Crosman's company is here in Sergeant Brue. In the title-rôle, Mr. Arthur Reynolds is excellent; Mr. E. Percy Rogers is Michael Brue, and his singing and dancing are much admired; Mr. Cecil Hood as Inspector Gorringe is good; Mr. Charles Simms scores as Mr. Crank; Mr. Charles McLagan in the part of Crookie Scrubbs is effective; Miss Hebe Bliss as Lady Bickenhall is seen to advantage; and Miss Mary Hay's songs are well rendered.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lesse and Manager, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—A Mother's Love was played for three nights at this theatre before good audiences. As Paul Wingate Mr. Arthur Mervyn was telling; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle as Geoffrey Mannering, the villain, acted with effect; Mr. Fred Connynghame, in the part of Mat Ruddock fairly convulsed the audience; as Winnie Wingate Miss Rosa Mervyn was pathetic, and ably sustained a difficult part; Ellaline Mervin was an admirable portrayal by Miss Shirley Darton; whilst Miss Holly Haslewood gave a capital performance of Marjorie Wingate. On Thursday, Dare-Devil Dorothy was presented.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Wm. J. Miller and company are here in The Reign of Terror. Mr. Miller plays the part of Robespierre in a most powerful and effective manner; Miss Ethel Lanyan-Maude as Victorine D'Almonte renders capital aid; Mr. Roy Milton in the part of Captain de Lisle is very good, and merits much praise; Mr. Frank Fuller as the Comte de Roqueforte is also capital; Miss Kathleen Maude Davies is a charming Marguerite de Roqueforte; and Miss Eva Norman is a capable and merry Peppitta.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon. — Mr. Bannister Howard's company is appearing here this week in Florodora. As Anthony Tweedlepunch Mr. Alf. E. Passmore is delightful, and is a favourtie with the audience; Mr. Stanley White is a clever Cyrus Gilfain, and Mr. Allan Morris makes a good Frank Abercoed; As Dolores Miss Josephine Sullivan is decidedly successful; Miss Lily Gullick enters with great spirit into the part of Angela Gilfain; and as Lady Holyrood Miss Kate Leicester is capital.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Another capital attraction here is the first presentment of Mr. Geo. Dance's clever company in The Little Michus. Mr. Foster Courtenay gives a really amusing interpretation of General des Ifs; and the little Michus are played by Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Ethel Bryan, both of whom are warmly commended. Mr. W. Everard makes a manly Gaston Riguad; Mr. Leon Simkin as Pierre Michu gives an amusing sketch, being ably supported by Miss Florence Hylton as Madame Michu. Mr. Robt. C. Harcourt is well placed as Aristide Vert, and Mr. Gilbert Child as Bagnolet is capital throughout. Mlle. Marjorie is a clever dancer. Lady Madcap came on Thursday.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. H. Gatley.—Mr. Charles Carte and company opened here on Monday in the drama, A Noble Brother. Mr. Charles Carte as Jerry gave a finished impersonation; Miss Doris Brookes was charming as the fascinating Nana; Mr. Frank Lyndon as Henry Towers submitted a vigorous portrayal; Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin as Jack Elsworth was seen to advantage. Miss Rosie Conroy was a sprightly Rosie Rapid, and Mr. Michael Madden as Larry was well received. Mr. Howard Thorne gave a meritorious study of the part of Colonel Leigh, and Miss Alice Ballard as the colonel's wife was particularly good.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Under the local direction of Messrs. G. W. Bowes and Henry Chattell Two Little Vagabonds was played here on the 8th, the title-rôles being well performed by Miss Dorothy Hart and Miss Josie Beltram; Captain Darville was capably represented by Mr. Ernest Stidwell and George Thornton by Mr. Norman A. Overton; Miss Evelyn Shaw and Miss Violet Agnew acted well as Marion Thornton and Barbara Scarth.

PAVILION PLEASURE GROUNDS. — Proprietor, Mr. George Jude. — The weather lasting out well the al fresco concerts by the Pavilion Cadets are continued with success. Benefit performances for Mr. Gus Daniels, the popular manager, and Miss Adelaide Twort, the charming ballad singer, have been well patronised. Miss Gertie Lovedale was announced to take a benefit on Thursday.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The Cook's Guest, presented by the Collinson Combination, is at the head of the bill this week. Luigo's Sextette Serenaders, in Naples by Night, give a popular and clever act; the Three Cape Girls are smart dancers; Miss Kate Traill submits an entertaining turn at the piano; and Kate Gourlay, dancer; Phinas and Aida, gymnasts, together with Langton and Lane (who did not appear on the night of our visit), complete the programme.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive-Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company have been here this week with the highly-amusing play Public Opinion. Miss Nancy Beresford plays with humour as Pansy Bligh; Mr. Charles Harley does exceedingly well as Spencer Troughton, C.B.; and Miss Emma Hutchison is seen to advantage as Lady Diana Caldershaw. Other characters are well portrayed.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The week's programme includes Pat Rafferty, Hibernian comedian; Harry Taft, the whistling comedian; Little Dando, the droll miniature comedian; the Gotham Quartette, on a return visit; Carden and Price, operatic vocal duettists; Alice Maydue, comedienne; and the Wartenburg Brothers, foot-juggling experts; the pictures, as usual, are interesting and amusing.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is providing a strong attraction here this week with The Temptress. Mr. Weldon Atherstone presents a powerful representation of Lucas Denbigh, and a capital performance of Philip Welford is given by Mr. Wallace Campbell; Pedro Gonzales is ably portrayed by Mr. Fred H. Constable; Mr. Claude Ashworth is well suited as Sir Oswald Fordyce, and Mr. C. Taunton Fulford scores as Allan Dale; Mr. William P. Sheer's Bob Tanner is full of humour, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Allan Carruthers as Francis Fitzfluke. Miss Grace Jones acts with skill as Marion Fordyce, and Miss Effie Bartlett presents a clever study of the character of Madge Denbigh; and Miss Lydia Donovan gives a forcible reading of the part of Stella, Lady Fordyce.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Wilson, head and hand equilibrist, tops a lengthy list of talent, which includes Steeley and Dowton, in their burlesque interlude; Olla Podrida, Les Bruns (in a double juggling act), Rosie Lemaire (descriptive vocalist), the Irenes (novel equilibrists), and Theodore Jones and company in their vocal scena, Jack Sheppard. The Biograph pictures are a distinctly pleasing feature.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. F. Brooke Warren's company is appearing here this week in Mysteries of the Thames. Mr. Andrew Money gives a thoughtful rendering of Richard Brandon; the impersonation of Capt. Denbigh by Mr. F. Brooke Warren is full of power and dramatic force; Mr. Gilbert Hall plays capably the rôle of Jack Hammond; Mr. Leonard Montgomery (Bill Bosco) and Mr. Dan Hardie (Peter Waggles) present capital character studies; Miss Gwyn Warren skilfully interprets the dual rôle of Helen Price and Grace Rochdale; Miss Marie Ramiez is graceful and sympathetic as Kate Brandon; while Miss Violet Leal is a charming child actress as Little Doris.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—The production of the new musical comedy After the Ball attracts large audiences here this week. The comedy is written by Mr. Chas. Carey, whose own company is presenting it. A good deal of the success of the piece is due to Mr. Algernon Lee as Haliwell Menit. The choleric old colonel is well taken by Mr. Percy Baverstock, and some laughter is caused by Mr. Buckstone Clair (the author of the lyrics) as the colonel's servant. The colonel's daughter is well taken by Miss M. Sadie, who with winning ways, a pretty face, and a sweet voice admirably fulfils all requirements.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy and company is this week presenting here the Russian drama In Holy (?) Russia. Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy acts with considerable force as Renee Rubinoff, and Micky Nolan is drolly interpreted by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—A delightful vocal entertainment is provided here this week by the Serenaders; Gertie Gitana scores a success in her latest songs; and a pleasing turn is provided by Chanti in a transformation novelty. Thomas Finglas gives a first-class coon turn, and a ventriloquist of a high order is Lieutenant Travis. Hector and Paulos are clever comedy acrobats; and Milner Verren, vocalist, does well. Other turns are provided by Trick and Trixie, comedy artists, and the Biograph.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alfred Graham.—Carrie Laurie's "Kindergarten" heads the bill here. Barrington, who plays the piano while standing on his head, is well received, and J. P. Leng, mimic, does well. Joe Almasio and his servant provide an excellent juggling entertainment, and Otto and Olga are first-rate comedy artists and instrumentalists. Among others appearing are the Sisters Walmsley, the Lavelle Brothers, and Earle and Melville.

MORECAMBE. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—During the week Miss Annie Hughes has paid a first visit to Morecambe in Arthur Law's charming comedy, A Country Mouse, and has delighted her audience with a clever interpretation of the part of Angela Muir. Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison have sent a capital company on tour with the piece, the cast including Mr. Chas. Esdale, as Archibald Vyse, a part in which he does very well; Mr. Evelyn Vernon, as the Duke of St. Kitt's, which is played with many delicate touches; Mr. Thos. A. Braidon, as Lord Robert; Mr. William Calvert, excellent as John Bowlby; Mr. John E. Watson, the clever Jephcat of the piece; Miss Moyra Creegan, charming as Lady Silvia; Miss Frances Davie, a pleasing Violet Aynsley; and Miss Ida Laurie, all that could be desired as Mrs. Cooper. The evening's enjoyment is enhanced by the presentation of the successful one-act play, A Bit of Old Chelsea, in which Miss Hughes is so admirable as Saucers.

WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson. —That excellent musical turn, the Zerbinis, are heading the bill here this week, and their clever business with various musical instruments is much appreciated; H. Pawson is exceptionally smart as a conjurer, chapeaugraphic artist, rag picture maker, &c; and the Sisters Lyle are charming duettists and dancers; Guy Rider whistles wonderfully well; the Zenary Bros., have an excellent acrobatic act; and the Greys introduce some standard ballads; Garden's quintette of dancers and vocalists are very acceptable, their work with the bagpipes being capital; and Rappo and Ella prove themselves particularly smart equilibrists.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—Manager, Alderman John Gardener.—At this popular house Alderman Gardener has put on a good programme, topped by the Cleveland Burlesque Company, in their tumbling, dancing, and comedy juggling; Nada Moret is a clever character singer and patterer, and proves herself a distinctive feature of the bill; the Bollingers produce original designs with coloured rags; and Loudon Cameron delights, for a second week, all with his conjuring; the Saletos, head and hand balancers, are clever; and funny is the comedy of Sandes and Vincent; Correze and Keith are specially retained, and present some striking things in the juggling line; Percy Johnson is a comedian who always pleases his audience.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager, Mr. E. Hill.—Arthur G. Hart's excellent troupe of pierrots provide an entertainment which is considerably appreciated.

WEST END PIER.—Secretary, Mr. J. Bastow.—Herr Wilhelm Morgann's Blue Hungarian Band concludes a season's engagement to-morrow (Sunday) night, and have proved themselves quite a feature of the Morecambe season. During the week Miss Joan Ashley, the contralto, has delighted the audience with her singing.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company is this week appearing in The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Chas. Burdon is good as James Iderwick; Mr. George Beverley is a satisfactory Jack O'Malley; and Mr. Edwin Clarke does excellent work as Huntley Mason. Mr. Horace Stanley furnishes some smart comedy work, as also does Mr. A. E. Francis. Bessie Leigh is sweetly played by Miss Elsie Capell; and Miss Josephine Lee is capital in the small part of Olive Combes. Miss Evelyn M. Walton as the elderly spinster is extremely funny; Miss Kate Kilpuch is also a prominent figure in the comedy scenes.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—This week Mr. C. Watson Mill presents his new romantic drama, A Warning to Women. Mr. Mill does some remarkably fine work as Dr. Marcus Dread. Mr. Howell Travis gives a clever impersonation of Shaun the minstrel; Mr. Norman B. Cannon is successful as Fergus NcNaughton; Mr. H. Carter Slaughter shows ability as Lord Eversleigh; Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Kennion gives an excellent interpretation of an Irish squire; Mr. Harold M. Meeres is good as Rev. Emanuel Wallace; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy is amusing as Mike McQuade. Miss Rosalind Tate is responsible for an admirable study of Moira Kennion; Miss Emma Barton is to be congratulated on her part of Shella Kennion; Miss Ellen Beverley scores well in the rôle of the wise woman, Molly O'Moore; Miss Edith Rutland is good as the cripple boy, Myles O'Moore. Mr. W.

refined, are accorded a warm reception; Colby and May are old favourites; Lily May's impersonation of the doll is clever, and she ably assists the ventriloquist in a most entertaining show; the Brothers Lang introduce burlesque business that is laughable; Billy Tucker gives a good exhibition in ball punching; and Ernie Mayne is a comedian that attains instant popularity; Hanvaar and Lee are diverting in their scene, The Golfer and the Maid; Bouverie Pleydell is an exceptionally good step dancer; and the Three Albions, novelty musicians, complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—This week Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux have brought Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company here in Alfred Sutro's play, The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Herbert Bunston gives a highly finished impersonation of Jack Frobisher, and is well supported by Miss Florence Jackson, who plays the part of Lady Alethea Frobisher with a depth of feeling that is worthy of the highest praise. Mr. George A. Brandram gives a masterly performance of Hankey Bannister; Mr. Cyril Baleine is excellent as the Marquis of Steventon; and Mr. Sydney Hamilton submits a capable rendering of Harry Dallas. Miss Lydia Busch is a sympathetic Lady Westerby; Miss Molly Carton acts charmingly as Lady Lucy Derenham; and other parts are well played by Miss Edith Cuthbert, Miss Rita Milman, and Mr. Alexander Cassy.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager Mr. Tom A. Evans.—Mr. George Brooks is the top of the bill here this week, and his comic songs have taken immensely; Onda and Leon, comedy bar performers, are clever and amusing; the Bohemians are good instrumentalists, the lady being a charming piccolo player; Ada Spencer, "The Girl from the Hat Shop," combines vocalism with piano playing and clever dancing; H. J. Kisbey, in his speciality gains great applause; Miss Grace Langley's contributions are highly popular; Miss Ida Nicholson is responsible for a pretty song and dance; and some excellent pictures complete a well varied programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company, with A Gambler's Daughter, is attracting good houses here this week. Mr. Robert Ayrton gives a capital impersonation of Desmond O'Dare; Mr. Frank Hudspeth is good as Solomon Solomons; Mr. Richard Pitt makes an effective John Grant; Mr. Victor Millard is a satisfactory Jack Grant; Mr. Milton Curtis does well as Captain Stanhope; and Mr. Martin Sands gives a capable portrayal of Ralph Gillman. In the dual character of Mildred Grant and Marian Grant, Miss Adria Hill scores a well-deserved success; Miss Harriett Loydall makes the most of her opportunities as Auntie Zeb; Miss Lizzie Ford is pleasing as Carmen Sancho; and the remaining parts are well sustained.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Gus Barra, the eccentric musical motorist, is the star here, and is accorded a hearty reception. Another very acceptable turn is that provided by Gorman's Juveniles, who introduce an enjoyable act; Messrs. Trick and Trixie, musical and comedy artists, have had a hearty greeting; the Two Dawns, speciality dancers, are well received; and the Monckton, speciality artists; Mr. Fred Villiers, refined comedian; and the Bio-Photoscope all meet with favour.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—This week a strong variety company has been engaged. The star turn here is Mlle. Florence, whose performances on the rolling globe borders on the marvellous; another great attraction is Abex, a miniature Hercules; the Arnold Brothers are clever with their illusions; Miss Polly Adula sings and dances in a dainty manner; Hoozee, in a ventriloquial sketch, earns well-merited applause; and the Bendons, society entertainers, give a refined entertainment.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company, Ltd., with a full company of 70, is here this week. On Monday evening Tannhäuser was rendered in a masterly way. Mr. Charles Carter, in the title-rôle, sang magnificently, and had a hearty reception; Mr. Geo. Neilson as Herman was excellent, and Mr. A. James as Biterolf, Mr. G. Rhodes as Heinrich, Mr. L. Alexander as Reinmar, and Mr. R. Brookes as Walther were excellent in their respective parts. Miss Enriqueta Chrichton as Elizabeth was charming in her acting and exquisitely so in her singing; Miss Lucy Lever as Venus deserves every praise; and Miss Keighley as a young shepherd was good. The chorus was most efficient, and Mr. Harrison proved a capable conductor. On Tuesday Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana and Leoncavallo's Pagliacci were given, both pieces being admirably rendered. On Wednesday Faust was billed, and the title-rôle was represented by Mr. Seth Hughes. Mr. Charles Manners was admirable as Mephistopheles and Miss Ethel Cadman charming as Marguerite. On Thursday the ever-favourite Bohemian Girl is announced, and on Friday Carmen, in which Mlle. Zelie de Lussan appears as Carmen.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The programme is full of fun this week, and heading the bill is Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company in the amusing comedy sketch entitled The Battle of the Belles. Horace Wheatley is immensely humorous as an Irish comedian, whilst Lawrence Barclay, an eccentric, is highly successful; Ernie Myers, in his songs and patter, is a capital turn, and Lily Lonsdale's charming songs are much appreciated; Winona and King give an expert and grand turn in shooting; Hector and Sultan, comedy acrobats, are good, and the Hippo Bio completes the entertainment.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Dorothy o' the Hall, presented by Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry, is attracting large and enthusiastic audiences. The visits of this famous pair of players is always looked forward to with pleasure, and on the present occasion their welcome is as warm as ever. Messrs. Kester and Major have provided them in this romantic costume play parts which enable them to display to the full their unique and well-developed talents. As Dorothy Vernon, Miss Neilson is by turns calm and stormy, playful and serious, and always charming; whilst Mr. Terry, whose manly figure and handsome face are well suited by the costume of the period, is exactly suited to the rôle of Sir John Manners. They are supported by a well-selected company, many of whom are old favourites here. Mr. Horace Hodges as Perkin the jester imparts sufficient whimsicality to his performance, and withal admirably suggests the faithful family retainer. Miss Mary Mackenzie is a good Jenny Faxton; whilst Miss Clair Pauncefort acts the part of Lady Vernon in good style. Mr. Frederick Groves makes the most of his few opportunities as Earl of Rutland; whilst in the thankless part of Sir Malcolm Vernon Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw achieves no little success. Mr. J. Carter-Edwards is well suited by his deliberate action and delivery to the part of Sir George Vernon; while the dignified bearing of Mr. D. J. Williams is just the necessary qualification for the rôle of Cecil, Lord Burleigh. The two Queens are represented by Miss Miriam Lewes and Miss Lilias Waldegrave in a very capable manner; whilst Miss Marion Sterling makes a good Bess. Mr. Malcolm Cherry, Mr. W. A. Haines, and Messrs. Walter Edwin, George Dudley, and Ernest Imeson, complete the cast.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—The American actor, Mr. Junius Booth, is paying his first visit to Nottingham in Monte Cristo. As Edmond Dantes, Mr. Booth has a part which enables him to use to the utmost his wonderful histrionic gifts, and from the first he became a great favourite with the large audiences attracted. He is surrounded by a well-selected and evenly-balanced company. Mr. E. H. Templeton essays with great success the rôle of Mortier; and Mr. J. Bowermann is altogether at home as Danglars. Mr. C. W. Crowe makes the most of his part of Morcef; and Mr. Walter Huron satisfactorily impersonates the King's Attorney. Miss Claire Elstob is charming in the rôle of Mercedes; and Mr. Leonard Marshall as her son Albert is commendable. Mr. J. W. Braithwaite and Miss Emma Robberds as Caderousse and his wife are exceedingly gruesome, and thoroughly succeed in two difficult rôles; Miss Doris White is well suited in the part of Sophie Danglars; and Mr. Walter Martin deserves a word of praise for his clever acting as the Abbé Faria. Mr. Sam Elton, Mr. W. A. Helyer, Mr. J. Collinson, Mr. Sydney White, and Miss Alice West complete the cast, and all do well in their respective parts.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—The animated pictures which, with the illustrated songs of Mr. Lester King, baritone vocalist, have proved so attractive, are being continued this week.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Bella and Bijou, the dainty pair of society entertainers, occupy the place of honour in this week's bill, and are proving as attractive as ever; Henry Cot and Prince Colibri, the French giant and Russian midget, are a very interesting turn, the comparison between the two being marked; Harris and Worth are a pair of comical fellows who have a great fund of mirth at their command; and Harry Grey is among the front rank of whimsical singers and dancers; Gertrude Bradshaw has a beautiful soprano voice, which she well knows how to use; and Daisy Dormer is really delightful and dainty. The Bisera Troupe of lady musicians look charming, and their performance is excellent, and deserves every commendation. Abdy's canine circus is a performance well worth seeing; and the perfection in the art of bird-training is surely reached by Madame Marvelle. Spry and Monti present a new sketch which bristles with humour, and out of which they extract every possible point. The programme is brought to an end by some very telling singing by Mr. Frank Darwin, an actor-vocalist of extraordinary merit.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Messrs. Polini and Melford have sent a capital company in the favourite drama, The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Davis plays the part of Wilfred Denver with power, and Miss Daisy Scudamore gives a touching portrayal of Nellie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George sustains his old part of Jaikes in his usual well-finished style; and Mr. L. St. John Lowther scores as the villain, Captain Skinner. Miss Flossie Hale Daviss and Master Douglas Thomas are capital as the children, Cissy and Ned; Miss Dorothy Radford makes the most of the part of Olive Skinner; Henry Corket is well played by Mr. A. Hornby Warburton, as is the Elijah Combe of Mr. Arthur Wright. Mr. Byrom Pedley makes a capital Detective Baxter; Mr. Warriss Lindon is Cripps, and Mr. P. Redmayne is Fred Selwyn.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Messrs. J. B. Shinton and A. Greenwood are paying a return visit with their powerful drama, The Price of Her Soul, and a strong company has been selected to play it. Mr. John B. Shinton portrays Lord Rolf Mandeville, V.C., in a manly fashion; and Major Skoboloff is ably represented by Mr. Annesley Hely, and General Lanovitz is played by Mr. Archie Gear. Mr. Fred White is good as Zouroff; Mr. George Marriott, jun., does well as the Hon. Algy, as does Mr. Sydney Ross as Captain Jack Lawton. Miss Ada M. Ryder renders the part of Countess Inez Steinmetz in a capital manner, and Miss Mona Grey is excellent as Lavonitz. Miss Ida Thompson is good as Vera, and Miss Ada Arnott scores as Lady Jemima Fraser. Mr. Will Percy as Pat Murphy is responsible for the humorous element, and he is ably assisted by Miss Tina Frank as Polly Perkins.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—The Romany King, an operatic episode, heads the bill this week, in which Lempriere Pringle and J. C. Piddock are well received, assisted by Miss Beatrice Edwardes and Mr. M. Williams. Alice Raymond, lady cornettist and bugler, has had a good reception, along with John Kurkamp, conductor and vocalist. Tom Woottwell is also well applauded. The Narrow Brothers are a smart pair of comedy cyclists; Adele Lincoln is a good comedienne and dancer; and the Morton Trio in comedy and vocalism do well. Conan and Doyle, comedians, cause roars of laughter; and Bert Byrne, light comique, is a capital mimic. The "Prospectors" shown by the Royal Dottoscope, concludes an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Wally's Comedy Jugglers, at the top of the bill, provide an excellent turn. La Belle Nello, at the other end, is a capital contortionist, and the Three Coopers have a good pathetic song scena. Annie Casey is a smart comedienne, and Jack Martin, actor-vocalist, has a flattering reception. Charles Chard is an old favourite here, and Vasey and Ramsey have a neat dancing act. Charles Stevens, character vocalist, also appears, and the Dottoscope presents the great bull fight with success.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Once again the popular play The Sign of the Cross is here, the company being that of Mr. William Greet, which is capably managed by Mr. W. A. McNeill. Marcus is impersonated with consummate skill by Mr. Frank E. Petley, his portrayal all through being strikingly realistic; Miss Marie Leonhard plays Mercia in a charmingly sweet and sympathetic mood, which speedily wins the favour of the house; a characteristic study of Nero is furnished by Mr. C. Yorke; very effective are the portrayals submitted by Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus and Mr. J. Weatherall as Licinius; Glabrio is enacted by Mr. Frank Wood with much humour and conspicuous ability; Mr. Harry Jones plays creditably as the effeminate Philodemus; and commendable work is done by Mr. H. Thurston Harris as Servillius, Mr. Roy Cushing as Strabo, and Mr. E. Yaldwin as Viturius. Favius is excellently embodied by Mr. Walter Fleet; Mr. Geo. Stanton acquits himself well as Titus; as does also Mr. R. Chapman as Melos; and great praise is due to Miss Effie Dane for her natural and earnest portrayal of Stephanus. As Berenice Miss Gertrude Price proves herself to be an actress of ability; Miss Cissie Carlton is excellently adapted to the part of Dacia; Poppœa is commendably sustained by Miss Mary Newcombe; and Miss Jessica Thorne displays ability in her interpretation of Ancaria.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Deluo Fritz.—Heading the programme here this week is Angeline, dancing juggler, this lady performing the cannon ball act à la Cinquevalli. Other capital turns are given by Steve Buckingham, vocal comedian and dancer; Zowan, in a comedy scene; Chester and Lee's Marionettes; Bandoni, the one-man band; Little Lizzie Lever, transformation dancer; Norman Mills, actor-vocalist; and Marie de Paso, lightning clay modeller.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The Corporation.—W. F. Frame, the well-known and popular Scottish humorist, had a rousing reception on his appearance here on Saturday evening. The "Man You Know" was as entertaining as ever, and caused abundant laughter by his ludicrous songs and interludes. Supporting him were Miss Helen Andrews, contralto; Mr. Walter Thompson, tenor; Jack Chambers, coon singer and dancer; Mons. De Li, magician; Baroni and Kemp, protean artistes; Cambo, the musical man monkey; and Prof. Hulbert, ventriloquist.

PENTRE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Mr. H. F. Housden and company are here with A Woman's Past. Mr. J. Myron Haward's impersonation of David Heath is exceedingly effective; Mr. David Phillips gives a capital portrayal of Frank Dellauncy; Dr. Clement Harper is in the capable hands of Mr. H. F. Housden; and Mr. Clifton Earl, in the rôle of Uriah Craven, leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Irene Carrington's admirable interpretation of the part of Clara Darell is cordially received; and the performance of Miss Dorothy Wallace as Bessie deserves praise.

PENZANCE.—ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr. Albert Chevalier has paid one of his very welcome visits here this week, and, as usual, drew a large and distinguished audience. The second half of the programme was occupied by the farce, entitled The Goose with the Golden Eggs, in which Mr. Chevalier was ably supported by a clever company. Immediately following Mr. Chevalier's visit, the Chas. W. Poole's myriorama opened here for a fortnight's season. Chief among the historical events is a fine set depicting the Battle of Trafalgar. The Urban Bioscope projects some of the most interesting films ever seen locally. The remarkably strong variety combination includes Little Dorretta, a clever acrobatic dancer; Miss Daisy Graham, with a well-trained group of birds; Miss Kitty Woodford, with a canine circus; Messrs. Leonard and Mac, side walk comedians and patterers; the Avondale Quartette in their humorous sketch, entitled Harmony at One a.m.; Mr. Harry Stewart, with his clever protean act; and Mr. Wm. Stewart and Mr. Alfred Leonard, who act alternately as guides. The capital orchestra is under the direction of Mr. A. S. Morrell.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The successful Scottish musical play, A Trip to the Highlands, is being acted here this week under the direction of Mr. Harry Fischer, and is proving as popular as ever. A full chorus of Gibson Girls, with a Midget Troupe of dancers, Highland pipers, &c., are all very effective. Mr. Wal Croft as the MacMutchkin, and Mr. Joseph S. Montague in the rôle of Timmins, give amusing portrayals of their parts; Mr. Wellesley Smith's impersonation of Viscount Lackington is excellent; and Mr. Gus Wheatman is equally successful as Sir Septimus Brown Windsor; Mr. Frank Barclay acts the rôle of the Hon. Frederick Lackington with great credit; and Mr. Arthur Poole scores as the detective, Dexter. Miss Maisie Ellinger becomes an early favourite, and is heartily applauded throughout as Miss Araminta Brown Windsor. Two other favourites who receive a due share of recognition are Miss Millie Engler as Miss Winnie Brown Windsor and Miss Kitty Clinton as Fanny Flounce; Miss Lilian Nevill Davies evinces marked capability in the trying rôle of Flora MacMutchkin; Misses Nan Dowling and Kathleen Naughton are successfully placed in the rôles of Charley Chatterton and Miss Lottie Langley; while Miss Hilda Blanche is prominent as the leading Gibson Girl.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—The first visit of The Earl and the Girl drew a crowded house on Monday, when the audience thoroughly appreciated the efforts of Mr. William Greet's capable company in this amusing comedy. Mr. Alfred Donohoe won hearty applause for his humorous portrayal of Jim Cheese; Mr. Thomas Kennard made the most of his opportunities as Dick Wargrave; and Mr. Leslie Owen was seen to advantage as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Miss May Yates acquitted herself admirably as Elphin Haye; Miss Ida Stratham made a bright and winsome Daisy Fallowfield; Liza Shoddam was cleverly represented by Miss Lena Hicks; Miss Winnie Plumpton's Miss Virginia Bliss was well played; and able support was given by Mr. Greville Hayes (A. Bunker Bliss), Mr. Sam Lysons (Mr. Talk), and Miss Kathleen Gerrard (Mrs. Shimmering Black).

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. A. W. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order, by Mr. George Alexander's company, is precisely the kind of play to appeal to a cultured audience. Mr. Frank Fenton was a great success as the tactical yet kindly Hilary Jesson; Miss Auriol Lee received rapturous applause for her effective treatment of the difficult part of Nina; Mr. Cyril Harcourt as Filmer Jesson, M.P., was distinctly good; Mr. Adam Alexander as Sir Daniel Ridgeley represented a class continually met with in everyday life; and Mr. Charles Tyrel undertook the somewhat distasteful rôle of Major Maurewarde with a correct measure of reserve. As Pryce Ridgeley, Mr. George Silver made an ideal prig; Mrs. Kemmis, as the adamantine Lady Ridgeley, to whom caste is everything, was lifelike in the extreme; Miss Audrey Campbell as Geraldine Ridgeley, was an austere and frigid spinster; and Miss Carman Woods deserves great commendation for her interpretation of the precocious infant, Derek Jesson.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—This week's production, entitled The Way Women Love, abounds in sensational incident with a judicious interpolation of comedy. Mr. Edward Lloyd ably sustains his established reputation as Captain Howard Tremain; Mr. Alfred Brandon as Leslie Lamont makes a very good villain; Miss Ethel Kay as Lady Violet Tremain treats the audience to a fine exposition of emotional acting; Miss Beatrice Whitney is an ideal adventuress; and Mr. Tommy Gough as Dick Palmer infuses plenty of merriment into the performance.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—The Rich and Poor of London naturally forms a strong attraction in a democratic town. Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite, a hospital nurse, gives a sympathetic rendering of the part; Mr. Sidney Dench as Spider Jack, a one-hand man, contributes some acceptable songs; Mr. Graham Arthurs makes an eminently professional Dr. Leonard Thornton; and Mr. Cole Aspinall is a satisfactory stage lawyer. Other members of the company are Mr. F. Danner, Miss M. Bedford, and Master B. Dench.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—A programme of very good all-round merit is submitted. Lade Henderson opens the ball with a fine military song and catchy chorus; Barney Vox is a first-class ventriloquist, and creates plenty of fun with his dummies; Belle Braham pays a return visit with her illustrated picture songs; King and Benson, whose accent betrays their American nationality, have a very breezy item; Harry Wenburn, comedian, gives a couple of songs which go well; Alice Pierce, the principal turn, submits some really clever imitations of leading actresses, notably Miss Lena Ashwell and Miss Ellaline Terriss; Verno and Voyce are a pair of acceptable vocalists; and the Four Herberts and Vernon's pictures complete an interesting programme.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. J. Higson.—Mr. Bert Dalmar and party (The Comets) provide an evening's entertainment that would satisfy the most critical. Mr. Harry Payne is a comedian of first-rate ability; Mr. Bert Dalmar is seen in some smart sketches; Miss Florence Elliott makes good use of her rich, well-toned voice; Miss Cissie Harcourt is warmly applauded for her song, "Single and Married"; Mr. Charles Cardle is an excellent baritone; and Mr. Arthur Stafford is an efficient accompanist.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Redecorated and renovated throughout, this popular Rhondda house attracts large crowds nightly. This week Messrs. C. M. Polini and Austen Melford's company is appearing in The Silver King. Mr. Herbert Ford is the "King," and plays the part with his accustomed force; Jaikes finds an able exponent in Mr. Tom Paulton; Mr. Charles Baird is a subtle Spider, and Mr. Harry Osman gives a clever character-sketch of Coombes. Miss Victoria Addison is a sympathetic Nellie Denver.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—Heading the bill is the famous Lizette Troupe of Lady Acrobats, who are exceedingly clever; the Three Pirmans in their novelty pantomime act, entitled Dans Le Jardia, score a success; Charles Bu-vae, the happy Dutchman, with concertina, is well received; the Swift Trio, in their unique bicycle act, give a creditable performance; Elsie Rubina, wire dancer, is much admired; Nipper Antea, boy comedian and mimic, makes a big hit; Miss Evie Hamilton, soubrette and dancer, is also very good; Lambert and Glover, in their original farcical duologue, My Birthday, are responsible for considerable amusement. The pictures shown on the American Bioscope this week are specially good.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—D'Oyly Carte's principal répertoire opera company, under the direction of Mr. F. A. Leon, opened here on Monday evening, when was presented The Mikado, Mr. C. H. Workman playing Ko-ko with all his well-known skill and ability. Mr. Billington gave an excellent and imposing rendering as Pooh-Bah; Nanki-Poo was ably taken by Mr. Pacie Ripple; Mr. Albert Kavanagh sang well, and was a commanding Mikado; and Mr. Leicester Tunks was excellent as Pish-Tush. Miss Theresa Rassam portrayed Katisha with much cleverness and artistic feeling; Miss Hope Hastings scored a great success as Yum-Yum; and Miss Mabel Burnege as Pitti-Sing, Miss Bessell Adams, as Peep-Bo, were admirable. The week's programme includes The Yeoman of the Guard, The Gondoliers, H.M.S. Pinafore, Trial by Jury, Iolanthe, and Patience.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company in the successful drama, The Girl Who Lost her Character, is playing here this week, and drawing excellent houses; Miss Evelyn Clyde, as Molly Vernon gives a well-balanced and telling embodiment of the wronged girl; Miss Lydie Mannington submits a powerful impersonation as Marian Franklyn; Rose Seymour is effectively portrayed by Miss Ethel Brucewell; Mr. C. W. Standins, in the dual rôles of Jack England and Private Johnson, is an ideal soldier hero, playing with quiet earnestness that scores well; Captain Geoffrey Caversham is ably sustained by Mr. Frank Adair, who cleverly depicts the cold-blooded callousness of the character; Mr. Edwin J. Colling is altogether manly and convincing as the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch is very humorous, and is well assisted in the fun by Miss Midge Meynard as Lucy Vere.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—An attractive bill for the week is offered to the patrons of this hall. Alf Gibson, vocal comedian, with a quaint unemotional manner, is much liked; the Four Jumels, in their musical acts have had a good reception; Zasma is a clever gymnast; Minnie Wren is a smart and versatile comedienne; Martine and Son, with illustrated song act, are very popular; Brown and Kelly company, in the screaming farce, What the Butler Knows, create roars of laughter; Picott and Lizette, magical pantomimists, in illusionary extravaganza, The Crazy Cook, do some very smart tricks in sensational style. Other excellent turns are submitted by Flo. Carlow, soubrette; Jolly and Neilson, in a musical melange; and Payne's Bioscope.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Geo. Dance's No. 1 company holds the boards here this week on a welcome return visit with The Country Girl. Geoffrey Challoner has a genial representative in Mr. John M. Hay, who sings with great expression; Mr. J. F. Rooney, who bears himself well as the Rajah, gains numerous encores for his songs; Mr. Coningsby Brierley's genuinely funny acting, singing, and nimble dancing in the rôle of Barry evoke hearty laughter and applause; Mr. Arthur Jackson as Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. Chas. Stafford as Douglas Verity; and Mr. H. A. Mather as Granfer Mummery, capably fill their respective parts. Marjory Joy is pleasingly impersonated by Miss Barbara Babington, who sings delightfully; Miss E. Desborough is an attractive Princess Melaneh, her excellent vocalism being fully appreciated; Miss Cissie Sephton is gay and sprightly as Madame Sophie; and a captivating portrayal of Nan is given by Miss Ellaline Thorne.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Fred Darcy and Mr. Fred J. Little's company is here this week in On the Stroke of Twelve. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle deserves great credit for his portrayal of Jack Rutledge; Miss Beatrice Moore plays the part of Doris Rutledge sympathetically; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt ably sustains the difficult rôle of James Horton; Miss Nellie Moore makes a charming and vivacious Jess Bainbridge; Mr. Fred J. Little as Jasper is a clever negro impersonator; Mr. Will Bass causes much merriment as Pat Cathill; Miss Madge Laverton well deserves her success in the rôle of Marie Bergerre; Mr. Syd T. Russell merits great praise for his rendering of Moses Levi; Mr. Fred Guinness is to be congratulated on his delineation of George Bainbridge; and Mr. Fred Herne shows dramatic ability in the rôle of Henry Rutledge.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—A Beautiful Criminal, by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. F. C. Somerfield, is the drama here this week. Miss Dagmar, in the title-rôle, and Mr. F. C. Somerfield, as Will Maynard, do full justice to their respective parts; Mr. Roy Fortescue is creditable in the dual rôle of Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon; Mr. T. G. Vane as Leonard Vimbart is a typical dude; and Mr. Alec. Findlater as Harold Kingston is also good. Miss Clara Santley is effective as the prude Rosini; Miss Amy Naughten as Florette de Vere is a fine dancer; Miss Lallah Shelton as Lily Lorimer is satisfactory; and Miss Molly Monaghan as Janet depicts a good type of Lancashire mother; Mr. Willie Barrett as Peter Miles is responsible for much laughter.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee, Mr. Jules Richeux.—At this playhouse during the past week the bill has been a double one. For the first three nights Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company appeared in the rollicking farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers was in great form as Professor Septimus Storey, and Mr. Edward Chester in the rôle of Theocritus Ward Sparkleton gave a capital portrayal. Messrs. R. Harley West and Roy Barraclough finely impersonated the two undergraduates, George Barker and Albert Perrin; Mr. Frank Lilliput elicited repeated applause for his performance as Runyard; Miss Nellie Parker Dent capitally portrayed the sour mother-in-law of the Professor, Mrs. Barker; Miss Beatrice Egerton was quite successful as the Professor's daughter Maud; and Miss Nellie Beacon was seen to much advantage in the character of Eva Stoney. As Gaye Sparkleton, the 'Varsity Belle, Miss Josephine Ellis was really charming, and received on each evening hearty and well-deserved applause. The play embraces several bright musical numbers, and is very smartly dressed. For the remaining portion of the week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company produced the ever-welcome Florodora, and signs were not wanting to suggest that the booking was a popular one.

SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—This week the Ian Maclaren Shakespearean Repertoire company have been delighting audiences with really artistic performances of the works of the Bard of Avon. Hamlet was on the bill on Monday, Mr. Maclaren giving a remarkably fine rendering of the part of the melancholy Dane; Miss Gertrude Gilbert was an excellent Ophelia; and the other parts are skilfully sustained. On Tuesday As You Like It was the attraction, Mr. Maclaren filling the rôle of Orlando with marked effect; Miss Gilbert represented Celia with charm of manner; Miss E. Coleman did well as Rosalind; Mr. E. Landor as Touchstone, and Mr. G. Bryant as Jacques were quite at home in their respective parts. On Wednesday Othello was admirably staged and acted, followed by The Merchant of Venice on Thursday and Twelfth Night on Friday.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur De Frece.—Messrs. Knowles and Garside's company appeared here on Monday with A London Fireman, which was warmly received. As Hal Curtis, the son, Mr. J. Forbes Knowles gave a capital impresonation; and Mr. Oliver Birrell as Viscount Fleming was well placed; Mr. Edward L. Garside as Ratty was decidedly clever, his acting in the last act being particularly fine. As Countess Fleming, Miss Nellie Waddington gave a thoroughly good impersonation; Miss Florence M. Daly was equally successful as Grace Curtis; and Miss Nellie Shirley was an acceptable Ida Curtis; Mr. Harry C. Momber was a really clever Nixey Stinger, his comicalities greatly amusing the audience; whilst Miss Nellie Garside, as Polly Bramble, proved an equally good comedienne.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Baron H. Harriss is this week presenting the popular American musical comedy, The Prince of Pilsen, for the first time in Reading. The company numbers over fifty performers, and is of all-round excellence.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Treadgold.—Edescope and Barnum's animated pictures opened here on Monday. There is also a good variety company, including Sands and Vincent, in a comedy act; Martin Hope, pierrot comedian; Miss May, ballad vocalist; Loder Lyons, Irish entertainer and ventriloquist; Mlle. Pardoe, comedienne and dancer; and Otto Ethardo, juggler.

RHYL.—QUEEN'S PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Howard Lees.—Friday, the 7th inst., was set apart for the annual benefit of Mr. J. W. Collinson, the musical director of the Palace, who was presented with a gold-mounted pipe by the members of the orchestra. Several artists appeared, including the Three Whirligigs, eccentric dancers; Sisters Brooklands, duettists; the Ladderites; Takio, Japanese mimic; the Three Zaracs, W. H. Atkinson, Collin Smith, Baby Hilda, Madame Annie Goodwin, Tom Stuart, Jack Macdermott, Forshaw Kershaw, and Austin Mahony. Heading a capital bill this week are the Schaffer Troupe, who give a clever athletic display. Anthony submits his wonderful entertainment, consisting of illusions, &c.; Cissie Curlette is a delightful vocalist and mimic; Brady and Johnson and other artists complete the bill.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—This week we have here Kennedy Allen, a comedian with a quaint style, who has a fund of smart patter; Tom Stuart's sketches from Dickens are a strong feature in the programme; Little Jennie Hartley, comedienne, delights everyone with her singing and dancing; Clifford Morgan sings his songs with much feeling and effect; a gratifying reception is given to Jack Macdermott nightly for his bright and catchy songs; and Forshaw Kershaw's musical monologues are greatly appreciated.

One of the favourite entertainments in Rhyl are E. H. William's Merrie Men, who each day perform to large crowds of people. Mr. Williams has brought a capital troupe to the town. Among the favourites are Charlie Drew, Reggie Lloyd, Dan Clifford, Andy Kerr, Barry Gilmore, and Frank Fox.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's Juvenile Musical Comedy Company in Beauty and the Beast is the attraction here this week. The performance is highly creditable to the youthful artists, and finds much favour with the audience. Wee George Wood is an especial favourite; his recitations and quaint mannerisms cause much laughter. Specialities by the Marguerita Quartette of Dancers, Miss Edie Cam, bâton swinger, and a barefooted dance by 10 children are given with success.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—The bill of fare here this week is most attractive. The Zaros, acrobats, submit a clever display of tumbling and balancing; Tom White's Arabs, including Pimple, are highly entertaining; Carr and Rose (in a "Domestic Episode"), Flo Chevalier (vocalist), Knots (contortionist), Grant and Allen (comedians), Geo. Bletcher (boy artist), and Vernon's Bioscope complete the list.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Good houses are the rule here this week. The Carina Sisters, tastefully attired, delight the house in their refined and artistic musical mélange; the Three Seymours, in their equilibristic juggling act, are great favourites; Harry Mayville, tenor vocalist; the Gregson Comedy Trio in The Dummy; Maud Clifton, vocalist and comedienne; the Three Henriques, comedy acrobats; Frank Whiteley, character-comedian, and the Empire Bioscope make up a most entertaining programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here this week with the play A Girl's Cross Roads, and is receiving well-deserved support. Mr. Char great vocal ability. Capt. Devereux, with his well-trained dogs, is here for another week. Aldro Luke's imitation of a monkey is excellent; the Paulo Brothers, comedians, make a palpable hit by their quaint drollery. The names of Blamey and Kennard, Charles Grantley, Dene and Dawson, Mill May, and Theresa also appear on the programme.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Geo. Zalva.—Barney, Burke, and Bray do an excellent spectacular turn here, entitled From London to Madrid. The Avolos supply a unique and engrossing act with perpendicular poles; Claude Ohmy, with his equestrian feats, delights the audience; Miss Ernestina Rosa gives excellent representations of statuary, and wins warm applause; Harry Frisky engages in a variety of sporting antics during his juggling turn; Agnes and Arthur Lynch, song illustrators, contribute a fine and popular performance; Chloe Convere and her cake walk horse is still a favourite; and the Bioscope supplies a series of up-to-date pictures.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan. — Mr. Samuel James's company is appearing here this week in the well-known drama It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. Beresford Whitcombe gives a powerful reading of Tom Robinson, and George Fielding is dramatically portrayed by Mr. Leonard Lawrence; William Fielding is adequately personated by Mr. Percy Ronald; Mr. Edwin Wilde presents an earnest and convincing embodiment of the Rev. Francis Eden; Mr. James May appears as Peter Cranley, and Mr. Osmond Fairfax as Isaac Levi. The two villains are strongly represented by Mr. Jackson Hayes as Mr. Meadows and Mr. George Claremont as Mr. Hawes. Mr. Chas. J. Forster is a satisfactory Mr. Merton and Mr. Johnny Leoni does well as Jacky; Josephs is pathetically played by Miss Hettie Graham; and Susan Merton is in the capable hands of Miss May Saker.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—No Man's Land is the attraction here this week, the drama being presented by Miss Ida Millais' company under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne. Harry Oaklands is effectively treated by Mr. Herne; Mr. Frank Deniss ably depicts the villainy of Silas Moore; and Mat Marsden is capably sketched by Mr. A. G. Leighton. Mr. Wm. Mallalieu is humorous as Dr. Buxton; and Mr. Newton Pearce as Solomon is also successful in his efforts to please. Miss Ida Millais plays Mary Bathurst in good style; Mrs. Poodle is cleverly sketched by Mrs. Mallalieu; and Bessie is well played by Miss Nancy Mitchell. The sensational dive into real water is smartly carried out.

SHEERNESS. — THE PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil. Reymond.—Another excellent company occupies the boards here. Miss Mamie Walsh is a clever serio and dancer; and the same may be said of Miss Elsie Paul; Mr. Jack Foley fully sustains his reputation as an eccentric; Miss Louie Hurman is a big favourite; the Clancy Girls are a clever pair; and the Audleys conclude.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—After a run of musical comedy, pure "Gaiety burlesque" came as a novelty, in the shape of the old favourite, Faust Up-to-Date, on Monday, when a good audience listened with delight to the tuneful music of Meyer Lutz and the clever dialogue of Geo. R. Sims. Mr. Herbert Sparling played the part of Mephistopheles with acceptable humour; Mr. Fred Winn was funny as Valentine; and Mr. Stephen Adeson's Lord Chancellor was a clever caricature. Miss Moyra Sackville was a shapely and vivacious Faust; Miss Edith Fink made a charming Marguerite; Miss Marie Shields proved a comely and amusing Martha; and Miss Luna Love was pretty and chic as Siebel. The famous pas de quatre was loudly applauded; and Miss Amy Payne did a graceful pas seul. There was a good chorus, and the dresses and scenery were first-rate.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The new drama, The Spider and the Fly, is being acted to well-pleased audiences this week by Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company. The piece is effectively staged, and the characters are well represented by Mr. Stanley S. Gordon as Cyril Girdlestone, Mr. H. C. Lanceley as the clergyman, Mr. Frederick Ross as David Strong, Mr. Ellis J. Preston as the villain Girdlestone, Miss Amy Vennimore as Stella Grey, Miss Nina Vaughton as Edith McAllister, Miss L. Murray as Molly Blake, and Miss Marjorie May as Flipps. Good comedy relief is provided by Messrs. Fred Terriss and Mr. Chas. A. Preece, as the Brothers Roe.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—On Monday the domestic drama, For Better, For Worse, was presented for the first time in Sheffield by Mr. Fred Granville's company, and met with a cordial reception from a well-filled house. Mr. Edwin Clive was a smart and manly Captain Hilliard; Mr. Owen Redmonde submitted a bright and characteristic sketch of a naval officer as Lieutenant Dalrymple; Mr. Scott Leighton's Major Crawford was good; and Mr. Willie Black as Horatio Ranter caused hearty laughter. Miss Elsie Marriott Watson made a charming Olive Heathcote; and Miss Chrissie Dunbar was a graceful and dramatic Belle Baverstock.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The star turn this week is the famous Chirgwin, whose humorous and refined entertainment is as welcome and attractive as ever; Miss Millie Hylton is a great favourite here, and her pretty little scena wins deserved applause; the unique musical act by Orpheus brings down the house; Rita and Roma are very successful; Mr. Will Vokes does a wonderful grotesque dance, which recalls memories of the great Fred of that ilk; Phillips and Terry are acknowledged favourites here; and the company also includes Miss Rachel Lowe, comedienne; Miss Millie Payne, characteristic vocalist; Tee and Tee; and Miss Beatrice Renee, vocalist and dancer. The bioscope, with new films, finishes a splendid entertainment.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Appearing here this week with successful results are Mr. Frank Hardie's company in For the Honour of the Regiment; the Ringley Trio, sketch artists; Charles Sloman, comedian; Mr. George Collins; Wyatte, comic juggler; and Pallister's Biograph.

CENTRAL HALL.—In addition to the animated pictures, Mr. George Le Wist, the old favourite mimic and ventriloquist, and other artists, are doing well.

ALBERT HALL.—Mr. George Burton has taken this spacious hall for the season for popular concerts. The series began very successfully on Saturday with a comic singing competition.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. George Dance's company was here on the first three nights of this week with The Girl From Kay's, light fare that was quite seasonable. Miss Jessie Fraser in the title-rôle acted, sang, and danced in a manner which charmed everyone. Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft was a talented Harry Gordon; Mr. R. Grey a droll and successful Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr. Herbert Jennings a capable Theodore Quench, K.C.; Mr. E. Forde as Mr. Chalmers merited praise; Mr. Claude Dampier was a good Joseph; Mr. H. Dore a smart Pepper; Mr. Sydney Carte as Archie Pembridge acted with ability; Mr. J. Hart as Frank played conscientiously; and Mr. J. W. Hooper was lively and thoroughly amusing as the irrepressible Max Hoggenheimer. Miss Marie Greenhouse, Miss Irene Vere, and Miss Grace Murray were a successful trio.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—A racy sporting drama, A Wife's Triumph, has been accorded a good reception here. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott pleases immensely with his embodiment of Frank Wilton; Miss Ada Abbott as Bessie Dewhurst charms the audience with her prepossessing manner and really clever acting; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps gives an exceedingly fine performance as Robert Dewhurst; Mr. W. H. Garbois as Ellis Jordan is effective in his realism; Mr. Weedon Ross as Julius Hartmann is commendable; Mr. W. H. Davis Brown is successful as Stubbs; and Mr. Edward Keene as Ben Bradford and Miss Margery Tennant as Marjery Crib supplies effective humour; Miss Kathleen Stewart is well received as Alice Wilton; and Miss Hetty Jones is a favourite as Little Frank. On Wednesday and Thursday the well-known drama, Sapho, was played by the same company.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. George Dance is providing the attractions this week, and for the first half his capable company gave a clever presentation of Lady Madcap, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The play was prettily mounted, the dresses being exceptionally good. The choruses were sung with much heartiness, and some clever dancing was witnessed. Mr. Jules Charmettes proved himself an able interpreter of Count de St. Hubert, and his singing in French was loudly applauded. Mr. Bay Russell was in his element as Bill Stratford, being well supported by Mr. James Graydon as Posh Jenkins; Mr. George Whillis, who impersonates Corporal Ham, sang and danced well; Mr. Harold Parkes deserves mention for his able portrayal of Oroya Brown. Susan was cleverly depicted by Miss Ethel Beech, her dancing and singing winning appreciation; Miss Isabelle Dillon was delightful as Lady Betty Claridge. The Little Michus commenced a three nights' engagement on Thursday.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Baron.—An excellent programme is being submitted here, and one that meets with capital support, every item gaining well-deserved applause. Messrs. Aerian and Ostara are maintaining last week's reputation in their extraordinary and wonderful flying act; and Mr. Geo. Neno also maintains his success, being retained for his "Bunkum Beauty Show," which is proving most hilarious; he has the practical assistance of Mr. Tom Carpenter as the Dandy M.C. Miss Florence Bell contributes as a comedienne and dancer; Jock McKay is well received as a comedian; he also plays the bagpipes with ability. Daisy Reed is a clever top-boot dancer; Floria displays marvellous strength as an equilibrist; Mr. Hugh Dempsey, Irish comedian, is very smart, his dancing being greatly liked; Alfreda, in her illustrated songs, wins capital recognition, and the Bioscope is both pleasing and amusing. The other attractions are well supported.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—For the attraction here this week is the celebrated burlesque, entitled Faust Up-to-Date, presented by Mr. Mouillot, who is supported by a capital company. The play is made most humorous throughout, whilst the operatic choruses are rendered in tasteful and pleasing manner under the direction of Mr. W. D. J. Damant. Miss Mimi Fisher is responsible for a clever portrayal of Young Faust, her singing being well received. Mr. Eric Stevenshire is eminently suited as Old Faust; and Mephistopheles has a good interpreter in Mr. Roland Henry. Mr. F. W. Bowes is a comedian of repute, and gives a capital impersonation of Valentine, being well supported by Mr. A. Gambier Melford as Lord Chancellor. Miss May Davis ably expounds the rôle of Siebel; Miss Riversdale deserves mention for her characterisation of Martha; and Miss Aida Dumville is a decided success as Marguerite, and sings well.

ALFRESCO THEATRE OF VARIETIES, ROYAL TERRACE.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Professor Vincent.—This is probably the closing week of this popular place of amusement. Those taking their benefits during the last few days are Mr. Chas. Ellis, the comedian, who has done good service, and Miss Marie Lawrence, who also has been successful. Both the lessee and manager are to be heartily congratulated on providing an entertainment that met with the entire satisfaction of their patrons week by week.

PIER HILL BANDSTAND.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless.—Despite the lateness of the season, Mr. Ballard Brown and his entertainers still draw immense crowds, who are given first-class programmes. The artists for this week all work hard, and have a large and varied selection of songs, &c., that never fail to win appreciation. Mr. Brown contributes in his customary efficient manner, and is a great favourite.

"THE HAPPY VALLEY."—Crowds still patronise "The Valley," thereby testifying to the continual popularity of Chirgwin's Concert Party. Miss Beatrice Varley, Messrs. Harry Rose, Charles Wood, Bert Dansie, and Charles Osborne are firm favourites, and Gus Dallon has again upheld the reputation he made here on a previous visit. On the 6th inst. Miss Varley and Mr. Wood's joint benefit was a veritable triumph, the lady especially being loaded with floral and other presents.

SOUTHPORT. — OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Another of Mr. George Dance's productions occupies the boards at this theatre, and the local playgoer has this week an opportunity of witnessing the attractive musical play, The Cingalee. Miss Georgina Middleton is a charming and chic representative of the Cingalese girl Nanoya; Peggy Sabine has a fascinating and piquant exponent in Miss Gladys Guy, whose singing was greatly admired; Miss Marjorie Clark submits a clever and dashing impersonation of Lady Patricia Vane; Mr. Grafton Williams is highly humorous and versatile in the rôle of Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Helier Le Maistre is distinctly successful in the part of Boobhamba; the Hon. Harry Vereker is capitally portrayed by Mr. Cyril Dane; Mr. Ethebert Edwards sustains the character of Bobby Warren with every credit; Mr. Jack Crichton submits a praiseworthy portraiture of Chambhuddy Ram; and Miss Essie Perrin danced a pas seul in a captivating and graceful manner.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS. — Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Datas, the marvellous man of memory, who heads the bill at this popular hall of varieties gave an interesting exhibition of his wonderful mental capacity. Other prominent turns are supplied by Ernesto, the great juggler, and the Lavails, American aerial artists, in their sensational act on the silver arch, ladders, and breakaway bars. The items submitted include Will Haines, vocal character comedian; Amber Austa, eccentric coon singer and dancer; Williams and Warden, cross patter comedians; Lola Patey, popular vocalist; and the bioscope, with the latest films.

PIER PAVILION. — Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co.; Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—The principal turn here is this week contributed by Henderson, the famous blind pianist, who gives a remarkable performance. Another interesting item is supplied by the Gondolier Glee singers, including Miss Helen Bourne, the lady tenor. The programme includes Ward and Davis, in their musical comedy duologue, Wanted, a Typist; Master Joe Conway, juvenile comedian; Dick Bradley, novelty trick cyclist; Edyth Goodall, mezzo-soprano; Huline and Le May, musical comedians; the Three Rubys, equipoise, acrobatic, and trapeze act; and the biotableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company in a romantic modern military play entitled Revenge. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson plays the part of the villain, Prince Orloff, as to the manner born. The Captain Loris Vanessa of Mr. Fred Emery is a piece of realistic acting which evokes the enthusiasm of the audience; Mr. Gerrold Ord gives a good portrayal of the King; Mr. Lancelot Usher does well as Captain David Carr, R.N.; the Queen is charmingly impersonated by Miss Violet Carlyle; the villainess, Draga Vanessa, is forcefully portrayed by Miss Amy Ellam; Miss Alice Barlow is delightful as Cora Brook; Lieutenant Maurice is well performed by Miss Grace Amiers. The comedy element is ably accounted for by Mr. Francis Serl (Count Mussant), Mr. Russel Bogue (Jim Jennings, A.B.), and Miss Hettie Senior (Tusha).

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The premier turn this week is Albertus and Millar in a scene at the fair grounds, in which they excel in cornet playing, juggling with Indian clubs, &c.; the four Scotch Meisters in their scena Ancestral Spirits, are much appreciated; lovers of ballad vocalism are delighted by Miss Florence Esdaile (soprano) and Ian Colquhoun (baritone), vocalists; the Sisters Sprightly submit clever novelties; the remaining items are Fred Dunstone (comedian), May Tyler (comedienne and dancer), and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Joseph Sweeney.—The star turn here is a quintette entitled Officers at Play, and is responsible for a lot of good music and humorous impersonations by the Five Musical Palmers; Warren Doyle, dancer, appears again; Gillin is a good ventriloquist; a smart juggling turn is contributed by Massena; Clarendon Fenwick is a good baritone vocalist; Gus Merriman, vocal comedian, Little Don, comedian, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—The French Spy, an intensely interesting play from the pen of E. Hill Mitchelson, is paying a first visit here this week. Mr. Fred Benton's company is responsible for its presentation. Miss Gertrude Evans is easily first, with her admirably finished and highly picturesque rendering of the Countess Andre. Miss A. Harrison-Tate provides a suitable foil in her excellent conception of Olga; Mr. Richard Fulton's Capt. Sommers is instinct with true manliness; whilst Mr. Max Coutts presents a marked contrast as the cowardly schemer Count Romanoff. Miss Cissy Cleveland, Mr. Seymour Perry, Mr. Benton, and Mr. Charles Digby are very successful in providing the lighter portion of the play.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone. — Mr. Chas. Verney's company, in the sensational drama, The Coal King, is here this week. Mr. Alec Alexander makes an ideal hero as Tom Roberts; Mr. Roy Gordon is well placed as Sir Reginald Hartford; as Walter Hartford, the villain, Mr. Robin Sheills, plays with great power and receives a big compliment of hisses; as Jem Williams, Mr. Tod Squires is responsible for much laughter; Miss Olive Lloyd plays the part of Grace Shirley in a very capable manner; and as Mad Ann, Miss Florence Mitchell is effective.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Mundill; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—Craig, Rose, and Craig, a trio of dental athletes, perform some clever feats on the rings, slack wire, and horizontal bars; Emmie Milstead and Joe Bell give a musical scena, The Belle of Arizona; Edwin Lambert and Emmie Hands are good as high-class duettists; and the remaining members of the company are Ray and Miles, hand balancers; Flo Velma, comedienne; Renée Graham, character vocalist; and Tom Moy, comedian.

ST. HELENS. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—After a long absence we are this week favoured with a return visit from Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company in Mary Queen of Scots, East Lynne, Sapho, From Washerwoman to Duchess, Leah, and Jane Shore. Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer undertakes the leading rôles in a manner which displays her power as an experienced actress, and she is surrounded by artists who combine to give the greatest effect to the dramatic situation in each piece.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and Fred Willmot; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Appearing here are the Five Whiteleys, Continental speciality artists; Miss Mabel Thorne, a clever comedienne; Jack Ross, double-voiced vocalist; Hill Lane and company, in musical comedy; Musical Silvo; the Seddons, lady juggler and comedy waiter and the Lannons, pedestal dancers.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The representations of For Life, and After, given by Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company have been followed with marked interest by large audiences throughout the week. Rube Hexham is capitally impersonated by Mr. Chas. Osborne; and Mr. Henry Hare acts with power and ability as Jim Huggett. Gilbert O'Neill is pleasingly acted by Mr. Sidney Vautier; and Mr. Chris Mason gives an effective portrayal of the showman, Joe Grimper. Richard Grey is acted with skill by Mr. Vernon Sansbury; and Mr. Harry F. Wright amusingly fills the character of Zeke. Miss Grace Heywood played with much feeling as Marion Grey; Miss Muriel Dean charmingly embodied the part of Dora Grey; and Loo Hexham was sympathetically presented by Miss Rosslyn Vayne.

EMPIRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—The chief attraction here this week is Clown Barker's comedy circus, which has been a source of delight to crowded audiences. Amy Anderson and company in their sketch, The Banana Queen, made a great hit; Cyrus Dare is an amusing story-teller and mimic; Dandy George and dog Rosie win applause; Edith Courtney is a delightful ballad vocalist; the Dunlops, in their comedy cycle act, are clever and amusing; Lillian Sivado is a smart lady gymnast; and Frank Keegan and company cause abundant laughter in their sketch, Everyday Cyclists.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—GRAND. — Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—The Savonas and the Elliotts are the star attractions here this week, and their performances are much appreciated. Joe Peterman and company in a sketch, The Pawnbroker, cause roars of laughter; Starr and Jerome, vocalists; Pablo Diaz, Oriental wonder; Ida Ross, comedienne; and Ernest Ball, actor-vocalist, are included in a good programme. Owing to an artist being indisposed, Harry Nelson, the Tyneside comedian, was wired for, and he again scored a big success.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. George and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—Dinah Morris and company are top here this week, and are enthusiastically applauded; E. R. Dainez' circus is one of the best of its kind; Armino, a strong man, gives a good exhibition; the programme also includes Cavalli, ventriloquist; Will Mitcham, comedy artist; Maude Ross, dancer; Samuel Morrison and Billy Burns, both vocalists with good voices.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—A good programme is presented this week at this cosy house. George French meets with a hearty reception; the Brothers Babusio, balancers, contribute a clever turn; the Revell Troupe, in their absurdity, Mischief, keep up an irresistible flow of laughter; Maude Mortimer has a nice voice, and presents a pleasing turn; Cavern and Cave, in their sketch, are always welcome; the Itrams are successful in a good gymnastic display; the Carney Brothers are an entertaining pair; and Salida and Vone sing and dance capably. The bioscope shows some capital pictures.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maud Lynton.—We are this week favoured with a return visit of Sergeant Brue, by Mr. E. Lockwood's company. Mr. J. Harold Carson again takes the principal rôle, and his performance is of a high order of merit. Mr. Robert Selby as Michael Brue is praiseworthy; Miss Florence Spurgern as Aurora is a most winsome character; while the Lady Bickenhall by Miss Reydon Dallas earns loud praise for the accomplished artist. Mr. Albert James as Crookey is just as comical as ever.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—A crowded house gave a hearty reception to Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's Still Alarm company, which is paying a return visit this week. As Jack Manley Mr. Matthew H. Glenville is a great favourite. Mr. George Arthur plays the villain, John Bird, in a highly effective manner. The comedy part of Doc Wilber is capitally played by Mr. Fred Osmond. A word of praise is due to Miss Marie Veriton as Mrs. Manley. The fire station scene raises the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr. F. Lucas.—On Monday, Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company, under the business direction of Mr. Gerald Alexander, presented Blue-Bell in Fairyland here for the first time. Miss Lily Eyton, a clever little lady, plays the name-part charmingly; Mr. Lawrence Emery is remarkably successful as Dicky; and Miss Haidee Fitch, as Will-o'-the-Wisp, must be complimented on the perfection of her dances. While Miss Constance St. Bride is heard to advantage in her well-rendered songs; Messrs. Harry Vernon and Will Clements, as the funny men, cause genuine fun throughout; and Mr. Frank Lennard and Mr. Albert Mack deserve special mention for good work in their respective parts. Misses Maud Harris and Winnie Bronte were especially pleasing as Blue-Bell's younger sisters.

TODMORDEN.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Corporation of Todmorden.—Chas. W. Poole's No. 1 Colossal Myriorama and Variety company is here on a six nights' visit. On Monday the large hall was packed. The entertainment is the brightest and best of its kind which has ever appeared here, and richly deserves its success. Under the guidance of Mr. John R. Poole some fine dioramic views and animated pictures are shown, the spectacular pictures of the Battle of Waterloo being especially worthy of notice. Woolford's performing ponies and dogs, together with a funny donkey, Sam Sly, are proving a great draw; Dane's marionettes are exceedingly good; the Fordyces (Jennie and Willie) greatly please with their clever singing and dancing; and Harry Raymond, the Mexican coon, is very successful in his impersonations; Coma, an Anglo-Japanese juggler, gives a smart performance; and Funny Chef is an amusing stage clown.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barry.—A strong attraction is provided here this week by the engagement of G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company in The Coal King. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland gives a capital rendering of Tom Roberts, and an excellent foil is the Walter Harford of Mr. Escott Robson. The title-rôle is capably assumed by Mr. Lionel Thompson. Mr Frank Dalton gives a pathetic portrayal of Dick Shirley. The comedy relief is ably supplied by Mr. Alfred Terria. Miss Gertrude Valentine represents Grace Shirley in a manner that soon wins the plaudits of the audience. A difficult part played in a forcible manner is the Mad Ann of Miss Sinna St. Clair.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—Mr. Charles Parker's Æolian Opera Singers head the bills of an excellent programme, which also includes Rich Taylor, mimic and ventriloquist; Jennie Johns, soubrette; Florence Kay, contralto; Rose Alderman, soprano; Vivian Munro, comedian; Nellie Sylvester and Carl Muller, in character dances; the Two Falcons, in their clever comedy act, contribute a good turn; Ruby Dahis and her Merry Mannikins are smart; the Casino Orchestra still remains under engagement and is as popular as ever. The entertainment winds up with an interesting show of animated photographs.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. John Gerant's company opened on Monday in the drama, At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant repeats his successful rendering of the part of Harold Allison; Mr. Harry Scott gives a manly portrayal as Captain George Allison; Mr. Ernest St. John proves capable as General Gordon; Mr. Harry Elgar amusing as Terry O'Halloran; and Mr. Julian Bainbridge effective as Jack Spencer. Miss Lilly Crammond submits a pleasing and graceful presentment of Dora Drummond; Miss Beatrice Westers scores as Salema; and Miss Eva Bells is dainty as Mary, the maid.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.— The Pygmies, on their first visit here, provide an interesting and novel exhibition; Mr. Fred Terry, comedian; Miss Lil O'Gorman, vocalist and dancer; Mat Merlin, contortionist; Mr. Fred Pearce; and Miss Kitty Ward, in a comical boxing act; the Three Sylvanas, trapeze artists; and Ryde and Beeman, comedy acrobats, also appear.

WALSALL. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A capital programme is being submitted here this week. Will Bishop and company, who head the bill in My Gollywog, are well received; J. H. Green, comedian, is very good; Lillie Langtry, Ben Hur, and Cull-Pitt are extremely popular; and Marie Weston, comedienne, and Stelling and Revell complete a varied bill.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Chas. Halling's company in the drama, £1,000 Reward, is here this week. Mr. Chas. Rogers jun., cleverly sustains the rôle of Dick Springthorpe; Vincent Rainsworth, detective, is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles Halling; Mr. John B. Murray cleverly portrays the rôle of Gilbert Lisle; Mr. Edward De Vere is very successful as Fighting Jeffs. The trying part of Madame Sanson is well portrayed by Miss Daisy Halling; and as Meg Miss Lynn Darlington wins much applause, her songs being well received.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. Frank Bertram and company are here this week in the stirring drama, The Convict's Daughter. Mr. Frank Bertram scores a big success as Michael Graham; and Mr. G. Nelson Wallace makes Frederick Neville a dignified personage. Mr. H. M. King plays Harold Trevelyan with dramatic force; and Mr. S. Moreton-Williams is well placed as Frank Harper. Mr. Sam Roberts infuses plenty of humour into the character of Patrick O'Laragam; Miss Nellie Clyde is a graceful Edith; and Miss Rose Carew displays histrionic abilities as Marian Thorn. Miss Phyllis Gibbon is a vivacious Betty Hyne.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—King's College Boys again please crowded houses here this week with their delightful singing; and the Brothers Ashby, with their sketch, Next, Please, cause considerable laughter. Beattie Foster is a comedienne with a style of her own; and Wallace Whitney is a clever character comedian. Other excellent turns are Bock Pylades, impersonator; Lillie Lassah, comedienne; the Reays, gymnasts; and the Royal Bioscope pictures.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.— Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is appearing here this week in the play, In Sight of St. Paul's. Mr. Arthur Arnfield gives a realistic portrayal of H. Chichester; the same may be said of Mr. G. D. Daiper's John Gridston; Tom Chichester and his brother Harry are well played by Mr. W. H. Domney and Mr. Ernest R. Allen respectively; Mr. Herbert Sydney gives a clever study of Fretley Burside; Miss Cissy Bellamy is all that can be desired in her representation of Aileen Millar; Miss Lallah Davis is admirable in the character of Cynthia Dell; the part of Rose is well acted by Miss Jennie Hackness.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Manager, Mr. H. Player. — Capital patronage is still being given to this new house. The Casino Four top the bill this week, and receive many encores for their numerous songs; the Four Watsons give a clever musical turn; Robb Gilmore provides a smart show; and a word of praise is due to the Three Panamas for their clever tumbling and dancing; Mahatma gives a marvellous thought-reading entertainment; Mike Brandon, the coloured comedian, is a capital dancer; and the Hippodrome pictures complete a good programme.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Geraldos, whose performance in club-swinging and hoop manipulation has upon previous occasions won for them honours, are again adding to their popularity; Baroux and Bion, eccentric acrobats, go through their programme with marked dexterity; Mabel La Blanche renders her song, "Daddy," sweetly; the dancing by Mark Leslie is an enjoyable feature; Elton and Elma are smart in a triple bar act; Harry Weldon's eccentricities are decidedly original and amusing; Bowman and Morton, in a duo, She Loved a Policeman, have a gratifying reception, the quick-changing by the lady being especially clever; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux retain their degree of excellence.

GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The engagement for this week is that of Mr. Norman Macowan's company in Monsieur Beaucaire, which is giving entire satisfaction to the audiences. Mr. Norman Macowan deserves warm recognition for his portrayal of the title-rôle, in which he is admirably supported by Miss Violet Sterne as Lady Mary Carlisle, a character which she portrays with fine natural effect. A telling picture of the Duke of Winterset is presented by Mr. Murray Hathorn; Mr. P. Ramsey Foreman's impersonation of Captain Badger is a powerful one; and Major Molineaux has a capable representative in Mr. J. C. Taylor.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. George Dance's company is making its first appearance here this week in that successful musical play, The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss Elma Morris evoked much laughter by her unceremonious sayings as Catherine Upscher; Miss Gipsy Dale gave a delightful portrayal of Renée de Saint Mezord; Miss Isabel Vivian was chic as Lisette; Napoleon's sisters, Caroline and Pauline, found graceful exponents in Miss V. Kennerley and Miss M. Eastland; the Empress Josephine was ably impersonated by Miss Ethel Bradley; and Miss A. Knolleys (Mlle. de Lagrande) and Miss Kitty Quinn (Madame de Chatel) both deserve praise. Mr. Frank Bradley's study of Napoleon was exceptionally fine; and unstinted praise must be given Mr. C. Burrunston Williams for his excellent interpretation of Marechal Lefebvre. Another artistic piece of work was the Adhémar of Mr. George H. Curzon; Mr. Frank Attree was facetious as Papillon, and Mr. Vernon Deville did well as Capitaine Regnier. Mr. C. Macdona's A Chinese Honeymoon company occupied the boards on Thursday.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Gaieties are on a return visit here, and delighted a very large audience on Monday. Miss Rosa Dallow sang with rare expression Wilson's "Carmena"; Miss Ruby Wilson was loudly encored for her rendering of "Come to St. George's"; Mr. Charles Conyers excels as a raconteur and ventriloquist; Mr. Wilson James has become quite a favourite locally, and received an ovation for his humorous song, "The Girl on the Pier." Miss Adelaide Schönberg is an able accompanist.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company is here this week with The Indian Mutiny. Mr. George Steel gives a fine impersonation of Lieut. Manley; the part of Capt. Manley is ably represented by Mr. Cyril Harrison; and Mr. John Davidson makes an imposing Major Ingleby; Miss Lillie Grey and Miss Agnes Kingston portray the parts of Mrs. Major Ingleby and Kate Ingleby in a clever and pleasing style; Mr. C. Birch is a capital Ensign Blake; Mr. C. Morand as Terry O'Brien is a great favourite; and Miss F. Melrose Millett ably and creditably acquits herself in the rôle of Ghuz-nah.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. John Cassidy. — Miss Annie Bell and company are presenting a new and original version of Sapho this week. Miss Bell in the title-rôle is a capable, emotional actress, and is ably seconded by Mr. Sydney Arnold, a clever and versatile actor, as Jean Gaussin; Mr. Geo. Antley makes a vivacious Césaire; Mr. Pringle Roberts gives a fine portrayal of Eugène Flamant; and Little Miss Doris F. Graham as Joseph evokes applause by her clever portrayal.

WHITBY.—THE SPA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. A. L. Baron.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday in the successful play, The Christian. Miss Mildred Gilbert submitted a capital portrayal of Glory Quayle; Mr. E. Stanton Sharpe as the Hon. John Storm, Mr. Percy Johnson as Parson Quayle, Mr. Harry Colbeck as Father Lamplugh, Miss A. Royal as Aggie Jones, and Miss Alice Maude as Mrs. Callender, gave an admirable rendering of their respective parts. On Thursday Cousin Kate was played.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA—1850-1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Miss Olgar Nethersole is here this week in a répertoire of plays, including Carmen, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, Sapho, and Camille. On Monday night Miss Nethersole appeared as Carmen, a part which she has conceived with consummate skill, her acting being admirable throughout. She is ably supported by Mr. Frank Mills as Don José and Mr. Julian Royce as the Toreador. Miss Molly Pearson is particularly good as Dolores; and others who appear in prominent rôles are Miss Rosalind Ivan, Miss Ina Goldsmith, and Messrs. Eric Maturin, Slaine Mills, John Nesbitt, William Clark, and T. Hendon.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A second visit of The Catch of the Season, played by Mr. George Dance's company, was welcomed here on Monday by a good house. In a piece whose success was in great measure due to the personality of the original players of the central parts, it is much to the credit of Mr. Frank Lincoln, whose Duke of St. Jermyns is a fine achievement, and of Miss Moya Mannering, who gives a dainty and delightful rendering of Angela, that the greatest pleasure and approval were aroused by their performance. Mr. E. H. Kelly was also remarkably successful as Lord Dundreary, among the various other members of a strong cast. The piece is, of course, magnificently staged.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company occupies the stage here this week in Leah Kleschna. The most notable feature of the performance is Miss Bessie Rignold's depiction of the title-part, which is so powerfully done that Monday's audience was worked up into a state of enthusiasm, and Miss Rignold was called upon to acknowledge this vehement approval time after time. Mr. William F. Grant plays Paul Sylvaine with a quiet force; Mr. Paul Belmore gives a dramatic rendering of Kleschna; and Mr. Hamilton Deane figures well as Raoul Berton; while the other members of the cast are efficient.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Here this week we have Mr. P. Howard Sturgess's company in A Queen of Villainy. The central rôle of Cora Granville is portrayed with great force and skill by Miss Edith Blande; Miss Cecilia Desmond is commendable as Rose Delmayne; and Miss Amy Ross Clyde makes an effective Sally Chimes. The part of Sir John Desborough is ably rendered by Mr. Gordon Carnegie; that of Stephen Faucit is in the capable hands of Mr. Edward Heanley; and Mr. Arthur E. Maskell is well suited as Reuben Hawk. A word of praise is due also to Mr. P. Howard Sturgess for his droll impersonation of Timothy Kodak, and to Miss Jessie Crammonde, who makes a vivacious Mollie Maggs.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The big attraction here this week is Le Diabelo, looping the "Devil's Wheel," a daring and sensational act. The Tokio Japs also give an exceedingly fine turn; while great success is scored by Whimsical Walker, as "Captain Hamilton, V.C."; assisted by a clever child actress, Frances Maddock. Other good turns are Will Letters, comedian and raconteur; Montague Briggs, female impersonator; the Zano Bros., in a comedy bar act; the Bonanzas, very good hand-balancers; Lottie de Abbey, operatic vocalist; and Edwards and Espinoa, in a diverting scena, The Coon's Holiday.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Messrs. Knight and Denham's company present here this week the well-known popular drama, The Grip of Iron. A very good performance is given, and the piece is elaborately and brilliantly staged. Mr. Fred Powell makes a decided success as Jagon, the strangler; and Mr. George Denham is also remarkably good as Lonstalot; while other prominent male parts are capitally done by Mr. T. Renaud-Lockwood, Mr. Norman Tracey, Mr. Wallace Curnock, Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner, and Mr. John Brittain. Miss Rosabel Dodd, as Jagon's daughter, does very well indeed; Miss Muriel Inglis gives a clever rendering of Sophie Blanchard; and as Marie Gueria Miss Violet Ingram is capable and praiseworthy.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, seen recently at several of the Broadhead theatres, are here this week in their gruesome but powerful drama, The Power of the Cross.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—A notice of Ivanhoe appears elsewhere.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Top of the bill here this week is Lew Lake's company in a musical skit, Muggins, V.C., which is cleverly and humorously rendered. A funny and original comic turn is given by Herbert Lloyd, whose burlesque juggling and eccentric impersonations (?) convulse the audience. Other good turns are Harry and Ada Meymott, in a fine little comic interlude, Semi-Detached; Bernar's Fantoches, a wonderful show; Edie King, as Cinderella, a dainty scene; ? Spot-Spot ?, the enchanted coon, in "The Cake-walk Craze"; Techow's Marvellous Cats; James Robertson, a fine singer of illustrated songs; and Ethel Walker, a pleasing mimic at the piano. The Bioscope pictures are interesting.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Lew Lake and company are appearing here this week with great success in a capital comedy-drama, entitled My Pal Jerry. Arthur Rigby makes a big hit with his song, "The march of the married men"; Wal Robbins is a clever instrumentalist; the San Remo Girls are smart dancers; A-Bo-Kou, aided by amusing assistants, does some surprising juggling; Dora Lyric, vocal comedienne, is well received; and enjoyable items are those of Speedwell, the lightning painter; and Flo Schuberth, burlesque artist. A series of up-to-date Palace pictures are also shown.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A big attraction here this week is Morris Cronin and Troupe in a brilliant juggling display. Caicedo does some astonishing feats on the wire; Ray Wallace is a clever mimic; and Francis Wylie and his well-trained dogs are very entertaining; Brown and Le Clerq, as usual, create much amusement in their Black Justice sketch; the Glenroy Troupe are exceedingly good International dancers; and enjoyable turns are also those of Mount and Correlli, society entertainers at the piano; Simms and Simms, in song and patter; and the Bioscope pictures. Two vocal items are also contributed by the choir.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Excellent and well-received turns here this week are Ike Scott and Son, versatile comedians; and Harry Mountford and Maude Walsh, society entertainers. Good turns are contributed by Harry Carmen, comedian, who makes a hit with his "Burglar" song; Daisy Mayer, comedienne and smart sand dancer; the Three Sisters Tree, vocalists; Harry Luck, eccentric comedian; Daisy Lane, comedienne; Bertha Duckett, comedienne; and Minnie Fenton, Scotch comedienne. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

KING'S (LONGSIGHT).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here this week in the powerful drama, entitled A Traitor Prince. Mr. E. A. Duval does well as the heroic Lieut. Frank Derrick; and Mr. G. M. Montanini as Prince Rus Dalmirez is most effective. Miss Vesta Sandford as Vashti plays with skill; and Miss Rose Routledge is pleasing as Lola Vane. Mr. Edmond O'Grady is funny as Billy; and other parts are well sustained by Messrs. A. H. Longford, Edward Philip, and James Sherwin.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Seltina Troupe, who head the bill here this week, do some wonderfully clever acrobatic feats, and are well received. The Silbon Family present, with success, their miniature circus, introducing some smartly trained animals. The Bonnettis are good in a juggling speciality; Merton and Rydon are pleasing in a comedy act; and the Sisters Russell (Ida and Lil), burlesque artists, secure a good reception. Other enjoyable items are given by the Brothers Levett, vaulters; Will Johnson, comedian; and Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer. The Bioscope pictures are amusing. Dwight and Son, comedians, who figure in the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Kreamer and Braun, in a novel and exciting horse and cycle race, top the bill here this week. The Land-Grabbers—a capital skit on the recent exploits of the unemployed—causes plenty of laughter. Walter Munroe, in his latest success, "I'm coming back to Dublin," proves popular; the Gladenbecks, clever gymnasts, give a highly-finished exhibition; Sam Shipley is a much appreciated comedian; the Howards are good in comedy and melody; some smart dancing is done by the Sisters Belmont; whilst Bruce and Ross, comedy artists, and Beattie Worth, comedienne, and the pictures complete a satisfactory programme.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North.—Some old favourites are again to the front here this week, with their usual success, including Jim Pullen, comedian; Charlie Bayman, quaint comedian; Gertrude Fraser, contralto; Albert Ventor, comedian; Beatrice Kenyon, soprano; Charles North, baritone; and W. H. Jackson, pianist.

"CHARLES I."

Apropos of Mr. H. B. Irving's revival of W. G Wills's Charles I. at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Thursday, we quote the following from Freeman Wills's biography of the author of the play:—

It was the good fortune of the rising dramatist of the Lyceum that, after the success achieved in his play by Miss Bateman, a new actor joined the theatre who gave him his great opportunity.

Mr. Irving had proved his tragic power in The Bells, and it was a happy inspiration, due to his personal qualifications to represent the king, which suggested, as a subject, Charles I. Mr. Bateman was diffident of the success of such plays as Charles I. and Hamlet. Blank verse was still regarded as hazardous, and Mr. Irving's successes had previously been won in melodrama. Many a battle was fought at the Lyceum supper parties, but the actor, with great tenacity of purpose, urged a repetition of the experiment which had been so successful in the case of Medea. The play was written at express speed—partly at the Studio, and partly at 37, Sydney-street—and it was produced on Sept. 28, 1872. By this drama the author established himself as an original dramatist of great power, and Mr. Irving, who had previously been spoken of as a "promising young artist," was at once raised to the first rank of his profession.

In this play Mr. Wills certainly gave proof of power equalled by none of the poetic dramatists that intervened, and if he did not in subsequent work always reach this high level, it must be remembered that it was difficult to get him to apply his powers to dramatic work, and he often wrote against the grain. Consequently, though he wrote many plays, his true talents were sampled by but a few. The wealth of his imagination was only partly brought to the surface. One of his intimates remarks that, in private intercourse, "he was a man full of bright and sweet imaginings, and he would reveal perfect glimpses of a fairyland of a mind full of tender thoughts and delicate fancy."

But he was impatient of much of the dramatic work he was commissioned to do, and when this was the case he did it badly, selling his name and not his talents. It was when writing for worthy interpreters that his genius awakened; and only by the plays written for them ought he to be judged hereafter.

His painting was a hindrance. The curious perversity of his nature asserted itself again and again to his detriment. When there was a pressure of urgent dramatic work he has been known more than once to jump out of bed and seize his palette and brushes; and to keep him at work with his pen he would have to be watched and goaded on. The critics were provoked by the falling off shown so markedly in some of his plays, and when he did rise to the height of his powers they not all of them forgave him, or did him full justice. Charles I., however, stands as an evidence of what he was capable of doing, and worthily takes its place in the catena of the great history-plays of England. A few words from Miss Ellen Terry, in a letter found after his death among some treasured papers, written when the end was not very far off, must have come like a ray of light in the gathering gloom. The artist who interpreted was not perhaps wrong in the fame that will belong to the artist who wrote:

4th March, 1891: 22, Barkston Gardens.

I'm just returned from our last rehearsal of Charles I.—and coming along in my carriage have been reading the last act, and I can't help writing to thank you and bless you for having written those five last pages. Never, never has anything more beautiful been written in English—I know no other language.

They are perfection—and I—often as I've acted with Henry Irving in the play, am all melted at reading it again. An immortality for you for this alone. God bless you.

Yours, with intense appreciation,

As the guard draws up on either side, in the last act, while the bell tolls, the King, kneeling, kisses the Queen, who seems to turn to stone in her speechless agony, and at the door he looks back with the historic word, "Remember!"

It is recorded that in the last scene the sympathetic sobs of the audience mingled with those of the disconsolate wife. Women sobbed openly, and even men showed an emotion which comported ill with the habitual serenity of the stalls. There was scarcely a dry eye in the house during the parting of Charles and his Queen. But seldom has there been beheld such a scene of enthusiasm as followed the fall of the curtain. It was the outburst of the pent-up emotion of a vast audience. The night marked the advent of a great actor and a great dramatist, and there was a consciousness in that gathering of all the talents that it was not merely the success of a play they were hailing, but an event in literature and a landmark in dramatic history. In that era of opera bouffe a play written on the classical model had taken the town, and it seemed like the renaissance of the poetic and historical drama.

As the lights went up tears were surprised on the faces of the great assemblage, and every one was glad that his neighbour's attention was distracted from his wet cheek to the pale actor who appeared in relief against the curtain and thanked the audience, and promised to convey to the author their favourable verdict.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On arrival at Stafford the door on the offside was found to be open and the compartment empty. There was a quantity of luggage on the racks and seats, and as there appeared to have been an accident a light engine was at once despatched up the line to search the track. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body. On Sunday afternoon she had recovered consciousness, but had no recollection of how the accident occurred. It is supposed that she was under the impression that she was travelling in a corridor car, and on opening the door fell to the ground. Asked how she could account for the accident, Miss Stephens remarked, "The railway carriage was stuffy, and I went to open the window. After that I recollect nothing more till I regained consciousness in the hospital."

MISS DOT STEPHENS.

record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock street, W.C.

Miss Ellen Terry sends a subscription, with these womanly and sympathetic words:—"For the poor child Dot Stephens, with loving sympathy from Ellen Terry."

Miss Edna May writes:—"I am more grieved than I can say over this dreadfully sad case. I have sent to all my friends; have also asked for assistance from The Belle of Mayfair company, and hope to be able to send you a good sum by Friday or Saturday. I don't remember ever having heard of anything so sad as this little girl's accident. Please let me know if I can do anything else."

Miss May Lewis encloses a cheque, and writes:—"I cannot tell you how glad I am to see that the poor unfortunate lady's case has been taken up. It has my most sincere sympathy."

Mr. Chas. E. Machin accompanies his cheque with the following note:—"I beg to enclose my little cheque for the Dot Stephens Fund. It is a terrible calamity."

Mr. Martin Harvey.—"I have much pleasure in sending you a cheque for £1 1s. for your admirable fund for the poor little lady."

Miss Louie Freear.—"Enclosed please find cheque for £1 for dear little Miss Stephens, with whom I most heartily sympathise. What a terrible accident, poor little girl!"

Mr. Weedon Grossmith.—"I enclose a cheque for £1 1s. for the little fund you are raising for the poor girl, Miss Dot Stephens. I only regret my cheque is obliged to be so small. It would have been larger, but there have been so many things one has had to contribute to recently, only not so deserving, that one has little left for the really sad cases."

Mr. H. B. Irving.—"I have much pleasure in enclosing a cheque for one guinea as a small contribution to the fund you are getting up for poor Miss Stephens."

Miss Nora Lancaster.—"I am so sorry to hear of the terrible accident that has fallen upon Miss Stephens. I enclose cheque for a guinea, and wish I could have made it more."

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison (Kennedy).—"Enclosed please find cheque for one guinea towards the subscription for Miss Stephens. It is an exceedingly sad case; and she has my deepest sympathies."

Mr. Herbert Beerbohm Tree.—"The case of Miss Dot Stephens is certainly a very distressing one, as you say. I enclose you herewith £2 2s. on her account. I hope you will get a substantial sum."

Mrs. J. Warden (widow of the late J. F. Warden).—"I send cheque as a trifle towards the fund you have opened for Dot Stephens. Poor girl, such a sad fate for her to be suddenly put aside in the days of her youth and strength. It is a sad ending to her bright dreams and hopes she had for the future. My heart's deep sympathy is with her and her mother in this their dark hours of sorrow."

Mr. T. Allan Edwardes (of Derby), writing from Interlaken, says: "I enclose you cheque for £2 2s. towards the fund for poor little Dot Stephens. Among the thousands of her brother and sister artists, it should be an easy matter to purchase her an annuity of at least £50 per annum. If all the sympathisers with her in her dreadful accident would send their mite this would be easily accomplished."

C. Crabtree writes:—"I have pleasure in sending you a remittance for the 'Dot Stephens Fund,' which I have collected from the orchestra here, including myself as conductor. She appeared at the Pier Pavilion here about March, this year, and we all remember her quite well, and we all felt that we should like to send her something. We all very much regret that she should be so afflicted, and we all express great sympathy for her and her mother during their trouble. She was an exceptionally nice and pleasant girl. I think a lot of money could be collected for her if boxes were used in various theatres and music halls. My orchestra is only seven players, and we are not in a position to give much, but our little will help to swell the fund, and I hope she will be able to have an annuity from it."

Queenie Leighton:—"You will receive from me this week another list of contributions I have gathered together from friends for poor little Dot Stephens. I am only sorry that, owing to the pressure of rehearsals, I have not been able to do more, as I have the greatest sympathy with Miss Stephens in her terrible affliction, and I sincerely hope that the efforts which are being made in her behalf will result in the collection of a sufficient sum to prevent her worrying about the future."

J. D. Beveridge writes:—"Herewith I enclose cheque for two guineas (£2 2s.). I quite agree with the statement in The Era 'that so sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession,' and I trust your efforts on behalf of Miss Stephens will be of so substantial a nature that the poor dear young lady, who under such sad conditions writes in such a cheery, grateful way, may not have any fear for her future in a pecuniary sense. With deepest sympathy for Miss Stephens, and with hearty good wishes for a big subscription list."

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Spring Chicken is paying a return visit to Stratford this week, and is repeating its previous triumph. Magnificent mounting characterises the production; and very few alterations have been made in the cast. Mr. George Gregory is as entertaining and as hardworking as ever in the rôle of Mr. Girdle, and his efforts meet with due appreciation. Miss Gertrude Glynn is still the same bright and vivacious Rosalie, and her singing and dancing are keenly enjoyed. Miss Gertrude Gilliam undertakes the part of Dulcie Babori. Her vocalism is very pleasing; and her former rôle of Baroness Papouche is played by Miss Nancy Langtyre with the happiest results. The broad humour of Mrs. Girdle could hardly be better developed than by Miss Irene Verona, who realises the character admirably. Mr. John Brabourne depicts Gustave Babori on original lines, gaining hearty plaudits for his performance. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., makes a hit as Boniface by his nimble dancing and excellent vocalism; Mr. Frank Hector plays in the right vein as Baron Papouche; and Mr. Ernest Mahar is agreeable as the unctuous head waiter at "The Crimson Butterfly." As Emmy Lou and Stephen Henry, Miss Nellie Lonnen and Mr. William Spray give an exceedingly mirthful display of juvenile precocity; Miss Amy Bingham is very successful as La Modiste; and Miss Jenny McNuety and Miss Beatrice Dunbar lend valuable aid as clients of Babori. Prominence is given to other parts by Mr. Jocelyn Hope as proprietor of "The Crimson Butterfly"; Mr. Duncan Kaye as Joseph Boniface; and Mr. Sims-Woolley as an inspector of police. The full chorus and augmented orchestra are admirably directed by Mr. Ernest Vousden, and Mr. W. Hesseltine is the courteous general-manager of the company.

AMUSEMENTS IN SINGAPORE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SINGAPORE, AUGUST 4, 1906.—A hearty welcome was accorded the Bandmann Opera Company (manager, Mr. F. Smith) who have appeared here in The Runaway Girl. As is usual when this clever combination visit Singapore, the house was crowded. Miss Georgie Corlass as Winifred Grey was charming, and made the hit of the evening in the song "The boy guessed right." Miss Wilmot Karkeek as Carmenita was excellent, and her dance in the third act with Mr. Mark Lester as Brother Tamarind was most heartily applauded. Mr. Harry Cole, a well-established favourite here, was amusing as Fripper, his "gags" being much appreciated. Mr. Ernest Attwell as Guy Stanley was in excellent voice; Mr. Albert Rees as Lord Coodle, and Mr. Henry Vincent as Mr. Creel were good; and special mention must be made of the fine singing of Mr. Wm. Baker as Boccaccio. Mr. Percy Hadyn was commendable as Sir William Hake; and Lady Coodle was successfully played by Miss M. Leslie. Messrs. Deane Percival and Will Smith as the Wandering Minstrels, Miss Nina Leslie as Dorothy Stanley, and Miss N. Pemberton as Agatha deserve great credit.

THE lease (ten years unexpired) of an important theatre in the busiest part of the Midlands is about to be disposed of. This affords a rather unusual opportunity for a good investment, it being the only dramatic house in the town, and having a surrounding population of 150,000. Particulars will be found in our advertisement columns.

ON Monday, at the Metropole Theatre, Royland, Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's No. 1 Proof company opened to a capital house. Mr. Gerald Kennedy is a fine, manly Pierre Lorrance; as Lazare Mr. W. J. Butler is all that can be desired; Messrs. Arthur St. Aubyn and Carl Beechy as Victor and the Duc D'Aubeterre respectively are very good; the Chamboran of Mr. Wilford Bailey is excellent; Miss Beatrice Shirley as Adrienne and Miss May Grimshaw as Valentine are heartily applauded.

MR. LESLIE AUSTIN'S friends will be sorry to hear he has been laid up with blood-poisoning, and has had to enter the Woodhouse Hospital, near Mansfield. He was taken ill during the performance of The New Barmaid on Monday. Through the influence of Mr. Fox, the manager of the Victoria Theatre, he was fortunate enough to gain immediate entrance to the above hospital, where he will receive every care and attention. In his absence, the part of Capt. Lovebury, in The New Barmaid, will be undertaken by Mr. Michael Dwyer, who will open on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton.

SHAKESPEARE'S LIFE.

"It was not until the nineteenth century," says Emerson in his "Representative Men," "that the tragedy of Hamlet could find such wondering readers. Now, literature, philosophy, and thought are Shakespearized. His mind is the horizon beyond which, at present, we do not see. Our ears are educated to music by his rhythm. Coleridge and Goethe are the only critics who have expressed our convictions with any adequate fidelity; but there is in all cultivated minds a silent appreciation of his superlative power and beauty, which, like Christianity, qualifies the period.

"The Shakespeare Society have inquired in all directions, advertised the missing facts, offered money for any information that will lead to proof; and with what result? Beside some important illustration of the history of the English stage, to which I have adverted, they have gleaned a few facts touching the property, and dealings in regard to property, of the poet. It appears that, from year to year, he owned a larger share in the Blackfriars' Theatre: its wardrobe and other appurtenances were his: that he bought an estate in his native village with his earnings as writer and shareholder; that he lived in the best house in Stratford; was intrusted by his neighbours with their commissions in London, as of borrowing money and the like; that he was a veritable farmer. About the time when he was writing Macbeth he sues Philip Rogers, in the Borough Court of Stratford, for thirty-five shillings, tenpence, for corn delivered to him at different times; and in all respects appears as a good husband, with no reputation for eccentricity or excess. He was a good-natured sort of man, an actor and shareholder in the theatre, not in any striking manner distinguished from other actors and managers. I admit the importance of this information. It was well worth the pains that have been taken to procure it.

"But whatever scraps of information concerning his condition these researches may have rescued, they can shed no light upon that infinite invention which is the concealed magnet of his attraction for us. We are very clumsy writers of history. We tell the chronicle of parentage, birth, birthplace, schooling, schoolmates, earning of money, marriage, publication of books, celebrity, death; and when we have come to an end of this gossip, no ray of relation appears between it and the goddess-born; and it seems as if, had we dipped at random into the 'Modern Plutarch,' and read any other life there, it would have fitted the poems as well. It is the essence of poetry to spring, like the rainbow daughter of Wonder, from the invisible, to abolish the past, and refuse all history. Malone, Warburton, Dyce, and Collier have wasted their oil. The famed theatres, Covent Garden, Drury Lane, the Park, and Tremont, have vainly assisted. Betterton, Garrick, Kemble, Kean, and Macready dedicate their lives to this genius; him they crown, elucidate, obey, and express. The genius knows them not. The recitation begins; one golden word leaps out immortal from all this painted pedantry, and sweetly torments us with invitations to its own inaccessible homes. I remember I went once to see the Hamlet of a famed performer, the pride of the English stage; and all I then heard, and all I now remember of the tragedian, was that in which the tragedian had no part; simply Hamlet's question to the ghost—

'What may this mean,
That thou, dead corse, again in complete steel
Revisit'st thus the glimpses of the moon?'

That imagination which dilates the closet he writes in to the world's dimensions, crowds it with agents in rank and order, as quickly reduces the big reality to be the glimpses of the moon. These tricks of his magic spoil for us the illusions of the greenroom. Can any biography shed light on the localities into which the Midsummer Night's Dream admits us? Did Shakespeare confide to any notary or parish recorder, sacristan, or surrogate, in Stratford, the genesis of that delicate creation? the forest of Arden, the nimble air of Scone Castle, the moonlight of Portia's villa, 'the antres vast and desarts idle,' of Othello's captivity,—where is the third cousin, or grand-nephew, the chancellor's file of accounts, or private letter that has kept one word of those transcendent secrets? In fine, in this drama, as in all great works of art,—in the Cyclopæan architecture of Egypt and India; in the Phidian sculpture; the Gothic minsters; the Italian painting; the Ballads of Spain and Scotland,—the Genius draws up the ladder after him when the creative age goes up to heaven, and gives away to a new, who see the works, and ask in vain for a history.

"Shakespeare is the only biographer of Shakespeare) and even he can tell nothing, except to the Shakespeare in us; that is, to our most apprehensive and sympathetic hour. He cannot step from off his tripod and give us anecdotes of his inspirations. Read the antique documents extricated, analysed, and compared by the assiduous Dyce and Collier; and now read one of those skiey sentences—aërolites—which seem to have fallen out of heaven, and which, not your experience, but the man within the breast has accepted as words of fate; and tell me if they match; if the former account in any manner for the latter; or, which gives the most historic insight into the man.

"Hence, though our external history is so meagre, yet, with Shakespeare for biographer, instead of Aubrey and Rowe, we have really the information which is material, that which describes character and fortune, that which, if we were about to meet the man and deal with him, would most import us to know. We have his recorded convictions on those questions which knock for answer at every heart,—on life and death, on love on wealth and poverty, on the prizes of life, and the ways whereby we come at them; on the characters of men, and the influences, occult and open, which affect their fortunes; and on those mysterious and demoniacal powers which defy our science, and which yet interweave their malice and their gift in our brightest hours. Who ever read the volume of the Sonnets without finding that the poet had there revealed, under masks that are no masks to the intelligent, the lore of friendship and of love; the confusion of sentiments in the most susceptible, and, at the same time, the most intellectual of men? What trait of his private mind has he hidden in his dramas? One can discern, in his ample pictures of the gentleman and the King, what forms and humanities pleased him; his delight in troops of friends, in large hospitality, in cheerful giving. Let Timon, let Warwick, let Antonio the merchant, answer for his great heart. So far from Shakespeare's being the least known, he is the one person, in all modern history, known to us. What point of morals, of manners, of economy, of philosophy, of religion, of taste, of the conduct of life, has he not settled? What mystery has he not signified his knowledge of? What office, or function, or district of man's work, has he not remembered? What King has he not taught state, as Talma taught Napoleon? What maiden has not found him finer than her delicacy? What lover has he not outloved? What sage has he not outseen? What gentleman has he not instructed in the rudeness of his behaviour?

"Some able and appreciating critics think no criticism on Shakespeare valuable that does not rest purely on the dramatic merit; that he is falsely judged as poet and philosopher. I think as highly as these critics of his dramatic merit, but still think it secondary. He was a full man, who liked to talk; a brain exhaling thoughts and images, which, seeking vent, found the drama next at hand. Had he been less, we should have had to consider how well he filled his place, how good a dramatist he was,—and he is the best in the world.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Play, by Claude Askew and Edward Knoblauch, entitled
"THE SHULAMITE."

A most powerful and tragically interesting play is The Shulamite, and one worthy to succeed, by reason of its artistic excellence, but we doubt whether the public, who in these days are so much inclined to dramatic fare of a lighter nature, will ever be attracted in sufficient numbers to achieve the financial success necessary to encourage Miss Lena Ashwell, as a manageress, to give the play a prominent place in her répertoire. For candidly, the piece is at present too gloomy, and wants much relief. It is a pity, too, that while the authors, in deference to public opinion, altered the finish of the play in order to admit of the conventional happy ending, they did not introduce two or three characters of a comedy type so as to relieve the existing atmosphere of depression. For the acting of the six artists comprising the cast we have nothing but praise. From the principal to the minor characters, each performance is a perfect study. Miss Lena Ashwell as Deborah Krillet displays talent of a high order, her acting as the girl whose life as the wife of the Boer, Simeon Krillet, is one dreary round of monotony until she meets the young English overseer, arousing genuine enthusiasm. Mr. Charles Weir, already favourably known as an actor of no mean ability, splendidly realises the old Boer farmer Krillet. Robert Waring is impersonated by Mr. W. T. Lovell with manliness and skilful restraint. Jan Vanderberg is neatly undertaken by Mr. Reynolds Denniston. As Tante Anna Vanderberg, Miss Mary Griffiths makes a signal success; and Miss Beryl Mercer delicately sustains the part of the Kaffir girl Memke. Very picturesque scenery of the veldt and Boer farm is provided. The farce, by M. E. Francis and Sidney Valentine, entitled The Widow Woos, is also played, creating much laughter, and in it Mr. Denniston, Mr. Charles Weir, Miss Mary Griffiths, and Miss Marcella Hudson pleasantly distinguish themselves.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Farcical Comedy, entitled
"OUR FLAT."

There could be no doubt, judging by the reception given to Mr. Charles Steuart and his company on Monday, on the occasion of a return visit here, that they would have a very successful week's engagement. The constant merriment and applause of the delighted audience testified to their appreciation of this "hardy perennial" farce, Mr. Steuart being supported by a company of distinctly clever artists, who obtain from the various rôles the fullest effect. Mr. Steuart's exposition of the unsuccessful dramatic author, Reginald Sylvester, is as natural as it is funny and clever. The part of Mr. McCullum is invested with much fun by Mr. Henry Bute, that gentleman's impersonation of the irate father being life-like. As Clarence Vane, Mr. Clayton Greene acts easily, naturally, and well. That experienced actor, Mr. Wilfred E. Shine, gives a capital delineation of Nathaniel Glover, and his performance is intensely funny. Mrs. Sylvester finds a delightful and clever representative in Miss Daisy Atherton and Miss Sylvia Morris makes the most of her opportunities in the part of Lucy McCullum. Miss Mary Stuart is successful in the rôle of Mme. Volant; and Miss Katie Yates causes considerable amusement as the precocious child from the flat below. Miss Pollie Emery scores in her admirable character sketch of the Sylvester's servant, Bella; she is genuinely funny, and her comical make-up and quaint humour bring down the house. Valuable assistance is rendered by Messrs. Fred Conyers (Pinchard), Kaye Brundel (foreman from the furniture stores), and Mr. Frank Emery (Stout, the hall porter). Our Flat is preceded by another farcical episode, entitled Thomas Trotter, in which Mr. Charles Steuart, Miss Katie Yates, and Miss Sylvia Morris successfully appear. The incidental music and selections are well rendered by the excellent orchstra of the theatre under the direction of Mr. Chas. Elcock.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"FLORODORA."

Another old favourite here is meeting this week with great success, Florodora being presented in most attractive style by Mr. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company. It is a capital crowd, in which everyone is exactly suited to the part allotted, and there is an excellent chorus under the able direction of Mr. B. J. Patterson. In the rôle of Antony Tweedlepunch we find that first-rate comedian, Mr. Daley Cooper, whose many drolleries keep the fun going at high pressure. Mr. Cooper plays the part on his own lines, which are intensely funny. Miss Violet Grazia acts well as Dolores, her singing of her various numbers being capital. In the part of Frank Abercoed Mr. R. Courier Dutton sings artistically, and meets with a great reception for his rendering of some of the most popular airs of the comedy. Mr. J. R. Tate is very good indeed as Mr. Gilfain, and is also responsible for the excellent stage-management. As Angela Gilfain we have Miss Nellie Bowman, who gives a dainty impersonation of the character, and in Act II. sings "My Starlight Queen," a very charming number. Her dancing also adds in no small measure to her success. Captain Arthur Donegal is played in a genial manner by Mr. Harold Perry, who contributes "I want to be a military man" in dashing style. Miss Edith Housley as Lady Holyrood scores heavily by her smart and fascinating manner, her songs "Tact" and "Inkling" being sung with great point and judgment. Mr. Edwin Oxley, excellently made up as Leandro, makes full use of the somewhat slender opportunities that the part offers. Of the excellence of the work done by the chorus we have already spoken, but we must add a word of special praise to those ladies and gentlemen who appear in the double sextet, "Tell me, pretty maiden," which seemed to go better than ever. The play is, as usual, very prettily staged, and the dresses are handsome and tasteful, the final scene in the ballroom at the Castle being most brilliant. Mr. Andrew Spens is the general-manager for the company.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke's specially selected company is giving here an admirable interpretation of Mr. Hall Caine's powerful drama The Christian. As the high-souled priest, the Rev. John Storm, Mr. Frank Tennants imparts dramatic effect to a character that requires skilful and artistic handling, bringing into prominence the religious fervour of the earnest reformer. As Glory Quayle Miss Grace Chalmers colours her part in the early scenes with the capriciousness and frivolity of a careless, unthinking child of nature, while at the same time emphasising in the cleverest fashion the underlying love and devotion for her childhood's playmate, John Storm. Miss Molly Hayden as the kind-hearted Mrs. Callander acts with womanly dignity and grace, being most impressive in her denunciation of the disconcerted Bishop—a part that is cleverly handled by Mr. Charles E. Dering. Miss Vashti Wellbourne invests the character of Polly Love with delicacy and feeling; Miss May Weir is seen to advantage in the low-comedy part of Aggie Jones; as Liza, the dancing girl, Miss Kate Lee is quite successful; Mr. Edwin Ling as Father Lamplugh represents the aged, dignified, and gentle minister with power and emotion; as Father Quayle Mr. Charles Hill has little to do, but does that little well; Mr. George R. Montford as Lord Robert Ure is forcible and intense; and Mr. Jackson Wilcox as Horatio Drake is conspicuously good. Mr. Bert Conway as the Faro King acts with a consistent recklessness; the Mr. Lorimer of Mr. Fern Pounds aids the success; and smaller parts are handled effectively by Mr. A. E. Kingston as the Linkman, Mr. Wilfred Noy as Brother Paul (a very creditable performance), Miss May Dudley as Betty, Miss Violet White as Nelly, and Miss Nelly Hastings as Letty. Mr. Wentworth Croke is to be congratulated on the mounting of the play and on his company.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 10, the Military Drama, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled
"TOMMY ATKINS."

The military drama, entitled Tommy Atkins, is being received with considerable favour at the Dalston Theatre this week. Mr. Albert Ward has a part well suited to his manly style as Harold Wilson, whose first introduction to the audience is in the character of a curate. Eventually, however, Wilson appears as a soldier on active service. Ruth, whose fortunes are closely allied with those of Wilson, has a most sympathetic representative in Mrs. Bennett, who spares no pains to render the part effective. Mr. Horace Hunter is Captain Richard Maitland, Mr. Ernest Roberts Captain Bob Sparrow, and Mr. Teddy Coleman Colour-Sergeant Paddy Molley. A good bit of character-acting is provided by Mr. C. P. Morton as Private Mason; Mr. Edwin Bennett evinces all the necessary stolidity as Stephen Raymond; Mr. Brian Daly as Ebenezer Skindle, organist and choirmaster, causes many a hearty laugh; Mr. Paul Peters makes a dignified Colonel Hardwicke; and Miss Gladys King as Rose Selwyn presents the character effectively.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
Shakespeare's Tragedy of
"OTHELLO."

An enthusiastic audience, which packed the theatre in every part, welcomed the appearance on Monday evening of the renowned Jewish tragedian, Mr. Sigmund Flenman, who is justly celebrated in the Yiddish-speaking world for his Shakespearean performances. Othello was the play selected for the opening night of this engagement, and was presented by the management with new scenery and rich and handsome dresses; while the appointments, stage-management, and general ensemble were in every way admirable. Mr. Sigmund Flenman held his audience from his first entrance down to the final fall of the curtain. By his commanding presence and majestic bearing he makes an ideal Othello, his impersonation throughout being in every way an excellent performance, and proving the actor to be possessed of real ability. His dignity and repose, combined with his thoughtful declamation in the Senate scene, evoked warm applause. Mr. M. D. Waxman deserves all praise, and must be warmly congratulated on his highly-finished reading of Iago, which was portrayed with artistic subtlety. Mr. Waxman has done much good work here during the season, but he has never been seen to such great advantage as on Monday, when he surpassed all previous efforts by his really brilliant acting as Iago, which must place him in the front rank of studious histrions. An easy characterisation of Cassio was given with sterling effect by Mr. Joseph Fineberg; and Mr. J. Scherman was a dashing and handsome Roderigo; while Brabantio was well played by Mr. Goldsmith. Much fervour and earnestness were displayed by Mme. F. Waxman as Desdemona; and Mme. F. Kayzer was full of fire and vigour in the last act as Emilia. Mr. N. Hamburger was capital as the Duke of Venice, and Mr. Streng was satisfactory as Montano. Admirable performances have been given during the week of Persecution in Portugal, Thirty Years in Siberia, The Golden Hand, Alexander, and The Viceroy.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled
"THE UGLIEST WOMAN ON EARTH."

Another success has been insured for the Lyric this week by a visit from The Ugliest Woman on Earth. The house was packed on Monday, and, from the enthusiasm of the audience on that evening, is likely to be so during the ensuing days. The title-rôle is played by Miss Beatrice Homer, who is by turns strenuous and pathetic; Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merriman throws into that character much manliness; the villainous rôle of Hubert Gold is wisely entrusted to Mr. Leyton Cancellor, who gives a life-like impersonation of that ignoble schemer; Miss Nellie Oliver deserves a special word of commendation for her success in the portrayal of Rose Courtenay. The humour is supplied liberally by Mr. Tubby Edlin, who keeps his audience in roars of laughter, being ably assisted by Miss Nellie Jackson, who as Aggie Brown is well placed. Praise is also due to Miss Margaret Watson for the charming and artistic way in which she plays the part of Marita. Mr. Charles Barrett's character-sketch of the scheming Italian Antonio is full of cleverness. Others who give valuable assistance are Mr. Allen Davenport as Tom Redvers, Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Dr. Barr, and Mr. W. Wallace-Aston as Raggles.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Sydney Grundy, entitled
"A PAIR OF SPECTACLES."

Not for some years have Kingstonians had an opportunity of witnessing this charming play, and there was therefore a big house at the Royal County Theatre on Monday night when it was presented by a company under the direction of Mr. Russell Rosse. Mr. David James appeared as the benevolent and truthful Benjamin Goldfinch, a part that admirably fits him, and which he portrayed with a natural ease that won much admiration; and Mr. Charles Groves played the bluff man from Sheffield, Uncle Gregory, with a breeziness and a force that were well sustained throughout. Other parts were ably filled by Miss Ida Phillips as Mrs. Goldfinch; by Miss Nora Dwyer as Lucy Lorimer; by Mr. Horace Pollock as Percy; and by Mr. James Geldard as Dick. It is unnecessary to add that the play was rapturously received. Preceding it was presented a costume comedy, entitled Her First Love, a little tale of the French Revolution, in which the parts were taken as follows:—Citizen Roland, Mr. Michael Dwyer; Eugène de Pombert, Mr. Norman Clark; and Pauline Rolland, Miss Norah Dwyer. It was capitally performed, and was well received.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and company, with a répertoire of Shakespearean plays, are the attraction at the Shakespeare Theatre this week, and the bare statement of the fact ought in itself to serve as an incentive to the enthusiasm of Clapham playgoers. Upon no particular play do these accomplished artists rely, preferring to vary the week's programme with such perennial favourites as The Taming of the Shrew, Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Macbeth, The Merchant of Venice, &c. The large crowd which assembled on Monday evening to witness the production of the first-named play waxed enthusiastic throughout, and at the close of the performance accorded a rare ovation to Mr. and Mrs. Benson, a tribute very gratifying alike to players and management. As Petruchio Mr. Benson has a part which suits him to perfection, and it is sufficient to say that he was a complete success. In the exacting rôle of Katharina, Mrs. Benson scored a veritable triumph, and her clever delineation of the Shrew was the leading feature of the play. Mr. George Buchanan as Lucentio made an ideal lover; the natural charm and grace of Miss Olive Noble were well suited to the rôle of Bianca, her acting leaving nothing to be desired; Gremio had an excellent representative in Mr. H. O. Nicholson; and another good performance was that of Mr. Stanley Howlett, who satisfactorily enacted the part of Hortensio. Warm praise must also be accorded Mr. Edward A. Warburton, whose delineation of Baptista was eminently satisfactory. Mr. Murray Carrington as Vincentio made excellent use of limited opportunities; Mr. G. F. Hannah Clark as Pedant; and Mr. J. P. Wilson as a tailor were good in their respective parts; and Mr. Clarence Derwent as Tranio was seen to advantage. Mr. Geo. R. Weir contributed a sterling performance of Grumio, and, together with Mr. Percy D. Owen as Biondello, caused much laughter. Miss Cissie Saumarez creditably sustained the part of the widow, and her singing was received with applause. The minor parts were capably enacted by Miss Leah Hanman, Miss Elinor Aicken, Mr. J. Moffat Johnston, Mr. Walter Bullen, and Mr. J. Cartwright. Mr. Cuthbert Ricketts is the acting-manager for Mr. F. R. Benson.

PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Romantic Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Howard, entitled
"TWO LITTLE SAILOR BOYS."

Mr. W. H. Hallatt's excellent company has received a warm welcome at this popular theatre during the past week in Two Little Sailor Boys. In this attractive drama there is much to command and sustain the interest of the audience. Mr. Jerrold Heather as Noel Tregarthan makes a capital hero, and looks an ideal sailor; and Mr. Ellerslie Pyne as Captain Tom Yorke, an officer in the sister service does good work. Mr. J. Court Harvard as Admiral Grey is excellent as the retired officer, and displays considerable talent in his rendering of the part. As Lieut. Redstone, R.N., Mr. Ellerslie Pyne could not be bettered, and the villainy of the character is well brought out. As Jack Jolly, A.B., Mr. Oscar Power provides plenty of amusement; Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Ben Baxter, policeman and detective, is highly capable; and as Jim Royston, Mr. Ambrose Horton is capital. As the heroine, Mildred Grey, Misss Alice Défoe acts with considerable sympathy and charm, making the most of every opportunity. Miss Blanche Steele enacts the difficult rôle of Lola Grey to everyone's satisfaction, giving a forcible representation of the character. As Cyril Grey, Miss May Day submits a charming study, and proves herself a capital little actress; and the same remark applies to Miss Ethel Frances Greene, who furnishes an able rendering of the part of Tom Yorke.

THE COROPET.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Opera, by Georges Bizet, entitled
"CARMEN."

A week of English opera by the Moody-Manners Opera Company opened at the popular Notting Hill playhouse on Monday, with Bizet's Carmen, ever a public favourite. A full house showed its appreciation and enjoyment of the excellent rendering given. Mr. Lewis James was good as Escamillo, the usual encore being given for the Toreador's song. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan, in the title-rôle, was in magnificent voice, and sang throughout with consummate ease, acting also with great animation. Miss Ethel Cadman, a charming Michaela, portrayed successfully the naïve simplicity of the peasant girl; and Don José was satisfactorily filled by Mr. Wilson Pembroke, whose rendering of the beautiful "Flower Song" brought down the house. With Mr. Bailey and Mr. Moppett, the parts of Il Remendado and Il Dancairo were quite safe; and the Dragoons, Morales and Zuniga, were effectively played by Messrs. Cliffe and Rowe. The chorus responded to the skilful conducting of Signor Sapio in excellent manner. The ensemble and mounting of the whole opera were, as is always the case with Mr. Manners's companies, excellent. Lohengrin, Tännhauser, Romeo and Juliet, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Pagliacci have also been given during the week.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Musical Play, by Hugh Morton and Gustave Kerker, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

This old favourite is still proving its power of attraction at the Fulham Theatre, where it is being played by Mr. Musgrove's chief company, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard. The part of Violet Grey, so long identified with Miss Edna May, is being played by Miss Empsie Bowman, who is as charming and dainty a representative as one could wish for. Miss Winnie Browne is most successful in the part of the enterprising Cora Angelique; and Miss Lily Maxwell as the faithful Fifi acts well, and renders admirably the now-familiar songs allotted to the part. Miss Florence Hersee as Mamie Clancy contributes some brilliant dancing and some clever acting; Mr. John Doran is excellent as Harry Bronson, and plays the hero with admirable feeling and naturalness; Mr. Paddy Duprès is well suited as Ichabod Bronson, and acts with rich humour and unflagging spirit; the part of Karl von Pumpernick, the polite lunatic, a character whose refreshing originality stamps it as quite an inspiration on the part of its creator, is admirably played by Mr. Max Copeland, who does not fail to move his audience to fits of laughter. Of Mr. Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill one need only say that he is as good as ever, and his extraordinarily clever dancing, whistling, and acting are still worthy of the highest praise. Mr. W. Uridge scores deservedly as Kenneth Mugg, and shows himself to be a comedian of great ability; it is a very clever study of the actor who never ceases to act and to pose. Mr. Alfred Sandoe is also successful as Doc Snifkins, the "heavy father" type of histrion. Mr. R. L. Cody and Mr. Lionel Yeoman, admirably made up as the Portuguese twins, are remarkably entertaining. The chorus sang with great spirit; and the dresses were excellent. The orchestra under the direction of Mr. Ernée Woodville, did full justice to the tuneful music.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Chas. Darrell, entitled
"WHEN LONDON SLEEPS."

This famous drama, which eleven years ago did so much to draw attention to the vice and degradation prevalent in the streets of London, and which has undoubtedly conduced to the great improvement which is now evident, is still a great draw in the provinces. That there is no failing in its popularity when it comes to London was evident on Monday evening at the Elephant and Castle. Mr. Lester Collingwood presents a really smart all-round company, which very ably portrays both the sentiment and humour of the play. Mr. Sam Arthur makes a manly and convincing hero as David Engleheart, and acts with much feeling throughout. Mr. C. P. Wentworth is a plausible villain as Captain Rodney Hayes. Miss Maud Yorke as Hilda Carode, the villainess of the piece, imbues the character with the usual heartlessness and hatred, although when searching for her child she is pathetic in the extreme. Miss Josephine Melbourne makes a natural and pretty child. The humour of the evening could not be in better hands, Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as Sammy Blythe—first as a circus clown and then cleverly disguised in feminine attire—causes roars of laughter. The funniest scene is undoubtedly when the Hon. Bertie Broomhead, seeing life, endeavours to make love to him. Mr. Frank Howard plays the "young honourable," and makes a great hit in a typical "Mr. Popple" character. Mr. Ford Barnado as a policeman must be complimented on his delivery of many impressive lines; Mr. Chas. E. Sutton makes an admirable solicitor as Mr. Fuller of Lincoln's Inn; Mr. F. E. Thomas is effective as Prof. Jones, whilst as his wife, Signorina Jones, Mrs. Edgar Colona is very successful. As Maudie de Freier, an adventuress, Miss Daisy Clifford is excellent; Carrie Jones is capably played by Miss Bessie Frank, who helps much in the fun of the piece; Miss Mabel Scudamore is well suited as Queenie Carruthers, her acting throughout being consistent and natural. Her scene wherein she escapes from the burning bedroom is watched midst intense excitement. Other characters are in thoroughly efficient hands.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Play, in Five Acts, by Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week with the well-known play Two Little Vagabonds, which is proving a great attraction. While "the play's the thing," the mounting and dressing of the piece, for which the Grand is so well adapted, leave nothing to be desired, and are in themselves sufficient to ensure a successful run. Mr. William Fazan presents an excellent study of Geo. Thornton, being particularly strong in the drawing room scene of Act I. As Marion Thornton, the much-injured wife and mother, Miss Laura Hansen wins the hearts of the audience from the outset, and gives a rendering of the part that could hardly be bettered. Miss May Hart as Wally and Miss Margaret Nybloc as Dick, the two little vagabonds, are delightfully boyish and natural. A capable impersonation of Captain Darville is given by Mr. Henry Watson; and the part of John Scarth is in the good hands of Mr. Edmund Cuthbert. Mr. John F. Traynor makes a lusty and amusing ruffian as Bill Mullins, "the gaffer," whose equally villainous confederates Dido Bunce and the Congh Drop are well portrayed by Messrs. Ernest K. Nelson and Fred Archer. The part of Barbara Scarth calls for real talent, and Miss F. Russel Spiers, who presents it, is not found wanting. Mr. Hugh Holliman as Gorgoyle, the Sexton, gives occasion for no little fun, and the parts of Leeson, Hargitt, Dr. Lynn, and Whiffin, the village constable, are admirably filled by Messrs. Jack Royal, Marston Moor, Thos. Blakeman, and Henry Buckland. Miss Marie Pritchard gives a clever sketch of a dram-loving Irishwoman as Biddy Mullins, and Miss Muriel Clay is good as Sister Randall. The company is in its entirety capable, and deserves all the success that the patrons of the Grand seem wishful to accord it.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by C. Watson Mill, entitled
"A WARNING TO WOMEN."

The original and intensely interesting drama, A Warning to Women, is receiving a capital interpretation at the hands of the Standard company this week. The piece is of a highly-dramatic and sensational nature, and the artistes responsible for the production seem to have thoroughly grasped the meaning the author wishes to convey, and supply a performance of genuine excellence. Mr. Roy Redgrave proves of great assistance as Shaun, a wandering minstrel, and plays throughout with force and skill; making the rôle one of great interest. Mr. J. C. Aubrey enacts the part of Dr. Marcus Dread with all the callousness that is considered essential in a rôle of this kind. As Fergus M'Naughton Mr. Wingold Lawrence sustains the character with much ability, and later in the piece plays with due regard to the pathetic nature of the part. Mr. Jack Denton imbues the rôle of Lord Eversleigh with fun of an irresistible nature, and is a great success. Much praise is due to Mr. Frank Lister for his highly interesting performance as Squire Kennion. He takes full advantage of every opportunity that is offered, and holds the closest attention of the audience whenever he is upon the stage. Mr. Henry C. Cooper is a satisfactory Rev. Emmanuel Wallace, and Mr. Herbert Woodin plays with spirit as Mike McQuade. Mr. George Villiers is well placed as Ferdinand de Joules. A clever piece of acting is supplied by Little Florrie Green as Myles O'More, and Miss Eva Dare skilfully portrays Sheila Kennion. Miss Ruth Zillwood is all that could be desired as Molly O'More, and Miss Marion Turner scores a success as Hildred. Miss Olga Audre is possessed of talents of a high order of merit, and makes capital use of them as Moira Kennion. She contributes a performance which is much appreciated, and deserves a special word of praise.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 10, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Owen Hall, composed by Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE GIRL FROM KAY'S."

A return visit from The Girl from Kay's, presented by one of Mr. George Dance's numerous organisations, constitutes the attraction for the second week of the season at the Alexandra. Several musical numbers are now sung which were not heard in the original version of the piece, the most attractive of which is "Lord Golliwog of Grosvenor-square." This is sung by Miss Nancy Hervyn, an engaging exponent of the title-rôle, who renders all her songs with admirable point and distinctness. A clever and amusing performance of the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle comes from Mr. Tom Shelford, who continues to impart an air of originality to a conventional and somewhat hackneyed type of part. The maid Ellen is briskly and vivaciously played by Miss Chrissie Ralland, and Miss Aimée Grey is fully equal to all demands made upon her, either for singing or acting, as Norah Chalmers. The humours of Max Hoggenheimer are ably and successfully presented by Mr. Arthur Stigant, and a considerable portion of the laughter heard during the evening is of his making. Mr. S. Major Jones, who appears as the hall porter Joseph, misses no opportunity of scoring, and his entertaining performance proves a deservedly popular one. Miss Edith Cruickshanks is a duly imposing and impressive Mrs. Chalmers; and a quaint little sketch of Theodore Quench, K.C., is furnished by Mr. Buchanan Wake. The parts of Harry Gordon and Mr. Chalmers are successfully filled by Messrs. Herbert Franklyn and Charles Lupton respectively. The chorus go through their work spiritedly and well under the musical direction of Mr. Basil Hersfall, a most liberal dispenser of encores.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled,
"HUMAN HEARTS."

Human Hearts, which is playing to crowded houses this week at the Brixton Theatre, is performed by a company of exceptional ability, and fully appeals to the sympathy of the audience. Mr. George Rowland gives a manly and vigorous impersonation of the hero, and is well suited to the rôle. Mr. L. Williams enacts with spirit the villainous Fred Armsdale; Mr. Sydney Sarl keeps the audience in good humour with his clever impersonation of Jim Mason; Mr. Arthur Estcourt plays admirably the part of Moss; that of Richard Markham is successfully undertaken by Mr. Edwin Palmer; Deputy Western is faithfully represented by Mr. Frith Leicester; Master Thomas Robertson is to be congratulated upon his performance as the lame boy Limpy Morgan; Miss V. Fordyce creates a deep impression by her powerful rendering of Jenie Logan; and a sympathetic Ruth is presented by Miss Minnie Silvester. Miss Bessie Palmer as Tom's mother acts with pathos and moves the audience to tears; little Freda Green is a pretty and natural Gracie; and Miss Barbara deserves great credit for her rendering of Jimmy Logan. The smaller characters of Sam Logan and Mike Corrigan are adequately represented by Mr. A. W. Brame and Mr. Wynne Hammond, who make the most of their opportunities. Mr. William Bourne is the courteous business-manager.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 10, for the first time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"AN UNWEDDED WIFE."

John Hawthorne .....Mr. J. Edward Whitty
Philip Blackstone ....Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes
Frank Armstrong .....Mr. Reginald Payne
Napoleon B. Boomer .....Mr. Fred C. Imbert
Perkinson Pimple .....Mr. Harry Townley
David Drummond .....Mr. Henry Nisbett
Christopher Lennox .....Mr. Edward Finlay
Inspector Grabbem .....Mr. Fred Allen
Constable Runyin .....Mr. J. A. Grove
Reggie .....Little Ella
Elsie Langham .....Miss Violet Wilson
Caraway Crumpet .....Miss Amy Coralli
Marion .....Miss Ethel Van Praagh

The name of the author of An Unweeded Wife, produced at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, on July 30 last, and played for the first time in London at Mr. William Bailey's playhouse in Church-street, Edgware-road, on Monday, is not given on the programme, but it is evidently written by someone familiar with the requirements of a popular audience. Containing numerous sensational incidents, and plenty of amusing comedy lines, the play interested the full house assembled on Monday from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and it should meet with success in the provinces, and at those suburban theatres where drama is the attraction.

The "unwedded wife" is Marion, who has been betrayed by a callous scoundrel named Philip Blackstone. He has led her to believe she is his lawful wife until she discovers him proposing marriage to Elsie Langham, whose fortune of £40,000 is not her least attraction in his eyes. She has a guardian, David Drummond, but there is apparently something shady about his past, for Philip threatens to expose him when he refuses to let Elsie marry him. Not that the girl is anxious to, for she has a lover much more to her liking in Frank Armstrong, but he also does not meet with the approval of Drummond, who dismisses him from his employ, and prevents him from getting another situation by refusing him a character. Blackstone is determined if he cannot get the girl, he will have her fortune, and when Drummond hides the money and a valuable diamond necklace under a huge flower-pot in the conservatory, he is not long in annexing it. He is discovered in the act by Drummond, whom he eventually kills, and when he comes out to look for the "swag," which he has thrown through the window, finds it gone, Marion having taken charge of it. Blackstone, of course, manages it so that Armstrong shall be suspected of the murder, and in the next act, Armstrong's lodgings, one of the most exciting episodes of the play occurs. Marion and Armstrong are brother and sister, and when she tells Blackstone that she will inform the police whom the murderer really is, the villain threatens to kill their child. In the room is a huge electric hammer, the invention of Armstrong, and Blackstone places the boy beneath it. Blackstone has his hand on the lever, and declares that if Marion "gives him away," the hammer shall descend. Apparently, the boy is rescued; but not before he is seriously injured, for in the next act we find the distracted Marion by the bedside of little Reggie. The youngster wakes up, and there is a pathetic scene between mother and child, the boy eventually expiring in his mother's arms. Previous to this Marion has entrusted Elsie's fortune to the keeping of John Hawthorne, a "tool" of Blackstone's, who discovers that Elsie is his daughter. Blackstone comes to Marion's boudoir for the "treasure," and after Marion has informed him that she has placed it in safe hands, she draws the curtains aside, and he is shown the dead body of Reggie, Marion accusing him of being his son's murderer.

In the third act, which is at Blackstone's house, the villain again makes a determined attempt to capture Elsie's fortune; and very nearly succeeds in carrying off the girl herself. She is rescued by Hawthorne; but her lover Armstrong is taken by the police, and Blackstone and his accomplice, Lennox, escape. Marion loses her reason, and in the first scene of the last act we see her wandering about, imagining she is talking to her boy. She also nearly discloses where the fortune is concealed to Blackstone, who manages to hang about the house without being seen. Frank Armstrong escapes from prison, and is hidden from his pursuers in a property-box belonging to Napoleon B. Boomer, who, in conjunction with the other comedy characters, outwits the police and Blackstone. In the last scene, the ruins of the Haunted Abbey of St. Kilda, Marion, who has not regained her reason, comes in search of the fortune, and encounters Blackstone and his accomplice. Marion eventually finds the bag containing the money and diamonds, and is overpowered by Blackstone; but the tables are finally turned. Marion's reason is restored; Blackstone dies by his own hand; Armstrong and Elsie are reunited; and there is a prospect that Marion will some day wed John Hawthorne, a worthy fellow, who has long loved her.

The piece was admirably played by Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company, the important part of Marion having a powerful and altogether satisfactory representative in Miss Ethel Van Praagh. Especially telling was her acting in the scene where the little boy dies, and also in the episode where her mind is unhinged, her portrayal throughout of an exceedingly arduous rôle being most praiseworthy. The success of the above-mentioned scene was also largely contributed to by Little Ella, the youngster giving a natural and intelligent rendering of the boy Reggie. Miss Violet Wilson acted with earnestness and conviction as the long-suffering Elsie Langham; Mr. J. Edward Whitty was entirely satisfactory as John Hawthorne; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes left no doubt as to the villainous intentions of Philip Blackstone; and Mr. Reginald Payne was a manly and sincere Frank Armstrong. The many amusing comedy scenes were safe in the hands of Mr. Fred C. Imbert, a funny representative of Napoleon B. Boomer; Mr. Harry Townley, a quaint Perkinson Pimple; and Miss Amy Coralli, a lively and decidedly smart Caraway Crumpet. The other parts were all satisfactorily enacted. The scenery by Messrs. W. D. Hobbs and Alfred Whyatt is especially deserving of praise, The Lawn of Ormondstone Manor, Rosemary Cottage, and the Ruins of the Haunted Abbey of St. Kilda being excellent examples of brush work.

Mr. Fred Vezin, a nephew of Mr. Hermann Vezin, the actor, an American artist, living in Dusseldorf, has been commissioned to paint a large full-length portrait of the German Empress for the City Hall at Elberfeld.

"IVANHOE."

In Five Acts,
dramatised from Sir Walter Scott's novel
by William Palmer, and produced at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester,
on Monday, Sept. 10.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

Mr. Richard Flanagan's enterprise in the way of elaborate productions was once more in evidence at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last, when he staged Mr. William Palmer's dramatic version of Ivanhoe. Of thirteen scenes, only one is duplicated, and many are elaborate and splendid sets, for which Mr. Hugh Freemantle and the author are responsible. Careful study of the period has ensured also accuracy in the costumes, and these lack nothing in the way of brilliancy and splendour. Everything, indeed, that a lavish hand could supply has been provided in the endeavour to make Ivanhoe at least a spectacular success.

Mr. Palmer's effort is practically a transcript of a succession of scenes from the novel. Some scenes are cleverly handled, and with excision of unimportant parts, so that the adventures of Rebecca would stand out more clearly as a leading theme, the play might be much improved.

The cast is a lengthy one. As Ivanhoe, Mr. A. Caton Woodville, jun., acts vigorously—when he is not hors-de-combat—and declaims his contempt for his enemies with becoming spirit. Mr. H. Gomer May plays the chief enemy, Brian-de-Bois Guilbert, with acceptable energy, doing particularly well in the scene with Rebecca in the turret tower of Torquilstone Castle. As Prince John, Mr. James Berry has too little to do, and might have shone worthily in a longer and more important rôle; while Mr. Herbert Dansey as the Black Knight—an unnecessary character, by the way—is conspicuous in some not very relevant scenes. Mr. Frank Freeland gives a satisfactory depiction of De Beaumanoir; Mr. J. H. Troughton figures prominently as Locksley; and Mr. J. H. Atkinson as Wamba, the jester, delivers his lines with the dry humour that is characteristic of him. Miss Katherine Harrington plays Lady Rowena—a very stinted part—with a grace and sympathy indicative of much greater possibilities in this pleasing actress; and as Rebecca, Miss Dora Barton also shows her possession of admirable gifts. Rebecca's father, Isaac of York, is portrayed with a good deal of sincerity and no little skill by Mr. Charles Garry; and last, but by no means least, of those most worthy of mention, Mr. Harrison Brockbank must be very highly commended for his jovial depiction of Friar Tuck. Mr. Brockbank's singing of "Ho! Jolly Jenkin" (by kind permission of Mr. Herbert Sullivan) was vastly enjoyed by Monday's audience.

Among the notable scenes is that of the Tilt-yard, Templestowe, where Ivanhoe and Brian-de-Bois Guilbert fight on horseback with lances for the vindication of Rebecca from the charge of witchcraft. The entire production, however, has made great demands upon the ability and experience of Mr. Richard Dalton, the stage manager, to whom great credit is due.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

On the night of the 6th inst., at Queen's Hall, the first production was given of Mr. Georges Dorlay's symphonic poem "St. George," the composer being second violin player in the Queen's Hall orchestra. Early in the year the work was performed at the Crystal Palace. The composer in the programme gives the information that the subject was inspired by Schiller's poem. In the first portion of the symphonic poem the music is stormy, and, truth to tell, somewhat noisy in character, the entrance of the bold St. George with the dead dragon being heralded with a fanfare on the horn, afterwards repeated with variations by the whole orchestra; but the fact of the monster being as dead as the proverbial door-nail hardly gives sufficient reason for the dragon-motive introduced in the score. The work is slight in its treatment, and not of any special interest. The orchestra gave performances of Brahms' two Hungarian dances, Prelude and Liebestod (Tristan) and of Dvorák's Violoncello Concerto in B Minor, Mr. Jacques Renard playing the 'cello in a careful and finished manner. Other work by the band was Smetana's delightful overture "The Bartered Bride," Wagner's overture to Rienzi, the same composer's "Ride of Valkyries" (Die Walküre), and Donizetti's overture to La Fille du Regiment. Mme. Madge Elvey made a successful first appearance, and sang "With verdure clad" with taste and expression; and Mr. Albert Garcia was heard in the popular prologue to Pagliacci.

In the programme of the concert on Tuesday night at Queen's Hall there was included a new work by a young composer—Mr. Ernest Boche, a native of Munich. The composer is only twenty-five years old, and the Episode (Odysseus Fahrten) Op. 6, heard on Tuesday evening, shows beyond doubt that the youthful musician has melody and poetic feeling, as well as great ability in writing for a large orchestra. The work is entitled "Departure and Shipwreck," and is the first of a series of four Episodes taken from Odysseus's Wanderings. If somewhat lengthy, the various movements are admirably contrasted, well-balanced, and expressive, and although the composition is historic in method it is not diffuse or complex in character, and the several themes contain thought, and are broad and expressive in treatment. Remarkably well played by the orchestra under Mr. Wood's control, the work was most heartily applauded, and when the composer appeared on the platform he received a warm greeting from the audience. The beautiful performance by Mr. Albert Fransella of the flute solo "Ballade et Danse des Sylphes" won great applause; and Bach's fine "Suite No. 3" in D received admirable treatment from the orchestra. Also included in the concert was Beethoven's Coriolan overture, Wagner's Introduction to Act III. (Lohengrin), and Tchaikowsky's 1812 Overture. Miss Caroline Hatchard showed good training as well as a fine soprano voice in her singing of "Non paventar" from Mozart's Die Zauberflote; and Mr. Robert Burnett greatly roused the audience by his stirring singing of Sir C. V. Stanford's three "Songs of the Sea," an encore being demanded. Miss Frida Kindler, a most clever and artistic pianist, gave Schubert-Liszt's "Wanderer Fantasia" in a most brilliant manner. A very large audience was present.

MARTIN HARVEY ON ACTING.

Under the auspices of the Players' Club, Mr. Martin Harvey, who is appearing at Glasgow this week, and who is, moreover, hon. president of the Paisley Players' Club, delivered a lecture in the Museum Hall there on Monday afternoon. There was a large and fashionable attendance, over which the Rev. W. A. Mursell, of the Coats Memorial Church, presided. He briefly and fittingly introduced Mr. Harvey, who afterwards delivered his lecture on "Thoughts on Acting."

Mr. Harvey is the possessor of a charming personality, and at the lecture, as at the subsequent reception, he quite delighted those with whom he came in contact. His manner of handling the subject was rather different from what one would have expected. Mr. Harvey, as he himself explained, takes his art seriously, and in treating one or two of its aspects in almost a metaphysical sense, he showed that he not only was an actor, but an earnest student of human nature, willing to learn from every phase his instructress chose to show. His art, he said, was a mysterious thing to him. Why should one, in the performance of a certain character, suddenly and involuntarily make a movement, utter a sound, or use a modulation, which, though unprepared, belonged essentially to the character assumed? Whence came these flashes of expression? Were they not upon similar ground to hypnotism and mental suggestion? In hypnotism the subconsciousness seemed to be ready at the call of a powerful will, to answer in character with an individual habit of mind and experience of which it knew nothing. So also was it in acting. The whole "conceit" the actor had forced his soul to would strike flashes of truth from a lower consciousness of which the interpreter was, at the moment at least, ignorant. Mr. Harvey quoted Talma, the French actor, in support of this theory, and said that when Talma came to the theatre he came not only to give theatrical effect to his studies, but also to yield himself to the spontaneous flashes of his sensibility. Upon the quality of the audience, and the degree of sensibility or sympathy possessed by them, depended the extent to which these "flashes of sensibility" could have their birth. If a people got a King they deserved, so also did an audience get the acting they deserved. Whether an actor could give the highest or best that was in him depended largely, if not wholly, upon his audience. It was only when the souls of the audience and actor were fused together, as it were, that the spontaneous flashes of his sensibility could appear. In the presentment of a part an actor could express nothing but himself, and so soon as he failed to do so, then he was merely mouthing certain words which carried no conviction to anyone, and failed to convey any meaning of the author. It was wholly in the identification of an actor with the character he was rendering that his art consisted, and the extent to which he could identify himself with the characters he impersonated was the limit of his capacity as an artist. The actor gave the best of himself through his interpretations; he unveiled his inner soul. By these interpretations only should he be accepted and judged, and for the actor the gratitude and affection of his fellows bestowed upon him during his lifetime, during the exercise of his art, were more than compensation for the comparative obscurity which wrapped him when his work was over.

Ex-Provost Bell moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer in a very humorous speech, and Mr. Robert Pollock, the president of the club, moved a vote of thanks to the chair.

A WORCESTER BENEFIT.

On the 6th inst. the citizens of Worcester paid Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carlton, of the Royal, a well-deserved compliment by giving them a benefit in recognition of the services they have rendered in the city in helping charitable, social, and church work, and for the valuable assistance they have given to the efforts made in the neighbourhood to foster and stimulate the study of Shakespeare. There were a matinée and an evening performance, and at each there were large audiences whose presence testified to the popularity and esteem which Mr. and Mrs. Carlton enjoy in Worcester. The performances were under the patronage of the Earl and Countess of Coventry, the Mayor and Mayoress, and a number of distinguished people in the city and county. The performances were organised by a number of lady and gentlemen amateurs (operatic and dramatic), and their efforts were crowned with great success. The programme opened with a comedietta, Purely Platonic, by Mrs. Eric Smart, which was well performed by Mrs. Ernest Day (Mrs. Lorimer), Mrs. J. B. B. Hill (Mrs. Travers), Mr. W. H. Kershaw (Mr. Lorimer), Mr. Percy J. Pond (Mr. Travers), and Mr. Green (waiter). Then there were a recitation by Miss Ivy Carlton, and a duet by Mrs. T. Cornforth and Mr. W. Y. W. Bagnall. These were followed by scenes from Macbeth (scenes between Macbeth and Lady Macbeth before and after the murder of Duncan), the parts being well sustained by Mr. and Mrs. H. Urwick, and some good singing by Mr. J. Livingstone Wood, Messrs. Winter and Cornforth, and Messrs. J. B. B. Hill and Howard Hadley.

A very interesting feature of the programme was the first production of a new one-act play, by Frank Ernest Potter, entitled

"LA MARSEILLAISE."

Rouget de L'Isle .....MR. ARTHUR CARLTON
Marie .....MISS MAUDE SEYMOUR
(Mrs. Arthur Carlton)
Marquis de Launay .....MR. G. D. DAIPER
Gaoler .....MR. E. VALENTINE

Rouget de L'Isle is an interesting character in the French Revolution, and the author of the play makes him write the famous revolutionary song while in prison. The MS. is given to his wife when she visits him, and she conveys it (hidden in her hair) to his revolutionary comrades, who sing it during their attack on the Bastille and their rescue of Rouget on the morning fixed for his execution. The piece is well written, and is evidently the work of a playwright of no mean order Mr. and Mrs. Carlton and members of the In Sight of St. Paul's company well sustained the several characters. Mr. Arthur Carlton was an ideal Rouget, and he was ably assisted by Mrs. Carlton, whose impersonation of the wife left nothing to be desired. The other rôles also called forth commendation. After more singing came "The Blind Beggars" (Offenbach), which was well played by Messrs. W. P. Seabright and Howard Hadley. At the conclusion of La Marseillaise, Mr. Carlton came before the curtain and said he could not let the opportunity go by without heartily thanking those present for their patronage. He would like also to thank all those kind friends who came forward so readily and worked so hard to make the benefit a success. He thanked the members of the theatre staff, who had worked to the best of their powers to forward the performances, mentioning Mr. Austin, his able conductor, his acting-manager, Mr. Fred Le Wards, Mr. Santonna, and Mr. Griffiths, who had worked night and day to get the scenery ready. He also heartily thanked Mrs. Ernest Day, who had suggested the benefit.

A SPECIAL combined concert will be given tomorrow evening at 6.45 in the Centre Transept of the Crystal Palace, by the Crystal Palace Military Band, conducted by Mr. Herbert Godfrey, and the great organ, which will be played by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock. A most attractive programme has been arranged. A similar concert will be given on Saturday, Sept. 15.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MURIEL HEY.

Yorkshire is proverbially one of our most musical counties, and London, as the artistic centre of the Empire, has sufficient cause to be grateful to the great county for the vocalists it sends to the metropolis. Miss Muriel Hey, who is proud to say she was born in Yorkshire, and passed some of her happiest years in the West Riding, has been making steady headway in the South, where her social qualities, natural powers, and artistic cultivation have won many private and public friends. Miss Hey was born with a decided love of music, and, as a mere child, her intelligent appreciation of singing and instrumentation was made manifest. It was resolved to give her the best training that could be obtained in the North, and, therefore, she was placed in the care of a well-known tutor and professional gentleman in Liverpool. Under his careful tuition her development was rapid, and soon she made frequent appearances before local audiences, thus gaining some valuable experience. She loved her art, and her instructor found that her constant attention and increasing love of musical expression were resulting in excellent progress being made. She displayed a special aptitude for operatic music, and in this department Miss Hey's pure soprano voice had ample opportunity. She was encouraged by the hope that the time would come when her vocal and acting powers would obtain metropolitan recognition. She was sparing of no pains to complete her musical education, her ambition for the operatic stage being in advance of her love for the concert-room, in which she was fast winning reputation. Miss Hey wisely remembered that elocution must not be neglected and so this portion of her studies was cultivated with excellent results. She speaks with just the slightest suggestion of the good, sound Yorkshire dialect. By a very pleasant and useful experience she became acquainted with the Italian language and its literature, under circumstances which gave her a true native accent. To chat with Miss Hey of the operatic world is to discover she is a specialist on the subject, and that she has cultivated the great composers, as only the earnest, determined, undaunted student ever does. Miss Hey, though she has seen life on the Continent, where she further advanced her musical knowledge, has also travelled in England. She has a true belief in London as an art centre, and here she has taken part in many concerts, and obtained flattering opinions from competent critics who attended them. She is in negotiation with leading managers both in town and country, and the coming season will undoubtedly greatly widen her musical and dramatic sphere.

ACTORS AT LORD'S.

In ideal weather, the annual match "Actors v. Jockeys" was played at Lord's on Monday. Mr. Robert Evett was the captain of the Actors' eleven, the Jockeys being led by Mr. Mornington Cannon.

The Actors went in first, Mr. V. O'Connor and Mr F. J. Blackman going to the wickets. Mr. Blackman made a duck's egg, and was followed by Mr. H. E. Pearce and Mr. Oscar Asche, the trio being disposed of for 41. Mr. Evett and Mr. V. O'Connor ran up the score between them to 132, when Mr. O'Connor was bowled for 77, after a fine slashing innings. Mr. F. Mouillot succumbed to a ball from J. Hunt, and Mr. E. Burnaby and Mr. Evett increased the Actors' score to 171. Mr. Evett was bowled by Chaloner after an excellent innings of 47, and Messrs. Grahame Browne, Lotinga, W. Dawes, and Louis Bradfield successively met their fates, Mr. F. Wright, jun., being not out for 1. The Actors made altogether 205, the Jockeys only scoring 153, the bowling of Mr. Oscar Asche disposing of four of them.

THE management of the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, was so delighted with the success of Mr. Allan Wilkie during his second visit, that they have re-booked him to return in February; this will make his third visit in ten months.

MESSRS. SHAW AND JONES will sell by auction, on Wednesday, the 26th inst., the Metropole Theatre, Birkenhead, with its newly-erected scenery dock and refreshment rooms. The property is situate in the leading thoroughfare of Birkenhead, and has a very fine elevation.

DEATH OF CHARLES DANBY.

Mr. Charles Danby, the well-known comedian, who had been lying seriously ill for several months, passed away on Friday, the 7th inst. Mr. Danby was born in London in 1857, and was educated for the profession of an architect. He was engaged for some time in office work, but, having developed a taste for the stage, he joined a travelling theatrical company at Blackburn, and played the part of a policeman. He was dismissed after the first evening's performance, but taken on again at a reduced salary of a pound a week, which, however, was never paid. He next joined a travelling diorama show as "general utility" and skater, and, after some rough experiences with another company in the West of Ireland, he appeared for a benefit performance at Victoria Hall, New Cut, in the tragedy of Catherine Howard, an English adaptation of a drama by Alexander Dumas. He was next engaged for two and a half years as a member of the stock company at the Pavilion, Mile End, playing comedy parts in melodrama. Later, he was again in the provinces, doing none too well, when a success he made at Newcastle led to his engagement by the late Sir Augustus Harris for Drury Lane pantomime. Subsequently he appeared at the Opera Comique in the comic opera entitled Glamour; and in 1887 Mr. Danby toured a small company of his own in the Isle of Man. While he was here he received an offer from Miss Lydia Thompson to play Captain Sneak in The Sultan of Mocha, produced at the Strand Theatre in September, 1887. In this musical piece he leaped into popularity as the "bold, bad buccaneer." He reappeared at Drury Lane in the pantomime Puss in Boots, subsequently accompanying Miss Lydia Thompson to America. He made his first appearance at the Gaiety in Ruy Blas, 1889, his song, "They're after me," achieving great popularity. He accompanied the Gaiety company to Australia, and on his return reappeared as Jacques D'Arc in the burlesque Joan of Arc, at the Opera Comique, Jan. 17, 1891; also as Squire Higgins in Morocco Bound, at the Shaftesbury, April 13, 1893; as Dick Dashaway in King Kodak, at Terry's, April 30, 1894; as Roberts, the bailiff, in The Lady Slavey, at the Avenue, Oct. 20, 1894, &c. Mr. Danby also appeared on the music hall stage in a duologue, in which he played the part of a Chinaman. Of late years his appearances have been infrequent, owing to impaired health, and only last year he submitted to a severe operation for cancer, which, however, afforded only temporary relief. As he was unable to pursue his profession, Mr. Seymour Hicks made a successful appeal to the public on behalf of one who, in his time, had contributed so much to their amusement.

THE FUNERAL.

"He was a fellow above all others, and I have known some hundreds in my time." So said Mr. Terry Hurst to the writer as the funeral procession slowly left the residence of the late Charles Danby for Paddington Cemetery. And Mr. Hurst should be in a position to speak, for he was one of the dead comedian's oldest friends. Mr. Danby was with Mr. Hurst for several seasons, when the latter was proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Great Yarmouth, and when he had the theatre at Ipswich.

The cortège left the residence at 24, Wymering-mansions, Elgin-avenue, shortly after four o'clock on Monday afternoon. There were no immediate relatives as mourners, and Mrs. Danby, the widow, was too unwell to face the ordeal of the burial service. The first coach was occupied by Dr. Bailey, Mr. Ben Nathan, and Mr. W. T. Bennett. The last-named gentleman is an architect and builder with whom the deceased was apprenticed before he took to the stage. It was Mr. Bennett who early recognised Mr. Danby's histrionic abilities, and who told him he was no good at architecture, and gave him £5 with which to start his career as an actor. In the second carriage there were Mr. A. D. Foley, Mr. J. L. Shine, Mr. A. D. Serrano, and Mr. J. W. Lethbridge. The third contained Mr. Terry Hurst and The Era representative; while Mr. Sydney Myer and Mr. Joseph Myer followed in a private carriage.

Mr. Danby's remains were interred in Paddington Cemetery, the service, both in the chapel and at the graveside, being conducted by the Rev. A. E. H. Stanham, curate of St. Simon's, Saltran-crescent, Paddington. The ceremony was carried out according to the rites of the Church of England, and the scene among the little assemblage at the interment was a moving one. The coffin, which was of pale oak, with massive brass fittings, bore the inscription:—

CHARLES DANBY,
Died 7th September, 1906,
Aged 48.

A number of beautiful wreaths were sent. The widow's floral tribute was a pillow of laurel leaves, lilies of the valley, white carnations, and roses, and carried the message, "Charlie, from faithful, sorrowing Alexia." Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hicks forwarded a fine wreath, consisting of carnations and roses, "With deepest sympathy"; a magnificent harp of tiger lilies, stephanotis, and roses came from the Carl Rosa Opera Company; the Eccentric Lodge (Freemasons), of which the deceased was a highly-respected member, sent a pretty wreath of arum lilies and laurel, "with sincere sorrow from the brethren of the Eccentric Lodge." Other floral combinations came from Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nathan, white chrysanthemums, orchids, arum lilies, and lilies of the valley; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Myer, a chaplet of palm leaves, white chrysanthemums, arum lilies, and roses; Mr. A. D. Foley, arum lilies and asparagus fern; "Aunt Jenny and cousins," lilies, white roses, asters, and maidenhair fern; Mr. Terry Hurst, a spray of lilies with card bearing the inscription, "Farewell, true-hearted, generous friend, R.I.P."; Mrs. Robert Deane, arum lilies and asparagus fern; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Serrano, Mme. Mally Alexandra, Mr. W. T. Bennett, Mr. Sydney Howard, Miss Amy Hurlston (lady editor Sheffield Daily Telegraph), Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boissett, Mrs. Underwood, Mr. Ernest Stretton, Mr. Julius Walther, and Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Myer. Letters and telegrams expressing sympathy were received from Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Arthur Roberts, Dr. Arthur Edmonds, Mr. Frank Boyd, Mr. W. van Orden, Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Eugene Goossens, Mr. Hugh Astley, Mr. St. John Brennon, Mr. Julius Walther, Miss Amy Hurlston, Mr. J. W. Lethbridge, "Friends from Australia who are in London, and who remembered him in the old days of Nellie Farren," American friends (cable), "Deepest sympathy and sorrow," and Miss Rose Musgrove (of Australia).

Mrs. Charles Danby, who will be known to many people as a vocalist, under the name of Miss Alexia Bassian, desires us to express her thanks for the many thoughtful acts of the public and friends which have been performed during the time of her trouble.

MR. JOHN M. EAST will commence his autumn stock season at the Elephant and Castle next week, when Tommy Atkins will be produced. Mr. East has been able to engage a number of old favourites. The season will probably last about six weeks. Mr. R. A. Neville is the courteous and energetic acting-manager.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being felt in Aberdeen in the visit of Mr. Henry Doughty, Miss Vera Leslie, and their company, to Her Majesty's Theatre, with Geoffrey Stirling. Although the scene of the drama is laid in England, the plot is founded on the robbery of the Bank of Aberdeen in 1838, when no less a sum than £25,000 was taken. Although a reward of £525 was offered, no trace of the robbers was ever discovered.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Sept. 13.—This is the work of a young Dresden writer, and although it has many of the faults of youth, there is so much trace of undeniable talent that better things may be with confidence anticipated. The plot is dramatic, but the development is crude. Several of the characters—notably those of Lieutenant Westkirsch and Franz Niemann—are very well and naturally drawn. A retired officer, Col. Westkirch, who is a widower, has an only daughter, Erika, and a son—Wolfgang—who is a lieutenant in the army. The girl has a friendship with Dr. Niemann, a young assessor, which we conclude has developed into a liason, as she visits him in his rooms. She implores him to marry her, but he coolly and heartlessly refuses, and Erika, who really loves him, is desperate. Her brother, the lieutenant, learns—though not through her—the state of things, and tells Niemann he will shoot him if he does not make good his fault. The man is a coward at heart; he knows the lieutenant to be a dead shot, and under stress of circumstances he complies, formally proposing for Erika's hand. The great joy of the girl speedily passes. She discovers by accident that her suitor has not proposed out of love, but cowardice, and in a striking scene she gives him his liberty and leaves the house. In the third—and superfluous act—Erika reappears, and we have not the faintest idea where she has been in the meantime. She goes once more to the rooms of the man she loves, but a second trial awaits her. Franz comes home with some lively little soubrettes, proving plainly enough that her wish to "make it up" is not shared by him. Then Erika turns away for the last time, and we learn that she has drowned herself, while Wolfgang challenges the assessor. The interpretation of the piece was most admirable, more than confirming the favourable impression made at the opening of the theatre. Herr Christians—late one of the chief members of the Royal Schauspielhaus—gave a faultless account of the unsympathetic Niemann, and Herr Kaiser-Titz was equally good in the part of Lieutenant Westkirch. Fräulein Hartwig's Erika was a clever piece of acting, and others foremost in the good cast were Fräuleins Gabri, Gluemer, and Jaeger, and Herr Schroth. The mounting was tasteful and effective, and author and artists were alike heartily applauded. The next novelty at this theatre will be Max Dreyer's new two-act farce, entitled Eine, preceded by a farce by Courteline—Der Stammgast.

IBSEN'S drama Frau Inger von Oestrot was produced with much care at the Schiller Opera House on Wednesday. It was a case of love's labour lost, and the sympathies of the majority of the audience went out to the artists who did their thankless work so well. To begin with, the plot can scarcely be of interest to any audience outside Scandinavia, while the five long acts, with their interminable monologues and dialogues about tiresome things, would certainly try anyone's patience. This is far from one of Ibsen's masterpieces, and an attempt to put it on the stage has ever proved unsatisfactory. In the name-part Fräulein Feldhammer was very fine; she accentuated with much discretion the leading features of the strange character—the unbending will, the insatiable ambition; and the scene where Inger knows her beloved son is dead was most powerfully acted. This talented actress was well supported all round; the mounting, too, was in excellent taste.

AT the Royal Opera a new tenor has been singing on approval. His name is Walter Kirchhoff, and he hails, I believe, from Bavaria. He is young, and his voice, which is of beautiful quality, will certainly improve with time and careful study. As Canio in Leoncavallo's Bajacci Herr Kirchhoff made an exceedingly favourable impression, his acting being intelligent and graceful. It is not improbable that he will receive an engagement at the Opera House. Our new Kapellmeister, Herr Leo Blech, will open in the middle of the month with Carmen.

THE Linsen Theatre has revived a very ancient farce-burlesque by Hopf, entitled Eine Nacht in Berlin. What served to amuse our grandfathers and great-grandfathers proved rather dull, and the experiment can hardly be called a success, in spite of a capital cast. The applause—which was at the close very hearty—was intended more for the artists than the piece. A better venture at this enterprising little theatre was Romeo and Juliet last week, which was surprisingly well acted and put on. The Juliet (the German translation is "Julia") of Fräulein Servadio was a thoroughly artistic and sympathetic impersonation, and she found a worthy partner in Herr Biberach, whose Romeo would well bear comparison with that of actors of greater fame. Herren Bach, Ruff, and Kiedarsch also gave excellent renderings of their rôles—Tybalt, Pater Lorenzo, and Mercutio respectively.

AT the Folies Caprice two one-act pieces met with a very cordial reception on Thursday last—Die Sünden der Väter, a comedy by A. Groiss; and Der Generalkonsul, a musical farce by M.M. Caprice and Kinoch. Both are amusing and were capitally acted.

OFFENBACH'S charming work, Hoffmann's Erzählungen, is still running at the Komische Oper. The Komische is giving Don Pasquale on alternate nights, with Figaro's Hochzeit once in the bill. Lakmé is in rehearsal and will be produced before long.

THE New Schauspielhaus is almost completed, and the date of its opening is fixed for Oct. 19. As I stated some time ago, the first performance is to be Shakespeare's Tempest, with the music specially written by Herr Humperdinck. The next performance will be Grillpazer's classical comedy Weh, dem, der lügt, with Harry Walden in the part of Leon, the cook's boy—a rôle which is a famous one of Herr Kainz. Director Halm intends producing a number of new plays by well-known authors. Thus, in November, Max Dreyer's Die Hochzeitsfackel will first see the light, and in the following month Philippi's drama Der Helfer and Erler's Czar Peter are to be produced. Herr Josef Kainz is engaged at the new Schauspielhaus for a series of twelve performances.

"DEAR LADY MARY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—You may be interested to note the resemblance between my play, Dear Lady Mary, produced by amateurs at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, and noticed by you in Feb., 1905, and the play, Peter's Mother, produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Wednesday. In both, the piece passes in a country house, the heroine's name is the same, the theme, the struggle between love in a middle-aged woman and maternal affection. With Peter's Mother it is Lady Mary's real son, in my play her young brother whom she has brought up and looks on as a son. The end is the same, the young boy falls in love with a girl, and the heroine is made happy.—Yours faithfully, VIOLET GRENVILLE.

Felix Hotel, Felixstowe, Sept. 12, 1906.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has with him on his tour—which is proving strikingly successful—that clever artist Mr. Percy MacQuoid, with whom he is discussing the forthcoming revivals of Anthony and Cleopatra, at His Majesty's in the winter. The costumes and much of the scenery for Macbeth are already completed. When Mr. Tree returns to London in six weeks the run of Colonel Newcome will be resumed. The revival of Macbeth will follow Mr. Michael Morton's piece.

MR. H. B. IRVING, at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Thursday, appeared as Charles I. in Mr. W. G. Wills's play, in which his father made such a deep impression at the Lyceum Theatre in the September of 1872. At the close there were demands for a speech. Mr. Irving thanked his auditors for their kind reception, and added very gracefully that his purpose would be served if, in presenting again a play which had before been seen in the city, he and his company had brought back to the mind of the audience one word, "Remembrance."

MR. E. S. WILLARD sailed on Friday last on the Virginian (Allan Line) from Liverpool for Montreal, where he expects to arrive on Friday next and begin his season with a production of Colonel Newcome on Oct. 1. Accompanying Mr. Willard are the English members of his company:—Messrs. William Sauter, Ivan Simpson, A. S. Homewood, Charles Combe, J. W. Lawrence, Walter Edmunds, H. Cane, Miss Marie Linden, Miss Joan Blair, and Miss Ruth Barry. Mr. Willard hopes to return to London in April, and will remain with us throughout the 1907-8 season.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has returned from his holiday, and will make his re-appearance in His House in Order at the St. James's Theatre on Wednesday evening next, when the 250th representation of Mr. A. W. Pinero's successful comedy will be given.

ENGLISH actors and actresses will make numerous and valuable appearances on the American stage this season. Amongst the many—fortunately only temporary—"emigrants" are Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Dorothea Baird, Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Olga Nethersole, Mr. E. S. Willard, Miss Ellis Jeffreys, Mr. George Giddens, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Cyril Maude, Miss Madge Crichton, Miss Delia Mason, Mr. George Carroll, and Mr. Lawrence Grossmith.

MR. GEORGE GRAVES, the inventor of the "Gazeka," will shortly publish a book relating to the life and adventures of that strange animal. The work will be illustrated by Mr. Charles Folkard, the winner of Mr. George Edwardes's prize for the best fancy picture of that curious creature.

WE need not be afraid that the elaborate mounting which Mr. Arthur Collins is giving to Mr. Hall Caine's drama at Drury Lane will overshadow the powerful human interest of The Bondman. Real cows and pigeons have been seen before on the stage, and will only be introduced as accessories; and the reproduction of a smoking sulphurmine—to realise which Mr. Collins and the author "waded ankle-deep in the ashes of the eruption of Vesuvius, at Naples"—will be only a picturesque adjunct to a strong situation. No one can object to realism in mounting, as long as the drama is the primary thing, and the scenery, however excellent, only secondary in importance and attraction.

THERE seems to be no limit to the expedients to which people will resort in order to obtain free admission to theatres. Before the Rhondda magistrates at Ystrad on Monday, Evan Thomas and William George Normington were charged with falsely representing themselves to be police constables of the Glamorgan Division, and thereby obtaining free admission to Messrs. Poole's Opera House, Treherbert, on the 7th inst. James Gunn, the manager of the theatre, stated that the defendants on the night in question sent for him, and represented themselves to be two policemen, with the object of gaining free admission. The defendants were accommodated with seats and attracted notice by ridiculing the artists and making unseemly remarks. The police were sent for, and the defendants were taken to the local police station. It was ascertained that Thomas had been in the force for four months, and Normington for two and a-half years. Both had been dismissed from the force. A fine of £1 was imposed in each case.

MR. AND MRS. BOURCHIER, on their forthcoming visit to Liverpool, will be the guests of the Earl and Countess of Lathom at Ormskirk.

MR. WILLIE CLARKSON has just returned from Paris, where he has had some amusing experiences. The French reporters persisted in calling him "John Burns," and asked him several questions as to what he thought of the new law in Paris closing the shops one day a week. Mr. Clarkson told them that in England all the shops closed on Sunday, and that one day's rest a week was very beneficial. They also asked him what his opinion was of work. He said that he had to work very hard, and did not see any reason why other people should not do so. Mr. Clarkson's principal reason for crossing the Channel was to arrange about Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's wigs for her tour, commencing at Vichy on Sept. 15 and finishing on Oct. 9 at Bourges. While in Paris he also arranged about the wigs for the forthcoming production of the Drury Lane pantomime at the Porte St. Martin.

MR. HENRY ARTHUR JONES has been received with the utmost cordiality by everyone in New York, and has never met either with such a reception of a play, or with such marked kindness as was extended to him by the American people and American dramatists. Mr. Jones has had an invitation to lecture at the Universities of Harvard, Yale, and Columbia, and will return to America in a few weeks' time to do so.

MR. JAMES WELCH'S cast for the new farce in three acts, by Charles Marlowe, entitled When Knights were Bold, which he will produce at the Grand, Nottingham, on Monday, will include, besides himself, Mr. George F. Tully, Mr. Gordon Tomkins, Mr. Henry J. Ford, Mr. Arthur Grenville, Mr. James Nelson, Mr. Leopold Profeit, Mr. Edward Sass, Miss Emma Gwynne, Miss Estelle Winwood, Miss Enid Sass, Miss Mabel Wentworth, Miss Daisy Cordell, Miss Annie Chippendale, and Miss Audrey Ford. Mr. E. Dagnall is Mr. Welch's manager, and Mr. Brigata Bucalossi his musical director.

AFTER the performance of The Only Way by Mr. Martin Harvey and his company at the Londesboro' Theatre, Scarborough, on Saturday last, great enthusiasm was displayed by the audience, and from different parts of the house came the cry "Speech, speech." Mr. Harvey, in response—appearing, of course, in his character of Sidney Carton—said, "Though mildly deprecating 'post-mortem' speeches—for I am supposed to be dead and sleeping peacefully—yet I cannot but appreciate the kindness I have received on my all too short visit here. Myself and my fellow players will look forward to paying you a further visit at, I hope, no distant date."

MISS EDNA MAY'S chauffeur was fined £20 and had his licence suspended at Norwich on Monday on a charge of driving a motor-car at a dangerous speed.

MR. A. W. PINERO has told an American interviewer that he (the dramatist) does his work as it comes to him, and that he does the best he can, without regard to where it will rank. He has only one desire—namely, to express the truth as he sees it. He has no rule for writing, and he finds that with each play he re-learns the technique of playwriting all over again. Very often his plots are suggested to him by people he meets or some situation in real life which impresses itself upon him. He finds, too, that when he has grasped the salient characteristics of his characters, they often develop themselves in ways which are quite unexpected. Mr. Pinero had great difficulty in getting The Second Mrs. Tanqueray produced at all, nearly every manager in London refusing it.

MR. H. B. IRVING and Miss Dorothea Baird have had a most successful week at Liverpool, where hosts of friends extended to them an enthusiastic greeting. At the close of The Lyons Mail on Tuesday evening, Mr. Irving, in response to a strong demand, made a short speech, remarking that he hoped that the memory of the great actor with whom that play was so intimately associated had not been impaired by the performance of himself and his colleagues. The company will sail on Wednesday next for New York.

ONE hundred years ago last Monday, on Sept. 10, 1806, the foundation stone of the Brighton Theatre Royal was laid by Mr. John Brunton, the house being opened on June 27 of the following year, with Hamlet. The cost of erection, including scenery and wardrobe, was £12,000. The interesting event was recalled last Monday to Mr. H. Cecil Beryl (lessee and manager of the theatre), who received the following telegram from Mr. Charles E. Noverre:—"As the great grandson of John Brunton, who laid the foundation stone of the Brighton Theatre a hundred years ago to-day, I tender to you, old friend, my heartiest congratulations and best wishes for your continued prosperity. You see, they had to come to old Norwich for assistance in those days." Mr. Beryl's friends will re-echo the sentiments kindly expressed by Mr. Brunton, and heartily wish him many years of prosperity.

A COMPLIMENTARY benefit to the popular manager, Mr. Walter Batty, was given at the Grand Theatre, Stockton, on the 7th inst. An excellent programme was provided. In an interval Major Smith, on behalf of a number of Mr. Batty's personal friends, presented him with a handsome case of cutlery and a gold and diamond pendant as a mark of their esteem. The Major commented upon Mr. Batty's popularity, and the good tone which always prevailed at the Grand. Mr. Batty returned thanks, and assured the company that his father and himself appreciated the generous patronage which the people of Stockton had given the Grand Theatre since they took it over. It would be their constant desire to provide the public with the best of entertainment, and to see that the place was conducted with every propriety.

THE eleventh anniversary of the opening of the Regent Theatre, Salford, is announced for Tuesday, when many extra attractions from other local houses are to be seen there. With their usual generosity, the management continue to assist any local charity; and they are lending the theatre free of cost to the committee of the Manchester and Salford Lifeboat Saturday Fund to hold a grand sacred concert on Sunday, the 16th inst., by Mr. Harrison Brockbank and the Queen's Theatre choir from Ivanhoe.

"THE FOUR JUST MEN," which will be produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8, by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, is now in full rehearsals. These are being conducted by Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, who is also playing one of the "Four." The music is being written by Mr. Fritz Hart, the musical-director of the King's.

THERE is only one set for the three acts of Mrs. Temple's Telegram, the new farce at the Waldorf, and no opportunity for elaborate costumes. Miss Sybil Carlisle, as Mrs. Temple, makes her entrance in a severely simple, beautifully-cut gown of apple-green cloth, with straps of the same colour over the shoulders, and a corselet waist. Her second dress is of faintest maize colour—almost white—and in the last act she appears in a very quaint and pretty evening dress of stiff silk, clusters of pink roses on a white ground, with a full skirt and puffed elbow-sleeves. Miss Dido Drake as Dorothy wears a cream satin Empire dress, with gold trimming; and Miss Frances Wetherall as Martha Browne, appears in a smart blue linen coat and skirt, with a decidedly "showy" straw hat, held at a startling angle by a big coral hat-pin that plays its part as a weapon of defence.

THE first tour of Good as Gold, originally played at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, is proving highly successful. The play was well received at Newcastle-on-Tyne this week, and although it is most sensational, there are parts of the story that appeal to the quiet portion of an audience. In a cast of well-played parts, Miss Irene Ross's study of a London waif is especially good. This clever little actress has a wide experience of boys' parts, from Willie in East Lynne to Wallie in Two Little Vagabonds, and is artistic to the point of having bare feet when she is in rags, and being quite ready to sink her own dainty personality in that of the roughest of little street arabs. Miss Ross travels with a very lively little dog, known to a large circle of friends as Nelson; but he is so accustomed to going to the theatre at night that he never attempts to leave his mistress's dressing-room while she is on the stage.

"THE SIN OF WILLIAM JACKSON" has been withdrawn from the Lyric Theatre after a brief run of twelve nights. The piece had many merits, but it was quite unsuited to the theatre at which it was produced. The house will, it is understood, remain closed until Mr. Waller reopens the Lyric with Robin Hood.

IN a new romantic play in four acts, entitled The King's Signet, the American actress, Miss Marie de Campi, will make her first bow to the British public at the Fulham Theatre on Monday. Miss de Campi, who is described as possessing great beauty, comes with a big reputation from America, and hopes to make even a bigger one here. She is sparing no expense as regards production, having engaged Mr. Banks to paint her new and elaborate scenery. Her company will include Mr. Alfred Woods, Miss Maude Williamson, and Mr. Charles Collette. After the production at Fulham, Miss de Campi will go into the provinces for a short tour. She hopes, eventually, to present The King's Signet at a West End theatre.

MR. WALTER HOWARD'S new romantic play, Her Love Against the World, due for production on Monday next, at the Junction Theatre, Manchester, where, by the way, it is booked to run twelve nights instead of the usual six, a tribute to the author's popularity. Miss Ellen Snow as the Princess. Iris of Idalia will wear some beautiful dresses—the first of softest cream satin and silver, worn with an Empire coat of Rosselli red velvet, with broad silver band, and ermine collar, is particularly effective. In the second act Miss Snow will wear an oriental satin robe of duck's-egg blue, bordered with silver and cut turquoise; and for the last act there is a long ivory velvet coat, trimmed with large lover's knots of drawn velvet, relieved by heavy lace insertions over gold tissue, velvet hat and long lace veil.

MISS FLO BANKS, the original, who is away from town for three months, is meeting with considerable success on tour.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will begin their provincial tour under the direction of Mr. M. V. Leveaux, on Monday, at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, visiting afterwards Manchester, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dublin, Birmingham, Leeds, Newcastle, Oxford, and Brighton. Their répertoire will consist of The Merchant of Venice, Brother Officers, Monsieur de Paris, The Fascinating Mr. Vandervelt, Coster Joe, and The Walls of Jericho. Among those who will accompany Mr. Bourchier and Miss Vanbrugh are Messrs. H. Nye Chart, Charles Goodhart, George Trollope, Walter Pearce, Lawson Butt, Arthur Whitby, Misses Pamela Gaythorne, Nora Greenlaw, Celia Powis, Vivienne Whitaker, Jean Harkness, Olive Terry (a daughter of the late Florence Terry), and Mrs. Nye Chart. Mr. Bourchier has received an invitation from the Governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Association at Stratford-on-Avon to appear in Macbeth, and, owing to the success of The Morals of Marcus at the Garrick Theatre, he is enabled to accept this invitation, thus prolonging his tour. The part of Lady Macbeth will, of course, be played by Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Mr. Alan MacKinnon will supervise the production on Mr. Bourchier's behalf.

"THE NEW ALADDIN," which, according to present arrangements, is to be produced at the Gaiety Theatre on Saturday next, will be in two acts. The first scene will represent a curiosity shop, the owner of which, Ebenezer (Mr. Harry Grattan), has a son named Aladdin, otherwise known as "Lally," a youth who incurs his father's anger by entertaining a party of noisy companions. He is sternly bade to leave the house, but finds a friend and supporter in the office boy (Mr. Edmund Payne), who, seizing a curio in the shape of an ancient vase, dashes it to the ground. It is shattered; but among the fragments are discovered a discoloured parchment and a ring. On the latter being rubbed, there suddenly appears the Spirit of the King (Miss Connie Ediss).

LALLY, accompanied by the office-boy, makes a journey to the East in search of the magic lamp, their guide being the Spirit of the Lamp. The flying trip of the trio will be one of the scenic features of the new play. Lally is invited to partake of a banquet by the Genii of the Lamp (Mr. George Grossmith, jun.), but declines, and the party eventually return to London, only to find it changed beyond recognition into a very beautiful city. This will afford an excellent opportunity for humorous allusions, and jokes on current events.

MR. W. CLARKSON has gone to Paris, to take the orders for Mme. Bernhardt's new piece; and for the Porte St. Martin. He will also make the wigs for the forthcoming Drury Lane pantomime.

MR. MAYOR-COOKE has been engaged for the part of Prince Ulric in the production by Messrs Hallatt and Howard's company of Her Love Against the World.

WHEN Mr. Charles Frohman revives Peter Pan here in December, Miss Pauline Chase will fill the title-part. Miss Chase made her first appearance in London in quite a small rôle in The School Girl at the Prince of Wales's.

MR. SYDNEY SPENSER, the proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Glossop, has acquired, from the owners, a lease of the Grand Theatre, Woodgrange-road, Forest Gate, E., and will reopen the house on Monday, September 17, with Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company in A Royal Revenge.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN states that Mr. Barrie is writing a new play. It will be presented by Miss Maude Adams in London at the close of the American season.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN will shortly produce a play written by the Rev. Frederick Langbridge, founded upon an incident in Thackeray's novel of "Esmond." Mr. Norman will play the Chevalier, and Miss Beatrice Wilson, Beatrix Esmond. We may confidently expect that the incident chosen is the attempt of the Chevalier to seduce Beatrix Esmond, and the frustration of the attempt by Harry Esmond and her brother.

MR. DION BOUCICAULT, who recently produced His House in Order for Mr. Charles Frohman, at the Empire Theatre, New York, left America after the initial performance of Mr. Pinero's play and resumed his original part of Curtis Bedford in Raffles at the Comedy Theatre on Monday evening.

THE first Covent Garden Fancy Dress Ball will take place on Friday, September 28. Mr. Dan Godfrey's orchestra has been engaged, and, according to custom, valuable prizes will be offered for the best dresses.

LIVERPOOL theatre proprietors are noted for the readiness with which they respond to charitable appeals, and, in the same connection, it is only right to mention that artists engaged in the city on the Mersey when such appeals are made readily come forward should their services be required. The Food and Betterment Association has received hundreds of pounds through the efforts of those connected with the profession, and now that it is about to make a big and necessary effort to obtain £5000 by means of a grand bazaar to be held in St. George's Hall, in February next, the controllers of the local places of amusement have resolved to do their utmost outside to swell the financial result. On Tuesday afternoon Mr. Arthur Lawrence, the esteemed acting-manager of the Royal Court, presided over an enthusiastic meeting of local theatrical lessees and managers, convened in the Bee Hotel, for the purpose of arranging for entertainments to be held in one or more of the theatres during the five days' bazaar. Sir H. E. Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Robert Arthur, and Mr. Thomas Barrasford are patrons of the movement, and the whole of the Liverpool and Birkenhead lessees and managers will form a committee. The Food Association, which is universally popular, can, judging by past efforts, reckon upon the profession in Liverpool maintaining its reputation for gathering in coin when it makes a determined start to do so.

MR. E. H. SOTHERN and Miss Julia Marlowe will open at the Waldorf Theatre in the April of next year in an English version of Hauptmann's Sunken Bell, which has been keenly appreciated in America. Versions of Sudermann's Johannes, of two plays by D'Annunzio, of Maeterlinck's Joyselle, and several Shakespearean revivals are also promised. The visit is obviously "something to look forward to."

THE new farce by Charles Marlowe, which Mr. James Welch will produce at Nottingham next Monday, will probably be called When Knights Were Bold, but another title may yet be chosen. Mr. Welch is said to be delighted with the piece, and believes that he has been provided with a part that should suit him admirably. The company will also include Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. James Nelson, Mr. G. F. Tully, Miss Audrey Ford, and Miss Emma Gwynne. The new farce will, at a later date, be staged at Terry's.

MR. ALFRED SUTRO'S charming comedy, The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, will be played for the first time in suburban London at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, on Monday, by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company, which includes Mr. Reginald Dance, Mr. Laurence Leyton, and that rising young actress, Miss Gladys Mason. In front of the comedy will be performed the powerful one-act play, The Drums of Oude, for which a special scene has been painted. The leading members of the company, including Mr. Dance and Miss Mason, will also appear in this piece.

THE committee appointed to consider, digest, and report on the scheme brought in by Mr. Cecil Barth "for reading new plays, introduced by members, with a view to production if considered of sufficient merit," held a meeting on Friday, the 7th inst. There were present Messrs. Cecil Barth, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Fewlass Llewellyn, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). After some considerable discussion, it was agreed, in view of the fact that one member of the committee would shortly be leaving England for a prolonged tour thorugh the United States, that the Council should be asked to appoint another in his stead, and the further consideration, &c., of the scheme was adjourned.

THE Council of the Actors' Association held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday last. There were present Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison and Kate Phillips, Messrs. Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, and Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Viola Finney, Henry Wonall, Nannie Bennett, and Mabel S. Younge were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Association. Mildred Orme and James Hearn were nominated as candidates for reinstatement as members. Members of the Council were appointed as arbitrators in a case arising out of a claim of one member against another, and they fixed the date for hearing the parties interested. A case of alleged bogus management was under consideration, and the secretary received instructions. The secretary reported that a sum of £18 0s. 9d. had been recovered (under a policy of insurance) on behalf of a member.

THE hon. solicitors reported that they had advised several members and were requested to apply for payment of a member's claim against a manager. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was taken, and a letter to the licensing authorities which had been drafted by them was approved. The secretary's circular in connection with the insurance scheme was also approved. Mr. C. Aubrey Smith was appointed a member of the "Selection of Plays" Committee. Dr. J. Ker Lindsay, of Fulham, was appointed as an hon. medical officer to the Association. Two former members were reinstated.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, Mr. Acton Bond (in the chair) being supported by Miss Kate Phillips, Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, Arthur Holmes-Gore, M. R. Morand. The secretary, Mr. Chas. Cruikshanks, received instructions on various matters, and the Committee agreed to recommend a proposal to the Council respecting the question of unpaid subscriptions.

MESSRS. GLENISTER AND WOOD-INGRAM will present All-of-a-Sudden Peggy at the Theatre Royal, Margate, on Thursday next. Miss Decima Moore and Mr. Lionel Glenister will be supported by a very strong cast; and considering the excellent dates booked, the tour should prove successful.

MR. IVAN BERLYN, whose striking creations of Quilp and Fagin in Mr. Oswald Brand's "Essence of Dickens," will be remembered, will play the latter part, by the courtesy of Mr. A. H. Canby, at the Brand benefit matinée at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Tuesday.

MR. J. M. BARRIE'S The Little Minister has been acquired by the Intendantur of the Court Theatre at Dresden, and is already in rehearsal. The German title is Der Kleine Landprediger. Mr. Bernard Shaw's comedy You Never Can Tell, which is to be produced at the Kleines Theater, Berlin, next week, has had its title changed to a literal translation of the original. It was decided to call it Der Verlorene Vater (the lost father), and was advertised under that name, but it is to be known in future as Mann Rann nie wissen.

MR. WILLIAM HOLLES will shortly send on tour a new powerful play in four acts, founded on the world-famous book "The Jungle," the adaptation of which has been written by Mr. Arthur Shirley and Mr. Holles himself. Several startling sensations are promised; and a capable company has been engaged. If anything will stir the business up in the country The Jungle should do it.

IN connection with Mr. Lewis Waller's forthcoming production of a play founded on the legend of "Robin Hood," it may be recalled that the subject was a favourite one with Elizabethan dramatists, amongst whose treatments of the story may be mentioned Anthony Munday's "Downfall of Robert, Earl of Huntingdon"; his and Henry Chettle's "Death of Robert, Earl of Huntingdon"; and the anonymous "George à Green, Pinner of Wakefield," founded on an incident in the popular tale.

MISS DAVIES WEBSTER and Miss Rose Cazelet have secured the present Lord Tennyson's permission to put on the late Poet Laureate's The Falcon at two of their entertainments, which will be at the Royal Albert Hall Theatre during the third week in November.

MISS MURIEL FOSTER, the well-known contralto, is shortly to be married to Mr. L. Goetz. The ceremony will take place during the autumn at a church in the neighbourhood of Regent's Park. Miss Foster, who has sung before the King and Queen, and at the Worcester and Cardiff festivals, is a native of Sunderland, of which town her uncle, Mr. Frederick Foster, is mayor, and from the residents there, as well as from many friends in London, the happy couple will receive the heartiest congratulations. Miss Foster intends to retire into private life after her marriage.

MR. NATION'S opening programme at Terry's Theatre, on or about Sept. 29, will consist of old comedy, an abridged version, in two acts, of He's Much to Blame, and an original musical piece, the book of which is by Mr. Arthur Sturgess, with music by M. Napoleon Lambelet and Brigata Bucalossi. Miss Elise Cook, who was for some time at Daly's Theatre, has been engaged for one of the leading parts.

MR. SIDNEY WATSON, stage-manager of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, applied at Marlborough-street Police Court on Wednesday for a licence to permit a little girl to act as understudy to another child-actress in See-See. He said she would be on the stage about two minutes and a half, and perform a Chinese dance that was not difficult. The police offered no objection, and the girl's mother promised to look after her while at the theatre. The licence was granted.

"PRINCE PRETENDER; OR, BORROWDENE," is the name of a new comic opera, written by Patrick Bidwell, author of Peggy Machree (which had a successful run at Wyndham's). It was produced for copyright purposes on Friday, Sept. 7, at the Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield. The music is by Evelyn Baker.

M. RUSSELL ROSSE has arranged with Mr. C. Irvine Bacon, on behalf of the directors of the handsome Pavilion, Kingstown, Ireland, for a season of high-class comedy commencing on Oct. 1. The patent has only just been granted by the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and it is anticipated that the experiment will be a great success, as there is a very large population in the town and immediate district. An excellent company will interpret the various comedies, including Messrs. David James, Norman Clark, James Geldard, and Horace Pollock, Misses Ida Phillips, Rachel de Travis, and Edith Hesketh.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN states the only method in which arrangements can be made for a play to be produced directly under his management in America is through his only representative in England, Mr. William Lestocq. Regarding the combination that has been formed in this country for the production of plays, Mr. Frohman's only interest is as one of the subscribers to a fund to assist in giving young and struggling authors an opportunity of having their plays produced, which is one of the objects of the combination.

DURING the run of Faust Up to Date by Mr. George Edwardes's company at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, last week, the part of Marguerite was effectively filled by Miss Florrie French up to Thursday, the 6th, after which Miss Edith Fink undertook the rôle, sustaining it with conspicuous ability.

ALL the foreign rights of The Four Just Men, which is shortly to be produced at the King's, Hammersmith, and which is the only authorised version of Mr. Wallace's book, are the property of Mr. E. O'Neill.

THE cast of The Silver Box, the new play in three acts, by Mr. John Galsworthy, which will be produced at the Court on the 25th inst., will include Mr. James Hearn, Miss Frances Ivor, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Mr. A. Goodsall, Miss Irene Rooke, Mr. Frederick Lloyd, Miss Gertrude Henriques, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mrs. Charles Maltby, Mr. Trevor Lowe, Mr. Athol Forde, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Mr. Edmund Gurney, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, and Mr. Norman Page.

THE Promenade Concerts will enter upon their fifth week at Queen's Hall this evening. On Monday a specially strong Wagner programme is announced, including some of the composer's best-known concert-room pieces. Tuesday's programme contains a new work—for the first time in England—by the Belgian composer, Jan Blockx. This is in the form of a Symphonic Triptych on (1) All Souls' Day, (2) Christmas Eve, (3) Easter. Schubert's great "Symphony in C" occupies the place of honour in Wednesday's programme. On Thursday will be given, for the first in London, a new overture, entitled "In Springtime (Op. 21)," by Norman O'Neill, a young composer whose works have already been heard at the Promenade Concerts. Friday's programme, devoted to Beethoven, includes his "Fifth Symphony in C minor" and his "Fourth Piano Concerto in G," the soloist being Miss Irene Scharrer, the talented young R.A.M. student. The artists announced to appear for the first time at the Promenade Concerts include Miss Hilda Cooke and Miss Gwladys Roberts (vocalists), Miss Ruth Clarkson and Mr. Serge de Barincourt (violinists), Miss Gertrude Meller and Miss Grace Smith (pianists).

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has again this week succeeded in breaking all records at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, and on Tuesday The Only Way was played there to one of the largest houses in its history. As already announced, Mr. Harvey will produce a one-act play, entitled The Spell, as a first piece to The Corsican Brothers. Report speaks very favourably of this playlet, which is founded on a true story of Irish peasant life, and has a good deal to do with the ancient superstition concerning red hair, and the curse of the "Evil One" which, it is supposed in remote parts of Ireland, is connected with it. Miss de Silva will appear as the girl with the red hair. Mr. George Dodson has now finished his setting for The Corsican Brothers for the production at Birmingham on or about Oct. 10.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES" has been played this week to the capacity of the Court Theatre, Wigan. The drama was so admirably performed that the house was kept in a high state of tension throughout. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart is an ideal Holmes, and gives a clever and highly interesting study.

IN Tristram and Iseult at the Adelphi, Miss Hutin Britton, as Arganthael, wears a robe of richest yellow beneath a tunic of dark purple velvet. The tunic fits closely to the figure, and is worked about the foot and again at the neck with a curious gold embroidery. Over the whole dress Miss Britton has a long mantle of flame-coloured silk lined with crimson, cut to hang in a graceful manner, and fitted with long and pointed sleeves. Her long dark hair falls untied on her shoulders, and is kept back from her face by a gold fillet. Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison as Brangwaine looks very beautiful in a deep crimson robe embroidered in gold, and over it a mantle of purple gauze.

MISS LILY BRAYTON'S first dress is composed of emeralds, sewn closely together and clinging to the figure, and the long flowing sleeves are lined with rich blue silk and bordered with gold embroidery. At the waist is a gold girdle fastened with long ends, glittering with emeralds, and Miss Brayton wears a gold fillet and a veil of gold tissue. On board the ship she wears a sleeveless dress of bright emerald silk, girt with a wide girdle of gold studded with jewels. Over this she has a robe of pleated purple gauze, with sleeves fitting tightly to the elbow, then falling in wide wings to the feet, where they are edged with a magnificent embroidery of gold and red jewels. A huge ruby and emerald ornament fastening the front of the bodice makes a striking and harmonious finish to this beautiful dress. Over it all is thrown a heavy mantle of cloth of gold. This hangs straight from the shoulders behind, and is worked with rubies and emeralds after a Celtic design. On her hair Miss Brayton wears a veil of gold-spotted net.

THE dresses in The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's are very beautiful. Miss Ellen Terry makes her first appearance as Hermione in a Greek robe of yellow silk worked in gold, over which is looped up an over-dress of yellow striped gauze, bordered with green. On her head Miss Terry wears a wreath of green leaves, and round her neck a heavy chain of green and gold beads.

MRS. TREE as Paulina wears an over-dress of white silk, finely embroidered with purple, worn over a tunic of rich purple. Over her head is draped a long gauze scarf, also of a beautiful deep purple colour, and this scarf falls over her shoulders to the foot of her dress. Later on, Mrs. Tree wears a lovely clinging dress of sea-green silk, over which is worn the peplum, made of the same material and bordered with silver. Her head is again draped with gauze, this time of a soft smoke-grey colour, and this veil falls on the shoulders, so as to make a very charming drapery.

MISS VIOLA TREE appears as Perdita in a short dress, made in the Greek fashion, and carried out in pale yellow soft silk, scattered with petals of the primrose. Her mantle is made of trails of spring flowers, and she has a wreath of primroses, daisies, and buttercups in her hair. Her feet are shod with sandals.

AN actor named Gerald Austin pleaded guilty to keeping a dog without a licence at Ivybridge on the 28th ult., and told the magistrates that he had tramped miles in order to get employment, but could not. He could hardly pay his rent, and was unable to keep his wife and family. It was impossible for him to pay a fine, so he suggested that the magistrates should send him to prison. The Chairman: The Bench won't send you to prison. They can't do so. Defendant: Well, I cannot pay. The Chairman: All the Bench can do is to fine you, and in default of distress issue a warrant. Defendant: I have not got five shillings' worth of furniture. The Chairman: You will be fined 10s.

"MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM."

A Farce in Three Acts, by Frank Wyatt and William Morris, produced at the Waldorf Theatre, on Monday, Sept. 10.

Jack Temple .....MR. ALLAN AYNESWORTH
Frank Fuller .....MR. WILLIAM MORRIS
Wigson .....MR. VICTOR WIDDICOMBE
Captain Sharp .....MR. RUDGE HARDING
A Hairdresser .....MR. FRANK COLLINS
Mrs. Jack Temple .....MISS SYBIL CARLISLE
Mrs. Frank Fuller .....MISS CONSTANCE HYEM
Dorothy .....MISS DIDO DRAKE
Martha .....MISS FRANCES WETHERALL

Fibs ad libitum and mistaken identity constitute much of the stock-in-trade of the farce-writer; and both are liberally employed in Mrs. Temple's Telegram. The piece commences with an incident sanctified by frequent use—a husband endeavouring to explain to his suspicious wife how he has come to be out all night. In this case, Jack Temple is absolutely innocent, being the victim of one of those accidents which used to occur to the Great Wheel at Earl's Court. He has been detained in one of the carriages in company with a lady, who, though Temple does not know it, is the wife of his friend Frank Fuller. Temple tells his wife the truth; but she will not believe him, so he resorts to "tarradiddling." He asserts that he had been spending the evening with a dear old friend, and missed his train. Temple gives at random the name of this friend as "John Brown, Elm-avenue, Pickleton"; and Mrs. Temple, still unconvinced, "wires" to the friend to come and see her, the telegram being imprudently worded so as to suggest a proposed assignation. Fuller turns up, and offers to impersonate the fictitious Brown, and to substantiate Temple's story. The idea is carried out; and Mrs. Temple is strongly assured of her husband's innocence. But, by a strange coincidence, there is a John Brown, Mrs. Temple's hairdresser, living at Elm-avenue, Pickerton; and he comes in answer to the telegram, believing that the lady has fallen in love with him. His wife, Martha Brown, also arrives in jealous quest of her inconstant spouse. After this, the action becomes a complicated series of errors of identity. Mrs. Fuller comes on the scene; and Mrs. Temple, who looks upon Fuller as Brown, is horrified at the familiarities that pass between the lady and her lawful spouse. Eventually, matters are cleared up by explanations.

There are some moments of moderate interest in the piece; but there are also many "purple patches" of fun; and, on the whole, the effect of Mrs. Temple's Telegram, is enlivening and entertaining.

Mr. Allan Aynesworth was in his usual excellent form as Jack Temple, and acted throughout with fine polish and brisk activity. Mr. William Morris, part author of the play, has a method of his own—almost a mannerism—which consists in subduing his voice to an undertone, and speaking his lines in studied moderato. A little louder delivery and less "reserved force" might have been more suitable to the requirements of a farce, which is very much a matter of bustle and emphasis, and will not suffer deliberation or delay. Mr. Morris's peculiarity was, however, very effective at times; and he certainly avoided anything like restlessness or vulgar exaggeration. His individuality is striking; and he exerts over an audience the charm which is the result of a pleasing presence, absolute ease and self-possession, and a complete command of resources. And, though his delivery is "kept down," at times almost to being inaudible in the gallery, he is always admirably distinct in enunciation. His American accent is by no means a disadvantage at a period when Transatlantic artists are so popular in London. Mr. Victor Widdicombe was unctuously droll as Wigson, an almost impossibly familiar butler of the old-fashioned farce-servant type, who, like Evelyn in Money, is "allowed strange liberties" by his too-indulgent master. Mr. Widdicombe's make-up was capital, and he gave the drolleries of the impudent menial their full value. Mr. Rudge Harding played a gallant young Captain pleasantly and brightly; and Mr. Frank Collins, as the hairdresser, gave a graphic depictment of a cringing, amorous, and vulgar little "cad." Miss Sybil Carlisle was charmingly graceful and ladylike as Mrs. Jack Temple, and played the part with admirable spirit, delicacy, and tact. Miss Constance Hyem contributes a clever little character-sketch as Mrs. Frank Fuller; and Miss Dido Drake was agreeably naïve and ingenuous as Dorothy. A specially quaint and natural embodiment of Martha Brown was supplied by Miss Frances Wetherall.

Mrs. Temple's Telegram was preceded by a new play in one act, by Frederick Fenn and Richard Pryce, played for the first time, and entitled

"HIS CHILD."

Mrs. Peacemeal .....MISS HARRIET CLIFTON
Liz. .....MISS HAIDÉE WRIGHT
Maud .....MISS DIDO DRAKE
Alf .....MR. RUDGE HARDING
Albert .....MASTER HERBERT HOLLOM
Bessie Ling .....MISS MARY ALLESTREE
Nance Hablot .....MISS FRANCES WETHERALL

This was quite a remarkable production in its way—an attempt to put on the stage material similar to that utilised by Mr. Pett Ridge and Mr. Arthur Morris in their stories of poverty. Liz. Peacemeal has been seduced by a certain Bill Hablot, who has deserted her, and has married another young woman, named Nance. Liz's father, enraged, threatens to turn her out of doors. But Bill suddenly dies, and his wife's child is also taken; so the widow comes to Liz, and begs to be allowed to adopt and bring up the illegitimate infant. Liz struggles with her dislike to part from her baby; but is almost persuaded to make the sacrifice, when Nance lets out to Liz that Bill always loved her. This seems a motive almost insufficient to make the latter to refuse to part with her baby; but she refuses in passionate terms to accept Nance's offer; and the curtain falls on a touching little scene between Liz and her mother, Mrs. Peacemeal—a pathetically patient and long-suffering drudge.

The production was made remarkable by the earnest and sincere treatment of the various parts by the members of the cast. Miss Haidée Wright specially distinguished herself as Liz, putting a remarkable amount of intensity and feeling into her acting as the desperate and warmly-affectionate girl of the people. The scenes between Miss Wright and Miss Frances Wetherall, who played Nance Hablot, were so absolutely natural and unexaggerated that they held the house in thrall almost against its will, and were followed with an attention which proved their power. Miss Wetherall created a deep impression as Nance, and deserved hearty praise for her performance. Miss Mary Allestree supplied an effective sketch of a rough, good-hearted girl of the people; and Miss Harriet Clifton's ripe experience was very valuable as Mrs. Peacemeal. Mr. Rudge Harding made the most of his opportunities as a kindly working man; and Miss Dido Drake and Master Herbert Hollom were seen to advantage in other rôles. Genuine realism is so rare upon the stage in the depiction of "how the poor live," that His Child created a decidedly deep, though rather painful, impression on the audience.

"THE HYPOCRITES."

A Play in Four Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones, produced at the Hudson Theatre, New York, on Aug. 30.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In giving his reasons for producing this play in New York instead of London, Mr. Jones said:—"For the moment the English stage is choked with musical comedy. The public takes little interest in anything else. Ten years ago I had high hopes for a revival of the English drama. Indeed, the battle seemed already won. But to-day, the English stage is sleepy and degraded. Seriousness meets with little response. Of late, to be sure, there are signs of improvement. Mr. Pinero, for instance, has recently brought out a fine play, with great and deserved success, and there is an appreciative audience for the intellectual brilliancy of Mr. Bernard Shaw. But I find no such general and widely-spread interest in the serious drama as exists here in New York."

The Hypocrites is a title that Mr. Jones has had in mind for a good many years. At one time he had thought of calling the play The Unconscious Hypocrites, but decided that that title would not be quite accurate. Weybury, the scene of the play, is supposed to be a small English town of two or three thousand inhabitants, the characters being typical of English county society. There are the doctor and his wife, the vicar, the curate, the lawyer, the lord of the manor, the gossiping ladies, and so on. In this group we find the hypocrites who give the title to the play.

Mr. Wilmore, the lord of the manor, is a robust individual, who proclaims that he has a conscience. His wife is a strong-minded, proud-spirited woman, and their son Lennard, a fine, strapping young fellow, is about to be married to Helen Plugenet, daughter of Sir John Plugenet, a very wealthy man. Sir John holds a mortgage on the Wilmore estate, and the marriage will not only lift the Wilmores out of serious financial difficulties—it will enable the father and mother to occupy their real places in society, and make the son a Member of Parliament, and a wealthy, powerful, and prominent man, a part in life for which he is in every way fitted. Lennard Wilmore is the apple of his mother's eye, and while she knows that he has been a little wild, her heart is set on the marriage, not for her own sake, but because it will be the making of him. The chief male characters are Mr. Viveash, a country lawyer, and the Wilmore's representative and adviser; Lennard Wilmore, the son; the Rev. Edgar Linnell, the curate; and Sir John Plugenet, a typical English aristocrat. Rachel Neve, a young woman whom Lennard has loved and wronged, and who loves him, comes to Weybury to see the young man and tell him of her predicament. In the guise of a drawing teacher, she calls on Lennard's mother, and unexpectedly meets the cause of her trouble during the mother's absence from the room. She, returning, finds the girl sobbing in her son's arms. She learns the truth, and immediately decides that the girl must be got out of the way. The marriage must take place; the affair must not be allowed to spoil her son's future. The girl promises to go away, and keeps her word; but near the station falls and sprains her ankle, and has to be taken to the Rev. Mr. Linnell's house. The curate's wife is ambitious, and she knows that if her husband were not so straightforward and outspoken, and would abandon his steadfast purpose of reforming Weybury society, he might have the vicarage. But Linnell discovers the girl's trouble; and Linnell, unlike the rest, is not a hypocrite. Through the machinations of Mrs. Wilmore, the girl agrees to withdraw her charge, while young Wilmore promises to lie about his past, and everyone except the curate becomes a hypocrite of one sort or another to stop the scandal.

In a fine dramatic scene in the third act, the hypocrites assemble in the library of the manor house to listen to the manufactured denials, and put in evidence the signed statement of the girl who is so loyal to the man she loves that she lies to save his respectability. The curate is confounded. He is branded as a scandal-monger. He is about to leave the room, when he turns about and demands that Lennard Wilmore and Rachel Neve confront each other. The hypocrites demur; but Sir John decides that it can do no harm. They send for the girl, and, face to face with her lover, she repeats her denial. That settles it. The curate is a liar. Sir John tells him so, and Mr. Wilmore orders him to leave the house.

"I told you how this would end!" hisses the mother, as the bewildered Linnell stumbles towards the door. Then comes the climax, like a bolt from a blue sky. Linnell turns on her and the assembled witnesses and shouts: "It's not ended! Sir John, tell your daughter to look. There's a rat under the floor of her new home. You know it, all of you! You liars! You hypocrites! You time-servers! You know the rat's festering under the floor! (To Rachel): You know it, too——" The girl turns as if to leave the room, and totters. Lennard, at her elbow, catches her as she falls. She sees him bending over her, and cries convulsively to the curate to take her away. But the touch of her hand has awakened Lennard's better nature. Pity has rekindled his love. In a few words he makes a clean breast of it and sweeps away his false respectability. The whited sepulchres of Weybury's select society are completely routed. "Look up, man!" cries the curate. "Look up, not down! This is the hour of your triumph." In the last act Lennard and Rachel begin life anew in the colonies; while the hypocrites, unreclaimed, pursue their familiar ways.

The play held the unflagging attention of a large audience from start to finish, and aroused genuine enthusiasm. At the end of the third act Mr. Jones was repeatedly called for. In response to the demands for a speech he appeared before the curtain, and briefly expressed his thanks.

Mr. Leslie Faber, as the Rev. Edgar Linnell, had the best lines in the play, and received most of the applause. He is an actor of exceptional merit and charm. Miss Jessie Millward gave a faithful portrayal of a mother anxious to serve her beloved son at any cost. Miss Doris Keane shared the chief acting honours, her Rachel Neve being a distinctly praiseworthy achievement. Mr. Richard Bennett admirably realised the character of Lennard Wilmore, and made a pronounced hit. Mr. John Glendinning as Sir John Plugenet fulfilled all requirements. Mr. J. H. Barnes as Mr. Wilmore, and Mr. Arthur Lewis as the lawyer, Viveash, contributed clever characterisations. Miss Viva Birkett created an agreeable impression as Helen Plugenet. Other parts were played in an excellent manner by Mr. W. H. Denny, Mr. Cecil Kingston, Miss Ada Webster, Miss Helen Tracey, and Miss Louise Reed.

DIFFICULTIES OF DRAMATISATION.

CHAT WITH MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The subject of the dramatisation of novels was brought up the other day in the course of conversation with Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, who is producing for Mr. J. Bannister Howard a play founded upon Mr. Edgar Wallace's novel, The Four Just Men, at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8.

"In adapting a book for stage purposes," says Mr. Saintsbury, "the main thing to be avoided is the use of scissors and paste-pot, which seems nowadays to be the most favoured method of making a novel into a play. The novelist has the advantage of being able to expose the mental attitude of the speaker in an explanatory paragraph, whereas the dramatist is obliged to show character, and to express sentiment at one and the same time. Consequently, in my opinion, the dramatist should 'soak' himself with the personalities of the characters in the novel, and endeavour to present them in dialogue of his own. The novelist is permitted to describe scenes outside or apart from the immediate centre of interest, while the dramatist has to place everything actually before his audience, and woe betide him if he digresses! On the other hand, the novelist's digressions are, as a rule, the most interesting part of his story. If the plots of fifty per cent. of the successful novels that have been written during the last decade were stripped to their bare bones, you would find nothing new. For that reason it is pure waste of time to dramatise them. Yet, curiously enough, theatrical managers pounce greedily upon the stage rights of every novel that goes into a second edition in the hope of benefiting by the advertisement of the circulation of the book.

"Now, in your own experience, perhaps you will tell me what work of fiction has been most difficult to dramatise?"

"Unquestionably, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and, even that did not make a good play, although it achieved a great measure of success in America, thanks to the marvellous performance of Richard Mansfield. And next to it I should unhesitatingly place The Four Just Men. We have in it a brilliantly clever and original central idea, and a thrilling dénouement, but no story in the strict sense of the word—no development of character by incident, which I take to be the essential basis of dramatic construction. It therefore became the business of Mr. George Warren, who has adapted it, to invent a story that should fit in with and lead up to the dénouement of the book. There is no female interest in the novel, nor even a single female character, and no dramatist that I know of has yet been daring enough to write a play with a 'leading lady.'"

"Mr. Warren hit upon the idea of clothing the Bill—to pass which into law Sir Phillip Ramon sacrifices his life—with flesh and blood by binding up with it a powerful love story. If the measure becomes an Act of Parliament, not only will it bring about a revolution, but the young lovers will be separated. The Four Just Men, whose poetical self-appointed mission it is to mete out justice where the power of the written law fails decide that the only means of averting the measure is to bring about the death of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. This they do, and so not only avert the revolution, but at the same time pave the way towards the happy future of the sweethearts.

"In my opinion, Mr. Warren has displayed exceptional cleverness in the manner in which he has developed the element of comedy. And of the Four Just Men themselves, who might in other hands have become mere melodramatic puppets, he has made very live human beings, by no means devoid of a sense of humour."

"In what category or class would you place this play?"

"I should say, without in any way being a copy, it belongs to the type of Sherlock Holmes and Raffles. The air of mystery is predominant, and the most telling situations are of the tense and quiet order.

"My favourite work," contined Mr. Saintsbury, "is the producing of plays, and I feel that in the present work I have great opportunities. I have designed the scenery and invented the lighting, mechanical, and other effects, and the whole apparatus will be carried. Our scenery is most elaborate, and a good suburban and provincial tour has been booked by Mr. Cecil Barth, under whose direction the company will travel."

MR. BRODIE'S OPINION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—While my old friend Bourchier is bulging big in the bile of our other friends the critics, I should like to know where the poor actor is coming in? A "Répétition Générale" in London is a free performance given, with a few judicious exceptions, to a lot of tittle-tattling busybodies who have as much right to be present as they would have at an experiment in a dissecting room, previous to a critical operation being performed. These alleged performances take all the "pluck" out of a highly-strung artist, and leave him "rotten" at the time when his true temperature should be taken, i.e., on the first night before a paying public. I should like to see the "Répétition Générale" of a horse race! No, have as many dress rehearsals as is absolutely necessary, but keep out the Press.

If the "R. G." is to become the vogue, how is it to be paid for? As an evening performance, a half-salary matinée, or is it the thin end of the eight performances a week wedge?

Yours faithfully,
MATTHEW BRODIE.

MR. TREE AT NEWCASTLE.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree was on Thursday night, after the performance of Colonel Newcome, the guest of the Newcastle Pen and Palette Club. Responding to the toast of his health, Mr. Tree said it was some years since he had visited Newcastle, but his recollection of the pleasure he experienced then had made him look forward to this week. He felt, however, that the responsibilities of a large theatre in London prevented him from consolidating the friendship of the great cities which every artist coveted, and without which no reputation was national. Remarking that one of his recreations was the reading of plays, Mr. Tree said that two recently sent to him were worthy of mention. The first play opened in clouds of vapour, which rolled aside to show the Maker of the Universe speaking through a megaphone. He said—well, he would not say what was said, for he had sent the play to another manager. The second play—a domestic one, from Johannesburg—the heroine in one of twenty or thirty scenes was depicted in bed on her birthday morning. The scene concluded with her getting out of bed, and a footnote said, "This must be done gracefully." He feared that play would not be seen; it was so difficult to get out of bed gracefully.

The warm and enthusiastic applause of Newcastle audiences, he continued, had been a great pleasure; and it was no figure of speech for him to say that the little play of The Man Who Was had never been received with so great a demonstration as had been the case in that city. It had been complained that they were not a nation of playgoers; and, of course, there was no doubt that the human machine was incapable of more than one consuming passion. Greater love of football often swallowed up lesser love of drama; but he was delighted to be able to say that, personally, he had, both in London and the provinces, always found the public for classical works. He thought the wider education of to-day would probably bring about greater love of drama. Even the steadiest puritan would, he supposed, admit that beauty in art contributed to human happiness. He saw that the doughty Mr. Stead, who hailed from those parts, had ranged himself on the side of beauty, for in a recent visit to a music hall, amidst much which he considered objectionable, he had praised the human form divine in glowing tones of pen as publicly exhibited in London. They were somewhat Continentalised as to the outwardly pleasant side of life; and the concord of sweet sounds was heard everywhere. Even Wagner was becoming more than a fashion; but in many parts of England we were much behind our Continental neighbours in the matter of beautiful music. It was in presenting the great characters of Shakespeare that his profession fulfilled its highest ambition; and it was that work which was most enjoyed by actors, and by which they could really do a great public good.

EDWARD TERRY AS WILLIAM TODMAN

AT THE LYCEUM THEATRE, EDINBURGH.

Mr. Edward Terry is always a welcome visitor to Edinburgh. He is one of the most legitimate comedians on the stage, and his annual reappearances in the city are always hailed with approval by a wide circle of friends. He never fails to provide an excellent entertainment for theatregoers, with an admirable combination of comedy and sentiment; and this week he is to appear in several of his most popular pieces. The Magistrate, one of Mr. Pinero's early farcical comedies, is on the bill; so is Sweet Lavender, which has had such a great success as a play. Last night, however, he opened with Mr. R. C. Carton's well-known Liberty Hall, which was originally exploited by Mr. George Alexander with so much éclat. It is a comedy-drama of much merit, and it has not yet become old-fashioned or out of date. Its story has much human interest in it. The love-making of the young people is of a kind that has a perennial charm, and the rôle of William Todman, the genial old book shop-keeper, in straitened circumstances, which is taken by Mr. Terry, is one that suits him admirably. He makes Todman a quaint and lovable character. Though struggling to make ends meet, Todman has given shelter to the two girls of a deceased impecunious baronet, whom he cares for with more than parental affection; and with his tender heart, old-world ways, and piquant sayings, he affords Mr. Terry a part in which he fairly revels. His Todman was throughout delightfully acted—full of touching pathetic passages, and enlivened by the quiet humour with which Mr. Terry never fails to illumine any rôle which he takes in hand. —The Scotsman, Sept. 11, 1906.

"OH! THAT MAJOR."

A new and original Farcical Sketch, by J. Hamilton Urquahart, produced at the Town Hall, Leven, on Monday, Sept. 10.

Major McDougal .....MR. J. H. URQUHART
Mrs. McDougal .....MISS DUKINFIELD
James .....MR. J. HAMILTON
Polly Pleasant .....MISS DESBOROUGH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Major McDougal is a young old man who seeks, in mild flirtations with his wife's housemaids, relief from domestic infelicity. The major's wife is undoubtedly the head of the house, and makes it a rule to have no married servants in her service. James, the butler, has been forced into marriage by Polly, who threatened an action for breach of promise, but the marriage is kept secret that he may retain his situation. This secrecy does not altogether suit Polly's temperament, and she expresses a desire to interview James's mistress with a view to employment in the house. James is much relieved by an opportune telegram which summons Mrs. McDougal to the bedside of a dying brother. It is an easy task to induce the major, in the absence of his wife, to visit London. This done, and the coast clear, James invites Polly to come along at once. The major misses his train and returns in disgust, to find consolation in the smiles of Polly, whom James introduces as an applicant for a situation as housemaid. The flirtation makes rapid progress. The major is in the act of kissing Polly when the harmony is interrupted by the unexpected return of Mrs. McDougal. The telegram had been misdirected. She chases her erring husband round the room, belabouring him with her umbrella, then devotes her attention to his fellow culprit, Polly, who seeks shelter in the arms of James. Explanations follow, and Polly and James are allowed to remain under the same roof.

The author, Mr. J. H. Urquhart, as the major acted the henpecked husband to the life. The butler, as played by Mr. J. Hamilton, was very amusing, his impotent wrath during the major's flirtation with Polly evoking shrieks of laughter. Mrs. McDougal, an exacting and imperious lady, was well portrayed by Miss Dukinfield. Miss Desborough, alert and atrractive, made a success of the part of Polly, which she undertook at a very few hours' notice.

The sketch, which played for half an hour, was well received, and will probably be heard of again.

"THE UNSEEN POWER."

A New Musical Drama, in Four Acts, by Harry Starr, produced at the Athenæum, Lancaster, on Monday, Sept. 10.

Fred Granville .....MR. HARRY STARR
Harold Granville .....MR. WILLIAM MILLER
Antonio Romano .....MR. EDWIN FIRTH
George Granville .....MR. WILL HEE
Chris Granville .....MISS KATIE NORRIS
Horatio Cracklesby .....MR. FRED W. GRAHAM
Joe Shrub .....MR. BERT RUSHER
Bill .....MR. BERNARD MOSTYN
Police Sergeant .....MR. WILLIAM GOSSET
Tomasso .....MR. GEORGE JUKES
Lucretia Granville .....MISS ELLA CROSSLEY
Anita Romano .....MISS MADGE BLUNDELL
Lucy Romano .....MISS CISSIE HASTINGS
Jennie Shrub .....MISS LIZZIE JACOBS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Harry Starr's new musical drama is exceedingly well constructed, and cleverly written. The plot strikes one as original, and fails to touch the reminiscent chord as do most dramas. It certainly gives the author-actor, in the rôle of Fred Granville, great scope for the display of his clever versatility. Act I. forms what might be termed a prologue. Fred Granville, a young artist, has married a wealthy Venetian lady, Lucretia, whose unconventional manners have culminated in an intrigue with Fred's brother Harold, who is on a visit to their Venetian home. Lucretia's steward, Romano, has marked her and her property for his own, and the advent of his sister Anita with a child belonging to Harold gives him his opportunity. He enlightens Fred as to his wife's infidelity, and Fred determines to leave her; but rather than entrust his child to her care he substitutes Anita's boy for hers. The act terminates sensationally by Romano blinding Harold with a subtle drug, and the arrest of Fred as the culprit. An interval of eighteen years elapse, and the play commences in the bar parlour of the Golden Lion in London, where all the characters come together under widely different circumstances. Fred is a wastrel, whose memory only extends to the time when he was released from an Italian prison, where he had been serving two years. Romano gained possession of Lucretia's property in the meantime, then deserted her. Romano, who lives in the suburbs, has kept the boy George, whom he supposes to be Fred's child, drugs him, so as to obscure his senses, in order to get his signature to deeds when he comes of age. By this time Romano has gone through the form of a mock marriage with a young wife, Lucy. Harold is a blind beggar, and Anita, who has clung to him through thick and thin, is now a cripple, and the boy Chris, whom she supposes to be her own, but is really Fred's, is selling matches in the streets. Lucretia is now living a degraded life through drink. By committing a burglary at Romano's house, Fred discovers his old foe's identity, and his memory slowly returns. Eventually he disguises himself as a negro messenger, and gains access to the house, where he foils Romano's schemes. In the last act the mind of George gives way under the drugs of Romano, and in his frenzy commits suicide, his real mother, Anita, arriving on the scene just too late, and the play culminates in a striking river-side scene, where Lucretia dies in squalor and Harold gets literally an "eye for an eye" by blinding Romano with his own drug, and the reunion of Fred and his own child.

The play was presented on Monday before a crowded audience, who followed the story with keen interest. Mr. Harry Starr, in the rôle of Fred Graham, gave some broad character-sketches as a costermonger, a female of the low-comedy type, and a "down south darky," with negro specialities. His singing, too, was much appreciated, more especially a descriptive song in the Embankment scene, "When Big Ben Chimes," an effort that fairly brought down the house. Mr. Edwin Firth had a difficult part as the wily Italian, Antonio Romano, but he played it with a force and consistency that were remarkable. Mr. William Miller as Harold Granville, the blind man, succeeded in a strong character part admirably. Mr. Fred Graham as Horatio Cracklesby, the actor, made himself an immediate favourite, and could not complain of lack of appreciation for the undoubted humour of the part. He was ably assisted by Miss Lizzy Jacobs as Jenny. Mr. Will Hee was convincing as George. As Anita, the Italian girl, Miss Madge Blundell played with marked ability, great praise being due to her for an evidently careful study. Miss Kate Norris was the boy Chris to the life; and Miss Ella Crossley gave a capital portrayal of Lucretia. All the minor parts were in good hands, and the staging excellent. The music and songs were all by Mr. Starr himself. Altogether, the piece possesses the quality of merit, and should attract crowded houses wherever presented.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The period of the story, which is the same as that on which Mme. Sans Gêne and The Duchess of Dantzic are founded, is the time of the French Revolution, when all Paris rang with the cry, "Down with the Aristocrats." The prologue introduces us to the laundry of Catherine Upscher, That lady is busy ironing the operation being attentively watched by Little Adrian—a child adopted by Catherine, but whose mother is Mélanie de Lavigne—who asks questions concerning its parentage. The father is Napoleon Bonaparte, a young officer of artillery. Sergeant Lefebvre, who comes on a visit, is the favoured lover of Catherine, and eventually proposes marriage to her. He is accepted, and departs to join his regiment, which is bound for foreign service. Mélanie de Lavigne, an aristocrat, who is being hunted down by the sans-culottes, reaches the laundry in disguise, to see her child before escaping from France, and enjoins Catherine never to reveal the secret of her child's birth. Fouché, a citizen, whose ambition it is to become Chief of the Secret Police, traces Mélanie to the laundry, but is outwitted in her capture by Catherine, for which he swears to be revenged. When about to search the house he is ordered to leave by Lefebvre, who returns to announce his promotion to the rank of lieutenant.

A number of years are supposed to elapse between the prologue and act one. Lefebvre has become a maréchal and married Catherine; Fouché has gained the post of chief of police; and Little Adrian, reared in the belief that he is Lefebvre's son, is now a lieutenant in the Army. The scene is the sitting-room of Lefebvre, where preparations are being made for a grand ball, to which the Emperor Napoleon is coming. Lieutenant Adrian enters in a very troubled state of mind and confides to Catherine the cause. Having been entrusted with important secret despatches, he calls on a lady named Madame de Staël, with whom he has fallen in love, and who favours his suit for her own ends, being a foreign spy. On leaving the house he was robbed by masked men whom he cannot recognise, and it is probable that the despatches will fall into the hands of a foreign power. Such an eventuality would mean death to the young officer. His painful predicament is well known to Fouché, who is determined to have Adrian shot as a traitor.

Act two takes place in the Grand Saloon in the Palace of Lefebvre on the night of the ball. Napoleon arrives and Fouché intends to denounce Lieutenant Adrian and have him arrested. During the dancing of a gavotte, in which the Emperor joins, Catherine, with the assistance of a faithful servant, aids Lieutenant Adrian to escape, but Fouché raises the alarm and he is captured.

In act three—the Court Martial scene—Maréchal Lefebvre is compelled to judge the case of his foster-son. Fouché is the prosecutor, and as the lieutenant has no defence, or proofs, with the exception of his own word, he is found guilty and sentenced to be shot. Catherine has a scene with Fouché, in which she tells him that she will play her trump card, of which he knows nothing.

Act four takes place in Napoleon Bonaparte's study. It is the morning of the execution, and Catherine is pleading for the life of Adrian. As a last resource she tells Napoleon that Adrian is his own son, and proves her story to be true by reminding him of the days when as a lieutenant he made love to Mélanie in her laundry. Napoleon immediately summons Maréchal Lefebvre, Adrian, and Fouché to his presence, pardons Adrian, and creates Lefebvre Duke of Dantzic, Catherine becoming Duchess.

As Catherine Mrs. Bandmann Palmer was seen at her best, and Mr. F. Skein was well-suited to the part of Fouché. Mr. Leonard Cheetham gave a manly performance of Lieut. Adrian; Miss More Dunphie presented a vigorous portrayal of Madame de Staël; Mr. Robt. Pittard was good as Maréchal Lefebvre; and other characters were suitably played. The appropriate incidental music was composed by Mr. Albert E. Wilson, the musical director of Muncaster Theatre. The piece was well staged.

"THE TWO MR. WEATHERBYS."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. William F. Hawtrey has scored a personal success at the Madison-square Theatre, New York, in The Two Mr. Weatherbys, a three-act comedy, by St. John Hankin. Two brothers, James and Richard Weatherby, are the gentlemen named in the title. In the eyes of their relatives James is the embodiment of all the virtues, while Richard is utterly depraved. Richard's wife, Constantia, has left him on account of his bad habits, but a clause in the agreement of separation provides for a yearly meeting to give them an opportunity of becoming reconciled. The first act takes place at James's home on the date set for the meeting. Constantia is willing to return to her husband on his promising to behave better in future, but Richard enjoys his freedom, and has no desire to be reconciled. In the second act James confesses that he is tired of posing as a paragon, but lacks the courage to tell his wife. Richard persuades him to visit a music hall, and Mrs. James Weatherby finds the programme in the pocket of her husband's coat, after he has informed her that there were very few people at the club. Of course, there is a row. James, supported by Richard, makes a half-hearted confession of his frequent deviations from the narrow path, and his wife declares her intention of following her sister Constantia's example. In the third act, Richard talks to his sister-in-law, and persuades her to forgive James and allow him more freedom. She also agrees to get rid of Aunt Clara and Nephew Robert, a solemn prig with a penchant for missionary societies, both of whom have been staying with her. Richard is satisfied with what he has done, and starts for town. He meets Constantia, and although he has twice refused to take her back, he consents to do so when she promises to take a more lenient view of his foibles in the future.

The Charley's Aunt company left Dundee at 5.20 on Monday morning, and reached Glasgow in good time to connect with the 9.5 a.m. Belfast express to Ardrossan, where they embarked on Messrs. Burns' new turbine steamer Viper and arrived at Belfast at 1.20 p.m., performing there the same evening. This was indeed marvellously quick travelling, and saved the company an all night's journey. Several music-hall artists travelled with the company from Dundee to Dublin and were able to connect with the 2.20 p.m. train from Belfast to Dublin, where they arrived at 5.40 p.m., in good time to fulfil their engagement in the Irish capital on the same night.

HEROES OF OPERA.

Not very long ago, wrote the late W. D. Adams, M. Ambroise Thomas turned the hero of his Hamlet into a tenor. Formerly his Prince of Denmark was a baritone, but, circumstances having suggested the change, it was duly made. On general principles it may be commended. If Hamlet is to flaunt in opera at all—and I am not sure that it is a very dignified position for shakespeare's greatest creation—it seems clear that he ought to be a tenor. He is not a sufficiently robust personage to be a baritone. He does some tragic things, to be sure, and has a tragic end; but he is strong only in spasms and by accident. In essence he is weak, flaccid, indeterminate—unmanly alike in his irresolution, his despair, his hysteria. There is a broad vein of the feminine in Hamlet's nature, and such an individuality ought not, it would seem, to express itself, musically, in the deeper accents of the human voice.

For him, rather, should be the piping notes of the tenor, and especially of the high tenor, who, roughly speaking, is the male counterpart of the soprano. The sterner and acuter emotions should be reserved, operatically, for the more sonorous vocalists—for the baritone, or even for the bass. It is true that Mr. F. H. Cowen assigned his Claude Melnotte to Mr. Santley, and some, not unjustifiably, may hold that Claude is a considerably less heroic figure than Hamlet. Poetically and dramatically, of course, they cannot be compared. But for operatic purposes Claude is, perhaps, the better hero of the two. There is in him at least a strain of the elevated: he despises himself for the trick he plays upon the lady, he makes all the reparation in his power, he goes off to the wars, he returns with at least a reputation for bravery, and, in a word, asserts his manhood. Morally, he seems to have the advantage of his Danish rival. Latterly he has been presented anew in tenor guise; but when Mr. Cowen made him speak in more masculine numbers, the compliment was not unmerited.

What the ordinary operatic hero is, everybody knows from long and sometimes painful experience. He is usually a tenor, and generally a poor creature. He is not invariably despicable. There is Don Giovanni, for example—the Lovelace of the lyric stage. The Don is a naughty man, but he is a man, nevertheless, and is the central point of interest in the very finest example of the old school of operas. He has spirit, and he has daring, and audiences like him none the less because he is by no means reputable. The average tenor hero is respectable to the core, but he is rarely, if ever, spirited. He seems made to be sat upon. When he is not whining, he is drivelling. There is nothing necessarily discreditable in the expression of the affections; but why, on the stage, should it be so constantly associated with a man's upper G? It must often have been a source of wonder to the unsophisticated that the operatic heroine should so invariably have preferred the piping tenor to the sonorous baritone. The latter is almost always, if not always, the prettier fellow of the two—the more attractive in every way. There have been fine-looking tenors, from Mario downwards, but they have not been so numerous as could be wished. Too frequently they have been short and squat, with a visible tendency to baldness. Fat and, too often, scant of breath has been the average high-pitched tenor from Italian shores. There have been tenors slight and tall, just as there have been sopranos tall and slight; but no care has been taken by managers to assort them properly. The slim tenor has warbled too frequently to the soprano of matronly proportions, and the slender soprano has had to listen to the impassioned vows of the tenor who was as broad as he was long. The baritone—that is to say, the villain of the piece—is, following some unexplainable law of nature, always lengthy; but the soprano, however elongated, shows no sign of regarding him as her affinity. She prefers the tenor gentleman, whom she could easily put into her pocket, and whom, as it is, she exercises as much as possible up and down the stage.

One may be forgiven if, every now and then, one rebels against these conventionalities of opera. Why should the singing hero be so often a tenor, and so frequently a poor creature? Is he the former because he is the latter, or the latter because he is the former? Have the composers made their heroes tenors because they were ashamed of them, or have the said heroes been ashamed of themselves because they were tenors? The problem, probably, will never be solved. And, admittedly, the humours of the lyric drama would be regrettably curtailed if any alteration were made in the tactics of the past. The spectacle in La Favorita of the portly Tietjens whirling about the tiny Aramburo is one, among many such, which lingers in the memory, and which one would not willingly let die. Yet composers, and librettists, and managers will, if they are wise, do their best to reform this matter altogether. Ridicule kills, and the New Opera will go the way of the Old Opera if its heroes are not a little more happily selected. Let the high tenor be deposed from his pride of place, and his position taken by the baritone, or the bass, or, at least, the tenore robusto. Only the very young heroes should be given to the tenori leggieri. The weak and cowardly Faust may very properly articulate in high-set tones, but why should Siebel, the love-sick boy of the piece, be handed over to a contralto?

The truth is, of course, that composers have always thought more of the musical possibilities, the harmonic combinations, of their work, than of the fitness of the vocal register to the character. They are a selfish body, these musicians, and do not care twopence for their librettists. Still more selfish, however, are the vocalists, who care neither for librettists nor for composers. It is mainly to the vanity of the ladies that we owe what is perhaps the least tolerable of all operatic nuisances—the feminine hero, the male character enacted by the female artist. This is the most objectionable of all the heroes of opera—an epicene personage, in whom no real interest can be felt, and who degrades the lyric drama (such as it is) to a level artistically low.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, September 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by C. R. Clarke and H. R. Silva, entitled
"HONOUR THY FATHER."

The return visit of Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Honour thy Father is proving a strong attraction at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week. Mr. Walter M. Cameron makes up well, and plays very convincingly as Gabriel Garth, rendering the character very interesting. Mr. Bertram Ross is a buoyant and manly exponent of Jack Halyard, and the rascally Duncan Bly is powerfully depicted by Mr. W. R. Winning. Mr. W. H. Melrose is decidedly amusing as the bucolic Ned Pennycumquick, and Mr. Fred Rolls provides a droll impersonation of the "ne'er-do-well," Mike Copplestone. In the well contrasted parts of Job Merry and the demented George Bloggs, Mr. Claude Merton exhibits much ability; and Mr. Frank Eden plays Dr. Sleek neatly. Miss Kate Newton contributes a natural and sympathetic embodiment of Mrs. Garth, and Miss Mabel Coleman's acting as the much-wronged Lillian Garth has the true ring of pathos. Miss Winnie Donovan very gracefully enacts Mercy Merry; and Miss Lizzie Morley is a pleasant and entertaining Poppy Cornleigh. Remaining parts are all capably handled, and the piece is well staged.

Mr. Arthur Vekin, who is enacting Jacky with Mr. Louis Calvert's Sunday company, will have played the part 300 times to-night.

TEMPESTS OF THE STAGE.

One cannot recall anything more realistic or more theatrically terrible in the way of storms than the one which opened Mr. Tree's production of The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre last year. Macready's revival of the same play was marked by much realism in its shipwreck scene; but the "tempestuous season" then inaugurated at Covent Garden had not the scientific advantages that were at the disposal of Mr. Tree. Limelight flashes of lightning cannot equal the startling vividness of electricity. Thunder, too, is a much more sounding and furious artifice than it was, and in no well-regulated theatre is the noise imitated by shaking one of the lower corners of a large thin sheet of copper suspended by a chain—an effect, by the way, attributed to Garrick's scene painter, Philip James de Loutherbourg, who was prolific in imitations of nature.

The distant firing of signals of distress from the doomed vessel he counterfeited by suddenly striking a large tambourine with a sponge affixed to a whalebone spring, the reverberations of the sponge producing a peculiar echo as from cloud to cloud dying away in the distance. The rushing washing sound of the waves was simulated by turning round and round an octagonal pasteboard box, fitted with shelves, and containing small shells, peas, and shot; while two discs of tightly-strained silk, suddenly pressed together, produced a hollow whistling sound in imitation of loud and fitful gusts of wind. Cylinders, loosely charged with seed and small shot, lifted now at one end, now at the other, so as to allow the contents to fall in a pattering stream, effectually reproduced the noise of hail and rain. The moon was formed by a circular aperture cut in a tin box containing a powerful argand lamp, which was placed at the back of the scene, and brought near or removed from the canvas as the luminary was supposed to be shining brightly or to be obscured by clouds. These contrivances of Mr. de Loutherbourg may now, perhaps, be deemed to be rather a commonplace description—they have figured so frequently, and in such amplified and amended forms, upon the modern stage; but they were calculated to impress the painter's patrons very considerably; they were then distinctly innovations due to his curiously inventive genius, and the result of much labour and heedful ingenuity.

From Jonson's prologue to Every Man in his Humour, first performed in 1598, says the late Mr. Dutton Cook in "A Book of the Play," it appears that the rumbling of thunder was at that time imitated by the rolling to and fro of bullets or cannon balls. This plan was in time superseded by more ingenious contrivances. It is curious to find, however, that some fifty years ago one Lee, manager of the Edinburgh Theatre, with a view to improving the thunder of his stage, ventured upon a return to the Elizabethen system of representing a storm. His enterprise was attended with results at once ludicrous and disastrous. He placed ledges here and there along the back of his stage, and, obtaining a parcel of nine-pound cannon-balls, packed these in a wheelbarrow, which a carpenter was instructed to wheel to and fro over the ledges. The play was Lear, and the jolting of the heavy barrow as it was trundled along its uneven path over the hollow stage, and the rumblings and reverberations thus produced, counterfeited most effectively the raging of the tempest in the third act. Unfortunately, however, while the King was braving, in front of the scene, the pitiless storm at the back, the carpenter missed his footing, tripped over one of the ledges, and fell down, wheelbarrow, cannon-balls, and all. The stage being on a declivity, the cannon-balls came rolling rapidly and noisily down towards the front, gathering force as they advanced, and overcoming the feeble resistance offered by the scene, struck it down, passed over its prostrate form, and made their way towards the foot-lights and the fiddlers, amidst the amusement and wonder of the audience, and the amazement and alarm of the Lear of the night. As the nine-pounders advanced towards him, and rolled about in all directions, he was compelled to display an activity in avoiding them, singularly inappropriate to the age and condition of the character he was personating. He was even said to resemble a dancer achieving the terpsichorean feat known as the egg hornpipe. Presently, too, the musicians became alarmed for the safety of themselves and their instruments, and deemed it advisable to scale the spiked partition which divided them from the pit; for the cannon-balls were upon them, smashing the lamps, and falling heavily into the orchestra. Meantime, exposed to the full gaze of the house, lay prone, beside his empty barrow, the carpenter, the innocent invoker of the storm he had been unable to allay or direct, not at all hurt, but exceedingly frightened and bewildered. After this unlucky experiment, the manager abandoned his wheelbarrow and cannon-balls, and reverted to more received methods of producing stage-storms.

The notion of storing lightning in a bottle for use when required seems to have been frequently reverted to by the authors of the last century as a means of entertaining the public. Thus a writer in "The World," in 1754, makes no doubt "of being able to bring thunder and lightning to market at a much cheaper price than common gunpowder," and describes a friend who has applied himself wholly to electrical experiments, and discovered that "the most effectual and easy method of making this commodity is by grinding a certain quantity of air between a glass ball and a bag of sand, and when you have ground it into fire your lightning is made, and then you may either bottle it up, or put it into casks properly seasoned for that purpose, and send it to market." The inventor, however, confesses that what he has hitherto made is not of a sufficient degree of strength to answer all the purposes of natural lightning; but he is confident that he will soon be able to perfect this, and has, indeed, already so far perfected his experiments that, in the presence of several of his neighbours, he has succeeded in producing a clap of thunder which blew out a candle, accompanied by a flash of lightning which made an impression upon a pat of butter standing upon the table. He is also confident that in warm weather he can shake all the pewters upon his shelf, and fully expects, when his thermometer is at sixty-two degrees and a half, to be able to sour all the small beer in his cellar, and to break his largest pier-glass. This paper in "The World," apart from its humorous intention, is curious as a record of early dabblings in electrical experiments. It may be mentioned that in one of Franklin's letters, written apparently before the year 1750, the points of resemblance between lightning and the spark obtained by friction from an electrical apparatus are distinctly stated. It is but some thirty-five years ago that Andrew Crosse, the famous amateur electrician, was asked by an elderly gentleman, who came to witness his experiments with two enormous Leyden jars charged by means of wires stretched for miles among the forest trees near Taunton: "Mr. Crosse, don't you think it is rather impious to bottle the lightning?"

"Let me answer your question by asking another," said Crosse, laughing. "Don't you think it might be considered rather impious to bottle the rain-water?"

In consequence of the indisposition of Mrs. Ralland, of the No. 1 Amorelle company, Miss Victoria Wray last week in Aberdeen, at short notice, very successfully performed the rôle of Lesbia. Her success was so pronounced that not only Mrs. Ralland and the rest of the company congratulated her, but she was the recipient of an addition to her salary.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

Almero.—On Sept. 9, at Small Heath, Birmingham, wife of W. Almero, gymnast, of a fine daughter. Both doing well.
Couper.—On the 10th inst., the wife of Cecil F. Couper, Secretary of C. W. Poole's No. 1 Myriorama, of a daughter. Both doing well.
Huline.—Aug. 28, at 16, Gordon-road, Stratford, the wife (Bessie Travis) of Alec Huline, of a girl.
Jerome.—Sept. 12, Mrs. C. Jerome, of a girl. Both doing well.
Manley.—On Sept. 8, wife of James Manley, of a fine son. Both doing well.

MARRIAGES.

Archer—Morgan.—Sept. 9, at St. Mary's Church, Peckham, by the Rev. Arthur E. Moys, Harold Archer, to Annie, youngest daughter of Wilfred R. Morgan, of Lion House, Peckham, and sister to Barbara Alleyn and F. W. Morgan, Master-at-Arms, R.N.
Ellison—Palmer.—Sept. 8, at St. John's Parish Church, Margate, by special licence, J. W. Ellison to Ada Isabel Palmer, daughter of the late G. M. Palmer, Esq., and niece of Hunter Palmer, Esq., of The Hollies, Swaffham, Norfolk.
Green—Soundy.—Sept. 12, at Birmingham, Albert John Green (Charles Baldwin), son of the late Capt. Richard Harding Green, R.N., to Mary Marjorie Soundy (Madge Tours), daughter of Mr. A. W. H. Soundy, of Hove, Brighton.
Howard—Thorne.—At Ayr, N.B., on Sept. 1, Stanley Howard to Jess Thorne.

DEATHS.

Clements.—Sept. 11, William Clements, head fireman for many years at the Alhambra.
Cushman.—Aug. 25, at 17, Franklin-road, Portslade, Reuben Adcock Cushman, formerly of Trafalgar-street, Brighton, aged 63 years.
Duffy.—At 6, Synge-street, Dublin, Sept. 7, Barney Duffy, late of Tom White's Arabs. Inserted by his old friend, John V. Jones. R.I.P.
Goodwin.—Sept. 11, at Brixton, Bonnie Goodwin, American soubrette and dancer.
Jacobi.—Sept. 13, suddenly, in London, Georges Jacobi, musical composer and director, aged 66.
Jee.—Died at St. Thomas's Hospital, Mrs. Albert Jee (of the Egbert Bros.), on Sept. 13, aged 24, of peritonitis. R.I.P. American papers please copy.

Johnson.—Sept. 9, of consumption, Kennedy Johnson, late assistant-manager of the Hackney Empire, aged 38.
Paradise.—Sept. 10, at her residence, 40, Acre-lane, Brixton, aged 63, Sophia Paradise, mother of Kate Paradise, prima ballerina.
Richards.—On Aug. 17, 1906, Louie Arthur Richards, late of "On the Frontiers" Co. Deeply mourned by sisters and brother.
Royle.—On the 4th inst., at her father's residence, Park-road, Hale, Altrincham, after two years' suffering, Ada, third daughter of John Royle.
There is no death; what seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death.
Smale.—July 3, at Kimberley, South Africa, from heart failure, Mrs. T. E. Smale, professionally known as Charlotte Elliott, comedienne.
Williams.—On Sept. 8, W. T. Williams, 72, formerly musical director Barnard's, Chatham, and Rosherville Gardens.

In Memoriam.

Leybourne.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband George Leybourne, who died Sept. 15, 1884. Never forgotten by his loving wife and family.
Leybourne.—In memory of my dearly loved father, George Leybourne, who died Sept. 15, 1884. Never forgotten by his loving daughter Florrie (Mrs. Albert Chevalier).
Lyle.—In loving memory of Arthur Lyle, the beloved husband of Mary Griffiths, who passed away Sept. 13, 1903.
Moore.—In loving memory of George Washington Moore, jun., who fell asleep Sept. 20, 1901. Still sadly missed by his affectionate father and family. R.I.P., dear George.

ROBSON REHEARSING.

One day, says Sir Frank Burnand in his "Reminiscences," not so very long after the production of Dido, and during its run, Montagu Williams came to me bursting with an idea. He literally gasped with excitement.

"What is it?" I asked.

"The Benicia Boy," he blurted out excitedly. Everyone was talking about this celebrated prize-fighter, who was coming over, or who had come over, to meet the English champion, Tom Sayers.

"I've got a first-rate idea for a farce!" he cried. Then he told me what fun must come out of the notion of some harmless person, in a farce, being mistaken for the redoubtable pugilist.

"Your father-in-law is the man for it," I said at once, but this was, I found, impossible. I forget whether he were "resting" or had retired, but I do remember that when we had hit on our plot and had written the piece, Mr. Keeley said he wished such a farce had been offered to him in his best days.

We set to work. I incline to the opinion that we both of us went to our "lecture" and our "dinner" during the day, that I returned early, and that Montagu came to me about seven in the evening; and that there and then we began our work, one walking and talking and the other sitting and writing, alternately, until, at about four o'clock in the morning, the farce was finished. Before midday Montagu had taken the manuscript to Mrs. Keeley, who, having read it, and being delighted with it, went straight off, manuscript in hand, to Messrs. Robson and Emden, who by the following day had accepted it, paid for it (alas! a miserable sum! why didn't Mrs. Keeley tell her son-in-law what to ask for it! So after all I hadn't much to complain of as to lacking friends when I priced Dido), and it was immediately put into rehearsal at the Olympic Theatre.

I shall never forget Robson's rehearsing. The farce played about "forty minutes" (so registered in printed copy), but every rehearsal occupied us, at first, during a full three hours, that is from eleven till two.

"Of course, get to business," assented Robson, becoming all at once overpoweringly in earnest.

He stood with us, the authors, on the stage with his back to the pit. Emden was stage manager.

We commenced. Mrs. Emden began, and everything would be going on smoothly, when Robson would suddenly exclaim—

"Stop!"—then turning first to Emden and then to us, he would say apologetically, "I beg your pardon for interrupting—but—that table"—we all regarded the table—what was the matter?—"Well—when I come on—where do I put my bag?"

Emden would remonstrate with him. "Let us wait till his entrance, then he would see."

"Yes," Robson objected, "but it will save time then if it's arranged now."

However willing as were the young authors to humour, even obsequiously, the great little actor (the most wonderful tragic-comedian I have ever seen), Emden, who knew his partner by heart, would not allow him to upset the rehearsal in a scene with which he had nothing to do, especially as Mrs. Emden was occupying the stage at that moment. So Robson bottled himself up and corked himself down for another five or ten minutes, when he had to rehearse his own scene. He was the despair of a stage manager. It was impossible to fix him to any position for two seconds together. He would devise "business," and immediately afterwards forget all about it; then on being reminded, he would roar with laughter as if he were hearing a capital joke for the first time. All the "business" he thoroughly enjoyed; but after a time this repetition and his forgetfulness caused those who were on the stage with him to become very weary of any piece, no matter how humorous it might be.

Coghlan; Crockett, Mr. A. Williams; Black Hulks, Mr. Allen; Rachel Harman, Miss Lucy Rushton; Agnes, Miss Marston; Lydia Ravenhill, Mrs. Poynter. Miss R. Lea also appeared in a small comic character.*

G. D.—(1) He first appeared at the halls as an eccentric character comedian and negro sketch artist. (2) At the Empire, Leicester-square.

CONTRALTO.—She made her first London appearance as principal girl in the Drury Lane pantomime of 1900.

LEWIS PATON.—The Manxman, an adaptation of Hall Caine's novel of the name, was produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Nov. 18, 1895, with the following cast:—Philip Christian, Mr. Lewis Waller; Pete Quilliam, Mr. G. W. Cockburn; Cæsar Cregeen, Mr. James Fernandez; Black Tom, Mr. Henry Kemble; Ross Christian, Mr. C. H. E. Brookfield; Sir Edward Brookland, Mr. Hamilton Knight; Mr. Farrant, Q.C., Mr. F. P. Stevens; Dr. Mylechreest, Mr. George Hippesley; Kelly, Mr. Leslie Thomson; Jemmy Lord, Mr. H. Deane; Inspector Ballure, Mr. C. Goodhart; Lady Brookfield, Mrs. Arthur Ayers; Cicely Cornwall, Miss Christina Mayne; Nancy, Miss Kate Phillips; Bella, Miss Norbury; Kate Cregeen, Miss Florence West.

GEO. HENDON.—TWO Roses, by the late James Albery, was first produced at the Vaudeville, June 4, 1870. The principal parts were thus cast: Digby Grant, Henry Irving; Our Mr. Jenkins, George Honey; Jack Wyatt, H. J. Montague; Caleb Deecie, Thomas Thorne; Mr. Furnival, W. H. Stephens; Ida, Ada Newton; and Lottie, Amy Fawsett. The Two Roses was revived at the Lyceum at Christmas, 1881.

T. E. L.—Vauxhall Gardens were finally closed in July, 1859.

WINDSOR.—Mme. Vestris made her first appearance on the stage as Lilla in The Siege of Belgrade, produced Feb. 19, 1820.

C. A. W.—We do not know the date when it was last played. For other particulars write to S. French, theatrical publisher, Southampton-street, Strand.

A CONSTANT READER.—(1) It is certainly remiss on the lady's part not to have sent an acknowledgment. (1) Mr. Martin Harvey made his first appearance on the stage as a schoolboy in the play To Parents and Guardians, produced at the Court Theatre in 1877. His next appearance was as Dolly Birkett in Betsy.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

MR. A. E. WOOD, master carpenter with Mr. H. B. Irving's company, sails, per s.s. Lucania, to-day for New York. The company opens at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Oct. 1. Whether Mr. Wood will return after the New York season or continue with Mr. Irving during the whole tour is still uncertain.

A MEETING of stage employees will be held on Sunday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the Hare and Hounds Hotel, Upper-st., Islington, for the purpose of forming an organising committee for that district.

AT the last meeting of the committee of the Heads of Departments Association four new members were elected; and it was decided to co-operate in organising the annual concert in aid of the Benevolent Funds.

THE Concert Committee have also met, and it has been decided to give the concert on a Sunday towards the end of November. The concert will be given in aid of the Benevolent Funds of the Stage Employees Societies; but any donations received will be placed to the credit of the "Open" National Benevolent Fund, to which the sports' balance was devoted.

MR. BERT BEAN is now in charge of the stage department of the Waldorf Theatre. Mr. J. George, sen., is now master carpenter at the Elephant and Castle Theatre.

MR. FRANCIS BOILEAU FIELD is an oboeist, late of the R.A. Band. He is also a grateful advertiser. Writing to The Era, he says: "My present engagement I got by advertising in your paper. Gentlemen of The Era, I thank you very much."

"FEW theatre programmes are entirely innocent of the fumes of petrol—metaphorically speaking, of course," says the Car Review. "What would The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt have amounted to without a car?" To this question there can be no reply; but we would ask a similar, and, we think, even more pertinent one. What would Mr. Bernard Shaw's play, Man and Superman, be without the chauffeur, Henry Straker, who is the smart product of an up-to-date Board School and evening classes at the Polytechnic? "'Enery" is an engineer who knows his business; he is also a shrewd man of the world. The chauffeur in the new play, Toddles, at the Duke of York's, is a character of no importance; but perhaps in the dramatic developments of the dim future we may have an automobile driver whose character shall be as interesting as that of old Weller.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

We strongly recommend all who suffer from the prevailing heat to add a few drops of Condy's Fluid to the Daily Bath or Foot Bath.

A Condy's Fluid Bath imparts a delightful sensation of Coolness, Freshness, and Purity. It invigorates the body and braces the nerves. The Cooling, Strengthening, and Bracing effects are Simply Magical, they are so very lasting.

Sold by all Chemists, 1/- 8oz., 20oz. 2/- Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's Fluid."

"THE ERA" LETTER-BOX.

A Stamped Envelope, plainly addressed, must be enclosed with application for each Letter. Letters, after lying at this Office for One Month, are forwarded to the Postal Authorities, to be returned to the Senders.

MISS HETTIE CHATTELL, the well-known artist, and her husband, Mr. Jack Denton, have just purchased the entire rights of an exceedingly funny sketch, entitled Brother Bob, from the pen of J. H. Brownson, the author of The Bigamist. Mr. Austin Lenton was lucky to capture this latter sketch, for within a month of accepting it, he had booked the majority of the principal halls.

MISS GRACIE WILSON, wife of Mr. Tom H. Taylor, is about to transfer her allegiance from the theatre to the music-hall stage. She has had a musical comedy sketch written for her by T. H. Brownson, entitled The Piano Tuner and the Romp. It contains two catchy musical numbers which have been set to music by Joseph Tabrar.

MR. SID COTTERELL will not appear in this year's Christmas pantomime at Drury Lane as advertised, but will play with Mr. Fred Granville's No. 1 production of The Forty Thieves, in which he is engaged to star as Hassarac.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

DRAMA AND MELODRAMA.

Mr. ARTHUR COLLINS has written a most interesting letter with reference to Mr. HALL CAINE'S new play, The Bondman, which will be produced at Drury Lane next Thursday. Incidentally, he raises the question of the difference between drama and melodrama. It certainly is not quite easy to say where drama ends and where melodrama begins. Every successful play must have some of the elements which make melodrama popular; and even a melodrama may have its "purple patches" of literature and observation.

Melodrama is the drama of the people. Nowadays, thanks to our School Boards, the British working man is a much more intelligent personage than he used to be in the early part of the nineteenth century, when melodrama had its origin in the desire to cater for the then crude and primitive tastes of audiences on "the other side of the water." The essential difference between drama and melodrama seems to be that in a drama the interest is maintained by the development of character, whereas in a melodrama excitement is sustained by a series of cleverly dovetailed incidents. The old Adelphi is often regarded as the home of melodrama, but the earlier "Adelphi dramas" really had an affinity to drama proper. It is impossible to class pieces like BUCKSTONE'S Wreck Ashore, and the adaptation entitled Green Bushes, with the productions of Messrs. MERRITT and PETTITT, or with modern melodrama constructed and contrived for provincial consumption. The old Adelphi plays were performed by actors and actresses who were artists in their ways, and who were capable of extracting value from situations conceived in a different spirit from those of "nailed-together" melodrama. The scene in Green Bushes in which Cynthia overhears Lemuel confess the murder for which her lover is to suffer, and drags the lad off the stage with Bess clinging to him for mercy, was fine drama when played by such artists as Madame CELESTE, Miss WOOLGAR, and Mrs. FITZWILLIAM; and the now-forgotten O'SMITH'S death scene of the pirate Grampus — they chose extraordinary names for their characters in the eighteen hundreds—was decidedly above the level of a piece like The Man-Cat at the Victoria, in which an individual, partly human, partly feline, was afflicted with homicidal mania, and committed murders by passing to and fro over the roofs of houses. Another notable Adelphi play, The Colleen Bawn, founded on a capital novel, contained character and real emotion, though it must be owned that the childishly-simple imitation of real water in the cavern scene was the "draw" of the piece; and the fact that the late Sir HENRY IRVING did not disdain to appear in The Dead Heart—another early Adelphian triumph—proved that the work could not be correctly classified as "manufactured" melodrama.

The Surrey Theatre, after Mr. GEORGE CONQUEST became lessee of the house in 1880, in partnership with Mr. PAUL MERRITT, became the great factory of melodrama proper. Their extraordinary gifts of construction, combined with some absolute invention and a rich store of reminiscences, enabled Mr. MERRITT and his rival Mr. PETTITT to turn out play after play exactly on a level with the taste of the popular transpontine audiences for which they catered. It was essentially the same article, though better mounted and acted, which AUGUSTUS HARRIS presented to his patrons after he assumed the management of Drury Lane in 1879. These were melodramas, and nothing more. It is not too much to say that not a single character or speech of these once-successful productions remains in the memory. They simply answered the purpose for which they were written.

Mr. WILSON BARRETT, in his "palmy days" at the Princess's in 1881-1886, offered a greatly superior product. The Silver King and The Lights o' London were dramas—melodramatic in spots perhaps, but belonging to the drama class by virtue of their character-drawing and observation. They were splendidly acted, and could be enjoyed by the intelligent and tolerated by the intellectual. The difficulty which the melodramatist has to meet is that of catering for the appetite for excitement and sensation which exists in the average playgoer, and yet not to supply an article so cheap and shallow as to be detected by him as absurd. We want, indeed, plays with all the constructive merit and constant "movement" of the MERRITT and PETTITT concoctions, and also with parts for really "brainy" actors and actresses. The latter cannot be expected to make bricks without straw, and are, indeed, entirely thrown away on the wooden lay-figures of melodrama proper. Mr. HALL CAINE is so happily constituted as to be able to supply the want. His genius is essentially romantic, and he has the power of inventing thrilling and touching stories. He gives himself a free hand by laying his scenes in countries practically unknown to the playgoers whom he pleases, and supplying the scene-painter with excellent opportunities. He deals broadly with the elemental instincts, and appeals to sympathies which are fixed and eternal; and he makes exactly the compromise demanded by the time and place of his productions.

There is nothing more easy than to sneer at a drama of the popular sort, and few things more difficult than to write one. On the one hand is the Scylla of crudity; on the other the Charybdis of subtlety and depth. The patrons of drama want to be made to feel, not to think. The cultured critic is blasé, sophisticated; a Drury Lane audience is emotional, excitable, responsive to an appeal to its heart. Like the oft-quoted Cabinet Minister, it is "human—very human." After all, conventionality is only a question of frequent repetition. There was a time when the most "conventional" situation, the most hackneyed speech was fresh and novel. There was a time when the heart of the most hardened critic was open to impressions: when he took Black-Eyed Susan seriously, and was thrilled by the "Hawkshaw, the detective," incident in The Ticket-of-Leave Man. We need not be particularly pleased with ourselves because the darts of sentiment—as GOLDSMITH put it—"fall blunted from" our "indurated hearts." In fact, we ought rather to be ashamed of and sorry for it. NAPOLEON said he liked DUROC because "the fellow had never shed a tear"; but the remark was not considered a compliment, and the biographer of BONAPARTE was at pains to defend the recipient. The lovers of melodrama are still young.

"PETER'S MOTHER."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, produced at Wyndham's Theatre, on Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Sir Timothy Crewys, Bart. — MR. NORMAN MCKINNEL
Lady Mary Crewys — MISS MARION TERRY
Peter — MR. A. E. MATTHEWS
Lady Belstone — MISS DOLORES DRUMMOND
Miss Georgina Crewys — MISS ALICE BEET
John Crewys, Q.C. — MR. FREDK. KERR
Canon Birch — MR. E. W. GARDEN
Doctor Blundell — MR. ALFRED BUCKLAW
Mrs. Hewel — MRS. EDWARD SAKER
Sarah — MISS HILDA TREVELYAN
Ash — MR. REGINALD EYRE
Footman — MR. MONTAGUE ELPHINSTONE

It is said that at the present time theatre-managers find it more than usually difficult to ascertain the taste of the public in regard to dramatic fare; and experiments in the theatrical cuisine is a risky and very often a very costly business. If the playgoer of to-day can enjoy a pleasant, cheerful, little comedy, that is frankly natural and perhaps just a little commonplace, but presenting some delightful character-sketches, and certainly much cleverly-written dialogue, he will be favourably impressed by the piece that was produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Wednesday evening. It's essentially cordial reception warrants the belief that Peter's Mother will attract large audiences to Wyndham's Theatre for a long time to come. There is a certain degree of freshness in the motive upon which Mrs. de la Pasture's comedy is based. She gives us a clever study of the victim of unconscious selfishness; and the lesson conveyed is as patent and as pointed as that which Mr. Richard Ganthony presented in his memorable creation of Horace Parker in A Message from Mars. In the first act we are introduced to Sir Timothy Crewys, a stiff, starchy, country baronet of an easily-recognised type, who, late in life, married a girl whose guardian he was, and who, without any intention of being unkind, in reality crushes all the natural gaiety of youth out of his young wife. She respects him, but that is all—his hard, cold nature and precise manner are not calculated to win a woman's love. They have an only son, who, when the play opens, is a youth of eighteen, who has been sent to Eton. But young Peter Crewys has caught the war fever badly, and without consulting his parents or anyone else, enlists in a troop of irregular horse, and when the news reaches his home is on the point of starting for South Africa to take part in the fight against the Boers. His father having pro-Boer leanings, it would, of course, have been quite useless to have asked his consent. This act on the part of the son and heir causes a conflict between husband and wife. Unknown to Lady Mary, Sir Timothy is suffering from a serious malady, and the specialist who has been called in advises an immediate operation as the only chance of saving the baronet's life. Lady Mary insists on travelling to Southampton to see her boy on his way to South Africa; Sir Timothy requests her to stay without stating the reason—that the critical operation is to be performed on the following day. At the baronet's request, his cousin, John Crewys, a middle-aged Q.C., reveals to her ladyship the real cause of Sir Timothy's reluctance to allow her to leave home at this juncture; and she consents to remain. The baronet dies under the operation, and Lady Mary is left a widow of thirty-five. Two years elapse, and Peter is invalided home, his right arm having been struck by a shot, and amputated. The young soldier is curiously like his father in many respects. He does not like the changes that have, at the suggestion of John Crewys, been made at the old Hall; and he disapproves of his mother wearing her hair in a more modern fashion. Poor Lady Mary is disappointed, but bears up bravely, and the mother's love stands the test well. She, however, has not the heart to tell him that John Crewys has asked her to become his wife. Peter falls in love with a lively little girl named Sarah Hewel, who has already quite a list of admirers, and this very cute young lady takes a prominent part in the redemption of Peter Crewys from the sin of selfishness. The young man informs his mother that he is about to marry, and more than hints that she can take up her residence with his two elderly and rather disagreeable aunts at the neighbouring dower-house. In the last act there is a strong scene between the selfish young man and John Crewys, when the last-mentioned lets Peter have a bit of his mind, the lesson being completed by Sarah Hewel. The young soldier, awakened to his selfishness, becomes repentant, and so the story closes with the prospect of much happiness for Lady Mary and the man who has so faithfully watched over her interests.

Happily the title-rôle is in the hands of that fascinating and accomplished actress Miss Marion Terry, and it is a part in which she is seen at her best, which is saying a good deal. In the expression of Lady Mary's love for her soldier son, Miss Terry contrives to exhibit the strong, natural feeling of the mother, proud of her boy yet not blind to his failings. In the last act as Lady Mary listens to Peter's recital of his intentions, the amused smile on his mother's face is delightful, while a powerful effect is obtained by the sudden and quite unexpected outburst of angry remonstrance. Peter's mother is altogether one of the most charming impersonations that Miss Terry has ever given us. Mr. Norman McKinnel's portrait of Sir Timothy Crewys is admirable in every respect; the obstinacy, the petulance, and yet the fine courage of the doomed man being painted in vivid colours. Mr. A. E. Matthews must also be congratulated on his faithful and convincing portrayal of Peter Crewys. Mr. Frederick Kerr gives a quiet, but none the less effective, embodiment John Crewys, taking full advantage of the opportunity afforded him in the scene with Peter. Mr. E. W. Garden as Canon Birch supplies a capital sketch of an easy-going cleric; and a companion picture is the Dr. Blundell of Mr. Alfred Bucklaw, always a safe, sound actor. Miss Dolores Drummond as Lady Belstone, Sir Timothy's widowed sister, and Miss Alice Beet as Georgina Crewys, his spinster sister, represent with tact and discretion two amusing characters. Miss Hilda Trevelyan plays the part of Sarah Hewel, the "red-haired girl," with charming vivacity and bright intelligence; and Mrs. Edward Saker is well placed as Mrs. Hewel.

The principal piece was preceded by a new one-act play, by C. Hamilton, entitled

"THE SIXTH COMMANDMENT."

Johannes — MR. F. PERCIVAL STEVENS
Anna — MISS MADGE MCINTOSH
Martin — MR. WALTER HAMPDEN
An Old Peasant Woman — MISS ISABEL GREY

This is a sensational little play, the plot turning upon the murder by a woodcutter and his wife of a woman, who was a temporary inmate of their cottage in the Black Forest, their excuse for the crime being that their child was dying from starvation and they wanted money to buy food. However, the child is not saved from death after all, and remorse seizes upon the murderess. The wife's soldier brother arrives, and tells how his wife while on the way to join him has been cruelly murdered. All he lives for now is revenge on those who have killed her. The man retires for the night. The woodcutter seizes a knife, crying, "It is his life or ours," and with the reply, "Then let it be ours!" the curtain descends. Mr. F. Percival Stevens plays with power as the woodcutter, and Miss Madge McIntosh portrays with remarkable intensity the part of the wife. Mr. Walter Hampden also scores as Martin, the husband of the murdered woman, and Miss Isabel Grey is good as an old peasant woman. The play was originally produced at the New Palace Theatre, Brighton, on May 11 last, under the title of The Traveller's Return.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The fifth bi-monthly meeting of the members of the Actors' Association was held in the saloon at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, on the 7th inst. Mr. A. E. Drinkwater was voted to the chair. There were present the following: Mr. Orlando Barnett, Mr. Cecil Barth, Miss Marian J. Bird, Mr Acton Bond, Mr. Burton Cooke, Mr. F. Cremlin, Miss Blanche de Lorme, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Miss Maud Kynnersley, Mr. Frank Melrose, Miss Helen Mosley, Miss Kate Phillips, Miss Doris Regan, Mr. John Richter, Mr. A. M. Seaton, Mr. Walter Selby, Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, Mr. Adnam Sprange, Miss Minnie Thurgate, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The secretary stated that Miss Beatrice Lamb had promised to read a paper at this meeting, and read the following telegram from that lady:—"Very sorry; doctor forbidden me to speak to-day." The following letter from Miss Georgina Hamilton was read by the chairman:—

(COPY.)
Grand Theatre, Swansea.
Sept. 13, 1906.

To the Chairman of the Bi-Monthly Meeting of the A.A.

DEAR SIR,—May I take this opportunity of asking the members present to help forward the work of our Commissioners by taking a more active interest in the workings of the A.A.?

It is not a bit of use calling meetings in the provinces and working ourselves to death while there are in our midst, I am ashamed to say, so many who are injuring the good cause. We must remove these reproaches from amongst us, or our Commissioners may just as well save their breath to cool their porridge.

Theirs is no easy task to begin with, to interest people who don't care whether they are interested or not, but when they find they have to fight these outsiders with weapons placed into their hands by—I blush to say—our own members, it is very far from encouraging.

If our Commissioners are to make any headway the ordinary member must help them by supporting the Association and not abusing it. During the two months I have had the honour of serving on the Committee and being specially engaged on propagandist work for our Association, I have been fighting hard to remove prejudices that have been planted in people's minds by some of our own members.

It would be better if those good folk talked instead of the cleverness of the A.A. in getting that £60,000 from the Covent Garden Fund for our Theatrical Charities.

Talk of where the money would have gone—who would have got it if it hadn't been for the A.A.

Talk of the glorious time coming when the A.A. will from the strength of its position get us payment for rehearsals.

Talk of the actors' rights and how the A.A. is steadily trying to gain them for us.

Talk of our making managers belong to the A.A., so that we may have a guarantee of getting our rights from them.

Talk of how we prefer to work under A.A. managers, knowing that they daren't do dirty tricks.

Talk of the madness of working under outside management who can treat us anyhow.

Talk of the time which we hope will come when our membership will include all recognised actors and actresses, when we shall from sheer strength of numbers be able to boycott all the bad managers.

Talk of the necessity of getting into the Association those down-trodden creatures who are now being imposed upon with two houses a night for drama at an illegal salary.

Talk of banding together and knocking it on the head now before it gets a firm footing.

Talk of unity being strength.

If our members talked more for the Association and not against it, it would be more to their credit. To repeat all I hear against it from its own people would occupy the afternoon, and I do appeal most earnestly for this to be altered. There is an old proverb about how a bird should behave in its own nest, and I ask the members here present to change the existing state of affairs and build a nice clean nest for the Commissioners to hatch their eggs in. The representative body should at least be free from the stigma of owning a dirty nest. The Council, the Committee, the Commissioners can make no real satisfactory headway until the members have done their work—the duty they owe to this Association.—I have the honour to remain, yours faithfully,

(Signed) GEORGINA HAMILTON,
Commissioners' Committee of the Actors' Association.

A vote of thanks was accorded to Miss Hamilton by acclamation.

Miss Gladys Ffolliott spoke on the advisability of forming a scheme something like the Music Hall Federation, and proposed that the matter be referred to the council. Mr. A. M. Seaton having seconded the proposition, it was carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 10, the Modern Play, in Four Acts, by the late Wilson Barrett, entitled
"LUCKY DURHAM."

There is a pathetic interest in Lucky Durham, which is paying us a return visit this week, inasmuch as it was Wilson Barrett's last dramatic effort, and was written by him while in the throes of the fatal disease which was ultimately to carry him off. The play is an unconventional and virile piece of work, containing very little of the usual comic relief, and "the villain of the piece" is conspicuous by his absence. It has, however, firmly established itself in the affections of the playgoer, and good audiences have been the rule at Peckham. Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company does full justice to the play. Mr. Edmund Kennedy has a heavy task in impersonating the millionaire John Durham. His acting as the self-made man who by sheer force of intellect triumphs over all his foes, and beats down the social prejudices which surround him, is very fine, the man's innate strength, his love for Helen, and his filial regard for his deserted mother being admirably rendered. Mr. Kennedy is perhaps at his best in the last act, where he addresses the portraits of Lord Mountfallon's ancestors. Miss Alice Esther Belmore gives a fine portrait of the cold and haughty Helen Vallerton, whose heart is at last conquered by Durham's generosity. Mr. Robert Forsyth does all that is possible with the unsympathetic rôle of Lord Vallerton; Miss Louisa Gourlay plays with much tenderness and charm as the silver-haired Mrs. Durham; Mr. Arthur Leigh relieves the more sombre parts of the play by his amusing idiosyncrasies as the Hon. Reginald Steighton; Miss Francis Wolviston is an appropriately shrewish Lady Mountfallon; and Miss Florence Dalhunty is vivacious as her daughter Margaret. Mr. W. F. Clitherow is humorous as the Jewish moneylender Ben Verstein; and Mr. A. E. Walker is good as Mr. Vallerton. The remaining characters are all adequately played. Special scenery has been painted for the production, which is received with much enthusiasm throughout.

ON Saturday Mr. Martin Harvey presented The Only Way at the Londesborough Theatre, Scarborough. As Sydney Carton Mr. Harvey acted with his usual skill and power. Miss N. De Silva as Mimi gave evidence of real ability. Mr. Charles Glenney as Ernest Defarge made all his points with skill and ease; Mr. P. Alexander as Mr. Lorry deserves a special word of praise. As Dr. Manette Mr. Fred Wright, sen., acted very skilfully. As Charles Darnay Mr. Leonard Craske contributed in no small degree to the success. Mr. Charles Cameron depicted the President with due severity; and Mr. Paul Barry ably embodied the Public Prosecutor.

"SOLOMON THE SIBERIAN."

A Drama in Four Acts, in Yiddish, written by John Jackson, with music by Ferdinand Staub, produced at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, on Thursday, Sept. 6.

Solomon Guttman — MR. M. D. WAXMAN
Deborah — MME. KAYZER
Esther, Miss Lubritzski — MME. F. WAXMAN
Pauline — MISS BRYH
Slotka — MR. SCHILLING
Jacob Mandelstein — MR. SHTRENG
Ivan Zoltokoff — MR. ISAACOWITCH
Lieutenant Dr. Jacobowitch — MR. GUSOFSKY
Juge d'Instruction — MR. GREENSTEIN
Boris Lepkowitch, Doctor — MR. ROSENFELD
Judge Yermeloff — MR. GOLDSHMID
Helena — MISS LUBRITZKI
Chief Warder — MR. SHTRENG
Usher — MR. MARKOWITCH

Solomon Guttman, a merchant of Wilna, on discovering that his wife Deborah is in love with Ivan Zoltokoff, a lawyer, pleads with her to remain faithful on account of their child. Leaving her to reflect on this proposition, he returns later with Jacob Mandelstein, Deborah's rich uncle, lately arrived from Africa, and who ultimately displays a considerable portion of his wealth. Presently a telegram is brought announcing that Solomon's business is on fire, and as he is not insured he decides to hasten to the conflagration by walking to the station and catching the midnight train. In the meantime, Ivan, who has been in hiding, has overheard all that has passed, decides to possess himself of Deborah, rob and murder the uncle, and then to foist the crime on Solomon. After a comedy scene between the servants Slotka and Pauline, the house is closed for the night, and when all is still Ivan enters through a window, dressed and made up as Solomon, strangles the uncle, and escapes just as the child Esther and Deborah, disturbed by the noise, hurriedly come into the room. Almost immediately Solomon returns bruised and injured, having been waylaid on his way to the station. He is at once accused by all of the murder, and eventually arrested and tried. After evidence has been given against him by his wife, child, and servants, he is convicted and sentenced to penal servitude for life at the Siberian mines.

Fifteen years elapse, and Lieut. Dr. Jacobowitch—the affianced husband of Esther—with the connivance of the Siberian overseer and Slotka, manage to effect the escape of Solomon, who, upon reaching St. Petersburg, appeals to the Supreme Court for a new trial. At this time Deborah, the mistress of Ivan—now Judge—Zoltokoff, is suddenly confronted by her husband at a ball given by the Judge to celebrate his daughter's birthday. Solomon exposes Ivan, and denounces his wife, turning her out of the room, and finishing up by giving the Judge a severe thrashing, thereby hastening his death, as he has long suffered from heart disease. Before dying, however, Ivan confesses to the murder of Jacob Mandelstein, and Deborah, learning how bitterly she has been deceived, stabs herself to death.

Although Mr. John Jackson in his latest effort is at times reminiscent, yet he has given a story which is full of those conflicting emotions of love, hatred, and revenge; while the powerful fourth act reflects great care and judgment in the framing, and is in every way deserving of high praise. The capable Yiddish company gave a capital interpretation of the piece, Mr. M. D. Waxman being most successful as Solomon Guttman; while a marked expression of approval must be given to Mr. Isaacowitch for his incisive acting as Ivan Zoltokoff. Mme. F. Waxman made a charming Esther; and tragic force was shown by Mme. J. Kayzer as Deborah. Miss Bryh was animated as Pauline; and a pleasing Helena was found in Miss Lubritzki; while Mr. Shtreng was a satisfactory Jacob Mandelstein and Chief Warder. Mr. Gusofsky displays spirit as Lieut. Dr. Jacobowitch; and Mr. Schilling was excellent as Slotka. Messrs. Greenstein, Rosenfeld, and Goldshmid made the most of their opportunities; and the scenery and mounting were in the best possible taste. Professor F. Staub had specially written the music, which was tasteful and appropriate; while the whole production was under the experienced direction of Mr. M. D. Waxman.

MR. DAN ROLYAT.

The popularity of The Dairymaids at the Apollo Theatre does not appear to be affected by heat waves or rival productions, and of all the capital cast, perhaps Joe Mivens, the amorous bluejacket, is most "rememberable." Joe, in the hands of that amusing, and, comparatively speaking, new comedian, Mr. Dan Rolyat, is a most original character, for he hardly says the same thing two nights running, and his good habit of making bad puns seems to be growing on him. Although Mr. Rolyat may be said to have only recently "arrived," he has been in the profession for at least eight years, was educated in drama, graduated to pantomime, and took his degree on the variety stage before going into musical comedy. His variety work—a year in sketches and a year as a single star turn—was of great value in the style of comedy to which he is best suited, for, in his own words, a man has to "happen" at once if he is going to make a success in the halls, and it teaches him to make his patter all point. Perhaps the best song he has ever sung is the old favourite, "The Football Referee."

Mr. Rolyat writes his own words and music—and contracts! He could always do the former, and is now in the fortunate position of doing the latter. Apropos of contracts, his first business engagement was to make himself generally useful at the old Queen's Theatre, Birmingham, when he was a small boy, for a shilling a week, and the honour and glory of being behind the scenes at a real theatre. As time went on, he took to doing musical sketches and imitations of actors, as an amateur, the fact of his brother-in-law being interested in a costumier's business giving him the opportunity to dress effectively for different characters, and experiment with all sorts of make-up. It was Dan Leno who advised the younger Dan, having seen him give an imitation of his own never-to-be-forgotten Beef-eater, to go on the stage. Mr. Rolyat took the advice, hunted for a manager, and, starting at a two-pounds-a-week salary, stayed with the same company for about four years, writing his own parts in both pantomime and drama. He has played the Baron, in Cinderella, under Mr. Courtneidge's management, for the last three years, but there seems every probability that he will still be "dairymaiding" in Shaftesbury-avenue when Christmas comes round this year.

Only once since he first made an audience laugh has Mr. Rolyat been in the trying position of finding himself a great success and a great failure—both hissed and cheered—on the same night. A competition for comic singers had been held at a hall near Manchester, at a time when he was "top-of-the-bill-man," but the audience on Friday night being unable to choose the winner out of half-a-dozen local favourites, the manager asked Mr. Rolyat, who was watching the proceedings from the wings, to give the casting vote. He consented, and singled out the least hopeless boy in the collection. The audience evidently approved of his decision; but on the following night the five unsuccessful competitors, with a host of friends, were scattered about the hall to revenge themselves on the luckless judge. It would have gone badly with Mr. Rolyat if the prize winner had not also placed his supporters in pit and gallery. It was a case of a house divided against itself; but, in the end, after a stormy scene, the comedian's good temper and good songs turned his enemies into friends.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, managing-director of Moss' Empires, sailed for New York on Tuesday from Liverpool on the Cunarder Carmania. His visit to New York is connected with some proposed arrangements for the re-opening of the Coliseum, and new developments connected therewith. It is understood that he is also discussing the preliminary arrangements for a federation between English and American variety managers.

A great deal of unnecessary fuss has been made in the daily Press during the week because Mr. W. T. Stead on his first visit to a music hall has fulminated against the entertainment presented at the London Pavilion. Twenty years ago he wrote "The Maiden Tribute" for general reading in The Pall Mall Gazette. It was the act of a crank, and he has behaved as "sich" ever since.

Mr. M. A. Bennett, Press manager to Moss's Empires, has sent the following letter to Mr. W. T. Stead:—"I have read with interest your scathing criticism of the London Pavilion performance in the Review of Reviews. I have no doubt that the London Pavilion management is well able to look after itself, but you denounce music-hall programmes in general after having seen but one performance. This is unjust. The Moss Empires own eight entertainment houses in London that give two hours' wholesome amusement twice nightly. I shall be happy to submit the current programmes of each of these halls to you, and will place a box at any or all of these theatres at your disposal for any afternoon or evening you care to pay them a visit. Moss's Empire at all times invite criticism from men of standing, whose views are valued and whose suggestions in many instances are acted upon."

The late Mr. Charles Danby, whose death is announced in another column, appeared at the London Pavilion on Sept. 8, 1902, in a weird little playlet, entitled No. 1, Pell-street, the haunt of the New York tough, who was introduced as a character, and with the proper environment, at the Shaftesbury Theatre, when Edna May, in The Belle of New York, first took the town by storm. The little piece, which was probably inspired by the London success of The Cat and the Cherub, had little merit, being repellent in its crude bloodthirstiness. The late comedian played the part of Sing Hi, the vengeful Chinaman; and Miss Alexia Bassian as a fascinating laundress sang charmingly. Mr. Charles Fisher played the tenor lover, and Dr. Osmond Carr wrote the lyrics. No. 1, Pell-street, had only a short run.

Not until eleven o'clock on Saturday did the Harvard and Cambridge crews arrive at the Alhambra. They were enthusiastically cheered as they took their seats in the boxes reserved for them by Mr. George Scott. When Mr. Urban started the pictures of the eventful boat race there were deafening cheers, and after the show there was an extraordinary demonstration, demands for a speech being varied by cheers and singing. At last the Light Blues pushed forward their coxswain, Mr. Scott, who said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, it is awfully kind of you to give us this welcome, and I need hardly tell you that we are very proud we won. But before we go away I should like to propose three cheers for the Harvard boys, who are rattling good fellows." The cheers came from a thousand throats.

Paul Cinquevalli created so great a sensation by his wonderful juggling performance on his début at Mr. Gilbert's Hippodrome at Great Yarmouth that he was retained a second week. To the Norfolk coast he travelled on the 2nd inst. by motor from Blackpool, a run of 286 miles, accomplishing the journey in one day. He started with his wife and daughter from the famous Lancashire seaside resort at 5 a.m., and arrived at Bloater town at 9 p.m. A glorious run, indeed, and a record one for the great juggler, who will be leaving us for New York per the Oceanic on the 26th.

The production at the Empire of Burning to Sing; or, Singing to Burn, the satire on grand opera methods, by Gustav Kerker, has been tentatively fixed for Monday, Sept. 24, but the date depends on the time of the composer's return from America, as he wishes to conduct the first performance. The book is by R. H. Burnside, and the following is the cast:—Mme. Marguerite Tremolini, Miss Anna Hickisch; Signor Edwardo Tremolini, Mr. Ottley Cranston; Bill Jones, page boy, Mr. Henry Frankiss; Tomassini, hotel proprietor, Mr. T. Tremayne; Jim Higgins, a fireman, Mr. Newton Mason; Tom Harriss, a fireman, Mr. Vernon Booth. The scene is an apartment of the Pitz Hotel, and the time 4 a.m. Mr. W. Louis Bradfield will appear at the Empire with new songs on Monday next.

The action of Burning to Sing takes place at an hotel, where a married couple engaged at the Opera House are staying, the prosaic conversation that ensues between them being carried on through the medium of accompanied recitative. Presently the duet is converted into a trio by the advent of a page-boy, and subsequently into a quartette by the appearance of the hall-porter, who, in slow and impressive phrases, announces that the building is on fire. In place of seeking safety by flight, the four burst into impassioned song, the volume of which is further increased by the arrival of a fireman, hose in hand.

Miss Ada Reeve, who is the bright, particular star at the Tivoli, will, at the request of a large number of her admirers, revive on Monday next "Only a Penny." This song is, perhaps, the most successful of her many successes, and has been given by the popular soubrette in Australia and Africa, as well as in the British Isles. It was originally sung by Mr. John L. Shine in the production of Go Bang at the Trafalgar Theatre, now the Duke of York's. The change from comedy to a little touch of pathos is done in Ada Reeve's best style, and gives her that opportunity of showing how versatile and finished a comedienne she is. Harry Fragson still delights audiences at the cosy house in the Strand, and Ernest Shand joins the already strong programme on Monday next.

Miss Marie Tempest is to conquer the lovers of variety at the Palace on Monday by the charm of her voice, which helped to draw crowds to the Prince of Wales's and Daly's for many years. She won her spurs in the domain of comedy by her realisation of Becky Sharp and Polly Eccles, and has proved herself to be an artist of the highest attainments. It seems to be Mr. Alfred Butt's chief mission as a manager to coax leading actresses and actors from the greater to the lesser stage, and on his powers of persuasion in the case of Miss Tempest he is to be heartily congratulated. She will be heard in three songs, "Forethought" and "Speak but one word," by Mr. Frank Lambert, with organ obbligato, in both of which she will be accompanied by the composer; also in "Les Filles de Cadix," by Leo Délibes, accompanied by the Palace orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Hermann Finck.

Mme. Yvette Guilbert announces that she will leave on the 26th inst. for America for another series of performances. Her company will include Mr. Albert Chevalier, with whom she appeared at the Duke of York's in the summer. Mr. Chevalier should be a strong drawing-card in the States, which he visited during the 'nineties with great success.

The Belfast Hippodrome, Ltd., was registered on Aug. 30, with a nominal capital of £25,000, in 25,000 shares of £1 each. The names of the first directors are Chas. W. Henderson (Belfast), James K. Black (Belfast), William Sley (Manchester), Frederick Willmott (Liverpool), and Edward J. K. Savage (London).

The South Wales Entertainments Company was registered on September 5, with a capital of £1,000 in £1 shares, to carry into effect an agreement for the purchase of the lease of the Theatre Royal and Opera House and Thespian House, and to carry on at Merthyr Tydfil or elsewhere the business of theatre, music-hall, and concert-hall keepers, etc. There will be no initial public issue.

Among those who contribute to the excellent programme at the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, this week, is Mr. E. Leslie Conroy, late manager of the Empire Theatre in the town, who appears as a vocalist and musical specialist. On Monday he had an enthusiastic reception after singing "The Storm Fiend," to which fine descriptive song his resonant baritone did full justice. He also gave a clever imitation of Chirgwin on the 'cello.

Mr. Nelson Barry, acting-manager of the Palace, Manchester, was the recipient of a handsome dress stud and a set of heavy gold links with monogram, given as a mark of personal esteem by Mr. Lew Lake, and in consideration of services and attention given to the first production in the provinces of My Pal Jerry.

Percival Craig, manager of the Empire Theatre, Bradford, is a keen golfer, and also makes good use of the camera. He has just won prizes in two competitions, one given by the "World of Golf," and the other by "Golfing." The photographs represented Mr. Craig giving Hackenschmidt his first lesson in golf. The current number of "The Car" has a photograph by Mr. Craig of Miss Vesta Tilley (who also went round the links for the first time with that gentleman) stepping out of her motor at the Bradford Golf Links.

A circular has been issued to the shareholders of the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh (Limited), giving notice that an extraordinary general meeting of the company will be held within the registered office of the company, 111, George-street, Edinburgh, to-day, at 12.30 afternoon, for the purpose of considering and, if deemed expedient, passing the following extraordinary resolution, viz.: "That it has been proved to the satisfaction of this meeting that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same, and, accordingly, that the company be wound up voluntarily." At the meeting it will also be moved that Mr. William Daniel Stewart, chartered accountant, Edinburgh, be appointed liquidator.

A new order of things is to be inaugurated on Monday at the Burton Theatre and Opera House, and in deciding to experiment with a music-hall season the proprietors explain that they have not been altogether satisfied with the receipts for some time past, and hope by the change to meet a demand for lighter form of entertainment. Sundry alterations have been made in the pit and on the stage. The performances will be in conjunction with the Moss and Stoll enterprises, and the programme will be given twice nightly, at cheap prices.

"The Love of Money," a playlet, in three scenes, by Edna Lester, was produced on Monday at the People's Palace, Portsmouth. The authoress appeared as Olga, a former shop-girl, who deserts her husband, Jack, when he becomes poor, and takes a situation as nurse to the dying Squire Meadows, whom she marries just before his death for the sake of his money. She drugs the squire's niece, and is about to murder both her and his nephew, when her indignant husband shoots her. Mr. Conrad Clerke and Mr. Louis Palgrave lent efficient aid.

Miss Jennie Maynard, an actress of considerable experience in the legitimate in theatres in Australia, where she was born, is by way of appearing on the variety stage as a raconteur and monologuist. She has starred in South Africa, and has fulfilled several provincial stock seasons in the old country.

Mr. Walter de Frece and party occupied a box at the Hippodrome, Colchester, on Wednesday night, his guests including Mr. Aubrey Hyman, of the Empire, Johannesburg; Mr. Arthur Aldin, of the Empire, Leicester-square; Mr. Ben Nathan, the well-known agent, and Mr. Chas. Wyatt.

The report of the Wolverhampton Empire Company states that the profit for the past year, after paying debenture interest, amounts to £741, to which is brought forward £131. The directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum. The gross profit on the theatre and bars amounted to £2,240, and the debenture interest reached £1,499.

Mr. Charles Baldwin, who is this week presenting the hilarious sketch, The Bank Clerks, at the Gaiety, Birmingham, was married at the local registrar's office on Wednesday to his leading lady, Miss Madge Tours. At the evening performance the band interpolated a few bars of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," and the happy bridegroom came before the curtain in response to much cheering. The couple met three years ago when members of Mr. Fred Karno's company. They signed the register as "Albert John Green, son of the late Capt. Richard Harding Green, R.N."; and "Mary Marjorie Soundy, daughter of Mr. A. W. H. Soundy, of Hove, Brighton."

The Haverleys (American song illustrators), now on a seventeen weeks' provincial tour, have made a tremendous success this week at the Tivoli, Dublin, so much so that an enterprising local printer is reaping no small harvest by reprinting their songs and selling same to the waiting crowds outside the theatre.

Andre Manheim, who is new to our shores, will produce on Wednesday next at Rosherville Gardens an entirely original sketch, entitled The Wandering Minstrel, in which he will give a wonderful performance on the 'cello. The novelty is being performed for the first time in England.

A packed house assembled at the Blackpool Hippodrome on Wednesday night to do honour to Mr. "Tay Pay" Duignan, the popular general manager of that establishment, who took a richly deserved benefit. The programme was long and varied, and was contributed to by the Kellinos, in their speciality act, A Fête in Venice; Selbo, juggler; Duncan's Dogs; Miss Ada Cerito, comedienne; McGregor, in musical act; H. O. Wills, comedian; Cyril Goodwin, solo violinist; Douglas, the great Scott; the Cranleighs (Syd and Maud), vocalists and dancers; Miss Florence Ellis, soprano; James Finney, the famous swimmer; Albert Whelan, vocalist and whistler; Harry Brown, comedian; Madge Osmond, male impersonator; Bosanquet, violin virtuoso; the Miles-Stavordale Quintette; Lilo, Lotto, and Otto, trick cyclists; August and September, comedy boys; Muirhead, mimic and whistler; Miniature Florry, child vocalist; Parr, tenor; Maude Marshall, ballad vocalist; and Ike Scott and Son. The special entertainment was under the patronage of the Mayor, Councillor W. H. Broadhead, who, during the evening, made a presentation. Mr. Harry Brooks came along with a valuable cheque, and a diamond pin was given by hand and staff.

Mr. Fred Miller, the popular manager of the Canterbury and Paragon, will take a holiday next week in Gloucestershire, near Cirencester, where he will spend many pleasant days cub-hunting and partridge-shooting.

Mr. Joe Elvin, who has been taking a well-earned rest, will resume business on Monday at the Palace, Manchester, where he commences a short provincial tour. London's popular cockney comedian will produce next Christmas at the Oxford and Canterbury two big productions on a gigantic scale, surpassing his famous productions—Appy 'Ampstead, Over the Sticks, On the Flat, A Day's Sport, &c.

The Terriers' Association's Committee has presented Mr. Harry Lester, its popular secretary, with a beautiful silver and rosewood tantalus, suitably inscribed, as a mark of appreciation of his successful arrangements for the two up-river outings this season.

The news of the death on Tuesday of Bonnie Goodwin caused both surprise and sorrow to many of our readers. The deceased lady, who came over from America in 1901, made her first appearance in London at the Apollo Theatre during that year with her piccaninnies. It was then a novel song and dance turn that formed one of the incidentals in the American musical comedy, in two acts, entitled The Belle of Bohemia, with which piece Mr. Henry Lowenfeld opened his new theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue. Miss Goodwin and her troupe afterwards became very popular at the halls.

Mr. Will Dalton, we regret to state, has recently been suffering from serious indisposition, which has prevented his fulfilment of his own engagements at the Granville, Walham Green; the Palace, Camberwell; the Duchess, Balham; the South London Palace, and the Hounslow Hippodrome. He is resting at Blackpool.

Mr. John D. Hamlyn, the well-known importer and collector of wild beasts, birds, and reptiles, has added to his accomplishments that of a breeder of Madagascar ring-tailed lemurs. On the 11th inst. one of the females gave birth to a little ring-tailed beauty.

Miss May Lilian Levy is making humorous capital out of her new song on Suffragettes, a topic that offers plenty of field for comedy. This popular comedienne is making excellent use of her opportunities, and has been enthusiastically received at the Hulme Hippodrome.

Mr. William Clements, the oldest fireman in London, died on Tuesday. He had been in the employ of the Alhambra for over forty years, and his services were highly valued by the company. He was seventy-three years of age. His first experience as a fireman was when engaged to take charge of the arrangements at the opening, in 1863, of the Agricultural Hall. He left Islington the following year to go to the Alhambra with the late Frederick Strange, and continued in control there until eighteen months previous to the big fire of 1882, when the theatre was burnt to the ground. After the house had been rebuilt he went back, and remained.

Miss Daisy Dormer has recently produced a new successful song by Lawrence, Mellor, and Gifford, entitled "My Rickshaw Queen." This song ought to prove a very attractive number for pantomime, as it can be very effectively staged with a rickshaw and a picturesque Oriental environment. The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., are publishing this number.

Possibly not since that never-to-be-forgotten song, "I've made up my mind to sail away," has there dawned upon the horizon of the world of popular song so striking an example of the straightforward, manly ditty with a bold refrain than "There's a man in Manitoba," by Dan Lipton and C. W. Murphy. Messrs. Francis and Day have secured the song, and it is dividing honours as to sales with "Put a little bit away for a rainy day" and "In the shade of the old apple tree."

Another number which will prove a mascot to the lucky artists that secure it is "Sweet Anastasia Brady," by Jerome and Schwartz. It is seldom, if ever, that a team of songwriters can follow up songs like "Bedelia" and "My Irish Molly, O!" with a third number that bids fair to eclipse in popularity both of the song crazes that emanated from their pens. Mr. Lester Barrett anticipates a great demand for this sprightly song which has earned for itself in New York the name of "The Celtic Cyclone."

Mr. Forbes Dawson's sketch, The Midnight, was successfully produced at the Chelsea Palace on Monday, being played to roars of laughter. The author emphatically scored in the chief part.

Many members of the profession will hear with sincere regret of the death of Mrs. Sophia Paradise, the mother of Miss Kate Paradise, who died at her residence, 40, Acre-lane, Brixton, on Monday, aged 63. The remains of the deceased lady were interred in Norwood Cemetery yesterday, the funeral arrangements being under the direction of Mr. Theophilus Dunkley.

Miss Emily Soldene, who made her début in 1864 at a morning concert at St. James's Hall, became the most celebrated English prima donna in opéra bouffe when she appeared under the management of the late Charles Morton at the old Philharmonic, Islington, as Drogan in Geneviève de Brabant. Later came Giroflé-Girofla, La Fille de Madame Angot, and other works of a like description. Miss Soldene, after a prolonged stay in Australia, once more took up her residence in London a little time ago, but she has now determined to return to the Antipodes. In view of the fact, a farewell matinée is to be given to her in November at the Palace.

Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope made a new record in animated photography by showing the results of the Boat Race on Saturday evening at the Holborn Empire (first house), the Canterbury and Paragon, London, Collins's, and Cambridge, the Bedford (first and second house), the Duchess, Balham; the Grand, Clapham; Barnard's, Woolwich and Greenwich; the Islington Empire, the South London, and the Empress, Brixton.

Miss Syria Lamonte, who first charmed London audiences at the Tivoli by her brilliant bravura singing, like the incomparable Melba, comes from Australia. Her latest triumphs have been in the States, where she returns next season. In Pittsburg the work was most trying, with sixteen shows a week and tropical weather in addition. Miss Lamonte is returning to England to fix up a pantomime date.

Mr. J. F. Lambe disposed of during the week to Messrs. Francis and Day a song of the "free" order, entitled "What's the use of fame without gold?"

Dr. Walford Bodie has scored another triumph in London at the New Cross Empire. The huge building has been packed from floor to ceiling nightly at both houses, and he is nightly cheered to the echo. The Doctor goes with his own company next week to the Hippodrome, Colchester, and returns again to London to work all the syndicate halls and Stoll's Empires.

Mr. Charles Clifford, the favourite harpist and vocalist, leaves town on Monday for his annual tour of England, Ireland, and Scotland, commencing at Plymouth, where he has not appeared for years. He will be sure of a hearty welcome in the Devonshire seaport, for he possesses a medal that was presented to him there in 1898 in recognition of his abilities. Mr. Clifford expects to return to London in 1907.

Mr. Harold Archer (late of Archer and Conniford) was married on Sunday to Miss Annie Morgan, youngest daughter of Mr. Wilfred R. Morgan, the well-known sketch artist and lecturer to Datas, the memory man. The ceremony, which took place at St. Mary's Church, Peckham, was performed by the Rev. Arthur E. Moys, who delivered a very impressive address. The bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Alleyn, sister to the bride, and Miss Mary Brooks. Among those present were Mr. Wilfred Morgan, Mr. F. W. Morgan, who officiated as best man, Mr. Joe Archer, Miss Ida Heath, Mrs. Archer, sen., the Brothers Archer, Lieutenant Eldridge, R.N., and numerous relatives and friends.

The wedding breakfast took place at the residence of the bride's father, Lion House, Peckham, in a large marquee erected on the lawn. The guests numbered forty-nine, the tables being laid and beautifully decorated by the well-known caterers, Kennedy and Co., of Queen's-road, Peckham.

The bride looked sweet in soft white silk daintily trimmed with lace. Over a pretty wreath of orange blossoms the veil was fastened with a diamond pin. The numerous and costly presents included a silver tea service from Mr. Donald Stewart, of South Queensferry, Scotland, a dinner service from Datas, and a cheque from the bride's father. The groom presented the bride with a beautiful diamond ring. A large number of telegrams of congratulation were received, including messages from Datas, Lieutenant Greville, J. C. Collinson, town councillor; Captain Eldridge, Ernest Bridgen (New Cross Empire), etc. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon in Paris.

Saturday evening brought to a close the Café Chantant which, in the delightfully situated North Tower Gardens of the Crystal Palace, has been a source of enjoyment to large audiences for some months past. Mr. Bannister Howard is to be congratulated upon the excellent entertainments he has provided. During the week the turns have included Charles Freeman and Florence Tench, in their comedy duologue, The Broken Honeymoon; Stan Aubrey, eccentric comedian; Frank Crisp, baritone; and the Sprees (Dorothy and Joe), in their amusing scena, Twickenham Ferry. On Monday the theatre reopens with Mr. Ben Greet and company in A Midsummer Night's Dream. This is Mr. Ben Greet's last engagement in England before his departure for America.

The Eastbourne Pier Pierrots attracted a large audience on Monday evening. The occasion was a special one, for during the day Mr. Eustace Wallis, the clever pianist of the party, had been married. During an interval in the performance the bridegroom was first pelted with confetti, and then presented with a miscellaneous collection of articles, which caused much amusement. The evening was a merry one, both for entertainers and audience.

Miss Vesta Tilley has acquired from the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., the sole music hall rights of Harry Von Tilzer's American success, "In a hammock built for two," an English adaptation of which has been specially written by Mr. John P. Harrington. The song will be presented in an entirely original manner by Miss Tilley.

Miss Nell Richardson has just accepted from the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., a new song-scena by J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban, entitled "Fair lady, sigh no more," also another song, entitled "Moonbeam," which will shortly be produced. These two songs will be big pantomime numbers.

Mr. Edgar Curtis was accorded a benefit at the Palace-by-the-Sea at Clacton on Friday in last week, and the function was an immense success, both from the artistic and financial point of view.

Mr. Fred Monckton, who has been fifteen weeks at the Pleasure Gardens Pavilion, Skegness, has made himself a universal favourite there—a fact that was amply proved by the number of presents from admirers on the occasion of his benefit on Monday.

Many of our readers will regret to hear of the death in Dublin on the 7th inst. of Barney Duffy, late of Tom White's Arabs, a troupe that is now under the direction of the diminutive comedian, known as "Pimple." The deceased performer was very popular in the profession.

Mr. Walter Munroe has made many big hits with the British public, but it is doubtful if he has ever made a bigger than he has with his "I'm coming back to Dublin," which has been the rage of Manchester this week. It is by Harry Leighton and George Everard. Mr. David Day published it some time prior to his departure from England.

Don Juan Caicedo, the king of wire-walkers, appeared in Melbourne nearly twelve years ago, when his intrepid and remarkable performance created a sensation, it being generally admitted that the exhibition, so full of difficulties, was in its way unique. Only a week or two since a prominent critic of an influential Australian journal, writing in its columns of Melbourne entertainments, remarked:—"Not since the days when Caicedo electrified Melbourne have any slack-wire artists of note appeared there."

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, 1; Empire (15s. pd), 1½; Do. (10s. pd), 1; Lon. Pav. Ord., 4½; Do. Pref., 5; Lon. Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅛; Moss Empire, 4½; Do. 5 p.c. Pref., 3⅞; Oxford, 6⅞; Palace, 11/0; Tivoli, 6; Var. Cons. Theatres, 14/0.

The 480th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Tuesday. There were present Messrs. Fred Herbert (in the chair), Fred Griffiths, Jack Collinson, R. Abel, Charles Gardiner, Jeff Vendome, A. Carlton, A. Borelli, Douglas White (hon. treasurer), and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). A letter was received from Mr. Tom McNaughton, who tendered his resignation from the committee on account of pressure of business. Mr. Bob Hutt is the next on the rota. Mr. Hunt, of the Queen's Palace, Rhyl, was appointed agent in that town.

A representative of the I.A.L. gave particulars of a concession obtained for members of the I.A.L., V.A.F., and M.H.A.R.A. with the Batavier Line of steamers between London and Rotterdam. This allows for a ten per cent. reduction of fares from June to September inclusive, and first-class fares at second-class rates during the rest of the year.

A message of condolence was sent to Mr. Joe Burnell on the death of his brother Harry. The weekly financial statement showed a total of £33 6s. and an addition of forty new members. The treasurer's monthly report showed a total of 5,605 members on the books at August 31, and a total cash balance of £1,113 16s. 5d. on that date.

Mr. W. E. Barnett, acting-manager of the Royal County Theatre, announces that he will run a high-class variety entertainment at Reading during the coming season in conjunction with other music hall syndicates, under the designation of the "Empire Music Hall."

Mrs. Huline (Bessie Travis, the lady ventriloquist, daughter of Lieutenant Travis) presented her husband, Alec Huline, with a bonny baby girl on the 28th ult. The youngster is doing well, but the mother, we regret to say, is seriously ill.

The automobile is becoming a craze with the favourites of the footlights; and the charming Milo—the perfection of female form divine—may be seen any day driving that very fine product of British industry—a Coventry Humbert.

Mr. Bert Williams, ventriloquist, is the latest to join the ranks of the Terriers' Association, being initiated into the mysteries of the order on Sunday, when Terrier John Moore presided.

The management of the Empire have prolonged the engagement of the Stavordale Quintette another week owing to their great success. The famous combination is also appearing at the Empress, Brixton, this week, and leaves town to-morrow for a lengthy provincial tour extending well into 1907.

Edwin Thomas, who is this week making his first appearance on a public stage, is the son of the late Edwin Thomas, for many years secretary of the Pavilion, Oxford, and Tivoli music halls, and, judging by the cordiality of his reception at the Colchester Hippodrome, he should ere long become prominent in the ranks of our droll comedians.

The Delevines' new act, Flipp and Flopp, according to report, is the biggest thing they have yet done, which is distinctly a "large order," considering the many successes they have achieved. Proof of their success is apparent in the gratifying fact that existing contracts are being changed to the new act, for which extra remuneration is being paid.

Miss Florrie Gallimore is featuring a new song by Mr. George A. Stevens, entitled "Caroline, won't you love this Gipsy Man?" This number has been secured for publication by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd.

Miss Dolly Harmer, who has been compelled to give up her engagements owing to severe throat trouble, has now recovered, and will appear on Monday at the Metropolitan.

The installation meeting of the Earl's Court Lodge of Freemasons, of which many members belong to the musical and variety professions, was held at the Trocadero on Thursday last, Sept. 13, W.B. A. J. Taylor in the chair. The W.M. passed Mr. F. W. Burdock to the second degree, and raised Messrs. Robertson and Bowden. The chair was then occupied by W.B. John Worth, A.G.P. of England, and treasurer of the Lodge, who installed Bro. Shire Mussell in a most impressive manner. There was a good attendance of the brethren, including Bros. C. H. Hutt, P.G.P. of England (chaplain), J. J. Orr, Wolfe, and Lyon. Amongst the many visitors were Bros. Arthur Williams, P.G.S.B. of England, W. Redrum, John Chapman, George Lane, M. F. Wilkins, S. Sidders, B. Foulkes Winks, C. G. Smith, and Bros. F. H. Pedgrift, J. H. King, L. G. Sharpe, N. W. Morgan, W. H. Stephens, &c., &c. After the Lodge closed the brethren adjourned to the Alexandra Rooms at the Trocadero Restaurant, and partook of a banquet, served in the usual admirable manner for which Bro. Lyons's establishment is noted. The musical programme was filled by the Coliseum Glee Singers.

We regret to announce the death on Sunday last of Mr. Kennedy Johnson, who for two years was assistant-manager at the Hackney Empire. Previously he held a similar position at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. The deceased who was about thirty-eight years of age, had been seriously ill for some months, suffering from consumption, and had for some time been an inmate of a hospital at Hackney. The funeral took place on Thursday; and wreaths, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his colleagues, were received from Mr. John Christie, the acting-manager of the Hackney Empire, and also from the staff.

There are no more ardent disciples of Sir Izaak Walton than the members of the music-hall profession. Hardly a week passes without some report coming to hand of the success attending all those who have pursued the gentle art of fishing. Last week Chirgwin had a great catch. This week Mr. Gus Elen, who is a member of the Deal and Walmer Angling Association, will be trying his luck amongst the codling, pollack, or pouting, off the shores of Deal. Mr. Elen will motor there on Monday next, and make a three weeks' stay near Walmer Castle.

Mr. Tom Leo, who opens in town immediately, has been lucky to secure from Maurice Scott a humorous song of the "Short stories" and "London way" order, two well-known ditties with both of which Mr. Scott was connected. The new number has been specially written with an eye to pantomime, comprises a dozen or more verses, and is entitled "Pom te O! Pom te A!"

The "Urbanora" number at the Alhambra on Monday will include a novel photographic farce, arranged by Mr. Urban for seven characters, one motor car, and a spider-buggy, and called Love Wins Out. Far superior in all respects to the conventionally arranged adventure, this fifteen-minute interlude of genuine fun diverts without exaggerating the possibilities of entering into matrimony while exceeding the speed limit.

Miss Katie Lawrence's latest chorus song, "Why can't I be a pal of yours?" by Herbert Rule and Newton Butts, is in the press, the Charing Cross-road house having secured it for publication.

The customary weekly meeting of the English branch of the International Lodge took place on Sunday evening, Bro. 760 being elected to the chair, and others present being:—Bros. 978, 115, 382, 1,359, 1,356, and 389. A tribute was paid to the memory of the late Mr. Eddie Harvey and Catherine Belling, mother of Thomas and Robert Belling. A letter from the headquarters of the I.A.L., re the Batavier company's concessions, was read. It was tated that all three associations—the I.A.L., the V.A.F., and the M.H.A.R.A.—would share in the benefits the company had granted.

The Arbitration Committee appointed by the I.A.L. and Messrs. Cadle unanimously decided that, as Collins and Hart themselves suggested and definitely promised to pay 10 per cent. commission on the 15 weeks' work, commencing July 6, 1906, before leaving for America, in return for Messrs. Cadle securing the postponement of the said weeks, and Messrs. Cadle having handed the contracts confirming the postponement, they (Collins and Hart) shall pay the fifteen weeks' commission above mentioned.

The translation of the petition to the Board of Agriculture regarding quarantine for dogs, which had been prepared by the secretary, was then read. It was approved, and it was decided to send it to the solicitor for revision.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPIRE.

Like most original performers who possess brains and humour, Little Tich has given the cue to many imitators in the course of his strenuous career as an artist, and one of the most successful of these is appearing this week at the Empire. Brevity of name is appropriate to brevity of stature, and he is called Carl. With much that is obvious copying of a clever originator Carl possesses what may be termed a sense of grotesquerie rather than a command of comedy. He is more prone to grin through a horse collar than to be subtle; to put it more plainly he unmistakably emphasises the difference between the clown and the comedian. Much of Little Tich's work is broadly extravagant, as variety humour is bound to be if it is to "get home"; but there are facets of his work revealing a subtlety of character impersonation that is absolutely brilliant. Carl has evidently watched the older and more popular entertainer to some purpose, and his long boot dance is an effective illustration of this contention, and further testimony of imitative ability is found in Carl's burlesque of the serpentine evolutions of dancers of the Loie Fuller type. Little Tich's parody of a prima donna assoluta used to be one of his strongest cards for pantomime. Carl's is more pronounced, but scarcely so funny. His exit with a bulldog hanging on to his rear highly amused the house on Monday; but even this "business" lacks the recommendation of novelty

For quiet, unforced drollery in the Empire scheme of amusement commend us to Keen and Waller, a couple of acrobats, whose tricks are none the less difficult because they look to be accomplished without effort. One of the pair is made up to represent a melancholy Stiggins, with a countenance that suggests misery untold. He possesses the patience and endurance of a pantaloon in pantomime and the intrepidity and muscle of a gladiator. His partner, who is got up to look like a stable lad, is responsible for a number of tricks on his own that are accomplished with the perfection of neatness and skill, and the two work together in such complete harmony that the show is absolutely perfect. The music of the banjo, as commonly thrummed on the variety stage, is strident rather than pleasant, and repels more often than it attracts. That it is quite possible, however, to procure artistic effects from the instrument is being proven nightly at the Empire by the Stavordale Quintette, who play to a harp accompaniment the famous intermezzo from Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana, in which the sound of the human voice is most cleverly imitated. Later the accomplished five contribute the popular Irish ballad "Eileen Alannah," and are called and recalled amid enthusiastic expressions of delight evoked by the real excellence of their performance.

Grace of movement, charm of style, and a singularly powerful muscular development are the principal characteristics that commend the performance of Amalia and Leonora, who are termed Olympic speciality artists. Amalia lifts Leonora in all sorts of ways, and in so doing conquers with apparent ease every difficulty conceivable to the ordinary athlete. Comedy and acrobatism are united in the act of Recco; Leon Rogee is an interesting musical imitator; and other names on the bill are Dora Martini, in a trapeze act; Albany, Parisian fantaisist; and Miss Anna Hickisch. The Biograph is a great attraction with its fine selection of films of the Harvard-Cambridge boat-race and "Life of the Cowboy"; and then there is the incomparable Genée, who has returned from her holiday more delightful than ever, in her chic impersonation of Swanilda, the Slavonic maiden, who so cleverly fools the old doll-maker Coppelius to the top of his bent. Fête Galante, which comes quite early in the scheme of amusement, is a Watteau divertissement of much beauty and elegance, and might fitly have been given at Le Petit Trianon in the days of the Grand Monarque and Madame de Maintenon.

LONDON PAVILION.

The rapidly-shortening days and cooler nights have given an impetus to business all round, and the fine house in Piccadilly Circus, with its generous provision for the lover of variety, is sharing with other establishments the improved condition of things. Mr. Frank Glenister, who has just returned to his duties after an enjoyable holiday at merry Margate, is now directing affairs with his accustomed energy and success. The chief artistic attraction of the current bill is—as it has been for some months past—the posing of La Milo, the pretty Australian girl, with a perfect figure, who employs no extraneous aids to beauty, Nature being her theatrical costumier. Nature has done extremely well; and it would be impossible to surpass the artistic perfection of La Milo's representations of sculpture, which included on the night to which we are now referring, Canova's Venus, Hebe, Circe, and the Velasquez Venus, the last-mentioned being an altogether admirable realisation of a well-known work of art. The lightning outline drawings of celebrities by Cruickshank find a large number of admirers. The chief caricatures chosen on the occasion of our visit were Messrs. Wilfred Rhodes and G. Hirst, the Yorkshire stalwarts at cricket; Anthony Comstock, the Purity crank in the States; Lord Lonsdale, John Burns, George Alexander, and Joe Chamberlain. Both the famous actor-manager and the idol of Brum were easily recognisable, and much applause was evoked by the writing on the screen of the question, "Are we down-hearted?"

Early in the evening a new aspirant to honours as a male impersonator appears in Miss Winifred Ward, who, for her principal song, introduces verses concerning the different characters to be met with at a railway station. Miss Ward extracts every ounce of meaning from the verses, and her illustrative "business" and dialect are entirely appropriate. Another capital turn is Graham, who gives his human marionette entertainment under specially interesting and novel conditions. His stage pictures, indeed, go to make up a miniature spectacle—with well-painted cloths and mechanical effects. "Neptune's Grotto" beneath the ocean illustrates the theme of Mr. Graham's sketch, which possesses something of the attractions of a pantomime féerie. Fun and fancy run riot in this well-thought-out production, of which the numbers sung by its originator and two lady assistants are well composed, and elicit much applause, special favour being accorded to a topical trio. Davy Jones, the demon of the deep, makes short work of a dummy hero, and the miniature extravaganza excites a good deal of laughter. It should become an established success.

Mr. John E. Coyle, just returned from a successful tour in South Africa, is again amid familiar surroundings at the London Pavilion, where his amusing methods have long been recognised. His present numbers include "Don't be silly" and "Sea-bathing," which, as humorous items, might both be considerably improved by writing up. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, new comers, we believe, to the house, are seen to advantage in their latest farce Two to One. The very slight plot of this is founded on the wife mistaking an utter stranger for an absent husband, hourly expected back from a holiday. When the improbability of the imbroglio is swallowed, one can enjoy the farcical situations, which are as extravagant as they need be, and are particularly well played by the happily-associated couple, who act extremely well together. Mr. Whit Cunliffe's new satirical song, "You'll get on in England if you're not an Englishman" appeals with much force to the audience, especially when the singer, in one of Messrs. Murray and Hilbury's well-written verses, recommends the changing on the part of their possessors of such homely British names as Brown and Robinson. Mr. Edwin Boyde has a screamingly funny parody on "Round the old apple-tree," and is recalled again and again at its conclusion. There is an immense amount of fun in the doings of Radford and Valentine, comedy jugglers, the male of the twain adopting the tramp business with hilarious results; Mr. George Mozart again engrosses and amuses us with his amusing one-man skit on melodrama; Miss Nell Richardson sings charmingly the ballad, "Within your heart"; Mr. Frank Cumminger dances with marvellous skill and energy on sand; and a particularly graceful and fascinating exposition of pirouetting and dancing is given by Susie and Protti. Other turns include Clifton and Gibson, a whimsical pair of cross-talkers; Mr. Charles Rogers, a very clever banjoist; the Pavilion Girls, a smart set of vocalists and dancers; Fred Cary, with a droll song on "Kissing"; and Boyd and Gilfain, in a lively and entertaining comedy and musical sketch, which is worthy of a better place in the bill.

THE OXFORD.

Mr. Harry Tate, with the assistance of the excellent stage-management, is still enjoying the delights of Gardening at the Oxford in a snug little scene, wherein flourish the most extraordinary specimens of stage floriculture. We are told by a rubicund, full-figured culturist of the existence of a campanula floribunda, and his knowledge of the Latin that does duty among horticultural experts, who will call a common pink a dianthus, is extensive and peculiar. Mr. Tate, as a proud possessor of a perch or two of land—a freeholder with a breast swelling with pride at the thought of ownership, a feudal lord of Suburbia—naturally wants to till the soil he owns, and thereby obtain the fulness of enjoyment for his outlay. How he conducts his operations and the various interruptions that prevent him having the good time he ought may be learnt at the Oxford nightly; and huge crowds have been giving Mr. C. Blyth-Pratt loud evidence of their complete enjoyment of the diverting fooling for which Mr. Tate is chiefly responsible. Little Tich, who occupies the position of star comedian on the bill, is happily suited with material that enables him to show to advantage, and in his military impersonation and in "My girl has been in the sun" he is exceedingly droll. Mr. Gus Elen's diatribe against tea, coffee, and cocoa, and his advocacy of ale—even in gallons—are dead against the Lawsonian principles which well-meaning philanthropists do so much to foist upon the lower classes The coster comedian's downright sentiments are given out with humorous emphasis, and they evidently go down. A strong contrast to both of the fore-mentioned comedians is found in the "Yorkshire lad" of Mr. Tom Foy. This is a character creation of surpassing merit, and the audience appreciates to the full the comedian's strong sense of the ludicrous, and the smartness of the unsophisticated rustic from the Ridings appeals most unmistakably to gods, pit, and stalls. Still further amusement is discovered in the doings of Mr. Bert Clark (of Clark and Hamilton), whose tramp millionaire—now so familiar to Oxford frequenters—has not lost one jot of his immense popularity. Mr. Clark plays the piano—how well he does not reveal to us—and his ungallant conduct towards a belle of New York (Miss Hamilton) sends his legion of admirers into fits of laughter. On the night to which we are now alluding he had—in answer to the persistent demands for an encore—to add to his entertainment the pretty romantic little Japanese scena, entitled My Yokohama Queen, a ruler of unlimited charm.

Mr. Harry Ford as a swell comique sings of a charmer and how she talks, walks, and floats. He also has some amusing verses concerning those interfering folk who will be so kind, and who do so much real mischief with the best intentions. Foreman and Fannan's fund of patter is always amusing, and the mirth-provoking questions and replies of "Clarence" and "Harold" keep the crowd in a merry humour. Miss Victoria Monks is in high favour with songs to which she gives a vogue that is entirely her own. Miss Maude Courtenay—a sweet girlish figure in white—sings with much acceptance "My mother's name is Mary," and recites also "Didn't we, Jim?" which is not without its note of pathos.

The Borellis early in the evening display musical ability in alliance with comedy, and the pleasant mixture finds much appreciation, the clever couple scoring most unmistakably in the "cat duet." That favourite low comedienne, Miss Nellie Wallace, keeps her audience in roars of laughter the while she recites a new version of "Where are you going to, my pretty maid?" Lee and Kingston contribute some energetic buffoonery that finds many admirers, and the traditions of the hall in the way of acrobatics are well sustained by the Abdullah Arabs. The Holloway Trio are responsible for a wire act in which grace, skill, and intrepidity predominate, and the bill is completed by Miss Nina Martino, vocalist.

We are given to understand that a syndicate, consisting of several influential City people and a theatrical manager, has been formed for the purpose of purchasing the Lyceum and converting it into a circus. No direct offer to the present owners of the house has, however, been made. The building, called the Lyceum, which was erected in 1765 by James Payne, the architect, was originally constructed for the exhibitions of the Society of Artists; but on the establishment of the Royal Academy at Somerset House in 1768 the premises were purchased by Mr. Lingham, a breechesmaker in the Strand, who at different periods let them for various purposes. Flockton, the conjuror, exhibited his puppet show and sleight-of-hand; and afterwards Philip Astley took it for equestrian performances. The present exterior dates only from 1834, and ten years after opening it was again in use for equestrian performances.

An eminent firm of picture postcard dealers have depicted, by permission of the publishers of the song, on three cards, the principal incidents in Kenneth Lyle's fine March song, "The beat of the drum," a song dedicated by special permission to Mr. Oswald Stoll. Messrs. Francis and Day have also just received proofs of the exquisite slides which will be used shortly for projection on the screen during the singing in a foremost London hall of J. Airlie Dix's impressive song, "The Broken Slate."

Mr. Bertram G. Iles, who has fulfilled the duties of stage management for some time at the Leicester Palace Theatre, is now to be seen in the front of the house, having been appointed by Mr. Oswald Stoll to the position of assistant acting-manager under Mr. George Andrews. Mr. Iles is a courteous gentleman, who brings to bear on his new position a training in both theatre and music-hall. The new stage manager at the Palace Theatre is Mr. Dudley Harcourt, a gentleman well-known in the profession.

Lord George Sanger considers that the restriction as to training in childhood will cause riding to be a lost art within a few years. "People," he says, "will not come back to the circus yet. It is played out for the time. You may start a hippodrome without horses and with a music-hall artist at the top of the bill, but that is a different thing from the circus that in former times used to visit almost every town in the Empire at the same period of the year. I shall never go on the road again myself. 'How could I get 200 trained horses together to start with, and how could I manage my men under the present conditions of labour? No, I shall go back to my farm at Finchley in a few weeks and mind the ducks."

SIGNORINA MARIA BORDIN.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The writer was given the place of honour in the pretty and well-appointed dressing-room of the prima ballerina assoluta of the Alhambra, or, at least, he took it for granted that it was the place of honour, for he was seated in close proximity to an electric fan—no small kindness on a hot evening. And the prima ballerina assoluta—Nero himself could not have wished for a more gorgeous, high-sounding title!—laughed with the merriest of sparkling eyes as she engaged in what was intended to be a serious conversation. Signorina Maria Bordin is something more than a dancer, she is a skilful actress. Even if you were unacquainted with her language you could accept much of her meaning from her wonderful "dumb show"—the explanatory gesture, the easily-understood movement of the hand or the head, and the bright, intelligent glance of the eyes. There is music in her very manner. Signorina Bordin is the apotheosis of vivacity. She gives the impression that life to her is a gleeful trifle, a festive wisp; and interviewing the silliest little joke she ever heard of!

As to her dancing, it's like a melody that's sweetly played in tune. But if King Darius could arise from his ashes, and fly to the Alhambra in an airship, what would he say if he witnessed in his ancient palace a lively Italian whirl performed by a lady in modern ballet attire? Will someone come forward and show us how the ancient Assyrians and Persians danced? The probability is, in spite of all the splendours of antiquity which are even now being glorified by gentlemen learned in archæology, that Darius saw nothing better in his day. And you wouldn't get Signorina Bordin to believe anything to the contrary. "The Italian school is the finest on earth," she says. "There is nothing to be compared to it."

The recognised academy for dancing in Italy is the Scala, and Signorina Bordin tells us that to be admitted to this institution one has to be recommended, be able to prove the possession of more than ordinary talent, be physically perfect, and come of a good family. Padua is the town in which this graceful and dainty prima ballerina was born, and Padua may congratulate itself. For five years she studied at the Scala, where it is the rule that no period under ten years can turn out a capable dancer, as the Italians understand dancing. But as Signorina Bordin was vastly superior to the average scholar, half the usual training sufficed for her, and at the age of sixteen she made her début at Lisbon

The première danseuse in the magnificent ballet L'Amour belongs to the highest type of the classical school. She studied under Mme. Beretta, the celebrated dancing mistress of the Italian School at Milan. When we, in our ignorance, ask her what is classical dancing, the charming coryphée laughs in her merry fashion, and then proceeds to lighten our darkness. "In dancing, you know," she says, "you must use all your faculties, mental and physical, just as if you were playing a part on the stage. In fact, you've got to be more of an actress than an actress usually is. You see, a dancer doesn't speak, and she must explain what she would say by gestures and movements. There must be the language of poetry in those movements as well as appropriate explanations in the expressions of the face. That's where all the difference comes in between an actress who plays a part in a comedy or drama and the dancer who has to give a dumb show. What the one unravels by words the other must solve by motions."

"Then, in your Italian wordless plays—if I may be allowed to use such a term—one sees the truest and most expressive kind of acting?"

"I believe so. If you study the Italian mode of dancing you will perceive that great attention is paid to pantomime or dumb-show accompaniment. I consider that it is in this dumb show that the highest standard in the acting art is reached. In my opinion, every actor ought to go through a proper course of pantomime training. It stands to reason that if you can assist the voice with hand, eye, and face you play with an increased effect upon the imagination of the audience. Of course, efficient dancing is largely the outcome of time and patience, and practice and study, though, to begin with, one must have the natural inclination. Many would-be dancers are unsuccessful because they have not the quality of animation, or give evidence of lack of soul. They may be graceful and correct in their steps, but that is about as much as can be said of them, for beyond that they are mere machines. They have been taught how to point their toes, and how to pose in certain positions, but they apparently find it impossible to go any farther, and, consequently, become like automatic dolls."

Signorina Bordin, whose delightful performances in conjunction with Signor Vincenti in the ballet Excelsior at the Lyceum will be long remembered by the London public, is charmed with the kindly reception she has received at the hands of British audiences, and she already entertains quite an affectionate feeling towards our metropolis.

BOW PALACE.

A sketch that is interesting, refined, well constructed, and well written bears the title of The Bells of Vernavale, and has this week received the mark of approval from the habitués of the Bow Palace. It is presented by the Vaudeville Dramatic Company, which includes some capable artists. The story chiefly deals with the love affairs of George Kendall, the foreman of some works. His employer, Edward Stafford, has a son, who is guilty of acts of villainy, and who endeavours to throw the blame of various crimes upon the innocent hero. The playlet is one that keeps one's attention on the stage from start to finish. The straightforward and virile George Kendall is admirably portrayed by Mr. Ernest Wingfield, and Miss Marguerite Trevosper acts with sincerity and womanly charm in the rôle of Jessie Dane, the heroine. Mr. F. Fellows Bassett submits a capital character-study of old Edward Stafford, while the outrageous conduct of the younger Stafford is ably illustrated by Mr. Herbert Pearson. Mr. Leslie Viner as Steven Blair, a drunken clerk, and Miss Helena Walbran as his unfortunate sister adequately supply the requirements of their parts. Coming to the individual turns, we have a most engaging vocalist in Miss Lear Arden, who is heard to great advantage in the song "Always." This is not the first time that we have had occasion to refer in eulogistic terms to the work of the New York Quartette, nor do we suppose that it will be the last. They are vocalists and dancers of no mean order, and their performances are always acceptable to a music-hall audience. The Two Kays appear in a most attractive little act.

Cullen, Carthy, and Cluley are treating East Enders to a comedy act which is new to London. They open with some lively verses about "dandy millionaires," and then proceed to engage in a comic dance and entertaining patter. One of the members of the small troupe is a midget, by whose aid no end of fun is created. The turn concludes with a cleverly-performed burlesque cake-walk. Mr. Harry Royde is just the man one would wish to encounter while suffering from a fit of the blues, for if anyone's whimsicalities would help to drive dull care away, his would. He is extremely quaint in his song "Don't move," which is sung just in the manner to bring out its best points. The Marconis compel one to wonder at the daring way in which they play with electricity. One sees fire and flashes of flames issuing from their mouths, and we are told that they contrive to pass 250,000 volts of electricity through their bodies without injury to their constitutions. Most men, we imagine, would be well content with the penny shocks at Earl's Court without permitting their ambition to induce them to test the power of a quarter of a million volts. The act is an exceedingly attractive one.

We are made acquainted with more wonders when Mr. James de Voye leads "Billy" from the wings to the centre of the stage. Billy, be it understood, is the name of a horse. It is much too commonplace a name for such an equine genius as Billy undoubtedly is. For Billy can answer questions, is an arithmetician, can tell the time of day, knows the value of coins, and solves problems in a way that ought to make Euclid rise from his ashes and crown Billy with a wreath of laurel. Furthermore, this intelligent animal plays cards. One cannot help admiring the knowing manner in which Billy keeps his best cards back for use at fitting opportunities. We should be rather interested to know whether Billy could predict the winner of a horse race. Mr. Arthur Goodman excels as a comedy juggler. His overcoat is in itself something to laugh at. It is what you would call a burlesque astrakhan—bits of brushes taking the place of the usual black curly fabric, while for button fastenings he has padlocks. In fact, when Mr. Goodman desires to perform any exercise he has to unlock himself. His juggling feats are both smart and original especially that in which he balances a wine-glass on nine cigar boxes placed on top of each other, knocking each box from under the other, and finally catching the glass. Miss Josie Watson is a pleasing and engaging comedienne, and a bright and sprightly artist withal. We get more comedy juggling from The Cromwells, who execute a number of neat tricks with chairs, sticks, balls, bats, umbrellas, clubs, and a host of other articles. They impart a great deal of humour into their actions. Raymond and Son's Bio-Tableaux are responsible for some really beautiful pictures, those depicting a rescue by a dog-detective being particularly commendable. The Bow Palace has within the last few weeks been redecorated, inside and out, and a very artistic effect has been created by the embellishment.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

One of the most enjoyable items in Mr. J. C. Coe's varied and entertaining programme at his popular variety theatre in King-street, Hammersmith, is that given by Boswell's Circus. Especially smart is a black pony in his manipulation of a see-saw, and afterwards, entirely at liberty, he performs many other difficult feats, including walking on his hind legs and waltzing. Much amusement is created by the wrestling ponies, the clown who endeavours to throw them always coming off second best. The efforts of the youth of Hammersmith to keep their equilibrium on the revolving table evokes some of the heartiest laughter heard during the evening, but an Irish and fox-terrier apparently find little difficulty in negotiating it, even when standing on their hind legs and jumping hurdles. An intelligent donkey also contributes to the entertainment, lying down and kissing the comedy man at the word of command. The animals are all willing workers, the canines appearing to thoroughly enjoy their exercises, and the entire show is admirably worked. Applause is called forth by the clever juggling with knives, lighted torches, balls, &c., of Simosa San, the lady also introducing some trained pigeons, who walk the rolling globe and execute other tricks, and appear to have a proper affection for their trainer, perching on her head and shoulders whenever they are free.

A smartly-worked little interlude is given by the Knick-Knacks, who appear as a Society lady and an interviewer, and indulge in some humorous conversation, a coon song and a cleverly executed dance also being included in their much-appreciated turn. The Allisons score greatly with a well-written and really funny duet descriptive of "Hats," some humorous little recitations and cross-talk compelling laughter, the happily-associated and clever couple also contributing a coster song and step dance that is loudly acclaimed. Mr. Ted Saunders mimics with much fidelity Mr. R. G. Knowles in "Love, Marriage, and Divorce," Mr. Harry Lauder in "Stop yer tickling, Jock," Mr. Wilkie Bard in "The Cowslip and the Cow," and Mr. George Lashwood in his well-known "Latch-key" song, the last-named being an especially realistic impersonation. Mr. George Leonard has a couple of attractive items in "Keeping the game alive," in which he appears as a reveller who has had a decidedly lively time at a wedding, and "The Covent Garden Ball," both songs being well rendered and loudly applauded; and Miss Cris Cross gives a pleasing ballad and a well-executed dance that compels approval from all parts of the house.

Miss Ella Shields, billed as "America's greatest coon singer," has a particularly tuneful number in "Be my winter blossom," and her quaint singing of "Good-bye, I'm walking round the world," was so much to the liking of the audience on Tuesday evening that an encore was demanded, the deservedly popular vocalist giving as her final selection the well-known coon song "Sun am shining." Mr. Fred Erick creates hilarity by his quaint rendering of "Well, I can't make it out, can you?" and another nonsense song; and the wonderful dancing of the Russian troupe is appraised at its true value, the quartette all distinguishing themselves, and apparently revelling in their exhausting and difficult movements. Other turns in the programme include the Mezzettis in their comedy act on the triple bars; Collins and Hawley, dancing experts; the Edisonograph, showing the latest pictures; and Mr. John F. Preston and his specially selected company in Max Goldberg's sketch Rogues of the Turf, introducing a stud of thoroughbred racehorses. Mr. Lewis Vincent is Mr. Coe's courteous and astute first lieutenant, and Mr. J. H. Cleve directs the excellent band.

SADLER'S WELLS.

The Flowers of the Forest is the picturesque episode in four scenes which is being presented this week at Sadler's Wells by Miss Josephine Colona. It will be remembered that only a few weeks ago this actress excited a good deal of interest by appearing in a playlet as Lady Godiva. Miss Colona is one of the most beautiful women on the music hall stage, and she combines a fine appearance and physical endowments with histrionic ability. The Flowers of the Forest deals with gipsy life and gipsy "clannishness." Cynthia, the belle of the tribe, is in love with a gallant gentleman who belongs to a higher social class than that in which the pretty Romany moves. There is no need to enter into the details of the story. Suffice it to say that in a duel Cynthia's lover is supposed to have taken advantage of his opponent and fired before the signal. In point of fact, he fires into the air, and another person, one Lemuel, also belonging to the encampment, is the cause of the death. Lemuel, it appears, had a grudge against his victim. Cynthia's father, who goes by the name of The Wolf, charges his daughter's sweetheart with the crime. However, the real assassin is found out, owing to the alertness of Cynthia, who is at once denounced by the tribe as a traitress, and told by her father that she must leave them for ever. The Wolf, later, tells her that she will be permitted to remain provided she kills her lover, who has been bound to a tree. Rather than commit herself to such a deed, the girl stabs herself fatally, and her lover is released. Miss Colona plays with fine dramatic effect in the part of Cynthia, and her delivery is distinctly good, and the other rôles are sustained in able fashion. The piece is exceedingly well staged and mounted, and is, moreover, superbly dressed.

There is a very winsome suffragette appearing nightly in the person of Miss Marie Kean. She stands upon a box and harangues in the most approved Hyde Park tub-thumper style. We can't say that she is serious, in spite of the militant attitude she adopts, but that there is humour in what she says and the way she says it there can be no doubt. This is one of the forceful arguments she advances in favour of female enfranchisement. Referring to the waywardness of the mere married man, she says, "If he's a right to come home drunk, we've a right to vote." Whether such a theory is intended to further the cause of temperance we are not in a position to state, but what we can state is that Miss Kean is delightfully entertaining. Mr. J. C. Manley sings character songs in a most pleasing style; and Mr. Pat Carey is seen and heard in an extremely agreeable Irish act, and his Hibernianisms evoke intense merriment. Mr. Frank Cumminger, who claims to be the world's record dancer, is amazingly smart on his pedal extremities. With accurate brevity one may say that he is an expert sand-dancer. Mr. Percy Murray, supported by a capital company, gives an admirable representation of the sensational dramatic sketch, The Last Temptation, the plot of which is of an absorbing character, and has found great favour with all classes of the audience. It is a significant sign of the time that good, sound playlets are always welcomed by the patrons of variety theatres, and within a comparatively short period the number of sketches has increased to a really remarkable extent. A musical act, in which skill and first-rate talents are displayed, is that of the Albano Troupe, the members of which perform most skilfully on the harp, the concertina, mandoline, and other instruments.

Miss Jessie M. Lyons and company submit an acceptable trifle in the South African episode, Nelly of the Veldt. The tale which is told is of rather a pathetic order. Little Nelly Trent, abandoned by her father, and left at her mother's death with a cottage and a little money, has made friends with a Kaffir woman, who looks after the small household and acts as a sort of protectress to the girl. One night there comes to the cottage a haggard, disreputable tramp, who demands refreshment and a brief rest. The most fitting domicile for the visitor would be the gaol he has only recently quitted, and in point of fact he has intruded his ugly presence for the purpose of burgling the place. The Kaffir woman distrusts him as soon as she catches sight of his dishevelled hair and beard and his somewhat compromising countenance. But Nelly, childlike and less sophisticated, offers him the hospitality of the modest homestead, and he is allowed to remain there for the night. After the little girl and the woman have retired to their bedrooms, it is not long before Trent—that is the tramp's name—indulges in his light-fingered tactics. He picks up a silver box, and is handling it with all the affection that a Bill Sikes fondles a valuable find, when Nelly appears with a candle. In her innocent way she rebukes him, and he repentantly returns it to her possession. Then, little by little, it comes out that they are father and daughter, and—well, the end can be guessed. Miss Lyons acts with conspicuous ability in the role of the black woman—a curious creature to personate, but played with much intelligence by the young lady referred to. In the character of Nelly we have a clever little child actress, who should be heard of later on. The gentleman who appears as the derelict is to be congratulated on an admirable study of a rough-cut driftaway with yet a tender spot in his hardened nature. The Sisters Lytton enchant one with their rendering of "Il Bacio," and Foreman and Fannan create intense amusement with their patter, the speech on the problem of the working classes being particularly funny. An admirable set of pictures is thrown on the screen by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, the series, entitled "When Jenkins Washes Up," being worthy of special mention. Mr. Pete Murray, the acting-manager, and Mr. Erle T. Walkden, the assistant-manager—the latter has only occupied that position for a few months—attend assiduously to the requirements of the house, both in front and behind the footlights.

Among the forthcoming additions to Mr. "Sixpenny Pop" Smith's catalogue will be found the following numbers: "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out," "Snowflakes," "Run, run, you little ones!" "Go 'way, good Massa Bee!" "Hi! Johnny, who's your tailor?" "It's not the old man's voice, it's just the dear old song," "The rose of my heart," "The lobster's promenade," and "Nobody." Messrs. Francis and Day expect to have the above and others on the market by October 1.

Miss Elsie Earle, after a successful provincial tour, will return to town early next month to produce her new scena Holly and Mistletoe, by the promising writer Will Letters, author and composer of Sunshine and Shadow and The Lilac Girl. Special scenery will be painted by Bostock, and there will be electrical effects. Miss Earle has also in study a new male impersonation song, "The Mayor," from the joint pens of Will Letters and Nat Clifford.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY.

Mr. Harry Fragson is meeting with great success with his own song, "Tom, the piper's son," which has the oft-recurring amusing phrase, "He received me most politely." By kind permission of Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co., we print the words of the song:—

I was reading in a column of the "Times" the other day
That some managers were wanting to produce a novel play
Written by an unknown author. Now, as I have written one,
I submitted it to Curzon, called it "Tom, the Piper's Son!"
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY. "We've successes here you know,
"And your piece is really charming. Call again next week or so."
In a week I called upon him, and "My dear old boy," said he,
"But this isn't quite in my style, 'tis a 'cert' for Beerbohm Tree.
"And you know I love to spend a lot in mounting of a play,
"Still, I really won't detain you." Curzon said to me, "Good-day!"
He returns me "Tom, the Piper's Son," my splendid Tragedee,
And 'tis then I seek the sanctum of our only Beerbohm Tree.
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY. "We've successes here you know,
"And your piece is really charming; call again next week or so."
In a week I called upon him. Beerbohm said, "It's simply grand,
"But it isn't quite the sort of thing my public understand.
"It is beautiful, oh, beautiful, but cannot see my way;
"Lewis Waller wants this sort of thing: he's sure to like the play."
He returns me "Tom, the Piper's Son," my five-act Tragedee,
And I down to the Imperial trot, great Waller for to see.
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY. "We've successes here you know,
"And your piece is really charming. Call again next week or so."
In a week I called upon him. Waller said, "A splendid part,
"With a lot of speeches extra long to cultivate by heart.
"I'm aware they want a heap of me. I'm tired of Shakespeare tricks;
"But as I'm not in the final act, you just try Seymour Hicks."
He returns me "Tom the Piper's Son," my five-act Tragedee,
And away I march to Seymour Hicks as proud as I could be.
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY. "We've successes here you know,
"And your piece is really charming. Call again next week or so."
In a week I called upon him. Seymour said, "My dear old son,
"You have cribbed this piece from somewhere, eh? You shouldn't that have done.
"Now I always am original; that's good enough for me.
"But you collar hold of Edwardes, he's the man you want to see."
He returns me "Tom, the Piper's Son" (it's now a simple farce),
And I buttonhole George Edwardes, who that morning chanced to pass.
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY, but "my boy" began to cry:
"There's no blooming dance for Genée!—Better Charlie Wyndham try."
So I hurried off to Wyndham, but encounter Mary Moore,
And she reads a little of the piece, then murmurs, "What a bore!
"For the woman's part is much too old for me, so try again"—
And I instantly skedaddle off to Collins, Drury Lane.
HE RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY; but he said, "You're wrong this time:
"You have taken all the nubbly bits out of the Pantomime!"
And, as through the poor old manuscript most carefully he plods—
"You just take this lot to Alexander, the darling of the gods."
WHO RECEIVED ME MOST POLITELY, with a beatific smile,
And his curly locks were dancing o'er his forehead all the while;
And as I await the verdict, said, "I'm sorry that you've got
"This rare silly notion in your head to write such utter rot!
"But I never mind how many more I gather of this type,
"'Cos the paper's always useful when one wants to light a pipe!"
So although my piece the FAILURES must be counted now among,
I've just made a little song of it—this VERY SONG I've sung.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday Messrs. Pain and Sons' Benefit was celebrated. The number of visitors exceeded the ordinary Bank Holiday attendance. The amusements were highly appreciated. Japanese daylight fireworks, invented by the beneficiaries over twenty years ago, but still as effective as ever, occupied the attention of those on the south front at 6 o'clock. Some comical figures eagerly welcomed by the juveniles were followed by a balloon ascent and parachute descent by the intrepid Palace aeronaut, M. Auguste Gandron, who later made a second ascent with a huge fire device attached to the car. Every reserved seat was engaged and money refused nearly two hours before the fireworks commenced. The set pieces claimed to cover an area of 10,000 feet, and it was noteworthy that no accessories such as canvas scenery were called into requisition. The Arc de Triomphe in no wise belied its name, being a splendid fire effect, and the Temple of Heaven at Pekin, with terraces of steps stretching towards the many successive tiers of Oriental architecture of the main building, was another attractive depiction. Amongst other devices was the Bacchante Fountain, one of the most realistic features of the display. Mercury's magic wands, the phantom circles, cataracts of gold and silver, and flights of rockets, filled the sky with thousands of jets of coloured fires, which were meritorious items in the varied programme. The Victoria Falls on the Zambesi called for special comment. Perhaps the most wonder striking exhibition in this huge display was the volley of radium bombs, which made five distinct changes in the air. The eruption of Mount Vesuvius, representing the famous volcano with mountain sloping down to the Bay of Naples, with streams of fire and lava belching forth from the crater, was the concluding device. Many of the effects shown on Saturday were repetitions of those specially manufactured for their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales' Indian tour in the early part of this year, and also for their Majesties the King and Queen, and the Spanish monarchs for the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes.

The Ormonde family have been drawing houses all through the North of Ireland, despite the sultry weather. In Newry, Dundalk, and Drogheda the "house-full" notice had to be displayed at eight o'clock. Dr. Ormonde, hypnotist, is nightly astonishing his audiences; and Mr. J. Ormonde-Dann is introducing some marvellous illusions. Mlle. Lottie Ormonde, who captivates with her brilliant solos, has just been offered £400 for her fine old Russian violin, made in 1748 by S. Kiopossse, St. Petersburg, and at one time in possession of H. Wieniawski, the famous violin virtuoso and composer.

ROYAL ALBERT RE-OPENING.

Riding on a motor-omnibus over the bridge that divides the counties of London and Essex at Canning Town, our attention was directed on Monday evening to an unaccustomed blaze of light from three huge arc lamps, which, illuminating a red building to the right, made one think at first glance that the place was on fire. But that was not the case. The brilliant red house, resplendent in the bright rays of the festal lamps, was the Royal Albert Palace of Varieties. It was the opening night, and the occasion was not to be regarded lightly. The ordinary public entrances were blocked by crowds of people, many of whom failed to secure seats, and even the writer only managed to get in by discovering the way through a billiard-room connected with the establishment.

Of course, a great change has taken place in the appearance, both of the exterior and the interior, of the Royal Albert, as well as in its conduct. Mr. Arthur Hunt, the new proprietor, has done away with the office of "chairman," and where that dignitary used to sit, surrounded by a select circle of honoured guests, there are now the orchestra stalls. The auditorium has been entirely re-seated, the chairs in every part of the house being extremely comfortable and conveniently arranged. The decorations around the balcony and gallery fronts, and in other parts, involve a pretty scheme of cream and gold, which is rendered still more effective by the slight contrast with a different colour on the wallpaper, a handsome design of gold repoussé on green background. The gilded pillars and the new contrivances in the way of electric lights give to the interior the aspect of a gorgeous fairy palace. There have been embellishment and improvement all round, even to the back of the footlights, for new scenery has been brought into the theatre.

In appearing on the stage to declare the house open, Mr. Arthur Hunt had very few words to say. He remarked that the local people would not find him wanting in attending to their convenience and tastes, and they would no doubt join with him in wishing the new Royal Albert every success—which, needless to say, they did. He then introduced Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, who, as a sort of send-off song, sang in her accomplished style the National Anthem, the audience enthusiastically cheering, and entering into the verses. In the front row of the orchestra stalls sat the former proprietor of the Royal Albert, Mr. Charles Relf and his wife; while the old and respected chairman, Mr. Walter Leaver, dropped in for a few minutes during the evening. Others present were Mr. Fred Baugh, Mr. Edward Granville, Mr. Ernest Edelsten, Mr. George Barclay, Mr. Sam Witmond, Mr. Joe Nightingale, and Mr. J. W. Johnson, who has arranged most of the bookings for the Albert during the last twenty years.

The establishment has started with an excellent programme under the two-houses-a-night system. There is this week Miss Kate Carney in her latest sketch The Brighton Promenade, which is lively and entertaining throughout. In her vivacious manner Miss Carney delights her hearers with her rendering of three items, "I'm coming back, love," "On the good old Surrey side," and "The Brighton Promenade." Miss Nellie Farrell proves a capable singer of Irish songs; and Mr. E. W. Selman is exceedingly funny with his lines and smart with his dancing. The comedy act of Moon and Morris is sufficient, to quote a famous saying, to make a cat laugh; and Tiny Arnold, who is described as the smallest artist in the world, dances in the sprightliest fashion, and sings in the gayest manner. As to Miss Rita Resdan, we all know what a clever male impersonator she is, and we have in the past referred on numerous occasions to her admirable efforts in the direction indicated. Mr. George Beddon distinguishes himself as a "white coon"; and Edwards and Dacre amuse one with their comedy, What a Life! The Coolvilles submit a pleasing vocal and dancing turn; and from Raymond's Bio-Tableaux we get the latest cinematographic novelties. Miss Carlotta de Yonson and company are appearing in the American playlet, The Dandy Detective, in which Miss de Yonson wins our sympathy for her acting in the part of the heroine, and in which Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, the author, shows his versatility in three rôles, as a quick-change detective.

THE MUSIC HALL SICK FUND.

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday afternoon at the York Hotel. Mr. Pat Carey (the president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. Frank Heath (treasurer), W. Wainratta, W. Briscoe, G. Fredericks, and Seth White.

Mr. Frank Heath submitted the draft of a letter he had sent to a contemporary in reply to one received from a correspondent, Mr. Monte Bayly, suggesting that the Music Hall Sick Fund should be amagamated with the Variety Artists' Federation, each member to subscribe one penny per week. Mr. Heath pointed out in his reply that there is an age limit (45 years), so a great number would be ineligible. Moreover, it would not be possible to give the sick pay of £1 per week for less than 6d. It must be understood that, if a member is unfortunately compelled to declare on the fund, the payment is £1 a week for 12 weeks, and 10s. for a further continuation of 12 weeks, making in all a benefit of £18 for 24 weeks. In the event of taking the figures as suggested by Monte Bayly—£11 per week, or £572 per annum for 2840 members—our liability to each member would be £1 per week; and, in this case, providing there were more than 11 members ill during the same period, we should be at a loss, and 11 is a very small percentage of 2840 members. Writes Mr. Heath:—

"I fully appreciate Monte Bayly's sentiments, and only wish that they were practicable. I also agree with him that it is difficult for the ordinary artist to provide out of his weekly wage a sufficiency against the time of need. A payment of 6d. per week obviates this necessity. It is unaccountable that, in spite of the various advantages offered by the Music Hall Sick Fund, its members are so few, and if this correspondence will enlighten them as to the advisability of joining, Monte Bayly's letter will indeed have borne fruit."

The chairman remarked that he had intended writing a letter to similar effect, but Mr. Heath's communication was a complete answer to the suggestion offered.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the will indeed have borne fruit."

VESTA TILLEY.

A GREAT OVATION AT GLASGOW EMPIRE.

Fresh from her triumphant tour in the United States, Vesta Tilley is in Glasgow this week, and last night a great ovation was given her by a packed audience at the Empire. Although there have been many recent "imitations" of her special line of "business," a visit to the Empire convinces music-hall frequenters there is only one Vesta Tilley. Neither her style, mannerisms, nor songs can be associated with anyone else, and one can understand why she created such a furore while in the land of the almighty dollar. Miss Tilley sang a couple of new and catchy songs last night, but evidently her old songs are most favoured, for she had to respond to encores with "The Seaside Sultan" and "Following in father's footsteps." Even after four appearances the "house" was loth to let her go, and "Everybody's Idol" had to make a little speech before being allowed to retire. A strong company of artists support the "star" turn.—Glasgow News, Sept. 11.

CHAT WITH MR. TOM COSTELLO.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"Considering the disabilities under which music halls have suffered for the last twenty years, I think everyone will agree with me that it must be a wonderful business to have flourished in the way that it has done. Variety entertainments have been the target of the Puritanical section of the public, and they have been made the shuttlecock of unscrupulous adventurers."

"Recently, Mr. Costello, there have been rumours of bribery, and your opinions on the subject would be interesting."

"Mr. George Adney Payne's recent letter on the question comes as a timely warning, but the 'handwriting on the wall' has been visible to members of the profession for some time past."

But, Mr. Costello, while giving expression to the hope that Mr. Payne's action would be the initial step in the cleansing of an obnoxious system of introducing business, preferred not to commit himself further on that point.

"At the same time," he continues, "I have every belief in the future prosperity of the music hall stage, provided that the lines upon which these places of entertainment were built up are strictly adhered to. What I mean to say is that the principle upon which a music hall should be conducted, so far as the performances are concerned, is covered by the word 'variety.'"

"Perhaps you will tell me, then, what is your ideal programme?"

"Music hall patrons wish to see a little of everything, and not too much of one class of turn. I consider that we have had a surfeit of lions, tigers, animal acts generally, and foreign dumb shows. I was engaged recently at a certain music hall which only needed the stage sprinkled with sawdust to make it a circus. To go back to your question as to what is my ideal programme, I think that laughter should be the main object whenever available. Ballads of course should invariably find a place on the bill, if only as backgrounds to the merry-making. The programme should also include a good sketch within reasonable time-limit, an acrobatic exhibition, while graceful dancing to pretty music will be always welcomed. Other turns would have to be selected according to circumstances and modern requirements.

"I do not think that clever character-work on the variety stage is appreciated nowadays at its proper value, or anything near it. It seems to me that there is more money in becoming a stereotyped style of artist, or specialist, if I may so term it, who invariably appears in one distinctive garb."

It is not generally known that Mr. Costello started his professional career in the legitimate theatres, his first London engagement being with the late George Conquest at the Surrey Theatre, where he remained in pantomime for two seasons. Mr. Costello has had considerable experience of pantomime work, having taken part in no fewer than thirteen, and he is now seriously contemplating renewing his active acquaintance with the fairy tales of the festive season. In his first "annual" he made such a decided hit as a comic woman that afterwards proprietors insisted on his playing a similar part. Should he return to pantomime, it is his intention to appear in male parts.

The song which really put Mr. Costello on a firm footing in his profession was "Comrades." At the time, it was whistled and sung by British soldiers all over the world, and even now few have forgotten the well-known lines—

Comrades, comrades, ever since we were boys,
Sharing each other's sorrows, sharing each other's joys.

What recollections do not these lines bring to the mind! And who has not hummed or even boldly sung the lines of another of Mr. Costello's popular ditties, "The ship I love"?

I'll stick to the ship, lads,
You save your lives;
I've no one to love me,
You've children and wives.

These two songs were from the pen of Mr. Felix McGlennon.

No doubt most of us have heard a facetious 'bus driver, even within the past few days, whistle as he passed a wedding party, "At Trinity Church I met my doom." This number was specially written for Mr. Costello by the late Fred Gilbert. Other notable songs which helped the subject of this interview to make a name for himself were "Mrs. Gottem," "I've worked eight hours this day," and "The Sheeny Coon"; while more recent successes have been "I've made up my mind to sail away," "Somebody's eyes are glistening," "Farewell, my little Yo-San," "The Ten-pound Note," the words and music being the work of Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. Mr. Costello's favourite song, and the one in which he considers he is seen and heard to best advantage, is "The Poor Old Clown," by Messrs. Mills and Everard; and this, along with "Good-bye, dear old London Town," are what he is entertaining audiences with at the present time.

"I'm an Irishman from Birmingham" says Mr. Costello in his breezy manner when a question is asked as to his origin. He claims to have originated certain styles of songs and business which have been extensively copied, notably, "His funeral's to-morrow," which gave birth to so many "grim-humour" songs, and "The Society Actor," with its novel idea of interruption from a member of the audience.

Charles Corona, now on his fifth tour with the Ormondes, has been playing in the North of Ireland. He was also the proprietor of Corona's Cadets, Youghal.

DEPARTURE OF MR. HARRY RICKARDS.

Mr. Harry Rickards left England yesterday on board the P. and O. s.s. Mooltan for Australia. Mrs. and Miss Rickards and Mr. Larkin (private secretary) accompanied him, and his remark to us a few hours before he left these shores was, "Thank God I'm going on board ship for Australia." Unfortunately, Mr. Rickards did not go away feeling in the best of health. Circumstances seem to have conspired to prevent the past three months he has spent in Europe being anything of the nature of an enjoyable holiday. He has been hard at work all the time, and has been permitted but little leisure. During this visit he has arranged more engagements of artists than in any previous year. To show what energetic efforts he has put forth within the brief space of twelve weeks, we may mention that he has booked attractions for five different theatres in Australia until 1909. We have already given the names of many variety artists whose services Mr. Rickards contracted for during the short time he has sojourned in this country, and a host of others could be mentioned who have been engaged to appear in various parts of Australia within the next three years.

But perhaps the most significant announcement that we have to make in these columns in regard to Mr. Rickards' undertakings is that he has secured the Criterion Theatre, Sydney, and there he intends to produce new dramatic pieces and revive old ones. This enterprise, he informs us, will have no bearing upon, nor will it interfere with, his other theatres or companies. He has purchased the Australian rights of several dramas, and has engaged a capable company of actors and actresses to present them. Among the ladies and gentlemen he is sending out to the Antipodes may be mentioned Mr. Sidney Howard, Miss Lillian Hallowes, Mr. Nelson Ramsey, Mr. Gordon Tomkins, Miss Kate Walbran, Mr. George Mumford, Mr. J. Wilcox, Miss Pearl Keats, and Mr. Harold West, who will open at the Sydney Criterion in the drama, Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Rickards' knowledge of the theatrical tastes of the Australian people is so intimate and so thorough, and his previous ventures have proved so highly successful, that one would not predict other than good fortune for his latest enterprise in the direction of the legitimate stage.

Mr. Rickards is nothing if not up to date, and recognising how popular cinematographic pictures have become in this country, he has purchased more than £1,000 worth of machines and films and other contrivances appertaining to the business. This means that, at the least, and in Mr. Rickards' theatres, if in no others, the very latest subjects will be shown. Mr. Rickards has also bought some magnificent dresses designed by Mr. Percy Anderson.

Mr. Rickards met with a disagreeable experience last Wednesday. He had travelled up to Walhamgreen to see a music hall "act," and had returned to Frascati's to have supper along with his wife and Mr. Tom Pacey. After leaving the restaurant, Mr. Rickards happened to be crossing the road opposite the Oxford in Tottenham Court-road, when, on turning round to say good-bye to a friend, he was suddenly run into by a bicyclist, who knocked him down and fell on top of him. The cyclist, it appears, got up, coolly mounted his machine, and rode off. When Mr. Rickards endeavoured to raise himself he discovered that the shock of the impact and the fall had rendered him extremely weak, and he fell back again, and narrowly escaped being run over by a motor-omnibus. He was assisted to the pavement, however, and reached home without further mishap, although we are informed that he still suffers from pain on the side of the body on which he fell, and his nerves are still a little bit out of order. However, we entertain the hope that a pleasant sea voyage will make him as fit as a fiddle, and that he may reach home with renewed health and vigour.

DEATH OF HARRY BURNELL.

Another clever young artist has been struck down in the full flush of a successful career, and it was with great regret that we learnt, in the early part of the week, the sad news of the death of Harry Burnell, the youngest son of the late Joseph Jee, the eldest brother of the celebrated Jee family. Harry, with his three brothers, Joe, Fred, and Bert, formed the combination known as the Burnells, and commenced his career as a music-hall comedian and baton manipulator, with them at the Metropolitan at the age of ten, in a sketch known as Things, Bits, and Pieces, in which versatility and smartness were everything. Since that time their act, advantageously altered, extended, and developed, has been played at the principal Palaces, Empires, and Hippodromes throughout the United Kingdom. The deceased gentleman, who succumbed to an acute attack of pneumonia on Saturday, was playing with his brothers and partners on the previous Saturday at the Hippodrome, Boscombe, in the sketch, On the Links. He died at the residence of his brother, Seth Egbert, whose grief is shared by his brothers, the Burnells, Fred Maple (of the Maples), and his sister, Mrs. Charles Avolo (of the Musical Avolos). The deceased artist, whose full name was Henry William Jee, was engaged last Christmas in the production of Cinderella at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham.

The funeral, which was excellently carried out by Mr. Theo. Dunkley, took place on Wednesday, the cortège leaving 277, Coldharbour-lane, Brixton, at one o'clock, and arriving at Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting, at 1.45. The mourners seated in the first coach were the deceased's brothers, Joe Jee, Bert Jee (of the Burnells), Seth Jee, Albert Jee (Brothers Egbert), Mrs. Charles Avolo (sister), and Mrs. E. Bryer (Seth Jee's mother-in-law). The second coach was occupied by Mrs. Joe Jee, Mrs. Seth Jee, Miss Lillie Bryer, Andy Deans (Burnell), James Naylor, and Victor Petite (brother-in-law to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jee—the Maples). Mr. Fred Herbert and Mr. Fred Mason were also at the graveside to represent the Variety Artists' Federation. The deceased was buried in the family grave, where his father and mother already are resting.

The coffin nestled among lovely blooms, and beautiful wreaths were sent by the following relatives and friends:—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jee (Burnell), Mr. and Mrs. Seth Jee (Egbert), Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jee (Egbert), Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jee (The Maples), Bert Jee ,and Mrs. Charles Avolo. Miss Maud Laurie (Laurie Sisters), Mrs. Bryer, Miss L. Bryer, George Bryer, and Mr. James Naylor. James H. Jee (uncle), Miss Blanch Benham, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryer, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Holloway, Andy Deans (Burnell), The Harvey Boys, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Mills (John Dewar's representative), Mr. H. Ebden, Mr. H. Gillette (Kelly and Gillette), Mr. H. W. Wieland and family, Mr. and Mrs. Peachy, Mr. and Mrs. W. Keen (of Keen and Waller), Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Vandyke, Mr. and Mrs. Button, Miss May, Miss Nellie Sheldon, the V.A.F., and others.

It was with much regret that Mrs. Albert Jee, at the last moment, had to give up her intention to be present among the mourners, She had travelled to town from Liverpool in order to be at the graveside, but was taken suddenly and seriously ill. The doctors announced her malady to be peritonitis, and an immediate operation was decided on at St. Thomas Hospital. We regret to to say that it proved fatal, the unfortunate lady dying on Thursday evening.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Aug. 7.—Miss Tittell Brune returned to Her Majesty's on the 4th, and had an enthusiastic reception in Dorothy Vernon. Miss Brune scored highly in her impersonation of the impetuous daughter of Sir George Vernon. The choleric baronet had a strong representative in Mr. J. B. Atholwood. Mr. Thomas Kingston was a manly Sir John Manners, with clear, incisive enunciation. Mr. Gaston Mervale's Malcolm Vernon was a pronounced and clever portrait. Miss Susie Vaughan, a sterling actress, presented Queen Bess to everybody's satisfaction. Miss Clara Stephenson as Lady Vernon was conspicuous; and Miss Helen Ferguson portrayed Mary Stuart most acceptably. A fine character-study came from Mr. Maurice Dudley as Perkin. Smaller parts were sustained by Misses Nellie Calvin and Irby Marshall, and Messrs. T. W. Lloyd, Vivian Edwards, Harry Sweeney, Stanley Walpole, Lawrence Hardinge, and Frank Harcourt. The play was staged by Mr. J. W. Hazlitt, and the orchestra directed by Mr. H. Diederichsen.

Mr. Bland Holt revived In London Town at the Royal on the 4th, with the same cast as before, and Mr. John Brunton's beautiful English scenery. Mr. and Mrs. Bland Holt looked after the fun of the story, and Mr. Walter Baker and Miss Frances Ross supply the heroics. Messrs. Albert Norman and Charles Brown attend to the villainy; and Mr. Styan, Miss Harrie Ireland, Miss Jennie Pollock, and Mr. Max Maxwell complete the cast.

The Tivoli has an exceptionally strong bill; in fact, the biggest which Mr. Harry Rickards has given his critics for some time. The list includes Kelly and Agnes, Baby Watson, Little Cliff, Nita Leete, Lillieth Leyton, Olive Lenton, Vasco, Brinn, Alexandra and Bertie, Lewis Sisters, Percy Clark, Arthur Elliott, Alice Fane, Elsie Brown, Maud Faning, Tom Dawson, George Bentley, and Howard Hall. A new first part is introduced, including Romany scenes and costumes.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers are crowding the Queen's Hall with their singing and beautiful views of Queen Victoria's marriage in Madrid.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 7.—Princess's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. R. G. Knowles; Business-Manager, Mr. W. J. Lincoln).—After a most successful season of seven nights, Mr. Knowles made his final appearance on Saturday evening last, when he repeated his performance, entitled "Trifles that trouble the traveller." During the evening, Mr. Knowles sang several songs, including "On the benches in the Park," the song which made his name when he first appeared in Melbourne some ten years ago. He also contributed some selections on the banjo in first-class style.

Her Majesty's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—The Squaw Man has entered upon its last four nights, and, in consequence, there was a packed house on Saturday evening. Mr. Charles Waldron and the rest of his capable company appear to advantage in their various rôles. The mounting of the piece is on a lavish scale. On Friday evening next, the last night of the present season, The Christian will be staged.

Theatre Royal (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The highly-sensational melodrama, entitled Honour Thy Father, was produced here on Saturday evening, and served to draw an enormous house. The piece is mounted with the same care to detail which characterises all Mr. Anderson's productions. Mr. Laurance Dunbar made a satisfactory Duncan Bly, his acting at times reaching a high level. Miss Eugenie Duggan was winsome and sweet as Mercy Merry. Jack Halyard was effectively played by Mr. George Cross; and Mr. Edmund Duggan made an excellent Gabriel Garth. Other characters were well sustained by Mr. Edwin Campbell, Mr. Temple Harrison, and Miss Lena Langdride.

Opera House (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon). — The programme presented at this theatre continues to attract large audiences. On Saturday night there was an excellent house, and the different turns were cordially received. Raleigh and May have established themselves as firm favourites; Blake and Granby appeared in a new sketch, entitled The Late Lamented, which kept the house in roars of laughter; Seymour and Dupré repeated their clever entertainment; and interesting turns were presented by the Two Colliers, Brothers Phillips, Nellie Kilburn, Irving Sayles, Fred Bluett, and a host of others. On Wednesday evening Agustin and Hartley will make their first appearance, in a novel barrel act.

SKETCH DISPUTE SETTLED.

Mr. Walter Gibbons was summoned before Mr. Fenwick at Bow-street on Monday for having unlawfully kept the Holborn Empire for the public performance of a stage play, from July 16 to 21, without the authority or licence of the Lord Chamberlain, contrary to the statute of the 6th and 7th Victoria, cap. 68.

Mr. Bodkin said he had been instructed to support the summons on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association, but it would not be necessary to trouble the magistrates with it beyond explaining how it came before him. The proceedings were taken under the Theatres Act of 1845, which made it an offence to produce a stage play in a place not authorised for the performance of stage plays. A stage play, as defined under the Act, included every known form of theatrical representation.

The defendant was the responsible proprietor of the Holborn Empire, where a piece, which could probably be described as a comedy, was produced on the days mentioned. It took between fifty-five and sixty minutes to present, and had some eight or nine speaking parts. The act was one of those which might be put into force by an interested class for their own protection, and the Theatrical Managers' Association had agreed with some of the music-hall proprietors that they would not interfere in the case of sketches which did not exceed thirty minutes, and had not more than six speaking parts; not more than one sketch of this character to be given at any one performance, although a small sketch, of not more than fifteen minutes' duration, might be presented at the same entertainment. The Act drew no distinction between a play and a sketch.

Mr. Gibbons, the defendant in this case, had now recognised that such limits were desirable, and he regretted that they had been exceeded in the piece mentioned in the summons. He had, moreover, agreed that in future no stage play of any such duration should be produced in any hall in which he was interested. Under these circumstances the Theatrical Managers' Association asked permission to withdraw the summons.

Mr. Fenwick: Has Mr. Gibbons anything to say?

Mr. Gibbons (from the body of the court): No, sir, except that I agree with what counsel has said.

Mr. Fenwick: Then the summons is withdrawn.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, SEPT. 5.—His House in Order, splendidly acted by Mr. John Drew and his capable company scored an emphatic success at the Empire Theatre last Monday. It was the opening of the season at Mr. Charles Frohman's beautiful playhouse, and a large and brilliant audience attended the first performance. Mr. Drew's appearance is always a matter of great interest to the theatre-going public, and his present engagement gains additional importance from the fact that in Mr. Pinero's play he has the strongest and most interesting part that he has played for a number of years. Miss Margaret Illington appeared as the despised but finally triumphant wife, Nina, and her performance could hardly be excelled. There was prolonged applause at the close of the third act, and Mr. Drew and Miss Illington appeared and reappeared a dozen times.

MR. WILLIAM H. CRANE, forsaking comedy for the nonce, is acting a serious part in The Price of Money, a four-act play by Alfred Sutro, recently produced at the Garrick Theatre. Under the title of The Perfect Lover, the piece was presented in London last year at the Imperial Theatre. Mr. Crane is an experienced actor who does everything well, and as his personal popularity is great the play will no doubt serve his purpose for one season at least. Mr. Abingdon does some excellent work as the money-worshipping brother. Miss Margaret Dale is sincere and natural as the unhappy wife. Mr. F. Owen Baxter plays the comedy part of John Collis very cleverly. Mr. Walter Hitchcock is manly and convincing as Lord Cardew, and Miss Olive Oliver scores a distinct success as the Hon. Susan Lesson.

MR. HENRY E. DIXEY has opened the Lyric Theatre with a revival of The Man on the Box, the comedy in which he appeared with signal success last season.

"THE LITTLE STRANGER," by Michael Morton, is Mr. James K. Hackett's first offering at the playhouse, of which he is the new manager, and which he has renamed the Hackett Theatre, the house having been formerly known as the Lew Fields Theatre. Mr. Morton's farce was produced here on the 28th ult., under the joint management of Mr. Hackett and Mr. Frank Curzon, and its reception justifies the prediction that it will be as successful in New York as it was in London. Master Edward Garratt gives a strikingly clever and amusing embodiment of the baby endowed with the soul of a man, and the other characters, enacted with one or two exceptions by the company which originally produced the piece in London, are all cleverly rendered. Mr. A. G. Poulton, as the baby's maternal grandfather, Sir George Peacock; Miss Dora Hole, as the hysterical nurse; and Mr. Charles Goold as Eames, the butler, are fully alive to their numerous opportunities for fun-making; while Mr. Athol Stewart, as Captain Dick Allenby, Miss Kate Osborne as Mrs. Allenby, and Miss May Blayney as Effie Peacock are also effective.

DALY'S THEATRE was lately reopened under the management of Mr. Frank McKee, and a new musical comedy called Marrying Mary was performed for the first time, Miss Marie Cahill being the bright particular star of the production. Mr. Edwin Milton Royle wrote the book, and Mr. Silvio Hein composed the music. The story deals with the complications caused by the frequent divorces of the heroine, Mary Montgomery, played with delightful humour and vivacity by Miss Cahill, whose well-rendered songs are always in demand. Mr. Eugene Cowles, the favourite basso of the Bostonians, has a prominent part, and his fine voice is heard to advantage in a solo. Mr. Roy Atwell sings a capital number, "Old Noah knew a thing or two," and Mr. William Courtleigh distinguishes himself for the first time as a musical comedian.

As Richard Weatherby, the "bad" brother, Mr. Hawtrey has a part that suits him to perfection, but the play is considered too "thin" to be spread over three acts, and fails to hold the interest of the audience when Mr. Hawtrey is not in view. Mr. St. Clair Bayfield, Mr. Hall McAllister, Miss May Tully, and Miss Kate Denin Wilson play prominent parts well.

MR. LEW FIELDS, who is now under the management of the Shuberts, is running a lively and diverting "show," and one that is very pretty withal, entitled About Town, at the Herald-square Theatre, which has just been added to the ever-increasing list of Shubert playhouses. The book is by Joseph Herbert and the music by Melville Ellis and Raymond Hubbell, the piece being produced by that clever inventor of novel and pretty effects, Mr. Julian Mitchell. One of the best features is a stirring refrain, "When Tommy Atkins marries Dolly Gray," at the end of the first act, a contingent of the chorus, dressed as British redcoats, marching arm-in-arm with a company of American cadets, while the English and American colours are displayed. Mr. Fields is amusing in his own inimitable way as Baron Blitz, a "genteel cabdriver," and he is supported by such a clever company of fun-makers that the merriment never flags. Mr. Lawrence Grossmith, as the heiress-hunting Duke of Slushington, from Piccadilly, makes a good deal of his part, his song "The Piccadilly Crawl," with a fetching chorus, being one of the best numbers. Others who are important factors in the success of the entertainment are Harry Fisher, as Bertie, a would-be boulevardier from Pittsburg; George Beban, as a French Marquis with the duelling habit; Edna Wallace Hopper, as Fannie Frivol, with three notes in her voice, "none of them endorsed"; Joseph Herbert, as a Scotch Laird; Louise Dresser, as Gertrude, the Gibson Girl; Elita Proctor Otis, as Mrs. Frivol; and Louise Allen Collier, as Lottie Limejuice, a chorus girl.

MISS HILDA SPONG is appearing at the head of her own company at Weber's Theatre in a three-act comedy by Harold Heaton, called Lady Jim. This is one of Mr. Walter N. Lawrence's productions. The scenes of the comedy are laid in England, and the title refers to Lady Jemima Wilson, familiarly known as Lady Jim. She has a niece who is engaged to a young Londoner, Geoffrey Northrup, whom Lady Jim has never met. Taking a trip to London on the quiet to see what sort of a man her niece is to marry, she finds in his apartment a table set for two and a lady's cloak. Then Geoffrey's troubles begin. He gets his male servant to dress as a woman and presents him to Lady Jim as his "aunt." This does not satisfy her, so Geoffrey locks her in his apartment and flies away to see his fiancée and "square things" before Auntie gets there. But the engagement is broken, and the surprise comes when Lady Jim marries Geoffrey herself, being impelled, apparently, by a consuming desire to find out "who owned that cloak."

MISS SPONG plays Lady Jim with so much aplomb that she almost makes the character a plausible one. Prominent in her support are Messrs. Charles Harbury, Lionel Walsh, and Herbert Percy; and Miss Leila Repton.

MISS LOTTIE COLLINS'S dramatic song, "A Marriage of Convenience," has held the big houses at the Holborn Empire spellbound during the week. It is by George Arthurs and Orlando Powell.

MR. J. W. ELLISON, who was married on the 8th inst. at Margate, by special licence, to Miss Ada Isabel Palmer, is opening on Monday next at the Palace, Grimsby. The happy pair were the recipients of many handsome presents, and the telegraph was busy with congratulatory messages from members of the profession everywhere in these islands.

"THE DUCHESS OF TOOTING."

A new Musical Comedy "Feu-de-joie," in one act. Book, lyrics, and music by George Sheldon, produced for the first time in London at the Holborn Empire, on Monday, Sept. 10.

Silas Cash ..... MR. ERNEST SPALDING
Charles Cash ..... MR. HENRY LATIMER
Fitzroy Fitzherbert ..... MR. ERIC DALVERE
Peter ..... MISS RHODA PAUL
The Duchess of Tooting.... MISS DORA HERITAGE
Rosa Latour ..... MISS JOSIE FARRINGTON

Mr. Sidney Bacon, who is responsible for the production of this bright little musical sketch, can be fairly congratulated on the success which has attended its first performances in London. The Duchess of Tooting belongs to a class of piece which, on their merits, deserve to receive a warm welcome at the variety halls. Here there is surely plenty of room for musical comedy in tabloid form; but, of course, to ensure successful results, the production must be complete in every detail. Happily, this condition is fulfilled by the new production, which forms one of the leading attractions in the programme at the Holborn Empire this week. The author of the book and composer of the music, Mr. George Sheldon, has done his double work exceedingly well; and the piece has been staged in a manner that gives complete satisfaction. The scene is the Hôtel du Monde, Montpelier. Amongst the guests here are Charles Cash and his newly-wedded wife, a favourite young music-hall artist. But the happiness of the bridegroom is clouded by a letter he has just received from his father, a wealthy manufacturer, congratulating him on having married the Duchess of Tooting, and enclosing a handsome wedding present of a cheque for £10,000. It appears that Charles's wife has been popularly known as "the Duchess of Tooting," on account of a comic song of that title which she had successfully sung; and hence the old gentleman's mistake. Mr. Cash, sen., is expected at the hotel to convey his congratulations in person to the newly-married couple, and his son is greatly perplexed how to find a way out of the difficulty. However, at the suggestion of his sharp-witted wife, Rosa, Charles's friend, Fitzroy Fitzherbert, is induced, after the manner of Lord Babbicombe, in Charley's Aunt, to impersonate the Duchess, while Rosa represents the daughter of twenty-three, who, according to "Debrett," her ladyship, a widow, possesses. The elder Cash duly arrives, and is introduced to the supposed Duchess of Tooting, and her daughter. But the plotters had not reckoned on the presence at the hotel of the real Duchess, a middle-aged lady, with grey hair and a very determined manner. Her unexpected appearance on the scene naturally leads to some comical complications; but the elder Cash is apparently satisfied with the explanations given, and even boasts that he was all the time aware of the deception.

Miss Josie Farrington gives a refined and graceful embodiment of the bride, and sings in charming style. Mr. Ernest Latimer plays well as Charles Cash; while the wealthy manufacturer has a capital exponent in Mr. Ernest Spalding. Mr. Eric Dalvere is an active and humorous representative of Fitzroy Fitzherbert, the so-called Duchess causing much laughter by the difficulties experienced in the management of her skirts. Miss Rhoda Paul is very brisk as Peter, a page boy; and Miss Dora Heritage is duly dignified and commanding as the real Duchess. A good chorus, and the introduction of some graceful dancing by a number of good-looking young ladies adds to the attractions of this well-played and well-produced little piece.

Amongst the general company engaged here is Mr. Will Evans in his quaint impersonation of the Spanish dancing lady, with her curious and comical corps de ballet. Mr. Geo. Gilbey gives his highly amusing experiences as a goalkeeper at a football match; the Eight English Roses excel as speciality dancers; Miss Lottie Collins sings a couple of songs, and meets with a flattering reception; Mr. Alex Lukos scores with his "Pictures in the Fire"; Jack and Evelyn are seen to advantage in a speciality act; the Columbia Comedy Trio are exceedingly good; and Morney and Holbein, comedians and dancers; Ella Shields, comedienne; the Clarks; Queenie May; Herbert La Martini, comedian and dancer; and the Imperial Bioscope, depicting the Cambridge and Harvard boat race, are other attractions in the bill.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Although, under the wise and capable management of Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, "good business" is the rule, and not the exception, at this handsome house, it is questionable if that gentleman himself anticipated such overwhelming crowds of delighted spectators as have been cheering his heart this week. Even on Monday night, before word could possibly have "gone round the town," the crowds were enormous, and at the second house several hundreds of would-be patrons had to be refused even standing-room. It would be unfair to put this state of affairs down to the sudden cool "snap," in the face of such an alluring bill, but we may say with safety that the two combined to produce the highly-gratifying result.

In a programme so full of good things it may seem invidious to select one item for extraordinary mention; but truth compels us to relate that the first appearance on these boards of Miss May Henderson was the occasion, on Monday evening, of a remarkable demonstration. Miss Henderson was well received when she first came on, and at the end of her second song had to appear no fewer than five times in response to the plaudits of her admirers. And this at the "first house." The magnetic lady seemed delighted with the warmth of her reception, and spared no effort to win the suffrages of her audience. An artist who is always popular here, Mr. George Leyton, after singing in his own robust style about "Wit, Women, and Wine," submitted his latest success, "The Wreck of the Birkenhead." The fine declamation of the artist is here given full scope for display, and, the whole episode being charmingly rendered, is generously applauded. The Sisters Stratton are attractive burlesque artists and dancers, their efforts in the latter line being particularly neat and pretty. Mr. Walter Stanley is a good comedian, and his two songs, "Wait till you get to know my father" and "I'm glad I live in England," are both received with a roar. An exceptionally bright and merry farce, Aunt Matilda, is performed in rattling good style by Frank Elliston and company. In this a breezy young man, up to his ears in debt and love, has a letter from an aunt announcing her intention of leaving him her money if he proves to be "worthy," thinks that his friend, Charlie, is impersonating the lady, and proceeds to buffet and bamboozle the poor lady herself. The result is most mirth-provoking. Smartly written and capitally acted, Aunt Matilda has come to stay. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is quite on the spot with pictures of the great boat race of last Saturday; a smart piece of work, well carried out. The long sketch of the evening is The Little Stowaway, played by Arden and Abel's company. The interesting and pathetic story is followed with the greatest attention, and every point tells. It is played by a large crowd of clever people, some of the minor characters—notably the unfortunate lad temporarily afflicted with mal de mer, being very well played. The mounting of the piece is quite satisfactory. F. Von Suppé's tuneful "Poet and Peasant" overture, under the direction of Mr. H. Petersen, plays in the audience; while Mr. John Grant's stage-management is excellent.

MRS. J. DEE HUMPHREYS wishes to publicly thank Mr. Harry Lester for the great interest and assistance he gave in collecting money for her fund.

THE QUEEN OF COINS.

Mlle. Talma is well-known as a member of the famous trio, Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, the world's monarchs of magic, whose wonderful "laughing" show is the talk of the hemispheres. Mlle. Talma's vitality in this entertainment is nothing more or less than marvellous, and when she appears amongst the audience of a theatre she positively electrifies people by the rapidity of her movements and the cleverness displayed in the many and varied tricks performed so immediately contiguous to them.

In private life this merry and effervescent artist is Mrs. Servais Le Roy, and it is to her husband she owes much of her talent. She says: "He taught me how to conjure, you know. At first I'm afraid I was rather underhanded. I used to watch Mr. Le Roy do his tricks, and afterwards—when he was off the stage—try to forage them out myself. After a time I began to pick up a few, and Mr. Le Roy, discovering I could palm, began instructing me. So it happened that coins, billiard balls, and even eggs came in for my careful study and treatment, and under the guidance of Mr. Le Roy, who believes in everything being done with minute precision, I speedily mastered the rudiments of the art of deceiving the public by dexterity and speed."

Mlle. Talma's first real engagement as a single performer was at the Oxford Music Hall some few years back, when her talents placed her immediately in the front rank, and the Press and public were enthusiastic over her turn. During the last several years she has travelled pretty well all over the world, and her admirers may be counted by the thousand everywhere.

Personality on the stage is three-fourths of the business, and Talma may be said to possess that extraordinary magnetism which never fails to attract an audience of any nationality. It is a strange truism that merit in a public performer is of little avail if personality is indifferent or undecided. Therefore, when an artist is gifted with genius and personality it will be at once conceded that the results are of a most satisfying description to both the artist and the public.

Talma is a native of London, although she has spent a considerable portion of her life in the States, and it is perhaps due to this fact that many people imagine she is an American by birth.

MR. ARTHUR CONQUEST AS CHADI.

The North American pantomime, entitled The Sioux, which is one of the principal attractions at the Euston this week, may be included in the limited number of pieces which can always be revived with a certainty that they will meet with a favourable reception without having to depend upon the charm of novelty. It is some years ago since The Sioux was first played in this country, but it has always been a favourite production with variety hall audiences. The scene represents a settlement in the backwoods of America, and the little household includes amongst its inmates an ape known as Chadi, whose intelligence is only equalled by his agility and strength. While the head of the family is away on a hunting expedition, a number of Sioux Indians on the war path make their appearance. Amidst a scene of great excitement Chadi takes charge of the unprotected child—his much-loved playmate—and, making good use of his agility as a climber, places her in a position of safety. In the fight which ensues Chadi is mortally wounded, and dies in the presence of the little child he has saved from death.

Mr. Arthur Conquest, inheriting the family genius for the clever impersonation of animal characters—middle-aged playgoers who witnessed George Conquest's man-monkey in For Ever at the Surrey are not likely ever to forget it—is, of course, the real attraction of the piece as Chadi, the ape, who, speechless though he be, is by far the most prominent personage in the story. To be able to thoroughly interest an audience in a part in which the actor is entirely restricted to expressive pantomime and agile action is no ordinary achievement, but Mr. Conquest has completely mastered the difficulties which have, of necessity, to be encountered in the representation of an animal character, and a truly remarkable portrayal is the result. We have to take it for granted that Chadi displays an intelligence that is certainly superior to that of the ordinary ape; but this does not detract one iota from the merits of the performance, and unquestionably adds to its interest. Having admitted that Chadi is an extraordinary specimen of his kind, yet it will be found that his representative gives a wonderfully close imitation of the ape that has been subjected to the powerful influences of constant companionship with human beings, and become a harmless, trustworthy, domestic favourite. Chadi's pet playmate is the little daughter of the house, and these two enjoying a frolic together is quite a delightful picture. Chadi constitutes himself the child's guardian, and, as the dénouement shows, is ready to defend her at the cost of his own life. The affection and fidelity displayed by the ape are quite touching; but it is only a clever animal actor that could make these human-like qualities so manifest and so real. The pathos of the death scene is sufficient to bring tears to the eyes of the experienced hardened playgoer, who has even sat unmoved when the melodramatic heroine has been in the most dire distress and danger. Mr. Arthur Conquest accomplishes an arduous and difficult task with triumphant results; and when at length the curtain falls on the affecting death scene, he is enthusiastically recalled to bow his acknowledgments. Mr. Conquest has the support of an excellent company, but as their names do not appear on the programme, we are unable to mention them individually. But we may add that the representative of the chief of the Sioux affords most valuable assistance, and a comic rôle is also smartly played. The little girl who plays the child part is charmingly natural. The entrance and dance of the Indians are very effectively worked, and the sketch is carefully staged in every detail.

AMUSEMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Dairymaids, Mr. Robert Courtneidge's popular production, is meeting with much success here. The scenery, dresses, and music are exceedingly fine, and the cast also is excellent. Miss Edith Blanche represents Lady Brudenell with fine art and vivacity; the nephews, Sam and Frank Brudenell, are depicted in spirited style by Messrs. E. Statham Staples and George Desmond; Mr. Alec Fraser acquits himself finely as Capt. Fred Leverton; Mr. Clarence Blackiston acts with humour as Dr. O'Bryne; Mr. Harry Dent's comicalities as Joe Mivens are on a high scale of excellence; the dairymaids, Peggy and Winifred, are made the most of by the Misses Violet Lloyd and Rhoda Gordon, both these ladies proving charming actresses and accomplished vocalists, &c.; Miss Beryl Vaudrey shares in the applause as Helene; Miss Madge Avery scores with a fine character-sketch of Miss Penelope Pyechase; and Miss Nelly Beryl acts the part of the country serving-maid, Eliza, with a keen appreciation of its humour. The Sandow-Gibson girls and innumerable others enhance the production with their attractive looks and talents.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Lion and the Mouse is represented here by Mr. Walter Maxwell's company. Miss Christine Silver scores as the "mouse," Shirley Rossmore, her brilliant acting in the crucial scene bringing down enthusiastic applause on a most tense situation; Mr. Leslie Carter shares largely in the success as the "lion," otherwise Ryder, the financier, gauging the character most accurately. Mr. Stephen Wentworth presents the son in a favourable light; Mr. J. W. Mackie impersonates the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley with perfect self-possession; Mr. Geo. Lyttleton is praiseworthy as Mr. Rossmore; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon acts as Mrs. Ryder with fitting self-repression; and Miss Maude Townsend as Mrs. Rossmore, Mr. Richard Norton as Alfred Stott, Mr. Jno. Wheatman as J. Whitmore Roberts, Miss Dorrie Roberts as Kate Roberts, and several others contribute most ably.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The Dandy Doctor is courting favour here with a strong company under the supervision of the author, Mr. Edward Marris. Mr. Marris himself keeps the house rocking with laughter at the escapades of the millionaire, Melchisadek Brown; Miss Florence Smithers as Jane, the "slavey," once more proves her excellent low comedy powers; Miss Effie Vincent invests the rôle of Ivy Pendred with many charming qualities; Mr. Ion Maxwell commands much attention as the lover, Arthur Vandyke; Mr. Leslie Martin stimulates the humour of the piece as the dude, Bertie Bolinbroke; Mr. Herbert Pearce shines as the gallant colonel; and Miss Dolly Payne as Henson, Miss Rosie Chandler as Marie Burton, and others, including the Dandy Bells, the Dutch Girls, and the Yeoman Male Voice Quartette, invest the production with a sparkle and vivacity which endures to the end.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris. Felton.—Driven from Home is played here with an excellent company provided by Mr. Andrew Melville. Mr. Fredk. Sandy, under whose able management the play is presented, undertakes the heavy lead, Geoffrey Waring, with the most conspicuous success; that favourite and experienced actor, Mr. Felix Pitt, puts in valuable work as Anthony Raybrook; Miss Frances Ruttledge beguiles the audience of both tears and applause with her pathetic acting in the dual rôle; Mr. Percy Dawsone submits a clever study of the outcast, Willie; Miss Florence Trevoir is eminently successful as Barbara Ashdown; and some clever acting is vouchsafed by Mr. Clement Wakefield as Walter Hatherleigh, Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez Thomas, and Mr. Jno. Brooks as Dick Saunders. The comedy parts of John Anderson and Margaret Bailey are cleverly sustained by Mr. A. E. Mann and Miss Evelyn Marrable, while Mr. Henry Helling as Adam Marley and Miss Madge Muriel as Jane are also successful.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Streets of Birmingham is presented here by Mr. Andrew Melville, who has gathered together a capable company, appearing himself with the greatest possible success as Badger. Mr. Fred A. Marston acts as the villainous banker, Gideon Crawley, in a plausible and otherwise clever style; Miss Rose Ralph invests the rôle of Lucy Fairweather with charming dignity and pathos; Miss Jessie Yatman acts with clever humour as the love-sick Dan; Mr. Chas. Langton acts well as the lover, Mark Livingstone; Mr. Albert Guyon doubles the rôles of Capt. and Paul Fairweather in a discriminating manner; Mr. J. Hindle Taylor as Puffy, and Miss Bella Power as Mrs. Puffy prove exceedingly popular; Miss Mabel Mannering appears in the proud and haughty manner of Alida Crawley very successfully; and Mr. Hubert Hickey as Tim Doolan, and numerous others contribute to this popular revival, which is well equipped with local scenery and new music.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Saturday Night in London is the attraction here, being exceedingly well portrayed by Mr. Matt Wilkinson and company. Mr. Wilkinson makes a decisive hit in the rôle of the nondescript, Jack Dorrincourt; and Miss Beatrice Wilkinson lends him clever support as Polly Hawkins. Mrs. Matt Wilkinson figures creditably as Sarah Shabner; and Miss May Healy as Maud Somerton, and Miss Gwendoline Hastings as Mona Clayton act with much ability. Mr. C. Cameron is successful as Sir Jasper Wilton; Mr. Monson Thorpe shines as the son, Roy Wilton; and Mr. S. Burgess as Edward Mordaunt, Mr. Herbert Sidney as Abram Shabner, and many others, including the Two Bowery Boys, who impersonate Badger Purvis and the Houndsditch Chicken, lend versimilitude to the varying scenes of this interesting play.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Her Luck in London appeared for the first time here on Monday, when it obtained for Mr. George Kirk's company quite an ovation. Miss Mary Neil deservedly carried off principal honours with her emotional and truly versatile acting as the heroine; Miss Florrie Groves furnished a clever flow of humour as Maud Gladys Shovepenny; Miss Ada Roscoe brought out the characteristics of Mme. Gabrielle in a most able manner; Miss Frances Bruce represented the virtuous Lilian with much dignity; Mr. G. Langdon depicted the villain, Lenowen, in a cleverly dramatic style; Mr. C. A. Leicester acted as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor in a sturdy manner that gained him much applause; and Mr. Tyrone Power as Stephen Harborne, and Mr. Douglas Tremayne as the Curate were quite adequate to these rôles. Mr. J. Telly Dillsen and Mr. Bruce Clapham scored in the comedy element.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Harry Randall is attracting packed houses here with new songs, which are repeatedly encored. The Harmony Four also come in for a good share of applause; Lee, Bentley, and company have an amusing sketch, Mable B; Takio is a Japanese mimic of exceptional ability; "Buddha's Blackboard" is full of mystery; the Harrison Bros. and the Grisse Trio of pantomimists are full of humour; and Mona McDonald and Carrie Joy are attractive comediennes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Bank Clerks is being presented here this week by Mr. Charles Baldwin's Pantomimic Comedians. The absurdity is highly amusing. The Sisters Aindow are responsible for a musical entertainment of a high order; Georgina Leonard, Connie Williams, and Maud Ford are all successfulfff Martin Conway makes a hit with his songs, and other attractions are the Four Olympian Stars, Johnson and Best, the Askers, and Walker and May.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A new musical extravaganza, Office Hours, is the principal item here. It is full of humour, and is presented under the direction of Messrs. Corri and Dereve. Rosina Caselli, with her well-trained Mexican dogs, is always a draw; Emil Amiel is an expert contortionist; and Cribb and Cribb, Harry Thurston, J. P. Dan, Daisy Morrell, Rowland Hill, Mamie Iris, and Jack Pleasants complete the long programme.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Marie Santoi with her merry little Japs in the musical scena, A Japanese Tea Garden by Night, is responsible for an artistic production, which is well received. The Imperial Russian Vocalists and Dancers are loudly applauded; Cussac-Talma and Mlle. Yonne de Forge have an excellent illusory turn; Leonard and Francis are amusing comedians; Arthur Kennedy is applauded for his smart trick cycling; and other popular turns are Brown and Robinson, and James Toner.

DEATH OF GEORGES JACOBI.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Georges Jacobi, the well-known musical composer and conductor, who died on Thursday, at the age of sixty-six, at his residence in Camden-road from a paralytic stroke. Mr. Maurice Jacobi, his son, was with the deceased gentleman when he had the seizure.

The deceased composer was born in Berlin, and as a child of six began the study of the violin, having for masters Edward and Leopold Ganz. At the age of nine he proceeded to Brussels to receive tuition from De Bériot, and from Brussels he passed to Paris, where, through the instrumentality of Halévy, he was introduced to Auber, director of the Conservatoire. At the Conservatoire Jacobi distinguished himself, and in the year in which he came of age he won the first prize for violin playing. After leaving the Conservatoire, Mr. Jacobi obtained an engagement in the orchestra of the Paris Opera Comique, which he retained for two years, being then appointed first violin at the Grand Opera. Here he remained for nine years, also playing at numerous concerts, and organising a stringed orchestra, which gave extremely successful concerts in the city. In 1869 Mr. Jacobi left the Opera to become conductor at the Bouffes Parisiens, and soon afterwards visited London to arrange for the appearance of his orchestra in England. His visit led to an offer of the conductorship of the Alhambra, where he remained for twenty-six years. During that period he wrote the music for over a hundred ballets, many of which were reproduced in the chief cities of the Continent. His comedy-opera The Black Crook had a run of over 300 performances, and his music to the ballets of Ali Baba, The Golden Wreath, The Seasons, Titania, Lochinvar, Blue Beard, and La Tzigane won warm admiration and approval. He also composed the incidental music for the Lyceum productions of The Dead Heart and Robespierre, miscellaneous music for the violin, and many melodious songs. Mr. Jacobi was appointed a professor at the Royal College of Music in 1896, and two years later left the Alhambra, subsequently becoming director of the summer theatre at the Crystal Palace. When the London Hippodrome opened on Jan. 15, 1900, he was appointed chef d'orchestre, but resigned the position a year or so later. The Order of Isabel the Catholic was presented to him by the King of Spain; he was made an "Officier de l'Académie" by the French Government, and his English colleagues twice elected him president of the Association of Conductors. Mr. Jacobi's pleasant manner endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, and his death, which was quite unexpected, will be lamented in many different circles. He was often seen on first nights at the Alhambra, and was a frequent visitor to the Palace Theatre.

Georges Jacobi was the hero of many first nights, but we doubt if he ever appeared before such a brilliant audience as that assembled at the Alhambra on Thursday afternoon, May 12, 1898, when the musical, theatrical, and literary worlds came to do him honour; but if the gathering in the beautiful house was representative of the learned and artistic professions, what must we say of the brilliant entertainers who rallied round their comrade? It was one of those rare occasions when the late Sir Henry Irving and Mr. Dan Leno appeared on the same stage. During the afternoon the Alhambra, Palace, and Empire bands massed, and, under the bâton of the bénéficiaire, played the march specially composed by him for Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. The late M. Jules Riviere, then the doyen of conductors, led the orchestra during the afternoon. To Mr. James Fernandez was entrusted the task of reciting a special address written for the occasion by Bernard Malcolm Ramsay.

The above account is but the merest outline of a busy artistic life. In all, during his tenure of office at the Alhambra, he wrote no less than 103 ballets—a remarkable record in every way. For twenty-six years he brilliantly sustained the reputation of the home of ballet, and, though much of his music must of necessity have been of an ephemeral character, it was ever happily conceived, melodious, and delicately scored.

MISS LILY IRIS, who has hitherto been closely identified with the Gaiety Theatre, is this week appearing at the Hippodrome, Colchester, in a very pretty and refined scena, in which she has the assistance of a sextette of graceful young ladies, viz.:—Mesdames Marie Ashton, Marion Jackson, Lily Wakefield, Ivy Desmond, Elsie King, and Nellie Brownlee. Songs, dances, and poses are cleverly introduced, and the effect is charming, with the result that the applause is long and hearty. Miss Iris and her party will shortly depart for the Continent to fulfil a series of engagements at the principal cities, among which are Berlin, Vienna, and Buda-Pesth.

SPECIAL mention should be made of a benefit matinée at the Colchester Hippodrome on behalf of the Essex and Colchester Hospital, which, by the courtesy and material help of Mr. Ben de Frece, was so successful on Saturday last.

MISS JESSIE ELVIN is leaving town on Sunday for a short provincial tour with her successful romantic sketch, A Gipsy's Revenge, opening at the Palace, Rhyl. She returns to London on Nov. 19.

THE death has been reported of one of the two Brothers Egbert (the Happy Dustmen); we are pleased to say that both of the Happy Dustmen are alive.

THE annual cricket match between the Three Stags and the Hercules, Kennington-road, was played at Battersea Park on Thursday, and a most enjoyable day was spent, the teams being entertained by Mr. Sam Salter and Mr. Willson, the proprietors of these hostelries. The chief features of the game were the excellent batting and bowling of Mr. Kay, the fine batting of B. Williams, and the bowling of young J. P. Salter for the Three Stags; the batting and bowling of Johns and Garbe, and the bowling of L. S. Goldsmith for the Hercules. Cis Merrie stopped the hurricane deliveries of Kay behind the wickets.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

In the historical review given by the Rev. T. Horne at Gorton last week of the rise and progress of the Showmen's Guild but little was said (for time prevented) of the educational and religious work of the society. To do this part of the work justice would require as much space in our columns as that we have already given to the Trade Defence and Parliamentary work of the Guild, and this we will endeavour to do upon an occasion in the near future. We are very urgently reminded of this by an event that has attracted considerable attention in the Press, and one which shows the manifest elevation of the status of the showman in the eyes of the public.

The Rector of Killamarsh (the Rev. F. J. Metcalfe) makes a point of teaching his people the close connection between the Church and the village feast, and accordingly on Sunday he held a service in the fair ground, the choir and congregation marching thither headed by the cross-bearer. The Rector had a novel pulpit, standing on the steps of a switchback railway and delivering his sermon. Afterwards the fair people crowded round him to shake him by the hand.

At the Victoria Theatre, Evesham, this week, the following plays have been performed, viz., The Hidden Treasure, Flying from Justice, The Babes in the Wood, A Wife's Secret, The Mystery of the Great Red Ruby, and The Assassin.

Inkberrow is a village in Worcestershire, about twelve miles from Worcester, seven miles from Redditch, and nine from Droitwich. The Mop is held on Oct. 12. Shows, &c., are not allowed on the village green, but space can be had at the George Inn. The staple industries are agriculture and fruit-growing.

At Redditch we have Ediscope and Barnum's electric animated pictures, including the Warwick Pageant; also a grand company of star artists.

At the Webheath (near Redditch) Flower Show were Herbert's roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, bottle battery, and other attractions.

At the Public Hall, Redditch, we have had Mr. Carr Loates's company in the musical comedy drama, At the World's Mercy.

Alcester is a market town in Warwickshire, seven miles from Redditch, ten from Evesham, eight from Stratford-on-Avon; railways, Midland and Great Western. Population in 1901 was 2303. Industries: Needle-making, cycle works, flour mills, &c. Showmen and others wanting space in the street on Mop day should write to Mr. Wheeler, bill-poster. The Mop is on Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Showmen should stand in the street at Alcester on Mop day, not in a field outside the town. Give the tradesmen a chance; showmen will get on better for it.

Horse Sales, &c.—Sept. 21, sale of Shire horses at Alvechurch; Sept. 27, sale of 26 horses and colts at Binton, Stratford-on-Avon; Oct. 1, sale of horses at Wilmcote, Stratford-on-Avon; Oct. 2, Shire horse show and sale at Moreton-in-Marsh; Oct. 10, sale of 300 horses at Cattle Market, Worcester; Oct. 16, Shipston-on-Stour bull roast and pleasure fair.

Horwich autumn fair is in full swing here, and is being well patronised. Messrs. Holland's coker-sheets and swings, Mr. J. Butterworth's whoa-Emmas, Mr. Taylor's shooting-gallery and galloping-horses, Mr. J. Sharp's shooting-gallery and juvenile swings and horses, are among the concerns on the ground.

Mr. Joseph Study is still doing first-class business on the Cattle Market ground, Reading.

James Jennings's galloping horses and side shows are to be a leading attraction at a monster political fête to-day at Hartham Park, Corsham, the seat of Sir John Dickson Poynder, M.P.

Jennings's galloping horses, shooting galleries, and cokernut shies attended a grand hospital fête at Weston, Bath, on Thursday.

V. D., Wigan.—The difference between Mitcham and Wigan is—That the Corporation of Wigan claims that they have power under a private Act of Parliament, obtained by them in 1873, to regulate fairs and markets. They claim that they have power either to enlarge or to restrict the fairs, to change the locality of the fair, and generally amend or suspend their incidence, and it is under these powers that the Wigan Fair has ceased to be a Corporation fixture and is now a private venture fair. Mitcham is held under the prescription of old Charter rights, upon a particular site known as "The Fair Green," and the local authorities have no control beyond police and sanitary matters over the fair. They draw no revenue from it, but the tolls and profits are the property of the owners of the Fair Franchise. At Mitcham there is no power to prohibit the fair, other than that provided by the Abolition of Fairs Act. See answer to Ground Lessee above.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

MRS. HAMMERSLEY.

Not long did Mrs. Hammersley survive her husband (professionally known as Professor Wall, of the Phantoscope Exhibition). She passed away peacefully in the bosom of her family at their residence, Lower Broughton, Manchester, on Sept. 2.

The interment took place at Macclesfield Cemetery on Sept. 5, amid many tokens of the high esteem and respect in which the Hammersley family are held in their native place.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammersley spent the declining years of their life in quiet retirement, and their unique show was purchased by Mrs. Collins, wife of Mr. P. Collins, of Walsall, and is still (as a cinematograph theatre) the best of its kind on the

THE WORLD'S FAIR AT ISLINGTON.

The World's Fair, annually held at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, will shortly enter upon its twenty-eighth consecutive season, it being twenty-seven years since it opened under the Reads' lesseeship and management, they being joined shortly after by Mr. F. Bailey. From 1898 Mr. Theophilus Read ran the show in association with Mr. F. Bailey until November, 1902, when the last-mentioned died, and Mr. Read was left sole lessee and manager. With characteristic energy he put his shoulder to the wheel with the determination of improving the show, and still further increasing its high reputation. His modifying the noise of the barrel-organs, and entirely stopping them during circus and other performances, was a great and much-needed innovation, and by generally throwing his untiring energy and perseverance into the undertaking he, by tact and courtesy, brought the fair up to a much higher standard, and his much-lamented death, which took place on Jan. 16, of the present year, is still deeply regretted. Mr. T. E. Read, the present sole lessee and manager, is the only son of the late Mr. Theophilus Read. He has always taken a deep interest in the fair, and as a partner with his late father, suggested and assisted in carrying out many necessary and important improvements for the benefit of the public, the showmen, and the fair generally. When one comes to consider the multitudinous details of an enterprise of this magnitude, the more one realises the supreme need of careful thought and sound judgment. Keen intelligence, a quick perception, and the ability to direct organisation are amongst the most important qualifications required to achieve success. These are strong points in the character of Mr. T. E. Read, who has shown great wisdom in so closely studying the excellent example set him by his late father; and, speaking from our personal knowledge, we feel confident he will spare neither time, energy, nor capital in making the World's Fair of 1906-7 as successful as any of its predecessors—and perhaps more so. However, he is fully determined to achieve a big success, and he has our sincere wishes that his ambition may meet with that reward he so justly deserves. He has already made several important engagements, both in the circus department and aerial shows, and has other big features still under consideration the particulars of which we are not at present in a position to publish. He has been travelling far and wide in search of talent, and full particulars will in due course appear in our columns.

"The Ideal" is the title of a new fantasy which Adèle and May Lilian Levey will produce in October. It is written and composed by Mr. Sivey Levey, and the music has been orchestrated by Mr. Hermann Finck. The scena is timed to play between fifteen and twenty minutes.

PUNCH AND JUDY.

Of the once numerous race of puppets, Punch is by far the best known in England at the present time. He, in fact, alone of all the puppets which once used to amuse English audiences, retains his hold on the popular favour. It is a curious and interesting question whence can have originated this little odd drama.

Two theories only as to the origin of Punch appear to have any tinge of probability. The one is that the idea of Punch first originated in the mind of an ingenious Italian in the city of Accra, near Naples, about the beginning of the eighteenth century. Three Italian authors, Riccoboni, Guinna, and Segniorelli, state this, and Guinna is so precise as to give the name of the ingenious inventor. He says, "Silvio Fiovelli, comedian, invented Neapolitan Pulcinella, to which Andrea Calcese, by study and natural grace, added much."

Mr. Payne Collier, in his work entitled "Punch and Judy," had adopted this account as the most probable, though even he admits that it is open to doubt whether Punch is not of a family of far greater antiquity. The other theory as to the origin of the English Punch is that which Dr. Johnson was accustomed to support, namely, that he is not the invention of any particular man or time, but the amalgamation of several characters, which were well known in the puppet plays of the Middle Ages, more especially of that one called Vice or Iniquity of the morality plays, which took the place of the miracle plays of an earlier epoch. Yet Punch, as the English representative puppet, has a high and ancient genealogy, which he would do ill to exchange for his alleged Italian origin. He and his troupe are, in England, almost the only surviving representatives of a race of small beings whose birth dates beyond the time of the ancient Romans, and who for centuries enjoyed universal popularity. It would almost appear as if the Romans had some conception of that illustrious personage himself, for, in the year 1727, a bronze statue of a Roman mimi called Maccus was discovered, which is said to have borne the well-known physical characteristics of Punch. It is no figure of speech to say a very early period, for the practice of representing scenes and incidents dramatically by means of puppets is of extreme antiquity.

Herodotus, in the hundred and forty-eighth chapter of his second book, states that the Egyptians, in their ceremonial of the worship of Osiris, used to carry about small Phallic images and puppets, the limbs of which were moved by strings. The same performances, the pseudo-Lucian tells us, took place at Heliopolis. But the greatest light has been thrown on the ancient puppet stage by the discovery of a whole shop or store of puppets under the ruins of the ancient city of Camarina. Mr. Payne Collier thinks this character first appeared in 1688, and came in with the House of Orange at the Great Revolution. On the other hand, Grainger, in his Biographical History, asserts that traces of him are found before that time, and he is of opinion that he came from France in the retinue of the Stuarts at the Restoration, to dethrone the old Vice. Several theories of the derivation of this name have been stated; perhaps the most commonly received was that which professed to see some connection between Punch and Pontius Pilate, and between Judy and Judas. But this is the merest speculative etymology, suggested by the alliteration of the words. The best authorities are quite agreed that the name Punch is really Pulcinella, abbreviated to suit the taste of the English language. It must be conceded that our Punch gets his name from Italy, but his modern character and his plays were conceived in England. But the French claim to have had a personage called Polichinelle as early as the reign of Henry IV., who was assassinated in 1610.

It was, however, not in the present character of chief performer in his own drama that Punch first appeared, but in one that combined the parts of the clown in a pantomime—that of old Vice. Even as late as 1697 Punch was a roystering blade, with nothing of the mixture of the character of Blue Beard and Don Juan that he assumed later. The following advertisement of a sort of miracle play, in which Punch appears, serves to show what his part in the puppet drama was in 1703. It is to be found in Strutt's "Ancient Mysteries," page 230:—

'At Crawley Lodge, opposite the Crown Tavern in Smithfield Show, will be performed during St. Bartholomew Fair, a little play, called The Ancient Creation of the World, newly touched up, and improved by the addition of the Deluge. Many fountains will play during the piece. The last scene will show Noah and his family going out of the Ark, with the animals in pairs, and all the birds of the air perched upon trees. Finally, by means of various contrivances, will be seen the bad rich man going into Hell, and Lazarus being carried into Abraham's bosom. Several figures will dance jigs, sarabands, and quadrilles, to the admiration of the spectators, all accompanied by the joyous fantasies of Segnior Punch and Sir John Spendall."

It was a very common incident of these puppet-plays to introduce Punch into the Ark, for it is related by the author of "Punch and Judy" that in one of these shows of the Deluge Punch appears from behind the curtain when the rain begins to fall, and observes to the patriarch, "Very hazy weather, Master Noah." The particular time when Punch changed his character to become a roué and a murderer is not precisely known, but from a satire of Swift, written in 1728, and addressed to a friend under the name of Timothy, we learn that he had then taken steps in that direction. In 1790 he had quite accepted his wicked rôle, as we learn from the following verses (taken from Mr. Payne Collier's book on "Punch and Judy"), which date from that period:—

Oh hearken now to me awhile,
A story I will tell you,
Of Mr. Punch, who was a vile,
Deceitful, murderous fellow.
Who had a wife, a child also,
And both of matchless beauty;
The infant's name I do not know,
Its mother's name was Judy.
Right toll de roll, &c.

Since 1790 Mr. Punch has continued to play the part here assigned to him. From time to time incidents of popular interest have been introduced into this drama, as they are now introduced into the pantomime, but the main features of the play remain the same, and probably ever will.

AN ACROSTIC TRIBUTE TO THE LATE MRS. M. PROCTOR.

By "Uncle Fred."
(F. Cooper.)

May everlasting peaceful rest
Always attend you with the Blest;
Rich in love and family ties,
In friendship true, our loved one dies—
All travels end beyond the skies.

Peace and goodwill to all she knew,
Respectful, loving, kind, and true;
Old folk and young for many miles
Came out to meet her Show with smiles,
To look with love on that dear face,
Or listen to her speak with grace.
Rest in peace, dear soul, Heaven's your place.

On Saturday William Brian, the trick cyclist, performed the feat of riding a bicycle backwards from the Royal George Hotel, Cardiff, to the Butchers' Arms, Whitchurch, in the remarkable time of 13min. 21sec.

A SHOWMAN'S MARRIAGE.

The marriage of Harold Hibbert to Alice Collins is a great and most interesting event in the world of shows, not only on account of the high and honourable position of the parents of the happy pair, but also on account of the charm and grace of the bride and the marked ability and sterling worth of the bridegroom. Mrs. Harold Hibbert is the daughter of Mr. John Collins, jun., of the World's Fair Enterprises, Liverpool, and the lessee of scores of important fairgrounds, who, with his wife, Mrs. John Collins, are well-known figures in showland. Mrs. Harold Hibbert was educated at the Convent School, Holt-hill, Birkenhead, and Harold Hibbert, after a sound commercial training at good public schools, elected for a commercial career, and for this purpose entered the firm of James Lowe, general warehouseman, Manchester. From that firm he went to Dean and Dawson's, the tourist agents, of London and Manchester. He was then offered the position of manager of one of his father's magnificent roundabouts, and that was his entrance into the show business.

The Hibberts are a Cheshire family, and their headquarters are the quaint old-world town of Stockport.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Crowded houses assemble here nightly to witness the dramatised version of Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," known as The Only Way, in which Mr. Martin Harvey sustains the part of Sydney Carton; giving a vivid rendering of the kindly-hearted ne'er-do-well. Miss N. de Silva as Mimi gives a sweet and graceful interpretation of the broken-hearted girl; while Miss Coleridge as Lucie Manette is charmingly tender and natural. Mr. Fred Wright, senior, as Doctor Manette, acts the part of the old, worn-out victim of the Bastile with quiet dignity; and Mr. Lorry finds a good representative in Mr. P. Alexander. In the prologue the two aristocratic brothers, St. Evremonde, have able exponents in Mr. A. E. Raynor and Mr. J. E. Frazer; while the spirited youth Jean Defarge is effectively played by Mr. Alfred Mansfield. The Charles Darnay of Mr. L. Craske is a fine, manly impersonation. In the tribunal scene Mr. Charles Glenny acts the part of Ernest Defarge powerfully. The band of citizens and citizenesses, so furiously led by Miss Rorke, as The Vengeance, might well give points to our present-day suffragettes. Repeated recalls for the principals are insisted on nightly. On Wednesday and Thursday Boy O'Carrol was presented, and on Friday Hamlet.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—That considerable interest had been evoked by the announcement of the first appearance in Glasgow of Mr. Hayden Coffin, and the reappearance here after a considerable interval of Miss Isabel Jay, was made evident by the enormous crowds that besieged the early doors on Monday night to witness The Girl Behind the Counter. Both artists received a hearty welcome on their first entrances, and quickly established themselves in the good graces of the audience. Miss Isabel Jay's brilliant vocalisation and charming acting as Winnie were irresistible, and Mr. Hayden Coffin proved to be in excellent voice, while his part suits him particularly well, either as Charlie Chetwynd, the returned gold miner, or in the picturesque garments in which he masquerades in the second act. Then, Mr. J. F. McArdle is in his original part of General Willoughby, and the fun waxes fast and furious while he is on the stage. Mr. Fred Allandale plays Monsieur Duval, and his impersonation of the French manager is very good. Miss Violet Englefield as Millie Mostyn acts and sings with much verve, and her song about the vicar's daughter proved a hit. Mr. G. Davy Burnaby ably plays the inane Viscount Gushington. Miss Helen Rose is an attractive Ninette; and the humours of the love-making of Susie and Dudd are cleverly portrayed by Miss Kathleen Courtnay and Mr. Lionel Victor, an amusing contrast to the latter being formed by the tall and fiery-tempered Rudolph of Mr. Ernest W. Laceby. Miss Violet Crossley is a duly dignified Lady Willoughby. The waiter at the Baron's Court Exhibition is played by Mr. George Barrett in a style that recalled his last striking hit here in Sergeant Brue. Another waiter is amusingly acted by Mr. A. E. E. Edwards. The chorus sing well, under the able guidance of Mr. Howard Talbot, and most of the songs are vociferously encored.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William M. Downie.—Mr. Edward Terry and company are appearing here this week, the novelty of the visit being the revival of R. C. Carton's charming play Liberty Hall, in which Mr. Terry gives a wonderfully realistic portrayal of the old bookseller William Todman; Blanche, the elder of the Chilworth sisters, is enacted with fine feeling by Miss Fyfe Alexander, and Amy has a pleasing representative in Miss F. Glossop Harris; the easy bearing of Mr. Allan Pollock is admirable in the part of Mr. Owen; as the Hon. Gerald Harringay, Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., looks and acts well; the Pedrick of Mr. C. W. Thomas is a finished performance; the Briginshaw of Mr. William Dexter and the Hickson of Mr. George Howard being also careful studies. Miss Eugenie Vernie is amusing as Crafer; Miss Earle makes a smart shop boy; and the parts of Miss Hickson and Luscombe are well filled by Miss Ella Dixon and Mr. C. E. Wallis. This play was repeated on Friday, the programme for the rest of the week also including two performances of Sweet Lavender and two of The Magistrate.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—Rob Roy is going well, and is very largely attended at every performance. The chorus sing with great spirit and fine effect, and the "Tramp" solo and chorus are particularly well done. In Miss Alice Esty as Diana and Mr. E. C. Hedmont as Francis are seen finished vocal artists, and the former gets an ovation for her brilliant rendering of "Comin' thro' the Rye" and "Jock o' Hazeldean." Mr. Hedmont is perhaps at his best in "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Cameron Men." Mr. W. G. Robb's dry and pawky humour as the Bailie is greatly enjoyed; while the Rob Roy of Mr. Nelson Ramsay shows he has thoroughly grasped the character of the bold outlaw.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. George Stephenson's company is here with the ever-welcome musical comedy Kitty Grey, the character of the good-hearted and lively actress being exquisitely interpreted by Miss Hilda Guiver. Miss Marie West as Lady Binfield gives a delightful rendering of the neglected wife; Mr. Leslie Fairfax as Sir John Binfield submits a pleasing picture of the pleasure-loving, erratic husband; Mr. Lauri Lisle as the King of Illyria gives an excellent portrayal of that free-and-easy monarch; abundance of comedy is supplied by Mr. Leslie Steward as Lord Plantaganet, who, with Miss Nellie Lauraine as Mrs. Bright, contributes a topical duet which the audience cannot have enough of; Miss Elsie Skillings as Sadie de Poulson gives a clever picture of an American lady tourist; Mr. Gordon Leslie and Mr. P. Allerton Turner have suitable parts allotted to them; and the same may be said of Miss Helen Branscombe and Miss Howard. The ladies of the chorus have tuneful voices, and their movements are all charming and graceful, while the attendant gentlemen supply the necessary tenor and bass voices.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Miss Winifred Maude and company in The Sins of a City are proving a draw here this week. Miss Winifred Maude is prominent in the rôle of Seaweed, a part which suits her admirably; Mr. William Hamilton gives a breezy and natural reading of Sandy McDonald; Mr. William Bradford skilfully depicts the bad character of Ralph Blackwater; the performance of Mr. Norman Shields, who doubles the rôles of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh, is worthy of praise; he is particularly good as the miserly Jasper. Miss Jenny Hackett is responsible for a very amusing character-study of Midge; Mr. Leonard Harrison is an impressive Donald McIvor; Mr. Victor Du Cane is the successful impersonator of Isaac Levi; and Miss Ethel Linsley as Lesbia acts with great force and feeling.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as George Madison and Miss Nellie Bonser as Lucy ably fill the leading parts; and the undiluted villainy associated with the character of Charles Devereux is well shown by Mr. Louis Hector. Mr. Philip Renouf as Joe Lambkin, Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy, and Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty supply the necessary comedy. Mr. Kenneth Black acts well as Sir George Lancaster; and other parts are ably played by Mr. Leonard Maxwell, Mr. Arthur Hickman, Miss Barbara Gott, Miss Octavia Noel, and Little Lucy.

NEW GAIETY.—Lessee, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The New Gaiety Dramatic Company, under the direction of Mr. Montgomery, again forms the attraction here, the production this week being The Octoroon. The principal parts are well represented. Messrs. H. Hesslegrave, Horace Booth, Alfred D. Adams, T. E. Conover, and A. H. Clarke ably fill the various parts allotted to them; while as Zoe Miss Laurie A. Pardy and Miss Marie De Ross as Dora Sunnyside appear with much success.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—Vesta Tilley is the star here, and as a result the Empire is packed to its utmost capacity. José Collins is a pleasant singer and a neat dancer; Oswald Williams, magician; the Canary compy. in a comic pantomime; Barnard's Mannikins in The Coons' Revelry; Mlle. Eldee's poses plastiques; Eric, ventriloquist; Prof. Therese, comedy hypnotist; and a smart sketch, Captain Cupid, complete an attractive programme.

ZOO HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, E. H. Bostock.—After a lengthy absence from Glasgow, Winifred Hare reappears here as a variety star, and her admirable voice and dashing style make her a first favourite. Spry and Austin are an extremely popular couple, and their comedy business and patter songs are very good indeed; A. H. Manbey, an English wrestler, has been showing his prowess against the local champions; the Eight Aquamarinoffs are smart Russian dancers; Queen and Le Brun contribute an amusing sketch, The Cockney Huntsmen; Ryder Slone gives a well worked-up burglar scena; the Kanes are clever comedy musicians and dancers; and good items are contributed by Fred Lincoln and Pierce and Maizee.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Fred Karno's lively extravaganza Saturday to Monday forms a large portion of the entertainment here, and the antics of John Willie Jaggs, as played by Rolando Martin, are intensely funny. The others lend able support, and everyone works hard for the general success. Billie Barlow is again visiting Glasgow, and her new songs, and the piquant way she gives them, catch on immensely. The Ellimans are clever musicians; Sylvia du Barry's fine voice is heard to advantage in a song from The Toreador; the Leonards are smart dancers, and their songs are popular; Haydee's miniature theatre is exceedingly well worked; Vesta and Minnie Pine contribute a comedy turn to an operatic air; De Vere and Kenwick are another good comedy couple; and May Marton's songs are well received. Ernest Rees makes one of the best hits of the programme with his songs and patter, which are all clever.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Mr. Frank Danby has secured a clever company of principals for the musical comedy sketch The Chauffeur, which is a big item in a variety programme. The clever comedian has a part which suits him to a nicety. The piece is lavishly staged, and is much in favour with the audience. Pretty pictures illustrate Mr. Jas. Dunn's well-sung tenor song. In The Poor Beggar, a capital sketch played by John Le Hay and company, is seen some merry fooling. The fine picture, "The Miner's Daughter," on the bioscope is worthy of special remark; Eadie and Ramsden give a turn consisting of piano playing, song singing, and eccentric dancing; Boy Glenn, juvenile raconteur, has several calls; Grais' Baboons are as clever as of yore; while Binns and Binns cause laughter as the Musical Vagabonds. Lord, Murray, and Lord, and Harry Hayton, comedians, are also on a long and strong list of entertainers.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—A "crack" programme opens here with the Sisters Selwyn, who sing and dance with acceptance, followed by that clever juvenile juggler, Master Gicardo, whose clever work is warmly received. In two songs Miss Annie Nelson, Australian soprano, distinguishes herself. Miss Nelson is a singer of great charm. The Bros. Etharien, comedians provide much wholesome fun; and Harry Zethur is a dancer of undoubted ability of the eccentric order; and a dainty turn is also given by Miss Mabel Carr, comedian and dancer. Joe Reichen's dogs show marvellous training; Booker and Narbi are back again with another successful sketch, The Interviewer, which adds to their popularity; Austin Rudd and Will Godwin are strong cards, and repeat their former successes. Several attractions at the Palace add to the comfort of Mr. Waldon's many patrons.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—At the top of the bill here are Lachie Thompson's Top Weights in their amusing and instructive bouts in boxing and wrestling. The McConnell Trio, who are ever popular in Glasgow, also provide a highly entertaining turn; the trick cycling of Frank Hope is exceedingly smart; while the roller-skate dancing of J. H. McCann receives well-earned applause. Other interesting attractions include Flo Wood, vocalist; the Glovers, comedy artists; T. Anthony, Scotch comedian; and Eily Adair, comedienne; while numerous up-to-date films are depicted by the Queen's Bioscope.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, WORCESTER.—His Majesty's Guests have paid a return visit this week, and Mr. Fred Karno's company have delighted large audiences by their mirth-provoking performances. Mr. Geo. Heston as Sergeant Lightning was a host in himself; Mr. Usher is funny as the shop owner; Mr. Morton and Miss Castelle are successful as two thieves; Mr. Sewell, Miss Brunton, Mr. Howe, Mr. Kitchen, and Mr. Manard also largely contribute to the success of a good all-round performance.

SOME SHOWMAN WORTHIES.

By the Rev. T. HOARE,
Hon. Chaplain, the Showmen's Guild.
(Copyright.)

JAMES DEAN.

All great movements for the benefit of mankind require two kinds of workers—the man of brilliant ability, known as "the genius" and the man of hard work and sound common sense. These two characters, where the movement is a real success, supplement each other, and give of their own individuality to the permanence of the institution or society with which they are concerned. The Showmen's Guild, in its career of unbroken success, has produced and drawn out the best qualities of "the genius" and "the man of power and hard work." It will be well remembered that the early days of the Showmen's Trade Protection Movement commanded, and for a number of years engrossed, the services of men of singular power and genius.

Amongst these early pioneers we have to reckon men like J. W. Bostock, Randall Williams, Joe Caddick, and F. T. Salva. These were the men of meteoric brilliancy and commanding ability in the eye of the general public. In the other rank of pioneers, the worthy band of hard workers and administrators, we must place in the very front James Dean, to whose memory the showmen of the Empire have raised a memorial worthy of the man and of the great benefit he conferred by his untiring labours, upon the whole of the fair-ground community.

Born at Northwich, Cheshire, in 1832, the son of a well-known local tradesman, he carried on the family business (confectionery) in the public market, and eventually followed the fairs with a pannum stall, and so became a van-dweller. When the tocsin of alarm was sounded to the showmen of the country by The Era newspaper to organise themselves, and to defend their character against the vile slanders of men like George Smith, amongst the very first to answer the call to arms was James Dean (then of Manchester). With him, in the early days of organisation we must associate the Bostocks, the Clarks, the Holdens, Randall Williams, John Whiting, John Walker, Richard Newall, H. Ashington, B. T. Burnett, J. Norman, Collins Bros., Murphy Bros., Studt Bros., and scores of other individual showmen and fair-ground traders. Great and good work was done by these men, but it is no depreciation of that work to say that towering head and shoulders above them all was the strong controlling character, mental force, and organising ability of James Dean.

From 1891 to 1904 he was the Hon. Secretary, and occupied the position of president in the years 1894-5, and 1899. Although his greatest power was seen at the committee meeting, and in his able grasp of the detail work of management, he was not without considerable power as a public speaker. So able, indeed, and so indefatigable in his zeal for his fellow travellers was James Dean, that wherever his concern was pitched, there would be a meeting of the Van-dwellers' Society In the pursuit of his business, taking the great Lancashire, Cheshire, Yorkshire, and Midland fairs, he organised and carried through by his indomitable energy and earnestness of purpose dozens of meetings single-handed. Committee men of to-day would do well to learn a lesson from the unflagging zeal of James Dean, and instead of waiting for this official or that official to organise and arrange meetings, do themselves the honour and credit of organisation work. After a strenuous life, largely devoted to good works, he died at the quiet village of Mottram, Cheshire, on Sept. 27, 1899, where he was stricken with illness at the end of the wakes, and although everything was done that loving care and skill could do to save his life or alleviate his sufferings, he paid the penalty of poor mortality. Amid many manifestations of public honour and respect his body was laid to rest in the churchyard of his native village, and, although it may have the appearance of long time in coming, the memorial in imperishable marble, erected over him in the early days of this month, it is absolutely true that in his day and generation, he gave of his best to the betterment and uplifting of the men and women of the road, and, however tardy the memorial may appear to be to some, it embodies the high respect, honour, and love that the show people of the Empire bestow upon one of its most noble sons—James Dean.

We announced last week the erection of a chaste and appropriate monument in the churchyard of Witton Parish, Northwich (his native place) to the honoured memory of James Dean, the well-remembered President, founder, and champion of the Vandwellers' Society. We give our readers a picture of the memorial and some particulars of it. It is a square white Sicilian marble monument, standing 9ft. high, with marble curbing, covering a ground space of 7ft. by 3ft., fixed upon Bradford stone landing—in one piece—to avoid settlement, the total weight of the work being 3 tons. The inscriptions are cut and filled in in imperishable lead letters. The front panel of the monument bears the following inscription:—

Sacred to the Memory of
JAMES DEAN.
Born at Northwich in 1832.
Died at Mottram, Sept. 27, 1899.
Aged 67 Years.

"Grant him eternal rest, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him."

On the back panel are the words:—

This memorial is the loving tribute of the Showmen of the United Kingdom to James Dean, one of the founders of their Trade Defence Society, the Showmen's Guild, of which he was Hon. Secretary 1891-1893, President 1894-1895, and 1899. He won the respect and admiration of his fellow fair-ground traders and amusement caterers, and left behind him a signal example of unselfish devotion to the good of others.

The work has been executed by a well-known North Country sculptor, Mr. Albert Leake, Spring Bank, West Hull, whose studio and works is close to the fair ground, and who has already executed some very artistic memorials for members of the Showmen's Guild, and who was entrusted with the North Sea Outrage Memorial, that was unveiled last Thursday (Aug. 30, 1906) in Hull by Lord Nunburnholme, to commemorate that sad event.

The memorial is the gift of the showmen of the United Kingdom, and the contributions were purposely restricted to small sums, in order to embody the love and esteem of the great bulk of the people in whose midst he lived and worked.

MEMORIAL TO THE LATE JAMES DEAN,
A Founder and a Famous President of the Showmen's Guild, erected by the Showmen of the Empire.

GREYSTONES INJUNCTION ACTION.

In the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Gibson,

Mr. Dunn, K.C., and Mr. Horan (instructed by Messrs. Keating and Keating) applied on behalf of the plaintiff, Mary J. Keating, for an order for liberty to join Reuben E. Mellon, of Glencoe, Greystones, co. Wicklow, building contractor, with her as plaintiff. The action was brought for an injunction against William Toft, now of Greystones, to restrain him from continuing an establishment consisting of merry-go-rounds, hobby-horses, &c., carried on for public amusements at Greystones. The matter had been already partly heard before the Court. Counsel relied on the affidavit of the plaintiff.

Mr. Moriarty, K.C., and Mr. Philip O'C. White (instructed by Mr. Brownrigg, solicitor), appeared for the defendant.

After a short argument his Lordship adjourned the application till next sittings.

WHIMSICAL WALKER has found Glaswegians highly appreciative of the pathos and humour that distinguish his production of Captain Hamilton, V.C., which is a great success on tour.

THE popularity of variety still continues at the Gloucester Palace. This week Herr Fritz presents a series of startling illusions in a clever manner; My Fancy, who is billed as "Queen of Sand Dancers" on her first appearance here, makes a huge success with her fine performance; Jimson's circus comes in for a well-merited share of applause; Zelda is an expert performer on several musical novelties, the performance being enchanced by an elaborate and costly fit-up; Mr. D. W. Watson is an excellent cornettist and post-horn soloist; Miss Rita Bell does well as a Dutch girl and speciality dancer; Mr. Fred Horsfall causes laughter in his humorous items; Miss Daisy Davenport is a neat comedienne and dancer; and Mr. Wal Owen, billed as the "Comedy Man," fully earns his title. Mr. R. C. Note has no difficulty in persuading his audience to assist with his choruses, and the Bioscope completes the bill.

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—For the first time in Liverpool Paolo and Francesca was staged here on Monday evening, when a representative audience assembled to extend to Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird a cordial and earnest greeting. The outburst of applause which followed the close of each act was unmistakable evidence of the deep impression the tragedy made upon the spectators, and when the story had been told Mr. Irving was compelled to re-appear and express his thanks to the many friends in front. He regretted that circumstances prevented him from repeating Mr. Stephen Phillips's work during the present visit, but hoped ere long to again be with them. The success which attended the production was certainly due to the strong and able company that surrounded the distinguished actor, irrespective of the magnificence of the setting. Mr. Irving's histrionic gifts were shown in all their richness as the deformed Malatesta, upon whose emotions and moods the audience fixed the keenest attention; Miss Baird's Francesca, young, sweet, and beautiful, could not fail to reach the sympathies of all; Mr. Harcourt Williams gave a fine representation of Paolo, a piece of work which was marked by sincerity and passionate feeling; Miss Maud Milton fully realised the position of Lucrezia, and missed none of the possibilities of that particularly strong part. Deserving of much praise was Miss Ada Mellon for her realistic blind nurse, Angela; the maid Nita was charmingly played by Miss Elaine Inescourt; a capital impersonation of Pulci came from Mr. Charles Dodsworth; Mr. F. Tyars made a picturesque Corrado; and Miss Nannie Bennett handled the rôle of Tessa with discretion. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday, The Lyons Mail was given, and on Thursday Charles I.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The first visit to Liverpool of The Belle of Mayfair was enjoyed at this favourite theatre on Monday evening by a crowded and pleased audience. The company sent by Messrs. Gatti and Frohman comprised several admirable principals, supported by a chorus which did justice to Mr. Leslie Stuart's catchy music. Mr. Charles McNaughton provided most of the fun with his exceedingly humorous Sir John Chaldicott; a capital foil being Mr. Percy Yorke as the fire-eating Earl Highgate. The latter's rendering of the song, "I am a military man" deservedly earned several encores. Mr. Vernon Davidson made a capital Finchley, playing the lover with a deal of tact; a most creditable character was that of Comte Perrier, presented by Mr. Robert Whyte, jun.; Mr. Trueman Towers, whose duties were light, was the Bishop, and looked the part; Miss Alice Russon submitted a vivacious Julia, her songs and dances gaining for her a deal of appreciation; every credit is due to Miss Joan Keddie for her Princess, her sweet voice being heard to advantage in several well-rendered pieces; Miss Rosa Snell afforded general satisfaction in the rôle of Countess Highgate; and honours were carried off by Miss Barbara Huntley, who ably impersonated Lady Chaldicott.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—At the popular north-end house this week much patronage has been bestowed upon Between Two Women, presented by Mr. Frederick Melville's company. Mr. Watkin Wynne was seen to advantage as the Earl of Millard; as Harry Mr. Stephen Langton proved creditable; Mr. Godfrey Pearle submitted a well-drawn Rev. Philip Carton; the two "women" found in Miss Molly Malone (Violet Thornton) and Miss Winifred Pearson (Carmen de Savereaux) able exponents; Mr. Fred Danvers as Jack Pringle caused plenty of fun, in which he was assisted by Miss Lilian Earle as Polly Popp; Mr. J. P. Kennedy was a villainous Spado; Mr. William Hooker an interesting Joe Wallet; and Mr. Ernest Walton did the most with Bill Barge.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—This week's bill here is headed by Milton Ray's company in the musical farcical episode The Cruise of the Calabar. It is exceedingly well played. The Hartfords are clever and daring equilibrists; the musical turn by the Schaffers is loudly applauded; Curtis and Vanity are old favourites here; Burley and Burley are very laughable; the Jackley Trio introduce an original item, which receives much applause. Other turns billed also add to the evening's enjoyment.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Good business has, as usual, followed The Fatal Wedding, staged here this week, with the result that a special matinée, a most unusual proceeding at the Star, had to be arranged. Mr. Wilson Howard held with credit the rôle of Howard Wilson; Miss Katharine Clarke was effective as the wife Mabel Wilson; the Robert Curtis presented by Mr. Guy Hastings deserved praise; Mr. Edward Morgan proved an excellent Toto; Mr. Arthur Law Raynor looked very much and acted like a clergyman; Miss Madge McCalla played sweetly as Jessie; Miss Leah Marlborough made a striking Cora Williams; and Mr. Jack Waring was a humorous policeman.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A return visit of No Wedding Bells for Her has been welcomed here this week, Mr. Frank Bateman and company presenting it. Miss Lizzie Montague repeated her capital impersonation of Lola, playing with much dramatic intensity; Mr. Frank Bateman made a tactful detective, Dick Delver; Mr. Stuart Lomath was a robust clergyman; the rôle of Montague Blair was well handled by Mr. Louis Garton; Mr Conrad Franklyn made Abney Stone sufficiently odious; Mr. Edward E. Lewis was an agreeable Harold Trevelyn; and Miss Louie Adair acquitted herself creditably as Doris Fane.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Vesta Victoria, who is always welcome to Liverpool, heads the list here this week, and has had a cordial reception for her old and new songs; Ford and Barris, dancers and vocalists, who were "discovered" performing in London streets, afforded much pleasure with their excellent turn; the Five Olracs showed themselves to be acrobatic comedians of a high order; some novel cycling feats were provided by Johnson and D'Evere; Charles Faning, assisted by Lotta Charles, kept his audience in a merry mood; some smart dancing came from Woodward and Walton; as a player on the banjo Charles Williams displayed much talent; a neat turn was that presented by the Three Sisters Silcott, vocalists and dancers; the Olive Trio of vocal comediennes and dancers were well received; and also included in the programme were Pauline Zaro, comedienne; and Little Tina, child vocalist.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Top of the bill here this week are Harry Ray and Lillie Calden with their amusing and clever act, Peculiarities; Chris Masters, a local favourite, pays a return visit, bringing several new songs; the dancing of Frank Selby was much appreciated; some popular illustrated songs were provided by G B. Geoghan and Connie Downs; Alice Coventry had several taking pieces; and Harry Goldburn, character comedian, also appeared.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Mockery of Marriage, from the pen of Edward Thane, is the attraction here this week, given by the "Royal" stock dramatic company. Mr. Percy Boucher provided a deal of fun with his Toby Wright; Mr. Sydney Grant ably presented the villainous Dick Kenyon; Mr. Harry Tresham held the two parts, Jock and Ned Stanley, with credit; Mr. E. D. Allen made the most of Seth Pearce; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood's Joseph Vernham reflected credit upon the actor; the Old Pete of Mr. Leo Montgomery showed distinct merit; Miss Beryl Ravenswood was a powerful Alva Kenyon; Miss Florence Palmer played sweetly as Rose Vernham; and Miss Sybil Hammersley was a humorous Mary Ann.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Edie Gray and her company of White Coons head the bill here this week, and please everybody by their harmonious vocalism; Conway and Garland cause incessant laughter with the burlesque Left in Charge; the Five Casino Girls provide a pleasing turn of instrumental music; Mephisto, assisted by Mlle. Marie, goes through some remarkable work as a contortionist; J. C. Scatter is an able comedian and dancer; J. S. James shows experiness as a tambourinist, banjoist, and bone solo player; and some acceptable character songs are rendered by George Edney.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Martelloni troupe of lady acrobats and vaulters, who have made their first appearance in England this week at the above popular hall, gave an excellent turn, and deservedly gained much applause; a deal of laughter followed the exceedingly funny antics of the Brothers Hayes, in their success, The Porter and the Professional; Wee Jessie was a dainty comedienne; Harry Chester sang some taking songs; Jack Williams had pleasing specialities; Leon and Leoni displayed much ability as banjoists, and introduced some neat songs; and as duettists, patterers, and dancers, Leonard and Larry earned appreciation.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—A diversified bill of fare offered here this week is headed by Miss Lil Hawthorne, to whom was accorded a flattering reception; there was nothing but laughter while the Midget Mimes were performing in Casey's Court; some expert club juggling was given by Albertus and Bartram; Vernando, the tonsorial ventriloquist, proved very diverting; some smart comedy came from Harrigan and Holt; the juggling and knife-throwing of the Zanettos was a remarkable entertainment; Harry Marte, possessed of an excellent voice, sang with pleasing result; and the list also contained the names of Johnny Gilmore, comedian; and Beatrice Willey, a charming vocalist, with a medley of old flower songs.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost in the programme here this week is Miss Alma Obrey, a comedienne with some popular songs; Happy Attwood proved exceedingly funny; Boden and Bell showed themselves to be talented juvenile vocalists and dancers; Hurman gave evidence of being a juggler and hoop manipulator of no mean order; some amusing patter came from Bob Baxter; and Howard and Townsend rendered several pleasing vocal duets.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" stock company are doing good business here. This week the dramatic sketch is Tricked by a Woman, which has proved most popular. Some excellent pictures are shown on the bioscope.

WANTED, First-Class Theatres,
Vacant Oct. 22, 29,
Nov. 12, 19 (?),
Xmas, New Year, Jan.
FRED C. SOMERFIELD, T. R., Scarboro'.

Like old wine, old plays are generally the best. Nor is the reason far to seek. Thy have been tried in the furnace of popular opinion, wherein so many that are worthless scorch and vanish away. "The Golden Ladder," this week staged at the Theatre Royal, years ago was tested, and was stamped with the Hall-mark of popular approval, and it still retains all its old fascinations. People remember how Wilson Barrett and his company thrilled them with the story of the British missionary and his heroic wife, and they look for an equally strong representation to-day. And from Miss Mary Austin and E. Vivian Edmonds' company they receive it.—Sheffield Independent.
"The Golden Ladder" is still one of the best of dramas. In many respects it sets a standard of which most modern writers have fallen short.—Sheffield Telegraph.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possib because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

SURROUNDED BY GOLD.

Code Word, BROCHOIR.

A poor starving artist dreams that he is carried to a land where money abounds and only beautiful women reside, but wakes to find himself back in his old garret; then decides to hang himself. Surprised by his betrothed, who has sold her earrings to get him money, he finds that love and friendship are better than gold.

444ft. The Subject £7 8s.
Colouring, £3 8s. extra.

HOT CHESTNUTS.

Code Word, BROIE.

Two wicked boys tie up a hot chestnut stove to a carriage wheel. The coachman drives off, overturning the stove and dragging it along with him. The nuts fly in all directions; the boys steal as many as they can get hold of. The proprietor of the stove chases the carriage driver. A free fight ensues.

132ft. The Subject £2 4s.

SERVANTS' STRIKE.

The adventures of a band of servants out on strike are faithfully portrayed. Public meeting in streets, houses; moved on each time by the police. Very laughable.

460ft. The Subject £7 13s. 4d.

CUSTOMS MAN BEWITCHED by Carmen.

Code Word, BROCHURE.

The wiles and love-making of Carmen overcome the Customs man on duty at the Boundary, and the smugglers succeed in getting their contraband through. Perfect scenery.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE POACHER.

Code Word, BROUETTER.

A dramatic story, culminating in romance, in which a young lover helps his future father-in-law, who is shot at by a poacher, brings the doctor, fights the poacher, takes him to the lock-up, and is rewarded with the hand of the girl he loves. One event after another, each more exciting and enthralling.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

TRAGIC WEDDING.

Code Word, BRULOIR.

A country scene. The young and pretty peasant girl, betrayed by the evil squire, is turned away from her house by her father. She is neglected by her lover, becomes poorer and poorer with her ailing baby child. The squire is going to be married again. The betrayed girl swears revenge, and kills him coming out of the porch of the church. Intensely dramatic and soul-stirring.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

THE MARBLE INDUSTRY IN CARRARA.

Code word, BRESSANT.

The title almost speaks for itself. Suffice it to say that one is taken into the mountains, workshops, and homes of the people who look after this great industry. Intensely interesting.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE LITTLE NEW BROTHER.

Code Word, BRULOT.

Parents lose their young baby boy. Their other little daughter, wandering in the fields, discovers another little boy in the grass, takes him home, and the parents decide to adopt him. Very pathetic and grand quality.

264ft. The Subject £4 8s.

Two lovers are sitting beneath the cliffs by the sea. They are so engaged with each other's society as to be quite oblivious of the encroaching waves. Suddenly they awake to the fact. They make efforts to reach dry land, and flounder about in the water. A rope is lowered to them from above, to this is tied the girl, and hauled up by six stalwart men, who lose their footing and come tumbling down into the sea, three hundred feet below. They are unhurt, and a smart young fellow comes to the rescue with another rope which he fastens to the end of a traction engine and all are drawn up to safety, a straggling and dripping bundle. OUR NEW POLICEMAN.

A young man, enjoying himself with two young ladies, is joined by a friendly policeman. The latter prevails upon the youth to join the force, and they proceed together to the police-station. After a short examination by the inspector he is sworn in, and leaves headquarters in his uniform. The girls meet him outside and shower their congratulations upon him; he explains to them the dignity of his position. Producing a timepiece, he shows them how he proposes to put in force the time limit for motors, etc. Off he dashes with eager desire for his "first case."

Our hero is seen crouched down in a hedge, where he can obtain a view of racing along the picturesque country lane. As a motor comes into sight he brings out his clock and makes his calculations. When the motor is almost passing he dashes out and waves his arms, signalling the driver to stop. The motor-man, however, being already safely past, makes no attempt to pull up, but keeps straight on. He rubs his hands in self-congratulation as a motor approaches, drawn by a horse. In vain the owner explains that the machinery has broken down and the horse is pulling him along. The policeman drags him from his seat and takes his name and address, which he puts down in his note-book, and marches off looking for further fields to conquer.

An energetic cinematographer is seen arranging to take a picture before a house where an actor is playing the part of a burglar, trying to break in at the front window. Just as the picture is being taken, along comes our policeman, and with eyes only for the housebreaker enters the garden and collars his man. The officer drags him off in spite of all explanations. Two very roguish-looking young girls, with many secret signs and much laughter, follow up this arrest, and are seen to be plotting some game or other to repay the zealous policeman. Running off to a shop they purchase a rabbit. Further down the street they make off with a pot of paint while the workman is watching the arrest. These plotters then dip the animal they have purchased in the red paint. One of them drags it along the ground down to the river from a spot the policeman is likely to pass when he returns from the station. The other girl adds colour to the trail by pouring out an additional supply from the paint pot. They take the rabbit out a yard or so in the water and drop it in. Sure enough, their man, coming along the road, soon sees the sign. With "Sherlock Holmes"-like precision, he gets down on his hands and knees, and carefully follows the scent. His tormentors, walking slowly behind him, enjoy the fun. They wait quietly concealed near the water's edge as the would-be detective rushes down to the river and plunges in. After splashing about a good deal he discovers the rabbit, just as his inspector comes on the scene. The inspector, hearing laughter, turns quickly and discovers the cause of all the mischief; he at once gives chase, the girls running away as fast as their legs will carry them. This is a really comical subject, and keeps everyone in roars of laughter.

1862. ## LOVE WINS OUT.
A HUGE SUCCESS!!!

A Novel Farce. Far superior in all respects to the conventionally-arranged adventure. A 15-minute interlude of genuine fun diverts without exaggeration the possibilities of entering into Matrimony while exceeding the Speed Limit. A novel idea (never before attempted), in the photographing of an automobile run at a mile a minute, while travelling at like parallel speed, enters largely into this splendid subject. Length, 700ft.

THE WORLD'S

BIOSCOPE OUTFITTERS.

HOW A BRITISH BULLDOG SAVED THE UNION JACK.

Code Word, "ZULU."

A most exciting episode of the Zulu War, in which the heroism and pluck of the British soldier stand out as usual. The Zulus are attacking a camp, a sentry shoots one, who begs for water just before dying. The sentinel goes to get it, and while his back is turned, the traitorous Zulu shoots him. Then the hordes of Zulus rush round the camp, pull down the British flag and decamp with it. They are pursued by a British officer, who discovers it first. After numerous exciting adventures the Englishman is captured against overwhelming odds, tied to a post, and put to the most degrading torture. The British flag is spat on and insulted, and then the Chief of the kraal puts a light to it. At that moment the bulldog (the pride of the regiment), who has followed his master, the brave officer, rushes at the flag and succeeds in putting out the flames, and so saves the colours. The officer frees himself from his bonds and shoots the cowardly chief, and triumphantly rides back to the British camp with the flag safe and sound. Grand quality and superb dramatic interest is the unanimous opinion of all who have seen this film. 575ft. £14 7s.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.

"The Era" Annual is published from the offices of the old-established organ of the theatrical profession, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. As usual, it is a carefully-compiled record of notable events of the year 1905. A pleasing feature is the selection of short stories, after recounting strange experiences, by "stars" of the dramatic and music-hall professions, these being in every case accompanied by photographs of the writers.—Newcastle Daily Journal, Jan. 27, 1906.

TO THE PUBLISHER, "THE ERA."

Sir,—

It may possibly interest you to learn that a Quarter-Column Advertisement in "The Era" (One Insertion) resulted in over £1,000 Bookings for an Entertainment with which I was connected some little time ago. The Entertainment was entitled

"THE CRUISE OF THE OPHIR,"

Cinématograph Show, and the Bookings were effected within a week.

VALUABLE FREEHOLD PROPERTY IN

BIRKENHEAD.

To Theatre and Music Hall Proprietors.

MESSRS. SHAW & JONES have been favoured with instructions to SELL BY AUCTION, at the WOODSIDE HOTEL, BIRKENHEAD,

On Wednesday, Sept. 26th, 1906, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon (subject to conditions to be then produced), ALL THAT

PIECE OF FREEHOLD LAND

Situate on the North Side of Grange Road and the South Side of Oliver Street,

Containing in front to Grange Road aforesaid and at the back or rear thereof in front to Oliver Street 98ft. 6in. or thereabouts, and running in depth backwards 177ft. or thereabouts, and containing in the whole 1933 square yards or thereabouts,

TOGETHER WITH THE SUBSTANTIAL BUILDING erected thereon, and known as the

METROPOLE THEATRE,

Also the newly-erected SCENERY DOCK and REFRESHMENT ROOMS.

The property is situate in the leading thoroughfare of Birkenhead, and has a splendid and commanding elevation. There is a STRIP OF LAND included in the above measurement adjoining the Theatre and fronting Grange Road, which is most suitable for the erection of a Shop, and would command a good rental.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneers at their Property Salerooms, 11-15, Market Street, Birkenhead (Tel. 510); or to Messrs. John H. Mote & Son, Solicitors, 11, Gray's Inn Square, London.

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional work takes precedence over all other orders.

AMUSEMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dorothy o' the Hall made its appearance here on Monday. Miss Julia Neilson as the heroine reflects the infinite variety of the character with delightful expression; Mr. Fred Terry as Sir John Manners is a gallant and heroic lover; Mr. Horace Hodges as the dwarf-jester, Perkin, displays a whimsical humour; Mr. J. Carter-Edwards reveals the choleric nature of Sir George Vernon with admirable force; Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw acts the mean and thankless part of Sir Malcolm Vernon to the life; and Messrs. Fredk. Groves and D. J. Williams play the parts of the Earl of Rutland and Lord Burleigh in fitting style. The Misses Miriam Lewes and Lilias Waldegrave comport themselves royally as Elizabeth and Mary; Miss Claire Pauncefort is highly capable as Lady Vernon; and the Misses Mary Mackensie, Marion Sterling, and others do well.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Veronique, with its artistic beauties, is more than ever welcome, and its representation here this week by Mr. George Dance's well-selected company has lacked nothing. Miss Beatrice Hodson gives inexpressible charm and sweetness to the title-rôle; Mr. Roland Bottomley co-operates in a most able manner as Florestan; Miss Ethel Negretti as the flighty Madame Coquenard is both vivacious and fascinating; Mr. Leslie Holland as Coquenard has humour in every movement, and Messrs. Fred Lyne and Courtney Comber as the bailiff and groom respectively make much diversion. Miss Lena Maitland as the Countess has a voice of much charm; and Miss May Leslie as Aunt Benoit and Miss Gracie Sinclaire as Denise, the niece, lend valuable support to the production, which is graced by some lovely scenery and a good-looking and competent chorus.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—It's Never too Late to Mend, played by Mr. Samuel James's company, has this week again proved its unfailing attractions. Mr. Beresford Whitcombe plays the rôle of Tom Robinson with breezy manliness; Mr. William Heilbronn makes of George Fielding a typical yeoman, and Messrs. Jackson Hayes, George Claremont, and Jas. May in the rôles of Meadows, Hawes, and Crawley respectively, represent villainy to much advantage. Mr. Edwin Wilde portrays the kindly virtues of the Rev. Francis Eden; Miss Hettie Graham commands full sympathy as Josepha; and Miss May Saker acts with much feeling as Susan Merton.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris. Felton.—The Price of Her Soul, by Messrs. J. B. Shinton and A. Greenwood's company, is drawing large houses here. Mr. John B. Shinton in his manly impersonation of Lord Maudeville, raises the audience to a pitch of enthusiasm; Mr. Annesley Hely comes in for the usual tributes for his convincing acting of Major Skoboloff; Miss Ada M. Ryder as the Countess displays all the subtlety of a practised actress; Miss Ida Thompson is deservedly popular as Vera; Miss Mona Grey gives a telling portrayal of Olga Lanonitz; and effective acting is vouchsafed by Mr. Archie Gear as Gen. Demitrius, Mr. Bryce Methren as Capt. Sergius, Mr. Sydney Ross as Capt. Jack Lawton, and Miss Olive Chesman as Nadine.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Shaughraun has proved a potent attraction here as played by Mr. Andrew Melville's own company. Mr. Melville himself, in the character of Conn, scores a big success; Mr. Charles Langton creates a favourable impression as Robert Ffolliott; Mr. Albert Guyon wins considerable favour as Capt. Molineaux; Mr. J. Hindle Taylor is a genial and kindly priest; Mr. Fred A. Marston lends powerful aid as Corry Kinchella; Mr. Clifford Bown puts in some clever acting as Harvey Duff; Miss Rose Ralph submits a winning presentment of Claire Ffolliott; Miss Kate Walbran gains popular approval as Arte O'Neale; Miss Bella Power acts skilfully as Mrs. O'Kelly; and Miss Jessie Yatman shows animation as Moya.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Power of Gold is presented here by Mr. Frank Ayrton and his No. 1 company. Miss Lilla Wilde, specially engaged as Lady Brandon, makes a great impression by her fine, powerful acting; Mr. Charles Whitlock as the Malay doctor, Hadgi Zambra, is responsible for much of the interest and success of the play; Mr. Richard Oliver gives a satisfactory account of Paul Judson; Mr. Albert Sefton is well suited as Mark Harley; Miss Georgina V. France is much appreciated as Meg Judson; Mr. Frank Aryton scores a hit in the diverting rôle of Sammy Smudge, in which he is cleverly supported by Miss Madge Seymour, who shines in her original character of Nora Donnelly.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Gay Parisienne affords a brief respite from drama, and with Mr. Charles Macdona's capable company, is enjoying capital receptions here. Miss Evelyn Hughes as the fascinating Julie disports in a most attractive manner; Miss Madge Soutter gives many quaint and clever touches to the rôle of Ruth; the Misses Holford Beringer and Ethel Ivimey shine as Mrs. and Miss Honeycombe respectively; Mr. Will Harman portrays the humour of Mr. Honeycombe in a diverting manner; Mr. T. Gideon Warren scores as the Major; Mr. Clifford Seyler acts in a dexterous style as Mr. Pompier; Mr. Henry J. Barret is successful as Amos Dingle; and Messrs. Edgar Ashwyn, Dutton Nicholls, and Harry Bedbrook lend able assistance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Wilkie Bard is starring here; John Le Hay and company are appearing in a smart musical sketch, The Poor Beggar; the Norman Leonard Trio are on a return visit with their artistic musical sketch, The Itinerant; the Eight of Hearts are well received; Dot Hardy and Nellie Stratton sing and dance themselves into favour; O. R. Sato, comedy juggler, and Oswald Williams, illusionist, come in for plenty of applause; another good turn is the musical entertainment presented by Orpheus.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Sandwiches, a song-scena, is presented here by Arthur Rigby and company, and is proving a big attraction. The Moet-Chandon Trio display a smart gymnastic turn. The musical entertainment arranged by the Four Jumels is artistic; Tom Lloyd sings some old favourites which are well applauded; the Leonards and Nash and Noel are popular comedy artistes, while the Sisters Pine, and Raynor and Reece, duettists, come in for a good share of applause.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Ethel Arden and George Abel are paying a return visit with their mirthful entertainment, Three of a Kind, while Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas in their sketch, My Birthday, are a decided success. The Cumberland troupe of trick cyclists are very smart; Carl Howard is a clever comedy conjurer; Martinette and Crossie, Herbert Cyril, Charles Fanning, and Lotta Charles are comedy turns above the average; the sweet singing of Milner Verren is applauded; Violet Morgan is a clever mimic; Ada Fawn has made a good impression with her singing; while the Two Eltons are expert triple bar artists.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—W. J. Churchill is successful as an eccentric comedian; the Zanettos, a trio of Japanese jugglers, are exceedingly smart; the artistic posing of Mlle. Eldee is watched with interest; Marie Reeve is successful in her songs and dances; and the Farmyard imitations of Harry Carsdale are clever.

ON Thursday of last week Mr. G. Dance's company were at the Town Hall, Welshpool, with The Girl from Kay's. Mr. J. W. Hooper's Hoggenheimer was charged with much drollery; Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft was a good Harry Gordon; Mr. Herbert Jennings a quaint Fitzthistle; Mr. Claude Dampier an amusing Joseph; and Mr. Edwin Forde a droll Theodore Quench. Miss Marie Greenhouse made a fascinating Norah; Miss Jessie Fraser in the title-rôle sang and played delightfully; and Miss Irene Vere was chic as Ellen.

A PRETTY feature of the wedding of Mr. Harold Archer with Miss Annie Morgan, announced in our columns last week, was the pretty young nieces of the bride, Beatie and Barbara, the only daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sage, who assisted as junior bridesmaids.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z Andrews.—The attraction here this week is the French play, The Throne of Terror, which was played to a crowded house on Monday night. The part of Robespierre could not have been better placed than with Mr. William J. Miller, whose acting was most powerful. Mr. Roy Milton as the hero, Captain Eugene, was a decided success; Mr. Frank Fuller was good as Comte de Roquefort; Mr. Bert Ellis as Joujou caused roars of laughter; Mr. William Russell is worthy of mention as the gaoler. Miss Ellen Armor as the heroine, Marguerite, was a great favourite; Miss Ethel Lanyon-Maude as Victorine was most effective in her rôle as Robespierre's accomplice; Miss Eva Norman as Pepletta was an able companion to Joujou in laughter-making.

ABERTILLERY. — THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. A. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. G. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—This week we have a welcome return visit of Messrs. G. M. Pollni and Austin Melford's company in The Silver King. Mr. Herbert Ford and Miss Victoria Addison, as hero and heroine, render their parts to perfection, and Jaikes finds an able exponent in Mr. Tom Paulton.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. F. Brooke Warren's company opened here on Monday, in Mysteries of the Thames. Mr. F. Brooke Warren played Captain Denbigh to the life; Richard Brandon was a good performance by Mr. A. Money; Mr. Leonard Montgomery must be complimented on his performance of Bill Boser; Mr. Dan Hardie was amusing as Peter Waggles; Jack Hammond was well depicted by Mr. Gilbert Hall; Miss Stephanie Baring was excellent in the dual rôle of Helen Price and Grace Rochdale; Miss Marie Ramsey gave an artistic rendering of Kate Brandon; and Miss Violet Leal was good as Little Doris.

HIPPODROME — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parsons.—The Musical Schaffers top the bill here; the Harrison Bros. fairly bring down the house, their dancing being particularly clever; Cates, Winona, and King give a wonderful shooting performance; Mont and Corelli are good; the Seddons are appreciated; and Amber Austa meets with approval; Will Haines sings some good character songs. On the night of the 14th inst. the house was packed from floor to ceiling, being the benefit of Mr. L. Campkin, the retiring manager, who was the recipient of a portrait of himself and a valuable diamond scarf-pin. Mrs. Campkin was also the recipient of presents.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The highly interesting drama, Two Little Sailor Boys, is on a return visit, and is, as of yore, delighting the audiences of Mr. Sounes's house of amusement, as played by Mr. W. H. Hallett's company. Miss Blanche Steele gives a clever and vigorous impersonation of the wicked Lola Grey, and Mr. Jerrold Heather as Noel Tregarthen is excellent in every way. Innocent Mildred Grey finds an admirable exponent in Miss Alice Defoe, whilst as the Two Little Sailor Boys Cyril and Tom, Misses May Day and Ethel F. Greene are capital. The villainous Redstone is ably played by Mr. Ellerslie Pyne, and Mr. W. H. Hallett's Capt. Tom Yorke and Mr. Court Harvard's Admiral are two well-filled rôles. The comedy element is capably sustained by Messrs. Oscar Power, and Tom Sinclair, and Miss Lizzie Chambers.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The comic opera, La Poupee, is being presented here this week by Mr. Herbert Ralland's company. Mr. Harry Brayne works hard in the part of Hilarius; Miss Mysie Devine is a winsome Alesia, and sings throughout with great charm. Mr. Arthur Cozens as Launcelot gives a very acceptable study of the part, and his vocalism is a prime feature of the portrayal. Mr. Walter Balfour as Father Maxime; Mr. Arthur Dennis as Loremois; Miss Edith Hunter as Madame Hilarius; Miss Doris Dickens as Henri; and Miss Alice Roche as Guduline are all very satisfactory interpretors of their respective characters. The band does good work under the bâton of Mr. H. H. Shaw, and there is a full and efficient chorus.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech. — The company here includes Jack Truman, tenor; the Boccaccios, a trio of Italian singers and instrumentalists; Wyze and Adna, whose song scena is a big success; the Weimars, musical eccentrics; the Sisters Belmont, smart dancers; the favourite Irish comedian, Walter Munroe; the Errols, who give an acrobatic act of a funny and original kind; the Gladenbecks, a couple of graceful and clever gymnasts; Arthur Stacey, a good comedian, with a clever dance.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—A strong and varied bill is headed here by the Four Athos in a novel and skilful acrobatic exhibition. The San Remo Girls are smart speciality dancers; the Elgars, refined vocal entertainers, are well received; Cole and Rags are diverting as comedy jugglers; an attractive turn is furnished by the Jansons in a gymnastic novelty act; Mr. E. C. Clayton's pictures on the Attergraph include the race for the St. Leger; Mr. Johnny Walker is an acceptable mimic; and Salida and Vone, creole song and dance artists, are well received.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—In fulfilment of a three nights' engagement, Mr. Edward Terry and his company, from Terry's Theatre, London, opened on Monday, with Liberty Hall. Mr. Terry as William Todman contributed an excellent piece of character-acting; Mr. Allan Pollock as Mr. Owen played in a quiet, telling fashion, making his points unostentatiously; Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., in the part of the Hon. Gerald Harringay, was responsible for a pleasant interpretation; the J. Bringshaw of Mr. Wm. Dexter was a fine study of the blustering, successful trader; Mr. E. W. Thomas, as Mr. Pedrick, solicitor, was decidedly good; the Mr. and Miss Hickson of Mr. George Howard and Miss Ella Dixon were effective; and Crafter, Todman's servant, by Miss Eugenie Vernie, was an excellent study; Miss Fyfe Alexander presented an attractive portrait of Blanche Chilworth; and as Amy, Miss F. Glossop Harris acted naturally and with grace On Tuesday evening The Magistrate was presented.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in Walter Melville's drama, The Female Swindler, forms the attraction here this week. Miss Grace E. Leslie, in the title-rôle, ably portraye a difficult and complex character; Mr. Joseph Millane gives a powerful representation of John Coulson; Mr. Wilford Cheetham as Geoffrey Warden is very successful; Mr. Henry Wright as an assistant-detective cleverly assumes numerous disguises; Mr. John Belton as Abraham Mikestein plays well; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray carefully presents the part of James Oliver; Mr. Guy P. Ellis is good as Harold Travers; Miss Florrie Kelsey plays with feeling as May Andrews, and Miss Mary Dawson makes a pretty maidservant.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Bridge Feoffees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in The Toreador appeared here on Monday. Irresistibly funny was Mr. Walter Champney as the pseudo Toreador. With Mr. Ralph Lynn as Sir Archibald Slackett he brought down the house in the motor-car scene. Very smart, too, was Mr. Harold Batt as Pettifer, scoring heavily with his song, "When I marry Amelia." Mr. Sydney Grenville, with a fine voice, excels as Carajola; and other principal parts are capably sustained by Messrs. George Austin, Henry Arthur, and Chas W. Anson. Miss May Lewis scored an instantaneous success as Nancy Staunton, being ably supported by Miss Eliza Earle as Dora Selby. Miss Beatrice Grosvenor undertook the amorous Mrs. Hopplngs with delightful effect, and Miss Leah Howard did exceedingly well as Susan; Miss Norah O'Neill contributed an interesting dance.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company in The Breed of the Treshams is here. In the exacting part of Lieut. Rereaby Mr. H. Tripp Edgar plays with versatility and force; Mr. Richard H. Greene as Colonel Clement Hungerford and Mr. H. C. Cross as Captain Rashleigh act skilfully; the Hon. Francis Tresham is finely drawn by Mr. Cecil C. Klein; and Mrs. Florence Tresellian displays charm and grace and the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; Miss Maude Sagny as Mrs. Bagshaw and Miss Miriam Holt as Helena Pierrepont both do well, and Miss Celestine Bertram is a pleasing and vivacious Batty.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvart Routledge.—Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company in The Blind Foundling is here. The former gives an excellent portrait of Gerald Dalton, and Miss Belle Tilbury submits a notable performance of Isabel Dalton; Miss Mabel Hall as Fairy is very good; Mr. Harry Tilbury as Dick Dobbins, Esq., and Miss Millie Doris as Winnie Dobbins lighten with some humorous acting.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Lockhart's elephants as presented by Captain Taylor display much intelligence, and Mr. J. W. Rickaby, comedian, is popular; Leslie Race, refined comedian, is good, and Raie Walters is successful with her songs; Cyclumina has a wonderful electric cycle act, and Jennie Sydney is a pleasing vocalist and dancer.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The first visit to Bath of The Prince of Pilsen has proved a big success. The company responsible for the production is Baron H. Hariss's well-balanced corps of artists, with Miss Sophie Harriss as Mrs. Maddison Crocker, a rôle this talented lady fills with much success. To Mr. Harry Kilburn belongs the lion's share of praise for his wonderfully amusing impersonation of Hans Wagner. Those who remembered Mr. Frank Crimp in the old Savoy operas were delighted to again hear his splendid baritone voice in the ballads and duets that he rendered as Carl Otto, and for which he received just appreciation. Lieut. Wagner has a good exponent in Mr. Roy Sydney, who also is the happy possessor of a capital baritone organ. Mr. Bernard Russell gives a humorous rendering of Arthur Rossmoss. The comical agility of Mr. Ernest Gifford as François creates plenty of laughter, and for the dance with Miss Connie Leon as Sidonie in the third act the clever pair are rewarded with a double recall. This smart little lady is also encored for a song after the "Sammy" order, which she renders with much chic. The vocalisation of Miss Florence Beech as Edith Adams and Miss Dorothy Grasdorff as Nellie Wagner is greatly appreciated. Miss Mollie Wynne makes a pert Jimmie (a bill boy).

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—The bill for the current week includes Francis, the cannon king, and his whimsical satellite Alfred, a turn that is always worth witnessing; Tennyson and Wallis are a pair of comedians and patterers that create hilarity; Les Rallis present an exceptionally clever acrobatic interlude, The Artist and His Monkey, which secures them great applause; as an illustrated songster Baker E. Belphor, the fortunate owner of a fine voice, is certainly in the foremost rank; those adept midget conjurers the Franko Brothers are as entertaining as ever; Cullen and Carthey, with the assistance of Little Cluley, provide an hilarious comedy act; Edie Gray and her Coons are paying a welcome return visit; George Collins gives a capital burlesque female song; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are showing some exciting motor-car races and comic films, which are well received.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—This theatre was re-opened after the summer vacation on Monday evening, when a capital audience gave a flattering attention to Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Alfred Goddard as Harry Steyne played with convincing power and earnestness; Mr. Fred G. Evison revelled in the part of Billy Brewer, the humorous philosophical villain of the play; and adequate assistance was rendered by Messrs. Robert Grey, Arthur Gilroy, Chas. McCann, and others. The heroine, Mary Steyne, was played by Miss Ada Oakley with touching fidelity; Miss Nellie Sheffield was chic, alert, and attractive, as Nancy Brewer; and Miss Phyllis Dailley played quickly and naturally as Lady Phyllis Eustace.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Edward Marris's company in the musical farce, The Dandy Doctor. Miss Florence Smithers as Jane causes roars of laughter; Mr. Edward Pearce as Milchisadeck Brown leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Herbert Pearce makes an excellent Colonel Pendred, whose daughter Ivy finds a charming exponent in Miss Elfie Vincent. Doctor Arthur Vandyke is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Ion Maxwell; and the part of Bertie Bollingbroke is left to the capable hands of Mr. Leslie Martin. The Dandy Belles and the Yeoman Male Voice Quartette are an acquisition to the piece.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. M'Cann.—The attraction here this week is the first visit of Hall Caine's noted piece, The Prodigal Son, produced by Mr. Arthur Collins in a most elaborate way. Mr. Herbert Hewetson, owing to the indisposition of Mr. Henry Renouf, was called on to play the part of Magnus, and he certainly filled it in a manner worthy of all praise; Mr. Norman Partriege as Oscar is a very striking figure, and in Act III. he gets a full chance to display his undoubted histrionic abilities; Miss Lily Hall Caine in the dual rôle of Thora and Elen is remarkably good, and the houses were delighted with her work; a word of praise is due to Mr. Henry George, who plays Stephen Magnusson with great success; Miss Alma Murray as Anna, the kindhearted mother, gives a character-study of great interest; Mr. Fred Epitaux is a clever Oscar Neilson; while the remainder, including Miss Mina Renouf, a very humorous Margaret Neilson, are quite up to the standard.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd., Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—The leading turn here is the well-known pantomime sketch, Moses and Son, played by Fred Karno's company. Mr. Fred Kitchen is the chief comedian as Perkins, and the other leading artistes are the Misses Leah Morris, Janet Reeve, Madge Rockingham, also Messrs. Herbert Landeck and Anthony Gordon; the clever coon delineator, Mr. Tom E. Finglass, is paying a return visit, while the Dauntons-Shaw Troupe of cyclists are creating a furore; the Greys, duettists; Georgina Nicol, comedienne; the Haverleys, song illustrators; Henry Hilton, conjurer, and the Palace Pictures make up a good bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Topping the bill here are Binns and Binns, the musical vagabonds, who give a finished and acceptable performance; Lady Mansell's Juveniles, a clever set of precocious youngsters, are a capital turn; the Canary company in a comic juggling pantomime, is very humorous; E. J. Sheldon, the white coon, is good; and also here are Frank Lynne, comedian; Eric, ventriloquist, and the Empire Pictures.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The great popularity of the Alhambra Dramatic company is beyond question. This week the company is playing a capital piece, entitled A Day Will Come, and it is done full justice to; Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a charming actress, plays Violet Thornhill in a manner worthy of all praise; Mr. Herbert Ceul is seen to much advantage as Walter Barclay; a good character-actor, Mr. Horace Denton as Mark Marsland is excellent, while the Nickson of Mr. Cyril Grier is a finished performance; the fun wages fast and furious so long as Miss Effie Macintosh and Mr. W. G. Wesley hold the boards, their Mary Ann Green and Washington Boots causing hearty laughter; Mr. H. Arnold Allen as Sir Geoffrey Thornhill is very good; a like remark being applicable to the Obadiah Jorkins of Mr. Henry Elmore Frith; as Higgins Mr. Percy M. Stevenson does well, and the Mabel Murray of Miss Lena Nazeby is also noteworthy.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby.—A first-class performance of Monte Cristo has been given here. Whether as the Abbé Bussoni, Solomon Von Gripp, or Edmund Dantes, Mr. Junius Booth was very effective. The cool editor (M. Nortier) of Mr. E. Howard Templeton was indeed a capital portrayal; whilst Mr. Augustin Bowerman's Danglers was outspoken and forcible. La Carconte had a clever exponent in Miss Emma Robberds, and Mr. J. W. Braithwaite was good as the drunken innkeeper Caderousse. Miss Clare Elston successfully undertook Mercedes, and Mr. Walter Martin was excellent as the Abbé Faria.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here successfully in the musical comedy The Orchid. In the course of an excellent representation Miss Dorothy Firmin is conspicuous with an excellent performance of Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Gladys Ward is a delightful Josephine Zaccary, and Thisbe is admirably played by Miss Jennie Bonney; Caroline Vokins is capitally enacted by Miss Emily Stevens; Miss Florence Wakeman is most efficient as Zelie Rombert, and Miss Ethel Holdsworth is well suited as the Countess Anstruther. The important rôle of Meakin, the gardener, receives every justice at the hands of Mr. Colin Campbell, who plays with a humour quite irresistible; Mr. Aubrey Chesterton is faultlessly represented by Mr. Steveson Liddard; Mr. Louis du Cane is a capable Sir Ronald Faussett; Mr. J. R. Val is a good Zaccary, and Mr. Edward Nainby as the Comte and Mr. James Burt and Mr. Michael Courteney as his two seconds are excellent.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A varied and strong company includes the Six Brothers Luck, who are again presenting The Demon of the Cellar with unabated success. Mr. Tom Costello, the popular comedian, is on a welcome return visit, and the McConnell Trio in their sketch, Musical Mistakes, are cordially received. Miss Sable Fern, comedienne, is again scoring heavily, and the same remark applies to Miss May Henderson, the dusky Diamond Queen, who supplies a leading turn. Other attractions are the Glenroy Troupe of dancers; Miss Dora Lyric, an accomplished descriptive vocalist; and Miss Eily Adair, a talented soubrette and dancer. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in The Christian, was given a warm reception here on Monday evening. Mr. E. Stanton-Sharpe's manly rendering of the Hon. John Storm stands out with special prominence; Horatio Drake is finely represented by Mr. Duncan Yarrow; villainy in the person of Lord Robert Ure is ably depicted by Mr. P. Gedge Twyman; as the Faro King Mr. Anthony Rawles is well placed; and Mr. Stewart Black is very good as Mr. Lorimer, manager of the Colosseum. Archdeacon Wealthy is in the capable hands of Mr. Phipps Stanley; whilst Mr. Harry Colbeck as Father Lamplugh, and Mr. Percy Johnson as Parson Quayle, are seen to advantage. Mr. H. Louis Wilson acquits himself well as Brother Paul; Miss Laura Walker impersonates the rôle of Glory Quayle, the hapless heroine, with fine grace and sympathy; Miss L. Kingston is effective as Polly Love; and the part of Mrs. Callander is successfully portrayed by Miss Alice Maude.

BLACKBURN.— THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—The reappearance of The Geisha and The Greek Slave in Blackburn has been the means of filling this place of amusement with appreciative audiences this week. The company is Mr. Fred Mouillot's. In The Geisha Miss Lydia Bland sang and acted well, scoring a general success as O Mimosa San; Mr. Wilfred Heath as Reginald and Mr. Albert Hunter as Captain Katana have also excellent voices, which they use to advantage. In the more humorous parts Miss Edith Adeson is a success as Molly, Mr. Edward Kipling is extremely amusing as Wun Hi, and Mr. J. H. Booth as the Marquis is also good.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E H. Page.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are appearing with the drama, A Warning to Women, before crowded houses.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—That inimitable comedian, Mr. Harry Roxbury, is making big audiences laugh at his antics in the sketch, The Prince of Monte Carlo. Other good turns are the Pattersons, acrobats; Sterling and Love, vocalists; two Bostons, comedians; Kitty Wager, comedienne; Fred Poplar, comedian; and Maidie Scott, comedienne

EXCHANGE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. W. Kenyon.—Mr. Sydney Carter's New Century Animated Pictures opened a fortnight's engagement this week. The various films shown are excellent, notably those of the San Francisco earthquake.

BLACKPOOL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Tom Sergenson.—The Little Michus is again being presented here by Mr. George Edwardes's company, which includes Mr. George Graves in his original character of General Des Ifs. Needless to say, he scores a complete success. The remainder of the principal parts are in the same capable hands as on the last visit, and include Mr. Leonard Mackay as Aristide Vert, Mr. Jack Cannot as Bagnolet, Mr. Willie Ward, jun., as Market Man, Mr. George Miller as Pierre Michu, Miss Florence Palfrey as Madame Michu, Misses Iris Hoey and Thelma Rayne as the Little Michus, parts which they play delightfully.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Louis Calvert again presents Sunday here this week. The title-rôle has an exceptionally capable exponent in Miss Emélie Polini; Mr. Leonard Pagden retains his old part of Colonel Brinthorpe, which he plays with care and discretion; Arthur Brinthorpe is ably accounted for by Mr. G. Wallace Johnston, and Tom Oxley has an ideal exponent in Mr. Ernest A. Douglas; Tower, Dary, Lively, and Jacky are respectively and creditably impersonated by Messrs. William Lockhart, Sidney Rennef, Cecil Yapp, and Arthur Vezin. Miss Muriel Pope as the nun, and Miss McArmee Murray as Mrs. Naresby also give entire satisfaction.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Marie Loftus tops a big bill here this week, and meets with the most cordial reception at every performance. Other turns of great merit are Paulton and Dooley, comedy cyclists; Les Frasettis, musical artists; James H. Jee, single wire champion; Daisy Mayer, the Yankee girl; Johnny and Charlie, comedy acrobats; George Antill, comedian; Speedwell, in a clever painting act; and Horace White, ventriloquist.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—An interesting and varied programme is supplied here this week. Minnie Cunningham sings her latest successes, and Lieut. Albini presents his great illusion, The Lady in Black; Mons. Slippere proves himself a clever blind pianist; Bessie Benson is a smart comedian; Charles Stevens an entertaining character vocalist; La Belle Nello, a clever contortionist; Maxford and O'Neill reel off a fusilade of funny songs and jokes; Rosa Tilley sings nicely; the Sisters Poole are pleasing society entertainers; Zanfretto and Napio shine as musical eccentrics; and the Wallys are expert jugglers.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Although the end of the season is approaching the spectacular ballet, In Sunny Spain, is still performed here to good houses twice daily. A capital variety programme is also given by Harry Lamore, slack wire artist; the Belaguer Family of Acrobats; the Scala Girls, vocalists and dancers; the Castilian serenaders; Clown Zertho with his dogs; Mlle. Lopezina in a trapeze act; the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of tumblers; and the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese dancers.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Miss Elaine Verner's company has paid a successful visit here, presenting on the first three nights the interesting play entitled Saints and Sinners, with Mr. Harding Thomas in his fine impersonation of Jacob Fletcher, Miss Verner appeared with success as Letty Fletcher, and the support rendered by the other members of the company was of a commendable description. For the last three nights The Middleman was billed with the above artistes in principal rôles.

HIPPODROME.—The new arrivals here include Gus Merriman in a capital musical act; George Raper, a refined comic; and Yettonah, Japanese magician, in a pleasing turn; and a most interesting display of pictures.

GAIETY.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Grantham, J.P.; General Manager, Mr. Snowden James. — J. R. Barrie, Scotch comedian, heads the bill here, and has a popular reception; Will Moore, boy vocalist, does a good turn; Jack Hastings scores as a female impersonator; Bee and Bee, comedy artistes; Leslie Barnett, actor mimic; Roberto, conjuror; and the Musical Lilians, retained from last week, also appear with success. The Gaiety Bioscope also continues to draw.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is appearing here in the exciting melodrama Under Two Flags. The character of the strong-willed vivandière, Cigarette, is undertaken by Miss Mary Thorne, who by her charming and forcible acting evokes both admiration and sympathy from the audience; Miss Mabel Ormonde gives a refined picture of the Princess Venetia Corona; Miss Madge Stevens is praiseworthy as Lady Beatrice Guinevere; and the Countess Olga is well sustained by Miss Joan Stern. Mr. Mark Blow is dignified as the hero Bertie Cecil Royallieu. A finished piece of work is shown by Mr. Arthur Elwyn as the villain, Col. Chanteroy. Mr. Harry Benson is to be commened for his quaint and humorous representation of the valet Rake. Other rôles are in good hands.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The management have this week provided some good turns, including Mme. Roma's Six Imire Juggling Girls in their sensational and somewhat unique act, American Swells at Practice; Charles Craston, up-to-date comedian; Maud Mortimer, charming comedienne, who proves herself a favourite with her songs; Tom Percy, boy comedian; Cortus, light-weight athlete, in a smart turn; Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and dancer; Ara, Zebra, and Vora in their successful novelty, Indian Pastimes; the Grisse Trio in their comedy acrobatic pantomime On the Tiles; Charles Rowen, comedian; Lozelle, sensational gymnast; the Sisters Charnley, clever duettists and dainty dancers; the Bristows in their comic cycle act; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The attraction here this week is a musical drama entitled Life, for which Mr. Herbert Barrs' company is responsible. Mr. E. Cheetham plays the part of Zac Crabbe, a typical drunkard, to the letter, and Mr. Ronald Grahame is well placed as Sir Horace Lester; Mr. H. Barrs portrays the character of Jack Lockhart with dramatic power; Miss Maudie Vincent is much appreciated in the rôle of Jess, a waif; and Miss Dorothy Oswald makes a sympathetic Beatrice Ferars, Joe Pippet is ably sustained by Mr. A. B. Lyons; Mr. Alf Selwood makes the most of the part of P.-C. Nabbs; and Miss Edna Hana is a pleasing Ruth Thorpe. Songs and dances in the last act by Miss Maudie Vincent, Mr. A. B. Lyons, Miss Bateman, and Veronique are all exceptionally well received.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—A capital programme here this week includes the Dunvilles, who give an excellent musical exhibition on various instruments. Another good turn is Zenora, whose feats of hand balancing evoke loud applause. Will Souls has some capital laughing songs; Edward Ranies and company play the sketch Oliver Twist in a very impressive manner; Sylvia Bond, Geo. Rapier, the Sisters Kildare, and Staffo, the boy juggler, together with two extra turns, complete the bill.

SHODFRIARS HALL.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the musical play Three Little Maids was here on Tuesday and drew a crowded house. Mr. Herbert Willis as Lord Cheyne and Mr. Joseph Edwards were exceptionally good. The scenery and dress were satisfactory.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Charles Macdona introduced Mr. Popple for the first time here on Monday to a crowded house. The piece was received with enthusiasm. The title-rôle is undertaken by Mr. Morris Harvey, who is particularly happy in his characterisation, and so, too, is Mr. Tom May as Platt. To Miss Mamie Brickwell must be accorded special praise for her excellent rendering of La Bolero; Miss Louie Rene as Mrs. Doring and Miss Stella St. Andrie as Mrs. Hennay play in charming style; and Miss Lulu Londen is a captivating Louise; Mr. Herbert Hulcup does well in the small part of Lord Downe; and other good performances come from Mr. Herbert Dickeson, Mr. Fred Maguire, Mr. Augustin Symonds, and Mr. Fred F. Allen. The orchestra, under Mr. H. R. Mathews, is particularly good.

BRADFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The welcome accorded Mr. George Edwardes's company in A Girl on the Stage on Monday was very hearty, the theatre being packed. Miss Queenie Leighton, an especial favourite here, scored another success as Miss Molly Montrose, her songs being rendered with delightful piquancy; Mr. J. H. Hale bustled merrily through the part of Lord Congress; as the dude Algy Southdown Mr. Arthur Longley elicited much laughter; Shingle was a capital performance by Mr. John Humphries; Mr. Nelson Keys as Ethelbert and Mr. Cranston Neville as Captain Hereward left nothing to be desired. Mr. Colin Coop's fine voice was heard to advantage in an excellent performance of Alderman Briggs; as Mr. Grimble Mr. Edwin Rutland was funny; Mr. Lennox Pawle's Earl of Sanctobury was delightfully quaint; Miss Fanny Dango as Lady Isabel Congress and Miss Valli Valli as Lady Dorothy Congress both acted and danced with charming grace; and Mr. T. Sutton conducted with skill the fine chorus and largely augmented orchestra.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—On Monday Mr. Lingford Carson's company presented The Power of the Cross. Baron Woulfe Curzola is an exacting part which Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby portrays with force and skill; Gerald Fairfax, the hero, is an effective performance by Mr. H. C. Rutland; and Dr. Leslie Fairfax, a striking contrast in character, is well represented by Mr. Royce Carleton. Rita Lascelles affords Miss Cissie St. Elmo fine scope, and she is effective. Miss Stanley Burt is emotional as the persecuted Margaret; and Miss May Grace fills the part of Blanche admirably. There is some welcome comic relief well brought out by Mr. R. E. Nugent as Tim O'Dowd and by Miss Etta Turner as Dolly Gray; and the stage effects are striking.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The return visit of the universal favourite, Chirgwin, "the white-eyed Kaffir," who is as musical and whimsical as ever, is hailed with much delight here this week; and those fine examples of physical development the Montague Brothers are greeted with applause in a classical and athletic sketch, The Sculptor's Dream. Starr and Leslie return, clever and humorous as heretofore. The Vivians present a charming and distinctly novel musical playlet, beautifully staged, viz., A Reverie, in which skill with naked rapiers is exhibited. Jean Seul, the Indian mystery, is here again, as incomprehensible as ever; Johnny Gilmour dances well, and submits an acceptable comic song; anything more grotesque than the musical turn by the Two Tees it would be difficult to conceive. Edith Courtney renders ballads charmingly, and completes an excellent company.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—There is a diverting programme here, and Bonnie Goodwin and her Pickaninnies are a feature of it with their excellent humour and clever dancing. Excellent hand-balancing by Almon and Ada is cleverly accomplished; Bowman and Morton in a character sketch She Loved a Policeman are very diverting; the Olive Trio with their parodies and singing and dancing are excellent; in a triple-bar act Hilton and Elma do some clever knockabout business; the Sisters Marion are clever juvenile duettists; Jack Lane's comic songs and patter entertain largely; T. B. Fayme's quaint Yorkshire songs find favour; and there are some entertaining films exhibited by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. Palmer. — Mr. Henry Swinerd's company opened to a full house on Monday with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Marie Vere as Ruth and Miss Desmonde as Dorothy were capital in both acting and singing; Miss Nellie Harcourt made a most effective Judith, and Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake were responsible for some clever acrobatic and mirror dances; as Silas Crump, Mr. Arthur Vere was a great favourite, Mr. Walter Ashley was an effective Captain Fielding, Mr. Henry C. Ward a cool villain, and Mr. Drane Cliff made the most of the part of Haugh.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Hague.—The Marriage of Kitty has paid us a three-nights visit, the company being under the direction of Mr. Howard Cochran. The part of Kitty was most admirably played by that clever actress Miss Aida Jenoure; Miss Bessie Castle was a vigorous Maiame de Semiano; Miss H. Kay Robertson was excellent as the French Maid, and Mr. Howard Cochran was the timorous Sir Reginald to the life; and Mr. Cecil Wilford as the genial Travers gave a clever rendering.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. A. Hubner.—The new turns at this popular place of entertainment include those clever sketch artists Dene and Dawson in a most amusing sketch Stage Aspirants, and Celias Gautley, an eccentric comedian; G. W. Nicholson, the smart Yorkshire comedian, continues to amuse with his laughing songs, and the Victoria Brothers are clever in international dances.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessee, Messrs. Beanland, Bath and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—The animated pictures are a source of great atraction here. The Waterloo Pierrots give some of their cleverly-executed programmes, and a Female Beauty Show is billed.

THE GARDEN OF A THOUSAND LIGHTS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Field and Co.—Mr. Arthur Chenery, whose Willow Pattern Serenaders have attracted large audiences to this hall by the sea during the season, took his benefit on the 13th inst.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Mouillot's company opened here on Monday with The Geisha. Miss Louie Collier made a charming O Mimosa San, and sang with artistic finish; while Mr. Cyril Thomas also displayed admirable vocalisation in his enactment of Reginald Fairfax. Miss Florrie Saunders was a bright and winsome Molly Seymour; Mr. Edward Carlton proved very amusing as Wun Hi; Mr. Lionel Braham, as the Marquis Imari, submitted an excellent character study; Miss Violet Kenyon was a vivacious O Julietto Diamante; Miss Aubrey Ashton, a dignified and handsome Lady EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Herbert Lloyd, comedian, assisted by Lillian Lilyan and company, amuse with the speciality The King of Diamonds; the Maxim Trio please with their equilibristic novelty, with special scenery and effects representing a lake in California; Welda and Wynne, comedy jugglers, obtain applause; the Sisters Lee have pleasing songs and do some clever acrobatic dancing, &c.; Billy French is a smart step-dancer; the Lonnen-Meadows' company have an amusing sketch, Kiss Your Father; Minnie Wren, comedienne, is pleasing; Dan Agar, comedian, has some good songs; Percy Maye, female impersonator, presents a clever turn; Cosgrove and Burns, comedy duo, are appreciated; and the entertainment concludes with Bioscope pictures of the Harvard-Cambridge race.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Miss Lancashire, Limited, is an entertainment which drew a full house on Monday, and kept the audience laughing from start to finish. Miss Florence Baines as Mary Ellen Thompson has a character well suited to her, and she is ably supported by a company of first class artists. Miss Annie Mitchell, as Eva Lancashire acts with charming sang froid; Mr. Burt Burton is comical as Isidore Moses; Mr. David Donaldson as John Higgins, Mr. Wm. Ravenscroft as Herbert Fox, and Mr. Walter Hicks as Grant, with Miss Pattie Groves as Bridget Thompson, are very droll. Mr. Will Casey makes a fine old farmer as William Henry Thompson.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. H. H. Stewart presents here this week Sherlock Holmes, in which he undertakes the title-rôle in a brilliant manner; Mr. W. F. Stirling repeats his former triumphs as Professor Moriarty; Mr. Stanley Logan makes an interesting study of Dr. Watson; James Larrabee is in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Gray; Mr. Edward Mervyn is clever as Sydney Prince; Billy is ably played by Master Cedric Sutherland; and Mr. Fred Bell is very good as John Forman; Miss Constance Leigh is a charming Alice Faulkner; Miss Lindsay Fincham is good as Madge Larrabee, and Miss Rosalie Notrelle is an excellent Thérèse.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—This house is being well patronised this week by appreciative audiences. Carl Lynn is a capital mimic; Miss Alice Raymond's cornet solos (with the orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. John Kirkamp) quite bring down the house; Leonard and Francis in a mock bull fight are very good; the Brothers Dean, now in their second week here, repeat their excellent dancing; and Mr. Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam create much laughter in a comedy act, In the Studio. The Society Quartette are smart dancers; Devereux's Dogs meet with hearty recognition, and the Alex and Victor Duo, vocalists, are most acceptable.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — THE NEW HIPPODROME (late OPERA HOUSE).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—A change has come over the spirit of the dream in the above house, and on Monday its doors were opened for the first time as an up-to-date (two houses a night) music-hall. Special attention has been given to the lighting and scenic effects, and a crowded house testified their appreciation of the good fare placed before them by the management. The following appeared with the greatest success:—Kelly and Ashby (acrobatic performers), Nat Travers (coster comedian), Kyoto (clever Japanese contortionist), May Geraldine, Kate Watson, the Calcotts, Vasey and Ramsey, and Pat Doherty. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux were also an attraction.

BURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is appearing here in the drama, For Better or Worse, Mr. George E. Clive is capital as Captain Frank Hilliard; Mr. Scott Leighton makes a smart Major Gerald Crawford, and Mr. Owen Redmonde is a manly Lieutenant Hector Dalrymple; Miss Chrissie Dunbar gives a clever study of Belle Baverstock, and Miss Elsie Marriot-Watson is a charming Olive Heathcote. Specialities are introduced by Miss Nellie de Lacy (Dolly Delaney), Mr. Willie Black (Horatio Ranter), and Miss Jennie Hallworth (Melinda Little).

THE CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The turns here this week are all good, and include The Motor Maniac, by Will Rain and company; John Higgins, the champion jumper; Dale and Vale, duettists and dancers; Gillin, ventriloquist; Mark Merry, comedian; Bessie Willows, burlesque artist; Gilroy and Gross, comedians; and Bros. Onda in a comedy entitled On Deck.

THE HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The Tokio Japs give a wonderful performance of balancing, &c., and a funny burlesque entitled The Land Grabbers is played by a company of capable comedians. Other turns include Mike Cray, juggler; Percy Curry, comedian; Franks and Thomas, vocalists; Bruce and Ross, comedy acrobats; Mary M. Glenn, vocalist; and the Dancing Gilberts.

BUXTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday we had a return visit of Mr. George Dance's company in The Duchess of Dantzic. The opera was excellently staged and acted. Miss May Glenn again scored heavily in the name-part, her vocalisation quite delighting the audience, and Mr. Gerald Yorke gave a finished study as Napoleon; Mr. Ernest Torrance sang his music with telling effect and acted vigorously as Lefevbre; and Mr. Johnstone was admirably suited to the character of the Viscount de Bethune. Mr. Steve Fitzgerald did well as Papillon. Miss Buena Bent was a sprightly Lisette, and Miss Maggie White a pleasing Renee. The choruses were well-balanced and tuneful. For the remainder of the week Brigadier Gerard was in the bill.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—For the opening of the winter season here the management has secured an excellent piece in Held Apart, presented by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's Co. That gentleman, in the part of James Douglas, alias James Barlow, has a great deal to do, and makes a powerful stage villain; Miss Ruby Loucraine charms everybody as Sybil Grey, her performance being greatly admired; Miss Ethyle Murray as Quila Garcia makes a handsome adventuress; Mr. John Hood is good as John Douglas; Mr. Ernest G. Batley as Hugh Trevor, Mr. A. W. Norman as Captain Ford, and Mr. Robert B. Drysdale as Andrew McPherson are clever.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—After a considerable absence, The Girl from Kay's is making a reappearance in Cardiff, being capitally presented by Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. Arthur Stigant impersonates Hoggenheimer, and is the life and soul of the piece; Winnie Harborough is again portrayed by the charming and graceful actress, Miss Nancy Hervyn; Miss Aimee Grey does exceptionally well as Norah Chalmers, while a pert and pretty Ellen is found in Miss Chrissie Ralland. One of the funniest delineations of the piece is that of the hall porter by Mr. S. Major Jones, and Mr. Tom Shelford as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle is also responsible for much of the merry-making. Mr. Harry Franklyn (Harry Gordon), Mr. Buchanan Wake (Theodore Quench), and Mr. Charles Lupton (Mr. Chalmers) are all capitally suited in their respective parts. The chorus and augmented orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall, add much to the attractiveness of the popular piece.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Duncan.—An excellent drama is Her Lost Self, which is being played at the King's this week by Miss Frances Delaval's company. Miss Delaval is particularly successful in the important part of Philippine Marcel, while Miss Clare O'Sullivan, in her rendition of the heroine, submits a most creditable delineation. Mr. Cecil Gray as Wilfred Daventry gives a manly portrayal; Miss Min Johnson is distinctly clever as Dorothy Daventry; and a great attraction is the appearance of tiny Carrie Johnson, probably the smallest comedienne in the world. Mr. G. Osmond Tearle as Norman Esmond, Mr. George Lyttleton, jun., as Paul Kimberley, and Mr. Fred Lillywhite as Victor Elsworth are all valuable acquisitions to the caste.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Occupying a large portion of the performance this week is Miss Dolly Elsworthy and her company in The Orange Girl, Miss Elsworthy presenting a most excellent portrayal of Nell Gwynn. Lively Lillie Langtry is a particular favourite in Cardiff, and always secures a most cordial reception; Millie Payne is another attractive artiste; Bennet and Martell, as "the long and the short of it," provide much genuine amusement; and Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders constitute a magnificent spectacle and give a display of lightning drill; Carrie Joy, the captivating comedienne; George C. Doughty and company in a smart sketch, entitled Captain Cupid; Gwennie Hasto, a clever comedienne and dancer; and Clarice Netta, a charming vocalist, are considerable aids to the success of the programme; while the Bioscope pictures of the opening of the Fishguard-Rossclare route are most instructive.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. Arthur Milton's company is occupying the boards this week with The Cruise of the Calabar. Mr. Milton himself appears in the principal comedy part, Cherrible Chicklington, and meets with some success.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The principal turn here is provided by the Coloured Meisters, a quartette of negro vocalists, who render several quaint and amusing ditties harmoniously. Quite the favourite turn is Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre, a wonderfully well worked marionette show. A pleasing act is contributed by the Carinas, whose artistic handling of several instruments is much appreciated, Mark Leslie, an excellent dancer; the Two Neroes, comedy acrobats; Jack Crawley, comedian and raconteur; the Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers; and the Pepiscope complete the bill.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr Hy. Masterman.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company opened on Monday with In Holy (?) Russia. Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Renee Rubenoff is successful, and repeatedly wins the applause of the audience. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy gives due prominence to the humorous propensities of Micky Nolan; Mr Arthur Stratton make a blustering Uncle Dick, and contributes greatly to the humour of the piece; Mr. Horace Butler gives much satisfaction as Count Gregori Petrolski; Mr. Frank Copeland as Sir Harry Beresford submits a clever exposition of the part; Mr. Joe Cuthbertson gives a powerful interpretation of Baron Von Pleve; while the part of Laurice Steragoff is successfully played by Mr. Carl Rovinelli; Catska Lavotski is well portrayed by Miss Mavis Lee Anderson; the part of Michael Natolski is placed in the hands of Mr. Terence Nerry, and Miss Alice Marsden is satisfactory as Madam Natolski.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—R. C. Carton's Mr. Hopkinson is on a first visit to Chatham, and the name-part has a highly capable and hardworking representative in Mr. Frank Stanmore. Mr. Shirley Lea's Mr. Addleton is a good bit of character-work; as is also Mr. Arnold Lucy's Duke of Braceborough; the rôle of Duchess is played in a natural maner by Miss Alison Alexander; Miss Katherine M. Romsey gives a careful rendering of the part of Eliza Dibbs; Mr. C. M. Heslop is seen to advantage as Otho Dursingham; while Miss Gladys Jesson and Mr. Reginald Dane do well as Lady Tyra and Lord Cawthorpe respectively. The Snowstorm forms the curtain-raiser.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Excellent houses are the rule here. The week's programme is a strong one, including as it does Tiny Arnold, the well-known juvenile serio; the Pasquali Brothers; Gus Garrick, on a welcome return visit; Cordite and Buffalo, with smart rope manipulation; Will Poluski, in parody, song, and dance; Natalia and Diana, a pair of young trapeze artists; Fyne and Hurley, the coster and the dude; Lily Wood, soubrette; while James De Voye's educated horse "Billy" comes in for much applause; and Lacey's Erascope contributes its nightly share to the entertainment.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Good houses are the rule here, the great attraction being the one and only Paul Cinquevalli, whose exceedingly clever act meets with a most enthusiastic reception nightly. The Edisonograph has an interesting film entitled "The Miner's Daughter." Others appearing are Gracie Lawn, serio; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, in A Desperate Remedy; W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist; Bertha Lennard, comedienne and dancer; the Katos; and Dan Filmer, comedian.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—Mr. Harry Starr is here this week, paying a return visit with Carl the Clockmaker, in which he plays the title-rôle with all his accustomed versatility. Mr. Edwin Frith is successful as Maurice Helmore; Mr. Will Hee capably rendering Count Ivan Neiklevitch. As Farky Nabbs, Mr. Wm. Miller is decidedly humorous; and Mr. F. W. Graham is also seen to advantage as Arthur Attwood. Miss Madge Blundell charmingly depicts Madge Ryder; and Miss Kate Norris as Lena Harrigan and Miss Ella Crossley as Jerusha Jane Pickleinch are successful.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—PALACE, LTD.—The Bros. Ethairien top the bill here this week as nonsensical wonder-workers; Johnny Fuller, the cat on the wire, is clever; and Levetto, billed as the dancing wonder, is most certainly smart; Miss Alice Maple, serio, and Mr. Edgar Berte, raconteur, both give good turns; the Dalwoods are popular duettists and dancers, and the Three Sisters Thurban are clever vocalists and instrumentalists. On the 14th, Mr. Edgar Berte, who has been with the Pierrots all the season, was given a benefit.

OPERETTA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Ch. Macdona; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. H. Rhodes.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Mr. Henry E. Leigh's London company was seen to advantage in Fred Jarman's farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers and Miss Josephine Ellis are capital in the chief parts.

PIER PAVILION.—Good houses have been the order here despite the fact that the season is nearly over. Mr. Walter Howard, comedian; Mr. Henry A. Moore, entertainer; Miss Ethelle Vibert, the Welsh contralto; and Mr. Sidney Jarvis, the well-known baritone are the artists entertaining this week.

WESTCLIFF GARDENS.—In addition to Graham Russell and Bently, Mr. Harry Child, vocalist, and Mr. Ch. Bulwar, conjurer, have been here. Miss Winifred Siddons was announced for this week, but on the first two nights of the week she did not appear, owing to indisposition.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction here this week is The 10.30 Down Express, presented by Mr. Horace Stanley's company. Mr. George Beverley gives a finished interpretation of Jack O'Malley; Mr. Charles Burdon is highly successful as James Idderwick; Miss Elsie Capell makes a charming Bessie Leigh; Mr. Edwin Clarke acts cleverly as Detective Huntley Mason; Miss Evelyn M. Walton makes an eccentric Letitia Leigh; Olive Coombes is well portrayed by Miss Josephine Lee; Mr. Horace Hanley is decidedly amusing as Sam Wagstaff; Miss Kate Kilpack is highly entertaining as Peggy Potts; and Mr. Alaric Burton gives a good account of himself as Cuthbert Leigh. The drama is well dressed and mounted.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton. Sergeant Brue is here this week, and the company brought by Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Croesman is one of all-round excellence. Mr. E. Russell in the title-rôle was seen to great advantage on Monday night, and the large audience gave him a cordial welcome; Mr. J. A. Shale again appeared as Crookie Scrubbs, and was loudly encored for his sweet tenor songs; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy was a dashing Michael Brue; and Miss Kitty Dale sang in a melodious voice several songs in her part of Aurora. Miss Lily Lingard got the utmost out of the character of Lady Bickenhall, and the difficult part of Mr. Crank was cleverly depicted by Mr. H. Chichester.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—Dr. Walford Bodie is making his first visit to this town (which is famous as being the birthplace and burial-place of Gilbert, the first known electrician), and is causing a big sensation, and consequently is demonstrating to very full houses. The audiences are extremely favourable, listening to the doctor's remarks with marked attention, and applauding vociferously at the close of each demonstration. Harry Brown, the coloured comedian, is popular with all sections of the house, and so also is Mlle. Ameda, an equilibrist of considerable merit. Signor Bandoni, the one man orchestra, provides an attractive turn. Fred Hallam indulges in many eccentricities, and Bella Skene contributes to the harmony of the evening's entertainment.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance. The drama, The Life of a Showman, is being played here this week by Mr. Geo. Testo Sante and his excellent company. Mr. Logan Darra is good as Hendrick Marais, whilst as Rev. Cyril Arbiss Mr. Edward Warden is well placed. The part of Brien Leader, proprietor of a circus, and a strong man to boot, is most forcibly portrayed by Mr. Geo. Testo Sante, who is a host in himself. Miss Amy McNeill as Agatha Winter is excellent, and Miss Grace Harlington as Angelina Mutton is quite acceptable, and Miss May Warden plays the part of Lynette Leader effectively.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Cyril Keightley's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday with Miles Carew, Highwayman, written by Messrs. Harry and Edward Paulton. The play was enthusiastically received. In the title-rôle Mr. Keightley acted with genuine feeling; Miss Haidee Gunn as Ruth Beyfus invested that part with much charm; Miss Ethel Dane was a sufficiently conceited and affected Clara; as Lady Mallory Miss Alice Arden was a complete success; Mr. Henry Crocker was a decidedly good Jeremy and Mr. Iden Payne a very amusing Viner. The School for Scandal and She Stoops to Conquer are also billed.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme here this week is of all-round merit. Gustave Fashola, described as Indian fakir and Oriental wonder, is an exceedingly clever illusionist; Ethel Marks, comedienne, is responsible for a couple of pleasing ballads; J. A. Cassels, Scotch comedian, also contributes some capital songs; Avon and Crest deserve the name of specialty comedy artists; Bert Byrne, comedian, is amusing; the trapeze act given by the Sisters Marianos is both novel and smart; Sergeant Mumford in his wire act has few equals; and Flo Cecil sings and dances well.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. William Bennett.—A return visit of His Majesty's Guests is being paid by Mr. Fred Karno's company. Mr. George Hestor is responsible for a most amusing rendering of Sergeant Lightning; Mr. Frank Morton, as Lord Easum, with a capital baritone voice, sings some excellent songs; Miss Leonora Castelle makes a most imposing Lady Maud Easum; Mr. Charles Usher is seen to advantage as Mr. Miffin; and Mr. C. Sewell is funny as Mr. Minks.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—One of the chief turns at this popular house of amusement this week is Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton in the amusing sketch, entitled A Broken Journey; A Bo-Koo gives a marvellous exhibition as a juggler; Billy Ross and Co. appear in a taking comedy act, entitled A Hot Member; the Brothers O'Brien are responsible for some daring feats on the horizontal bar; Frank Seeley comedian, sings amusing songs; Carlotta Levey and Evelyn Taylor are capital comediennes; and the Animated Pictures include the Harvard-Cambridge Boat Race.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here in An Abandoned Woman. Mr. Foxwell himself plays the rôle of Paddy Boyle in a masterly manner. Miss Georgette Thierry does full justice to her part as Ninon Malvoisin; Mr. Wolston Foster is entrusted with the character of Captain Herbert Seaton, and interprets it with much feeling. He is ably supported by Mrs. Mary Richardson as Eleanor Dean. The part of Sir Marmaduke Seaton is in the capable hands of Mr. J. George Gormley, and that of Robert Saunders is capitally portrayed by Mr. P. Morton Wright. We cannot speak too highly of Mr. Bernard J. Leill's acting as Philippe Malvoisin, nor of Mr. A. Abott as Pierre. Mr. Will Glaze is a very able Sammy Sharpe, and Mr. Harrison Forbes is good as Jules. Mr. Pat Quinn is a life-like Sergeant Stubbles, and Miss Elsie Dean makes a fascinating Sally Sloper. We must not forget to speak well of Little Frances Maddocks as Mona Dean; neither must we withhold a word of praise from Miss Lily Addison for her sweet rendering of La Celeste.

CREWE. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Miss Annie Bell and company in Sapho is the attraction here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Bell acts with power and emotion, and makes a big hit; Mr. Pringle Roberts gives an excellent display as Jean Gaussin; Mr. John S. Chamberlain well sustains the part of Father le Grand; Mr. George Antley does credit to the character of Césaire; and Messrs. Reilly Connolly, H. Langford, and Lawrence Kingsley are suitably placed as Eugene, Caoudal, and Paul respectively.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—Messrs. Adrian Hill and Robert Ayrton's company opened on Monday with the Anglo-American drama, A Gambler's Daughter. As Desmond Mr. Robert Ayrton is a manly hero; and is ably seconded by Miss Adrian Hill in the title-rôle. This lady also acts the part of Mrs. Grant in a successful manner. As John Grant Mr. Richard Pitt has a heavy part to fill; and Mr. A. Sanders is a typical Solomon.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawton Lambert.—The boards here are occupied by Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company in The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt and The Drums of Oude. In the first named, Mr. Reginald Dance's rendering of Mr. Vanderveldt would be hard to improve upon; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton is seen at his best as Colonel Rayner; Mr. Edward Coutts is satisfactory in the rôle of Lord Woolham; Mr. George A. Seager makes the most of Sir Bartholomew Cardick; Mr. Russell Barry is good as Mr. Goddlestone; and Mr. George Percy droll as the Rev. Hubert Langston; Mr. F. Vernon Travers is capable as Mr. Mellon; and Mr. Gerald Henson is suitable as Algie; Miss Mary Weigall is an aristocratic Marchioness of Hendingby; Miss May Brooke admirably fits the rôle of Lady Clementina Desborough; Miss Eva Titheradge gives a natural portrait of Aggie Coles; Miss Agnes Gunn takes a prominent position as Miss Pelling; Miss Dorothy Haigh is a charming Mrs. Brevell; Miss Helen Tytler deserves praise as Mrs. Mellon; Miss Muriel Mason is neat as Mary; and Miss Gladys Mason supplies an admirable rendering of Lady Clarice Howland. The principal characters in the curtain-raiser are commendably undertaken by Messrs. Reginald Dance, Edward Coutts, F. Vernon Travers, and Miss Gladys Mason.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—The well-known drama Wep-Ton-No Mah is attracting large audiences here this week. The title-rôle is powerfully acted by Go-Won-Go Mohawk; Mr. C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton plays with convincing sincerity; Mr. Pasco Bioletti as Manuel Lopes is a striking figure; Mr. L. F. Vernon as Captain Franklin displays great talent; Mr. Edwin Standish is an excellent exponent of Chief Ga-Ne-Gauf; Mr. Guy D. Hackney creates merriment as Sam White; Mr. Dandy Ryan as Garry Cullen proves he is a particularly good comedian; Mr. H. Killey is capital as Billy; Mr. Antonio Driscoll is well placed as Rodrigues; and Mr. Albert Simms scores as Antelope; Miss Winnie Goepel as Nellie Stockton is a success; and Miss Dora Pass does well as Matilda Sniffles.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—An enjoyable list of amusements here this week includes Haley's Juveniles, who sing and dance themselves into favour; Belrose and Develin are clever duettists and soloists; Ella and Dacey Hope are amusing in the sketch, The Serio and the Slavey; Cyrus Dare gives some smart imitations of little children; Whit Cunliffe is an entertaining light comedian with good songs; Ella Shields, comedienne, is popular; the Bensons are great in their vocal and comedy act; Queenie May is a pleasing little comedienne; Collins and Hawley are unflagging dancing experts; and J. L. Shine and company in sketch Hogmanay are received with approval.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Variety is again the attraction this week. Mr. F. V. St. Clair delights audiences with his own topical songs; the Bros. Shepherd contribute entertaining patter; the Three Royal Temples sing with power in high-class trios; the society juggler, Halma, is astonishing; the Henriques are smart and funny acrobats; Trick and Trixie, musical and comedy artistes, are much appreciated; and Tom Odlin and the Bellograph are other attractions.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Variety is the fare here this week. Mlle. Florence causes quite a sensation with her unique performance on a rolling globe and champagne bottles. Abex, who styles himself a miniature Hercules, performs some excellent feats of strength; the Bendons are successful in their latest scena, That's How They Say Good Night. Harry Keeble, comedian; the Bros. Arnold, illusionists; the Dana Girls, duettists and dancers; Polly Adula, comedienne; Alvar, gymnast; Dale and D'Argan, comedy acrobatic conjurors; and Hoozee, a capital ventriloquist, complete the programme.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—A Country Girl is making a welcome reappearance here this week, its exponents being Mr. George Dance's No. 1 Company. The name-part is taken in delightful fashion by Miss Barbara Babington, her acting and singing alike being irreproachable. The Princess Melanch of Miss Ernestine Desborough is another outstanding feature of the performance, her rendering of the part being most acceptable. Miss Ellaline Thorne could hardly be improved upon in the rôle of Nan, and her singing leaves nothing to wish for. The Mme. Sophie of Miss Cissie Sephton is in all respects a capable assumption; Miss Muriel Johnson is entirely satisfactory as Mrs. St. Quinton; and Miss Leslie St. John is similarly successful as Lady Anchester. First among the actors is Mr. Coningsby Brierley, whose Barry it would be hard to beat. Mr. John M. Hay is a manly Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. F. J. Rooney scores as the Rajah; Mr. Arthur Jackson makes a diverting Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. Charles Stafford should also have special mention as Douglas Verity. The play is charmingly mounted.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Chas. Baldwin's comedians, in their absurdity, Bank Clerks, are the principal attraction here this week, and they are to be congratulated upon their excellent performance. The Morimuras, Japanese illusionists, give a capital conjuring turn; Cavern and Cave, in their scena, An Early Morning Dip, and the Custances in a sketch, A Game for Two, cause much hearty laughter. Daisy Ray is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Harry Luck, comedian, gives a good turn; Wright and Eldon provoke much mirth with their eccentricities; and the Palace Bioscope submits some interesting pictures.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—It would be impossible to praise too highly the splendid fairy spectacle Beauty and the Beast seen here this week. The children who take part in it evince praiseworthy discipline and unity in song, action, and dancing. Miss May Gibson, a pretty exponent of Silverstar, is particularly notable for her excellent vocal work. A remarkable youngster is Wee George Wood, who certainly has the sense of comedy strongly developed. Miss Kitty Trewhitt as Prince Charming has achieved great success. The portrayal of Beauty by Miss Dolly Dodds is also commendable. Master Jack Harrison acquits himself very well as Baron Hardup. Very funny in their extravagances are the Bros. Armstrong as Dressalinda and Marigolda. Messrs. Adams and Sloan show exceptional talent as comedians in the rôles of Flip and Flop. The Marguerita Quartette of dancers danced with much gracefulness and skill, and the solo dancer La Belle Annette deserves to be singled out for special eulogy. Miss Edie Camm plays Marjorie Daw very smartly; and other characters are represented with merit and spirit by Misses Annie Brumby (Patience), Nellie Adamson (Virtue), Olive Woodridge (Innocence), Flo. Edwards (Grace), Beattie Townshend (Evilheart), Daisy Fielder (Will Scarlett), Isa Gibson (Maid Marion), Gladys Skipp (Tommy Tucker), and Mr. Will Oraton played the Beast successfully.

HIPPODROME. — General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—Miss Flo Warner, a sprightly and dashing singer, greatly pleases her auditors; Yorick and Yorick, as innocents abroad in A Mixed-up Affair, introduce some enjoyable tale-telling and tumbling; the Five Musical Palmers are wonderfully popular in their musical speciality, Officers at Play. Lily Arthur, the toy comedienne; the Reays, athletic equilibrists; Reed and Lerne, comedians; Will Daniels, comedian; Daisy Almer, comedienne and dancer; and the versatile comedy duo, Ton Drum and Kilty Major, also contribute; and the Bioscope pictures, operated by Mr. Harris, are much appreciated.

DONCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE. — Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The attraction here this week is a powerful variety combination, Miss Pathe Burton, vocalist, with a highly cultured resonant voice, heading the list. Billy Beevor, comedian and dancer, is well received; the Levans, song illustrators, are refined and attractive, as are the Two Roses, duettists and dancers; Chester and Lee's Marionettes are a good turn; Harrap and Vinray are quaintly humorous in their comedy act, Would-be Actors; Tom Johnstone, actor vocalist, wins popular favour; the Spring Trio, lady barrel jumpers, are alert and engaging; and the concluding item, Tom Davis's company in the comical sketch, Furgusone's Dog, is greeted with enthusiastic applause.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Grand Theatre Company; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—This week's attraction here is A Royal Divorce, presented by Mr. W. W. Kelly's company. Miss Edith Cole's Josephine is a beautiful performance, which commands the sympathy of the house; Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon recalls celebrated paintings of the great emperor, and plays with power; the Talleyrand of Mr. Joynsen Powell is a striking study; Mr. Graham Woods was well suited as the Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. Thomas Barry as General Augereau acted with distinction; and Mr. St. George Frere presented a dashing portrait of Murat. Miss Ayres Imlay's Marie Louise was pathetic. The scenery and dresses are on a lavish scale.

GAIETY THEATRE.—The comedy in three acts, What the Butler Saw, is at the Gaiety Theatre this week. Pink, the butler, as created by Mr. Lionel Rignold, possesses great humour; Miss Marie D'Altra as Miss Foden shows the value of a small part in capable hands; the Mrs. Barrington of Miss Ada Blanche is bright and fascinating; Mr. Charles Fawcett presents a persuasive peccant husband; Mr. Reddick Anderson makes of Sir Charles Foden a capital character; Mr. George Ascott is very funny as General Dunlop; and Mr. Harry Rignold extracts broad grins by his impersonation of Abraham Weinstein; Miss Jenny Wigney looks pretty as Nora, and Miss Dorothy Garth is a pleasing Maria.

THE PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—The variety turns here are excellent. Miss Jessie Barlee and Mr. Phil Smith present a smart little sketch, and their imitations of society types create genuine amusement. Mr. Dick Bradley is a daring trick cyclist; Ray and Miles are diverting jugglers; Jennion's Fantoches are admirable; Mr. Fred Lister is a popular comic singer; Mint and Mart exhibit the possibility of tearing paper into curious forms; and the gymnastic speciality act of Craig, Rose, and Craig appeals to a large percentage of the Palace's clientele. Vernon's Bioscope has numerous good pictures.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. F. J. Connor; Ring-Master, Mr. W. R. Albino.—The last week here has been devoted to benefits. Monday was devoted to the advertising staff; Tuesday to Wombes the Droll; Wednesday to Dan Gregory; Thursday to Mr. W. R. Albino; Friday to Mons. Eugene Foote and Miss Rowland, and to-day will occur the popular recognition won by Mr. W. Tudor and his performing ponies. In addition to these artists, who appear nightly, Fra Diavolo; or, the Brigands of Calabria, a pantomime sketch which is funny, and the Towergraph are presented.

DERBY CASTLE.—A most successful season was concluded on Saturday evening last, when a crowded audience witnessed the representation of The Manx Mhelliah, or Harvest Home.

CHARLES DARE'S MINSTRELS continue to attract thousands to the head of Douglas Bay on fine days.

MR. FREDERICK BUXTON'S PIERROTS and TEA VILLAGE have an enormous clientele, and as he provides amusement wet or fine the attendance is phenomenal.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A new musical farce entitled The Lady Cobbler; or, The Lord of the Last is being presented here this week by Mr. Fred Paul's company. Miss Pauline Hague, a pleasing and refined artist, plays the title-rôle with much skill, and renders her songs with charm; Miss Nina Westerleigh's daintiness and captivating manner are eminently suited to the part of Millie Meredith; and Miss Maude Henderson is a dignified and austere Duchess. A really clever and humorous impersonation of Mrs. Jones Jones is given by Miss Louie Tinsley, whose eccentricities evoke the heartiest laughter and warm applause; Miss Elsa Milward plays Madame Jenner with success; and Miss Dora Challoner is decidedly good as Martha. Mr. Harry O. Morton as Sir Henry Ackerman—the Lord of the Last—gives a distinctly lively and humorous portrayal; Mr. Scrope-Quentin's excellent voice is heard to advantage in "Idol, my Idol!" and a stirring patriotic song; Mr. Forrester Harvey contributes a conventional study of a dude as the Hon. Algy Lasterlin; Mr. Edward A. Rose portrays with skill the character of the excitable Frenchman Professor Jenner; Mr. Harry Emeric succeeds in winning much laughter and applause by his irresistibly funny mannerisms as Pip; while a special word of praise is due to Mr. Arthur Ricketts for his well-studied and decidedly clever acting as Jackson.

THE PAVILION, PROMENADE PIER.—Lessees, the Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—This week the boards were occupied by a comedy concert party who call themselves the Redcaps, and are under the direction of Mr. Edwardes-Towle. Miss Elsie Cooper has a voice of excellent quality and sings with much expression; Miss Phyllis Beryls gains much applause for her well-rendered solos; while other items are given by Mr. Edward Martyn, tenor; Mr. W. Edwards-Towle, baritone; Mr. Cuthbert Rose, a clever humorist; and Miss Gladys Cuningham, an efficient pianist.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager

Mr. Huntley was responsible for a clever and highly amusing interpretation of Freddy Popple; Miss Millie Legarde was delightful in the rôle of La Bolero, her singing and dancing being much admired; Mr. S. Basil Foster acted with ease as Norman Popple; Miss Nellie Hodson was seen to advantage as Louise; and Mr. Charles Daly as Platt added to the amusement. The parts of George Hennay and Henry Doring were ably sustained by Messrs. Sydney Young and James Stephenson, and Miss Ella Daincourt as Mrs. Hennay and Miss Kate Forster as Mrs. Doring were both admirable. The staging and scenery were excellent, and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Julian Rutt, was all that could be desired.

QUEEN'S ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—A Mother's Love has been a strong attraction here this week, Mr. Fred L. Connyngham's company including several capable artists. Mr. Arthur Mervyn makes an excellent Paul Wingate; Miss Rosa Mervyn plays with marked effect the rôle of Miss Minnie Wingate; comedy is provided by Mr. Fred L. Connyngham as Mat Ruddock; and Miss Corrie Ellie acquits herself creditably as Miss Elaine Mervin; Mr. A. E. Pringle handles the rôle of Geoffrey Mannering with excellent effect; Miss Marjorie Wingate has a pleasing representative in Miss Holly Haslewood. Ralph Mervin is well sustained by Mr. S. Clifton; and Mr. Paul Palmer is capital in the part of John Corbet.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A welcome return visit is being paid us this week by Miss Marie Kendall, who sings her songs in her own inimitable style, and is frequently encored. A turn which provides hearty merriment is supplied by Barton and Ashley in their comedy act, Canal Boat Sal; Viola, an accomplished musician, is warmly applauded; Lord, Murray, and Lord are highly amusing in their sketch, The Intruder; Charles J. Johnson, the Black Diamond, meets with appreciation; Miss Esta Stella has a good reception for her selections; the Brothers Obo, laughing comedians, score a success; Atroy, in a smart juggling act, is well received; and Steve McCarthy, comedian, makes a decided hit. The Empire pictures are also interesting.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Here we have Hayman and Franklin in a sketch entitled Matrimonial Agency; Tennis and Laune, in a vocal scena, Chapters from Life; the Lizette Troupe, lady acrobats; Alexandra Royal, a dainty comedienne; Rappo and Ella, smart equilibrists; Bert Weston, a successful comedian; Flo Banks, comedienne, with some pleasing songs; Elsie Rubina, wire performer; and Sam Mayo. The Bioscope completes the performance.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—"The Middies and the Maids" company, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Randal, are furnishing a good entertainment here. Messrs. Randal and Williams, in solos and duets, are responsible for a good deal of laughter, and Miss Nellie Toner, Mr. Walter Forder, and Miss Dora Lind are also to be commended. The Bioscope pictures are interesting. Thursday night was set apart for the benefit of the general manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The artists here include the Incemores, duettists and dancers; Sadie Bush, ballad vocalist; Bert Le Roy, eccentric comedian; Dolly Vince, serio and dancer; and Prof. Ledger, ventriloquist.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following are appearing here:—Alice Townsend, vocalist; the Dewars, sketch artists; Costello and Caren, comedy duo; Marion Vaudrey, ballad vocalist; and Tom Gray, eccentric comedian.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Dicky Clare's company of comedians is here this week with Lucky Liza. Mr. Clare takes a prominent part, and works hard as Silas Slim, ably supported by Miss Madge Brownie, who acts with vivacity and charm in the title-rôle; Mr. Leonard Maitland is highly amusing as the dude Paul Pettitoe, and Mr. H. A. Griffiths introduces some remarkably dry humour as William Biffins; Miss Vesta Brownie acts the part of Verginia Blatherwick prettily, and the other parts are satisfactorily filled.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—McCann's performing Irish terriers occupy the top of the bill here this week; Blanche and Diacuff, tea-cup track cyclists, are proving a great attraction with their sensational performance; the Sages are excellent comedy artists; Marie Walker is a clever trombone soloist; Daisy Silcott, burlesque artist, has some catchy songs; and Jack Heath, comedian, pleases his audience immensely. The Empire Pictures complete the programme.

DUNDALK.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, Urban Council.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here this week in a welcome return visit with The Country Girl. The company gives an excellent performance, under the able management of Mr. W. Besley Beltran, who also plays the part of Douglas Verity in his usual finished style. Mr. Martin D. Pitts is a manly Geoffrey Challoner; Miss Blanch Courtney is a capital Nan, and receives much applause for her singing. Barry, in the hands of Mr. Frank Weir, is quite safe, his funny acting, singing, and dancing keeping the house in real good humour throughout the evening. Mr. Bernard Vaughan as The Rajah is quite a success, while Miss Violet Leslie's charming voice is heard to great advantage in the part of Marjorie Joy. The Princess is in the able hands of Miss Narcelli, while Mr. Geo. Stone is Granfer Mummery. Mr. Eric Dalvere as Lord Anchester and Mr. W. O. Billington as Sir Joseph Verity capably fill their respective parts.

DUNDEE. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing this week in that sparkling musical comedy, Lady Madcap. Lady Betty is charmingly impersonated by Miss Vera Vere, her whole performance being delightfully effective, while her tasteful and piquant dancing is much admired. Miss Maise North as Gwenny Holden is admirable. Miss Florence Raymond is exceedingly good as Mrs. Layton; and Miss Peggy Primrose makes an attractive Lady Betty's Maid, winning rounds of applause for her dainty dancing. Mr. H. V. Surrey as Oroya Brown is the cause of much hearty laughter, his appearance as the butler being comical in the extreme. The parts of the adventurers, Bill Stratford and Posh Jenkins, are capitally played by Mr. Percival Knight and Mr. Oliver Rounds, who completely bring down the house by their quaint rendering of the droll duet, "'Ow do you do, if you please?" Mr. Tommy Melldon makes a comical Corporal Ham, and his nimble dancing is admirable. Mr. Alex. Chentrens as Count de St. Hubert, scores in his clever French versions of various popular songs. Captain Harrington is capitally played by Mr. D. Phillips, and all the other parts are in excellent keeping. The piece is very prettily staged, while the singing and attractive business of the chorus is much above the average. An augmented orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Ernest Hartman.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A varied and attractive programme is submitted by the management this week, the topliner being Addie Dorina, a lady protean artiste, who submits a marvellous quick-change performance, which meets with the warmest approval. Two sketches by the Four Kays, and the Forest Comedy Company, are well played, and prove exhilarating fare, while the turns of Kay and Kooney, and Ray Ford, comedienne and dancer, are much enjoyed. The Two Wambas, instrumental entertainers, are exceedingly original, while David Poole, ventriloquist, gives a clever and novel show; Gilbert Girard, styled "the human harp," is particularly good in his imitation of farmyard sounds; La Belle Lily and Albert perform a series of amazing evolutions on the trapeze, and the Mioscope concludes the evening's entertainment.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—A brilliant programme includes the Nine Andos, acrobats, jugglers, and wire walkers, who are the chief attraction. Others appearing are Irene Rose, a dainty serio; Jenny Clare, a dashing comedienne; George Casey, a capital comedian and dancer; the Cosmans, a couple of entertaining comedy artists; and the Three K's, expert dancers, who all meet with well merited success. As usual, the Gaiety Bioscope, with a capital assortment of films, completes the evening's entertainment.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—On Monday evening Mr. Gilbert Payne produced his new musical absurdity, entitled The Honeymoon, a notice of which will be found in another column, and a large and appreciative house gave it a good send-off.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—This week Mr Edward Marris's No. 1 Company, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kirby, in Somebody's Sweetheart, is the great attraction. Mr. E. H. Bertram gives a capable representation of Stanton Ashleigh; Miss Millie Gordon makes a suitable Freddie Ashleigh; in the part of Martin Blabbs Mr. W. H. Kirby is humorous; Mr. Douglas B. Watson is an excellent Stephen Leverton; Mr. J. Templar Ellis does full justice to the part of Lem Lee; and Old Joe has a good exponent in Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber; Miss Molly Hackett as Lulu acts and sings well; Miss Cordelia Knight is a fascinating Zora; and Miss Norah Melton proves a capable Mrs. Ainslie.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—For the first three evenings of the week Mrs. and Mr. Kendal appeared here, and, as usual, played to the full holding capacity of the house. On Tuesday evening The Elder Miss Blossom was staged. Nothing new remains to be said of Mrs. Kendal's fine work as Miss Blossom, but her exquisite acting, particularly in the second act, remains a standard of perfect art; Miss Dorothy Moore-Lane possesses all the life and girlish brightness which made Sophie Blossom a very interesting young lady; and Mrs. A. B. Tapping and Miss Kate Bishop gave of their very clever and experienced work as Cooper and Mrs. Wells. Mr. Kendal, easy and polished, was a delightful Andrew Quick; Mr. Bassett Roe a characteristic Major Twentyman, and Mr. Ernest Hendrie a capital Christopher Blossom. Mr. Metcalfe Wood succeeded conspicuously as Withers; Mr. Herbert Harben was a pleasing and easy Arthur Leacroft; and Mr. R. Burnett ably sustained the part of Tyrel Jones. The Ironmaster and The Housekeeper were played on the other evenings. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is billed for the latter part of the week in Public Opinion.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company appeared here during the Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week in Mr. Popple, and drew crowded houses at each performance. Mr. Morris Harvey, as Freddy Popple was responsible for a vast amount of fun and amusement; Miss Mamie Brickwell made a charming and attractive La Bolero; and Miss Claire Pridelle a pretty and natural Violet Brinton. During the first part of this week Mr. Mouillot's company appeared in Faust "Up-to-date." Miss Mimi Fisher as Young Faust sang, danced, and acted in a very bright manner; Miss Daisy Irving's capital voice was heard with excellent effect as Marguerita; Miss May Davis, petite and brimful of brightness, was an excellent Siebel; and Miss Maisie Riversdale was prominently successful and a most amusing Martha. Miss Lottie Crawford was a capable Elsa, and the clever and graceful dancing of Miss Marie Dale (vivandière) must be specially noted and praised. Mr. F. W. Bowes did invaluable service as a comic Valentine; Mr. Rowland Henry excelled as Mephistopheles; and Mr. Gambier Melford did capable duty as the Lord Chancellor, his topical duet with Mr. Henry being well received. The chorus is very efficient, and Mr. W. D. J. Damant is the musical director. The pas de quatre was admirably danced and loudly encored. Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here during the latter part of the week.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Great interest is being shown in the amateur competition held here this week. Money prizes are offered, and a week's engagement at each of the seven halls will be given to the winner. A turn well received and loudly applauded is that given by the Billy McClain Troupe (including Miss Cordelia), Miss Cora Duncan and Mr. Albert Brasque are very successful in a sketch A Dressing-room Romance; Mr. Morny Cash returns to highly amuse the audience; Miss Nellie Adams sings and plays with much ability; Miss Amy Elvira scores highly as a burlesque artiste; Mr. Sonny Moss sings to the delight of the audience, and new funny pictures are introduced.

ECCLES.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is presenting here The Sin of Her Childhood, which is staged in good style. Miss Florence Creagh is excellent as Mary Haysel; Mr. Frederick Loyd successfully undertakes the impersonation of Captain John Thornton; Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks plays well as Maria Haysel; Little Dot Moss as Hannah Spry, and Hugh Brady as Barney O'Reilly add materially to the success by their eccentricities; Miss Ivy Rochefort as Eric Dugdale is good. Mr. Austin Milroy makes the best of his part as Shephen Haysel; and the character of Rev. Alan Grey is in the capable hands of Mr. E. E. Clive.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—In the presence of a crowded audience, which included Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. Lewis Waller, Miss Evelyn Millard, and company opened here on Monday with Brigadier Gerard. Sir Arthur has, in the title part, fitted Mr. Waller with one of those parts in which the public delight to see him, and the actor plays it with wonderful finish, humour, and dramatic power. Miss Millard, a picturesque, graceful figure in the dress of the Empire, acts the part of the Comtesse with brilliancy and charm. Mr. A. E. George delineates with masterly skill the character of Napoleon; and Mr. Edward O'Neill realises very vividly the portrait of Talleyrand. Mr. Shiel Barry makes the character of D'Albert an outstanding one, and excellent support is afforded to the principals by Mr. R. C. Smith as Pierre; Mr. Frank Woolfe as Major Olivier; Mr. S. B. Brereton as Captain Sabattier; Mr. Frank Cochrane as Mons. Bassompierre; Mr. Herbert Vyvyan as Papilette, and by Miss Helen Leyton as Agnes, a small part very attractively played. The scenery is elaborate, and the comedy is beautifully dressed. The grim monologue, Fortune's Fool, which precedes the principal piece, gives Mr. Waller a further opportunity of displaying his versatility.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The Only Way has long been recognised as one of Mr. Martin Harvey's strongest productions; and judging from the reception of the piece on Monday it has lost none of its fascination. Nothing can be added to what has many times been written of Mr. Harvey's impersonation of Sydney Carton. It remains a masterpiece of the actor's art. Miss N. de Silva repeats her successful rendering of her original part of Mimi; and Miss Coleridge appears to advantage as Lucie Manette. To the rôle of Charles Darney, Mr. L. Craske imparts much courtliness and dignity; while an admirable picture of Doctor Manette is given by Mr. Fred Wright, senior. The Vengeance and a citizeness find forcible exponents in Miss Mary Rorke and Miss Bessie Elder; and Mr. Charles Glenney as Ernest Defarge, Mr. H. Blackmore as a Peasant, with others who fill many minor parts do praiseworthy work. Boy O'Carroll was presented, for the first time in Edinburgh, on Tuesday. The Breed of the Treshams and Hamlet have also been included in the repertory for the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Fischer.—A good company organised by Mr. Julian Malvern occupies the Grand Theatre this week with I Defy the World. Mr. Charles M. Julian makes the most of a good part as Samuel Wozzle; the hero Leon Darville finds an excellent representative in Mr. Percy Ballard; the rôle of the Count is well played by Mr. Charles Wilton; Mr. Alfred Denning is good as General Delaporte; and the parts of Laroche and André are well acted by Mr. Charles Conway and Mr. Arthur Chisholm. Miss Maud Lillian provides unlimited amusement by her Mary Wozzle; an artistic rendering of the rôle of Pauline Delaporte is given by Miss Rosalie Heath; and Blanche Darville is effectively portrayed by Miss Violet Crawford.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The undiminished popularity of Miss Vesta Tilley is well demonstrated by the very large audiences which are attracted nightly to the Empire this week. The dainty comedienne is heard at her best. Her songs, old and new, are hit off with the neatness and brightness characteristic of her style, and with an unflagging flow of light-hearted humour. Miss Winifred Hare commands the heartiest applause by her excellent vocal method and charming appearance. The Scottish Meisters sing with humour and effect several quartets; and Mr. Dion Wade is extremely happy in his imitations. Mr. Ian Colquhoun gives with great success baritone solos full of life and vigour; Albertus and Millar are distinctly clever in their sketch A Scene in the Fair Grounds, their work with Indian clubs being especially smart; and Spry and Austin are excellent in their turn, which, as usual, is well supplied with genuine amusement; Mr. Phil Hermon, dialect comedian; Fielding and Hull, vocalists; Mr. Henry Hayton, comedian; and the Three Sisters Kellner, in their speciality dances, complete an admirable programme.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is here this week. On Monday night Much Ado About Nothing was presented. In the rôle of Benedick Mr. Henry Herbert was very amusing; in Miss Dorothy Green was seen a vivacious Beatrice; while the hero of Miss Mary Webb won for that lady unstinted applause; Mr. Gerald Ames and Mr. Charles Francis well portrayed Don Pedro and Claudio respectively; and a word of praise is also due to Mr. E. Spencer Geach for his rendering of Leonato. Mr. Reginald Davis ably sustained the part of Don John, and Mr. Philip Merivale was good as Friar Francis. On Tuesday Twelfth Night was presented in excellent style. As You Like It, Henry V., She Stoops to Conquer, and Richard III. are also in the week's programme.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt. The Shadow of a Crime (Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred D'Arcy's company) was played here the first three nights of the week. As the title indicates, the piece is of the stirring and sensational type, but it is also pleasantly blended with wholesome humour and many touches of pathetic interest. As Loyale Norman, Miss Ina Grant represented the part with much credit; Mr. Robert Forder ably represented the villain, Ralph Esmond; Miss May Rosine in the character of Mrs. Thomas Brown, gave the necessary life to the drama, and Mr. E. W. Avery as Tom Brown, was a clever interpretation. On Thursday evening a three nights' engagement was opened by Mr. R. A. P. Williams' company in the comic opera Les Cloches de Corneville.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company, in The Days of Cromwell, is paying us a visit. Mr. Robertson Foulis gives a capable representation of Sir Marsden Mardyke; Mr. Henry Belding as Ironhand is all that can be desired; Mr. T. R. White as Shadrack Shadwell is responsible for a clever impersonation; and Mr. Hardy as Matthew Mardyke is satisfactory; Miss Annie Clunn is to be complimented on her assumption of Betsy; and Miss Gertrude Gillman as Ruby Avondale gives a pleasing performance; Miss May Bracey is successful as Mrs. Shadwell.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr H. J. Snelson.—This week Mr. Gordon's company presents The Best Woman in the World, a capital domestic drama. Miss Lily Annesley is excellent in the title-rôle; Miss Elton, a graceful and pleasing Trixy McKinley, brings down the house with her vivacious duologues with Mr. Teddy Smyth as the Hon. Herbert Fitzherbert; Mr Basil Mitchell as the villain is excellent; Mr. Arthur Curzon as the hero is uncommonly good, his acting is natural and unaffected. Mr. J. V. Gordon as a Jew moneylender is also good, and Mr. George Lee sustains a strong part.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—On Thursday, last week, Mr. George Dance's company opened a three nights' engagement here in A Country Girl. Miss Maisie Gay as Nan was as charming and vivacious as ever; Mr. Percy Carr as Geoffrey Challoner scored with his fine singing; Miss Winnie O'Connor also sang and acted well as the Princess; and Mr. F. W. Pedgrift's embodiment of Granfer Mummery deserved the highest praise, his make-up being really excellent. Miss Addie Lennard made a sprightly Sophie; and Mr. Charles Walenn caused many a laugh as Barry. On Monday, Mr. George Dance's company opened in The Little Michus. Mr. Foster Courtenay gave a clever impersonation of General des Ifs; Mr. William Everard was a satisfactory Gaston Rigaud; Mr. Robert Harcourt rendered capital aid as Aristide Vert; Mr. Leon Simkin as Pierre Michu played with humour; Miss Florence Hilton was all that could be desired as Madame Michu; and as the little Michus, Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Ethel Bryan were delightful; Mlle. Marjorie was a clever dancer. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company occupied the boards on Thursday.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs. Keith Prowse and Co., Ltd.; Local Manager, Mr. J. Fenton Walsh.—This week we have here Miss Gertrude Snow, mezzo, who well deserves her success; Mr. Herbert Stockwell, tenor, possesses a fine voice; Mr. Rex Curtis, baritone, sings with culture and charm; Mr. Fred Daniels is a clever humourist; Mr. Owen Clarke gives a talented performance; and the Misses Aileen and Doris Woods, in original and Maori selections, are great favourites.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. A. Sitter.— Miss Lilian Inglis, soprano, renders several songs in a pleasing manner; Mr. Willie Rouse is a humorist of more than ordinary ability; and the animated pictures score a success.

TOWN HALL.—Lessee, Mr. E. J. Chadwick.—Andrew's pictures are here this week, with an exceptionally interesting set of films.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General-Manager, Mr. Joe May.—Large audiences have welcomed Mr. George Leyton whose latest dramatic episode The Wreck of the Birkenhead has been enthusiastically received; John Green Marx, described as the modern Hercules, gives an exhibition of weight-lifting, the equal of which has never been seen here; one of the most acceptable items in the bill is submitted by the Morton Comedy Trio of vocalists; A Hot Time for One is the title of a very amusing sketch presented by the Five Bon-Bons; Vincent, an acrobatic table expert has a daring performance which is well received; Tom E. Hughes, a local comedian, makes a hit; King Roy, a coloured basso-cantante, is loudly applauded for his renderings of "Beware," and "The Village Blacksmith"; a very smart acrobat and contortionist is Zaid, a Spanish Moor, who is assisted by Miss Orienta; and Halter and Ray, Hebrew comedy artists, complete the bill.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The top-liner here this week is Marquis Itonge, who presents an equilibristic act which wins loud applause; Ernesto has an acceptable juggling act which is highly appreciated; Sam Dalton, a clever comedian, causes a deal of merriment; Lillian Travellie is a talented vocalist; the Sisters Brooklyn are responsible for an entertaining singing and dancing act; and Madge Allan is a stylish comedienne; and Downey's Living Pictures conclude the "show."

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Miss Ida Millais and company (under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne) are presenting No Man's Land here this week. Mr. Henry Herne is responsible for a powerful portrayal of Harry Oaklands; Mr. A. G. Lytton is highly successful in the rôle of Mat Marsden; in the dual rôles of Gilbert and Captain Norman Bathurst, Mr. Alfred Byron is seen to distinct advantage; Mr. Frank Dennis is quite "at home" in the part of Silas Moore; Mr. Vernon L. Thomas makes a capital Thompson Poodle; as Mary Bathurst, Miss Millais is a great favourite; and Miss Nancy Mitchell as Bessie Poodle and Mrs. Mallalieu as Mrs. Poodle both do well in their respective parts.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Messrs. Darcy and Little's company in On the Stroke of Twelve was here on Thursday and Friday, and secured a good reception. All the characters are well portrayed, Miss Beatrice Moore as Doris Rutledge and Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle as Jack Rutledge gaining the highest encomiums. Mr. P. Palmer is very conspicuous as Henry Rutledge.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—On Monday night a packed house welcomed Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company in the new drama, A False Wife. Mr. G. Langham is good in the part of Sir Colin Mansfield; and Mr. W. H. Barlow does full justice to the rôle of Lieut. George Mansfield. Mr. F. Marriott-Watson gives a powerful portrayal of the villainous Jean Beraud; Miss Florence E. Florence keeps the house spellbound by her dramatic acting as Estelle de Lusan; Mr. E. Morgan is a boisterous Ben Rattler, brimful of humour. He is ably assisted by Miss M. Leslie as Bessie Blazer. Miss A. Hylton gives a sweet and sympathetic portrayal of the trying rôle of Agnes Weyland; Mr. O. Edwin is highly amusing as Archibald Brown Tee; Mr. C. Osborne is well placed as Inspector Fulton; Miss F. Morgan gives a wonderful performance as Sarah Bernstein. The Conscript is announced for the last three nights.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. George Dance's chief company, with The Spring Chicken, is playing to big houses here. Miss Crissie Leonard, in her pretty peasant dresses, is quite bewitching as Rosalie, singing and dancing delightfully; Mr. Fred Payne is exceedingly droll as Mr. Girdle, keeping the house in constant laughter; Gustave Babori is excellently played by Mr. J. S. Durant; and Mr. Harry Averell is admirable as Boniface. Miss Nellie Kavanagh, a successful Mrs. Girdle, sings with telling effect; Miss Florence Lee is charming as Dulcie Babori; and Miss Poppy Poole is a captivating Baroness.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company occupies the boards this week with the successful light comedy, The Freedom of Suzanne. As Suzanne Trevor Miss Mabel Love is delightful, depicting the varying moods of the wilful wife with consumate skill; Mr. Temple Powell is very successful as Charles Trevor; Fitzroy Harding is capitally represented by Mr. F. J. Thurstans; and Sir Horace Hatten is well played by Mr. Patrick Quill. Miss Annie Stalman is an excellent Lady Charlotte Trevor; Miss Charlotte Mead a quaint Fanny Mitching; and Miss Violet Ley and Miss Dorothy Lart are both admirable as Lady Isabel Bury and Mrs. Tunstall.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The Four Kweeries present a most sensational, supernatural illusion, and thoroughly mystify their audience; Mr. Chas. Coborn is, as ever, first favourite in both new and old songs; and other artists appearing are Espinosa and Neilson, speciality dancers; Ruby Athol, vocalist; Charles Ulrick, barrel king; and Dollie Denton, comedienne.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION. — Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The return visit of the Follies is a welcome one, and full houses have been delighted with the effectively rendered songs and concerted pieces, and the merry humour of Messrs. H. G. Pelissier, Dan Everard, and Lewis Sydney, and the Misses Marjorie Napier, Ethel Allandale, Gwennie Mars, and Lilly Walbrook.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—Much interest is being manifested in Henri Cot, the French giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget, the one measuring 8ft. 7in. in height, and the other 1ft. 11in. Stelling exhibits his wonderfully intelligent dog; Foden proves himself a marvellous hand jumper; the Bros. Bright give a clever acrobatic turn; the Two Butterflies excel as gymnasts; the Humels contribute bare-backed equestrian acts; Rabbit amuses with his drolleries; and the Bros. Sidney give a sensational exhibition as trick cyclists.

CHAPPELL'S PROMENADE CONCERTS.—Benefits are the order of the day, and special programmes are provided. The new comers this week are the Evalos, who give a clever turn as gymnasts and jugglers; and Also, amusing reciter and expert hoop roller.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—This week's attraction here is Mr. Arnold Bell's company with a round of plays. On Monday night Hoodman Blind was presented to a good audience. Mr. Bell as Jack Yeulett made a decided hit, and the villainous Mark Lezzard was ably portrayed by Mr. Cuthbert Imrie, who receives capital assistance from Mr. F. Carlisle as Kridge; Mr. Herbert Fuller is seen to advantage as Ben Chibbles; Miss Frances Campbell distinguishes herself in the difficult double rôle of Nance and Jess, her half-sister; Miss Violet Campbell is a charming Polly Chibbles; and Miss Marion Forrester acted with ability as Liz, doubling the rôle of Granny Codling also. The other rôles are all in capable hands. Lost in London, East Lynne, Ben-my-Chree, The Shaughraun, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man are also in the week's bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The star turn here this week is given by Brooker and Narbis in a sketch, entitled The Interviewer, which proves very amusing. Other good turns are J. H. McCann, comedian and roller skate dancer; Kerreth and Kane, comedy musical artists; the Three Brothers Huxter, acrobatic speciality artists; Renson and Waite, vaudeville artists; Raglus, lawn tennis ball manipulator, and Brady and Johnson, comedy sketch artists.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Lottie Lennox, vocalist, heads the bill here, and sings several songs nicely; the Ellimans, musical entertainers; May Mars, burlesque actress; Dick Kendall, comedian; May Marton, comedienne; and Norman T. Mills, vocalist, are also on the bill, and their performances are appreciated.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—A melodrama new to Grimsby has been seen in The Spider and the Fly, and a capital representation is given by Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company. The companion parts of Cyril Girdlestone and Edith McAllister are admirably played by Mr. Stanley S. Gordon and Miss Nina Vaughton; whilst the strongly contrasting characters of Stella Gray and Welby Girdlestone are portrayed with suitable vividness by Miss Amy Venimore and Mr. Ellis J. Preston. Mr. H. C. Lancely is a dignified figure as the Rev. Mr. McAllister; and Mr. Frederick Ross wins favour as David Strong; very laughable is the work of Mr. Fred Terris and Mr. Charles A. Preece as the twins, Romulus and Remus Roe.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. North.—The Delevines, in their latest burlesque, Flipp and Flopp, cause much merriment; Gracie Grahame is a popular contributor, her songs being good and brightly rendered; the acrobatic turn of the Avolos, who perform upon half-a-dozen lofty, vertical poles is a distinct novelty; the Virginians, a quartette of coloured juveniles, delight everyone with their singing and dancing; Selbo, an expert juggler, displays exceptional skill in the manipulation of clubs; Harry Conlin, a comedian with really funny songs; Rose Coleman, dancer; and Silk and Sillcotte, in a comedy sketch, also appear.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Harry Tate's sketch, Fishing, has proved as laughable a burlesque as has been seen here; Daisy James gives an entertaining impersonation of the Gibson Girl, and presents a répertoire of smart songs; the equilibristic work of the Brothers Babusio is clever; and the juggling of the Jalvans is another attractive exhibition. Johnny Danvers is a popular comedian; and other turns are given by May Fallowfield, soubrette; Xley and Hamilton, musical comedy artists; and J. W. Ellison, comedian.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr C. Robert Perkins.—On the 14th the boards were occupied by Mr. F. Mouillot's company in The Geisha. The occasion was honoured by the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor, and the élite of the Island. Miss Louie Collier as O Mimosa San was altogether charming, her singing being very effective; Miss Florrie Saunders made a delightful Molly, Miss Aubrey Ashton an aristocratic Lady Winn, and Miss Violet Kenyon a chic Juliette; Mr. Cyril Thompson as Reginald was good, both vocally and dramatically; Wun Hi found a clever and capable exponent in Mr. Edward Carlton; Mr. Lionel Braham infused just the right amount of colour into his sketch of the Marquis Imari; and Captain Katana was admirably presented by Mr. J. M. Stringer.

GUILDFORD.—BOROUGH HALL.—Mr. Mouillot's capital company, under the able management of Mr. Gordon Starkey, in The Blue Moon drew a good house here on Saturday. Mr. Victor Wallace was successful as Major Callabone; Mr. A. Radcliff was excellent as Capt. Ormsby; while Mr. B. Mercer proved an acquisition as Bobby Scott; Mr. C. Stephenson as Private Taylor caused much amusement; and was ably aided by Miss May Audrey as Millicent. This lady's brightness and charm materially added to the success. Miss M. Glanbrane (Lady Babraham), and Miss D. Morgan as Evelyn also deserve praise; while Mlle. M. Naudin as Chandra sang very sweetly.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Miss Claudia Lasell and company are here this week with the successful musical comedy The Sweet Girl. The untiring vivacity and delightful singing of Miss Lasell in the title-rôle are generously recognised; while Mr. Fred Eastman is the life and soul of the comedy as the "temperance advocate." Some good work emanates from Mr. Leonard Russell, who both acts and sings buoyantly as Florian. A prepossessing Dick Kenyon is Mr. Lister Morrah, his contribution, "Love will find a way," being distinctly successful; while Mr. George De Lara as Prosper Plewney and Mr. W. H. Page as Major Gumo are admirably placed. Miss Alice Lethbridge's graceful dancing is a stepping stone to success. The orchestra, under the able guidance of Mr. R. Ernest Irving, perform their duty with credit.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. O. C. Culling.—Heading an exhilarating programme, those clever Americans Hill and Whitaker, vocalists and instrumentalists, are exceptionally clever. Dan Fitzgerald, supported by a good company, is presenting The Burglar Prince, with gratifying results. Others here are the Anartos, the Bob Hanlon troupe, Calile and Walker, Maud Esmond, Culysitt, and Barney Burke and Bray.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—An excellent company is here this week, the leading turn being provided by Fred Lawrence and company in a musical mélange, Muggins, V.C. A clever troupe of dancers are the Lottie Stones' combination, who are making a welcome return visit. Frank and Free, in Married Life, have been very favourably received. Lennie and Hast in A Sea Nymph are excellent. Wat Tyler, comedian; Tom Yorke, Brown and Robinson, and the Three Brothers Curran are also successful.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. William Maclaren and company are paying a welcome return visit in Claudian. In the title-rôle Mr. Maclaren contributes an interesting study; Miss Lily C. Bandmann chorus under the conductorship of Mr. Augustus T. MacInnes render their share of the work in an artistic and finished manner.

HEREFORD.—DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—A Chinese Honeymoon was presented here on Monday by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. The part of Fi-Fi was played with great success by Miss Kitty Clayton; Miss Frances Oscar was delightful as Soo-Soo; she is a charming vocalist, and was received with much applause; the names of the Misses Florence Wilton, Alma Bolton, and Messrs. James Wilson and Charles F. Howard may all be singled out for their excellent interpretations.

HERNE BAY.—TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr. T. B. Watson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King opened here on Monday. Mr. Horace E. Herbert gives a masterly performance of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Percy Foster plays well as Jaikes; Mr. Oswald Cray is particularly good as the Spider; and Mr. William Dempsey scores a success as Elijah Combe. Miss B. Boyle is seen to advantage as Nellie Denver; and Miss Dorothea Black acts well as Olive Skinner.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Geo. R. Baker.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company opened on Monday in Honour Thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron as Gabriel Garth is a characteristic old man, and is heartily applauded; Mr. Bertram Ross is a manly Jack Halyard; and Duncan Bly has a capable exponent in the hands of Mr. W. R. Winning; Mr. Fred Rolls scores as Mike Copplestone; and Mr. Claude Merton is an excellent Job Merry and George Bloggs; Mr. W. H. Melrose is a humorous Ned Pennycomquick, and is ably assisted by Miss Lizzie Morley as Poppy Cornleigh; as Dr. Sleek, Mr. F. Eden is good; and minor characters are carefully taken by Messrs. R. G. Blade, W. H. Coombes, F. Thompson, and W. Newman. Miss Kate Newton is an admirable Gertrude Garth; and Lillian Garth is safe in the hands of Miss Mabel Coleman; Miss Winnie Donovan in the rôle of Mercy Merry does well, and is cordially received by the audience.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—The Private Secretary is being played here to its usual accompaniment of laughter, by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company, which includes Mr. Donald Price-Evans as Spalding, Mr. W. Hargreaves as Cattermole, and Miss Dora Gray as Edith. The comedy is preceded by the bustling one-act farce entitled My American Admirer.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Every item in this week's bill is good. At the head is the daring Don Juan Caicedo in his inimitable performance on the wire. Other attractions are the Sisters Llewelyn, operatic singers with fine voices; the Fitzroys, a couple of clever gymnasts; La Danseuse in a dainty series of costume dances; the Columbia Trio of vocal comedians; Arthur Croxon, a mimic; Burns and Bentley, nimble dancers; J. Reichen, with his troupe of highly trained terriers; and a fine picture on the Biograph.

HULL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—A pleasant return visit is that of The Walls of Jericho, a play which has become very popular in this city. Upon the present occasion a new Jack Frobisher appears in the person of Mr. A. E. Anson, who gives a vigorous, manly reading of the rôle, displaying considerable power; as Lady Alethea Miss May Travener displays much histrionic ability; Mr. Alf S. Barber makes Hankey Bannister a living creation; the Lady Westerby of Miss Marguerite Cellier is exceedingly natural; and Lady Lucy suffers nothing in the capable hands of Miss Mona Wynne.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George Morton.—In The Great Awakening Miss Maud Hildyard is seen to the best advantage; she is full of resource, has a clear enunciation, and is gifted with the true artistic temperament; Mr. Willie Scott and Miss Isa Bellington fill the comic rôles much to the enjoyment of the house; in the dual-rôle of Sir Henry and Jack Merton Mr. Bernard Copping ably succeeds; whilst Miss Doris Digby's Molly Merton is full of promise.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The Mannon Troupe top the bill in their pantomime sketch, Uncle Yank; Alexandra Dagmar makes a welcome appearance here. Other artists include Essman, Lawrence Barclay, Barrington, Helen Martin, and Cyrus and Maude.

THE CIRCUS.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham.—Dyson's Swiss Choir are attracting crowded houses here.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—The boards here are occupied this week by Mr. Vivian Grantham's Held in Bondage company. As Ivan Drouski Mr. Charles Stirling submits an excellent study; as the Russian autocrat, Prince Mazaroff, Mr. Richard Vane is very fine; and Mr. Cecil Vernon Proctor plays with force and conviction the rôle of Paul. Miss Florence Tyrrell clothes the character of Zara with womanly charm and grace; Miss Amy Rudd plays with delightful naïvete as Princess Sonia Mazaroff; and Miss Grace Baring as Leonie Devigne makes the most of her part. Mr. George Scully as Harry Dunn and Miss Maude Merrick as Lisette are a lively and amusing couple, and entertain the audience by some clever dancing. Some excellent light comedy is supplied by Mr. George Child as Sir John Hawthorne and Miss Joan Pereira as the Baroness Augusta Valinski.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Driven from Home is proving an attraction here at the hands of Mr. Andrew Melville's company. Miss Frances Ruttledge figures conspicuously in the double rôle of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh the Younger; Mr. Clement Wakefield acquits himself with distinction as Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. Felix Pitt is effective as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Percy Dawsone as Willie, an outcast, presents a clever performance; Mr. Harry Cornwall is a good choice for the part of Jabez Thomas; Mr. A. E. Mann (John Anderson) and Miss Evelyn Marrable (Margaret Bailey) impart an agreeable tone to the piece with their comedy; Mr. F. Thorne as David Wilson makes the most of his chances; and Mr. Frederick Sandy as Geoffrey Waring, the evil genius, is a good exponent of the part.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Miss Blanche St. Albans' company, in Her One Great Sin, was the attraction here for the first part of the week. The title-rôle was remarkably well played by Miss Blanche St. Albans. Mr. G. Beresford Innes did well as Reuben Warhurst; Mr. J. Leicester-Jackson gave a good rendering of Arnold Thornhill; and Mr. Fred Hodson was amusing as Jerry Jumble. Other parts were capably handled by Mr. Charles E. Lambert, Miss Phyllis Damian, Miss Louie Walton, and Miss Maudie Lambert. On Thursday, East Lynne was played.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Two Little Vagabonds was presented here on the first three nights of the week by Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company. Miss Laura Hansen as Marion gave a pathetic study of the long-suffering mother; the two waifs were well impersonated by Miss May Heart as Dick, and Miss Margaret Nybloc as Wally; Mr. William Fazan gave a powerful rendering of the character of George Thornton; and Mr. John F. Traynor was sufficiently villainous as Bill Mullins. Others who materially aided the success were Miss Russel Spiers as Barbara, and Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief item of an attractive programme this week is the sketch, The Battle of the Belles, a miniature melodrama, relieved by some humorous business. Mr. Fred Monk, the author of the skit, is responsible for a quaint impersonation of a laughing publican, being well supported by E. D. Nicholls and Miss Ada Frank. Other turns include Horace Wheatley, the clever Irish comedian, and Ernest Myers; the Mysterious Lilith, on a return visit; Miss Lilian Warren, song illustrator; Hector and Sutton, comedy acrobats; the Three Sisters Chester, mandolinists; and Lily Lonsdale, a pleasing soprano.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here with the powerful military drama, entitled Death or Glory Boys. Mr. Jerrold is good as Col. Fergeson, and Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson plays with force the part of Capt. Glyn Ferrers. Mr. Lancelot Usher is quite at home as Lieut. Duff; Mr. Fred Emery is a manly Jack Malden; Mr. Francis Serle does full justice to the rôle of Carn; Mr. Russel Bogue causes much amusement as Nat Wilks, and is ably assisted by Miss Hettie Senior as Jane. Miss Violet Carlyle is charming in the part of Nena Fergeson, and Miss Grace Aimiers scores as Edith.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C Robert Perkins.—Mr. Mouillot's company is here with The Greek Slave. Mr. Edward Carlton as Heliodones causes roars of laughter, and Mr. Lionel Braham as the Prefect of Rome fitted the part like the proverbial glove; whilst Mr. Cyril Thompson's vocalisation is excellent in the name-part; Miss Aubrey Ashton is good as Antonia, and Miss Louie Collier's singing as the Maid is excellent; Miss Florrie Saunders scores a great success as Iris, her final dance being encored again and again.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Messrs. H. and F. Poole's colossal myriorama closes here this week. Their latest edition, "A Horse with Human Knowledge," is a most remarkable animated picture. Mr. Harry Dowsett took his benefit on Tuesday night, and Messrs. Fred and Charles Poole had a bespeak on Wednesday.

TRIANGLE PARK.—The White Coons are paying a return visit here, Mr. Oldbury Brough, the society entertainer, being the special attraction.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; General-Manager, Mr. R. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Carson.—Fred Karno's company, in Saturday to Monday, is drawing large audiences here. Mr. Rolands Martin is the life and soul of the piece. Miss Amy Rogerson is an excellent Clorinda. Mr. J. W. Bradbury, Mr. Dick Harcourt, Mr. J. Fletch, and Mr. H. Gordyn are good in their respective parts.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. K. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—The first three nights of this week Mr. Geo. Stephenson's company appeared here in the popular musical comedy, Kitty Grey. Mr. Lauri Lisle gave a clever rendering as the King of Illyria; Mr. Leslie Stewart's Lord Plantagenet was all that could be desired; and the part of Sir John Binfield found an able exponent in Mr. Leslie Fairfax. In the title-rôle Miss Hilda Quiver was seen to great advantage, as was Miss Maud Howard as Mabel; while Miss May Wallace looked particularly sweet as Violet. On Thursday and Friday nights Mr. Edward Terry and company proved a great attraction in Liberty Hall and The Magistrate.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams presented his company here on Monday in Les Cloches de Corneville. Gaspard was very capably presented by Mr. Michael Kemble; Mr. Percy Martin as Grenichaux was conspicuously successful; the singing of Miss Adela Harney and Miss Kathleen Emmet was also well received; Mr. G. Edward Hall and Mr. Richard Martin as the Bailie and Gobo were responsible for much laughter.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—After an interval of eleven years Lady Godiva is again with us, being exceedingly well presented by Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company. Miss Ethel Griffies in the title-rôle gains much sympathy; Miss Katherine Brook is excellent as Lady Aldyth; and Miss Edith Lorraine works well as Elfrida; Mr. F. B. Woulfe acts with much resource as Tom of Coventry; Mr. R. Seath Innes deserves a good word as Leofric; Mr. George Barren does justice to the rôle of Algar; Mr. Ernest Hamilton is commendable as Unwolf Unwolfson; and the comic element is supplied successfully by Mr. Bob Anderson as Robin. Nell Gwynne was billed for Thursday.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—The Martelloni Lady Acrobats head the bill this week. Mr. Harry Weldon, a well comedian, has some good patter; Joe Conway, juvenile comedian, is well received; as also is Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist; Messrs. Lack and Ford, comedy eccentrics, win hearty applause, and other attractions include Kendrick and Laura, society entertainers; Mabel Hind, comedienne, and Walter Payne's animated pictures.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Allan Wilkie and company in a classical repertoire. On Monday night Hamlet was played. Mr. Wilkie himself appeared as Hamlet and gave a very fine delineation of the character; Mr. G. Alexander Marsh as Laertes acted with much earnestness and vigour; and Miss Ine Cameron was an interesting Ophelia. Other parts were represented by Messrs. G. Munro, Wilton Ross, Hubert Morgan, and Herbert Morgan. On Tuesday night The Lady of Lyons was presented, Mr. G. Alexander Marsh appearing as Claude Melnotte, and Miss Ine Cameron as Pauline. Other plays for the week include The Corsican Brothers, The Bells, Romeo and Juliet, Othello, and The Merchant of Venice.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Apollo success, The Dairymaids, is at the popular Grand this week, opening on Monday to a crowded audience. To the farcical element plenty of scope is given, and in this direction Mr. E. Statham Staples and Mr. Harry Dent in their respective parts of Sam Brudenell and Joe Mivens shine exceedingly. Quiet humour also pervades the character of Dr. O'Byrne, an enjoyable effort by Mr. Clarence Blakiston; stately Lady Brudenell is effectively handled by Miss Edith Blanche; Miss Violet Lloyd and Miss Rhoda Gordon sing and dance with charm and piquancy; a low-comedy slavey part is cleverly portrayed by Miss Nellie Beryl; Mr. Jack Fraser and Miss Beryl Vaudrey are to be complimented on their excellent vocal renderings; and histrionic ability is displayed by Mr. George Desmond and Miss Madge Avery in prominent parts. The piece is beautifully mounted, and under the baton of Mr. Albert Bartlett an efficient chorus does good service.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The Royal habitués are again provided with sensational melodrama after their own heart, for The Traitor Prince teems with thrilling incidents and exciting situations. The company is Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's, and Mr. T. P. McBride as the sailor hero, Frank Derrick, is a manly and effective figure. The name-part is taken with distinction by Mr. George M. Montanini. A charming heroine is Miss Rose Routledge. Mr. Edmund O'Grady and Miss Kitty Thomas also are responsible for capable work.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The dramatised version of Mr. Guy Thorne's much-talked-of book, "When It Was Dark," is attracting goodly patronage to this theatre, and Mrs. Morton Powell's company is giving a highly dramatic rendering of the piece. Constantine Schaube's villainy is effectively depicted by Mr. George H. Pitt; the strong-minded curate is an equally powerful effort by Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee; Helena is in the capable hands of Mrs. Morton Powell; a very impressive portrayal of the much-abused actress, Gertrude Hunt, goes to the credit of Miss Mabel Mannering; Mr. Riddell Robinson does good work; whilst Mr. Francis Cairns, Mr. Henry Heller, and Mr. Charles Clayton are also excellent.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Very full houses are again the rule here, the credit for which satisfactory state of things must be awarded in large measure to that popular entertainer George Lashwood, who has perforce to render four or five songs in his own inimitable style at every appearance. At the bottom of the bill that comical pair the Poluskis appear, and their comedy business once again arouses the liveliest merriment. Entertaining comedy is also subscribed by Hillman and Russell in a clever speciality, The Somnambulist. Popular Lilian Lowe sings ballads in charming style; Kate Traill proves to be a fine vocalist, also a brilliant executant at the piano; Ella Retford is a strong favourite, with quaint song and clever dance; and we are further entertained by that clever club juggling pair, Albertus and Bartram and Lottie Govell in acceptable vocal comedy.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—That clever comedienne, Vesta Victoria, is an easy first in popular favour at this hall, her lively and sprightly methods in the rendition of smart new songs proving quite irresistible. An expert and humorous acrobatic act by the Arleys is much enjoyed; the humorous contributions of J. W. Hall are received with vociferous applause, and Frank Leslie, Tom Moore, and Tony Iveson also find appreciation; the Avocas present an operatic scena in brilliant style; mystifying illusionary acts are successfully engineered by the Violas and Shanghai; the Sisters Silcott sing and dance cleverly; and in the same line M. and S. Woods are doing well.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A novel and sensational bicycle-riding act forms the pièce-de-résistance of this week's bill. The act is engineered by the Davis-Gledhill Trio, and proves most attractive. Rose Elliott renders vocal items in accomplished style; the Wynfords arouse enthusiasm by their remarkable jumping feats; Keir and Kempton, with special vocal numbers, are popular; much enjoyable comedy is subscribed by Walker and Lake and Charles Deane; Lily Currie is a pleasing vocalist; and that clever young juggler, Wallaw, is again appearing.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—The first musical play of the season here made a welcome appearance on Monday evening, Mr. Robert Courtneidge's versatile and clever company presenting The Blue Moon, which has the additional merit of being exceptionally well staged and dressed. The augmented orchestra is under the bâton of Mr. Carlton Mason, and we should not omit a word of praise to the well-balanced chorus. Miss Clarice Lockstone in the title-rôle gives a delightful performance, her singing calling for high praise; Miss Kathleen Carteret is smart as Lady Augusta Brabasham; and as Evelyn Ormsby Miss Ethel Callanan is most successful; Miss Florence Imeson is vivacious and clever as Millicent Leroy; Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor and Mr. Alfred Beers as Moolraj are most mirth-provoking, keeping the audience in the happiest of humours; Mr. Alfred Clark is all that can be desired as Major Vivian Callabone; Mr. Herbert Clayton as Captain Jack Ormsby creates an excellent impression; and Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne as Bobbie Scott is equally successful; Mr. Arthur Soames is capital as the Prince; Miss Lochner does well as the native Oma. This afternoon will be inaugurated regular weekly matinées for the various attractions. Mr. Henry Dundas having left no stone unturned to make this new innovation of Messrs. Bode and Compton as widely known in the district as possible.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A really fine attraction is being presented here this week in the romantic drama The Midnight Wedding, by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's principal company. Mr. Alfred Paumier makes a conspicuous success as Paul Valmar; and Miss Annie Saker as Princess Astrea von Streisburg and Second-lieutenant Karl Helsburg displays histrionic abilities of a high order. Mr. Clinton Baddeley is good as Captain Rudolph von Scarsbruck; and Mr. Ulick Burke does well as Lieutenant von Streisburg; Miss Ada Champion is attractive as Kathie; and Miss Florence Hunt merits commendation as Satanella. Much hearty laughter is created by Mr. Algie Spalding as Private Bobo, Mr. James E. Page as Sergeant Max, and Mr. Percy Compton as Corporal Otto.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Premier honours are held in this week's programme by Bella and Bijou, whose versatile and clever show is meeting with the usual warm welcome; Harry Grey, described as the Australian Nugget, scores a well-deserved success with a smart and amusing turn; Spry and Monti present a new sketch, in which they keep the audience in the merriest of moods; Madame Marvelle introduces her remarkably pretty and well-trained bird act to the delight of the audience; Ruby Dahl and her merry mannikins are popular in a unique and novel turn; Abdy's Canine Circus shows what can be done in the matter of dog training; the Bisera Troupe of eight lady musicians give a most enjoyable performance; Harris and Worth, as a pair of huntsmen, prove very amusing; J. C. Scatter, Tyneside comedian and clever clog dancer, is entertaining; and the American Bioscope is also a special feature of a good all-round entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—After one week's absence, Mr. Frank Hardie's excellent sketch company is again the principal attraction here, and is presenting with their usual success the American episode, Pedlar Sam (in which Mr. Frank Hardie shines in the title-part), and the dramatic episode, The Cornish Wreckers, the parts of Kate (Miss Irene Carlton), Jasper March (Mr. Fred Dobell), and Denny (Mr. Frank Hardie) calling for special mention. The variety portion of the programme is successfully contributed to by Wyotti, comedy juggler; Gertie Moore, in her singing and speciality dancing act; Wirson, head and hand balancer; Minnie D'Aubyn, burlesque actress; Charles Sloman, comedian; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, with the usual entertaining pictures.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—The Grip of Iron is once again paying a return visit here, and was given a hearty welcome on Monday night. It is played by Messrs. E. H. Knight and Geo. Denman's company, which includes Mr. Fred Powell, who scores a triumphant success as Jagon, his portrayal in every respect being excellent. Mr. Wallace Curnock is an able representative of Paul Branchard; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner merits approval as Lorenzi de Ribas; Mr. Geo. Denham is distinctly successful as Loustalot, the Smiler; Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood capitally acts the part of Alphonse de Concon; Miss Rosabel Dodd acquits herself with great credit as Cora Simmonet; Miss Muriel Inglis is very effective as Sophie Blanchard; and Miss Violet Ingram is satisfactory as Marie Guerin.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. Fred Bulmer's company is here on a return visit with Mr. F. Bateman's celebrated convict drama, Sentenced For Life. Mr. Edward E. Louis is strong in the part of the hero, Roy Stillwell; Mr. Ernest Vaughan makes an able villain; Mr. James F. Firth is successful in the light comedy rôle of Percy McGentle; and two convicts, Bill and Toby, are sufficiently funny in the hands of Mr. Arthur Keand and Mr. R. Oldroyd. Miss Madge Douglas plays the heroine, Adele Gray, in pleasing style; Miss May Neilson is a satisfactory Kate Rennel; and Miss Mary Dalby a good Lady Stillwell.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Owner, Mr. Frank King.—The production of A Miserable Marriage is noticed in another column.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Fred Earle is here on a first visit, and his songs are well received. W. B. Raby is another comedian of high merit, and Walter Emerson has never been more popular. Bliss and Bliss, Keen and Waller, Alice Ormonde, Saxo, Rose Pink, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux add to the enjoyment of the show.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is playing A Country Girl here this week. Mr. Martin D. Pitts is a fine Geoffrey Challoner; as Sir Joseph Verity Mr. W. O. Billington is decidedly good; Mr. Frank Weir as Barry is capital; Miss Blanche Courtney makes a lively Nan; Marjorie Joy is finely played by Miss Violet Leslie; and Miss Madge Campbell is clever as Sophie.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—On Thursday, and following two nights, of last week, Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company presented The Manxman to large and appreciative houses. Mr. Cross made an ideal Pete, his acting being most intense. He was well supported by Miss Minnie Waltersford in the rôle of Kate Cregeen; Mr. Frank Liston gave an excellent performance of Philip; and the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. James Dillon was an clever bit of acting; Miss Dorothy Duncan was an effective Nancy.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Christian was warmly received here on Monday by a large audience. Chief honours fell to Miss Grace Chalmers, who presented a fine study of Glory Quayle; and equally good was Mr. Frank Tennant, whose careful treatment and manly interpretation of John Storm won unstinted applause. Mr. Geo. R. Montford was effective as Lord Robert Ure, and excellent sketches of character were presented by Messrs. Edward Ling and Chas. E. Dering as Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy respectively. Mr. Jackson Wilcox gave a fine reading of Horatio Drake; Mr. Chas. Hill was well placed as Parson Quayle; Miss Molly Hayden was a good Mrs. Callender, and other parts were carefully treated.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley. — This week we have here the Ediscope and Barnum's Animated Pictures, which are very interesting. In addition there is a classy variety company. The Cedrics, comedy speciality artists, score a great success; Vela, hurricane wire act, is astounding; Lulu, lady instrumentalist, is one of the principal features of the entertainment; Stilvo, stilt performer, gives a clever turn; Jessie Harper, singing mill girl, is very pleasing; Mons. Reni and his wonderful dog are well received; Vic. Verney, whistler, and Miss Queenie Vane, comedienne, are both interesting performances.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The following make up a good bill this week: The Stavordale Quintette, instrumentalists; Les Valdos, eccentric 'bus men and comedy acrobats; Alfonzo, a clever foot equilibrist; Curtis and Vanity, acrobatic dancers; Harding and Preston, duettists; Johnny Worman, comedian; and Miss Lottie Bray, skipping-rope dancer.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. Beslee.—The St. Louis Picture company is a great attraction here this week.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Musical plays always prove welcome at this theatre, and although Florodora has been seen not a few times in Margate, its reappearance this week, for three nights, commencing on Monday, has met with every success. Cyrus W. Gilfain was safely entrusted to Mr. Colin Johnston, who played the part with all the required unctuousness. Mr. Howard V. Crofton sang in manly and pleasing style as Frank Abercoed, gaining well deserved encomiums for his rendering of "In the shade of the palm"; Mr. Carnelly Joye made an acceptable Capt. Arthur Donegal, and Mr. C. A. Road-Night, as the sinister-looking Leandro, was capital; Mr. Gus Danby's broad humour was provocative of laughter and applause; Miss Daisy Lake made a graceful Dolores; Miss Rose Sullivan a vivacious and coquettish Lady Holyrood; and Angela Gilfain found a pretty and demure representative in Miss Dorothy Dempster; Velleda being brightly played by Miss Dorothy Dance. For the rest of the week Miss Decima Moore has been booked to appear with the comedy All of a Sudden Peggy.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The week's programme is again an attractive one, the contributors being Fred Collins, Scotch character comedian; Patty Yole, an expert dancer; Regan and Ryan, the merriment merchants; the Flying Eugenes, aerial gymnasts; Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer; and the Ethel Arden and George Abel company in Three of a Kind. The Hippodrome pictures are, as usual, capital.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert. — The entertainment provided here this week consists of animated pictures of the fight for the boxing championship between Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson. Variety turns are also given by Kyd Gwyn, ball puncher, and Bernard, in characters from Dickens, and the Sisters Rankin, vocalists and dancers.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The turns here include The Saletos, head and hand balancers; Ariello, the hypnotic, mystic maiden; the Two Daniels, negro artists; the marvellous Howards, necromancers and mystifiers. Animated pictures complete the bill.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Hilliard Vox and company are here this week in the American drama, Alaska. Mr. Hilliard Vox gives a powerful rendering of Skookum Jim; a sufficiently villainous Ned Lawson is found in Mr. C. D. Pitt; Mr. Albert Rogers is prominent with a pleasing impersonation of Pompey Cæsar; Mr. Bevan Benton gives a fine dramatic exposition as Father Bernard; while Mr. H. N. Grimson does well as Baptiste. Miss G. Hastings plays with fervour the rôle of Alaska; Miss Cora Paley scores a success as Jess Dalton; Miss Lesile Wynne makes a typically humorous Irishwoman as Widow Casey.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is this week presenting The Ugliest Woman on Earth. In the title-rôle Miss Beatrice Homer is a decided success; Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merrimer has a thorough grasp of the part; Miss Margaret Watson as Morita contributes considerably to the enjoyment of the play by her piquant acting; Miss Nellie Jackson is good as Aggie Brown; and for the part of Rose Courtenay a clever representative is found in Miss Nell Oliver. Mr. W. Wallace-Aston does full justice to the part of Raggles; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor does well as Hubert Gold.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. A. W. Pinero's play His House in Order is being presented here this week by George Alexander's company. As Nina, Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay meets with gratifying success, and audiences are entirely carried away by her brilliant and effective acting. Mrs. Stephen T. Ewart plays the part of Hilary Jesson with great dramatic power and distinction; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce as Filmer Jesson, M.P., is responsible for a remarkably good interpretation. Mr. Lloyd Lowndes as Major Maurewarde gives great satisfaction, and the part of Mlle. Thomé has an able representative in Mlle. Eve Grand. The Ridgeleys find clever representatives in Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, Mr. Ernest Holloway, Miss Augusta Haveland, and Miss Elaine Heddall. The part of Dereck Jesson is in the capable hands of Miss M. Richardson. The scenery and costumes are exceedingly pretty.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges. — The outstanding feature of the programme here this week is a daring cycle act by Wizard and Irene Stone, entitled "The Globe of Life." J. W. Rowley as good as ever; the Balsamos provide an excellent acrobatic turn; and the sketch, An Emperor's Divorce, by Ronald Boyne and Miss Evelyn Hope is also well received. Sid Bandon is a clever character comedian and Cyril Carle is an excellent vocalist. Other turns are provided by Maudie Ford, comedienne, the Ashers in their comedy act and the Bio.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Alfred Graham. George Bastow, the creator of that popular favourite "Father Giles," is the star turn here. Charles Whittle also scores a success with an old favourite "Billy Muggins." The Two Bees have an up-to-date song scena, "The Man in the Moon," and Lola Patey sings old ballads in charming style.

MIDDLETON.—PARDOE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pardoe and Turner.—An excellent variety company is engaged here this week. The Marvellous Pardoes score heavily in their vaudeville entertainment, entitled On the Sands at Brighton; Miss Lottie Holland sings refined and effective songs; and Teddy Vokes is amusing in his musical sketch. There are also some good animated pictures.

MORECAMBE. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Mrs. Alice Chapin's company has been appearing this week in A Knight Errant and A Pantomime Rehearsal. Clarence Ibbotson was successful in the parts of the Duke de Cabrean and Lord Arthur Pomeroy, and Mr. Alvin Sawyer capital as the roué Lautier in the first piece and Sir Chas. Grandison in the second; Mr. Harry Welchman was remarkably good in both pieces, and the same remark applies to Mr. Harold Chapin. Miss Alice Chapin acts and sings nicely, and Miss Eliene Douglas plays with charm. Miss Elsie Chapin and Miss Paula Fernan are also seen in suitable parts.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager, Mr. E. Hill.—Mr. Hart's pierrots are having a season here, and have this week been presenting an acceptable programme.

WEST END PIER.—Secretary, Mr. J. Bastow.—Mr. Walter Curtis has been the principal attraction, and has amused with his clever business. Mr. Harry Horner, bass, has also been received with a great deal of favour.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant. Mr. William Greet's company is this week paying a return visit in The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Frank E. Petley sustains the rôle of Marcus with ability; Miss Marie Leonhard captures the sympathies of her audience by her exquisite impersonation of Mercia; Mr. Frank Wood is pre-eminently good as Glabrio; Nero is finely rendered by Mr. C. York; Tigellinus and Licinius being equally well impersonated by Mr. Chas. Aldred and Mr. J. Weatherall; Miss Cissie Carlton is an ideal Dacia, and Miss Gertrude Price plays Berenice with ability. Mr. Walter Fleet, an impressive Favius, receives good support from Mr. George Stanton in the rôle of Titus; and Philodemus is well rendered by Mr. Harry Jones.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in the popular drama, Between Two Women, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Fred Goddard gives a clever impersonation of Henry, Earl of Millard; Mr. Aurèle Lambat does some good work as Harry Millard; Mr. Walter Thornton as James Durward and Mr. Roland Yorke as Major Strangeways make a typical pair of villains; Mr. Godfrey Tearle gives a fine portrayal of the Rev. Philip Carton; Miss Molly Malone makes a pleasing and attractive Violet Thornton; Miss Vera Fordyce ably sustains the part of Carmen de Saveresux; Miss Lulu Bowes is good as the Blind Boy; Mr. Fred Danvers as Jack Pringle and Miss Lilian Earle as Polly are responsible for the comic element; Mr. Nevill Graham is successful as the shop-manager, Mr. Jorkins; and Miss Florence Hamilton makes a capital lady customer.

NEWCASTLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—There was a large audience at this popular house on Monday, on the occasion of the first production in Newcastle by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company of the new musical play in two acts, The Blue Moon. In the title-rôle, a graceful artist in Miss Florence Smithson quickly won favour by her sweet singing and finished acting, and in the songs "Blue Moon" and "The NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Miss Winifred Maude's Co. opened here on Monday with The Sins of a City. As Sandy McDonald, Mr. William Vane earns well-merited applause; Mr. Leonard Harrison created a favourable impression as Donald McIvor; Mr. Norton Shields in the dual rôle of Joe Woodleigh and Jasper Woodleigh scored a well-deserved success; Mr. William Bradford made a hit as Ralph Blackwater; and Mr. Victor Du Cane as Isaac Levi was responsible for a capital performance; as Seaweed Miss Winifred Maude gave an excellent rendering of the character; Miss Sunny Hackett was good as Midge; Miss Jessie Mason clever as Jeannie; Miss Lily Mason as Mrs. Mixes, and Miss Ethel Tinsley as Leslie were both successful. The Stowaway was underlined for Thursday.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Bensley Evan's company in the sketch, Sally's Dilemma, causes laughter here. The Ravens, comedy artistes, are clever; Mr. Will Mitcham, musical comedian, an old favourite, is as popular as ever; Miss Fanny Erris, comedienne, goes well; Miss May Tyler, comedienne and dancer, has made a hit; Messrs. Voyles and Bryan, the merry Yanks, are smart, and the Bio-Photoscope is still a leading feature.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Gustave Roselle's Merry Zingaras, lady minstrels, and animated pictures have been the attraction this week, and the minstrel troupe contains some really good voices, and forms an excellent combination, their several selections being cleverly rendered; Mrs. Roselle, who possesses a soprano voice of excellent quality, met with a most flattering reception; the pictures are most realistic; Mrs. Roselle's Mysteria is a popular feature of the show. The whole entertainment is most enjoyable.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl is here this week. Mr. Alfred Conohoe as Jim Cheese is amusing; as Dick Wargrave Mr. Thomas Kennard is successful; Mr. Greville Hayes is a capital Bunker Bliss; Mr. Leslie Owen scores as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Miss Mary Yates, who appears as Elphin Haye, is received with deserved applause; Miss Winnie Plumpton is highly successful as Miss Virginia Bliss; and Miss Ida Stratham with much vivacity embodies Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Lena Hicks deserves praise for her representation as Eliza Shodham; and equally good is Miss Kathleen as Mrs. Shimmering Black. The chorus sings remarkably well.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—An excellent bill is presented this week. Franco Piper proves a clever banjoist; the Warsaw Brothers are clever musicians as well as humorous in their turn; Lena Brunton is a smart mimic of musical artists; Maude Edwards, ventriloquist, is well received; whilst Russell Wallett creates fun as the lady who always dresses in black; Barney Armstrong is successful as a comedian; Ouda and Leon are good as horizontal bar performers; and Vi Carlyle deserves praise for her song scena, "My Mountain Maid." The Hippo Bio shows some amusing films.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—When Knights Were Bold is being presented here for the first time on any stage. A detailed notice will be found in another column.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Mr. F. Mouillot's company is presenting the comedy drama A Message from Mars. The Horace Barker of Mr. Herbert J. Bentley is an exceedingly fine performance. He is cleverly supported by Miss Joan Ellis in the part of Minnie Templar. Mr. Wm. H. Brougham makes a thoroughly impressive Messenger, his enunciation being particularly effective; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson offers a well-thought-out study of Arthur Dicey; and as a tramp Mr. Bruce Lindley acts without exaggeration. Miss Flora Hastings is charmingly natural as Miss Parker; and Miss Peggy E. Yeoman submits a dainty embodiment of Bella; Miss Constance Groves plays satisfactorily as Mrs. Clarence.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The Harmony Four head the bill this week, evoking the merriest of laughter for their comedy; the drolleries of Ernie Mayne prove an excellent mirth-provoker; and the Brothers Lang help to drive dull care away by their smart patter; Cabaret's dogs enter thoroughly into the spirit of their tricks, gaining much applause; while the Three Albions submit a smart and novel performance on musical instruments; an interesting turn is supplied by Colby and May, the former as a ventriloquist and the latter in her impersonation of a dancing doll; a clever sketch, The Golfer and the Maid, provides Hanvaar and Lee with an opportunity to show their dexterity in tumbling and the manipulation of Indian clubs; Billy Tucker proves an adept in ball-punching; and Stelling and Revell perform wonders on the parallel bars, judiciously mixed with some excellent humour; a vivacious comedienne is also seen in Bouverie Pleydell.

MECHANICS' HALL.—Fred Clements' concert party is paying the usual autumn visit here this week, and proving as attractive as ever. The varied programme of new songs and dances, ventriloquial sketches, concerted pieces, &c., is clever, refined, and humorous.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Robert Perris's company under the direction of Mr. Karl H. Edwards, commenced a week's engagement here on Monday with A Fight for Millions. Mr. John C. Carlyle is good as the hero. Tom Manley; Mr. P. G. Beresford scores in the part of Hudson Rivers, while as the scheming Richard Dudley, Mr. Hugh Mewburn is seen to advantage; Mr. K. H. Edwards and Mr. Harry Howe work well together as Willie Neverwork and Solomon Moses, and introduce some genuine humour; Miss Alwynne Ermon gives an effective reading of Pearl Rivers; Miss Nora Kingsley as Mrs. Hudson Rivers; and Miss Elma Turner, Helen Dudley, are also deserving of praise; Miss Mabel Howe as Little Madge proves herself a capable artist.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—For the first time in the provinces the comedy Raffles was presented here on Monday last, before a large and interested audience. A capital company is touring with the play, foremost among whom stands Mr. Leonard Boyne, in the title-rôle, A. J. Raffles, the amateur cracksman; the part fits him like a glove, and he was highly successful; Mr. Dalziel Heron made an excellent Crawshay; and Mr. Lewis Edgard gave a capital rendering of Harry Manders; the Earl of Amersteth was ably portrayed by Mr. Arthur Willoughby; and Mr. Edmund Breon appeared as Viscount Crowley; Mr. Clifford Brooke made a big success as Curtis Bedford, the detective; Miss Hilda Stuart was a capital Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald as Marie made the most of the part; Miss Amy Thomas was a stately Lady Melrose; and Miss Madge Murray was good as Lady Ethel; whilst Miss Hazel Thompson as Gwendoline Conran gave valuable assistance. Other parts were played by Messrs. Robinson, Jephson, and Walters.

COLOSSEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is paying a return visit with the Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Edward Bikker is a capital General Kingsley; and Mr. B. Lovett is good as Captain Frank Carsdale; Mr. Archie Helsby, as the villainous Captain Darrell, does his work in an able manner; Mr. J. Magrath as Timothy O'Quirke, and Mr. H. Lyndon, as Timothy Trimmer, cause a great deal of amusement; Miss Lily Beverley as Eric Carsdale, and Miss Maggie English as Jack Smith are excellent; Miss Edie Macklin is a sympathetic Molly Meadows; and a striking contrast is presented by Miss Kathleen Magee as Margaret Rivers (Drunken Meg); Miss Mildred Eversleigh scores as Alma Kingsley; and the remaining parts are well played.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Arthur Lennard, comedian, is the star turn, and he has been highly successful; Harry Tate's company in Motoring cause roars of laughter; Lillian, Vera, and Major Charles give a smart exhibition of shooting; Hall and Earle are a capital pair of eccentrics; Alice Blandford is a charming operatic vocalist; and Lizzie Fletcher is a good comedienne; O'Malley and Brown have scored in their new comedy-sketch, and much interest is taken in Lady Julia, an ape that has been well trained. The Royal Dottoscope concludes the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Miss Jessie Albini, comedienne, has had a good reception; the Allans in a musical turn on the banjo and mandoline also do well; Mona McDonald is an excellent vocalist; and the Arundels are very good in a funny act; Kiaro is a marvellous hand jumper; and Martin Henderson is a blind pianist and contortionist of no mean order; Ossi Souplessi gives a smart turn on the silver rings; and the Dottoscope is showing an interesting picture, "The Black Beauty."

OSWESTRY.—PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Evans.—One of Mr. George Dance's companies presented the popular musical play, The Girl from Kay's, here on Monday. Miss Jessie Fraser, in the title-rôle, is well placed, acting and singing admirably; Miss Marie Greenhouse as Norah Chalmers is seen to advantage in the part; Mr. J. W. Hooper as Hoggenheimer is exceedingly funny; Harry Gordon finds a capital exponent in Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft, who renders his songs admirably; Mr. Herbert Jennings as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle is most amusing; and Miss Irene Vere sings with taste and expression as Ellen.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE — Managing-Director, Mr. T. Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. Charles Harrington with his excellent company, opened here on Monday with The Sailors of the King, which met with the heartiest of receptions from a full house. Mr. Harrington gave a most finished and delightful impersonation of Admiral Drake; Mr. Frank Stephens was quite the breezy sailor as his son Dick, and acted with commendable vigour; Mr. R. F. Stacey realised the diabolical character of his traitorous brother Orrel; Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., caused genuine amusement by his quaint humour as Barnet Fair; Mr. Fred Owen fairly brought down the house with his delightfully funny performance of the Jew Wilkinstein; and Mr. H. Webb acted with considerable power as Rufford Dent. Miss Madge North was a sympathetic and refined Felicia; Miss Lily Prescott gave a delightful and natural performance of Daisy Dent; Miss Hero Hathaway did exceedingly well as the demure servant Penelope; and Miss Sylvia Stella played the heavy part of the adventuress Rebecca Crosby with a magnetic power that quite thrilled her audience.

PAISLEY.—EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—A capital programme is contributed this week by the following:—Poole and Poole (Tom and Florrie), expert table pedestal dancers; Capita, marvellous mannikin; Raymond and Colly, comedians; Little Dolly Robson, a veritable child wonder; Sisters Bathurst (Annie and Amy), top-boot and sand dancers; Dan Noble, comedian; Marie Yorke, burlesque artist; and Horsley Brothers, bag punchers.

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the appearance of Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company in The Coal King on Monday. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland gives an ideal impersonation of Tom Roberts, the mine manager; Sir Reginald Harford is admirably sustained by Mr. Lionel Thompson; Mr. Escott Robson gives a clever interpretation of the designing scoundrel, Walter Harford; Mr. Frank Dalton as Dick Shirley sustains a difficult part with good effect; Seth Baker is well represented by Mr. John Coghlan; Miss Sinna St. Clair deserves praise for her portrayal of Mad Ann; as Grace Shirley Miss Gertrude Valentine acts with grace and charm. The piece is admirably relieved by the bright and vivacious humour of Mr. Alfred Terriss as Jim Williams, and Miss Sybil Coghlan as Araminta.

PENZANCE.—Poole's Myriorama continues its successful course for the second week, and the Reserve Squadron of the Channel Fleet having been anchored in Mounts Bay for some days, the nightly audiences have been considerably augmented by bluejackets and marines on short leave. These visitors have keenly appreciated the fine naval pictures shown, and have been delighted with the high-class variety entertainment. The Avondale Quartette have been highly successful with a new sketch entitled The Mad Musician, and the Urban Bioscope showed a new series of splendid films. Mr. Harry Stewart is the courteous and hard-working manager, and sees to the comfort of the large audiences which crowd this hall at every performance.

ALEXANDRA GROUNDS.—The season of the Lindon Vaudeville company is drawing to a close, and benefits are now the order of the day, or rather night. Messrs. Bob White and Nestor, the two popular comedians, were accorded a substantial bespeak at the Central Hall this week, when a special programme was thoroughly enjoyed.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The fair city is fortunate in having Mr. J. W. Turner's famous English Opera Company as the attraction during the race week. On Monday night Benedict's charming opera The Lily of Killarney was rendered in a manner well worthy the company's fame. The only difference that passing years seem to make in Mr. Turner with his Perth audiences is to acclaim him more popular and successful than ever, and his delightful impersonation of Miles-na-Coppaleen is vociferously applauded; Mr. F. J. Hargrave has made his first appearance here, and the success he attains in the rôle of Hardress Cregan will be remembered with pleasing effect; Mr. Tom Griffiths meets with his usual cordial reception in his able portrayal of Danny Mann; Mr. Sidney Clifford as Father Tom gives a taste of his ability that made the audience look forward to his more important rôles during the week; and this may also be said of Mr. G. H. Ridding's Corrigan; Miss Jessie Dennis's Mrs. Cregan is both impressive and charming; Miss Addington creates a pleasing impression as Miss Chute; Miss Maud Esdale is happily placed as Sheila, and Miss Kitty Brownlees sustains her reputation by her talented and charming rendering of Eily. Il Trovatore was billed for Tuesday, in which Mr. F. J. Hargrave assumed the rôle of Manrico and Miss Kitty Brownlees that of Leonora. In The Bohemian Girl on Wednesday the rôle of Arline was sustained by Miss Christine Gomez. Maritana, Faust, and The Waterman follow during the week.

PETERBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here this week in The Eternal City. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering as Baron Bonelli gives a well-studied impersonation; Mr. Henry Deas is a capable exponent of David Rossi; Mr. W. O. Flynn is well placed as Bruno Rocco; and Mr. J. Fortescue submits a dignified study of Pope Pius XI. Miss Sara de Groot fills the rôle of Donna Romo Volonna in a way that leaves little to be desired.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Mouillot's company is paying another visit to Plymouth in The Toreador. Mr. Harry Buss, as Sammy Gigg, is excellent; Mr. Howard Cridland—a member of a well-known Plymouth family—makes a fine blasé lieutenant in the Guards, his motor sketch with Mr. Buss being genuinely funny; as Pettifer, Mr. Fred Fowler's strong point is some very clever dancing; Mr. H. M. White, is an imposing Carajolo, his rich baritone voice is warmly appreciated; and Mr. Alfred H. Majilton scores with his catchy song, "The Governor of Villaya"; Miss Marie Adair is a dashing Teresa, her song, "The Toreador," being honoured with a double encore; Miss Katie May is a vivacious Susan; Miss Florence Burdett makes an admirable widow; Miss Zoe Gilfain is very demure as Dora Selby; and Miss Rose Helene, as Nancy Stanton, creates plenty of fun in her masculine impersonation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—After a comparatively recent interval Mr. Percy Williams's stock company again presents the domestic drama, Home Sweet Home. The popular support accorded the performance, however, quite justify the management in reproducing the piece. The company, as on the former occasion, includes Messrs. Edward Lloyd, Henry Compton, Alfred Brandon, and Tommy Gough, and the Misses Ethel Kay and M. C. Livesey, whose respective performances quite equalled, if not excelled, their former efforts.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company is presenting a highly-successful musical play, entitled, In Old Madrid. Tuneful music, catchy songs, and graceful dancing are the predominant features of the play, the premier honours being awarded the Sisters English (Violet and Lillie) for their exceedingly well-executed dancing.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Hackenschmidt forms a great attraction here, packed houses at every performance being rewarded with some remarkable feats of strength and endurance; Helm and Comens have a clever skit on the medical profession, entitled, The Doctor and the Patient; Ross and Grayson have a turn in which they introduce some truly remarkable pianoforte playing; Frank Maura is a finished exponent of feet manipulation; Walter King, the doleful comedian, is very good; and the Three Gilbert Girls have a popular song of the "Sammy" order. others contributing are Carl and Carr, and Vernon's pictures.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. J. Higson.—Mr. Chas. Parker's Komedy Koncert Kompany is paying a farewell visit for the present season. Miss Rita Vincent (soprano) was loudly applauded for her "Bungalow" song; Miss Eileen Hope has a contralto voice of exceptional promise and ability; Miss Ethel Lonsdale is an accomplished sketch artist; Mr. Flocton Foster is a high-class light comedy entertainer; Mr. Ernest Le Butt submitted a violin solo, which earned a well-merited encore; and Mr. Arnold Richadson is a first-rate comedian.

PORTH.—PALACE OF VARIETIES (late OPERA HOUSE).—General Manager. Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—Heading the bill here this week is Herr Fritz, the well-known illusionist, who gives an excellent performance; the Three Seymons' equilibristic juggling act is really clever; Rita Bell, the Dutch girl, is most successful; Wal Owen keeps the audience in good humour with his comicalities; Zelda proves herself to be an expert musical performer; Fred Horsfall, humourist and mimic, deserves mention; the Sisters Brand, charming comediennes, acquit themselves creditably; Frank Whiteley, banjo and bone soloist and expert dancer, is a big favourite; the Brothers Brooks, comedians, are responsible for some excellent amusement, and new pictures are shown on the New Bioscope.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—San Toy is paying us a visit this week, Mr. Mouillot's company (by arrangement with Mr. George Edwardes) being responsible for its able presentation. Miss Bessie Allayne, in the name part, is eminently successful, her pleasing acting and vocalism delighting everyone. Miss Lottie Sargent makes an attractive and smart Dudley; Miss Irene Lavington does well as Poppy; Captain Bobby Preston is well placed in the hands of Mr. Arthur Cartwright; Yen How is ably impersonated by Mr. Hugh Webb; Sir Bingo Preston has a capital representative in Mr. Robert Rivers; and Lieut. Harvey Tucker is creditably played by Mr. George Taylor.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, with an excellent company, are presenting Mr. G. R. Sims' and Wilson Barrett's fine play, The Golden Ladder, to keenly interested houses here this week. Miss Mary Austin plays Lillian Grant with great sincerity and naturalness; Miss Teresa Haynes sustains the part of the kind-hearted prison wardress with judgment; and Miss Violet Houghton and Miss Janet Wakeling, in their respective parts of matron of the prison and Rosemary, are praiseworthy. Mr. William Clayton as the Rev. Frank Thornhill acts with conviction and manliness; Mr. J. Milne Taylor as Michael Severn, in a powerful performance, is ably supported by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds as Peranza. Another clever portrayal is that of Mr. Eric Thompson as Rao, a Malagasy servant. Mr. Joseph Rowlands as Samuel Peckaby, and Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby, are most humorous in their impersonations.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The star turn here is Florrie Forde, the highly popular burlesque actress, who is delighting large audiences with some of her best vocal efforts, and receives unbounded applause. Wyndham and Kitty, with their undoubtedly clever wire-walking act, are much liked; the Mozondas work hard in their variety entertainment; Florrie St. Clair, soubrette, has a taking style; Hughes and Elliott, in a vocal and terpsichorean act, do extremely well; T. C. Callaghan, versatile comedian, submits some droll songs; Sid Cotterell and company, in the comedy sketch The Substitute, score a great success; and the programme also includes Ted Young, characteristic comedian; the Bodina Trio, vocal and instrumental speciality artists; and Payne's Bioscope.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mrs. Bandmann Palmer is appearing here with her company in a répertoire of plays. On Monday evening Mary Queen of Scots was staged; and for her impressive interpretation of the title-rôle, Mrs. Bandmann Palmer was accorded quite an ovation. The Earl of Leicester had a distinctively successful representative in Mr. A. Wilson Wynne; Miss Katherine Herbert gave an excellent portrayal as Queen Elizabeth; and Mr. Sydney Bland ably sustained the part of Sir Edward Mortimer. The other plays which have been presented during the week are: Sapho, From Washerwoman to Duchess, Nell Gwynn, East Lynne, and Jane Shore.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is this week here with the successful American drama, entitled, At Cripple Creek. Mr. Stanley Bedwell as the good-natured hero, Joe Mayfield, well deserves his great success; Miss Agnes Verity is seen to great advantage as "Dynamite Ann"; Mr. Will Hook merits much praise for his conception of the humorous character of Reggie Harwood; Miss Daisy Carlton keeps the house convulsed with laughter in the rôle of Maggie Mason; Mr. Chas. H. Lester aquits himself well in the difficult part of Martin Mason; Miss Lily Beayle, as Belle Gordon, made a charming heroine; Mr. Sydney Benson contributes appreciably to the success of the piece as Ben White, a ludicrous negro character; Little Rosie Hopkins quite takes the audience by storm with her delightful childish prattle and songs in the part of Tatto; Mr. J. C. Maine shows himself a master of his art in the rôle of Manuel Alvarez, the bully of Cripple Creek; Mr. Arthur D. Leyland displays distinct dramatic ability as Wahketah, an Indian chief.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—Kreamer and Braun are the chief attraction here this week in their sensational racing act, "Horse v. Cyclist," which creates great excitement. The Seven Wolfronas score a success in a comedy acrobatic act; Walter Wade is an excellent vocal comedian, raconteur, and mimic; the Bros. Levett give a capital display of vaulting; Nellie and Lily Dixon gain loud applause for their banjo-playing and dancing; Little Beattie's clever dances are well appreciated; Sam Shipley is a smart comedian; and Miss Bee Worth, comedienne, is received with favour; the Fimans present a funny sketch, In the Fire Station; and Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Bootham.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' excellent company is presenting here the pantomime of Babes in the Wood. Mr. Ally Benson as Dame Flossie evokes roars of laughter; Mr. Ernest Thirlway as the Baron is smart; and Mrs. Bert A. Ruttley and Mr. Joe Burgess as Two Bold Bad Men are thoroughly amusing. Miss Gerty McQueen, who appears in the title-rôle, receives several encores for her singing, and Miss Fanny Adamson as Maid Marion also shares similar favours. Miss Kitty Chester and Baby Blyth as the Babes are excellent. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Conner and Trayner, the Royal Heralds, the Four Sisters McQueen, and Miss Daisy Atkinson.

RAMSGATE.—SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Henry Bowman. — Mr. R. C. Carton's brilliantly-written comedy, Public Opinion, presented by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's clever company, proved highly successful here on the first three evenings of the week. Miss Nancy Beresford was a thoroughly charming Pansy Bligh; and Mr. Charles Harley gave a fine exhibition as the peppery Spencer Traughton. Mr. Percy Marshall was excellent as Horace Wibsey; and a similar remark applies to the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley of Mr. Fred Lewis, the Sir Babington Mulley of Mr. Douglas Hamilton, the Viscount Poffley of Mr. D. Greet, and the Lord Percy Kilgour of Mr. A. Pearse. Miss Emma Hutchison was admirable in the rôle of Lady Diana Caldershaw; and Miss Connie Dene was a good Phyllis Dagenham. On Thursday Mr. Norman V. Norman commenced a welcome three nights' return visit in The Adventure of Lady Ursula.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION. — Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Sole Lessee, Mr. Jules Richeux. —The Manxman has been finely staged here this week by Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company. Mr. Cross himself appeared as Pete, and his representation of a difficult part leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Minnie Watersford in the character of Kate Cregeen effectively reflects the various phases of a well-drawn part; the Philip of Mr. Frank Liston is a noteworthy contribution to the success; and Miss Dorothy Duncan is first-rate as Nancy. Mr. James Dillon does well as Cæsar Cregeen.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company opened here to a good house on Monday, with The Love that Women Desire. Mr. Fred Lloyd as Philip Carnaby gave an exceptionally fine impersonation; Mr. Charles Herbert was a good Frank Hardy; Mr. J. O. Stewart an excellent Squire Abingdon; and Mr. Alfred Grenville was equally clever as Abingdon, jun. Mr. John Hignett made a successful Dennis O'Rourke; Mr. Gelson Brooke a good Dr. Brandetto; Miss Alice N. Livesey a fine Sybil Thornburn; and Miss Helen Richmond a capable Pattie Swift; Miss N. Griffiths as Mariquinha was most successful with her pantomimic interpretation.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is here this week with The Lion and the Mouse. The company includes Miss Christine Silver, who gives a finished portrayal of the character of Shirley Rossdale (the Mouse); Mr. Leslie Carter is responsible for a good rendering of the part of John Burkett Ryder (the Lion); and the other parts are all well acted.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Home, Sweet Home, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Frank Lindo, an able actor, fills the part of Stephen Armitage with distinction; Mr. D. L. Hoyle makes a typical fisherman of David Armitage; Captain Gerald Gambier skilfully portrays the part of the Duke of Ancaster; and Mr. F. M. Hodgson makes a capital villain as Lucas Lyle. Mr. Harry Danson as the Hon. Percy and Miss Ray Rochefort as Sybil Fay are responsible for the humorous element. Miss Marion Wakeford captivates the audience as Joan; and Miss Daisy Rochefort is quite a favourite as the child Dora.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—Texas Hattie on the tight-rope performs some clever and daring feats; Conan and Doyle, comedians, are amusing with their patter; other good turns are submitted by Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist; Syd Bazley, comedian; Edith St. Clare, burlesque actress; Lavelle Brothers, acrobats; the Tiger Lily, coon singer and dancer; Harry Butt, boy vocalist; and Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Chanti, with his quick-change act, in which he introduces some novelties and electric surprises, heads the bill with a capital turn; Zeta Grey and company, in The Lancashire Lass, submit some capital vocalism and amusing comedy; the Sisters Walmsley are refreshing with their charming dancing and singing; T. C. Edwards, baritone, renders his songs in fine style; and Alma Obrey, comedienne; Harry Nelson, comedian; Bob Baxter, the genial one; and the Empire Bioscope, complete the list.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here this week with Her Second Time on Earth. Mr. Frank R. Robertson is seen to advantage as Jack Carlton; Mr. W. H. Porter scores as Guy Brand; Mr. Cyril Vernon is deserving of mention as Tom Norman; and Mr. Leonard Aardale gives an excellent representation of Beppo. Miss Dorothy Hildebrand is a pleasing Laura Norman; Miss Agnes Ross an effective Jane Ferrors; Miss Polly Marsh a realistic Elizabeth Burke; and Miss Hilda Beverley as Dora Grey is responsible of a highly-finished representation.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—Miss Ada Wallis's company is here this week with Sweet Marie. Miss Ada Wallis in the title-rôle is very successful; Miss Nellie Bradley is a pretty and vivacious Lady Violet; and Miss Marie Stoddart a good Lady Augusta; Mr. T. Mayne gives a humorous rendering of John Bush; as Tom Bush Mr. F. Doyle works hard, his efforts to amuse being quite successful; Mr. T. C. McQuire is good as Lord Tofton, and Mr. Ernest Brame as Alfred Bush does very well; the National Troupe of lady dancers are smart, pretty and clever.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Henry Bedford's company commenced a week's stay here on Monday with Gipsy Jack. Mr. Bedford appears in the title-rôle with his disguises in a most satisfactory manner; Gerald Skinner is creditably played by Mr. Robert Gilbert; Miss Bessie Bedford as May Harvey is seen to advantage; Miss Violet Alwyn is a charming Dorothy Dexter; Mr. Sid Bedford as Joe Banks, Mr. Archer Brown as Charley Bates, and Miss Jennie Risley as Jennie Huggins furnish the comedy business satisfactorily; Miss Frances Foley as Hagar, Miss Ada Antley as Nan, Mr. E. Rayson-Cousens as Rev. Francis Harvey, Mr. Charles Archer as Sir John Dexter, and Mr. David Curtis as Mr. Skinner give good support in their various characters.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—This week's programme is of the usual good quality, with plenty of variety, and includes Daisy Dormer, a charming comedienne; Martin Conway, eccentric comedian; the Atlas and Vulcana Troupe of strong gentlemen and three ladies; Alma Grey, a very expert Australian dancing girl; Prince Kuroki, Japanese illusionist; Fred Land, eccentric comedian; Meira and Mona, in their ball-punching and pot-pourri act; the Minnetts, acrobats; Les Four Papillons, singers and dancers; Ethel Loftus, comedy girl; Bert Ray, musical expert; Major Moss and Son, in a musical sketch; and Connie Williams, comedienne and dancer. The eleventh anniversary of the opening of the theatre took place on Tuesday, when about seventy turns, including the above, were got through, and there were full houses at the matinée and two night performances. Among the performers who attended from the various Manchester and district theatres, and gave their services, were the following:—Billie Barlow, Malcolm Scott, Will Letters, Shiela McNeil, Alec Kennedy, Henry Anthony, Dacier, Litle Loo, George Daunton, George Bohee, Queenie West, Florence Deighton, Gladys Mauvis, George Foyle, the Howards, Billy Hobbs, Sandy and Carl, Will Johnson, and Daisy Martell.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Dickenson and Johnson provide a pretty entertainment in their swimming tank; Villions are a smart trio of acrobatic cyclists; Will Letters, comic vocalist, is well received. The other turns include Miniature Circus, by Silbon Family; A Bit of String, by H. Leslie Bell and Lily Bell's vaudeville company; Lottie d'Abbey, operatic vocalist; Kisbey, the call boy; Montague Biggs, female impersonator; and Merton and Rydon, in amusing comedy act; with the bioscope pictures.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. I. Carpenter.—Mr. Geo. Dance's company with Veronique is here this week. Miss Nellie Wigley as Veronique plays and sings well; as Ermerance, Miss Edith Devonshire makes the most of every opportunity; as Coquenard, Mr. Ellis Holland keeps the fun going merrily, and plays with much dash; being most ably aided by Miss Agnes Tondy as Agatha, and Mr. J. W. Foster as Florestan acts with much earnestness and passion. Mr. Clement Lockname has charge of the orchestra.

SPA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Jas. Goodricke.—Miss Emma Hutchison's and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is the attraction here, in A Country Mouse. Miss Hilda Honiss cleverly undertook the title-rôle; as Lady Sylvia Bowlby, Miss Lilias Earl is clever at all points; Mr. Chas. Bedelle makes a capital John Bowlby, M.P.; the part of Jephcott is ably undertaken by Mr. Frank Hill, and his rendering of the part went down with evident relish. On Thursday and Friday Cousin Kate was given, and on Saturday On the Love Path.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Hy. Mayhew; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is here this week with A Beautiful Criminal. Miss Dagmar in the leading part is thoroughly convincing, and makes a most favourable impression; as Maynard. Mr. Fred C. Somerfield gives ample evidence of his abilities; Mr. Roy Fortescue takes the dual part of the brothers, Cecil and Geoffrey Langdon, in an effective manner; Mr. T. G. Vane impersonates Leonard Vimbart, and his comicalities are amusing. Mr. W. Barrett and Miss Monoghan, who take the respective parts of Peter and Janet Miles, are both pleasing.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—One of the star turns here this week is Mlle. Flora Lumiere, who submits the Fairy Grotto, and gives an attractive and charming variety of dances, with magnificent electrical effects; the Kyasyas, as the dental and hirsute athletes, give a novel performance that brings them well-deserved applause; Levers is a young lady who is possessed of marvellous powers in thought-reading; Hinton and Wooton, with their novel idea of football on bicycles, can do everything that is possible in a football field; the Marsumas give a clever cycling act; the Sisters Wartanas are experts in the art of juggling; Mlle. Chloe Convere still remains a fixture on the popular programme with her cake-walk horse, and is as popular as ever; Claude Ohmy, Doodles, and Albini greatly contribute to a capital evening's enjoyment. Mr. Harry Metcalfe is the admirable M.C.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—To-day the programme for the season's entertainments draws to an end, including Miss Ada Webb's troupe of ladv swimmers. The vocalist for the week is Miss Louie Cockroft, a contralto, who has been warmly greeted; the Dunlops give an exciting exhibition on their cycles; Max Merlin accomplishes all kinds of contortionist tricks; Lilian Sivado is a smart gymnast; Francis as Mr. Brownlow; Mr. W. H. Rotherham was talented in the dual rôle of Mr. Grimwig and Monks; Mr. Paige Lawrence as Harry Maylie proved himself an actor of ability; and the remaining male characters were satisfactorily taken. Miss Dorothy Marsden was very effective as Oliver Twist; Miss A. Lingham played with grace and ability the part of Mrs. Maylie; Miss Cicely Oates merited praise as the abandoned girl Betsy; Miss Dorothy Mayhew was sweetly attractive and natural as Rose Maylie; and in the trying rôle of Nancy, Miss Edith Anton Laing sustained her part with infinite credit. The play was capitally mounted.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Her Luck in London is being played here by Mr. George Kirk's company. Miss Mary Neil is responsible for sympathetic acting as the heroine; Miss F. Groves furnishes plenty of humour as Maud Gladys Shovepenny; Miss Ada Roscoe most ably brings out the characteristics of Madame Gabrielle; and Miss F. Bruce represents the virtuous Lilian with much dignity. Mr. Langdon depicts the villain, Richard Lenowen, in dramatic style; Mr. Chas. A. Leicester's acting as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor gains him much applause; and Mr. Tyrone Power as Stephen Harborne and Mr. D. Tremayne as the Curate are quite adequate to these rôles. Mr. J. Telly Dillsen and Mr. Clapham score in the comic element. The Bioscope pictures continue their successful run.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—Mr. George Dance's company is this week paying a return visit with Lady Madcap. Mr. Bay Russell still remains to play the part of Bill Stratford, being both an excellent singer and dancer; Mr. Harold Parkes is a droll Oroya Brown; and Mr. George Whillis does well as Corporal Ham. Mr. James Graydon is excellent as Posh Jenkins; and M. Jules Charmettes excels as the amorous Count. Miss Isabelle Dillon makes a vivacious Lady Madcap; and Miss Maud Davis as Gwenny Holden gives an excellent performance; and Miss Ethel Beech is a dainty Susan.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—The pièce de résistance here is Mr. Fredk. Max well, Miss Lois du Cane, and company, in a sensational dramatic episode, The Girl I Love, which is capably played, and arouses great enthusiasm. The Geraldos are exceedingly clever jugglers and hoop-spinners; and the Ringling Trio excel as stilt-walkers. Will Vay's Juveniles sing well; and others who contribute are Osborne and Brookes, comedy duo; Playfair and Nikola, papiero graphists; Florence Bray, comedienne; and Kit Keen, coloured comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; District-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold P. Howell.—Raku, the Japanese wrestler, creates a great sensation, and the various bouts are well liked; Theo. Boumeester, Dutch protean artist, impersonates cleverly seven distinct characters in a sketch, Who is Guilty? Alice Maydue is a popular comedienne; and the Brown and Kelly Combination evokes applause with that mirth-provoking sketch, The Butler Knows. The Goldini Trio, Spanish speciality artists; Allis and Cassatti, comedy duo; and Blanche Holt and Nellie Chandos, comediennes, are also among the attractions.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The Walls of Jericho is being presented here by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the management of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux. A really good impersonation is that of Mr. Herbert Bunston, whose clever acting as Jack Frobisher wins unstinted applause. He is well assisted by Mr. George M. Brandram in the character of Hankey Bannister. Harry Dallas is well taken by Mr. Sydney Hamilton, and the Marquis of Steventon is capably presented by Mr. Cyril Baleine. Miss Lydia Busch takes the character of Lady Westerby with credit; Miss Edith Cuthbert does well as Miss Mornington; Lady Lucy Derenham is made prominent by Miss Molly Carton; and Miss Florence Jackson displays marked ability in her interpretation of Lady Alethea Frobisher.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—The genial manager is to be congratulated on his welcome change of programme for this week, the usual excellent diversified entertainment giving place to Lord Watson's Vaudeville company, which is presenting H.M.S. Victory in capital style. The play is well mounted. In Act 3, specialities are given by Leardo, an extraordinary and clever acrobat; H. Watson, who sings remarkably well; Billy Ross, a comedian of repute; the Sisters Dudley, international dancers of marked ability; and Lord and Lady Watson, clever duos. Mr. Bob Leardo is in his element as Lord Teasum, being well supported by Messrs. Arthur Watson and Billy Rose as Jack Marlinspike and Dick Hatchway respectively. Mr. Joe Burley is good as Trotter, and dances well. Miss Maud Roberts gives a pleasing delineation of Lady Teasum, and Polly is well taken by Miss Flo Stanley.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—One of the best attractions of the season is being provided here in the production of Blue-Bell in Fairyland, by Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon. Mr. Lawrence Emery gives a manly impersonation of Dicky, and in Mr. Frank Lennard is found a capable exponent of Mr. Joplin. Messrs. Harry Vernon and Will L. Clement, two clever comedians, give humorous portrayals of Will and Wont respectively. Miss Lois Bernard takes the rôle of the Autumn Leaf creditably, her singing gaining hearty recognition; Miss Vere Vizard also wins exceptional appreciation for her singing, being well suited in the character of Blue-Bell's Good Fairy. Master Albert Mack is pleasing as the Dove, and he, too, sings well. Miss Lily Eyton is responsible for a clever characterisation of the all-important rôle of Blue-Bell, and acquits herself admirably.

ALFRESCO VARIETY THEATRE, ROYAL TERRACE.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Professor Vincent.—It was fully intended to close this capital place of amusement last week, but in consequence of continued excellent patronage the whole of the artists have been retained for this week. The pictures shown on the Urban Bioscope are the special feature, and the Bijou Orchestra enchants with delightful selections under the baton of Mr. H. Lyme. Professor Le Clair's well-trained high-diving dog, Spot, causes quite a sensation. Miss Marie Lawrence and Mr. Charles Ellis also contribute with success.

PIER HILL BANDSTAND.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless.—Most gratifying reports are still heard of the first-class refined entertainments presented by Mr. Ballard Brown and his all-round company of artists. The joint benefit given last Friday was for Messrs. J. W. Bowie, Arthur Edwards, and Finlay Dunn, all of whom richly deserved recognition.

SOUTHPORT. — OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. K. Singleton.—In the capable hands of Mr. Charles Macdona's well-selected company, the successful musical comedy, Three Little Maids, which is paying a return visit here this week, loses none of its attractiveness, a large audience greeting the initial production on Monday evening. The part of the daughters of the Vicar of Market Mallory had charming and vivacious exponents in Miss Cora Lingard, Miss Daisy Silverton, and Miss Eva Weigh respectively. Gretchen was brightly and piquantly played by Miss Laura Wright; Mr. Charles Caffrey was irresistibly humorous in the rôle of Cupid; Mr. Victor Kerr caused much amusement by his clever impersonation of Lord Cheyne; the gay Frenchman M. de l'Orme had a capital representative in Mr. Eric Barrington; Miss Alice Rene artistically depicted the stately Lady St. Mallory, and was ably supported by Miss Hilda Stericker, Miss Lilian Courtney, and Miss Edith Maynard in the character of her protégées.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS. — Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The star turn at this popular hall is provided by Miss Daisy Jerome, whose vivacious and clever performance was repeatedly encored. A prominent feature was supplied by Bert Harrow, the rum comedian, whose comic versatility and catchy songs were highly appreciated. Other capital items were contributed by Barrett and Knowles, patter comedians; Bromley and Fontein, in their comic operetta, Bits of Mirth and Music; V. L. Granville, in character impersonations from famous plays; Dolly Golden, speciality danseuse; the Crown Trio, speciality vocalists; Frank Cumminger, the record sand dancer; Cissie Schofield, comedienne; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

PIER PAVILION. — Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co.; Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—A good all-round programme is submitted here this week. The items include the Original Cecilias, in their clever musical act; the Arthur Lloyd Trio, in an absurdity entitled Little Charlie, or, the Twin Sisters; Flo Velma, comedienne; Harry Mars, comedy gymnast; Collier and Roberts, in their vocal scena, The Lady and the Coalman; Joe Cheevers, comedian; Wallie Croker, mimic and siffleur; Wheeler and Wilson, comedy acrobats; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Norman Macowan's London company is appearing here in Monsieur Beaucaire. The title-rôle is finely presented by Mr. Norman Macowan; Lady Mary Carlisle is charmingly portrayed by Miss Violet Sterne; Major Molyneux is ably depicted by Mr. J. C. Taylor; Mr. P. Ramsey Forman's Captain Badger is a meritorious performance; and Mr. Murray Hathorn is good as the Duke of Winterset. On Thursday was presented A Soldier of Fortune.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—A crowded house on Monday manifested their approval of the favourite comedian, Mark Sheridan, who received an ovation; Mr. R. H. Douglass as the private detective contributes impersonations of various characters; Kahn and Kahn score as mystifiers; Walton and Lester are funny as the muddling magicians; good head and hand balancing is displayed by the Picquays; an illustrated song, "In Dreamland," is well sung by Miss Gracie Moore; and an excellent all-round performance is concluded by Professor Dunning, ventriloquist; Will Cornish's silver chimes and bells; and the bioscope.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Jack Pleasant heads the bill, and in new songs creates great amusement; Claremont and Victor contribute a good comedy gymnastic turn; and the song-scenas of the Three Coopers are greatly appreciated. Other enjoyable items are Louis Leonard and Lazy Larry, comedians; Edna Latonne and Sadie Simpson, comediennes; and Walter Payne's Bio-photoscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Local playgoers have this week been delighted with The Dear Homeland, David Muskerry's latest play, and which has been successfully presented by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company. Miss Violet Hammersley won the highest encomiums by her pleasing portrayal of Doreen Trevelyan; and Miss Olive Fulton displayed fine histrionic abilities in her assumption of the scheming Judith Tremaine. Mr. Charles O'Connor as Roy Trevelyan, and Mr. Harold C. Macartney as Duncan Tremaine both gave an excellent account of themselves. Miss Elsie Forster was very charming as Nell, and her singing and dancing won applause. An ideal Father Gregory was presented by Mr. A. Trail; and Mr. John Cullen gave an artistic sketch of Judd Harley. As fun purveyors, Mr. Dick Seddon as Rory Burke, and Miss Dora Hammersley as Molly Malone proved themselves to be adepts.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone. — A crowded house on Monday gave a hearty reception to Mr. Geo. Dance's company in The Orchid. Meakin is in the able hands of Mr. Harry Walsh, who makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. Clifford Bing is a capable Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. Chas. Seymour a dignified Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Lew Neville a successful Comte Raoul; and Mr. Geoffray Berwick as Zaccary is responsible for some clever dancing; Miss Poppy Wilkinson, who sings well, makes a dainty Lady Violet; Miss Hilda Vining is quite at home in the part of Caroline Vokins; Miss Sissie Brand submits a good portrayal of Zelie Rumbert; and Miss Trilby Collier as Josephine sings pleasingly.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Mundill.—The Maros are a couple of quaint triple bar comedians; Phinas and Aida are successful in their society gymnastic turn; Mons. Noel proves his muscular power in his ring speciality; Mlle. Yetta is applauded for her graceful wire act; and the Three Rubies have established themselves favourites. Prof. Binko, ventriloquist, is an old acquaintance, but he was never seen to greater advantage, and Miss Lena Dudley, versatile artist, Bert Bowden, comedian, and the Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

ST. HELENS. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's company opened here on Monday night with The Silver King. The drama was most creditably acted, Mr. Fred B. Davies in particular distinguishing himself by a clever portrayal of Wilfred Denver. Miss Daisy Scudamore won general admiration by an admirable rendering of Nellie Denver, and Mr. Edward J. George as Jaikes and Mr. L. St. George Lowther as Herbert Skinner were excellent. The remaining characters were all well placed, and the play was produced with every attention to detail.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr. A. Vic. Carnell.—A capital programme here this week includes Mr. Lew Luke and company in The Bloomsbury Burglars. Miss Lilian Rigby, instrumentalist; Mr. Wallace Whitney, comedian; Three Sisters Jonghmans, vocalists; Miss Beattie Forster, burlesque actress; Higgins and Mulone, expert dancers; and the Brothers Durant.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—A welcome of the most gratifying character has been accorded Mr. Wm. Mollison and company upon their reappearance here in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. Mr. Wm. Mollison impressed everyone with his fine acting of the part of Lachlan Campbell; Mr. John Clyde made a capital William MacClure; and Mr. Durward Lely impersonated the character of the Rev. John Carmichael with much ability. As Wee Posty, Mr. Alec F. Thompson was highly diverting; and Tammas Mitchell was amusingly played by Mr. Kendal Chalmers; whilst Mr. Archie W. Chappell gave an effective impersonation of Lord Hay. Miss Evelyn McNay acted pleasingly as Flora; Miss Edith Blair Stables was delightful in the character of Annie the dairymaid; Miss Alice Francis most successfully filled the part of Kate Carnegie; and Miss Josephine Woodward gave an admirable portrayal of Margaret Howe.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Edwin Garth and company, in their musical farcical sketch, McKenna in Love, have heartily amused large audiences here this week. Among others contributing to the entertainment are the Three Schaffers in their clever herculean feats; Frances Haskoll, "the vocal chameleon," who sings amidst a pleasing electrical display; the Emilions, whose novel acrobatic act gains much applause; Oliver Conroy, comedian; and May Bell, comedienne and sand dancer.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—GRAND. — Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten top the bill here. Harry Pleon as P.C. Pudden causes roars of laughter; Johnson and Bert are a couple of good knockabouts; and Charles Chard, comedian, Mlle. Roza's canine hippodrome, Gus Ryder, vocalist, and Cissie Kent, comedienne, are all acceptable turns.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. George and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—The Caledonian Boys' Orchestra play well here; the Gerette Sisters, trapeze artists, are excellent performers; Collins and Rice, comedy artists, are very good; and Elsie Earle, burlesque artist, Silvo, musician, L. B. Athol, character actor, Harry Briggs, vocalist, and the Carvers, dancers, complete a good programme.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Another good programme is submitted this week. Charles Vandyke's company, in Sensations, causes uproarious laughter; the Eltenas contribute a capital globe performance; Harry Cotton is successful in his songs; the tight wire performance of Linton is admirable; the Sisters Godfrey sing and dance cleverly; Lalla Vincent sings her songs with taste; and the animated pictures are most interesting. Pat Rafferty is also in the bill.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—This week we are receiving a visit from Mr. and Mrs. W. Maclaren's company in Proof. Perhaps the most prominent of a strong cast was Miss May Grimshaw, who as Valentine gave a very fine portrayal. Mr. Gerald Kennedy as Pierre Lorance is an artist who would win favour with any audience; while Mr. W. J. Butler as Lazare gave a powerful rendition. Mr. Wilford Bailey created plenty of fun in the rôle of Chamboran; and Mr. Carl Beechey was prominent as Duke D'Aubeterre. Miss Beatrice Shirley gave a pleasing interpretation of the rôle of Adrienne; and Miss Phena Powell was well suited for the part of Madame Deprets.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—The attraction this week is a return visit of Mr. Lester Collingwood's When London Sleeps company, under the business direction of Mr. Frank Howard. Mr. Sam Arthur submits a powerful portrayal of David Engleheart; Miss Mabel Scudamore submits a natural and pleasing impersonation of Queenie Carruthers; Mr. C. P. Wentworth as the villainous Rodney Haynes shows commendable judgment; Miss Maude Yorke is successful as the heartless Hilda; Mr. C. E. Sutton is seen to advantage as Mr. Fuller, and the humour of the piece is safely entrusted to Mr. D'Arcy Kelways as Sammy Blythe, Mr. Frank Howard as Bertie, and Miss Bessie Franks as Carrie Jones.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. F. Hughes.—John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy Children opened here for a short season on the 13th inst., and have performed to crowded houses. Little Vio Lette, with her baby songs, was a prime favourite; La Belle Tosca on the slack wire and the Rizarelis on the high trapeze gave exciting performances; amusing turns were also contributed by Fred McLean, patter comedian; Cissie Verne, song and dance; Dobito and Buxton, eccentric comedians; Mlle. Vanda on the revolving globe; and Dan Whitley; concluding with humorous scenes from the Bioscope.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is presenting here this week the drama, In Sight of St. Paul's. Mr. E. R. Allen does well as Tom Chichester; and the part of John Gridston is safely entrusted to Mr. Geo. D. Daiper; Jim Palfrey in the hands of Mr. H. Colley is most amusing; Miss Cissie Bellamy makes a charming Aileen Millar; and Miss Lallah Davies scores heavily as Cynthia Dell.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse. — Mr. George Dance's company opened a capital week's engagement on Monday with The Duchess of Dantzic, in which Miss Elma Morris, in the title-part, was much applauded for her very capable embodiment of a difficult rôle. Miss Isabel Vivian was delightfully piquant as Lisette; the Empress Josephine found a dignified representative in Miss Ethel Bradley; Miss Gipsy Dale made a charming Renée de Saint Mezard; and Miss Violet Kennerley, Miss M. Eastland, Miss A. Knolleys, and Miss Kitty Quinn also deserve mention. Mr. Frank Bradley's study of Napoleon was exceedingly good; and the rendering of the character of François Lefebvre by Mr. C. Burrunston Williams called forth repeated applause. Mr. Frank Attree was amusing as Papillon; and Miss George H. Curzon and Mr. Vernon Deville are also to be commended.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Charles Carey; Manager, L. J. Gunnell.—The Moody-Manners Opera company is giving a week of repertoire to crowded and most appreciative audiences. An interesting feature was that a ballot of local playgoers was taken for the choice of repertoire, and the result was as follows: Monday, Carmen; Tuesday, Lohengrin; Wednesday, The Marriage of Figaro and The Bohemian Girl; Thursday, Cavalleria, Rusticana, and Pagliacci; Friday, Faust; Saturday, Tannhäuser and Maritana. On the occasion of our visit Lohengrin was finely rendered, the principal parts being admirably sung by Misses Enriqueta Crichton, Miss Mary Norton, Mr. Charles Carter (in the title-rôle), Mr. F. Erle, Mr. Marshall Vincent, and Mr. George Neilson. The performance was preceded by a succinct explanatory lecture by the musical director, Mr. Harrison Fremen, who is also to be congratulated upon by the excellent work of the augmented orchestra.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—This week the Seven Savonas are paying a welcome return visit, their original creation, The Palace of Orpheus, securing a most flattering reception. They also produced on Monday night, for the first time on any stage, their comic negro fantasia, written by the late J. B. Elliott, and entitled A Moonlight Trip on a Mississippi Steamer. This scene goes, from beginning to end, in excellent style, the grand finale being exceptionally smart. The Six Cycling Elliotts score a huge success by their new and daring feats; Alec Kendal proves himself to be a comedian of more than average ability; Miss Florence pleases with her well-rendered and cleverly-illustrated songs; Senorita Eloina is a gymnast of considerable ability; and the Grand Casino Orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Henry Sprake.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company with the drama The Little Breadwinner occupies the stage here this week. Mr. Eugene Santley shows great dramatic powers as Lord William Derrington; Little Emmie Thomas deserves great praise in the title-rôle; Mr. Alfred Maurice is successful as Joseph Prior; Mr. Matthew Boulton is good as Richard Lawrence; and Mr. Allen Charles droll as Charles Prior; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam gives a finished rendition as Kate Cherry, and Miss Mary Fulton acts with discretion and charm as Margaret Daventry.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Waldrons, sketch artists, head the bill this week, and obtain a hearty reception on their return visit with their highly amusing sketch, entitled A Silly Burglar; the Watson Family give an excellent musical performance; the Gardens' Royal Quintette of Scottish dancers provide a capital turn; Bert and Dora are a smart comedy couple; Miss Nellie Young is a pleasing comedienne; and the Sisters Lyle, duettists, ably contribute.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Miss Millie Hylton makes herself exceedingly popular in some excellent songs, and is ably assisted by Miss Decima Brooke; the St. Julian Sisters, comediennes, are well received; Les Uniques, in a marvellous ladder act, are very clever; Takio proves himself a smart Japanese mimic of sounds; Ethel Walker at the piano makes a good impression; Fred Keeton, comedian, and Queen and Le Brunn, comedians, in their laughable trifle, The Cockney Huntsman, complete an excellent bill. The American Bioscope is, as usual, most entertaining.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. F. J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company in Two Hussars is paying a visit here this week. Mr. Wilson Benge as Harry Alford is most successful; Mr. Fred J. Webb as Paul Villiers is seen to advantage; Mr. Loui Nanton makes an amusing Robert Runn; Mr. G. Paradise is well placed as Sergeant McFinne; Miss Danvers Smith charmingly portrays the rôle of Marie; and as Miss Molly Cutts, Miss Laleah Price is smart.

WALTHAMSTOW. — PALACE.—Managing-Director Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Another very fine programme is "presented" by Mr. Barclay this week, the outstanding feature of which—with no reflection on the others—is the appearance of Klio, a study in sculpture. We have had of late in London and elsewhere many ladies posing as the masterpieces of classical statuary, but the idea is quite new here, and could not have a more delightful exponent than this handsome lady. Klio is "presented by Irma Lorraine," and appears amidst the exquisite surroundings of Maurin's fountains. The lady poses as a living representation of no fewer than eleven of the world's sculptural chefs d'œuvre and it would be impossible to say whether she is more successful as the Venus de Medici, or in the "Rock of Ages." We select these as indicative of her widely-contrasted subjects. Vernon and Bardell are a couple of clever ladies who sing, dance, and act with much charm; Miss Nellie Farrell is as "glittering" as ever, her bright personality exactly suiting the songs she sings; the Melroses sing and dance with equal cleverness, but their sand dance is their cleverest achievement; Mr. Will Reedo is a good comedian, who soon makes himself acceptable to the audience; the Eight Lancashire Lads, with some new dances, are as popular as ever; Mr Tom Collins makes a good impression in his two songs; the Dark Town Entertainers (one lady and three gentlemen) sing in a most artistic manner, their operatic selection being quite a musical treat. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope has some good films.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred J. Reece.—Once more a capital audience on Monday evening gave welcome to Florodora. Without exception, Mr. Bannister Howard's company is an excellent one. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore as Anthony Tweedlepunch is full of fun and overflowing with whimsical humour, Mr. Stanley White is very effective as Cyrus W. Gilfain; and Mr. Allen Morris impersonates Frank Abercoed with a due appreciation of what is required of him. Mr. C. A. James as Leander plays in finished style, and Mr. Herbert St. John as Captain Arthur Donegal does excellently. Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood acts naturally, and her singing is much appreciated; Miss Josephine Sullivan as Dolores captivates all hearts, singing with culture and refinement; Miss Lilly Gullick is a pleasing and piquant Angela Gilfain.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—There are some excellent turns here this week, and the Ballot Brothers score a big success; Mephisto is a wonderful contortionist, and J. S. James a talented comedian and tambourinist; Charles Norton is a smart mimic; and the Lovelaces supply a good turn in several illustrative songs; the Brothers Hayes are capital entertainers, and the pictures are again a capital collection.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, with The Woman Who Gambles, is here for the first time this week. The company includes Mr. James Duncan, in the important part of Count Otto Steinbach; a characteristic portrayal of the Countess Natalie Steinbach is presented by Miss Gertrude Hunt; as Baron Crantzlaw Mr. Horatio Sinclair proves himself a skilled artist; Mr. Reginald Fox does good work as Lieut. Karl Ctzarteryski; Cora Gouldhart has an excellent exponent in Miss Florrie Halton; and as Fanette Miss Brenda May is all that could be desired; Miss Florrie Hall is admirably suited to the part of Mlle. Zeyelda.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. Moore, the popular manager, continues to find the legitimate drama very attractive, and large houses have assembled to witness Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company in The Prodigal Parson, a play full of striking situations, capitally staged. Mr. W. V. Garrod is very successful as the Rev. Tom Godley, the vicar of Grasleigh, and Mr. Alfred Northway as Enoch Jaggins, his churchwarden, fills a difficult rôle with distinction; as Ben Jaggins, Mr. W. Hayward is excellent, and Mr. Herbert Newton as Phil Drive, the handyman at the vicarage, imparts a good deal of fun into the play. Fern Godley, the parson's wife, is a part well filled by Miss Bertha Kingston; Miss Gladys Conover is clever as Myrtle Godley, the blind child; and Miss Pattie Hastings as Gretchen Van Craus, who afterwards becomes Mrs. Phil Drive, is capital.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—There is another most enjoyable programme at this popular place of amusement. Collinsons's burlesque company is appearing with great success in Cook's Guests, a piece as full of fun as it is possible to imagine. George D'Albert, character and descriptive vocalist, has a quaint and telling style of his own; Miss Kate Gourley sings Scotch songs very effectively; Dave O. Tool is deservedly popular as a comedian; Harry Barclay, in his latest success, "Nelson," secures well-deserved recognition; Jenny Lynn and the Bros. Delevante are capital comedians, whose songs are excellent; while the Hippodrome pictures are as clever as ever.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The engagement of Mr. Charles Carey's company in After the Ball is a delightful change here. Mr. Algernon W. Lee scores a decided success as Hallwell Menit, his songs being frequently redemanded; Mr. Percy Baverstock's impersonation of Colonel Menit reflects credit upon him; a decided hit is made by Miss M. Sadie by her funny delineation of Nancy; Martin is capitally played by Mr. Buckstone Clair; and the dudish Dick Seymour is endowed with much quaintness by Mr. Norman Bowyer; the naive and lively Nelly Mather has a capital representative in Miss Queenie Finnis; and Miss Eva Ellis is a charming Ruth Gay.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Mr. J. A. Wilson's singing dog, Towser, is adding to the joy of audiences here. Vandinoff's pictures are executed with incredible rapidity; the muscular display by the Athlones is a revelation; Maud Vera in taking style renders two songs; an acceptable number is presented by W. H. Downs, a coloured vocalist; amusing bar work is presented by Zaro and Arno; Letine is a smart female impersonator; Florence Yaymen is well received; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are more than usually interesting.

HARTLEPOOL'S EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Leoni Clarke's wonderful performing cats, monkeys, rabbits, mice, and rats are interesting audiences here; Bosanquet is again here enrapturing all by his beautiful selections on violin and Bosanquephone; J. P. Ling, another favourite, is loudly applauded for his mimetic monologue; Miss Jeanette Hall's rendering of "The Wolf" is thoroughly appreciated; Stanley's Urchins excel in dancing; and Massona (a boy juggler), Mlle. du Roche (operatic vocalist), Florence Wood (serio), and bioscopic pictures are also among the attractions.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. E. Lockwood's Sergeant Brue company is paying its second visit here, and met with a good reception on Monday; Mr. J. Harold Carson worked indefatigably as Sergeant Brue, and the applause bestowed upon his efforts were fully merited; Mr. Albert James kept the house convulsed with laughter as Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. Robert Selby gave a most artistic interpretation of Michael Brue; Mr. F. Laceby made a very eccentric character of Mr. Crank; the Inspector Corringe of Mr. Harold Godwin was excellent; Mr. Vernon C. Booth (Gerald Trehearne), Mr. Cecil Strickland (Matthew Habisham), Mr. T. Wyman (Mr. Lamb), and Mr. Gordon Wright (Captain Bay) were all praiseworthy in their respective characters; Miss Reydon Dallis looked remarkably handsome, and acted with distinction as Lady Bickenhall; Aurora Brue was charmingly impersonated by Miss Florence Spurgeon; Miss Kathleen V. Grey was a delightful Mabel Midget, and Miss Dora Taylor made quite a character-study of Daisy; Miss Kate Sabine (Vivienne Russell), Miss Hilda Saxe (Louise Claire), Miss Lil Hodson (Eva Graham), and Miss Nellie Burn (Stella Conroy), are all to be commended for pleasing representations; Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company opened on Thursday in Two Little Vagabonds.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Smart Set are here for the third time this season. Miss Georgie Martin was loudly encored for her coon song; Miss Ethel Wilford's recitation, "The Telegram," was well received, and Miss Hilda Light sang delightfully "The Little Coon's Bedtime"; Miss Lena Hutchings' rendering of "Dear Heart" was greatly appreciated; in his song "My Queen," Mr. Arthur Court was heard to advantage, as was Mr. Lionel Atwill in "A Soldier's Toast"; that excellent comedian, Mr. Walter George, fairly brought down the house with his humorous songs.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr. E. W. Sully.—Mr. Albert Chevalier and his company are on their annual visit to this town. It is needless to say this eminent artist was well received; he was ably assisted by Miss Daisy Irvine, Mr. Alfred H. West (pianist), Mr. Harry Brett, Mr. Arthur Brankston, Master Bertie Baxter, and Miss Winifred Ingram.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. W. Fortt.—A visit from Mr. George Grossmith is always looked forward to with much pleasure, and on Monday this popular entertainer was most cordially received; he is this time assisted by three very charming ladies, Miss Dorothy Scott, Miss Dorothy D'Egville, and Miss Dorothy Forster.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding is occupying the boards this week. Mr. Ernest Owttrim gives a manly representation of Howard Wilson; Mr. S. Herbert Humber as Robert Curtis is responsible for capital work; Mr. C. H. Hughes as Toto, and Miss Maud Locker as Bridget cause endless amusement; Mr. Cyril Melton portrays Peter Schwartz in amusing fashion; Miss Madge Haines plays the part of Mabel Wilson in a graceful and attractive manner; Miss Gertrude Harrison powerfully depicts the adventuress, Cora Williams; Miss Majorie Lawrence as Jessie, the little mother, is a wonderful child actress; Mr Geo. Waring gives a popular portrayal of O'Reilly, an Irish policeman; and Mr. Alan White makes an imposing Rev. Dr. Lanceford.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. H. Cassidy.—Mr. John Keane is presenting here Mr. and Mrs. F. Garton's juvenile company in the musical comedy, The Beryl. Master Roger Westmoreland makes a creditable Cordora; Mr. Chas. Lorraine ably fulfils the rôle of Augustus Brass; Robt. Wilks is cleverly delineated by Mr. D. H. Buckley; Mr. Claude Marshall as Gus Skilly makes a capital detective; Mr. J. Falls gives a fine representation of Caspania; and Miss Lucy Garton and Miss Ettie Garton do well in their respective rôles of Captain Bates and Dora.

WEYMOUTH.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs.—On Monday, Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared for the first time here in The Earl and the Girl, and was greeted by a large and appreciative audience. Mr. C. D. Cleveland gave a capital representation of Jim Cheese; Mr. Frank Wilson was remarkably good as Dick Wargrave; Mr. E. Fitzgibbon, as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, played carefully and well; and Mr. Cotter as A. Bunker Bliss, the irate uncle, was eminently successful; Mr. Alec Godfrey and Mr. Burgess Barrett represented the two solicitors with commendable exactitude; Elphin Haye was admirably portrayed by Miss Alice Nixon; and Liza Shoddam was capably represented by Miss Adele Roze; while Miss M. Maude as Mrs. Shimmering Black, Miss Brand

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, September 17,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

The continued popularity of this evergreen musical play is amply testified to this week, for though Mr. Geo. Musgrave's company is paying its third visit here crowded houses are the order, and the advance booking is almost a record. Mr. Paddy Dupres scores a great success as Ichabod Bronson, and, playing with consummate ease and resource, extracts every ounce of fun out of the part. Mr. John Doran does exceedingly well as Harry Bronson. Mr. Frank Lawton continues to delight his hearers in his original part of Blinky Bill McQuirk, his whistling solos and performance on the bones being executed with delightful ease and a rare sense of humour. Miss Empsie Bowman as the Salvation Army lassie, Violet Grey, uses her sweet voice to excellent advantage; and Miss Winnie Browne is an attractive Cora Angelique. Miss Lily Maxwell presents the arch and captivating Fifi Fricot most pleasingly, and sings her numbers with much charm. Miss Florence Hersee, who doubles the parts of Kissie Fitzgarter and Mamie Clancy, is the embodiment of fun and vivacity, her dainty and nimble dancing no less than her artistic singing quickly capturing the audience. Mr. Max Copeland is still playing his old part of "the polite lunatic," a study which has ripened into a wonderfully finished picture of unconscious humour, evoking the most uproarious laughter. Mr. Alfred Sandoe and Mr. Walter Uridge as Doc Snifkins and Kenneth Mugg contribute to the merriment; whilst Messrs. Yeoman and Cody as the Portuguese twins indulge in some grotesque attitudes and eccentric business which also compel more smiles. Mr. A. Linforth (who is also stage-manager) represents the small part of Harry Bronson's secretary, Twiddles; and Messrs. C. W. Anson, Owen O'Brien, Willie Tearle, and W. Elrac play respectively Fricot, Mr. Snooper, William, and Mr. Peeper.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Light Opera, by Owen Hall and Leslie Stuart, entitled
"FLORODORA."

Among the many light operas of recent times, Florodora easily holds its own. Mr. Leslie Stuart's bright and tuneful music, and Mr. Owen Hall's witty libretto form a combination seldom equalled, and as the King's Theatre patrons are very competent to judge what is good, it is easy to guess that on Monday evening the house was crowded, and showed evident appreciation at the performance of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's able company. Principals and chorus alike worked with a will. Mr. Daley Cooper's rendering of Anthony Tweedlepunch is one of great merit. He keeps the audience in continual roars of laughter at his extremely comical by-play, and he must be accounted as ranking equally high with the several famous comedians who have at various times essayed the part. Mr. Joseph R. Tate is an amusing Cyrus W. Gilfain, and Mr. Edwin Oxlee is exceedingly good as the piratical-looking Leandro. Mr. R. Courtier Dutton makes an excellent Lord Abercoed, and Captain Arthur Donegal is dashingly played by Mr. Harold Perry. Miss Violet Grazia as Dolores uses her powerful voice with much effect. A dainty and charming Angela Gilfain is Miss Nellie Bowman, whose singing of "My Starlight Queen" wins every praise. As Lady Holyrood, Miss Edith Houseley, in repeating her former successful appearances at the Lyric, gains universal approval. Her delicious satire of the modern society lady-adventuress is very smartly rendered, and her songs, artistically sung, well deserve the repetitions demanded. The Gilfain clerks sing and act vigorously, and the ladies of the chorus are all good-looking and clever. Mr. H. J. Patterson ably controls the orchestra. Scenery and costumes are alike worthy of praise.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

This evening saw the welcome return of Mr. William Greet's company to the Coronet with Mr. Seymour Hicks' popular musical comedy The Earl and the Girl. The costumes and scenic effects can only be described as magnificent, and a worthy setting to the dainty music of Ivan Caryll. Among the cast were three of those who were with the company in the same comedy when it was here last April. One, Mr. William Stephens is an excellent Jim Cheese, who passes, for a consideration, as the Earl of Stone for an evening; Mr. Will Hindson is also in his old part of Downham, the American solicitor, ever on the look out for business, and he is as good as ever. The other old friend was the worthy host of the Fallowfield Arms, Mr. Tom Redmond, who acts the part admirably. Dick Wargrave, the scapegrace heir to the title, is excellently played by Mr. Arthur Harrold, who charms the audience with his rendering of the "Cosy Corner Girl"; while Hon. Crewe Boodle is depicted with success by Mr. Percy E. Wright. Mr. Greene Taylor does well as the solicitor; and the ferocious, bloodthirsty Bunker Bliss is represented to the life by Mr. H. Coustin. The ladies are charming, especially Miss Francis Earle as Elphin Haye, the American heiress, whose duet of "reminiscences" with Mr. Arthur Harrold as Dick Wargrave, causes roars of laughter. Miss Beatrice Anderson is good as Mrs. Shimmering Black, the mother of the jilted daughter, while Miss Gertrude Melville is a charming Daisy Fallowfield. Miss Mary Morison is imposing as Miss Virginia Bliss, the aunt, and Miss Jennie Richards gives a vivid realisation of the part of 'Liz, the dog trainer's sweetheart. In the Entente Cordiale dance are seen the Misses Beatrice Ford, Enid Beverly, Lily Doran, Blanchette Grand, Natalie Grant, and Geraldine Scott, the first two of whom, with Miss Constance Carré, also posed as lady friends of Crewe Boodle's party. Miss Hilda Grey is effective as Flora Lady Rosedale, and Mr. T. R. Edmund good as Rossiter, the footman. The favourite songs, "Zanzibar" and "The Blush Rose of England" are charmingly sung. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker, and Mr. Highland is stage-manager and Mr. Clarke business-manager.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Pantomimical Comedy, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The above popular and world-famed musical comedy is meeting with its usual success at the Shakespeare this week, and at each performance a crowded house has been the rule. Adapted from Le Voyage en Suisse, by MM. Blum and Toché, the piece bristles with humorous complications and droll situations, which keep the audience in one continuous roar of laughter. An exceedingly capable company under the direction of Messrs. Chas. and Fred Renad do full justice to the absurdities, and the whole performance from start to finish is thoroughly enjoyable. Messrs. C. and F. Renad in the rôles of Dr. Gull's eccentric servants are a host in themselves, and their clever fooling arouses much enthusiasm. Mr. Johnny McElroy as Dr. Gull scores a decided hit, his droll antics and witty remarks gaining much applause; Mr. George Martin as Rob Rollingstone puts in some excellent work; and Mr. Alec Wylie gives an excellent picture of Dudley Green. Mr. C. Gray is satisfactory as Mr. Septimus Squeeze; Mr. Albert Bernard as Rhino renders good support; Mr. Harwood Cooper adds to the fun by his humorous impersonation of Admiral Bombshell; and mention should also be made of Mr. Cecil Barrett as the gendarme, Mr. Gilbert N. Oakes as the Custom House Officer, Mr. Fred Strachan as Mons. Va Partout, and Mr. J. Oliver Russell as the surgeon. Miss Ida Ernest is a sprightly bride, singing in charming style, and altogether contributing greatly to the success. Miss Dora Moorhouse in the part of Mrs. Septimus Squeeze creates a favourable impression. The Eden Quartette of Vocalists and Dancers are deserving of special mention, their clever dancing being greatly appreciated. Mr. Harry Leyton is acting-manager, and Mr. Leslie Lewis musical director for Messrs. Chas. and Fred Renad, and Mr. E. de Hague Body is acting-manager for Messrs. Bonnett and Bennett.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, September 17, the Drama, in Three Acts, by Claude Askew and Edward Knoblauch, entitled
"THE SHULAMITE."

The popular manager, Mr. Cecil Paget, has secured a great attraction this week in The Shulamite, in which Miss Lena Ashwell appears in her original part of Deborah Krillet. The play is an interesting and powerful one, and the ultimate fate of the hero and heroine seem in doubt up to the fall of the curtain. Originally ending in a sorrowful note, the play is now provided with a happy ending, and even now perhaps it would appeal with greater force to provincial audiences if the prevailing sombre aspect of the play were lightened by more of the comedy element. Miss Ashwell, who had a hearty reception from a crowded house on Monday, played most powerfully as the young wife Deborah Krillet, and thoroughly gained the sympathies of the audience. Miss Ashwell's acting rises to a very high level at the end of the first act. Mr. Charles Weir thoroughly realises the rôle of the obstinate and narrow-minded old Boer farmer, Simeon Krillet; he seems a typical Dutch emigrant, possessing all the virtues and defects of his race. A notably good performance is that of the Kaffir girl Memke by Miss Beryl Mercer. Mr. W. T. Lovel plays very well in the somewhat difficult part of the young overseer, Robert Waring, and Mr. Reynolds Denniston is satisfactory as the good-natured Jan Vandenberg. Miss Mary Griffiths gives the utmost significance to the character of Tanti Anna Vandenberg, and plays with much dramatic force. The scenery and effects are notably good, especially the scene of the first act where we see the glow of sunset falling upon the veldt followed by the starlight. The storm in Act II. is also very impressively managed. The curtain-raiser is a capital little comedy, entitled The Widow Woos, in which Miss Mary Griffiths as a buxom and amorous widow and Mr. Charles Weir as a bashful carpenter greatly distinguish themselves. Miss Marcella Hudson and Mr. Reynolds Denniston also appear to advantage.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Musical Play, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

Of the series of brilliant productions at the above theatre this season, none have caught on with greater readiness than the second edition of The Spring Chicken, which was presented on Monday by Mr. Geo. Edwardes' Gaiety company. This was due not only to the intrinsic merits of the piece, with its pretty music, bright setting, and mazy dances, but in the main to the high standard of excellence prevailing among the members of the cast. Everyone worked hard to turn to full advantage the many amusing situations which the play contains, with the result that the laughter was continuous. As Mr. and Mrs. Girdle respectively Mr. George Gregory and Miss Irene Verona made immense hits. Mr. Gregory is a rollicking comedian, and warm favourite with the crowd; whilst Miss Verona acted skilfully and sang well. Miss Gertrude Glyn was piquant and attractive as Rosalie, and danced prettily. In the character of Gustave Babori, the advocate, Mr. John Brabourne was highly successful, his songs being frequently encored, whilst he was ably supported by Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as Boniface, the clerk. Miss N. Langtyre was charming as the Baroness, and Mr. Frank Hector did well as the eccentric Baron. Miss Gertrude Gillian was an attractive Dulcie Babori, and Mr. Jocelyn Hope deserves mention as the restaurant proprietor.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by S. Feinman, entitled
"THE FATHER'S CURSE."

The Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company opened the second week of Mr. S. Feinman's engagement with the striking play The Father's Curse, which is a thoroughly coherent and interesting drama, unfolding a well-constructed story with much effect; while the actors are capital exponents of their respective parts, and evidently diligent students of their art, consequently, a representation was given that was highly appreciated by the large audience present. Mr. S. Feinman seemed admirably suited with the part of Reb Josele, comporting himself with dignity, and delivering his lines with elocutionary force, while all his points were clearly and cleverly made, and his actions always graceful and expressive. Mr. M. D. Waxman as Max played with a keen appreciation of the exigencies that the character afforded; and the Schwartzman of Mr. N. Hamburger could not have been well improved upon. Mr. J. Scherman distinguished himself as Schleime, which entirely suited his capacity; and Mr. Goldsmith ably sustained the part of Phillipsohn. Rachel was in the hands of Mme. J. Kayzer, who is deserving of great praise for her sympathetic rendering; and Miss Bryh, who is an established favourite here, was bright and vivacious as Peril. A competent contribution of Deveire was presented by Mme. Goldstein; and Maritz was well portrayed by Mr. Schtreng. The usual proficiency was displayed by the management in the scenery and mounting, and the popular acting-manager, Mr. Fred Brown, is ever to the fore with courtesy and attention to the patrons. During the week Life in America, Money or the Tramp, and the Yiddish King Lear have been played.

THE ALEXANDRA, STOKE NEWINGTON.

On Monday, September 17,
Shakespeare's Comedy,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

After an absence of three years Mr. F. R. Benson and his excellent company have returned to the Alexandra, where they were warmly welcomed back by an enthusiastic audience on Monday. They are giving eight performances during the week, the plays selected comprising The Taming of the Shrew, Hamlet, Macbeth, Henry V., The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Merchant of Venice, and The School for Scandal. The first-named of the foregoing was chosen for performance on the opening night of the visit, and the even and well-balanced representation given by Mr. Benson and the talented members of his hard-working company proved eminently to the liking of the audience, if the liberal applause accorded to them at each fall of the curtain be any criterion. In Petruchio Mr. Benson has a part which he plays with unflagging spirit, and his performance throughout is a very interesting and attractive one. Equally good is Mrs. Benson as the shrew, Katharina, a character that ranks amongst her most successful studies. Grumio is in the hands of that sound and experienced comedian, Mr. George R. Weir, who, needless to say, extracts every ounce of value from the part. Miss Olive Noble is a naturally charming and graceful Bianca. A droll sketch of Biondello is contributed by Mr. Percy D. Owen, and Mr. George Buchanan is an admirable Lucentio. Baptista is impressively played by Mr. Edward A. Warburton, and the Gremio of Mr. H. O. Nicholson, the Hortensio of Mr. Stanley Howlett, and the Tranio of Mr. Clarence Derwent are all in their way admirable. Messrs. Murray Carrington, G. F. Clark, J. P. Wilson, and Misses Cissie Saumarez and Elinor Aikin in other parts successfully fulfil the tasks allotted to them.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
Shakespeare's Comedy,
"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard made an auspicious opening of his dramatic season at the above theatre with the engagement of Mr. Ben Greet's company in Shakespeare's poetical play, with Mr. Greet in his old part of Bottom. The scenery was new and specially painted by Mr. J. Rogers, and with the aid of an augmented orchestra, Mendelssohn's music was done full justice to, both vocally and instrumentally. A number of pretty fairy dances also enlivened the production. Mr. Ben Greet simply revelled in the humours of Bottom, causing genuine amusement by his delivery of the quaint lines. In the play as given before the Duke in the last act he was especially amusing, and no part of the production was more successful than this. Mr. John Macfarlane was a dignified Theseus, Duke of Athens, and Mr. Archibald McLean was paternal and sympathetic as Egeus. Messrs. Bernard Limpus and Fred Sargent as Lysander and Demetrius respectively made the most of their chances in these declamatory parts, and as Philostrate, Mr. Gilbert Clark did all that could be done with small opportunities. Quince, Snug, Flute, Snout, and Starveling were portrayed respectively by Messrs. F. Topham, Willis Searle, Sydney Greenstreet, Percy Waram, and Russell Thorndike, and each succeeded in giving clever point to the differences of character in the would-be Thespians. Miss Evelyn Hall, whether in her Greek robes or in her Amazonian costume, made a fitting mate for the Duke, and her lines were delivered in telling fashion. As Hermia Miss Gertrude Burnett was natural and engaging, and Miss Sybil Thorndike looked and acted well as the love-sick Helena. Miss Alys Rees as Oberon acted and sang with great effect, and Miss May Martyn played prettily as Titania, the Fairy Queen, her scenes with Bottom being judiciously rendered. A special word should be reserved for the Puck of Miss May de Launay, whose elfish humour was agreeably in tune with the character. The fairy children danced and sang well, and added completeness to the production.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Sergeant Brue is an old friend at this theatre, and a large audience anxious to renew acquaintance with the gallant policeman turned up on Monday, when the continuous applause that greeted the efforts of Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company showed that both play and players fully came up to expectations. Miss Hebe Bliss is responsible for a sparkling interpretation of Lady Bickenhall, singing and acting with style and distinction, her greatest success being perhaps her song in the last act, in which she cleverly mimics various popular methods of stage singing. As Aurora Brue, Miss Mary Hay plays with daintiness and charm, and sings several popular numbers with good effect, an instantaneous hit being her rendering of "Under a Panama." Miss Mabel Keith has very little to do as Mabel Widget, but does that little so well as to make one desire to see her in a part of greater scope. In the character of the servant Daisy, Miss Marion Hargrave works with a will, her energetic and amusing acting giving rise to a good deal of laughter. Mr. Arthur Reynolds is fitted with a part after his own heart in the title-rôle, his clever mannerisms and quietly droll delivery lending themselves admirably to the characterisation of the gallant but none too brainy Sergeant. As Crookie Scrubbs, Mr. Charles McLagan scores a great success, and keeps his audience in a continual ripple of laughter by his genuinely humorous and quaint, but none the less consistent, rendering of the quondam burglar. Mr. E. Percy Rogers plays Michael Brue with plenty of energy and vivacity, his rendering of a song entitled "Do you follow me?" meeting with much applause. Mr. Ernest Mozar acts well as Gerard Treherne; while Mr. Harry Soutar as the Solicitor and Mr. Cecil Hood as the Inspector are amusing in these small parts. Mr. Charles Sims is responsible for a humorous rendering of Mr. Crank, the magistrate. The chorus is numerous and tuneful, and the play is elaborately mounted and dressed.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, September 17,
the Drama, by Frank Bateman and John Douglas, entitled
"NO WEDDING BELLS FOR HER."

Patrons of the Dalston Theatre are revelling in a novelty this week in the shape of excellent representations of the drama, illustrative of theatrical life on and off the stage, entitled No Wedding Bells for Her. The performances are remarkable for many excellent examples of character-acting. Mr. Frank Bateman makes a great success of the part of Dick Delver, of the Criminal Investigation Department, and Miss Lizzie Montague as Lola Delaspierre, an actress, imbues the character with an amount of passion, vindictiveness, and, at the same time, sarcastic humour, which make it most interesting and impressive. Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherleigh, a clergyman (a relative of the fascinating but wicked Lola), impresses one as belonging to the Church militant. Mr. Edward E. Lewis is a capable Harold Trevelyn, who is engaged to Doris Fane, an actress, a part nicely rendered by Miss Louie Adair. Doris Fane is one of the chief objects of Lola's vindictiveness, and her womanly struggles against great tribulation add to the human interest of the piece. Mr. Harry Belford is a decided favourite as Horatio Fane, an old actor; Mr. Louis Garton imparts effect to the brief stage existence of Montague Blair, Lola's husband; Miss Patty Albery creates laughter as Mrs. Eastman, an eccentric landlady; Mr. Herbert J. Walton puts a deal of energy into the character of Adonis Tightfist, a theatrical manager; while Mr. Charles Morris is funny as a railway porter, and so is Mr. Will Skelton as a stage hand. The cast also includes Mr. Conrad Franklyn, Mr. Frank Davies, Mr. Fred Beverley, Mr. W. Nicholson, Mr. J. Bolton, Mr. H. Humphreys, Mr. J. Schofield, Miss Ellen Owen, Miss Nellie Parsons, Miss Ethel Lawrence, Miss M. Trueman, and Miss E. Oakley. The play is produced under the supervision of Mr. Frank Bateman.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE POPLAR.

On Monday, September 17, the Musical Comedy in Two Acts, by Seymour Hicks, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Mr. William Greet's excellent company in The Earl and the Girl is delighting large audiences at this theatre during the present week. All the members of the company are thoroughly efficient, and unite in giving a spirited rendering of this tuneful and mirth-provoking play. Miss Gertrude Simpson as Elphin Haye is bright and charming. Her clever acting and singing win all hearts, and she soon becomes a favourite. As Liza Shoddam Miss Florence Wix scores a great success, and is possessed of an excellent voice. Miss Eva Bevington as Daisy Fallowfield makes a decided hit with the "Sammy" song. Miss Nellie Grant as Mrs. Shimmering Black could not be bettered; and Miss Helen Langton as Miss Virginia Bliss is excellent. Mr. William Cromwell's performance of the part of Jim Cheese is a creditable bit of acting, and he invests the character with great humour. As Dick Wargrave Mr. Robert Hyett acts in a natural manner, and gives his songs with great effect. The Hon. Crewe Boodle is well represented by Mr. Stanley Harrison, and Mr. A. E. Coleby ably fills the rôle of A. Bunker Bliss. Mr. Frank Cane and Mr. Arthur Cassidy as Downham and Talk respectively make excellent solicitors, and Mr. Charles Greenhill, Mr. Wilfred Norman, and Mr. F. Payne Palmer fill their parts admirably. Mr. Fred W. Pattrick makes an ideal host of "The Fallowfield Arms." Miss Nellie Lawrence is to be congratulated on her excellent dancing, and Mr. F. R. Esmond and Mr. G. W. Rolfe are successful in their efforts. Altogether a most enjoyable production, and Poplar demonstrated its approval in unmistakable terms at the fall of the curtain.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Drama, by Nita Rae, entitled
"HER FATAL PAST."

The above absorbing and well-written drama has been occupying the boards during the past week, and attracting good audiences. It is just the sort of dramatic strong meat, in which the good folks of Rotherhithe love to indulge. Full justice is done to the production by the popular stock company. Mr. Ashley Page brings all his well-known dramatic ability to bear on the rôle of the hero, Mark Desmond, with the most satisfactory results; Mr. Alfred Harding gives a capital study of polished and incisive villainy as Gilbert Fernside; Mr John Sargent provides a capital character-sketch as the stuttering postman, Reuben Treadaway, creating roars of laughter; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs and Mr. C. A. Chandler as Dicky Bird supplies fun and amusement throughout. Miss Marion Denvil acts with emotional power as Honour Symes; Miss Olga André is thoroughly realistic as the woman of pleasure, Belle de Lara; Miss Mattie Everett plays with much feeling as Kitty Sprigwell; Miss Georgie de Lara is good as Ruth Fernside; and a word of praise should be given to little Elsie Jezzard for her capital rendering of the part of Little Leonard.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Drama, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled
"DEATH OR GLORY BOYS."

The Lyric is being well patronised by Hammersmith playgeors this week, the attraction being the military play, Death or Glory Boys, a drama at once entertaining and sensational. Mr. Arthur Bawtree is responsible for the leading part of Jack Malden, and introduces into the character that manly vigour so necessary for the soldier hero. Mr. Fred Morgan is generally chosen by the Lyric management from their excellent stock company to play the villain, and his Glyn Ferrers proves how capable he is to take up the position. Miss Minnie Grey is charming as Neda Fergeson, always a favourite with the theatre's patrons. She is welcomed by rounds of applause at every appearance. Mr. Bert Morley as Lieut. Duff portrays the gallant, yet somewhat foppish, young soldier, very ably. As Nat Wilks Mr. A. P. Kaye is quietly amusing, and with Miss May Seaton as the lively maid, Jane, causes much wholesome merriment. The pathos thrown into the part of Edith Malden by Miss Nellie Fletcher is very real, and in a difficult rôle she greatly distinguishes herself. Others who deserve special praise are Mr. J. E. Manning as Colonel Ferguson, Mr. T. P. Dryden as Carn, and Mr. Ashton Winslow as Sergeant Bryan.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 17, the Lyrical Comedy, by Leedham Bantock and Arthur Anderson, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company—a most capable combination all round—opened a week's engagement here on Monday evening in this clever and amusing production, which was presented to the riverside audiences with all the accessories employed on its presentation at the Criterion Theatre. The comedy was admirably mounted, was assisted by a numerous and well-trained chorus, and was received by a good sized house with many marks of favour. Miss Muriel George, who plays the part of Sybil Cunningham, achieved a distinct success, and was a particular favourite with all parts of the house, her butterfly song being well rendered and most cordially received. Miss Nellie Groves also won the favour of the audience by her singing and dancing in the part of the American heiress. A great hit was made by Mr. Jamie Dallas as Private Perks, who in his hands was an irresistible mirth-provoking personage; and in sustaining the low comedy features of the play he was ably assisted by Mr. Richard Telford as the Chinaman. Others who acquitted themselves well were Mr. Chas. Schmidt as Admiral Armitage; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Lieut. Armitage; Mr. H. E. Garden as Lieut. Belmont; and Miss Emily Taylor as Betty Kenigon. The chorus was under the direction of Mr. Harry Richardson, and the comedy was produced by Mr. Duncan Young.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Opera, in Three Acts, by Wagner, entitled
"TANNHAUSER."

The Carl Rosa Opera Company commenced a six nights' engagement on Monday in Tannhäuser. A large audience greeted the production with warm applause. The artists to whom the various rôles were allotted acquitted themselves admirably, the singing of the principals being of a very high order of merit. The Tannhäuser of Mr. Julius Walther was a very virile creation, and his fine voice was heard to great advantage. Mr. Charles Victor was very good indeed as Wolfram; as also was Mr. Arthur Winckworth as the Landgrave. Mr. John Ebbeler gave a capital rendering of Biterolf; and Mr. C. Brierley as Reinmar, Mr. Albert Felton as Schrieber, and Mr. Charles Le Sueur as Walther were all excellent. Miss Grace Nicholl made a delightful Elizabeth, both vocally and histrionically; and Miss Marie Alexander as Venus, and Miss Retta McAllister as the Shepherd-boy were both highly satisfactory. The opera was conducted by Mr. Eugène Goosens.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Sept. 17, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled
"SAVED FROM THE SEA."

Saved from the Sea is being presented at the Standard this week with every sign of success. Mr. Roy Redgrave enacts the part of Dan Ellington with force and skill; as Peter Scalcher Mr. J. C. Aubrey displays considerable talent; Mr. Wingold Lawrence presents an excellent study of Richard Fenton, playing with ease and nonchalance, and meeting with marked success. High praise must be bestowed upon Mr. Frank Lister for his vivid and lifelike portrayal of Jim Weaver. A capable impersonation of Billy Snooks is supplied by Mr. Willie Reid; and great satisfaction is given by Mr. Jack Denton as Jenkins. Mr. Henry C. Cooper proves highly capable as the Governor of Barchester Gaol; Miss Eva Dare submits a charming picture of Polly Blake, a country girl; and Miss Ruth Zillwood is seen to advantage as Mrs. Blake. Miss Florrie Green, a clever child actress, makes the most of every opportunity as Jack Ellington. As the heroine, Nancy Ellington, Miss Kathleen Russell plays with much pathos, and her portrayal is highly acceptable.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Play, in Three Acts, by Mr. W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled "BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

A most amusing and attractive programme is submitted this week at the Brixton, the attraction being the visit of Mr. Arthur Hardy's company in The Beauty and the Barge. The brunt of the work falls upon the shoulders of Mr. Blake Adams, who gave a successful and humorous impersonation of the master of the barge "Heart and Hand," and whether he is telling yarns or assisting beauty in distress, Captain James Barclay keeps the fun going with unflagging energy. Mr. Edward Coventry is seen to advantage as Lieut. Seton Boyle; Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu is an ideal Herbert Manners; the irascible and hot-tempered Major Smedley is smartly played by Mr. Walter Pemberton; Mr. Fred Knight adds considerably to the merriment by his impersonation of the mate Tom Cudd; Mr. Thomas Pauncefort does well as the amorous Augustus; Mr. Ernest Drake causes amusement as the diminutive landlord, and his funny business causes incessant laughter. A fine character-study of the gardener John Dibbs is presented by Mr. Charles White; Miss Mona Robin acts exceedingly well as Mrs. Smedley; Miss May Fairclough is a charming and dainty Ethel Smedley; Lucy Dallas is prettily played by Miss Mary Pemberton; Mrs. Porter is effectively undertaken by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite; and Miss Ruby Wyndham infuses a considerable amount of humour into the part of Mrs. Baldwin.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, September 17, the Drama, adapted from Marie Corelli's Book, entitled
"THE SORROWS OF SATAN."

The return visit of Messrs. Travis Green's and Arthur Hinton's company in the somewhat mystical drama, The Sorrows of Satan, has been entirely successful, the holding capacity of Mr. William Bailey's commodious theatre being tested to the full. The chief interest centres, of course, in the doings of Prince Lucio Rimanez, a trying role, which Mr. Arthur Hinton handles with conspicuous ability and strenuous determination. As Geoffrey Tempest Mr. W. Travis Green does full justice to the part, his performance being most creditable. Mr. Frank Brunell is sufficiently dignified as the Earl of Elton. Mr. Gerald Byrne gives a good representation of the weak-minded Viscount Linton, and Mr. Herbert Ronald scores as Morgeson. Miss Leila Zillwood sustains the part of Lady Sybil Elton in a powerful and convincing style, holding the house spellbound in the third act. Miss Lydia Andre is delightfully sweet and tender as Mavis Clare; whilst Miss Florence Zillwood is responsible for a typical character-study of the American beauty, Diana Chesney. The piece is well mounted and staged, and the cast all round is an excellent one. It was pleasing to find Mr. James Sinclair (Mr. Bailey's genial acting-manager), back again in front, on his return from a cheery sojourn with mine host of the Green Dragon, Ightham, Kent.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Drama, in Four Acts,
by Arthur Shirley and George Conquest, entitled
"THE LONDON FIREMAN."

This sterling drama is renewing acquaintance with Stratfordians at the Theatre Royal this week, and on Monday was most cordially received. Messrs. Garside and Knowles's company gives an entirely satisfactory interpretation of the piece, which is mounted exceedingly well. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles submits a virile and earnest embodiment of Hal Curtis; Mr. Oliver Birrell is duly callous and blackguardly as Viscount Fleming; Mr. Edward L. Garside contributes a well-defined sketch of Hal Curtis, sen.; Mr. Wm. Burgess plays Abel Fortnum with ability; and Mr. Walter Wilbey is most effective as Joe Bruener. Miss Nellie Shirley acts with sympathy and charm as Ida Curtis; Miss Nellie Waddington plays very appropriately as Countess Fleming; and Grace Curtis is portrayed with much feeling by Miss Florence M. Daly. Comic relief is provided by the exuberances of Nixey Stinger and Polly Bramble, capitally delineated by Mr. Harry C. Womber and Miss Nellie Garside, who are always amusing and entertaining. Minor parts are in quite competent hands.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
the Musical Play, entitled
"A COUNTRY GIRL."

Mr. George Dance's company is paying a return visit to the Stratford Borough Theatre this week with A Country Girl, and the piece is meeting with every success. Mr. Charles Walenn is a host in himself as the irrepressible Barry, and his indefatigable efforts are duly appreciated. Mr. Percy Carr acts and sings in buoyant and pleasing style as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. J. C. Graves plays with a dry humour as Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. St. John Hamund is an exceedingly popular Mr. Raikes with an inexhaustible supply of topical verses for his "Valley of Bhong" song; Mr. Robert Corray enacts Douglas Verity very appropriately, and a capital sketch of Granfer Mummery comes from Mr. F. W. Pedgrift. Miss Maisie Gay is a great favourite as Nan, and her songs go wonderfully well. Miss Nancy Rossiter makes a very charming Marjory Joy, and sings delightfully. Princess Mehelaneh has a graceful exponent in Miss Winnie O'Connor, whose rendering of "Under the Deodar" is a vocal treat. Miss Addie Lennard vivaciously plays Madame Sophie, and sings and dances admirably. Minor parts are all creditably played, and complete justice is done to the concerted numbers by the well-trained orchestra under the direction of Mr. Gordon Stamford.

GRAND THEATRE, FOREST GATE.

An audience which filled every seat in the theatre gave Mr. Sydney Spenser an enthusiastic welcome on Monday last, when he took possession of the Grand. During the recess the house has been redecorated and cleansed from floor to ceiling, the stage enlarged, and an exceedingly good orchestra engaged. Mr. Spenser introduced himself to his audience, and in a modest, straightforward speech promised that, given a fair amount of support, he would provide an entertainment that should save them the trouble of taking a tram ride. He mentioned that he had arranged for an Operatic and Shakespearean week, and that his first pantomime should be an example of what liberality and experience could do. The opening attraction was the engagement of Mr. J. H. Clyndes and an excellent all-round company in the romantic drama, A Royal Revenge, which held the attention of the audience from start to finish. Mr. J. H. Clyndes as Estevan Alverez and Pedro de Castro was in excellent form, and was ably supported by Mr. J. Foxhill as Nicholas Vargas. Mr. Walter Kenion gained an encore for his song as Sancha; and the King of Spain was cleverly played by Mr. Oneon Thorpe. Miss Enis Edoni as Inez Alvenaz looked the part perfectly, and completely won the sympathy of the audience.

"Secrets of London Society," a drama, by Chas. Whitlock, was produced for copyright purposes at the Dalston Theatre on the 17th ult.

"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

To the accompaniment of loud and continuous laughter, Mr. James Welch and company produced When Knights Were Bold here on Monday. It is described as a farce, which somewhat prepares us for the absence of anything serious in the nature of a plot; albeit, there is a slight and comprehensible one. The author, Charles Marlowe, has strung together an amusing sequence of entertaining dialogue, passable punning, and capital jokes, which, with the many comical situations, form a two hours' entertainment of light and wholesome fare that is calculated to drive dull care away.

Divided into three acts, the first and third are in the present period, the second going back to the year 1196. The opportunities for Mr. Welch are manifold, and it goes without saying that he lets none escape him. We cannot conceive anything more excruciatingly funny than the finale of the second act, where Sir Guy (Mr. Welch) is persuaded to don the armour of a knight over his dress clothes, and fight a comic duel with his enemy, Sir Brian. Amidst shrieks of laughter the doughty little champion tackles his foe; then, discarding his heavy accoutrement, dances round his opponent, brandishing a short sword, and literally smiting him "hip and thigh," the curtain descending as Sir Guy stands, one foot planted on his fallen enemy, crying "Victory!" It is farce pure and simple, but so well done that the audience thundered its applause; indeed, the acting is good all round, arousing keen enthusiasm and compelling many calls.

Sir Guy de Vere is a very modern baronet, who finds more pleasure in a game of cards, or a flirtation with a pretty girl, than delving into the history of his ancestral tree. For some reason or other his friends and guests are smitten with the fever of research into the ancient history of the Castle, and Sir Guy's life is tortured to the verge of distraction by their constant allusions to the "good old times." En passant, we may say, that the references to these times become a little wearisome by their constant reiteration. Unfortunately for Sir Guy, his cousin, Rowena, with whom he is in love, descants more persistently than the others on the glories of mediævalism. A disturbing factor is also introduced in the person of an Irish adventurer, Sir Brian Ballymote, who pretends to an equal amount of ardour for the past ages (in the presence of Rowena), thus bringing about a sympathetic sentiment between them. Sir Guy is further troubled with a very bad cold, and, in endeavouring to cure it in the ultra "modern" way by means of hot water and a decanter of whisky, falls into a deep sleep, and in a dream passes backward 700 years.

This dream forms the basis of Act II. In faultless evening dress, Sir Guy appears on the battlements of his castle, as it was in the days of Richard Cœur de Lion, finding his retainers and guests wearing the fantastic garb and using the speech of those days. It can easily be imagined that, in the experienced hands of Mr. Welch, the sharp and vivid contrasts between the modern Sir Guy and his present surroundings are not permitted to lose anything of the quaintness derived from such situations. Rowena, a novice in a convent, arrives with several others to claim the protection of Sir Guy from the machinations of Sir Brian, and here occurs the duel of which we have previously spoken.

In Act III. Sir Guy has awakened, and, by the help of his valet, determines to feign madness, and give his cousin and guests more than enough of the "good old times." In his dressing-gown, armed with a huge two-handled sword, he raves up and down the stage in most approved twelfth-century style, and the efforts of one or another of his friends to soothe his frenzy are productive of still further humorous scenes. The ruse effects its purpose. Rowena is convinced that Sir Guy is really a man of spirit, also of the worthlessness of Sir Brian, and all ends happily.

As Sir Guy de Vere Mr. Welch fairly revelled in the rôle, his assumption of a nasal catarrh being exceedingly droll, and his fooling throughout kept his audience in a constant state of merriment. Mr. H. J. Ford submitted a capital sketch of Charles Widdicombe, a society noodle, and in the second act took the part of a Jester with conspicuous success. Mr. Arthur Grenville deserves high commendation for his interpretation of Isaac Isaacson, simulating the designing Jew with artistic skill, without undue exaggeration. Mr. James Nelson acted with care and discrimination as the urbane Dean of Beechwood, giving a soupçon of dry humour; Mr. Edward Sass was heard to advantage in the rich brogue of the Irish adventurer, Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. Leopold Profeit did well as the Herald; Mr. George F. Tully made a complete success of the valet (Wittle), as also did Mr. Gordon Tomkins of the butler, both playing up to Mr. Welch with the happiest results. Miss Audrey Ford gave a vigorous performance of the romantic Rowena, and thoroughly realised the spirit of the rôle; the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave had a refined exponent in Miss Emma Gwynne; and an attractive Millicent Eggington was seen in Miss Estelle Winwood. Miss Enid Sass played the vivacious Marjorie Eggington with commendable naturalness; and Miss Mabel Wentworth satisfactorily enacted Kate Pottlebury. Miss Daisy Cordell furnished a capital study of the Jew's daughter, Miss Isaacson; and the ingenuous style of Miss Annie Chippendale was well fitted to the part of Alice Barker.

The farce was preceded by the one-act play The Lady Burglar, which has before received notice in our columns. The rôle of Honoria Macfarlane was delightfully essayed by Miss Estelle Winwood; and Mr. Henry J. Ford acted with ease and finish as Darcy Fitzherbert. The orchestra effectively rendered incidental music under the bâton of the composer, Mr. Brigata Bucalossi. The scenery by Mr. Bruce Smith is a clever reproduction of the interior and exterior of an ancient castle. The dresses also deserve a word of praise.

MR. DAN GODFREY, musical director to the County Borough of Bournemouth, announces that the twelfth series of Symphony Concerts will commence on Thursday, Oct. 4, and will be continued on successive Thursday afternoons till May, 1907. The supplementary series of classical concerts will commence on Monday, Oct. 8, and be continued weekly. During the course of the dual series the most important symphonic works of the great masters of music, both past and present, which have from time to time been performed at the Winter Gardens, will be repeated, together with many novelties. As in former seasons, several British composers will visit the town and conduct works of their own, amongst them being Sir Frederick Bridge, Dr. Cowen, Mr. Edward German, Sir Charles Stanford, and Mr. Coleridge Taylor.

ACTORS' DAY.

About forty extracts from letters received from prominent managers, actors, and authors expressing their most cordial approval of the Actors' Day appeal appeared in our columns some weeks ago, and since that date about a thousand more names have been added, making a total of considerably over two thousand who have promised their practical support. The list is increasing daily, and with the signed forms the committee are still constantly receiving letters which show how great and wide the interest taken in the movement has become. We give to-day extracts from a few such letters:—

"I consider it the best idea that has ever been suggested for making our charities self-supporting."—Percy Marshall.

"All the members of the company (Mr. Lewis Waller's Brigadier Gerard company) are willing supporters of this most admirable and promising scheme."—George Mallett.

"I should be only too glad to help such a good cause."—Arthur Carlton.

"I most cordially approve of your scheme, and have much pleasure in returning Form B, duly signed."—John L. Shine.

"I shall only be too delighted to help such an admirable scheme."—Marie Tempest.

"So admirable a scheme deserves the support of every member of the profession."—Florence Haydon.

"I cordially support the movement."—Fredk. Mouillot.

"Have much pleasure in signing form as requested."—Geoffrey Fulton.

"I am heartily in accord, and will do everything I can for its support."—E. Distin Maddick.

"I hope it will have the support of the whole profession, which it deserves."—D. Morton Williams.

"I have every sympathy with the scheme."—Lottie Venne.

"I think the idea deserving of the fullest support."—Wyn Weaver.

"Every good wish for such a long-needed scheme."—Harry Elliston.

"I think the scheme is excellent."—W. K. Gatley.

"The scheme has my most cordial approval."—A. F. Cross.

"The scheme is a noble one."—Margaret Ayrtoun.

"With great pleasure I subscribe to this great scheme."—Helen Rous.

"I heartily approve of the Actors' Day, and will do all I can for its support."—Louise Moodie.

"With pleasure. If I can, will willingly assist."—Allan Aynesworth.

"I have signed both forms—one as manager, the other as actor. The only suggestion for years that appeals thoroughly to me."—Henry Bedford.

As it is impossible to communicate personally or by letter with all who are interested in Actors' Day, the committee ask the co-operation of all who are willing to assist in the work of organisation. They would be glad to receive further individual promises of help and programmes of all companies now playing.

Copies of the appeal and forms for signature will be sent to those who will be kind enough to write for them.

All communications should be addressed to The Actors' Day Organising Committee, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

MR. TOOLE'S WILL.

The will and codicils of the late Mr. J. L. Toole have been lodged for probate. The will was signed on April 17, 1894, and the codicils added at various periods, ranging from April 8, 1895, to Feb. 22, 1906. Altogether, about 170 persons are named for bequests. Only about half-a-dozen bequests were revoked. Of these some were reduced, notably one to the late Clement Scott, from £500 to £300. Mr. Toole, in the last codicil, increased his bequest to his old friend George Shelton to a total sum of £1000.

The amount left by Mr. Toole reached a nett sum of £79,964 0s. 2d. All bequests will be paid free of legacy duty. The executors are Mr. Edward Yeats Lowne, of Conyers-road, Streatham, and Mr. John Lyell Lyell, of Culverdon, Balham. The residue of the estate Mr. Toole directed should be divided into ten equal parts, five of these to be divided amongst those persons who would have benefited had he died intestate. These will be mainly nephews and nieces, one other part going to Edward Yeats Lowne, and three to such charitable institutions as the executors may see fit to benefit.

Amongst the legacies, of which many are rendered void by death, are the following:—Henry Irving, £4000 and house at 44, Maida-vale; Eliza Johnstone, £2000; Frank Carlton, £1000; Lionel Brough, £600; John Billington, £1300; Mrs. Billington, £300; Weedon Grossmith, £300; Edward Yates Lowne, £2300; Charles Macready Lowne, £200; George Shelton, £1000; G. Shelton, jun., £200; Henry Westland, £200; George Lee, manager, £50; George R. L. Loveday, £100; Lionel E. R. Loveday, £100; Annie Loveday, £100; Miss Bessie Hatton, £200; George Grossmith, £100; Weedon Grossmith, £300; Laurence Irving, £100; H. B. Irving, £100; Harry Loveday, £400; Henry Irving Loveday, £200; among children of late Mr. Saker, £600; Mrs. Saker, £100; Sarah Jane Mellon, £100; Mrs. Lionel Brough, £200; Miss Bessie Brough, £200; Miss Daisy Brough, £100; Percy and Sidney Brough (each), £100; Scarrott, chief carpenter, £50; Carter, gasman, £25; Kate Carlyon, £100; and Thomas Thorne, £100.

In the long list of legatees who are requested to buy mourning rings with bequests of £20 each, are Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. George Barrett, Mr. Job Bracewell, Mr. Cecil Beryl and Mrs. Beryl, Mr. Gilbert Farquhar, Mr. Ambrose Manning, Mr. E. C. Silverthorne, Mr. Michael Gunn (Gaiety Theatre, Dublin), Mr. J. B. Howard, Mr. Henry Kemble, Mr. Macready Lowne, Mr. Harry Loveday (of Lyceum), and Mr. Henry Westland.

The deceased actor left to the Garrick Club the buckles of John Bannister, given to Mr. Toole by Miss Kelly; to Mr. Weedon Grossmith the portrait of Mr. Toole's son, Frank Laurence, painted by Mr Grossmith; and various interesting "curios" to his executor. To the Actors' Benevolent Institution and the Royal General Theatrical Fund £500 each is bequeathed. Other notable legatees are J. M. Barrie, A. W. Pinero, W. S. Gilbert, George Alexander, J. W. Comyns Carr, Albert Chevalier, John Hare, Cyril Maude, Judge Parry, Arthur Roberts, Ellen Terry, Beerbohm Tree, Irene Vanbrugh, Charles Wyndham, the late Wilson Barrett, and the late Dan Leno.

"A WINTER'S TALE" has been produced at the Deutsches, Berlin, with Frau Agnes Sorma in the part of Hermione. This pleasing actress is always interesting, and her conception of the character, though quite different from that of Frau Gessner-Sommersdorff—who played it formerly at that theatre—could not fail to attract. Herr Kayssler, as Leontes, was eminently satisfactory, and the remainder of the cast was adequate. The mounting was in the opulent style to which we have grown accustomed under Herr Reinhardt's management. It was, perhaps, at times overdone—more striking than artistic—but the scene of the shepherds' festival was quite beautiful, atoning for all slight deficiencies, and Humperdinck's music is delightful in its melodious harmonies.

MR. EDWARD THANE will produce, at the New King's Theatre, Hoxton, on Oct. 1, a new four-act drama, entitled Lured to London.

"THE HONEYMOON."

A Musical Absurdity, in Three Acts, by Gilbert Payne, produced for the first time on any stage at the Empire Theatre, Dundee, on Monday, Sept. 17.

Col. Vandyke Brown .....MR. JOHN HAMES
Jack Armstrong .....MR. LESLIE ERLE
Nathaniel Noodle .....MR. GILBERT PAYNE
Archie .....MR. HARRY FARROW
Victor l'Estrange .....MR. HARRY HOYLAND
Timothy Tubb .....MR. BERT GRAY
Emeretta Noodle .....MISS RENE WALTON
Stella Le Brun .....MISS NELLIE DYSON
Madge Armstrong .....MISS PATTIE FAIRLEY

Mr. Gilbert Payne is well known as the author and composer of various musical absurdities, which have all proved most successful. Being a first-class comedian himself, he knows what a discriminating public wants nowadays, and in The Honeymoon he has excelled himself, and provided as bright and amusing a piece as anyone could wish for. The story, which recalls the topsy-turvydom of the Gilbert and Sullivan successes, centres round the adventures which follow the clandestine marriage of Jack Armstrong, and the play is full of the most ludicrous situations. It is the object of Jack and his wife to prevent a knowledge of their marriage reaching the ears of his uncle, Col. Vandyke Brown, that very peppery old gentleman having promised to leave his nephew half his large fortune on the condition that the young man does not marry. To the surprise and dismay of the couple, the Colonel returns to England, and Jack and his friends do all in their power to throw dust into the sharp eyes of his avuncular relative. Jack's wife is introduced as his housekeeper—a widow—and his friends represent for the occasion his servants. The complications that follow are extremely funny, and evoke the heartiest merriment, but after Jack has made full confession, all ends happily.

The star of the company is Mr. Payne himself in the part of Nathaniel Noodle; he simple bubbles over with wit and humour. He is well supported by Mr. John Hames as the Colonel, and also by Mr. Harry Farrow and Mr. Leslie Erle. Miss Pattie Fairley as Mrs. Armstrong has a big share in the success of the piece, her acting being very natural and her singing of various catchy songs all that could be desired. Special mention must be made of her song "The widow with the downcast eye," and her duet with Mr. Erle "I'm longing for you," both being excellent numbers. Miss Nellie Dyson, who appears as Stella Le Brun, is an exceedingly smart actress, her song "Little boy, you must guess" being very much applauded. Miss Rene Walton also plays her part (Emeretta Noodle) well, and sings "There I was waiting at the church" in her own taking way. Specialities are introduced by the Florentia Troupe of dancers. The dresses and scenery are admirable, and the piece was welcomed with the warmest tokens of approval by a large and enthusiastic house. The company goes on tour for ten weeks in England, and the new production should have a very successful run.

THE COURT.

On Monday, Sept. 17, Revival of the Play, in Four Acts, by Bernard Shaw, entitled "JOHN BULL'S OTHER ISLAND."

The subtleties of Shaw have now been so effectually grasped by playgoers at the Court that any one of his brilliant satires can safely be relied upon as an attraction. Monday witnessed another revival of John Bull's Other Island, and a crowded and appreciative audience came prepared to be merry at the many palpable hits at their national weaknesses, lending a ready ear to the witticisms in the piece, and being thoroughly amused by the distorted view of the Sister Isle which is presented. The piece has apparently to a certain extent been brought up to date, references to the constitution of the present Government and to incidents of recent occurrence being made. One of the chief features of the revival is the return of Miss Ellen O'Malley, who resumes her original character of Nora, and the winsomeness and grace of her impersonation of the artless Irish maiden remain unimpaired. The piquancy of the scene at the Round Tower is in particular agreeably apparent, and the performance throughout is one of indescribable charm. Mr. Louis Calvert again revels in the ingenuous drollery of the genial Broadbent. The part is rich in opportunities which to so practised an actor as Mr Calvert are invaluable. Every line gains in humour by his method of delivery, and the effect of each situation is accentuated by his varied acting. Among the newcomers to the cast is Mr. Ben Webster, who plays with dash and refinement as the Anglicised Irishman, Larry Doyle. Mr. Webster is at all times buoyant and incisive, and the long speeches which fall to him bring his fine elocutionary abilities into full play. Miss Agnes Thomas has made the character of Aunt Judy entirely her own, and the merriment with which the house resounds is frequently the result of her quaint delivery. Mr. Edmund Gwenn is one of the chief provokers of laughter in the part of the valet Hodson. His stolid demeanour and his resignation of manner are truly comic, and his sudden wordy attack upon the "solid man," Matthew Haffigan, roused the house to a high pitch of hilarity. Matthew himself is played effectively by Mr. James Hearn, who gives a remarkably clever study of the rapacious old farmer, every detail of make-up being artistic. Mr. Henry Austin, a young actor of much promise, has succeeded to the part of Tim Haffigan, and adapts himself admirably to its requirements. He gives a well-studied and humorous exposition of the drink-sodden impostor, and his efforts to create mirth during his brief scene are crowned with success. Mr. Wilfred Shine adds to the sum total of laughter by his droll rendering of Barney Doran; and a very capable embodiment of Corney Doyle is given by Mr. F. Cremlin. The whimsical characterisation of Patsy Farrell supplied by Mr. Norman Page is brimful of unobtrusive drollery, which exercises a felicitous effect. Mr. Edmund Gurney is a robust exponent of Father Dempsey, giving vigorous expression to the lines of the part; and as the demented Keegan Mr. William Poel gains the greatest admiration for the distinctness of his utterance and for his clever management of at least one difficult scene.

MR. SYDNEY PAXTON, who next month relinquishes his position as manager of the Grand Theatre and district-manager of the Hippodrome, Southampton, is to be accorded a benefit concert on Thursday, Oct. 4, at the local Skating Rink, kindly lent for the occasion. A meeting to promote the affair was held at the Royal Hotel on Tuesday evening, when the Mayor occupied the chair, and among those present were Messrs. W. Trussell (manager of the Palace) and H. Howell (manager of the Hippodrome). It was explained that a provisional committee had been formed, and had approached many influential people, who had extended their patronage to the movement, including Miss Ellen Terry, the Mayor, Sheriff, and Town Clerk of Southampton, Mr. Fred Mouillot (lessee of the Grand Theatre), Mr. Walter de Frece (part proprietor of the Hippodrome), Mr. Frank Macnaghten (lessee of the Palace Vaudeville Theatre), Mr. F. R. Benson, Mr. George Grossmith, and Mr. Edward Compton. A general committee was appointed, with the Mayor as chairman, Mr. Trussell deputy-chairman, Mr. Howell hon. treasurer, and Messrs. Gleave and Gear hon. secretaries.

"A MISERABLE MARRIAGE."

A Play in Four Acts, produced at the Theatre Royal, Lincoln, On Monday, September 17.

Agnes .....MISS P. DALTON
Lady Cameron .....MISS NELLIE FERN
Lizzie Bowman .....MISS M. NORTHCOTE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It is some time since there was a "first night" of note in Lincoln, the most recent production of importance being that of Mr. Albert Chevalier's The Land of Nod. Mr. John H. Negus, who produced A Miserable Marriage, the authorship of which was not announced, should find his piece a moneymaker when once it has settled down and the inevitable revisions—which he will find little more than matters of detail—have been made.

The plot is interesting and well told, the curtains briskly worked up to, and though the dialogue does not rise to great merit, a "plain tale" pointedly told, has its good qualities. The opening of the piece finds Aaron Howseman, the estate agent at Silecroft Manor, scheming to get the young heir, Arthur Cameron, more closely into his clutches. Already Cameron, who has been leading a wild sort of life, has borrowed money in large sums from the too willing agent, and Howseman has increased the pace by forging the heir's name to promissory notes to an enormously large amount. In addition to gambling, Cameron has met and sincerely loved a ballet girl, named Agnes, the supposed daughter of a tramp, known as Jeffries, and has secretly married her. It is Cameron's constant task to keep the fact of his marriage and of his financial difficulties from his mother, Lady Cameron. Matters are precipitated, however, by old Jeffries turning his "daughter" out of doors, and she makes her way to Silecroft to throw herself into her husband's arms, unable to keep from him any longer. Lady Cameron is a witness of the meeting, and, furiously denouncing her son, sends him off the estate and his wife with him. Thus events play well into the grasping hands of Howseman, who meets with a rebuff when he proposes to Lady Cameron, but is able to console himself when, her ladyship borrowing £100, he is able to substitute for the receipt a bond conveying Silecroft Manor to him, which her ladyship signs. Meanwhile, Arthur Cameron and his wife, their money gone, find old Jeffries unbearable, and seek shelter of honest Joe Midgers at the "Silecroft Arms." While they are there, Lady Cameron is announced, and Arthur promptly takes his wife away. The innkeeper's wife, however, follows and overtakes him with a message from her ladyship, pleading that Arthur and his wife will go to the manor. There is a reconciliation. At the manor Agnes is taken very ill, and her supposed father comes on the scene again. He attempts to strangle the girl, but Arthur returns, and, after a desperate struggle, knocks Jeffries down. Later, Howseman gets Jeffries into his power, and they plot together to waylay an old ragpicker, named Simeon, who is popularly supposed to have wealth concealed in his cottage. Jeffries, however, throws up his task and is half killed by Howseman, who himself murders the ragpicker. When he returns to the manor to again attempt the wooing of Lady Cameron, Howseman is confronted by Arthur, the forgeries having been discovered. The dying Jeffries is brought in and accuses the estate agent of murdering the old ragpicker, and Simeon's will, leaving £20,000 to his child, is found, the missing daughter being proved to be Agnes, Arthur's wife. Jeffries obtains his revenge by shooting Howseman, and the curtain falls on the "miserable marriage" proving a cloud with a silver lining

There is a very amusing subsidiary story concerning the love-making and subsequent and married life of Joe Midgers and his barmaid. Mr. George D. Knight played with fire and dash as Arthur Cameron; and Mr. Edward A. Ryleston was a picturesque figure as the old rag-picker, making the character one of real pathos and power. Mr. W. Robert Barbour played effectively as the unscrupulous Howseman; and Jeffries had an able exponent in Mr. T. Brown Elliott, who is to be commended for his realistic make-up. Miss P. Dalton was always in sympathy with her audience as Agnes; and Miss Nellie Fern was a dignified Lady Cameron. The comedy characters were very well looked after by Mr. Fred Carroll as Midgers, and Miss M. Northcote as Lizzie.

Mr. Frank King staged the play very handsomely, a series of excellent sets being provided.

THE NEW GRAND, MANSFIELD.

This theatre, erected for Capt. Cecil Clayton by Mr. F. Houghton from plans prepared by Mr. T. V. Woodhouse, was opened on Monday. The building occupies a prominent site in the main street of the town, and is in the centre of a district of 90,000 population, amusement lovers being served by a good evening train service. Trams from several parts of the district also pass the doors.

The general scheme of decoration is red and pale green, picked out with gold. There are two boxes. The upholstering, which has been carried out in excellent taste by Messrs. Dean, of Birmingham, is in red plush. The stalls, circle, and pit are all fitted with tip-up chairs. The interior of the theatre is lighted by a huge electrolier. The stage is 65ft. by 40ft., and 46ft. to the bridge; and it is endowed with all the latest up-to-date apparatus. The proscenium is a work of art. The theatre is amply provided with refreshment rooms, lounge, and crush rooms.

The whole place has been planned for the comfort both of artists and audience. The dressing-rooms have every convenience. Every precaution has been taken against fire, nine exits being provided, and in addition there is a most efficient fire apparatus. At the rear of the theatre is a large ornamental garden, in which it is proposed to present pastoral plays in the summer.

The proprietor, Capt. Cecil Clayton, also runs the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, which place is booked in conjunction with Mansfield. Mr. Edward Gray, who has been acting-manager of the Britannia Pier, Yarmouth, for five years, is the manager of both places. Capt. Clayton is to be congratulated on being the possessor of such a commodious, comfortable, and up-to-date playhouse.

Tomkinson's Gipsy Choir had the honour of being the first company to appear at the new theatre. There was a packed house on Monday evening, hundreds being unable to gain admission. On the rise of the curtain the National Anthem was sung by the Gipsy Choir, the large audience joining in heartily.

At the interval Capt. Clayton made a neat little speech, in which he drew attention to the fact that the whole of the work of the new theatre had been produced by local labour. He also gave a list of plays already booked. The audience loudly cheered him at the close of his speech. During the evening he was the recipient of congratulatory telegrams from Mr. Bannister Howard, Mr. Graham Falcon, Mr. Sydney Spencer, Mr. Edward Gray, and numerous other well-known people.

A COPY OF "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

ANNALS OF COVENT GARDEN.

Mr. Henry Saxe Wyndham, the popular Secretary of the Guildhall School of Music, has already gained literary distinction by his "Life of Sir Arthur Sullivan," but he has gone far beyond that work in his present "Annals of Covent Garden Theatre," which, published in two handsome volumes by Messrs. Chatto and Windus, seems likely to become a standard work of reference in all matters connected with that famous establishment. At the present moment the musical public eagerly await any particulars respecting the Royal Opera, because of the rumour that it was to be pulled down in order to enlarge the market. But, as Messrs. Forsyth and Rendle happen to have an unexpired term of 40 years yet to run, this report may be taken with many grains of salt. The author of the present work has executed his task with remarkable skill and corresponding industry. He appears to have adopted M. Zola's method. The famous French author collected materials most lavishly before he began to write, and as a result his works have a freedom and spontaneity rare in modern literature. Mr. Wyndham's work is quite as good in its way, and although he modestly disclaims any special merit, we have read his book with the greatest pleasure and instruction. He has collected an immense store of anecdotes, and has enlivened his volumes with charming illustrations. We are quite bewildered in making our choice of extracts. But to begin at the beginning is the best of all possible ways, and therefore we commence, in medias res, with John Rich, the once famous harlequin, and the founder of Covent Garden, who first came prominently before the public in December, 1714, when he spoke the prologue to the opening play at the New Theatre, Farquhar's Recruiting Officer. Rich in the following year appeared as a tragedian, and although he did not shine, he was so proud of his attempt that he said "he would rather play Cato to six persons in the pit than Harlequin to a crowded house." He was uneducated, and his manners were far from refined, for when Quin, the actor, wrote to him from Bath, this is the correspondence that took place:—

Quin: "I am at Bath.—Yours, QUIN."
Rich: "Stay there and be damned.—JOHN RICH."

We frequently hear actors complain of their managers, but seldom do they descend to such coarseness as this. Mr. Wyndham describes one of the scenes in Rich's first pantomime called Harlequin Sorcerer, in which Harlequin is hatched from an egg by the heat of the sun. The stage business was most effective, and Rich displayed great skill in his pantomimic action. Dickens in his "Memoirs of Grimaldi" tells some agreeable facts respecting the costume of Harlequin, which in those days was imitated from the Italian, and with the dress the buffoonery of the Italian original was also included, so that Pope in the "Dunciad" accuses the management of bringing the shows of Bartholomew at Smithfield to entertain the Court and Town at Covent Garden.

The excitement in theatrical circles owing to the enormous success of The Beggars' Opera in Jan., 1728, has often been told. It had a run of 63 nights; in those days quite phenomenal. At present we think a run of one or even two hundred nights nothing extraordinary. The croakers of the period, like some at the present day, predicted the decline of the drama in consequence of The Beggars' Opera. But a revolution in operatic music greater still was caused by the efforts of Handel, who first attempted opera in Italian, and when that failed produced his immortal sacred works, but when The Messiah was first heard at Covent Garden it was announced as a "sacred oratorio," because it was feared the name of "The Messiah" would give offence to the religious world. Little did they dream that Handel's music would become the most potent influence of modern times in serious circles; nor could they foresee such magnificent assemblages as the Handel Festivals at the Crystal Palace. As showing Handel's difficulties with the singers, Mr. Wyndham quotes the composer's reply to Carestini, who refused to sing "Verdi prati." "You tog, don't I know patter as yourself vat is goot for you to sing? If you vill not sing vat I gif you I von't pay you von stiver." The refractory vocalist gave way, and the melody proved a great success. Later in the book Mr. Wyndham refers to most of the celebrated performers of the time, and his anecdotes are frequently as instructive as they are amusing, especially when he mentions Macready and Kean, the account of whose death is most pathetic. After quitting the dramatic records of Covent Garden, the author tells the story of the theatre as an opera house, and speaks of the great singers who have appeared there. Altogether we can compliment him on having written one of the most attractive and interesting works of the season, and he may be assured that the thousands who are attracted to the famous opera house will read his book with pleasure, and will regard him as its best historian. It would be ungracious to omit a good word for the publishers also. The printing, binding, &c., are worthy of the excellent contents, and "The Annals of Covent Garden" should find a place in every library, and bring fame and profit to the gifted author, who might give us "The Annals of Drury Lane" as a companion volume.

"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Whatever may be the ultimate fate of musical comedy, no one will gainsay the fact that The Earl and the Girl is an excellent specimen of its kind, and merits all the success it has achieved; nor is the reason far to seek, for here have we a really good plot that interests the audience, excellent dialogue, and particularly tuneful music. When to this is added a galaxy of pretty faces, coupled with clever exponents, it is small wonder that Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company met with such an enthusiastic reception here. The representation of The Earl and the Girl indeed left little to be desired. Mr. E. Fitzgibbon as the supposed Earl was distinctly good; quite delightful was his rendition of "To you" (encored). Mr. Alec Godfrey was sufficiently garrulous as the Yankee solicitor, Downham, his eccentric dance in Act 1 being re-demanded. As the Semetic limb of the law Mr. Burgess Barrett did wonderfully well. Nothing could have been better than the fire-eating A. Bunker Bliss of Mr. Cotter, his comic irascibility provoking roars of laughter. The rôle of the strong lady was capably filled by Miss M. Maud. Quite charming was the Miss Elphin Haye of Miss Alice Nixon; she sang "In Zanzibar" with marked effect, and proved as dainty a sifflleuse as a vocalist. Mr. Frank Wilson early won his way into the affection of the audience as the real heir, Dick Wargrave; he scored heavily in the song "On the shores of the Mediterranean," and was deservedly applauded. But the humour of the evening was fairly divided between Mr. C. D. Cleveland as Jim Cheese, the dog-trainer, and the Liza Shoddam of Miss Adele Roze. In the introductory scene they caused great hilarity, but his humour reached its height when, as the pseudo-Earl, he was anxious to borrow "a hundred or two." In Act 2 his song, "I'm a Lord," proved one of the hits of the evening. Mr. G. Franklin made the most of his small opportunities as the innkeeper; and Miss Carmen Cecil was satisfactory as Miss Virginia Bliss. Valuable assistance was lent to the production by Mesdames Bruce, Palmer, Lawler, and Wynn, a special good word being due to the chorus, so admirably trained by Mr. H. Lonsdale. Mr. Geo. Franklyn may be complimented on the success of his stage-managership, and Mr. Arthur Howard is still responsible for the business side of the theatre.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BERBOHM TREE has publicly admitted that he takes delight in "hooting and tooting through the landscape" by motor on his town-to-town journeys. On one of those occasions he experienced one of the most memorable moments of his life. "We were going down hill," Mr. Tree said, "when suddenly I became aware that my driver had lost control of the brakes. We were hurtling down a hill at a terrible and illegal rate (to break the law unconsciously is no pleasure at all). To the left was a sheer precipice; to the right a hard rock; in front in the narrow road were two carts—on the left one going down the hill, on the right one coming up.

"In that facile transit of a few moments," continued Mr. Tree, "I calculated that our only salvation was that the one cart should have passed the other, and so enable us to flash between the two. We crashed into the cart on the right, smashing the wheel. By a happy dispensation we bounded off this cart and smashed into the cart on the left. We were thus held up in the middle of the road, the car shivering and quivering and uttering unearthly and blasphemous sounds in its convulsive death throes. But there we stood alive. I descended from my shattered seat. The occasion was to me too great for words, or even passion, and with the calm of a potentially dead man I regarded the driver with the cold grey eye of reproach. My cockney friend was equal to the occasion. 'Not a bad ad., governor!' he said."

A DISTINGUISHED and representative audience attended the répétition générale of The Bondman at Drury Lane on Tuesday. Over two thousand people had been invited, and among those who were present were Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir James Blyth, Sir Thomas and Lady Elliott, Lady Crossley, Sir Edwin and Lady Cornwall, Sir Edward Ward, Mr. George Alexander and Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Tree and Miss Viola Tree, Mrs. John Wood, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. H. A. Jones, Captain Marshall, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Kennerley Rumford, Miss Kate Rorke, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Bram Stoker, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Charles Warner, Mr. Herbert Waring, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Irving, Mr. Harry Fragson, and Mr. Walter Passmore.

Now that the Managers' Club has been successfully launched, Mr. G. B. Lambert (secretary of the Catford Amateurs)—a gentleman who takes a great interest in theatrical matters—has kindly consented to be hon. secretary of the Touring Managers' Association and the new Managers' Club. The committee are indeed fortunate in securing for this position a gentleman who has had a vast experience in connection with clubs in India, although of course they regret losing the valuable services of Mr. William Martin, whose indefatigable efforts have helped to bring the club to such a happy issue. Mr. Bannister Howard, however, now finds it impossible, owing to the extent of his business, to spare Mr. Martin any longer for this position.

THE number of new members who have joined the Managers' Club within the last two weeks is forty. The first directors' meeting was held last Tuesday. For the convenience of managers passing through London on Sundays, the club will be open from 12 o'clock till 10 o'clock, and on weekdays the club will be open from 12 p.m. to 1 a.m. Arrangements are being made with the celebrated restaurant proprietors—Gow's—who will have their bill of fare displayed in the club each day, so that, by telephoning, within a very few minutes any member can get whatever he likes to eat.

MR. LEWIS WALLER is hard at work during the intervals of acting on tour with rehearsals of Robin Hood, in which he will appear at the Lyric on his return to London about the middle of next month. Mr. Waller will undoubtedly have a fine part in that of the bold outlaw, and in the course of the performance will be heard in a ballad, written by Mr. Henry Hamilton, entitled "A Song of the Oak." Miss Evelyn Millard will impersonate Maid Marian, Mr. William Devereux (one of the authors) appears as Prince John, and Miss Dorothy Minto and Miss Georgie Esmond will also be in the cast.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES adheres firmly to the title of The New Aladdin for the extravaganza which he has decided to produce at the Gaiety on Saturday. The real interest in the piece, it may be noted, begins with the rising of the curtain; and as there is a definite plot for the house to follow, Mr. Edwardes hopes that all playgoers will be in their seats not later than eight o'clock. Mlle. Gabye de Lys, a pretty and petite French actress, has been added to the cast, and will play the part of a young Parisienne on a visit to London.

MR. H. B. IRVING, Miss Dorothea Baird, and company embarked at Liverpool on Wednesday, by the Majestic, for New York, and among those who went down to the boat to wish them God-speed were Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, and Mr. Alan McKinnon. For the last few days Mr. and Mrs. Irving have been the guests of Lord and Lady Lathom at Ormskirk, N.B.

MR. IRVING will make his first appearance in America at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Monday, Oct. 1, in Stephen Phillips's poetical play of Paolo and Francesca. Mr. Irving will also appear in The Lyons Mail, Charles I., and The Bells, all three of which were so closely associated with the fame of his late father. The company includes Miss Maud Milton, Mr. Frank Tyars, Mr. Charles Dodsworth, Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. T. Reynolds, Mr. S. A. Cookson, and the stage-manager, Mr. Lionel Belmore. After a month in New York, Mr. Irving and his company proceed for a fortnight to Philadelphia to open the new Forrest Theatre. Canadian cities will be included in the tour, which is timed to close on Feb. 8, though it may probably be extended to May.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY continues his triumphant tour in the North, and Edinburgh audiences this week at the Lyceum have been emulating their brothers of the Glasgow Royal last week. Boy O'Carroll is delighting provincial playgoers, tremendous enthusiasm being everywhere the order of the night. When Mr. Harvey appears in Dublin—his stay there being of three weeks duration—it is his intention to inaugurate performances of a "triple bill," which will include some of the more successful one-act plays which he has produced from time to time. Rehearsals are now in active progress of The Corsican Brothers and The Spell, with a view to their production at Birmingham Theatre Royal on Oct. 10.

THE remarkable "hit" made by Mr. Austin Melford as Father Ferrati in The Bondman, at Drury Lane, again shows the value of experience, for it was only decided on the Friday before the Tuesday's matinée that the regrettable illness of Mr. James Fernandez would prevent him playing the part. This makes Mr. Melford's fourth season at the Lane, and sixth appearance in Mr. Hall Caine's plays. Considering the short time in which he had to study the character, Mr. Melford's impersonation is really extraordinary.

THE growing popularity of the Actors' Day scheme, recently initiated by the Actors' Association, is manifested by the additional extracts from letters which will be found on another page. The list is a representative one, and includes the names of several resident and touring managers of the kind whose sympathy the promoters are especially anxious to secure.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM'S return to the West End may be looked for during the present season, arrangements having been made for the re-appearance of the popular actor with Miss Mary Moore at a series of matinées at the New Theatre. No definite news is yet to hand as to the character of the productions, but there is no indecision in the minds of playgoers as to the welcome which will greet the favourite artists, whose appearances in London have of late been less frequent than their admirers would wish.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, in his capacity of specially-appointed critic for the Tatler, has exercised a gentle pen in his review of A Winter's Tale at His Majesty's. Exception, however, is taken to the action of the scene before the shepherd's cottage. "It seems a matter of regret," says Mr. Bourchier, "that Mr. Tree's provincial duties have called him away from London, and thus prevented him rehearsing, cutting, and improving the action which takes place in this beautiful setting, and which sadly lacks the true poetic spirit. It would be a good thing if Mr. Tree, even at this eleventh hour, were to depute somebody to do this for him, for, being the most fanciful scene in the play, it requires the most careful treatment."

THE music calls forth Mr. Bourchier's hearty praise, although the setting of the song, "Get you hence," seemed to him to have been transported direct from the Strand. "The stage management of the Hermione scenes," he continues, "is excellent, except that the treatment of the episode of the reading of the Oracle seems entirely wrong. Surely the momentous words should be whispered with bated breath to Leontes and his officers, Hermione, and her faithful few; to shout them to the crowd would cause a riot, and Leontes would be torn to pieces by his infuriated people."

THE annual general meeting of Drury Lane, Ltd., will be held on Friday next. In their annual report on the ninth year's working of the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, Ltd., the directors recommend the payment of a dividend of £5 per cent., free of income tax, on the paid-up capital. The estimated value of costumes, scenery, properties, &c., on the company's productions is £7500, while the expenditure on prospective plays and tours is put at £1527 16s. 1d. The profit in respect of productions and refreshments, after deducting part of managing-director's salary, was £26,066 2s. 2d. A reduction upon the fire insurance premium on the theatre and adjoining buildings has been obtained as from Lady Day next, by which a yearly saving of over £150 will be effected. The director retiring by rotation, but eligible for re-election, is Lord George H. Loftus.

MR. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW is asserting his rights in Buda Pest, and is suing the managers of the Vigszinhaz for having performed his play The Devil's Disciple without being authorised by him. The play was acted fifteen times—a remarkable record in Hungary. Mr. Shaw, who will be represented before the Buda Pest Court by the Society of Authors, claims an indemnity of 30,000 crowns (£1250).

MISS MARIE ILLINGTON, who gives such a clearly-cut character-sketch of a shrewd countrywoman as Mrs. Fairbrother in The Bondman, is one of the few actresses who make up for a part—ignoring their own personality—as carefully as a man. She has made quite a speciality of "young old women," one of her most memorable hits having been in The Duke of Killicrankie. She manages to get such good wigs, and wears them so well, that Sir Charles Wyndham actually condoled with her on one occasion for having to dress and powder "her own hair" so elaborately for every performance.

MR. JERRARD GRANT ALLEN, who has for some time been Mr. James Welch's manager, is the latest to aspire to the honours of theatrical management. He has secured from Sir Charles Wyndham a lease of the Criterion, where he will produce about the middle of next month a play, entitled The Amateur Socialist, by W. Kingsley Tarpey. This piece was produced by the Stage Society, under the title of Windmills, some few years ago, and the success then gained induced Mr. Allen to fix upon it for the inauguration of his new enterprise. The story is that of a rabid though wealthy Hyde Park orator, whose utterances eventually bring him within the walls of a police court. The rôle will be played by Mr. Eric Lewis, and a strong company is being engaged for the remainder of the parts.

MR. F. R. BENSON who has been entrusted with the arrangements of the Romsey Pageant, which is to take place in June, promises that it will be most interesting from an archæological point of view, and that its scenes will be historically accurate in every respect, owing to the advantage its promoters have in drawing on the church records of Romsey Abbey for details. The period the pageant will cover is from the founding of Romsey Abbey, A.D. 907, by Edward the Elder, to the time of Charles I. It will be held in the grounds of Broadlands Park, the estate of Mr. Evelyn Ashley, in which stands Romsey Abbey. Some 800 persons will take part in the pageant, the book of which is being prepared by the Rev. Cooke Yarborough, Vicar of Romsey, and Mr. William Cooke Yarborough.

GRAND opera at popular prices is to be given at Covent Garden, starting early next month. Mr. Neil Forsyth has been to Italy completing arrangements for the season, and a strong company has been engaged, the list of artists being headed by Mme. Melba and Signorina Rina Giachetti. The répertoire will include Verdi's Aida, Rigoletto, and Traviata; Giordano's Andrea Chenier and Fédora; Puccini's La Bohème, Madama Butterfly, Manon Lescaut, and La Tosca; Bizet's Carmen; Mozart's Don Giovanni; Gounod's Faust; Ponchielli's La Gioconda; Catalani's Lorelei; and Boïto's Mefistofele, all of which will be given in Italian.

THE list includes two works new to London. Signor Umberto Giordano's Fédora is a setting of Sardou's great drama, arranged by Signor Arturo Colautti, and it was first performed in Milan in 1898. The other novelty will be Signor Alfredo Catalani's Lorelei, originally produced in Turin in 1890. It is a revised version of his opera Elda, which was brought out ten years earlier in the same city.

AT the Opera House, Dudley, on Saturday the part of Mabel in The Broken Melody was, in the absence of Miss Lena Burnleigh, undertaken at short notice by Miss Margherita Gordon, who acquitted herself to the complete satisfaction of the management.

AN addition to current literature is made this week by the publication of The Dairy Maid, every word of which has been written by Mr. Thos. Courtice, business-manager for Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Dairymaids on tour. The new journal is a facsimile of a popular halfpenny daily, and its columns are devoted, both in respect to text and advertisement, to singing the praises of The Dairymaids, which is having a most successful tour. A "sensational" column is headed "Latest Bluff," and that called "Mainly about People" gives short biographies of the members of the company. The issue also contains an interesting interview with Mr. Courtneidge, part-author of the popular Apollo piece. Mr. Courtice is also responsible for an ingenious throwaway playing card, advertising The Catch of the Season, which consists of a combination of the King and Queen of Hearts impersonated respectively by Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company will give a special matinée this afternoon at the Camden Theatre, for the students of London schools. Selected parties of students from elementary and secondary schools and some of the senior students from the Pupil Teachers' College will attend. The opera will be Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor, and the performance will be prefaced by a brief explanatory chat on the opera, with pianoforte illustrations. The students present will be invited to write essays on the opera, and Mme. Fanny Moody has offered prizes for the three best. This is the first experiment of the kind that has been made in Great Britain. The education department of the London County Council have afforded Mr. Manners facilities for placing the tickets in the hands of students under their control, but many of those present will be drawn from schools not under the Council.

THE beautiful series of stage pictures in The Bondman at Drury Lane have given Mr. Comelli, who designed the costumes, a great opportunity to show his skill. The first act, taking place in the broad, dark-panelled hall of Fairbrother Farm, the dresses are more or less subdued in keeping with the surroundings. Miss Marie Illington, as Mrs. Fairbrother, is in dull plum colour, with a white cap, apron, and fichu.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, as Greeba, is in a dove-coloured gown of crêpe de chine, with a broad collar of fine lace, fastened together with silver clasps, a shaped belt of dark blue, embroidered in silver, and lace cuffs—just the maiden to sit at a spinet, playing "Home, Sweet Home." In the harvest scene of the second act, Greeba enters in a striped pink silk frock, the purple velvet belt being laced with tasselled cord of the same colour, short plain sleeves, with white muslin undersleeves, and a pink bonnet, after changing into a maize-coloured dress, with a handful of vivid poppies tucked into the Empire bodice, and a big wreath of wild flowers. When Greeba has become the wife of Michael Sunlocks, she appears in a handsome peach-coloured cloak, bordered with ermine, and carries an ermine muff, her white hat and plumes being covered with a most effective thin green veil. For the end of the act she wears a satin robe of the same peculiar peach-bloom tint, the skirt being heavily embroidered with a floral design of deeper shade, and the bodice half concealed by a golden gauze bolero, with elbow sleeves. In the last act Mrs. Campbell wears a soft, clinging dress of different shades of violet, with a twist of violet silk in her black hair.

MISS HENRIETTA WATSON looks charming in the quiet purple dress of Martha, with a quaint little fichu of many colours. Miss Eily Malyon and Miss Rosamund Bury, the Callow Girls, are as fresh as a pink and a cornflower in their country frocks of the colour of the flowers. Miss Marjorie Day looks an ideal milkmaid in white, blue, and yellow; and Miss Mary Brough has just "stepped out of the book," in her sun bonnet and short red dress, as Christian Ann.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, A. B. Tapping and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported upon several matters, and were requested to institute proceedings to recover damages for a breach of contract. Stephen Crossley and Fredk. Wm. Bowes were nominated for election. It was resolved that in future the President (Sir Squire Bancroft) and Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (the Chairman of the Council) should be considered as ex-officio members of all committees.

THE secretary reported the proceedings at the fifth bi-monthly meeting held last Thursday week, and submitted the recommendation of the members then present, that the Council should consider the advisability of formulating a scheme on the lines of the Music Hall Federation. It was further stated that one of the members of the Council would at the next meeting of the Council place before them the rough outline of such a scheme.

A QUESTION having arisen between two members, the differences were referred to arbitration, the arbitrators appointed, and the date fixed for hearing. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. The Suggestion Book was considered, and an entry made.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last. There were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Several matters of importance were discussed, and the secretary received instructions. The secretary announced the gift of three very interesting playbills, dealing with historic performances, which had been presented to the Association by Mr. William Douglas. The Committee directed the secretary to express their thanks to Mr. Douglas. It was agreed that a date should be suggested to the Council when the list of unpaid subscriptions for the current year might be finally dealt with.

AT Bow-street Police Court on Tuesday, before Mr. Fenwick, Florence Morton, alias Florence Carleton, alias Florence Leaman was charged with attempting to obtain money from the Actors' Benevolent Fund upon a forged letter of engagement. She was sentenced to two months imprisonment.

MISS CAMILLE CLIFFORD, whose forthcoming marriage to a member of the aristocracy has been recently announced, reappeared at the Vaudeville Theatre on Monday in The Belle of Mayfair, her fiancé being among the audience. Miss Clifford sang a new song, "Why do they call me a Gibson Girl?" written by Leslie Stiles and composed by Leslie Stuart. The Wednesday matinée of The Belle of Mayfair will be resumed next week, and matinées will then be given every Wednesday and Saturday.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Monday, before Mr. E. S. Grey, Official Receiver, a first meeting was held of the creditors of C. J. Sofiano. The debtor stated that he was described in the receiving order as John Constantine, a name under which he had carried on business. He had resided in Claverton-street, S.W., and was wrongly described as a theatrical agent. He had been interested in the promotion of companies and in the following theatrical enterprises:—Islington pantomime, 1903; Brixton pantomime, 1905; When a Man's Married touring company, 1902-3; and My Egyptian Uncle, 1902. The Official Receiver reported that the debtor had handed in a statement of affairs showing liabilities £2747, and assets £10,000. This latter estimate was too ridiculous, for why did not the debtor, with such assets, pay the petitioning creditor's debt of £337 2s. It also appeared that he had pledged his watch and chain a few weeks since for £4. An order for summary administration had been made on the ground that they were not likely to realise over £300. The matter was left in the Official Receiver's hands.

AN understudy to Master Tonge, now playing Mamillius in The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's, has been appointed in the person of Master Francis Walker, who on Saturday appeared in the Marlborough-street Police-court, where an application for a licence was made on behalf of Mr. Tree by Mr. Henry Dana. It was stated that the police offered no objection, and the magistrate granted the permit.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS issues to the numerous patrons of his performances of opera in English excellent books of words of all the works. His complete books of lyrics and words are sold in every house whereat performances are given at the small price of 4threepence, and in each is to be found the story, the libretto, and a vocal and piano score of gems from the opera. Those who remember the books of Italian opera at Covent Garden and the price demanded for them will the more highly appreciate Mr. Manners's wise innovation.

APPLICATIONS for licensing for the Chesterfield theatres were heard at the County Police-court on Saturday, when Mr. John Middleton asked on behalf of Mr. Cranstone for a licence for the Corporation Theatre, without the old clauses which prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquor and smoking. The Bench said they could not see why the conditions which a year ago were good were not good to-day, and the licence was granted with the restrictions remaining.

THE licence for the Theatre Royal was opposed on the ground that certain recommendations made by the Corporation had not been carried out. It was stated on behalf of the applicant that everything necessary had been done at the theatre. The superintendent who had made the requisition had since died, and the Bench suggested that the Corporation and the theatre lessees should agree upon a man whose recommendations should be carried out, the expert to be selected within a month. To this course both sides agreed.

MR. ATTILIO COMELLI, who is responsible for the dresses in The Bondman, has been working as an unseen artist behind the scenes of theatres for nearly fifteen years, having designed costumes for many of the most important productions in London. He was originally an architect, and made his first sketches as a designer for the production of Massenet's Werther. Mr. Comelli is of Austrian birth, and first came to England to work under the banner of the late Sir Augustus Harris. He has been the painter of living stage-pictures at the Lane ever since. With a keen eye for detail and unflagging patience, he has often completed as many as four hundred designs for a single production.

MR. W. H. MORGAN, who has been stage-manager for Mr. Chas. Macdona's Mr. Popple (A) Company since the opening of the tour, was presented on Friday evening, the 14th, with a handsome dispatch case by the members of the company. Mr. Charles F. J. Watts, the manager of the company, made the presentation after the fall of the curtain, and the recipient, who warmly thanked the donors, facetiously threatened them all with fines for interfering with the striking of the scene. Mr. Morgan has joined Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's company.

PROOF that The Prodigal Parson has lost none of its vitality was forthcoming last week at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, when Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company played to £50 more than on the last visit of the piece, which was, strange to say, the identical week in September, seven years ago. Mr. Hugh Carmichael is now playing his old part of Enoch Jaggins during Mr. Northway's absence holiday-making. Miss Bertha Kingston is also taking a holiday shortly, and Miss Pattie Hastings will play the part of Fern Godley for a few weeks. The piece is now in its thirty-third week of tour, and has advance bookings as far ahead as December, 1907.

M. EDMOND ROSTAND'S new play, Chantecler, will, it is said, not be staged at the Paris Gaité this season. In fact, it is rumoured that it will never be produced at all. Our readers will not be surprised to hear this, for several months ago The Era already informed them that the work was in every way unactable. M. Coquelin and the other artists thought it capital fun to appear costumed as birds; but what is fun to the exponents of a work is not always amusing to the audience, and when the public have to gaze during five long acts at actors disguised as birds—whose faces are, of course, covered, and who have to sit motionless—the play has little chance of proving a success. In this instance the author wisely discarded the advice of the actors, and has withdrawn the piece. In the meanwhile M. Rostand is busy with other work, and has entirely remodelled La Princesse Lointaine, which, it will be remembered, was excellently received when produced some ten years ago by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at the Renaissance.

MR. CLARENCE SOUNES has this week given his Poplar patrons musical fare in the shape of Mr. Wm. Greet's principal company in The Earl and the Girl, and it has proved entirely to the taste of the large audiences attending Mr. Sounes' really beautiful Prince's Theatre. A strong list of musical and other attractions are arranged for this fine house.

"AMASIS," at the New Theatre, reaches its 50th performance on Thursday. So great has been the success of the Egyptian comic opera that it has been decided to give morning performances on Wednesdays, in addition to the usual matinées on Saturdays, beginning on Oct. 3. It is to be noted that the evening performances now commence at 8.20 p.m., instead of 8.30 p.m., as hitherto.

MR. T. EDWARD WARD, who has been judicious enough to secure at considerable expense the very latest drama from the pen of Mr. Walter Howard, entitled Second to None, a story of the Royal Scots Greys, is delighted with the manner in which the dates are coming in. Already some dozen of the very best houses in the kingdom have been secured, the production being selected for the Easter attraction at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester.

MAX GOLDBERG'S version of "The Jungle" is shortly to be produced by Mr. John M. East, by arrangement with Mr. John F. Preston.

MR. FRED WEBB has purchased from Mr. William Hibbert The Hour of Her Triumph, and will tour it in February on an elaborate scale.

A STARTLING and unique entertainment of three hours duration is promised in Servais Le Roy's mystical play, entitled Lady Kinton's Necklace, which is due for production in a few weeks time. The show will strike out an entirely new line of theatrical fare, and the connected story will bind together many of Servais Le Roy's most weird and extraordinary creations. It would seem that the work of building up such an entertainment is considerable to ensure that flow and smothness so necessary to a play, but from what we can gather, the greatest difficulties have been overcome, and everything now points to the satisfactory début of an enterprise which the management claim should appeal to every class of playgoer old and young.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE has completed another of his unique studies of feminine character in his new drama, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, which he will produce at the Standard Theatre on Monday, Oct. 1. The cast is a very strong one, and includes Messrs. Roy Redgrave, Frank Lister, J. C. Aubrey, Wingold Lawrence, Jack Denton, Willie Reid, and Leslie Jacks, and Mesdames Olga Audre, Frances Ruttledge, Jessie Winter, and Eva Dare.

MR. FRED BOWYER, in conjunction with Mr. W. Sprange, has just written a new musical comedy, tentatively called The A.B. Seaman. Also a new fairy play for Mr. Berte Coote, which will shortly be produced at a West-End theatre.

THE Crystal Palace will resound to mighty outbursts of music this afternoon, when a combined concert will be given in the Centre Transept at three o'clock and 6.30. There will be the full band of the Coldstream Guards, drums and fifes of the 3rd Grenadier Guards, 2nd Coldstream Guards, and 3rd Coldstream Guards, the pipers of the 2nd Scots Guards, the Crystal Palace Military Band, and the great organ, which will be played by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock. The conductor will be Lieut. J. M'Kenzie Rogan. Tschaikowsky's Grand Overture "1812," with full effects, the "Red Feathers" March, by Lieutenant Rogan; selections from Faust, intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, grand military tattoo, as performed at the Agricultural Hall in 1905, and Julien's "British Army Quadrilles," with full effects, will be included in the programme.

"RAFFLES," at the Comedy, will this evening be preceded by a new play by Robert Marshall, entitled A Wire Entanglement. It is a comedietta in one act, and the company engaged for the presentation of the piece includes Mr. Graham Browne, Miss Sarah Brooke, Master George Hersee, and Miss Daisy Markham.

THE lease of the Cambridge Theatre, Spennymoor, which for the last eleven years has been held by Mr. Harding Thomas, will be taken over in November next by Mr. Hugh Robertson, of the Theatre Royal, Jarrow-on-Tyne, and the New Theatre, Consett.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company concludes its visit to the suburban theatres at the Camden Theatre this evening. On Sunday morning the company leaves for Middlesbrough by a Great Central Railway special train. The full company now numbers over 130, and is, by a long way, the largest company that has ever toured Great Britain, or, indeed, perhaps the world. The management would be glad of information from anyone as to whether a company numbering 130, or more, has at any time ever been on tour.

MR. FRANK BERTRAM, the proprietor of The Convict's Daughter company, was playing a golf match with Mr. Gus Livesey, the proprietor of The Village Blacksmith company, at the Beauchief Links, outside Sheffield, recently. Driving from the fifth tee Mr. Bertram sliced his ball into the rough, where it lodged in a wasps' nest. Though the ball was covered with the fiery insects, Mr. Bertram insisted upon playing it; but he did so to his sorrow, for both players were stung, and had to beat a speedy retreat, the match being abandoned. They have mutually agreed that in future a ball in a wasps' nest is to be considered unplayabe.

MISS FLORENCE BAINES, who is correctly described as "the greatest laughing attraction touring," is booking an excellent tour for Miss Lancashire, Ltd., the farce with music in two acts, by Sydney Sydney; the only piece that has played two successive weeks in Blackburn since the town has had a theatre. The farce returned to Halifax within six months, and played to the largest business that had ever been done in the Theatre Royal there.

MR. H. TRIPP EDGAR has received a most appreciative letter from one of the principals of the Hendon Council Schools, Sunderland, where he lectured some weeks back. On the Tuesday following the opening night of The Breed of the Treshams, a number of schoolmasters were among the audience, and after the performance Mr. Edgar, who appeared in the part of "the Rat," received a pressing request to speak on elocution at their various schools. Mr. Edgar accepted the invitation to address the boys at the above establishment, supplementing his remarks by a recitation of the Clarence dream-scene from Richard III. Both lecture and recital made a most agreeable impression, and drew from Mr. James Turner, the master alluded to, an expression of gratitude, coupled with the hope that such an alliance between school and stage might be frequently renewed.

GERMAN opera will figure at Covent Garden during January and February. Many well-known singers, including Mmes. Aino Ackté, Marie Brema, Leffler-Burckhardt, Litvinne, Minnie Nast, Agnes Nicholls, Kraus-Osborne, and MM. Bertram, Bussard, Van Dyck, Feinhale, Herold, Hinckley, and Felix von Kraus have been engaged. The conductors will be Herr Arthur Nikisch (of Leipzig and Berlin) and Herr Michael Balling (of Carlsruhe and Bayreuth). Mr. Percy Pitt will divide the responsibilities of the direction of the chorus with Mr. Carl Ambruster. The ballet of twenty-seven dancers will come from Brussels.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE is sending out almost immediately a strong company of picked artists with an entirely new production of the evergreen My Sweetheart, starring Miss Minnie Palmer. The popular soubrette has not been seen in this piece at the No. 1 theatres for many years, and her charming personality will come quite fresh to a new generation of playgoers.

MR. OSWALD BRAND'S benefit matinée on Tuesday at the King's, Hammersmith, kindly lent by Mr. J. B. Mulholland, was a success both artistically and financially, most of the seats in the best parts of the house being sold, although not in every case filled. The bénéficiaire was unable, through illness, to be present, and Mr. Mulholland, in a neat speech, conveyed the thanks of Mr. Brand to artists and audience. A handsomely printed programme, provided as a memento of the occasion, is embellished by portraits of Mr. Brand as Obenreizer in his own version of No Thoroughfare, and also by pictures of Miss Helen Bancroft, Miss Kate Brand, Mr. Ivan Berlyn, and others in scenes from Mr. Brand's versions of Dickens. Reprints of several of Mr. Brand's poems are also contained in the souvenir.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD, not having very much to do just now with only twelve companies and four theatres on his hands, will appear as Mr. Cattermole in The Private Secretary on Wednesday next at his new Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, the occasion being the second anniversary of the opening. Several influential Lynn people and some of the local amateurs will take part in the comedy. The event is causing great interest in the town, and we understand that practically every seat is sold. Mr. Howard undertook this part something like fifteen years ago, when he had to borrow pads, &c., to realise the character. Fortunately for him, this time he will be able to play the part without any such artificial aid.

THE magistrate at Grays, Essex, on the 14th inst., when Charles Morris, a tea blender, of Bow, was charged with attempted fraud, warmly congratulated Miss Bessie Montrose on her successful efforts to expose a mean trick. Miss Montrose answered an advertisement in a contemporary, and in reply "E. Wade, of Rainham," offered her a part in his company which was about to go on tour with a play named A Woman's Deception. A request for a preliminary remittance induced Miss Montrose to go to Rainham and make inquiries. She could hear nothing of the company, and spoke to a policeman, who went to the post-office and stopped the prisoner as he was receiving letters addressed to "E. Wade." The prisoner admitted that he had no company, and that his real name was Morris, but pleaded for leniency, as he had not had any money from any one. He was sentenced to six months imprisonment.

LIZA .....MISS DORA CLEMENTS

In Zola's novel, "Le Débâcle," the pith of the story is the love and friendship which spring up between two young Frenchmen of different classes as the result of their struggles and sufferings together in war-time. The efflorescence of humanity in shared suffering is the climax in which all the plotting and planning of Mr. Hall Caine's play culminates. The Bondman is a "drama without a heroine"; for Greeba, the leading young woman of the play, is a curiously shallow and fickle personage. The book has been very freely dealt with in the process of dramatisation, the locale of the sulphur mines being changed from Iceland to Sicily. The Bondman makes no pretentions either to depth or probability. It is an interesting, picturesque, and romantic drama, overflowing with action and incident; and when the necessary "cuts" have been made it will certainly be a tremendous success at Drury Lane.

The scene of the first and second acts of The Bondman is laid in the Isle of Man in the middle of the nineteenth century. The two principal male characters are half-brothers, their father, a Sicilian, having first betrayed and deserted the daughter of the Governor of one of the dependencies of Sicily, and then come to the Isle of Man, where he married another woman, who bore him another son. The Sicilian son, Jason, has reached manhood, when his mother dies, and, at the point of death, urges him to avenge her wrongs on his father and his father's son. The father himself expires in the Isle of Man, and dying, beseeches his English son, Michael, to find and succour the woman he has injured and the child he has left fatherless. Michael sets out for Sicily on his mission of mercy at the moment when Jason arrives in Man on his errand of vengeance. They miss each other by less than an hour, and Jason finds himself in the house and among the family that Michael has left behind him.

When the curtain rises on the second act we find that Jason has fallen in love with the girl Greeba, Michael's betrothed. His love humanises him, and he puts aside for a time his revenge. Greeba struggles to be faithful to Michael; but as three years have passed without his return, and nothing has been heard of him, she yields to despair and pique, and consents to marry Jason. Hardly has she done so when a letter comes from Michael, explaining his absence and silence. He has been imprisoned for participating in a revolutionary movement. Greeba's affections for Michael revives, and she begs Jason to release her. He does so, but swears fresh vengeance upon the half-brother who has "twice supplanted him."

The first scene of the third act takes place in Sicily. Michael has on his arrival found that the Sicilian mother has died, and that her son has disappeared. He has then, instead of returning home, entangled himself in a revolutionary struggle, overthrown the local Governor, and established himself in his office and house. Greeba has gone out to him, and they have been married. To Sicily comes Jason on his errand of vengeance. Greeba pleads with Jason in vain, and, to save her husband's life, denounces Jason as a political spy. He is arrested and imprisoned. Michael has now discovered Jason's identity, but knows nothing yet of his doings in Man. At this point his jealousy is excited by something Greeba lets drop. He believes that she still loves Jason; and vows a life-long enmity against the man who has come between him and the woman he loves. At this point in the play Michael is arrested by his enemies on a charge of treason.

In the third division of the drama we reach the point to gain which the author has been manœuvring during the two previous acts. The scenic and the dramatic climaxes are attained at the same time. The second scene of the third act is the "sensation" of the play. The stage is filled with a marvellously built-up set, representing a sulphur mine in Sicily. At the back is a volcano, which occasionally casts an orange glow upon a column of smoke which issues from its summit. On the slopes of the mountain, paths lead across rock-strewn slopes, and at the left side of the stage is a cavern, the mouth of the mine. The whole scene is mysterious, awe-inspiring, and picturesque. From chinks in the rocks rise perpendicular jets of steam; and above all is a very cleverly-painted sky, with changing effects, most ingeniously managed. Mr. Henry Emden has especially distinguished himself in this instance.

Against this background stands out the strong situation of the piece. Jason is working stubbornly in the mine, and Michael, weak and ill, is driven to his labour by the orders of the brutal Governor. Jason remonstrates, and Michael is told to lash him in punishment. He throws down the "cat" and refuses; whereupon the Governor orders the two men to be chained together, and purposely leaves them alone that the two deadly enemies may discover each other's identity. They are then ordered to descend into a pit and open a new solfatura, or sulphur-hole—a most dangerous duty. Jason begins to quarry in the rock, when a burst of flame strikes the two men, and blinds Michael. At this instant an eruption of the volcano above takes place, driving the warders and other convicts off in terror, and leaving Jason and Michael free to make their escape. Fainting and tottering, Michael, helped by his comrade, ascends the rocky path; and when he swoons Jason prepares to bear his friend off to safety.

In the last act, Michael, still suffering from blindness, is imprisoned on a "lonely island." Greeba, silent always in her husband's presence, watches over him with patient and devoted affection. Jason, repentant and generous, makes his way to the island, and by many plausible statements persuades Michael and Greeba to leave in the English steamer on which he has arrived. Jason remaining behind and taking the place of the prisoner. An order comes for Michael's death; and Jason is preparing to die à la Sidney Carton, when the Governor, who has come to see his commands carried out, recognises him, and countermands the execution, leaving Jason, however, still a prisoner. A final tableau shows him on a rocky headland, waving farewell to the boat in which Michael and Greeba are leaving the island.

Scenic effect is always an important feature of a Drury Lane production, and Mr. Arthur Collins, under whose direction The Bondman has been produced, has been especially liberal in this respect. The sulphur-mine scene above alluded to is, of course, the clou of the drama; but Mr. R. McCleery's Manx farmyard, with strong sunshine on the cartload of wheat in the background, merry "harvest-homers," and live cows and pigeons, is a charming rural picture not to be forgotten, and Mr. Henry Emden's interior for the first scene of the third act is a noble example of Italian palatial architecture. Mr. Bruce Smith's practised skill is shown in the farmhouse hall in the second act; and Mr. Hawes Craven's views in St. Helda are fine examples of that able artist's experience and ability. The costumes, designed by Comelli, are an artistic and effective part of the production; the stage crowds are capitally drilled, and Mr. J. M. Glover's incidental music is worthy of his reputation.

To realise the strength of the cast which Mr. Collins has engaged for The Bondman, one has only to run one's eye down the programme. That ripe and powerful artist, Mr. Henry Neville, plays Adam Fairbrother with his accustomed ease, emphasis, and elocutionary ability; and Mr. Lionel Brough is quaintly comic and drily droll as the old Grandfather, whose sententious remarks create so much laughter. Mr. Frank Cooper has the lion's share of opportunity, and takes full advantage of it. He develops the mixed nature of Jason very impressively in the first act, in which the half-drowned deserter enters the farmhouse in quest of food. In the second act, Mr. Cooper depicts the reformed avenger with deep feeling; and he does some strong emotional acting in the scene in which Greeba pleads and remonstrates with the intending murderer. Manly, dignified, and impressive is Mr. Cooper's performance of his share in the sulphur-mine scene; and he displays real earnestness, noble elevation, and genuine pathos in the last act. Mr. Cooper's Jason adds another character to the long list of his successful assumptions. Mr. Henry Ainley plays Michael Sunlocks in the earlier part of the piece in a free, bold, and impulsive fashion which wins all hearts; and he gives evidence of real dramatic power in the sulphur-mine scene, his depiction of the suffering and distress of Michael being extremely vivid. Mr. Austin Melford's Father Ferrati has all those admirable qualities which this ever-capable actor has accustomed us to expect from him, being full of keen individuality. His drunken scene in the third act is a fine bit of graphic and original acting; and in the last act he is as dignified, benevolent, and kindly as this phase of the character requires. Mr. George Ingleton endows his embodiment of Governor Testa with all the necessary malevolent energy. Mr. Oscar Adye gives a well-conceived impersonation of Dr. Boni, and plays the part with a clear conception of its possibilities. Mr. Francis Chamier is thoroughly effective as the Marshal of Police. Miss Marie Illington is as brisk, confident, and humorous as the rôle of Mrs. Fairbrother requires; and Miss Henrietta Watson makes a good deal of Martha by her neat, smart, and clever acting. Miss Mary Brough is a delightful representative of Christian Ann; and Miss Lamont does acceptable work as Mona. Miss Rosamund Bury and Miss Eily Malyon deserve praise for the way in which they deliver their lines as the two Callow Girls; and Master E. Duff is lively and natural as Danny. Mr. E. Mayne and Mr. J. A. Bentham are smart and sailor-like officers; and the brief dialogue allotted to the Coastguards is well spoken by Mr. T. A. Boag and Mr. Kenelm Foss. Mr. Rose and Mr. Wellesley are efficient as the Convicts. We must not omit to mention the praiseworthy performances of Mr. Fred Grove and Mr. Alec Davidson as John Robert and John James; and the minor parts, down to the very smallest, all have capable and careful exponents. The character of Greeba is not an especially thankful one; and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, whose work for some time past has been in a different field, has no easy task to make it sympathetic. She puts an immense amount of fervour into her performance in the Sicilian palace scene, and acts throughout with the technical skill and complete command of her resources which she has gained by so many years of work and experience. The Bondman had a very enthusiastic reception, the artists being called for with effusion, and Mr. Collins and Mr. Caine bowing their acknowledgments at the conclusion, which came at a late hour.

MR. H. B. IRVING AT LIVERPOOL.

Mr. H. B. Irving was on Tuesday—the eve of his departure for America—entertained to dinner at the Exchange Hotel by the members of the Liverpool Stage Club, an organisation having for its main object the encouragement of dramatic art and stage writing, of which the popular actor is president. Mr. Frank L. Joseph, C.C., presided, and proposed the health of "Our President." Mr. W. W. Rutherford, M.P., in seconding, expressed the wish that Mr. Irving's tour in America might be attended by every success.

Mr. Irving, who received a hearty greeting, said he was proud to occupy the position of president of the Stage Club, and he trusted the hopes and aspirations of the members would be realised to the full. Alluding to his tour in America, Mr. Irving said whatever might be one's future in that country as an actor, whether he satisfied or disappointed those who remembered his art, he had more than one kindly assurance that the many friends who esteemed and remembered his father would wish well to his son. It was well in these days, when the serious drama had perhaps a little more than its wonted difficulty to hold its own amid the changes and chances of public taste, that those who loved the theatre should have the nucleus, such as that club, to hold them together and keep alive the fire of their enthusiasm. It was only by the enthusiasm, the enterprise, sometimes the self-sacrifice, of individuals that the great traditions of the theatre—as great as any in the world—had been preserved. Unprotected as the higher drama was in the country, unassisted by the State—which in almost every other civilised land extended to the drama the same protection and recognition it extended to other arts—our great dramatic heritage had only been preserved to us by the efforts of individual artists. But to continue to hold its own the English theatre must command the respect, kindle the enthusiasm, and receive the support of those who, like the members of the Stage Club, were its sincere well-wishers. They valued as their best encouragement and their surest hope in the future such a reception as the people of Liverpool were ever ready to give to work which they felt to be an honest endeavour to uphold the best traditions of the theatre.

"THE GUILBERT—CHEVALIER RECITALS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The following has appeared in print:—"Mme. Yvette Guilbert announces that she will leave on the 26th inst. for America for another series of performances. Her company will include Mr. Albert Chevalier, with whom she appeared at the Duke of York's in the summer." Mme. Guilbert and myself are engaged by Messrs. Liebler and Co., for a six weeks' tour in America, each to contribute half the programme. The "company" consisting solely of Mme. Guilbert and myself, will be neither Mme. Guilbert's nor mine. The conditions of this engagement with Messrs. Liebler and Co., so far as the entertainment and advertising are concerned, are identical with those under which we recently appeared at the Duke of York's Theatre. My last visit to America was in 1905. This will be my third tour through the United States.—Yours faithfully,

ALBERT CHEVALIER.

Miss Marie de Campi, an actress who occupies a prominent position on the American stage, must have been extremely gratified at the warmth of her reception at the Fulham Theatre on Monday, when she made her first appearance before an English audience. The play in which she made her début was a new romantic drama by Watson Bay, a well-written play, full of exciting situations and effective "curtains," that greatly pleased Monday's audience, judging by the repeated calls at the end of each act. The plot deals chiefly with the stirring adventures of Claire Cloville, an actress from the Théâtre Française, and her lover, Maurice D'Alroy, Captain of the King's Guard. The King of France, Louis de Valois, is evidently one of the many admirers of the beautiful actress, for he offers her a signet ring, and intimates that she shall be his mistress. Claire gently, but firmly, declines his offer, remarking that though the ring might fit her the rôle certainly would not. Louis is not at all displeased with her answer telling her that if there were more women like her France would possibly be a happier country, and he a happier King. He begs her to accept the ring, promising her that if at any time she is in need of assistance she has only to take the ring to him. The happiness of Claire and Maurice is seriously marred for a time by the evil schemes of Lyle de Vriesac, a former mistress of the King's, and the Comte François Dettmar, Governor of Beauville. A convict has escaped, and makes an unceremonious appearance in the oak chamber of the château where Claire is staying. He implores her not to hand him over to the guards, and she promises to aid him, as does also Maurice when he comes on the scene. The convict, who is huriedly taken to a place of safety, is Grant Desmond, a friend of Maurice's, and the husband of Lyle, who has caused him to be imprisoned in order to get him out of the way. Lyle discovers that Desmond has gained admittance to the château, and orders Claire to disclose his whereabouts, which she refuses to do; and Dettmar, Maurice's superior officer, commands him to show him the hiding-place of Desmond. Rather than betray his friend, Maurice allows himself to be arrested for refusing to obey orders, and the curtain falls on a very effective situation. In the third act—the Three Crows Inn, on the road to Marseilles—a number of the King's Guards are discussing with Mother Gorlet, the landlady, the escape of Maurice D'Alroy from prison, and the probability of capturing the gallant captain and the 500 crowns reward. Maurice enters, accompanied by Claire, disguised in male attire, and the couple are not recognised. They ply the soldiers with wine till closing time, tell the old innkeeper that all is safe, and bid her retire, and after a pretty little love scene, Claire goes to her sleeping apartment, Maurice staying up to keep guard. Dettmar soon follows in pursuit, and Maurice, admitting him, a fierce duel with swords takes place between the pair. Maurice soon disarms his adversary, but mercifully spares his life, and the combat continues until the advent of the Guards, when Maurice manages to escape through the window, Claire also departing unharmed. In the last act—the King's Pavilion, Hôtel Royale, Marseilles—Claire contrives to gain an audience with Louis, as also does Maurice. The duplicity of Lyle and Dettmar is revealed; and Maurice and his friend, Desmond, are pardoned. The King also gives Claire the chance to revenge herself on Lyle, but the generous-hearted girl will not avail herself of her opportunity.

The important part of Claire Cloville was excellently undertaken throughout by Miss de Campi, the varying phases of the rôle displaying her undoubted histrionic gifts to the full. Very effective and dignified was her acting in the scene with Louis in the second act; and also most impressive was the episode where she refuses to reveal the hiding-place of the convict. There was much charm and quiet humour in the pretty little love scene between Claire and Maurice in the inn, the actress making a brave figure in her handsome officer's uniform; and in the concluding act, where Claire interviews the King, and refuses to be revenged on Lyle de Vriesac, the noble nature of the actress-heroine was admirably indicated. Altogether, Miss de Campi is to be warmly congratulated on her finished and clever portrayal of so arduous a character, and her spirited acting on Monday night frequently called forth loud applause. The accomplished actress, who was handsomely costumed throughout the play, was presented with a huge basket of choice blooms at the conclusion of the third act. Miss de Campi was excellently supported by the other principals, a gallant, and in every way satisfactory representation of the hero, Maurice D'Alroy, being that of Mr. Alfred Woods. The duel with Dettmar in the third act was splendidly managed; and Mr. Woods' portrayal throughout revealed the gifted and experienced actor—elocution, bearing, and facial play alike being admirable. Mr. Sidney C. Sinclair made the most of his few opportunities as Louis de Valois; Mr. E. W. Maule Cole submitted an easy and convincing portrait of the villainous Comte François Dettmar; an impressive impersonation of the escaped convict was given by Mr. Ernest Griffen; that sound and popular comedian, Mr. Charles Collette, was mainly responsible for the laughter heard during the evening for his comic rendering of the Irish orderly, Mick Milligan; and the other male rôles were all carefully and capably performed. The unthankful character of Lyle de Vriesac was skilfully handled by Miss Maud Williamson, the craftiness and malevolence of the disappointed woman being cleverly portrayed; the part of Susanne, Claire's companion, was brightly and piquantly undertaken by Miss Dorothy Sydney, a smart little comedienne; that experienced actress, Miss Jenny Dawson, had little chance of displaying her abilities as Jeanne, but did all that was possible with the part; and the aged landlady of the inn was admirably played by Mrs. Dawson. The mounting of the drama is entitled to especial mention, the realistic and elaborate "sets" being the work of the well-known scenic artist, Mr. E. G. Banks; the handsome costumes and uniforms being supplied by L. and H. Nathan. Some tedious waits were enlivened by the well-rendered and popular selections given by the excellent orchestra under the direction of Mr. Julian H. Wilson.

THE popular Mr. William Willson, of the theatrical firm of Leicester and Nottingham, is off with his wife for a holiday in the States. He sails on Tuesday from Liverpool for New York on the Cunard liner, Caronia. Mr. Willson is well-known in the sporting world, having himself owned "Fred Wilkes," "Kitty Collins," "Trilby," and other trotters, and will, no doubt, witness some good trotting in the course of his trip.

THE OSWALD BRAND MATINEE.

Illness prevented the appearance of the principal figure of the matinée given to Mr. Oswald Brand on Tuesday at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, kindly lent by the proprietor, Mr. J. B. Mulholland. Mr. Brand, who has enjoyed only indifferent health for some considerable time, was held in high estimation at the Grand Theatre, Islington, his management of which was rendered notable by many clever adaptations from Dickens. The matinée had the patronage of leading members of the theatrical profession and other influential support, and a generously constituted programme was presented to an appreciative house not so numerously filled as the occasion warranted. It was satisfactory to learn, however, that the result would be pecuniarily successful, most of the seats having been disposed of.

At the interval, Mr. Mulholland came forward and said he wished to apologise for the absence of the beneficiaire—to his own regret, to the regret of the artists, but most of all to the regret of Mr. Oswald Brand. Mr. Brand, he said, was extremely ill and quite unable to leave his room. He was sorry to damp the enjoyment of the afternoon, but he thought it best that they should know it. The speaker had a message from Mr. Brand, which was to express his heartfelt gratitude to the audience for their presence, and his thanks to the artists who had so kindly assisted him. His thanks were offered not only to those who were present, but to the very much larger number who had paid, but who were absent. He might tell them that the stalls had been practically booked up, and the same applied to the circle and boxes, two of which were held by two of the Rothschilds. The result of the matinée would be, therefore, very much more satisfactory than might be apparent from the certain number of empty seats. There would be one or two absentees from the long—the very long—programme, due to the dress rehearsal at Drury Lane. It gave him great pleasure to let Mr. Brand have the theatre, as he had known him and his work for very many years. Mr. Brand was still a young man, but he had worked too hard in the service of the public, with the result that his health had broken down. Mr. Mulholland renewed the thanks of Mr. Brand, and hoped he would be permited to convey to him an echo of their good wishes for a speedy recovery and a return to robust health.

The entertainment was of a miscellaneous character, and included excerpts from Mr. Brand's successful Dickens adaptations, besides other contributions from his pen. The first dramatic item was a new Indian episode taken by Mr. Oswald Brand from Buckstone's drama, Green Bushes, and entitled The White Squaw. It depicts the attempt by the jealous Miami to kill Connor O'Kennedy, and her subsequent death by her own hand. Mr. Ernest Leicester was at hand for the impersonation of the chivalrous Connor, and gave a virile and impressive rendering of the part. Miss Helen Bancroft was a passionate and vengeful Miami, and Miss Kate Brand gave a touching performance of Geraldine. The sketch is not without comedy relief, the scenes in which Mr. Frank Collins as Jack Gong and Mr. C. A. Clark as Grinnidge were associated causing much amusement; Miss Winifred Leeson also contributed a vivacious performance of the Indian maiden Tigertail.

The new sketch was followed by Miss Tita Brand, who obtained a hearty reception, and gave the utmost pleasure by her telling recitation of a scene from King Lear. Miss Helen Mar won a heavy tribute of laughter for her American yarns, all of which had the element of freshness and were inimitably rendered. Then came a selection from Mr. Oswald Brand's version of "The Old Curiosity Shop," entitled Little Nell, of which Mr. Robert Pateman's startling impersonation of Quilp was the chief feature. Mr. Pateman acted in his best style, and his depiction of the savagery and vindictiveness of the wretched cripple gained him many recalls at the end. Mr. Stockall Ward gave a clever sketch of Sampson Brass; Miss Winnie Ryan was a comely representative of the terror-stricken Mrs. Quilp, and Miss Kathleen Kellie appeared with credit as the boy. Mr. George Mozart followed with his one-man melodrama, which evoked constant laughter, and some specially selected scenes from Florodora, the current attraction at the King's, were given by the members of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company.

The second half of the programme was of an equally interesting character, and began with a scene from Mr. Brand's adaptation of "Bleak House," in which Miss Kate Brand gave a pathetic and tear-compelling performance of Jo. Her make-up as the hapless waif was especially to be praised, the wan features and poignant expression being admirably assumed. Mr. Edmund Gurney was the Inspector Bucket, Mr. C. A. Clark appeared as the genial Snagsby, and other parts were played by Miss Winifred Leeson, Mr. C. A. Chandler, and Mr. Stockall Ward. A hearty welcome awaited Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, who recited Davidson's "A Ballad of Heaven," in which her refinement of style and elocutionary grace were agreeably evident. Miss Queena Barnes, who possesses a voice of remarkable sweetness, was loudly applauded for her singing of a negro melody and of "My Irish Daisy"; and Mrs. Henry Gascoigne recited "Salvation Sal," a new composition by Mr. Brand.

The long entertainment was concluded by the Thieves' Kitchen scenes from Mr. Brand's Oliver Twist, in which Mr. Ivan Berlyn gave his remarkably weird impersonation of Fagin. Mr. Alfred Harding was an awesome Bill Sykes, and Miss Helen Bancroft gave a rendering of Nancy which was instinct with dramatic skill. Miss Maud Lacy was the Oliver, and amusing sketches of the Dodger and Charlie Bates were given by Mr. George Elliston and Miss Kathleen Kellie. Toby Crackitt was enacted by Mr. Frank Collins, and other parts were sustained by Mr. Stockall Ward, Miss Richburgh, Miss Winifred Wood, and Mr. W. Liddon.

The stage was under the direction of Mr. Marshall Moore and Mr. Powell James, the latter gentleman announcing the various items very efficiently. He also returned thanks on behalf of Mr. Brand to Mr. Mulholland for the use of the fine theatre. Mr. Leon M. Lion and Mr. Frank Carlyon were the honorary acting-managers.

IN our report of Mr. Norman V. Norman's company at Dover last week, we stated that Nell Gwyn was preceded by a one-act farce, entitled Cut Off with a Shilling. This was incorrect, as Nell Gwyn plays quite long enough by itself, and the one-act play in question is presented before David Garrick.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—My attention has just been called by someone to your report of A Chinese Honeymoon company's recent performance at Penzance. Miss May Jelks was mentioned as playing Princess Soo-Soo. This is not correct, as I have been engaged for the part, and have been playing it for the past three weeks.—Yours faithfully, FRANCES OLGAR, the Brightstone Pavilion, Weston-Super-Mare, Sept. 16.

ON Monday last at the Opera House, Workington, Miss Emma Litchfield's company presented A London Actress to a large and enthusiastic audience. As Milda Mannering Miss Litchfield played with light and shade, and greatly amused her auditors. She was ably supported by Miss M. Steeple as Phyllis and Miss Marion Holmes as Biddy. The hero had a sympathetic exponent in Mr. Stuart Cumberland; as Kinstone Mr. D. Howard was popular; Mr. John Worth was effective as Mannering, and Mr. Carl Vallender successful as Pat. Mr. George H. Doyle made a clever Moses.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT).

Mr. Walter Howard has a long list of successes to his name as a writer of stirring and picturesque drama, and his latest production, Her Love Against the World, which was staged at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last, adds one more to the number of his achievements. There can be no question about the future prosperity of this play, which shows signs throughout of a practised hand and a keen imagination for dramatic situations. It has, in fact, been devised with such judgment and balance that probably it will go forward without the usual process of pruning and revision which most plays require; and the story, moreover, is not impeded or obscured by unnecessary complications.

The scene is the territory of Ravensbury, over which Prince Ulric rules with a tyrant's hand. At the beginning Prince Ulric is about to be betrothed to Princess Iris of Idalia, but the latter's mind becomes unsettled from this prospect, by reason of her inclination to favour one of the Prince's officers who has saved her from death on a runaway horse. The officer in question is Eric, Earl of Grathmere, who has left the British Army in consequence of family vicissitudes, and taken service with the Prince. A furious jealousy takes possession of Ulric on observing the Princess's regard for Grathmere; not because he loves the Princess—his heart is with his mistress, Shulah, Countess of Rassellyn—but because he needs the Princess's wealth to enable him to carry on a war against Prince Maurice of Saxonia, whom he must needs subdue to ensure the safety of Ravensburg. Quarrels immediately ensue between the Prince and Grathmere, and when the latter's young brother, Nello, is ridden down by the Prince and severely hurt, the quarrel becomes so pronounced that Grathmere is put under arrest and sentenced to solitary confinement for a year. This naturally widens the breach between the Prince and Iris, who leaves Ravensburg for Idalia; and thenceforward the action is indicative of Grathmere's endeavour to thwart and revenge himself upon the Prince. By the good offices of the Prince's half-brother, Othmar, Grathmere escapes from prison and presents himself at Idalia; where, however, he is captured by Ulric, and sentenced to be shot at once unless the Princess consents to marry as she had originally intended. The Princess refuses. Outside, the shots are fired; but Grathmere is saved by the meeting of the men, who have discharged their rifles in the air. From this point Grathmere applies himself to the downfall of Prince Ulric. He joins the Saxonian army, and, by a device, playing upon the ingrained cowardice of Ulric, makes the latter captive and conveys him to the enemy's camp. In the meantime, a villainous blow of the Prince has brought Eric's brother Nello to the verge of death, and when death supervenes nothing remains for Grathmere but that he shall make Ulric pay for the blow with his life. A spirited duel takes place, and Ulric is killed. Grathmere's reward is, of course, the hand of the Princess Iris, and, the war being ended, with amicable adjustments in view, the tolerant Othmar succeeds to the Crown of Ravensburg, and all ends heroically and well.

The acting was remarkably good. Foremost was Mr. Walter Howard, who embodied his idea of Grathmere with enforced sentiment, and a manly bearing that quickly placed him high in the good graces of the audience; while, as the Princess Iris, Miss Ellen Snow acted with a delicate womanly sympathy and accomplishment. Almost equally central is the part of Nello, which was played quite cleverly and pathetically by Miss Rosie St. John. As Prince Ulric, Mr. Mayor Cooke looked well, and acted with a sinister passion that told effectively; and the mediatory character of Othmar was brought out with a studious quietude by Mr. Raymond Wood. Miss Victoria Douglas acted very well as Shulah. The comic element was provided cleverly enough by Mr. H. B. Lewis as Heinrick, Mr. Richard Webb as Fritz, Miss Lizzie Lirron as Katinka, and Miss Kathleen Allen as Gretchen. All the minor parts are ably filled; and the scenery is picturesque and elaborate.

PASTORAL PLAY AT BEDFORD PARK.

The Waters of Strife, a costume comedy, period 1648, by Max Pirean, was to have been played in the sylvan glades of Newton-grove, Bedford Park (by kind permission of Mr. Osborne Ince) on Saturday evening last, in aid of the "Children's Summer Treats and Seaside Camp for Boys," but the "strife of waters" in the early part of the evening rendered necessary a change of venue to the Parish Hall of St. Michael's, and so an extremely small stage, with a few hastily-provided props, imposed upon one a considerable effort of imagination in picturing the Bowling Green at Carewe Grange in acts one and two—the same set doing duty for the Courtyard of Pembroke Castle in the third and final act. The old, old story of the Royalist maiden's love for the Roundhead Captain is the theme. The comedy was confined to the Cromwellian soldiers, "Sanctification" Willis and "Word of Grace" Hopkins, filled by Captain G. Hope and Mr. L. Clarence, the latter of whom had the proper lugubrious cast of countenance for the part. Mr. Vere Yaldwyn as the Parliamentarian Captain Harberton, no doubt affected by the doleful evening, never looked a happy lover, and Mr. Muskerry-Tilson, with a good voice and lowering brows as Oliver Cromwell, always seemed too big for the tiny stage. The heroine, Phyllis, was brightly played by Miss Mabel Pineo, who also took the call for "author." The Royalist father, Sir Richard Carewe, was in the hands of Mr. W. J. M. Harris, who spoke his lines well, and Miss Champion made a pleasing Dame Catherine Carewe. Other parts were creditably played by Miss Florence Barrow as Charity, a "malignant" serving-maid, and Miss Rita Green as Averil. The Misses Elsie Last and Glen Pawson were distinctly clever in their dance in the first act. The Haydn Orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Hugh C. Fulton, played selections during the evening with much spirit.

MR. J. RICE CASSIDY, who is at present touring In Holy (!) Russia, has no brother in the profession, and is no relation of Mr. John Cassidy, the new manager of the Victoria Theatre, West Stanley.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A notable event here on Monday was the appearance of Mr. Hayden Coffin and Miss Isabel Jay, heading the original company from Wyndham's Theatre, in The Girl Behind the Counter. Although the piece itself is not strikingly fresh, it was acted with great vivacity; and the singing and acting of the two principal characters were especially enjoyed. Among the successful laughter-makers, Mr. J. F. McArdle played General Willoughby with conspicuously comic effect; while others who did well on similar lines were Mr. G. Davy Burnaby as Viscount Gushington; Mr. Fred Allandale, whose Monsieur Duval was distinctly smart; Mr. George Barrett as the waiter; and Mr. Lionel Victor as the office boy, Adolphus Dudd. Of the ladies, praise also is due to Miss Violet Crossley as Lady Willoughby; Miss Violet Englefield as Millie Mostyn; Miss Helene Rose as Ninette; and Miss Kathleen Courtney as Susie. The chorus and orchestra are remarkably efficient; and the staging and dresses are, of course, beautiful and elaborate.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The always popular musical play, The Orchid, is presented here this week by Mr. George Dance's principal company. A delightfully brisk performance is given. Mr. Bert Lloyd plays Meekin with considerable humour; Mr. Fred Thompson is quite successful as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Miss Mabel Sealby gives a very nice impersonation of Lady Violet; and other clever performances are those of Miss Florence Vie as Caroline Vokins; Miss Nell Hope as Zelie Rombert; Miss Constance Hamilton as Thisbe; Miss Mary Fraser as Josephine Zaccary; Mr. William Benson as the Count de Cassignat; and Mr. Harry Ray as Zaccary, the orchid-hunter. The singing is invariably good, and the remainder of the cast highly commendable.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—The Prince of Pilsen, presented by Mr. George Musgrove's company, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, proved an attraction here on Monday. Mr. Martin Adeson as Hans Wagner gives a very amusing and resourceful impersonation; and an exceedingly clever and characteristic piece of work is that of Miss Millicent Marsden as the enterprising New York widow, Mrs. Madison Crocker—a performance that contributes greatly to the success of the piece. Miss Nell Emerald adds to the entertainment by her skilful depiction of Sidonie, Mrs. Crocker's maid; and another noteworthy contributor to the fun is Mr. Alfred Selby as François. Mr. J. B. Fox sings well as the Prince; Miss Isa Bowman is pleasing as Nellie Wagner; and others who help to the success are Mr. G. Villiers-Arnold as Tom Wagner, Mr. Lawrence Wensley as the Earl of Shrimpton, and Miss Meg Hamylton as Jimmie, the bell boy.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Augustine Knight presents here this week E. Hill-Mitchelson's Russian drama, The Assassin, which is played by a strong company, including Miss Ella Vane, who gives an admirable portrayal of the title-part. Mr. Augustine Knight rivals this by his powerful depiction of Prince Demetri, an unspeakable scoundrel; while Mr. Edward E. Ashby makes a manly Ivan Ipanoff, and good work is added by Miss Frances Waring as Nita; Miss Georgina Hamilton as Connie Jonathan, the blunt American girl; Mr. Theo Balfour as the dignified Duke Carl; Mr. Chauncy Morris as General Nicol; Mr. Edwin Jenner as the honest Irish Captain O'Neil; Mr. Jack H. Smith as Evangie; and a trio of fun-makers, Mr. Tom Taylor, Mr. Cecil H. Raymond, and Miss Marie Robertson.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Motramos, an excellent comedy couple, top the bill here this week in their sketch, Do You Reverse? The Pichol Troupe of Bicyclists give a wonderful show; and a fine little sketch, The Little Colonel, is presented admirably by Ernest Montefiore and company. Other good turns are the Bros. Hampson, patter comedians; Carson Hicks, a very smart dancer; Beaty and Blanche, duettists; Peakman and Walsh, comic jugglers; and a good series on the Bioscope. Dot Stanley, whose name appears on the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—A highly effective sensational drama, The Anarchist Terror, is presented here this week by Miss Loie Esmond's company. Miss Loie Esmond's efforts as Kitty Malone are well received, and she is supported by a very able cast, the most conspicuous member of which is Mr. Edward Neville, who gives a really smart and entertaining deoiction of Mikey Doolan. Mr. Will White is also notably successful as Goldstraw, the Pork King; and Mr. W. H. Wilson deserves high praise for his clever impersonations of five characters, including the title-part. Others who do well are Mr. E. K. Taylor, Mr. R. Tree, Miss Flora Leslie, Miss Rosie Neville, and Miss Kate Parr.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A capital programme here this week is headed by Howard and Harris in their comedy "Tramp" act: and Casey's Court, by the Midget Mimes, share the principal honours of the evening. Excellent turns are also given by Charles Pastor, a really good laughing comedian of the Lupino Bros., animal impersonator; Gladys Mavius, a very successful comedienne and dancer; Lupino Lane, a smart juvenile comedian; Herbert Clifton, an accomplished mimic; J. H. Milburn, comedian; and Fox and Melville, illustrated-song vocalists. The Bioscope adds a series of interesting pictures.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—A programme of stars. Joe Elvin and company top the bill, and cause continuous laughter with the well-known sketch, Touched. Neil Kenyon, one of our best Scotch comedians, is also to the front with his usual success; and Malcolm Scott, the "Woman Who Knows," is as diverting as ever with his up-to-date remarks and excellent dancing. Henry Anthony, the "Gentleman in White," provides an entertaining turn; Charles Austin is a capital eccentric comedian, who makes a big hit, and is deservedly well received; Dale and O'Malley, the "somewhat different" comedians, are particularly funny; Frank Cass, vocal comedian, sings well; and good turns are also contributed by Flo Deighton, double-voiced vocalist; Little Salvino, a clever juvenile instrumentalist; and George Bohee, banjoist. The Pictures complete.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—An excellent programme is provided here as usual. The big attraction is George Robey, the President of the Laugh Trust (who sails for South Africa today), and full houses are the rule. Another great turn is that of Annie Abbott, the Little Georgia Magnet. Mark Melford and company make a hit in an amusing sketch, Only a Wedding; Ethel Haydon sings in her usual delightful manner; and the Musical Johnstones appear in a wonderful combination of harmony. Billy Hobbs, a capital coon singer and dancer, is favourably received; Peppo's monkeys are well trained; and the Rio Bros., American gymnasts, are exceedingly clever. Wagner's "Hail, bright abode," is rendered in fine style by the Hippodrome Choir and Orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Alfred Haines, the musical-director; and an illustrated song ("Kate Kearney") and a series of Bioscope pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Outstanding turns here this week are Billie Barlow, the charming burlesque artist; Florence and Lilian in their artistic musical act; and Lilian Doreen, who makes a big hit with her latest successes, "Samara," and "Dear little boy next door." Alec Kennedy, descriptive vocalist, has a good voice; Cara Magda appears in a daring gymnastic act; and other good turns are those of Ida Brophy, singer and dancer; Minnie Dare, comedienne and dancer; George Daunton, vocal dialect comedian; and Stan Aubrey, eccentric legmania comedian. Raymond's Vivagraph Pictures, as usual, are excellent.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Le Diabelo tops the bill here this week in his sensational "Looping the Devil's Wheel" act, and causes some excitement. Marlow and Manton are seen to advantage in their novel and interesting sketch, Other People's Babies; and Keith, Merson, and company make a big hit with their capital hunting absurdity, The Meet. Edwards and Espinosa present The Coon's Holiday, and introduce music, comedy, and excellent dancing; Loone and Rene are good in their Lancashire singing sketch; Johnson and Pelham are good dancers; Cailler appears in his great Herculean act; and other good turns are Sheila McNeill, Scotch comedienne, and Alex Leo, comedian. Hector and Sultan did not appear on the occasion of our visit. "A Miniature Theatre" is depicted on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The star turns here this week are Jack McKenzie and company in a musical sketch, The Belle of Barcelona, which goes with a rare swing from start to finish; Claude Felman's clever troupe of Beau-Ideal Juveniles, who sing and dance well; and May Lillian Levey, the popular comedienne, who meets with a good reception, and sings in capital style. The Montaldos introduce some well-trained birds, and a slack-wire act; the Smarte Brothers are clever acrobats, and gain great applause; the Howards (Ralph and Nellie) are first-rate instrumentalists; Maude Kaye sings sweetly and dances smartly; and George Foyle contributes a vocal item. "The Dog Detective" is shown on the Bioscope.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Cattamos Troupe, in a smart acrobatic act, head the bill here this week, and prove very popular. La Belle Lillian is an exceedingly clever and graceful trick cyclist; King Leo is entertaining in a ventriloquial act, his jokes being smart and up-to-date; the Gondolier Glee Singers render several delightful selections in good style. Enjoyable items are contributed by the Rushforths, with the latest illustrated songs; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; Copland and Son, dancers; and the humorous element is well provided by Will Johnson, a lively comedian; Yorkshire Tom, a clever mimic; and Sandy and Carl, comedians and eccentric boxers. "The Wolf Trap" shown on the Bioscope is good.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North.—As usual a good programme is provided here, and good houses are the rule.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On arrival at Stafford the door on the offside was found to be open and the compartment empty. There was a quantity of luggage on the racks and seats, and as there appeared to have been an accident a light engine was at once despatched up the line to search the track. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body. On Sunday afternoon she had recovered consciousness, but had no recollection of how the accident occurred. It is supposed that she was under the impression that she was travelling in a corridor car, and on opening the door fell to the ground. Asked how she could account for the accident, Miss Stephens remarked, "The railway carriage was stuffy, and I went to open the window. After that I recollect nothing more till I regained consciousness in the hospital."

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock street, W.C.

THAT veteran entrepreneur, Mr. Harry W. Wieland, has booked Mrs. Langtry for a tour of Keith and Proctor's houses in the States, "at the highest salary ever paid to an artist in America."

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

M. GEMIER, manager of the Antoine Theatre, has received a new play by M. Maurice Landay. It is called L'Amant et le Médecin, founded on M. Gabriel de la Rochefoucauld's novel.

MARIUS GRANDCLEMENT, alias Darys, has just been sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and it is to be regretted that the judge did not increase the dose. Darys, who for many years has been impresario, was on the 13th of last month on tour at La Varennes-Saint-Hilaire with a company of fourteen artists. They were to give four performances there. On the fourth day Darys disappeared. But not only did he leave his artists without a cent., he had also stolen the chequebook of one of them, M. Victor Boquin, and appropriated the sum of £20. Considering that last year the fellow had been sentenced by default to five years' imprisonment for forgery, he was lucky to have got off so well.

As was already reported, M. Porel, manager of the Vaudeville has added his name to the list of candidates for the managership of our Opera. M. Porel's application has raised some surprise in theatrical circles, especially as it comes in the eleventh hour. M. Broussan, however, is, and remains, the favourite. He stands a capital chance of being nominated, unless M. Gailhard, who clings desperately to his post, succeeds in retaining it. The report that M. André Messager had withdrawn his candidature is untrue, but this gentleman does not seem to make violent efforts to secure the position.

"THAMARA" will be revived at the Opera. It was first produced fifteen years ago, and has not been given for a long time.

MANY new pieces have to be added to the list published in these columns some time ago. Thus, at the Palais-Royal, M. Judic, the new manager, has accepted La Carte Forcée, one act, by M. Hugues Delorme, music by M. Charles Cuvillier. The principal rôle therein will be sung by Mlle. Milly Meyer, well-known to English playgoers, and a great favourite with the public here.

MM. FERNAND SARNETTE and Maurice Devilliers have completed their three-act comedy Les Imbéciles.

"LE DIVORCE" is the title of a three-act play by M. Hector Couderchon, to be brought out on one of our large Boulevard theatres.

THE two one-act farces written by M. Henri Klotz for the Cluny Theatre are: Voir Passer la Fortune and Frédégonde aime Théophraste.

M. LUCIEN VIGNAUD has put the finishing touches to a comedy intended for the Gymnase. It bears the title La Mort de Vénise.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE "tipping system," which has for many months past been the most inflammable of the burning questions discussed by variety artists at their numerous weekly meetings, has at last received its quietus by resolution, or, to be correct, will receive its quietus on and from January 1, 1907. It is announced that the terms of the resolution passed by the Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation have been intimated to managers of the variety theatres of the United Kingdom.

THE "V.A.F." have also, we understand, notified the National Association of Theatrical Stage Employees, and invited the co-operation of that body. During the long discussion on this subject the advocates of the "entire" abolition of the tipping system have not been lacking in their sympathetic appreciation of the position of many of the stage-managers and the staff generally connected with the variety houses. The artists in the main recognise that wages are not so good as they ought to be for the lower ranks of the workers, but obviously that is not a matter for which the artists can be held responsible, except that they take, as some managers have said, a very big share of the earnings, leaving nothing, as the same managers say, for the employees. The artists, however, occupy a reasonable and logical position. They are looking after their own interests with considerable ability and enthusiasm, and, no doubt, if, as one of its more active members said, the "V.A.F." will help the stage staff to "assert their rights and make their Federation a success," far greater benefits than any to be derived from the "tipping system" can be secured.

IN the meanwhile the stage employees generally might do worse than contemplate the results of the music-hall artists' efforts to establish a protective organisation. To enroll 3,000 members in less than a year is an achievement any body of men might well be proud of, and the like results can be attained by the stage employees if they will show the same measure of confidence in one another, and each help to strengthen their organisation.

THE first of a series of meetings which the National Association T.E. is arranging for London took place on Sunday evening in the "Hare and Hounds," Upper-street, Islington. Mr. William Johnson, general secretary, presided; there was a fair attendance. The purpose of the meeting was to form a "group" of members working and residing in the district with a view of taking steps to enlarge the membership and watch over the interests of stage employees engaged in the various places of entertainment in the district. Steps will also be taken to make public the unsatisfactory conditions of employment at one of the local theatres. A member was appointed to represent the "group" on the Islington Trades and Labour Council, a body composed of some 20,000 workmen. Meetings of the group will be held on the third Sunday in each month, when any stage employee working in the district may attend.

A MEETING of theatrical carpenters will be held to-morrow (Sunday) evening in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, when any theatrical carpenter may obtain information as to the benefits of the Carpenters' Society.

AT the last meeting of the General Staff Branch (London) N.A.T.E., an application for membership was received from a stage employee who on several occasions had refused to join the society. It now appeared that he had an offer of the position of property-master with a company going to America, but could only have the post on condition he was a member of the National Association, the application was granted subject to the payment of a fine of £5, the entrance fee, and twelve months' subscription. This condition was complied with, and a card of membership issued. The committee imposed this fine as an example to those who, while willing to take advantage of the work done by the society, and even to claim membership in it when it suits their purpose, neglect to take their share of the work or the cost incurred by maintaining the society and providing the benefits attached to it.

THE Musicians' Union Club will be opened in a few days. Membership will be available to members of the profession, acceptable to the committee as honorary members of the society, at a subscription of 10s. 6d. per annum. The premises have been handsomely furnished and decorated.

MR. FRED BAUGH, while visiting the Hippodrome, Hulme, saw Messrs. Ward and Andrews's comedy sketch, The Land Grabbers, and immediately booked it to open in London after the Broadhead tour, where they are now making a big success.

MISS EVELYN TAYLOR and Mr. Leo. Fritz, dramatic and variety agent, had the pleasure of winning the first prize at the Colwall Park Horse Show for their smart pony and trap.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J RIVIERE.—All that we can tell you is that we have been unable to find any record of his death.

ENQUIRER.—You are correct in assuming that Rowlands was her stage name.

JOHN G. LAURENCE.—(1) The actress you mention may have left a sum of money to one of the theatrical charities, but there is no such charity named after her. (2) It is probable that the gentleman mentioned did act as trustee, but we have not been able to verify the statement.

W. H. T.—A copyright performance of The Eternal City was given at the Gaiety Theatre, Douglas, Isle of Man, on Aug. 17, 1902.

W. T. M.—The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown was produced at the Vaudeville, June 26, 1895. In the cast were Messrs. Power, Kerr, J. Beauchamp, Robb Harwood, Gilbert Farquhar, and Lionel Brough; Misses M. A. Victor, May Palfrey, Esmé Beringer, Daisy Brough, Jay Holford, Grace Dudley, Gladys Homfrey, and Marion Murray. The piece was transferred to Terry's, Oct. 14, of the same year.

DOROTHY.—(1) Miss Marion Hood played the name-part at the Gaiety; Miss Marie Tempest at the Prince of Wales's. (2) There were 931 consecutive performances of Dorothy at the Gaiety, Prince of Wales's, and Lyric.

J. M. N.—Mr. G. H. Macdermott died May 8, 1901.

F. G.—The Empire was opened as a regular theatre under a dramatic licence in April, 1884, with Chilperic.

BRIXTON.—John Maddison Morton was the author of Box and Cox, which, however, had a French original.

ADAPTER. — (1) Copyright endures for forty-two years, or seven years after the author's death, whichever term may be the longer. (2) Under the Berne Convention the copyright in such cases is according to the law of "the country of origin."

G. N.—No; sue in the County Court.

JULIET.—When The Only Way was first produced at the Lyceum, Feb. 16, 1899, the cast included Messrs. Holbrook Blinn, Fred Everill, Acton Bond, Nye Chart, T. Arthur Jones, J. G. Taylor, Sam Johnson, Herbert Sleath, F. Tyars, Frank Vernon, Ben Webster, and Martin Harvey; Misses Grace Warner, Marriott, Lizzie Webster, and De Silva.

MACMAHONE.—Alice Emily Macmahone (Alice Melville), died Sept. 6, 1906, age 39 years.

IN MEMORIAM.

LAKE.—In loving memory of Charles Herbert Frederick Lake (aged 18), the only son of Chas. and Minnie Lake ("Florodora" Company), who was called away at Tunbridge Wells, Sept. 18, 1905. "At rest in the Garden of Sleep. Sleep on, darling, sleep on."

THE management of the Gloucester Palace are giving their patrons a high-class and varied show this week. The Charles Fisher Pocket Opera Company tops the bill in delightful selections from Maritana. The Three Permans give a most amusing and really smart pantomime act; Matt Wilkinson's little farce, The Registry Office, is an unfailing source of mirth. Boisterous merriment is also evoked by Ross, Taylor, and Elvio, in their knockabout absurdity, Those Troublesome Slaveys, a decidedly neat and clever turn. Primaveri gives an excellent juggling exhibition; and the concertina imitations of Charles Buval are also very good. The Danbys, eccentric comedians, Milsted and Bell, in an Arizonian comedy scena, Minnie Moran, comedienne and dancer, Violet Beatrice, sweet singer of Irish songs, and the Bioscope complete the programme.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE OUTING.

The staff of the Alexandra Theatre went to Clacton-on-Sea on Sunday for their annual outing. The absence of the acting-manager, Mr. T. J. Robinson, was much regretted, for he had taken great interest in the arrangements, and had assisted in many practical ways. Clacton was reached at eleven o'clock, and the weather was sufficiently fine to tempt a number to the boats, and some even to bathing. The secretary, Mr. W. Bryce, showed himself very capable in managing the arrangements, everything going through without a hitch.

After dinner, which was served at the Brunswick Hotel at 12.30, and thoroughly enjoyed, Mr. Bryce proposed the health of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dudley Bennett, and in seconding the proposal, Mr. Geo. Dance "was sure everyone would join in wishing them every success in their new enterprise—the reopening of the 'New Hippodrome' at Burton-on-Trent." The toast was very cordially received by all. Then came the toast to the health of the popular acting-manager, Mr. T. J. Robinson, which was also well received.

A trip to Walton-on-the-Naze and back by boat formed part of the arrangements. For fully half an hour before the start the rain came down in torrents, and the hopes of the party fell to zero. Fortunately, however, the weather cleared beautifully, the sun came out, and the spirits of the party revived in proportion. The trip took up the greater part of the afternoon, and, needless to say, was greatly enjoyed. As the return train did not leave Clacton till 8.30, there was ample time after tea for a stroll round the town, and all got back to the station feeling they had made the most of their stay, and had spent a most successful and enjoyable time.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Two Songs Sung by Mr. Harry Fragson at the Tivoli.

"OH! I SAY!"

Words by Eustace Ponsonby; composed and sung by Harry Fragson.

1st Verse.
Walking down Park Lane one day—
Oh I say! Oh I say!
Happy! merry! bright and gay—
Oh I say! Oh I say!
Dainty vision crossed my way—
Oh I say! Oh I say!
Such a little fairy
Tripping light and airy
That I had to stop and say:
"I'm lucky to meet a maiden so sweet; believe me, 'tis true, 'I love you I do!'"

Refrain.
Then she looked like this, she looked like that;
She laughed Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
At that joyful sound, my head went round;
I felt—Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
So, assuming calm, I gave my arm,
I thought it "ultra" bliss;
But I longed a deal to slyly steal
A kiss! kiss! kiss!

DRAMATISING NOVELS.

We published last week an interesting interview with Mr. H. A. SAINTSBURY on the subject of "The Difficulties of Dramatisation." These are undoubtedly very great, and few of those who have successfully encountered them have received an adequate amount of praise and credit. Some novels, it is true, can be adapted quite easily. DICKENS's work lent itself readily to dramatisation. He always took care to provide himself with a plot before beginning; and his characters are of the obviously effective sort which tell "at sight" upon the stage. And a great assistance to the adaptor of DICKENS, and to the actors who interpreted the versions, was that the illustrations of PHIZ settled once for all the make-ups of the personages. Mr. Pecksniff would be unrecognisable without a cockatoo-like tuft on the top of his head; and Uriah Heep's receding forehead and closely-cropped hair are indelibly impressed on all readers of the early editions. But we can readily sympathise with Mr. GEORGE WARREN in his task of making a play out of Mr. WALLACE'S novel "The Four Just Men." The book is simply a query elaborated in the most thrilling way by the postponement of the answer. Will the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs be assassinated if he does not relinquish the Aliens Extradition (Political Offences) Bill; or will the quartette of would-be murderers be baffled by the precautions taken by the police? The anticipation of this keeps us "all of a tremble" during the perusal of the novel; but the sense of duration of time cannot be given on the stage. So Mr. WARREN has used the book only as a foundation for his play, constructing its plot from added materials of his own invention.

It is not too much to say that no dramatisation of a novel can ever quite satisfy the admiring worshippers of the novelist. It is, indeed, a positive disadvantage to be familiar with a book if one wishes to enjoy an adaptation of it. The novelist is not bound, as the playwright is, by any hard-and-fast requirements and necessities. He can diverge from the main issue as he pleases; and sometimes his divergencies are the better part of his work. Nor is he precluded from an analysis of character which is impossible on the boards. He can tell his readers a great deal about his characters; whereas the dramatist has to leave his audience to form an idea of his personages from what they do and say. And the dramatist has to deal with patrons more impatient and less reflective than the novelist's, who can frequently lift the veil that conceals the motives of his puppets; whereas the dramatist—unless he resort to the old-fashioned method of soliloquy—is debarred this expedient. Drama has been defined as the development of character by action; story-telling is often the creation of character by description and analysis.

What is called the dramatic instinct is simply a keen sense of the requirements of the stage, as opposed to those of the library. This sense is uncommon, and cannot be acquired. People who have been familiar with the theatre all their lives often err in estimating the "acting merits" of a play. They are charmed by its other qualities, and overlook the fact that it "does not act as well as it reads." The accomplished dramatist can, by the aid of his imagination, see and hear his characters as they speak, move, and have their temporary being on the boards. It is not so much a question of exits and entrances, and how to get one's people on the stage and off it—that is the mere mechanism of playwriting. It is that the born dramatist sees everything through a certain medium, and is saturated with the very essence and spirit of the stage.

Experts are of opinion that any novel can be successfully adapted, provided that it contains a good dramatic idea and characters. But it will be always difficult to satisfy the lovers of any famous novel with an adaptation of it. They are certain to have formed preconceived ideas of the characters in the story; and if the work of the adaptor and the actor does not exactly coincide with the fancies of the reader, the latter feels aggrieved. And besides, in an adaptation, so much has perforce to be omitted. Mr. HALL CAINE'S novels probably suffer as little as most authors' from the process of transformation. But even in the case of The Bondman, those familiar with the novel must regret the omission—the inevitable and most judicious omission—of the grimly humorous incident connected with the greedy cunning of Adam Fairbrother's sons and the bitter hardness of his wife. The stern realism of these passages and the grotesque power with which Stephen Orry's second marriage is described are the redeeming features of the story regarded as literature. But the material valuable for dramatic or theatrical purposes lay in the emotional and exciting incidents, in the two death-bed commissions—one of mercy, the other of revenge—and in the "strong situation" of the two men, deadly enemies, chained together in the mines.

When the process is reversed, and a novel is made, wholly or partly, from a play, the difficulty of playwriting and the comparative easiness of novel-writing is emphasised. An interesting example is the commencement of CHARLES READE'S well-known story "Hard Cash." READE had accumulated, after his custom, a vast amount of material for the exposure of the abuses in certain lunatic asylums. He wanted, however, a "story" into which to weld his denunciations; so, having bought from M. AUGUSTE MACQUET, author of Les Pauvres de Paris, the English rights, and elaborated the first act of the French play into perhaps one third of the book. Dramatisation is a merciless test of the amount of essential matter in a novel. It uses up the results of invention and observation with astonishing rapidity. The compensation is that character is almost, if not quite, as effective on the stage as on the printed page. But this is always supposing that the medium—i.e., the acting—is up to the standard of the author's creations. Only a first-rate cast could have made an adaptation of "The Newcomes" palatable; and what would "Vanity Fair" have been in stage form but for Miss MARIE TEMPEST'S incomparable exposition of Becky Sharp? Everything, it seems, can be dramatised nowadays; and even the objection of the author of "Salammbo," when, in answer to the French entrepreneur who wanted to put on a version of the Carthaginian story, he pointed to the passage in which the war-elephants are described as trampling down the soldiery in hundreds, would be easily overruled at present. It would be, after all, only a question of engaging a sufficient supply of "supers"—and ordering enough elephants.

BURNLEY THEATRE ANNIVERSARY.

The twentieth anniversary of the opening of the Burnley Victoria Opera House was celebrated on the 14th inst. by a presentation to Mr. W. C. Horner, who has been its manager all that period, and also of the Empire Music Hall since its opening, and to Mrs. Horner. The chief present took the form of a pair of massive solid silver flower vases, which bore the inscription, "Presented to Mr. and Mrs. Horner, Sept. 14, 1906, by the employees of the Victoria Opera House and the Empire Music Hall, as a token of their appreciation and esteem, and as a commemoration of the opening of the Opera House, Sept. 14, 1886." Mr. Ingham, leader of the Empire orchestra, presided, and Mr. Leach, of the Victoria Opera House orchestra (and for eighteen years at the theatre), made the presentation, in the presence of the staff of the two theatres, numbering about ninety persons.

Mr Horner, in acknowledging the present, said it was gratifying to him, after having had the management of that theatre for over twenty years, to receive from his employees that beautiful present. He could assure them that during his lifetime they would be looked upon as treasures, and equally so by those of his family to whom they would be handed down. It had always been a pride during his management to receive so many testimonials from promoters and travelling managers as to his staff, and it was a pleasure to see so many old servants on that anniversary. One had been with him the whole time. Many people looked upon theatres as questionable institutions, but it was a great satisfaction to him to know that many who had been engaged in that place, as programme boys, checkers, bandsmen, and stagemen, were now occupying lucrative positions, not only in this country, but abroad. As regarded the theatres, he thought they would agree that they were now more up to date than ever. He again thanked the staff.

Mrs. Horner, who was also the recipient of bouquets from the lady attendants, said that was the first present she had ever had, although she had been a business woman in Burnley for forty years, twenty of which had been spent in connection with that theatre. It was a great surprise to her, who knew the working of the theatre, to see how many people were employed by the two places. She had always felt pleased when the staff were praised, as she was proud of them, and she wished the public of Burnley could see them all. They would not then be so ready to condemn the theatre, but would try to keep so many in employment by supporting it as it deserved to be. Doubtless every denomination was represented in the staff, and she felt sure that there was as much good to be done by theatres as by many churches and chapels. In most towns theatres had a standing, and were looked up to, but she was sorry to say that in Burnley it did not receive the consideration it deserved. Often, when she looked round at both theatres full, she wondered if the public realised what a responsibility rested on the management and staff, and yet in twenty years they had never had a mishap.

Mr. and Mrs. Horner, in their turn, presented an easy chair to Mr. T. Thornton, who had been an employee since the opening of the theatre.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 17,
Bizet's Opera,
"CARMEN."

This week we have a special attraction in the Moody-Manners Opera Company, which is appearing in a series of favourite works in English, and it is pleasant to see this handsome theatre packed at each performance by enthusiastic audiences, who by giving their hearty support are materially aiding Mr. Charles Manners in the splendid efforts he is making at the present time. The répertoire includes Tannhauser, Lohengrin, Il Trovatore, Faust, Carmen, Maritana, and the Bohemian Girl. On Monday evening Bizet's Carmen was played, and a performance of a very high standard of excellence was secured, principals, chorus, and orchestra alike all put forth their best efforts, and with most satisfactory results. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan appeared in the title-rôle, and repeated her admirable impersonation of this character, singing in her most artistic style and acting with remarkable vivacity. It was indeed a most artistic piece of work, whether viewed dramatically or musically, and Mlle. de Lussan was accorded a great ovation. None the less successful was that accomplished singer, Mr. Lewys James, who undertook Examillo. He has a rich and powerful voice, and his singing of the "Toreador" song met with such favour that its repetition was demanded. Mr. Joseph O'Mara was the Don José, and he sang admirably, giving unbounded pleasure to his listeners. Michaela, the peasant girl, was charmingly played by Miss Ethel Cadman, who has a very sweet voice and uses it to the best advantage. Mr. Bailey and Mr. Moppet were heard at their best as Remendado and Dancairo, while Morales and Zuniga, the dragoons, were quite safe in the hands of Messrs. Carter and Halpin. Miss Rigby and Miss Alvord also acquitted themselves well in their allotted characters of Frasquita and Mercedes. The chorus and orchestra put in some very meritorious work under the conductorship of Signor Romnaldo Sapio, who secured a very smooth and finished performance of this favourite opera. The opera was carefully mounted.

On Tuesday was presented Wagner's Opera in Three Acts,
"TANNHAUSER."

Tannhäuser	MR. WILSON PEMBROKE
The Landgrave	MR. CHARLES MAGRATH
Wolfram	MR. WILLIAM DEVER
Biterolf	MR. MOFFETT
Henrich der Schreiber	MR. TATTERSALL
Reinmar	MR. H. BRINDLE
Walther	MR JOHNSTONE
A Young Shepherd	MISS RIGBY
Venus	MISS TONI SEITER
Elizabeth	MADAME DE VERE

We all know that Mr. Charles Manners is an enthusiastic advocate of opera for the people; but few are aware that he is able to communicate that enthusiasm to his company—a fact quite apparent to observant lovers of music on Tuesday, when Tannhäuser was presented to an audience filling the house, and which was as highly critical as it was enthusiastic. The opera is not merely a romantic legend appropriately set; its music means much more than that. It sets forth in its stately cadences, its tonal colour, and its magnificent orchestration the contest that is ever being fought between mere elemental human lust and the higher love of a higher soul, radiant in its purity and touching in its self-sacrifice. Had Wagner never sounded greater depths of musical art than the score of this beautiful legend, he would have still been entitled to a high place among the world's masters of music. As a mere vehicle for the display of the voice the opera has always been popular with interpreters, though the solos are but few, much of the work of the principals being descriptive recitative, of which one never tires, so delightful is the variety of the orchestration. Tuesday's audience was not only enthusiastic: it was punctual; and a reverent hush was imposed by universal consent as soon as Herr Richard Eckhold raised his bâton to conduct the overture, which was most admirably played. The Venusberg scene of the first act was animated and effective, and the sensuous music of both Venus and Tannhäuser prepares one later for the dignity and beauty of the Pilgrims' Chorus, with which the splendid septet at the end of Act I. is quite in consonance. We have already spoken of the enthusiasm of the performers. This was evident in every scene, and especially so in the hall of minstrelsy in the second act, which had such a fine dramatic presentation as to draw forth a most enthusiastic tribute from the delighted audience. Mr. Wilson Pembroke, who was evidently suffering from a cold, opened somewhat nervously, but warming to his work he sang with much tenderness the song to Venus in the second scene of the first act, and displayed great fervour in his later solo, "Thou, Goddess of Love." Besides singing with much charm, Mr. Pembroke acted with high intelligence, the struggle between the Knight's good and evil nature being forcibly portrayed in the last act. The high-souled Elizabeth found an interpreter of considerable gifts in Madame De Vere, whose purity of voice and depth of expression were displayed in the strong dramatic scene in the hall of minstrelsy, where the pure-hearted maiden intervenes to save Tannhäuser from the wrath of his fellows. The beautiful prayer in the last act was also given with true devotional feeling. Mr. William Dever presented a consistent and highly artistic impersonation of Wolfram, imparting much effect to the plaint of the disappointed lover of Elizabeth in Act III., and singing very finely the famous solo "O Star of Eve." Mr. Charles Magrath was a sonorous and dignified Landgrave; Mr. Moppett a fiery Biterolf; and Mr. Tattersall an effective Henrich der Schreiber; other parts being adequately rendered by Mr. H. Brindle as Reinmar, Mr. Johnstone as Walther, and Miss Rigby as a young shepherd. Miss Toni Seiter gave full significance to the music of Venus. An admirable ensemble was secured by Herr Richard Eckhold, the Pilgrims' Chorus being always sonorous and impressive. Wednesday saw the revival of Maritana, and at Thursday's matinée Lohengrin drew a good house.

"'THE' WINTER'S TALE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Why will theatrical managers and writers persist in placing the prefix "the" before Shakespeare's Winter's Tale? The dictionary gives "the" as a definite article, denoting a particular person or thing. Why particularise in this instance? Heine, speaking of Shakespeare's adaptation of Robert Greene's romance of "Pandosto the Triumph of Time," says:—"Shakespeare, who could not, of course, use Greene's title, called his play A Winter's Tale." The play was entered at Stationers' Hall, 1594, as A Wynter Nyghtes Pastime. The Stationers' Hall office book, 1623, has "an old play called Winter's Tale." Chambers' Shakespeare, speaking of it, says:—"The legendary drama, such as A Winter's Tale." The Encyclopædia Britannica calls it Winter's Tale without any prefix; whilst little Mamillius, the child of the play, says, "A sad tale 's best for winter," thus, doubtless, foreshadowing the author's idea of christening his literary bantling A Winter's Tale.—Yours faithfully,

E. EDMONDS.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your Leigh (Lancashire) correspondent omitted our name from his notice last week. Yours faithfully, JAMES ROLMAR, General-Manager, Harrell-Palmer Cosmopolitan Co.

THEATRES AND RATES.

Before Sir Albert de Rutzen at Bow-street Police Court on Thursday afternoon, when the representative of the Lyceum (1903) (Limited) appeared to an adjourned summons for neglecting to pay to the Westminster City Council £1,111 6s. 8d., in respect of a general rate made on April 6th last.

At the recent hearing of the case it was contended by Mr. Travers Humphreys, who appeared for the first debenture-holders of the Lyceum, that, as the Lyceum was practically empty—a caretaker being the only person on the premises—the defendants were in the same position as the owner of an empty house, and, therefore, not liable for rates while their property was unoccupied.

At the same time the London Coliseum (Limited) were summoned for the non-payment of the current rate, amounting to £1,339. It was understood that they raised the same defence, and their case, like that against the Lyceum proprietors, was adjourned until yesterday.

Mr. Ryde, barrister, now appeared on behalf of the Westminster City Council in support of the summons; Mr. Travers Humphreys appeared for the Lyceum (1903) (Limited), and also for the Coliseum (Limited).

Mr. Ryde said that since the case was last before the Court the Westminster City Council had sent to the Lyceum to see what the state of affairs were there. Their representatives found there was on the stage the usual scenery—drawing-rooms and gardens, and so forth—capable of being put to use at a moment's notice for plays which did not require special scenery. The floor was carpeted, and there was the usual carpet and rods on the stairs. The orchestra was still fitted with music stands. There were chairs—although perhaps not many—and in the auditorium there were seats which had been covered up to keep them clean. Two rooms on the premises were let to a Press representative at a monthly rental. He (Mr. Ryde) submitted that under these circumstances there was not only occupation, but beneficial occupation. The Lyceum debenture-holders wanted, of course, to let their theatre, and it would be of enormous advantage to them if they were able to represent to a likely tenant that the stage and the scenery were ready, and that they could open in a few days.

Sir Albert De Rutzen: I think it was admitted on the last occasion when the case was before me that the theatre was ready to be taken over at once if the defendants were lucky enough to get tenants.

Mr. Travers Humphreys: Yes, that was admitted.

Mr. Ryde repeated that the chance of getting a tenant was emphasised by the fact that the theatre was ready for immediate occupation and use. That condition of things enormously increased the value of the premises. If one of the large London theatres happened, unfortunately, to be burned down, the manager would be very glad indeed to find another playhouse like the Lyceum ready for immediate use. In that case the Lyceum people could make their own terms. In that sense there was not only an occupation, but a beneficial occupation. For present purposes, however, it would only be necessary for him to prove visible occupation. In the case of "The Queen v. Bradshaw" it was ruled that there was a liability to pay rates, even when there was only a visible (and not a beneficial) occupation. The question as to whether there had been beneficial occupation could only be dealt with by quarter sessions. The same question as was raised here had been decided in the case of the Earl's Court Exhibition.

It was there decided, said counsel, that the exhibition people were liable to pay rates for the whole of the year, although some portion of their grounds might not be occupied in the dead season. It was pointed out, when that decision was given, that the question of the dead season was probably considered when the rateable value of the property was decided. No doubt the same thing was done when the Lyceum Theatre was assessed. If not, it ought to have been. Theatre keeping was a precarious business, but in this case, both in justice and law, a distress warrant should be issued. It was useless to say that the premises were not being used at the moment. A farmer might, with equal force, argue that he ought not to pay rates because his land was lying fallow and his meadows under water.

Mr. Humphreys contended that in the Lyceum case there was no occupation by anybody, unless it could be said that what might be called trade fixtures created in law what they did not create in fact. As a matter of fact, the Lyceum was assessed on the assumption that it would never be empty. No doubt that question would be gone into now that this point had arisen.

Mr. Humphrey caused some amusement by quoting, in support of his contention, from a book entitled "Ryde on Rates," the author being the gentleman now appearing for the Westminster City Council.

Sir Albert de Rutzen: I have a copy of the work here.

Mr. Humphreys: So have I, so there must have been at least two copies sold. (Laughter.)

Sir Albert de Rutzen said he was quite clear that the only question he had to decide was whether the theatre was occupied or not. It was no part of his duty to decide whether there was a beneficial occupation. It was quite clear that the defendants were liable for the rates, and he would make an order in the usual way for a distress.

The case against the Coliseum was next mentioned.

Mr. Travers Humphreys said he appeared for what he might call the company and the first debenture-holders, but he did not think he could successfully distinguish this case from the case of the Lyceum. His clients felt very acutely the hardships of having to pay enormous rates in respect of a building for which they were not getting a shilling in return. An application had been made to the High Court to appoint a receiver for the purpose of raising the necessary funds to pay the rate. A receiver was appointed, and the Master made an order giving him leave to defend the summons, and to apply again on the question of raising the amount, if necessary. That being so, he hoped that no distress would issue until they had had time to make the application which was now necessary.

This application was granted.

Mr. Ryder applied for costs.

Mr. Humphreys: We have a lot of money to find, and I do not know where it is coming from.

Sir Albert de Rutzen said he thought this was a case where the question of costs might be waived by the Council.

Mr. Ryde: We leave the question in your hands.

Sir Albert de Rutzen: The defendant in each case will only have to pay the costs of the summons.

IN the London Gazette notice is given that application has been made to the Home Secretary by the local authorities to change the fair dates at Chesterfield. At present the dates are Jan. 27, Feb. 28, the first Saturday in April, May 4, July 4, Sept. 25, and Nov. 25, except when a Sunday has fallen on these dates, when it has been held on the Monday following. The Corporation are asking that the dates may be changed to the last Saturdays in January and February, the first Saturdays of April, May, and July, and the last Saturdays in September and November. Here, again, it is a matter of interest and concern to the showmen taking Chesterfield on their round, and if the proposed alterations interfere with their business, it is for them to communicate with the Home Secretary before Sept. 28, when a decision will be arrived at.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Paul Valentine, the veteran maître de ballet, who in the years that are gone was responsible for many delightful productions at the Canterbury, Scuth London, Oxford, the old Philharmonic, Islington, and many other variety houses, is to be accorded a complimentary benefit, which, by kind permission of Mr. G. Adney Payne and the directors, will take place at the Canterbury on Friday, October 5. A numerous and influential committee is headed by Mr. Payne as the chairman and treasurer. Mr. Fred Miller is acting as the hon. secretary.

The East Ham Palace of Varieties, which is to be opened at Christmas, failed to obtain a licence at the adjourned annual meeting of the Metropolitan District Committee of the Essex County Council on the 14th, when the application was dealt with. It was stated that the notification of the application had not reached the offices of the Clerk of the County within the requisite period, though the applicant, Mr. Joseph Davis, stated that it had been posted in plenty of time. The Committee, however, considered that the standing order had not been complied with, and that therefore the application could not be entertained.

At the meeting of the Palace Theatre, Ltd., on Thursday next it is proposed to elect another director in the place of the late chairman, Count Hollender. Mr. W. Howard Smith, a director of the Camberwell Palace, is a candidate for the post.

Miss Annette Kellerman, the graceful lady Channel swimmer, will commence a season at Hengler's Circus, Argyll-street, on Monday next, at three and eight p.m. The ring has been transformed into a water circus, with a stage and diving tank in the centre. Twice daily Miss Kellerman will give a graceful and instructive exhibition of swimming and diving, supported by a troupe of lady swimmers. An excellent variety entertainment will also be included, and at each performance Miss Kellerman will lecture on her Channel swim, which will be illustrated by the cinematograph.

Mr. Arthur Roberts celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday yesterday (Friday). It is so unusual for the popular comedian to be "left," even for five seconds, that the following little story proves the rule. It was several years ago, when "Arthur" was singing at a concert, accompanied by Mr. Herman Finck, the ever-ready-witted conductor at the Palace Theatre. The man on the platform turned to the man at the piano with the unexpected question—"I'm going to give a soprano song! What key shall I sing it in?" "You'd better sing it in khakee!" promptly and quietly answered the imperturbable Finck.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mr. Charles Long, partner in the firm of Wylson and Long, the well-known architects, of 16, King William-street, Charing Cross, who passed away at his country house at Otto Bottom, Kingsdown, near Walmer, on the 13th inst. The cause of death was consumption. The remains of the deceased gentleman were interred at the St. Pancras cemetery, East Finchley, on Wednesday, and among those present at the graveside besides members of the deceased's family and the immediate relatives were Mr. Henry Tozer, Mr. St. John Brenon, and Mr. George Ridout.

Mr. Long was a well-known figure in the music-hall world, and was present at many an inauguration and anniversary. With his partner, Mr. Wylson, he shared the distinction of designing the Oxford, the Alhambra, Blackpool; the Euston, the Chelsea, and the Walthamstow Palaces; and the new variety theatres at East Ham and Tottenham, the former of which opens at Christmas. Mr. Long was very much liked by all who came in contact with him, and his numerous friends now mourn the loss of a cultured, courteous, and genial gentleman.

The tenth annual general meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 23, at the Empire, Camberwell, commencing at 12 (noon). Due notification of any resolution for discussion at the meeting must be sent, in writing, to the secretary fourteen days prior to the date fixed.

Mr. Fred Trussell, of the London Hippodrome, now on his holiday with his wife, was one of the witnesses of the dramatic events that attended the recent occupation of Mogador by the notorious Kaid Anfloos. When they reached Mogador, on board the s.s. Zweena, the British Consul sent a warning that, owing to the state of unrest in the town, it was not safe nor advisable to allow any of the passengers to land. Mr. Trussell, however, decided to run the risk, and from the roof of a house saw the most magnificent display of horsemanship that he ever witnessed. Both the intrepid manager and his wife were rowed back to their steamer safely after an adventure that neither will readily forget.

La Milo has roused the matronly susceptibilities of Mrs. Ormiston Chant, who, it will be remembered, made herself notorious some years ago in connection with the Empire. That austere critic, however, has not seen the series of statues for which the artist poses at the London Pavilion, but will probably do so on the invitation of Mr. Cruikshank, manager to La Milo. In private life this lady is Miss Pansy Montague, who, as an actress, took part in several productions in Australia, notably in Florodora. Miss Montague is one of four daughters of an Army officer, and was born in Australia.

Apropos of Mr. Stead's recent onslaught, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh De Beere are shortly producing a new comedy in miniature by Hubert Bartlett, author of the successful Collar Stud, entitled The Lady of the Roses. The sketch, which will be gorgeously mounted and costumed, will be of so ultra-refined a nature that it is the intention of the producers to invite the aforementioned "captious critic" to the production. This, we may add, takes place at the Camberwell Empire on Monday, Nov. 5.

Mr. Medley Barrett, having concluded a long and successful engagement with Catlin's Royal Pierrots, at Scarborough, is now scurrying, per motor-car, about the principal towns of the North of England on pantomime business intent. He is making Huddersfield his headquarters.

Mr. John Le Hay started a short provincial tour this week at Glasgow with Poor Beggar, a new sketch written by Frank Wyatt. John gets some fine opportunities as the beggar, and was unanimously pronounced a big success.

Miss Mary Duggan, who is supporting Mr. John Le Hay in Poor Beggar, is one of the old Savoy "school," and will be warmly welcomed back to the provinces, where she was for some years such a great favourite in the D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Company.

A forthcoming addition to the "Sixpenny Pops" issued by Messrs. Francis and Day will be "Come back to Borneo," by Barnes and Weston.

A report has been going the round of the entertainment world that the frontage of the Fairfield House Estate, in the Broadway, Tooting, has been acquired for erecting a music hall. The statement is, however, incorrect. Unavailing overtures were made for the purchase of the site, and therefore at the present time it can be treated for by any syndicate or responsible person

Liverpool is adding to the number of its places of amusement. The Haymarket, in Beau-street, will shortly re-open under the management of Mr. Joseph S. Childs. This place was erected twenty-five years ago, and always kept its doors open until last month, when Mr. Fred Willmot, being unable to obtain a renewal of his lease upon the old terms, relinquished the place, and took over the Roscommon. The hall is to be very much improved, the comfort of patrons being particularly catered for.

Then, again, the New Tivoli, in Lime-street, is rapidly approaching completion, and will very probably admit its first audience early in Nov. This enterprise is expected to prove a success, situated as it is in the centre of the "Bohemian" quarter of the city. Great preparations are being made by the owners of public-houses in the vicinity, who remember that in former days, when St. James's Hall stood on the site, fortunes were made by licensees. Not far away from the Tivoli two immense public-houses are being practically rebuilt, while others are receiving the attention of painters and decorators.

A step towards the provision of a large variety theatre at the south end of the city has been taken during the week by Mr. Wm. Henry Broadhead, of Blackpool, who on Thursday applied to the Liverpool Bench for a provisional licence. The proposed site is at the corner of Lodge-lane and Beaumont-street, and stands in the centre of a population numbering, within a reasonable radius, 100,000. The Bench, however, declined to express any opinion concerning the plans that were submitted, and refused to do anything until the building was erected. It was mentioned that seating accommodation for over 2000 people would be provided, and the edifice would probably cost £25,000.

The district is absolutely unprovided for, and people are compelled to journey down town by the trams in order to reach a place of amusement. Of course opposition to the scheme is threatened by a number of religious fanatics, but the feeling of the residents is that the necessity of seeking means of enjoyment a couple of miles away should be obviated by the erection of a well-ordered theatre near their homes. We hope that Mr. Broadhead will persist in his proposal.

In aid of the much-needed funds for the Sussex County Hospital and Dispensary an alfresco fête was given on Tuesday afternoon at the Dyke, near Poynings, permission having been given by Mrs. Maude Barrasford, the genial directoress of the Brighton Hippodrome. In our forty years' acquaintance with the spot (where in days of yore hawks were flown by the Duke of St. Albans and his Duchess, née Harriet Mellon, the famous actress) seldom have we seen a greater concourse of onlookers, and although the admission fee was only threepence, the cause of charity will benefit considerably.

The committee included Mr. Ernest Lepard, manager of the Brighton Alhambra. The fine band of the 1st Sussex Royal Garrison Artillery Volunteers, conducted by C. F. Chatfield, discoursed some most enjoyable music. The Café Chantant was under the direction of Pandeen Yelland Padoran, and elicited hearty laughter and applause. The vocalists were Stephen Carroll, an effective tenor, Mme. Dedman, Mme. Wagstaffe (soprano), James Dobson (baritone), Mr. Lelew (comic), Miss Marion Ridgway (contralto), and P. Y. Padoran, Irish humorist. Mr. A. W. Briggs was an able accompanist. In the sports the Brighton Hippodrome team won the challenge cup for the tug-of-war, beating the Brighton Alhambra after a keen contest.

Mr. Henry Lucas, manager of the Hippodrome, Wakefield, late of the Pavilion, Glasgow, and Hippodrome, Birmingham, was, we hear, quietly married at Leeds on Sept. 1 to Miss Florence Roberts, of Oxford House, Belle Vue, Wakefield. Numerous friends will wish the young couple every happiness.

In our report of the re-opening of the Royal Albert, Canning Town, last week, we omitted to mention the fiame of Mr. Fred Durham, variety agent, a particular friend of the new proprietor, Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt.

The Boston Palace (Corn Exchange Hall), Lincolnshire, is to be let by tender for a term of three years, commencing April 6, 1907. The building is 92 feet by 49 feet, and has been used for some time past as a music hall.

Rival teams from the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings (captained by Mr. E. White), and the Hippodrome (captained by Mr. Albert Matham), recently played a friendly cricket match. Mr. Dan Thomas journeyed from Eastbourne to support the Hippo. team. The match was won by the Gaiety team by an innings, and Mr. E. C. White, with 101 not out, secured the half-guinea prize for the highest score, offered by Mr. Griffiths, of the Gaiety staff, who also gave a luncheon in the Pavilion during the interval, when Mr. Matham expressed the hope that the match would be an annual event.

We are glad to learn that Mr. A. Standen Triggs, the managing-director of the Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, has recovered from the accident which befel him through having slipped on some apple peel and severely strained the muscles of his right leg. The accident was most unfortunate, coming immediately upon the Tennis Tournament, but Mr. Triggs was able to control the various arrangements, although unable, until Thursday, to move about among the spectators.

At a Liverpool variety theatre on Monday evening there was a sharp discussion between the management and a leading artist, who refused to go on because that party's name was at the bottom of the bill instead of the top. The perplexing situation was got over by the management promising to have new bills printed and the advertisements in the newspapers altered next day. The expense of again billing the city was no small one.

Mr. J. J. Sallmayer, who has been the tenant of the Brighton Corporation nearly a year, and given many excellent entertainments at the Town Aquarium during that period, will leave that building on Oct. 1 next, he having declined to continue the agreement at £800 per year. Mr. Sallmayer, who has lost about £4,000, offered the Council £300 a year for seven years on condition certain restrictions were withdrawn, and the building, which has become very dilapidated, put into proper repair, no rent being demanded while the restoration was going on. In consequence of the Town Clerk and the Council accepting a month's notice the ratepayers will soon have the white elephant again to pay for. The refusal of the Town Council to sanction the erection of a shelter in the form of a screen down the middle of the Palace Pier, proposed by Mr. John Howard, the builder of that handsome structure, which is 1,700 feet long, and the most attractive in Brighton, has caused considerable indignation, as Mr. Howard and his co-directors have decided, after Oct. 1, to partially close the Pier, and to suspend the lighting decorations on the Pier for six month. The erection of the screen would have caused £2,000 to be spent in wages.

The Hippodrome, Gillingham, near Chatham (Kent), is announced to be reopened on Monday, Oct. 1. The lessees will be the New Bioscope Trading Company, with Mr. F. R. Griffiths as resident-manager. Several alterations are being made in the building for the comfort of the patrons, and the management is looking forward to a successful season.

On what we considered reliable authority, we published in these columns last week an announcement of the death of Miss Bonnie Goodwin. We desire, therefore, to express our deep regret for the statement, and are glad to announce that although her state of health is causing anxiety, there is hope of the popular artist's recovery. She had a good night on Thursday, and is decidedly stronger.

Mr. R. W. Duck, the popular manager of the Granville, Walham Green, was at home to a large crowd at that favourite house on Wednesday evening, when the eighth anniversary was celebrated. The special programme included many eminent people in the variety profession, and a host of friends came to congratulate the management.

Comfort and elegance go far in the recent improvements at the Oxford, which have been gradually completed during the last three months, under the superintendence of Messrs. Wylson and Long, without suspending the performance for a single night. The chief alterations are the enlargement of the grand saloon on the O.P. side—which will accommodate a large crowd of those who prefer to stand and witness the performance—and the removal of the massive wall on the "prompt" side of the stalls, which formerly obstructed the view. The latter is a vast improvement, and adds greatly to the seeing capacity from the stalls and pit.

The architects have not confined their attention to the auditorium, but all the approaches, staircases, passages, &c., have been completely renovated. The ground floor and first circle have been entirely re-seated with most comfortable tip-up automatic easy chairs upholstered in rich red velvet, supplied by Messrs. Shoolbred, who have also replaced the old carpet with an exact copy—beautiful in design and colouring—of a very rich antique Persian rug. The carpet has now been extended to cover the whole of the pit, where, seated in a velvet-covered armchair, one can now enjoy the finest "variety" turns for a single shilling.

Mr. George Adney Payne, Mr. Henry Tozer, and Mr. Henry Sutton, with the new manager of the Oxford, Mr. C. Blyth-Pratt, were at home to a large crowd on Thursday afternoon, when the fine interior of the theatre with its rich embellishments and its up-to-date comfort, was universally admired. Tea and coffee were served at separate tables in the smaller saloon, a delicate consideration on the part of Mr. Blyth-Pratt that was highly appreciated by the ladies.

Messrs. Harrington and Tate were actively engaged on special commissions for those two famous artists, Miss Ada Reeve and Miss Victoria Monks, when the unfortunate breakdown in Mr. Harrington's health occurred, and laid him hors de combat. He is, however, now rapidly recovering, and may be relied upon, when completely restored to health, to discharge these obligations, with, as the tradesmen say, "neatness and dispatch"!

Mr. Harry Tate is sailing for America per ss. Caronia on Tuesday, with his company, to play Fishing at Hammerstein's Theatre, New York. We hope that Uncle Sam will give as warm a welcome to this funny sketch as John Bull. Many friends, among whom the writer may be counted, will be wishing the young and popular comedian bon voyage and a prosperous time across the pond.

The forms of the builder and his men have "loomed large" during the past week within the portals of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, where considerable structural alterations and additions are being made in the warehousing and general packing departments, in view of the impending winter campaign, which, if present portents are any criterion, should be a heavy and striking one in the history of this go-ahead and successful young firm.

The 481st meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Herbert presiding. Other members present were Messrs. J. W. Vendome, Fred Neiman, Chas. Gardener, Fred Griffiths, Harry Freeman, Geo. Preston, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. A. Humphrey, of the Railway Hotel, Sheerness-on-Sea, was appointed as agent in that town. A number of questions regarding refunds and claims for insurance were considered and dealt with. It was decided to postpone the date of the annual general meeting until Tuesday, Oct. 23, and that it should be held at the Empire, Camberwell. The election of the chairman was adjourned. The weekly statement of receipts and expenditure was submitted and was passed as read.

Undoubtedly, the song which will be most in demand with pantomime producers this year is "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you," by Lawrance and Mellor. Early as it is in the year, the Monte Carlo Publishing Company have had hundreds of applications for the pantomime rights; and their other great success, "Widow Doolin," by J. F. Lambe, so successfully sung by Pat Casey, is also in great pantomime demand, having already been secured for Hull, Sheffield, Crystal Palace, and many other places.

A most charming song, the words and melody of which are both from the accomplished pen of Mr. J. F. Lambe, is that which bears the pretty title, "Queen of Old Samara." Both Miss Alice Lloyd and Miss Alexandra Dagmar will exploit this number in the music halls; whilst one of our most accomplished musical comedy actresses is arranging to specially feature it in a forthcoming new musical play at a West End theatre in the near future. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company are issuing the song.

"When the band played the 'Men of Harlech'" is being eagerly snapped up by principal boys for pantomime this year, it being readily conceded that Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's striking song, with which Miss Alexandra Dagmar has achieved such a signal success, is indubitably "the" patriotic march-song of the year. The Emlyn Jones Quintette are specially introducing it into their fine act representative of the different peoples of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Ernest Shand has been busy among the trout in the Isle of Man, where seven beauties, weighing six pounds, fell to his rod. Like other stars of variety, the popular comedian is an enthusiastic motorist, and has just finished a fifteen weeks' tour of the Moss Empires on his 10-h.p. Wolseley car. He has made arrangements to go to America in the spring.

Percy Curry, a vocalist, engaged at the Hippodrome, Preston-street, Hulme, was charged on the 14th with employing, without a licence, Edward Clarke, a boy under fourteen years of age, to take part in an entertainment on the stage ofter 10 p.m., on the 4th inst. The evidence showed that the boy's parents resided near the theatre. On the afternoon of the 4th inst. the lad Clarke was going to school in Upper Jackson-street, Hulme, when the defendant met him and asked him how old he was, to which he replied, "Fourteen last March." The defendant then asked him to come to the stage door of the theatre that evening, and engaged him to take part in a performance two nights during the week for 4s. As a matter of fact the lad was only thirteen last March, and the defendant said he had been grossly misled by the boy, who had further promised to bring his birth certificate to the theatre in the evening. The Bench fined the defendant 1s. and costs. Defendant: I am much obliged to you, gentlemen.

Miss Vesta Victoria has accepted a new song by that well-known pantomime author Fred Bowyer, entitled "When Millie tied her shoe up in the Strand." The music is by Mr. J. W. Tate, composer of "In Barcelona" and just a few other songs, and Miss Victoria will sing it on her return to town.

Among the autumn novelties of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter is a remarkably fine song, by Harry Castling and Bennett Scott, entitled "All that glitters isn't gold." It has been a great draw in the hands of Miss Dora Lyric.

Another number of which much will be heard at pantomime time is "Boy Blue." Mr. David Day is placing it on the market, and as a march song it will more than hold its own with the best America can send us. Both the words and music are by Harry Castling, and there is a keen demand for the work.

Mr. Harry Randall has lately secured two characteristic comic songs from the pen that has so often done him yeoman service, to wit, that of T. W. Connor. This favourite writer published during the current week with Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter a remarkably fine chorus song, entitled "Won't they be glad to see me now my ship's come home!" It will be the beau ideal of a principal boy's song, Whittington especially.

Mr. George Andrews, the acting-manager of the Leicester Palace Theatre, has been promoted to a similar position at the Newcastle-on-Tyne Empire, where he will commence his duties on Monday next. Mr. Andrews will leave the Leicester Palace amid many regrets. He has made a host of friends, and has gained the goodwill of the staff both before and behind the curtain.

Miss Ada Reeve concludes her engagement at the Tivoli on Saturday next. For Monday, Oct. 1, Mr. Joseph Wilson promises the reappearance at the cosy house in the Strand of "The Follies," who will present an entirely new skit, the nature of which may be gathered from the title, The Bath Bun, or, The Crash of the Season. The novelty is divided into two scenes, the first representing the bathroom and the second the bun-shop.

Mr. Wilson Hallett has opened at the Alhambra Theatre, New York, and scored a big success. He thinks the work exceptionally hard—every afternoon and evening, Sundays included—and the first week the strain was so great that he almost lost his voice. He has been offered most tempting salaries.

Those diverting musical people, "The Gems," have made such an emphatic success on the Keith Circuit and in New York that they have already been re-engaged by Mr. Keith to return to New York at the finish of their tour of sixteen weeks for a further period of two weeks. They open with Mr. Stoll for his tour at the Hackney Empire on January 28, 1907.

At the Alhambra on Monday will appear the most characteristic troupe of singers and dancers in all Russia—the Aquamarinoffs. The Urbanora entertainment will also be revised by the inclusion of several lengthy films illustrating the natural wonders of Canada.

Mr. Pat Doherty, looking the picture of perfect health, has just been welcomed back to London by hosts of friends after his recent visit to New York. He will be in harness on the halls again immediately.

Miss Daisy Dormer has in preparation a new song, written and composed by Harry M. Wellmon, entitled "My Kaffir Queen." This song will be published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have just secured for publication George Formby's latest success, "He hit me on the bo-ko with my wang-ee." It is written and composed by Mr. Will Hyde.

Mr. Bert Coote's well-known Irish-Indian troupes are featuring, both in music halls and in his Fatal Wedding companies, the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co.'s coon song "Honey, won't you stop teasing me?"

Dalton's Agency is now established in more commodious premises at 29 Mauldeth-road West, Withington, Manchester. "Monday next" is to be a feature of the future working of this up-to-date firm.

Frank and Jen Latona are in the Hackney Empire bill. Jen Latona, mistress of pianoforte technique and sweet singer, was originally known as Jennie Gabrielle, and with her husband has toured the world three times. They have played in the Antipodes, in Egypt, in South Africa, all through the British Isles, on the Continent, in Russia, and through Asia. Mrs. Latona was born in Birmingham, England, and her home is but two or three houses distant from that of Joseph Chamberlain. Her family have frequently attended garden parties at Highbury. Mr. Latona is an American, a native of Frankfort, Minnesota, a town, which, as he sadly confesses, is not on the maps. He was playing in Nottingham six years ago, when he met his wife. Then began the romance which has lasted to this day, for the Latonas are among the most domestic of professional people. They have bought a home in Birmingham, and there they go annually for their summer vacation.

Mr. Walter Graham, the "Human Marionette," to whose success at the London Pavilion in his miniature extravaganza, Neptune's Grotto, we referred last week, has hitherto done his own bookings. In future he will be represented by Mr. George Barclay, who has now become his business agent.

Owing to the success of Miss Edith Grenfell's sketch, A Case for Recission, which was tried at the Richmond Theatre a few days back, it will go into the regular programme there on Oct. 1.

At the South-West London Police-court on Tuesday application was made to Mr. de Grey for a license to permit a little girl named Maudie Francis, aged 13, daughter of Mr. Nelson Francis, to perform twice nightly at the Duchess Music Hall, Balham. Inspector Hodges, who had the inquiry in hand, informed his worship that, although the child had been licensed many times before, permission to play had, however, been twice refused on the ground that there were not four hours' rest between the child's two performances. The mother expressed an opinion that the four hours' interval did not apply. Moreover, that regulation was really made for theatres and not music halls. Mr. de Grey said he thought a two hours' rest sufficient, and the licence was granted. Maudie has appeared during the week, and has scored a great success with "Santa Claus."

At the London meeting of the International Artists' Lodge on Sunday, Bro. 1226 was elected to the chair. The members present were 119, 115, 1226, 202, 595, 1156. A letter was read from Messrs. Cadle Bros., acknowledging the receipt of the Arbitration Committee's official decision, and thanking the lodge for its courtesy and attention. A letter from Mr. Judge enclosed the translation of the Petition to the Board of Agriculture with regard to the quarantine for dogs. The Legal Committee for the month was then chosen, and it was agreed that the meeting of the Executive Committee (London) should be held at 11 o'clock on Tuesday, at the London office, to discuss matters of urgent internal importance.

By kind permission of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson, Mr. Lennox Barry, manager of the Hounslow Hippodrome, is organising a benefit matinée to be held at that hall, on Wednesday next, in aid of Mrs. Coker, the afflicted mother of the poor boy James Coker, who died at the Hounslow Hospital on Friday, the 14th, as a result of being knocked down by a motor-car in the High-street, Hounslow. The mother's sad loss is made more distressing by the fact that she has within the short space of three months lost both her husband and two other children, and is at present in a condition which prevents her from following her occupation—that of a field-worker. Mr. Barry has communicated these facts to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, who has graciously consented to give her patronage. Mr. Barry will be glad to hear from any artists willing to give their services.

Mr. Ottley Cranston, who is cast for the principal part in Burning to Sing, to be produced at the Empire on Monday evening, has been hitherto known as an operatic and concert vocalist. Born in Yorkshire, and one of the few singers who are entirely self-taught, his big répertoire includes nearly all the Handelian works, the Elijah, and the great parts of Wotan, in Die Walküre, the King in Lohengrin, and Mephistopheles in Faust. A long tour in the United States with Mr. Henry W. Savage's opera company gave Mr. Cranston the opportunity to make his name as an exceptionally fine bass in the most critical cities on "the other side."

Mr. Charles McNaughton has made a big "hit" in The Belle of Mayfair with "Skyland," the pointed and witty verses of which "go" with great éclat. Mr. Harrington is preparing for the Monte Carlo Publishing Company a round dozen of new and original up-to-date topical verses for "Skyland," which will be shortly issued for pantomime.

The Oxford announces for Monday the special engagement of Mr. Arthur Roberts and company in an entirely new and original tabloid comedy, by Harry Pleon, entitled, The Woman Who Was. The cast includes Miss Ruby Celeste as Mme. Eleisé, a costumier; Mr. Chris. Van Bern as Lord Boodle; Miss Flo Darley as Lady Boodle; Miss Jessica Burgwitz as Dina Chetwynd; Miss A. Corday as Lizette Asbestos, a Casino girl; and Mr. Arthur Roberts as Adam Fair, a Don Juan. The scene of the comedy is the Bon Marché, and the time early closing.

"There's a Man in Manitoba," the meteoric march song by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, is creating something of a record. The number of applications received to sing this song is unprecedented, and before many weeks have passed the country will be ringing with this undoubtedly catchy chorus.

The Murphy-Lipton alliance has this week sold to Francis, Day, and Hunter a beautiful little song of the "bogey" order, entitled "It is the Scarecrow," which should rival the same writers' "Run, run, you little ones."

Miss Victoria Monks has in study, and will produce on her return to the Tivoli, a new coon song by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, the writers of her great hits "Ain't I no use, Mr. Jackson?" and "Ain't you gwine ter say 'How do?'"

Mr. Harry Lester, the secretary of the Terriers' Association, wishes to state that he has received a cheque for £2 10s. as a grant to the widow and children of the late J. Dee Humphreys, from the secretary of the Masonic Lodge, No. 102, Glasgow, with which he was formerly connected. This amount has been handed over to the widow.

Cinquevalli, the unrivalled and inimitable, has been secured for a number of weeks to appear in New York and other cities of the United States. Then the famous juggler will go to the Winter Gardens, Berlin, for one month, finally returning to London to fulfil a two years' engagement at the syndicate halls, opening at the Tivoli, Oxford, and other halls of the Payne Circuit. The art of Paul Cinquevalli is cosmopolitan in its aspects, and appeals with equal force to peer or peasant.

Mr. Harry Leamar has been successful in booking the leading feature at the Crystal Palace on Mirror Day (to-day), namely, Don Pedro, a high-wire artist of exceptional ability, who has never before been seen in this country. We may also add that Mr. Leamar has engaged W. H. Chappell, the late secretary to Mr. J. C. Coe, proprietor of the Hammersmith Palace, who will join his staff on Monday.

Mr. Fitzroy Gardner, the late acting-manager of the Palace Theatre, was the recipient on the evening of the 14th inst. of several gifts testifying to the high regard in which he was held by the staff. In the absence of the managing-director, Mr. Alfred Butt, who was called away on urgent business, Mr. T. Miller, the treasurer, asked Mr. Gardner to accept a handsomely-fitted dressing-bag, and also a writing-case. In making the presentation, Mr. Miller said, "The staff were unanimous in their desire to pay a tribute to one whom they held in the greatest regard and esteem, and they hoped that Mr. Gardner would live many years to add to his managerial successes. Mr. Herman Finck, the conductor, added a few words of goodwill and fellowship. In acknowledging the presentation, Mr. Gardner said he always regarded the staff of the Palace as a kind of happy family—a family that was founded by the late Mr. Charles Morton, whose example he had always endeavoured to follow. The gifts would remain in his possession for all time, and would remind him—though it was hardly necessary—of their kindness and consideration.

Don Juan Caicedo's engagement at the Hippodrome, Huddersfield, this week, has been a most gratifying success. The artist's prestige as the "King of the wire" had preceded him, and his fine act has evoked the heartiest enthusiasm of crowded houses during the week.

The absence of Little Tich, through a severe cold, has let in Mr. Dan Thomas at the Metropolitan, where audiences have taken very kindly to the deputy. Mr. Thomas, it will be remembered, made a decided hit in the halls last Christmas as the Widow Twankey in the miniature pantomime Aladdin.

Mlle. Audre Corday, who was specially engaged by Mr. Arthur Roberts to create a French part in his new sketch, The Woman Who Was, made a big success at the Hippodrome, Brighton, on Monday, September 17.

Rosherville Gardens was en fête on Wednesday night, the occasion being the third anniversary and the benefit of the popular Mr. A. E. Radcliffe, the lessee and manager. Soon after dusk, in spite of threatening weather, the gardens were thronged with visitors. The illuminations were much admired, and everything had been done by the indefatigable manager to make the evening the success it turned out to be. Mr. George Manning, the well-known agent, was kept busy in putting on the numerous turns that so kindly obliged. From London came Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Flo Raynor, Messrs. J. Prior, Little Zola, and Frank Carson. The Zaro Troupe came to render homage to the management under which they had made successful appearances this season. Over twenty other turns appeared. At the close of the proceedings Mr. Radcliffe was presented with a diamond pin from his staff. The gardens are now closed for the season.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

On the boards of the Palace Theatre have been seen many of the leading favourites of the theatres; but no début on the lesser stage has excited greater interest among both theatre-goers and variety-lovers than that of Miss Marie Tempest, who made her bow on Monday to one of the most brilliant audiences ever assembled in the beautiful house. Since she has left the realms of musical comedy and found her public as a comedienne, it is but seldom that she has been heard as a singer on the theatre boards, the last time she sang a song in public being at the Duke of York's during the recent revival of The Marriage of Kitty. On making her appearance she was welcomed with considerable warmth. That Miss Tempest was nervous was at once discovered by her rendering of the opening phrases of "Forethought," in which she was accompanied by the composer, Mr. Frank Lambert, but she warmed to her work in the charming melody of "Speak but one word," one of the same composer's most graceful numbers, to which an organ obbligato—which, by the way, was beautifully played on Monday—has been written. Miss Tempest sang with great purity of tone and with much feeling. In a lighter vein was "Les Filles de Cadix," by Léo Délibes, composer of the ballet Coppelia, now being played at the Empire. The aria, so full of gaiety, is a happy inspiration on the part of the composer, and the singer infused the lightsome spirit of mirth into her rendering, the difficulties of roulade and trill being overcome with consummate ease. The orchestral accompaniment requires the daintiest handling, and Mr. Herman Finck's fine orchestra under his clever direction played con amore. The insistent demands for an encore impelled the singer to add to the length of her turn by a beautiful rendering of Zeller's song, "The Nightingale." Her success was great, and if her advent to the variety stage results in a higher standard of ballad-singing, much impetus will be give to the upward march of the halls towards musical excellence. That it is still necessary to clown while playing the fiddle is discovered during the stay of the Dumonds, a trio of artistic performers, whose music as menestrels de la rue affords unfeigned satisfaction. Among them is a violinist of surpassing merit—a virtuoso such as one might expect to hear at a Queen's Hall concert; but he evidently considers it a sine qud non of his performance that he should wear a battered hat and other habiliments that suggest the tramp musician.

A decidedly clever combination of attractive womanhood is found in the Schutzenlieslu Quartet, four German girls, whose sweet voices blend in an artistic rendering of the melody "Violets." Le Domino Rouge—whose personality we may say, en passant, is well known to the cognoscenti in variety circles—continues her sensational turn of toe-dancing before mirrors, the presentation of her act with its wonderful lighting being a masterpiece in modern stage effect. The mysterious masked and supple-figured terpsichoréenne dances her final number to the tune of "Maxixe," imported from Paris, which is of the very essence of Gallic gaiety.

The fun of the bill is largely contributed to by John E. Coyle, a comedian of much quaintness, who has recently been winning success on the Rand. Carlton, the manipulator of cards, also has a fund of droll patter while performing many deft tricks. Perhaps the funniest interlude in the programme is the skit The Would-be Actors, in which it is real fun to hear Mr. Carter Livesey give instructions to two stage aspirants in a dialect of broad Yorkshire. Miss Lilian Rosebery, as the distressed heroine, whose offspring is represented by a sofa cushion, adds greatly to the mirth evoked by this amusing interlude, and Mr. Albert Mason may also be complimented on his share in the success. Clarice Mayne, comedienne, rises from the ruck of imitators by singing original songs in the differing styles of the leading lady variety stars, and her realisations of such favourites as Marie Lloyd and Vesta Victoria are readily recognised. Miss Mayne's songs are accompanied by Mr. J. W. Tate, their composer, who does his work exceedingly well. The Palace Girls, as alert, as jolly, as pretty, and as well dressed as ever, dance and manœuvre in the true Tilleresque fashion; the Darras Brothers are a pair of fine acrobats; and other turns named on the programme are Dennis Drew, vocalist; Fred Dunstone, with parodies and patter; and Miss May Gurney, vocalist. The Bioscope presents a series of fine films of the recent International Boat Race between Harvard and Cambridge, and a pretty little photographic story of animal sagacity is told in "Black Beauty."

THE METROPOLITAN.

Of a joyous nature is the programme presented at this popular house by Mr. Jack Edgar, who, like other managers of the town, is feeling the benefit in his receipts of the autumnal weather, and rejoices in the view of serried ranks of supporters from the stalls to the topmost gallery. It is curious to watch the attitude of the house towards Miss Ada Reeve. Her delightful little idyl, "June," has a poetic flavour that might be thought a little beyond the comprehension of the "gods," but it becomes quite apparent to the observer that "Bill" and "'Arriet" aloft can appreciate a bit of sentiment quite as well as Algernon and Maude in the stalls. It is, however, in the humorous verses which dwell on the indefinite extension of woman's sphere that the accomplished comedienne meets with her greatest success, and she gives encore after encore until she has no more verses to sing. The proper sphere for the weaker sex is a subject capitally illustrated in Miss Kittie Rayburn's song "Woman's Rights." Here is no suffragette, armed with a mission and an umbrella; no seeker after notoriety in the Police Court; no screeching petticoated orator in the parks, ridiculed by contemptuous crowds, but just a woman with the truest sense of her proper place in the world. She requires no vote in Parliament, but as queen of the home—woman's kingdom—she is content. Though there is a touch of sentiment—quite of the healthiest kind—underlying the verses, Miss Rayburn treats the song in the lighter vein, and its swinging chorus, in march-time, is eagerly caught up in every part of the house, the singer being several times recalled at its conclusion. "Oh, you superior men!" is another successful item in the budget of Miss Rayburn, who looks chic and fascinating in a very pretty costume, with hat to match. Miss Dolly Harmer, who disguises herself as an elderly suffragette, appeals, as Mrs. Scroggins, a champion of female franchise. For half-hearted measures Mrs. S. does not feel the slightest sympathy; why should not they wear the trousers? Why not, indeed! Many a philosopher asserts that many of them do without the law's sanction. In a second essay, Miss Harmer displays a bright versatility and a sense of character in her clever imitations of the various contributors to the music-hall entertainment—the comedian, the coon singer, &c.—and is loudly applauded.

A novelty in the programme is Dan, the Outlaw, presented by Mr. Herbert Shelley, who has in this his latest production struck out a new line for himself. Dan has been accused of the murder of Lord Kinsale, and circumstantial evidence being strong against him, he leaves old Ireland, and takes service under Lord Cornwallis, the generalissimo of King George III.'s troops, who are endeavouring to quash the rebellion which eventually resulted in the establishment of the American Republic. Dan, having distinguished himself at the battle of Lexington, returns to Erin's Isle, and finds in the old post-office, Rathmines, in the county of Dublin, the fully drawn-out confession of the murder of Lord Kinsale, signed by Wolfe Marco, the crafty and villainous old postmaster. The dénouement may easily be guessed, and virtue's triumph is aided by the suicide of the real culprit. Mr. Herbert Shelley adopts subtle disguisings, and plays very effectively the characters of the old postmaster, the redcoat who hunts down political and other suspects, and the title-rôle. It is in the last-mentioned part that he gets his best effects, scoring most unmistakably in an emigrant song, which breathes forth in its verses the true Hibernian patriotism. The story is effectively told, and the dramatic climax well led up to. Dan, the Outlaw, indeed, should find popularity everywhere.

Early in the evening Mr. Charles F. Best appears as "MacBunker, the Mountebank," a fellow of infinite jest, with a nice derangement, too, of acrobatic and bending tricks that prove him to be not only a fun-maker, but a smart and accomplished acrobat. MacBunker performs in front of a show caravan very similar to those seen during the festive season at the Agricultural Hall. There are, it is true, little touches of burlesque in the paintings and legends displayed on the front, and the property bulldog and lay figure of a countryman are important aids to Mr. Best in his successful and mirthful incident. We anticipate a very prosperous career for MacBunker, whose wild extravagance just touches the right note. Mr. G. W. Hunter, a quaint raconteur, has a capital song on the Press. Mr. Dan Thomas, who entertained on the night of our visit, is not in the regular programme, but scored most unmistakably in a female impersonation. Miss Lilian Elfreda, who mimics Marie Lloyd, Kate Carney, and Gus Elen, also introduces successfully a reminiscence of Miss Bessie Wentworth, in the form of one of that lamented artist's coon ditties. Jimson's novelty sketch, The Burglar's Surprise, is illustrated with some low comedy, and the interest of it is further enhanced by the introduction of a trained St. Bernard, who nobbles the cracksman at the conclusion of the trifle. Other turns on the bill are Miss Eva Kelland, the "Australian Girl"; the Cape Girls; the Rinaldo Trio; Miss Gracie Taylor; Mr. Frank Gee; Mr. Billy Williams; and Little Tich.

THE EMPRESS.

The season has set in with the utmost severity at the Empress, and every evening of the week the elegant house has been packed to its fullest extent, standing-room being difficult to obtain. Foremost in the scheme of amusement which Mr. Nelson Francis has framed is the "feu-de-joie," The Duchess of Tooting, which has only recently been introduced to London. The piece has all the best features of musical comedy, sparkling melodies, funny dialogue, and skilful dancing, and the very most is made of their opportunities by the members of the cast, with the result that the audience is kept in the merriest humour. The rôle of the young wife is played with engaging vivacity by Miss Josie Farrington, who sings in cultured style. The real Duchess of Tooting is invested with stately grace by Miss Dora Heritage, and Peter, the page, has an alert and brisk exponent in Miss Rhoda Paul. Fun is created by Mr. Eric Dalvere as the pretended Duchess, whose difficulties in disposing of her dress are the occasion of roars of laughter. Mr. Ernest Spalding is a typical exponent of the self-made millionaire, and a dashing and vigorous performance of his son Charles is given by Mr. Henry Latimer. An agreeable feature of the piece is the pas de quatre danced by a troupe of comely ladies, and the choruses are rendered in a manner that helps valuably towards the success achieved.

A sketch of a no less inspiring character is that of The Sioux, which is notable for the impersonation of an ape given by Mr. Arthur Conquest. Early training and constant practise have combined to make Mr. Conquest's animal impersonations of surpassing excellence, and his performance of the faithful Chadi is perhaps his most finished essay. Every characteristic of the species is copied with unswerving fidelity, and it is little wonder that at the end of the eloquent death-scene the house, which has been moved alternately to laughter and tears, should display its admiration in long-sustained cheers.

An element of novelty is infused into the programme by the illusions of Nero Bianco, which are presented in the shape of a sketch. A mysterious barrel has been found floating in the sea by a fisherman, who also discovers in the interior of a fish a roll of parchment which explains how a beautiful sea-nymph may be produced from the barrel. The idea is soon put into practice. Thin paper is placed over the top and bottom of the empty cask, a strong light reveals a figure moving within the barrel, and presently a prepossessing maiden breaks the paper covering and steps forth. The lady is then placed inside a cabinet built up in full view of the audience, and afterwards raised several feet from the ground. The door of the box is then opened, and the lady is found to have disappeared, only to emerge immediately afterwards from among the audience. The illusions are smartly effected, and leave the audience in a pleasing state of bewilderment.

The bill this week is rich in comedians, among whom Mr. Will Evans makes an early bid for laughter with his amusing skit, The Invasion of 1910. It is one of the most ludicrous sketches the inimitable comedian has ever produced, and the grotesque incidents with which it is crowded keep the audience in a state of continued hilarity. Mr. Edwin Boyde adds to the merriment of the evening by his parody on "The shade of the old apple-tree," the delivery of which causes roars of laughter. A rousing reception awaits Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon. His songs of sentiment go straight to the hearts of the audience, and are rendered with irresistible force by the singer. The refrain of "My baby, tell me true," is a lilting one, and its tunefulness, as well as that of "My Havanah Queen," is made thoroughly manifest by Mr. Elliott, who has to respond to many recalls.

The whimsicalities of Miss Nellie Wallace are effectively employed in the refrain, "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" while "The cottage with the roses round the door" affords a further medium for the drollery of the comedienne, whose performance is accompanied by a constant ripple of laughter. Mr. Walter Stanley relies upon "Wait till I get as old as father" for creating amusement, of which he secures a liberal amount, and the satire of "I'm glad I live in England," which has been replenished with some new verses, is the cause of a similar diversion. A comedy sketch, entitled The Hunt, gives Terry and Bentley an excuse for appearing in the costume of the hunting field, to sing, dance, and deliver amusing patter. The lady exercises a pretty voice in a ballad and displays her skill in some neat steps, while her partner indulges in various difficult contortions. His latest feat is to walk up a rope-ladder minus the rungs, a performance which wins the greatest admiration. Woodhouse and Wells gain the ear of the audience for their droll conversation; Oakley and James supply a tit-bit of everything to the evident delight of the audience; Miss Emma Don and troupe appear in a clever vocal scena; and the programme, to which Miss Lily Lena also contributes acceptably, is concluded by a series of Ruffell's pictures. The orchestra still pursues its melodious way under the skilled direction of Mr. Robert Allington, and the presence of the acting manager, Mr. Francis Winchcombe, ensures perfect order at the front of the house.

MANAGER A. HUBNER sailed on Wednesday per s.s. Majestic for the States, in connection with the visit to America of Amer's Band, which opens at Philadelphia on Oct. 5. This combination of musicians will form a thoroughly representative British military concert band.

MLLE. GHITA CORRI.

Mlle. Ghita Corri, who commences her autumn tour of the halls at the Palace, Glasgow, on Oct. 1, is one of the few ladies in the profession who are equally renowned and successful in grand opera, in oratorio, on the concert platform, and in vaudeville; a truly startling and well-contrasted list.

The daughter of the late Henry Corri—leading baritone at Covent Garden, and for many years baritone of the famous Pyne and Harrison Company—who was deservedly equally famous as a character-actor and as an operatic vocalist, and of Mme. Ida Gilliess Corri, late prima donna of the Paris Opera and of Covent Garden, she was trained by her parents from her earliest childhood for the operatic stage; and when, in April, 1899, she joined the Royal Carl Rosa Company in London as prima donna, she had already a répertoire of thirty-five operas (in Italian, French, German, and English) and of over 100 of the principal oratorios and cantatas; besides a big concert reputation from her Crystal Palace appearances and provincial tours while yet in her teens with Hallé, Joachim, Foli, Holliman, Janotha, &c.

She has the rare distinction of having been accompanied by Paderewski in "Let the Bright Seraphim" at the Crystal Palace, and was the first person in any country to give with her own opera company full performances of grand opera al fresco—at the Alexandra Palace, under Mr. John Henderson's management, four years ago.

In Coronation year the late Charles Morton engaged Mlle. Corri over 300 others to sing her own patriotic song, "Coronation," at the Palace Theatre, as the national feature there; and of late the halls have claimed her almost exclusively. During the past ten months she has fulfilled no fewer than four engagements at the Lyceum, and has appeared at the Adney Payne and Macnaghten halls in London; also on the Barrasford, Macnaghten, and Brill and Graydon tours in the provinces, and in every case her charming quick-change song-scenas with her brilliant vocalisation and delightfully dashing acting, have ranked among the very strongest of the leading managerial attractions. Her voice is that present-day rara avis, a ringing and voluminous dramatic soprano, having the phenomenal range of three octaves and five notes—from the low bass G to

MISS GHITA CORRI AS "SEMIRAMIDE."

E in alt—entirely without a break; and she can sustain, augment, or diminish at will every note in this vast compass; while her vocalisation, trills, and cadenzas are startling in their purity and volume of tone.

Mlle. Corri tells us she believes in a healthy, outdoor life—in rowing, walking, and mountaineering. Her other recreations are etching and composing; and many of her songs have been bought by Francis, Day and Hunter, &c. In private life, she is the wife of Mr. Neville Lynn, the dramatist and founder of Lynn's Acting Edition of plays, whose four-act drama, Geoffrey Stirling, is now enjoying a long and successful provincial tour with Mr. Henry Doughty's fine company.

Asked as to her future plans, Mlle. Corri announced her intention of sticking to the halls. "One has grand audiences there," she says, "and they love good singing and bright and dramatic acting"; and she is at present booking her latest song-scena, "Waiting!" (in which she impersonates an English girl of 1770, and a dashing Spanish cigarette-maker of to-day, in the latter introducing a haunting Spanish melody that has been the rage in Madrid and Cadiz) well ahead, both in London and in the provinces; while Christmas will most probably see her at a well-known theatre as principal boy, a rôle for which her superb figure and abundant dash and high spirits pre-eminently fit her.

In her busy life she has had many funny experiences, and the following may interest our readers as not the least humorous of her encounters with strange beings in Stage-land. Once when travelling with her own opera company abroad, she "struck" a town where the local manager knew less about music and operas than he did of his own theatre. Meeting her at the station, he flourished a Faust play-bill frantically in her face, crying, "Madam, you 'ave broke your contract wid me. I am ruined." "How?" asked the astounded Mlle. Corri. "'Ave you not signed wid me to play all de principal parts yourself, and 'ere, in dis bill you 'ave broke it. It say, 'Faust, Signor Carilio!' and Faust is the principal part, which I 'ave engaged and pay you for to play. Aha! but I vill 'ave 'eavy damages!" It took a long time to convince this musically ignorant manager that a soprano sang Marguerite, which was one of the principal parts of the opera Faust.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your Plymouth notice of the Pier Pavilion, your correspondent gave my name as Harry Payne. It should have been—yours faithfully.—HARVEY RAYNE, "The Comets."

THE latest contributions to the "Fred Locke" Fund, received by Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, are as follow:—G. W. Hunter, £1, and W. Abercrombie (second donation), 2s. 6d.

MR. GUSTAV KERKER, whose Belle of New York music has attained world-wide fame, arrives from America this week, and will conduct the musical satire, Burning to Sing, at its first performance at the Empire on Monday. The principal parts in Burning to Sing will be sustained by Miss Anna Hickisch and Mr. Ottley Cranston.

AT the meeting of the Brighton Town Council on Thursday afternoon it was decided to apply for a provisional order to let the Aquarium on a lease for thirty-three years, and that pending the reply from the Local Government Board the Aquarium should be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. from October 1 at popular prices. It was also decided to keep open the shooting saloons till such time as a tenant could be obtained.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

One of the most novel features in the current programme at the Hackney Empire is the artistic entertainment entitled Beauty in Brass, furnished by the trio known as the Three Olympiers. This purports to be a series of studies from the classics, portraying by means of living beings replicas of some of the great masters' most beautiful bronze sculptural figures. The living statue is familiar enough, but the live bronze figure may be regarded as a distinct artistic novelty. The poses assumed include the Quoit Thrower, Might makes Right, the Quarrelling Brothers, the Wrestlers, the Battle, and a number of classic subjects, concluding with The Kiss of Victory. The posing is very cleverly done, the effect being artistic in the extreme. This classical novelty has been well received by Hackney audiences, who evidently appreciate a turn which would be attractive to the most fastidious art critic.

But while the claims of Art—spelt with a big A—should not go unrecognised in a judiciously-arranged variety programme, it is of much greater importance that the audience should have an excellent excuse for hearty merriment. The Hackney bill is by no means deficient in this important particular, for Thalia has devoted servants in the members of the well-known Albert and Edmunds troupe. They appear in an exceedingly lively piece called Neighbours, consisting of two scenes. The first represents the exterior of a row of villas. Into a vacant house a family have just removed; and all the fun arises from the fact that the next-door neighbours are a very rough lot without the slightest consideration for those who have the misfortune to reside in the adjoining house. The lady head of the family is known in the neighbourhood as "a terror"; of whom her husband—a little man—stands much in awe; and she is, too, the mother of a number of noisy ill-behaved brats, whose arrival home from school is a dreaded event. The second scene discloses the back gardens of the respective houses; and the new arrivals, who have a meek and mild curate as a guest, are aroused to an acute pitch of exasperation by the "goings on" of their terrible neighbours, whose frequent quarrels generally result in violent personal encounters. A climax is reached when a workman, who has been commissioned to carry out some building repairs, arrives, and ascends to the roof by means of a ladder. A flirtation between the workman and the tenant's wife, discovered by means of telltale shadows on the blind, leads to terrifying results, a fight taking place between the jealous husband and the amorous workman. A dummy horse and a property dog are conspicuous objects in the scene, and the former manages to bring destruction upon the wall separating the two gardens. An elopement between a young naval officer and his sweetheart is prevented at the last moment by the collapse of the four-wheeler which has been hired for the occasion, and the curtain falls upon a scene of indescribable disorder and riot. Neighbours is an exhilarating piece of harmless fun, and excellently serves the purposes of the troupe, all the members of which work exceedingly hard in the cause of mirth.

Frank and Jen Latona in their musical act cleverly combine skilful execution with genuine humour. The lady, besides being a brilliant pianist, sings comic songs to her own accompaniment in a manner that proclaims her a real artist. The instrumental duets of the pair are also received with much favour; and deservedly so. Mr. George Brookes is a comedian with a quaint style of his own, and his ditties, "Turn on the water" and "There's another one out of work" are very successful contributions. Another favourite is Mr. Billy Farrell, whose patter makes everybody laugh. The Imperial Russian Troupe, with their distinctive national songs and dances, meet with a very cordial reception. Brett and Orford appear in their well-known sketch, in which the lady impersonates a City man's typewriter; their duet, "Sweethearts just the same," is greatly appreciated. Miss Ray Wallace with her imitations of popular comediennes of both the regular and variety stage, scores just as easily and as surely as ever. The New Macs, with smart patter and a clever dance, win a highly favourable verdict, and Miss Lizzie Daniels, comedienne, and the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers, also secure flattering receptions. Well deserving of mention are the valuable services rendered by Mr. John Christie as acting-manager, Mr. W. E. Higgett as his assistant, and Mr. Walter Johnson as musical director.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

The astute and always courteous manager here, Mr. Kay Draco, appears to possess a veritable Pandora's box; week after week his bill is filled with good things, and "loathed melancholy" has no place within the portals of Richmond's dainty theatre. This week, among the many attractions provided, especial mention may be made of A. E. Uno, a comedian of merit and an excellent dancer to wit; Mr. Fred Nieman causes considerable merriment with his minstrels, and his ventriloquism is of a refined order. The twin Sisters Melba sing delightfully of love and fidelity, and also win approval as neat dancers. The havoc that a parrot can cause in domestic circles is capitally demonstrated in the sketch, entitled Cockie. Mr. Picton Roxburgh as the custodian of a special cat and Miss Fanny Wright as the guardian of the parrot are both highly diverting; of course, the green-eyed monster plays high jinks with husband and wife, but all ends happily, to the intense amusement and satisfaction of everyone.

Mr. F. R. Kinkee's excellent orchestra adds to the enjoyment of the programme, the selection from Faust being admirably rendered. Felino and Grata are at their best in a laughable absurdity, The Stable Boy and His Horse, the equine quadruped proving as intelligent and as amusing as his master. Miss Maud Prenton's contributions are vociferously applauded, her performance being a highly meritorious one. Excellent are Eddie Stidder and Gwennie Dunbar. They prove droll in the extreme, the latter looking quite charming as a Spanish danseuse, while the former's imitations on the piano and 'cello prove a legitimate success; a word of recognition is due to Miss Dunbar's terpsichorean efforts. Quite a clever couple are Stidder and Dunbar. Macdonald's Melody Makers merit their title; their contributions bear the stamp of refinement, while much is highly amusing.

As an "extra turn," Mr. Tom Lytton proved quite an acceptable addition; in his first item, "I didn't know," he detailed the woes of motoring, and followed it up by several good stories, which were much appreciated and applauded. Vernon's Bioscope continues to afford more than ordinary interest, the Harvard v. Cambridge Boat Race evoking hearty applause.

HOUNSLOW HIPPODROME.

With Mr. Lennox Barry at the head of affairs the Hounslow Hippodrome has taken a new lease of popularity, and crowded houses are again the rule. The programme opens with an excellently-performed overture, under the bâton of Mr. Rodin, the capable chef d'orchestre. Miss Beattie Bloom is quite successful with her clever impersonations. She sings first a ditty on "Contentment," and follows it up with an amusing song anent a runaway father. Quite a lot of fun does she get out of it, being heartily applauded. Wisper, a comedy juggler, does some clever hat balancing, and intersperses his tricks with some droll patter that is immensely enjoyed. As he naïvely remarks, he has "a style of his own," and promptly accentuates the fact by bringing on a country property stile, over which he ambles merrily. A popular engagement is that of the well-known Surrey cricketer, Mr. Fred Holland, who, for the nonce, has renounced the willow for the muse, and sings amazingly well. He is heard to much advantage in a nautical ditty breathing of patriotism and other matters dear to English hearts. In his second ditty he recalls the heroes of the fire brigade, and may be hailed as a vocalist of considerable promise. Miss Anderson and her company are a distinct acquisition to the programme. In a coster cake-walk duet with her sweetheart she evinces ability of no mean order; but the fun waxes furious in the Punch and Judy show, in which a member of her company, whose name does not appear on the bill, does some marvellous feats of agility. The Sisters Albert dance well, and win approval, their coon ditty, "In the springtime," being a meritorious effort. The Eight Snowflakes, a bevy of English maidens, give quite a good account of themselves, their singing being above the average. Much the same may be said of their terpsichorean performance. The turn is full of energy and poetry of motion. Jury's Bioscope gives a couple of canine scenes, in both of which the doggies display a unique sense of humour. Mr. Lennox Barry is untiring in his efforts in front of the house, and the entire programme reflects great credit upon him.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

The Casey Circus, which is occupying pride of place in the bill this week, is not, as might be assumed, an animal act. Not a quadruped figures therein, the turn consisting entirely of knockabout burlesque business, and its success is dependent on the very absurdity of the thing. The lively gamins of Casey's Court have helped themselves at Mrs. Casey's theatrical properties emporium, and the curtain rises on a weird collection of animal impersonators and beings who join in a parade and otherwise disport themselves. All next appear as Zouaves in burlesque lightning drill, which is really amusing, and afterwards follow what might be termed the "side shows." Of these, the "Strong Man" exhibition by about the most attenuated specimen of mankind it were possible to obtain is most mirth-provoking. An extravagant skit on Dick Turpin's ride to York concludes the turn, and the performers, who are mostly juveniles, receive plenty of applause.

Ancillotti, with his thought-reading dog Pilu (most laudatorily described on the programme), is not responsible for anything startlingly new, but rather serves up an old trick in fresh form. Numerically arranged figures are attached to a form on the stage, and the dog, directed by his mentor from different parts of the auditorium, turns over those numbers chosen for various purposes by members of the audience, Ancillotti, a volatile Frenchman, adding amusement to the turn by his ejaculations of delight at each successful effort of the animal. Fred Russell appears with the inseparable "Coster Joe," and with a fund of fresh jokes is as popular as ever. Howard and St. Clair are a neat and experienced duo whose contribution to the programme is most enjoyable. The lady's fine vocalism, the dextrous dancing of both, and their merry quips and gags render their occupancy of the stage all too brief.

The more ease with which feats of skill and daring are performed the more simple do they appear to the lay mind, but it is impossible not to appreciate the ability of the Barowsky Trio in their balancing and tumbling act, attractively mounted, and entitled In the Woods, and the showers of applause with which they are greeted are bestowed most deservedly. Geo. Formby, "the comedian from Lancashire," cuts a quaint and amusing figure when he appears to sing "Walker walked away," and is equally successful with his second song, in which he imitates a cornet very cleverly. The Three Amaranths contribute a very adept display of acrobatic dancing, and the energetic efforts of these graceful young ladies are loudly applauded. Little Ganty compels laughter by his grotesque appearance as a dilapidated policeman, and he afterwards gives his familiar coon song burlesque with the happiest results. Madge May wins favour with an acceptable contribution; and the Bioscope pictures are watched with the keenest interest. The current programme commences with Auber's overture "Fra Diavolo," skilfully performed by the orchestra under the able guidance of Mr. Augustus Greco.

Mr. T. S. Mayne, the enterprising acting-manager, leaves nothing undone to conduce to the popularity of the theatre and the comfort of its patrons, and he has a very competent lieutenant in Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.

FUNERAL OF MR. GEORGES JACOBI.

The funeral of Mr. Georges Jacobi, the well-known musical composer and conductor, who died on the 13th ult., at the age of sixty-six, took place on Monday at Highgate (New) Cemetery. The funeral cortège, consisting of an open hearse, three mourning coaches, and several private carriages, started from the late residence of the deceased, 240, Camden-road, at noon. In the first carriage were Mr. Maurice Jacobi, Mr. Henri Jacobi (sons), Miss Jacobi, and Madame Pappa. The second carriage contained Mr. W. Hoare, Mr. Talbot Smart, Mr. Rene Landi, and Mrs. Maydwell. In the third carriage were Mr. Walter Slaughter, Mr. Allen Booth, Mr. Chas. Alias, Signor Carlo Coppi, and Mr. James Mortimer.

On arrival at the cemetery the first part of the funeral service was solemnised in the chapel, and in addition to the chief mourners there were present Mr. Harry Paulton, Mr. George Byng, the leader, and other members of the Alhambra orchestra, Mr. George Scott, manager of the Alhambra, Mr. Ford, stage-manager, and Mr. Woodford, secretary, Mr. Joseph Cave, Mr. E. Donajowski, Mr. J. van Henvel, M. Huguenet, Mr. Ellis Roberts, Mr. J. Reynders, Mr. Roland Carse, Miss Katie Lee, Miss Minnie Thurgate, Mr. C. Blond Powell, Mr. W. Allcroft (Billy), the original call-boy, at Covent Garden Theatre, and others. The coffin, which was covered with floral tokens of esteem and regard, bore a silver plate, on which was inscribed the name of the deceased, and the dates of his birth and death. At the conclusion of the service at the graveside many of the deceased's old friends and associates in the musical world cast a last glance at the coffin and then turned sadly away.

Conspicuous among the floral contributions was one received from the Eccentric Club, of which the deceased was a popular member. Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Wenzel sent a large harp composed of flowers, and a similar token of affection came from the sons and daughters, "In loving remembrance of our dear father," Marguerite, Berthe, Maurice, Henri, Willie, Reni. On another wreath were the words, "In loving remembrance of our dear brother," Julie and Marguerite. Other wreaths were from the Alhambra Co., Ltd. ("With deepest sympathy"), Mr. and Mrs. Walter Slaughter, Mr. Edward German ("With sincere sympathy"), Signor C. Coppi, Mr. and Mrs. Lowenfeld, and E. Cogni, "From Geo. W. Byng and the gentlemen of the Alhambra Orchestra, with deepest sympathy"; the London Hippodrome Orchestra, Mr. Albert Cazabon, Mr. Emile S. Enoch ("From an old friend, with sincere sympathy"), M. and Madame Alias ("With sympathy and condolence), Miss Kate Santley ("With deepest sympathy"), Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Forde, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Finch ("With deepest sympathy"), M. De Jeanne, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parry, Mrs. Payton and family, Mrs. Allen Booth; "With sorrow and deepest sympathy from Will and Alfred," "In loving memory, Francetta and Georges"; also from the grandsons, Jack, Leslie, and Teddie, Mr. E. Donajowski, Mr. G. Pappa, Miss Lily Earle, Mr. Hermann Finck, Mr. Harry Ulph, M. Huguenet, and others.

The funeral arrangements were satisfactorily carried out by Mr. William Beckett, of Highgate Hill.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—A hearty welcome awaited Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree after his two years absence, more especially as he brings one of his latest novelties, Colonel Newcome, in which he so successfully portrays the early Victorian characteristics of Thackeray's novel. Mr. Tree's Colonel Newcome is an artistic and finished study, to the most minute details, and the varying fortunes of that fine old English gentleman were followed with the sympathy and admiration of a large audience. Miss Constance Collier made a pretty and tenderly pathetic Ethel, and shared the honours of the evening. Mr. Charles Quartermaine as Cline was a handsome and manly figure, suitably contrasted with the vain Lord Farintosh of Mr. Sidney Brough, and the scheming Barnes Newcome of Mr. A. E. Benedict. Mr. Edmund Maurice as the brusque Fred Bayham acted well; Mr. G. W. Anson as De Boots gave a spice of comedy to the play; and the Pendennis of Mr. Reginald Owen was also worthy of praise. The various types of femininity were ably represented—the gushing Rosey of Miss Mary Sumner; the designing virago, Mrs. Mackenzie, as played by Miss Annie Schletter; the quaint old nurse by Mrs. E. H. Brooke; the querulous Lady Kew of Miss Muriel Alexander; and the well-played Madame de Florac of Mrs. Percival. The play was staged with that completeness which marks all Mr. Tree's productions. On the later evenings Business is Business was given, followed by The Man Who Was, and by special request the bill has been altered to include Trilby on Saturday night, with Miss Collier in the title-part and Mr. Tree as the weird Svengali.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Forbes Robertson, Miss Gertrude Elliott and company are here, attracting crowded houses nightly. They opened with Hamlet on the first two nights, Mr. Forbes Robertson playing the title-part, in which he gives a vivid delineation of all the varying moods swaying the crime-shocked Prince of Denmark. Miss Gertrude Elliott as Ophelia portrays the grief-stricken maiden with great tenderness and pathos, rendering the incidental snatches of song in a voice of charming sweetness. Mr. Ian Robertson as the King acts the part with kingly dignity, while the Queen finds a strong exponent in Miss Adeline Bourne. The Ghost is played with fitting solemnity by Mr. Percy Rhodes. Mr. Hylton Allen is the Horatio, and Messrs. Charles Vaughan, Halliwell Hobbes, and W. Pilling act respectively the soldiers Marcellus, Bernardo, and Francisco. The part of Laertes is ably interpreted by Mr. Vernon Steel, and Mr. Charles Langley makes a courtly Polonius. Osric is satisfactorily played by Mr. Frank Ridley. Rosencrantz by Mr. J. H. Beaumont, and Guilden stern by Mr. Frank Bickley. The Gravediggers are embodied by Mr. Charles Bibby and Mr. S. T. Pearce, and the Players' parts are all in able hands, Mr. Walter Ringham declaiming well as First Player, Mr. S. Thompson as Second, and Miss Dorothy Paget as Player Queen. Mice and Men was played on two evenings and The Merchant of Venice on Friday.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Belle of Mayfair, the latest musical comedy to come to Glasgow, is here for the first time. Mr. Percy Yorke as the Earl of Mount Highgate acts well and sings his military song with the requisite dash and go. Mr. Vernon Davidson as Raymond makes an able lover; his disguises are good and he sings and dances most acceptably, while he has several fine scenes with Julia (Miss Russon) when both score. Mr. Charles McNaughton as Sir John Chaldicott, Bart., keeps the house in a titter; he is a prime favourite throughout. Mr. Wensley Russell is good as Hugh Meredith, his fine baritone singing being admired. Mr. Trueman Travers makes a dignified Bishop. Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., a versatile Count Perrier. Mr. Arthur W. Metcalfe is excellent in the light rôle of Captain Theobald, and Mr. R. Calvert Haws as Bramley makes a success in an interesting part; and in lesser characters Messrs. G. F. Ide and C. Clayton are reliable. Miss Alice Russon as Julia is charming, well deserving her many recalls. That sweet singer and accomplished Scottish artiste, Miss Joan Keddie, as the Princess, has made a big hit. Miss Maud Aston, as Pincott, is another clever performer. She is a dainty dancer and sings well. The Countess (Miss Rosa Snell), Lady Chaldicott (Miss Barbara Huntley), Lady Rooksley (Miss Blanche Massey), and Lady Glossop (Miss Dorothy Hanburg) have each credit for delightful work, and the other ladies in the long cast and the chorus give much satisfaction.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—A highly successful production of Rob Roy entered upon its last week on Monday. Mr. E. C. Hedmondt makes an ideal Francis Osbaldistone and renders his numbers in a highly artistic manner. Mr. W. Geo. Robb gives a fine portrayal of Bailie Nicol Jarvie. Mr. Nelson Ramsay as Rob Roy is another performance of high merit. Madame Alice Esty makes a charming Diana, and her excellent singing receives great applause. The choruses are rendered in a very efficient manner, and the mounting of the production is in every way satisfactory.

Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdock.—The Beast and the Beauty is this week ably interpreted by Mr. Fredk. Melville's company. The drama is powerfully written and abounds in scenes of a sensational character. Mr. Milton Rosmer is worthy of praise for fine acting in the rôle of Jack Barrymore. Miss Alice Bowes as Violet plays with much feeling. The portrayal of the Earl of Loman by Mr. William E. Passmore is a good performance. Mr. Bernard Mervyn depicts cleverly the evil nature of Henry Denver, and Miss Daisy Gwynne impersonates Delilah in excellent style. Tom Chicken is well played by Mr. H. Talbot, as is also Dick Soames by Mr. Harry Wimpenny. Miss Mamie Rendle gives a smart impersonation of Mimi, and Ned Samson has a clever exponent in Mr. Eric Campbell.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, well known to Glasgow audiences, is this week excellently portrayed by a company under the direction of Mr. John A. Atkin. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as George Madison, the hero of the piece, carries the audience with him from the rise to the fall of the curtain. As Lucy, the heroine, Miss Nellie Bonser, succeeds in evoking the entire sympathy of those present. The unpopular part of Chas. Severeux is in the able hands of Mr. Louis Hector, whose every appearance is greeted with boisterous complimentary hisses. As Timothy Tuttut and Patty Lovejoy Mr. Fred De Vere and Miss Denny Fitzherbert appear with great success, and to them is due the merriment of the evening. Miss Octavia Noel admirably sustains the part of Lady Lucretia Lancaster, while Mr. Kenneth Black and Miss Barbara Gatt as Sir Geo. Lancaster and the Mother Superior respectively embody their characters in a manner that proclaims them artistes above the average. The intervals are cheerily occupied by selections on the Edison Bell Phonograph.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—That popular young Irish comedian, Mr. Chalmers Mackey, is again here with his able company, and giving The Wearin' o' the Green, The Colleen Bawn, and the well-known lively farce His Last Legs. On Monday, in the first-named play, Mr. Mackey had a good reception, and played Barney O'Hea in his best style. He receives excellent support from Mr. Charles Homer, Mr. St. John Stuart, Mr. H. Sainsbury, Mr. Haughton Macaulay, and Mr. David McFarlane; while the ladies' parts are well played by Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Norah, Miss Nana Flensberg as the lively Biddy McGinn, and Miss Adele Liddon as Mrs. McDermott.

New Gaiety.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—This popular theatre was well filled at both performances to witness the New Gaiety dramatic company (under the personal direction of M. Montgomery) in the domestic comedy drama, entitled What Women Suffer. The principal characters are in able hands, special mention being due to Mr. Alfred D. Adams in the dual rôle of Wilfred Coventry and John Coventry; also Miss Laurie A. Pardy as Edith Coventry. Mr. Horace Booth as Herbert Standish acts the villian's part successfully; and Mr. H. Hesslegrave as John Meredith plays with feeling. The piece is well staged.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—The novel illusion, Buddha's Blackboard, is the principal item here, and the mystic answers produced thereon are truly inexplicable. Those rich humorists, Ted and May Hopkins, give their clever turn, which is fresh and most enjoyable. Chas. Leonard Hatcher appears in the monologue, At the Telephone, which is thrilling in its suggestive realism. Frank Danby and his smart company cause lots of fun with the musical playlet, The Chauffeur. Merotti's daring turn on the running wire is a big attraction, and this artiste has introduced several new feats. Mezetti and Mora, bar performers; Flo D'Orville, comedienne; Frank Hartley, boy juggler; Hans and Lux, knockabouts; and the Bioscope complete a varied bill.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Kauffman Troupe of Lady Cyclists are the star turn in a programme full of good things. The Eight Sunrays dance pleasingly. James Stewart, "the tramp at the piano," is once again in favour, and Madge Osmond is on the right lines as a male impersonator, her dancing pleasing greatly. In J. C. Kurry we have a quaint performer, and he shares the applause with another turn of a like nature, that of a Harry Marte, whose return is a welcome one here. Berner's Fantoches is a clever exhibition of the marionette order. The Frantz Family, in Happy School Times, combine singing, dancing, and acrobatism in a way that earns them deserved applause, while in The Lie Alarm the Smythson's comedy company win appreciation. The orchestral selections and the bioscope pictures deserve recognition.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd. — The all-absorbing vaudeville stage this week claims Fred Wright, jun., who is starring here, and delighting the audiences with some of the songs associated with his musical comedy successes. Then Austin Rudd comes provided with lots of songs, and the fun of his "Old Apple Tree" parody is most hilarious. Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the factory girls, give a good singing turn; Will Godwin again catches the fancy of the crowd with his tuneful songs; Stewart and Morgan in their scena, Leaving Ireland, do well; Marie San Toi, Japanese tea garden sketch, is another strong item; and Otto and Olga, in their mock operatic business have made a striking success. Henri Bekker's conjuring is neat and clever; the Five Olracs are smart acrobats; Pauline Zaro dances smartly; and the Cotton Blossom Quartette sing their harmonised choruses with fine effect.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The programme provided here this week includes Harry Champion, comedian, who tops the bill; Grant and Grant, American octoroons, are also accorded a hearty reception, their singing and dancing being thoroughly enjoyed. Other notable artists are Lee and Arden, in a comedy duologue; Chas. Somers, comedian; the Donatos, one-legged acrobats; Mollie Doon, comedienne and dancer; George Young, blind musician; the Narow Bros., comedy cyclists; Edgar Budden, bone soloist and skate dancer; Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers; and the Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A varied and interesting programme is submitted here this week. Morris Cronin and troupe, jugglers, are the principal attraction. Another interesting turn is that of Rose Naynon and her marvellous troupe of trained tropical birds. Other notable turns include Whimsical Walker, in a new sketch; Nettie Starr, comedienne; Francis Wylie's Dog Circus; José Collins, comedienne and vocalist; the Monte Myro Acrobatic Troupe; the Stella Troupe of singers and dancers; Happy Tom Parker, comedian; and the Bioscope, with a splendid set of pictures.

Queen's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—This week Miss Anna Kenwick, American comedienne and dancer, tops the bill, and has had a flattering reception. A quaint turn is submitted by Smiler Lee, his songs, patter, and stories keeping the audience in roars of laughter; while the efforts of J. W. Barker, society entertainer, are quite successful. Ernest Rees, the "droll" comedian, is decidedly amusing; and Marie de Paso gives a clever exposition of clay modelling. The bill also includes Ada Kingsley, comedienne; Zavan, the man on the lamp-post; Bishop and Hanlon, comedy artists; and the Queen's Bioscope, with new films.

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—On Monday this theatre was thronged by an enthusiastic audience who accorded a most hearty reception to The Walls of Jericho, in which Mr. and Mrs Arthur Bourchier appeared. It was generally agreed that Mr. Bourchier's Jack Frobisher was one of the finest things he has done of recent years. Miss Vanbrugh's talents, as Lady Alethea, were likewise seen in all their greatness. The thoughtless mother's gradual awakening to a sense of duty was shown with that delicacy and skill which stamps the true actress. Among the principals in the Garrick company who afforded strong support were Mr. Arthur Whitby, whose Steventon was an admirable sketch of an impecunious, self-seeking marquis; Mr. Charles Goodhart, the vigorous, unpolished Australian Bannister; Mr. H. Nye Chart, an excellent intriguing Dallas; Mr. Douglas Imbert, who made the most of Lord Drayton; Miss Nora Greenlaw, a tactful and pleasant Lady Westerby; and Miss Pamela Gaythorne, who proved a pretty and vivacious Lady Lucy.

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mr. George Dance's premier company has presented the brilliant musical play, The Duchess of Dantzic, at this popular house this week. Miss Kitty Gordon in the title-rôle showed conspicuous ability; Mr. Frederick Moyes was the Napoleon, a well-drawn character which afforded evidence of that actor's high abilities; Mr. H. C. Barry, well known and popular in Liverpool, created great laughter with his extremely humorous Papillon; Miss Josephine McCarthy and Miss Doris Grenville did excellently as the Emperor's sisters; Miss Lily Edmunds made a charming Lisette; the part of Renee was well presented by Miss Lilian Best; Mr. Albert Chapman as Francois acquitted himself creditably; and Mr. T. C. Maxwell earned loud applause for his singing as Adhémar.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—For the first time in this city Hardie and Von Leer's London company produced here on Monday For Life and After, from the pen of George R. Sims. The work proved exceedingly popular, and good business has been done. Miss Grace Heywood played with much dramatic effect as Marion Grey; the rôle of the husband was well-placed with Mr. Vernon Sansbury; Miss Muriel Dean made a sympathetic Dora; Mr. Chris. Mason as Joe Grimper and Miss Edith Barwell in the character of Mrs. Grimper aroused endless laughter; Mr. Henry Hare worked hard and successfully in the parts of Jack and Jim Huggett; Mr. Sidney Vautier gave satisfaction as Gilbert O'Neil; Mr. Charles Osborne was an efficient Rube Hexham; and Miss Marion Fawcett did credit to the part of Jenny Huggett.

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr Harris Fineberg.—The popular Still Alarm is here this week with Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company. The important rôle of Jack Manley was admirably filled by Mr. Glenville; Miss Hetty Zillwood made herself popular as Carie Wilber, her songs and dances being appreciated; Mr. Fred Osmond was exceedingly funny as Doc Wilber; Mr. George Arthur afforded the utmost satisfaction as John Bird; Miss Maud Warburton played sweetly as Elinor Fordham; Miss Mabel Veriton was well-placed as Mrs. Manley; and praise is due to Mr. Lewis Gordon for his Franklyn Fordham.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The Trumpet Call, from the pens of Sims and Buchanan, has proved a strong attraction here this week, an efficient company, under the direction of Mr. Charles F. Cooke, presenting it. Mr. Leonard Yorke most ably filled the part of Cuthberth Cuthbertson; the rôle of Sergeant-Major Milligan was done full justice to by Mr. W. G. Blunt, who undertook it at a moment's notice through the sudden illness of Mr. Charles F. Cooke; Mr. Joe Bracewell was very humorous as Professor Ginnifer; Mr. Freddie Bentley proved a sprightly Tommy Dutton; Mr. J. B. Glover afforded evidence of high talents as Captain Sparks; Mr. Alec Murray made an excellent doss-house keeper; Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill earned the sympathy of her audience for a fine representation of Constance; Miss Doris Gilliam undertook with the utmost credit the difficult and trying rôle of Astrea; and Miss Phyllis B. French was a sweet Lavinia. The drama was presented in excellent style.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Top of the bill here this week is Corri and Dereve's musical sketch Office Hours, which has been greatly enjoyed. The sensational act, Indians of the Past, provided by the Deer company of North American Indians, was an excellent item. Harry Edson made his well-trained dogs go through a remarkable performance; the Lavalis, as gymnasts, executed clever tricks on the break-away ladder and silver chains; some picturesque posing was provided by Mlle. Kloet; Farley, Rennie, and Farley caused much merriment with their comedy act Fun at a Railway Station; Lily Sharplin gave a clever exhibition of mimicry; as dancers and duettists the Sisters St. Julien proved most acceptable; and also in the bill were the Pargon trio of speciality vocalists; and Ted Cowan, comedian. Phil Ray was unable to appear through illness, but Ike Scott and Son proved an excellent substitute.

New Parthenon. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Principal at this popular little house this week is Eno, whose impersonations of well-known stars are both clever and funny. York, Mac, and York have a laughable comedy boxing act, entitled Widow Mac's Troubles; G. B. Geoghan and Connie Downs remain another week with their attractive illustrated songs; James Toner, the singing newspaper boy, has several popular numbers; and among others who appear are Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer; and Harry West, actor vocalist.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—A Gipsy's Revenge, from the pen of Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, is the dramatic sketch presented here this week by the "Royal" stock company. Mr. Percy Boucher proves a humorous Larry Murphy; Mr. Harry Tresham held the part of Harold Raymond with credit; the heavy rôle of George Oakley is capitally played by Mr. Sydney Grant; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood makes a striking Walter Hastings; the gipsy, Charzel, is ably presented by Miss Beryl Ravenswood; Miss Florence Palmer acts gracefully as Minnie Hastings, and strong support comes from Mr. E. D. Allen (Theophilus Hope), Mr. R. Wilton (Billy Smart), and Mr. Leo Montgomery (Joe).

Park Palace, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost here this week are the Bros. Ashley with a very funny comedy boxing sketch, Next Please, in which they are assisted by Messrs. W. Barnes and Frank Yapp; Squire Wyndham and Tom Waters submit an amusing vocal sketch The Professor and His Pupil; H. O. Wills is particularly funny; Gena Manon sings nicely; the Bohemians are both clever and humorous as musical specialists; and Tod Lowen raises many a laugh with his quaint sayings.

CHAT WITH MDLLE. GENÉE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Mlle. Adeline Genée, who has occupied the position of première danseuse at the Empire Theatre for nearly nine years, will sever her connection with that establishment at the end of next year. "I was originally engaged," she tells us, "for six weeks only to dance in the Jewel Scene in Monte Cristo, and when I leave I shall be able to claim ten years' service, so you see how my six weeks have panned out."

"But you won't retire just yet?" And the idea of so young an artist relinquishing her work caused Miss Genée to indulge in a merry little laugh.

"Indeed, no; and I may come back to the Empire. I am very anxious to go to America, and that is what I hope to do after we have said good-bye to 1907. I think that the Americans appreciate the best style of dancing."

"How is it we can't turn out first-rate dancers in this country, Miss Genée?"

"Because dancing is not properly taught in England, and, as a matter of fact, your country-people do not regard dancing as a serious study. In Denmark, my native land, there are schools set apart specially for dancing. Children are taught how to comport themselves, how to move about in a graceful, easy, and natural manner, and at the same time their musical education is not neglected. There are schools for dancing in all the national theatres, and a similar system exists in Berlin and Munich."

"As we have no State-aided theatres in this country, Miss Genée, do you suggest that schools for dancing might be maintained at such establishments as the Empire and the Alhambra?"

"I certainly think that the ballet-master in a theatre ought to keep up the classes for the corps de ballet, which in London are not trained as they should be. Every member of the ballet should be compelled to attend the lessons, and an adequately remunerated teacher should be employed to give strict attention to the rehearsing of the ballet as well as to the training. You see, the public don't want to watch mere automatic movements. There should be expression in the face of the dancer as well as in her motions.

"Naturally"—this in reply to another question—"I prefer the old orthodox dancing in ballet skirts. I like a dance which tells a story, and in that connection I might say that the pantomimic acting should be made quite as much a feature of as the actual dancing. We get this in Coppélia, which, both from a point of view of dancing and dumb show, is the best ballet I have seen at the Empire. I had a very high opinion, too, of Round the Town and Les Papillons, which were entirely of the ballet order, and did not contain character dances. I am exceedingly fond of a good descriptive dance, such as I got in the riding scene in High Jinks."

"Dancing," says Mlle. Genée, "is not treated nowadays as it ought to be. There seems to be a general impression that the higher a girl can kick the better dancer she is. The lifting of the leg into a line parallel with the body, or indulgence in what is vulgarly known as the splits, are merely acrobatic performances. To call this dancing is to libel a fascinating and beautiful art. To become a successful public dancer, a girl must, in the first place, be constitutionally strong. She must bear in mind that the profession is an exacting one, and demands all the energy that can be put into it. The beginner should satisfy herself that her lungs are sound, otherwise she had better try something else. Girls take naturally to dancing, and they ought to be encouraged to perfect themselves in the art. They should begin practising at eight years of age. There is no royal road to success—the only key is hard work and systematic training under a good master."

In private life the première danseuse of the Empire is a very different person from the bright and sprightly and vivacious young lady Londoners have so often admired engaging in a merry whirl before the footlights. You might pass her in the street without stopping to give a second glance at her, provided you were not personally acquainted with Mlle. Genée. She dresses in a quiet, ladylike fashion. She never occasions a grin from the vulgar rabble by reason of a picture-hat of Brobdingnagian proportions, nor could anyone hope to recognise her by looking for an array of appalling lengths of lace and ribbon and frills. Alert and businesslike, decisive of movement and speech, one feels that the lady has a mind of her own, and in business or other matters would scarcely allow herself to be trifled with. Her straightforwardness of manner and her total lack of sentimental effusiveness must commend her to anybody who enjoys the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Mlle. Genée tells us that she has danced since early childhood. She performed first of all in her uncle's own theatres, making her début at the Tivoli in Christiania.

Mr. Henri Gros, on seeing Miss Constance Moxon's monologue, A Toff for Ten Minutes, at the Chelsea Palace, has re-booked it for the Metropolitan, where she will appear on Oct. 1.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Top here are Cline and Clark, a popular vocal couple, and speciality dancers; endless laughter follows the antics of Fred Cullane's comedy entertainers in The Ladies' School; some creditable work on the trapeze is performed by Ariel and Astarte; for a boy, Marco accomplishes some smart conjuring; the songs of Louis Murray prove acceptable; T. C. Jaques has several humorous songs; and Little Violet acquits herself creditably as a vocalist.

Olympia, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The patrons of this fine place cannot complain of the excellence of the fare offered this week. At the top is the renowned Harry Tate, whose Fishing episode, it is needless to say, created great mirth; Hetty King, also in big type, had a most hearty reception for her popular songs; Barnard's Mannikins caused laughter with their droll sketch The Coon's Revelry; Eadie and Ramsden did admirably as comedy artistes; Josh Dixon earned much applause for his funny ditties and patter; the comedy hypnotism, provided by Professor Therese, was very diverting; and the list also contained the names of Fred Lincoln, comedian; and Rezene and Robins, "Two love birds on a perch."

Roscommon.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Success continues to follow this recently-opened house, due to the popular programmes that are offered. This week the Jackley Wonders are foremost, their acrobatic work on the table being neat and smart; Hill, Lane, and company have a taking comedy and musical act; G. W. Foster furnishes several humorous pieces; as speciality artistes Johnson and Hare acquit themselves; Rose Waller is a comedienne with good points; and Boden and Bell remain another week, pleasing everyone with their coon songs and dancing.

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" stock dramatic company here are presenting The Sins of the Fathers, from the pen of W. J. Mackay. Among the cast are Messrs. Walter Foster, Albert Sember, Frank S. Strickland, H. G. Brandon, Vincent A. Briscoe, and F. E. Wybert, Misses Evelyn Kingston, Florence Barnes, Lena Pierpoint, and Lilian Burns.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and P. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—An all-round good array of talent is billed here this week, with the King's College Boys holding premier position. Their solos and choruses are loudly applauded. An artistic and clever acrobatic performance is that of the Five Whiteleys; Julian Mack is a clever comedian, his patter being decidedly original; Happy Attwood's appearance is sufficient to put the house in roars of laughter; and Ike Scott and Son are clever dancers, and their sketch is very laughable. Rosie Archer is good at mimicry; Frank A. Wood renders his numbers in an artistic manner; Mlle. La Tosca is clever as a statuesque artiste; and the Five Casino Girls are applauded.

"SPLENDID SILENCE."

A New Dramatic Sketch, in One Scene, by Robert Overton, produced at the Middlesex Music Hall, On Monday, Sept. 17.

Oliver North ..... Mr. Charles Freeman
Father North ..... Mr. John W. Mason
Field-Cornet ..... Mr. C. Lodge-Percy
Van Stoop ..... Mr. Edwin J. Arthurs
Hans Yessen ..... Mr. Ernest Tiffen
Daisy North ..... Miss Florence Tench

Splendid Silence may be recommended as a very good example of the kind of dramatic sketch which is specially suited for representation on the variety stage. Short, crisp, impressive, with not a line of superfluous dialogue, the new production held the attention of the audience from the start; and the experienced author, Mr. Robert Overton, has been wise enough to provide a happy ending. The Boer War occupies an important page in English history, and the strong feeling which the long struggle excited in the public mind should still be strong enough to render the new sketch specially interesting.

The scene is an isolated station in Cape Colony during the late war. From the telegraph wires a Field-Cornet of the Boer forces has managed to take down a message, which he is convinced would give important information respecting the position of the enemy, but as it is in cipher he and his comrades are unable to make out its purport. In charge of this lonely station on the veldt are an Englishman named Oliver North and his wife, with whom reside North's aged father and mother. The old couple had only recently left England to join their son, who was doing well in South Africa, and had invited them to share in his prosperity. The Field-Cornet, a rough, stern Boer, cherishing a fierce hatred for the English, has Oliver North arrested and brought before him. He demands that the Englishman shall reveal the secret code, but is met by a point-blank refusal. To comply with the Boer's request would be to betray his fellow-countrymen into the relentless hands of the enemy. The Boer leader threatens North that if he persists in his obstinate refusal the consequences will be death to his father. The old man, who suddenly appears, intimates that he is prepared to die, and implores his son to preserve the secret of the cipher at all costs. The plucky old Englishman is then marched off, and a volley is heard, the Boer leader testifying that the execution has taken place. The next victim is Oliver's mother; and then appears his wife, Daisy, who cuts the ropes by which her husband is bound to a post. Escape, however, is impossible, and the Boer makes another appeal to North, but his wife interceding, expresses her willingness to give up her life rather than her husband should betray his trust. And then, when this dramatic climax is reached, the Boer makes the startling announcement that Oliver's father and mother are alive and well, this fact being attested by their appearance. The Boer had not the heart to carry out his threat; the shooting party used only blank cartridges; and his admiration for the Englishman's devotion to his country and high sense of honour prompts him to shake hands with the brave Britisher.

Mr. Charles Freeman displayed a true manly spirit and steadfast determination as the telegraphist, Oliver North. Mr. C. Lodge-Percy was appropriately bold, emphatic, and incisive as the Boer leader, and was ably supported by Mr. Edwin J. Arthurs and Mr. Ernest Tiffen as the burghers, Van Stoop and Hans Yessen. Mr. John W. Mason did well as the elder North; and Miss Florence Tench won sympathy and applause as North's brave little wife. The sketch was adequately staged, and appropriate music has been furnished by Mr. Richard Lawson.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

A fine programme was given on the 13th inst. at Queen's Hall, and it only shows how greatly the public have advanced in musical knowledge for such a programme to be appreciated. The chief novelty of the evening was the "Entr'acte Symphonique" from Alfred Bruneau's Messidor, and it is strange this fine work has not been heard before in London. Messidor was produced at the Paris Opéra in 1897, and is the third work MM. Zola and Alfred Bruneau have composed, the two former works being Le Rêve and L'Attaque au Moulin; but differing from these, Messidor is not founded on either a novel or tale, and when heard in Paris aroused considerable interest. The story has strong human motives, and deals mostly with peasant farm labourers, and the plot turns on the overreaching character of a rich owner who diverts a river from its course in order to obtain gold. The work is in four sections, which represent the Four Seasons, and the "Entr'acte Symphonique" heard on Thursday evening is the Prelude announcing the coming of Spring. This reveals great gifts of melody and originality by the composer, and the performance causes one to wish that the entire work could have been given. Other compositions by Bruneau are two music dramas, L'Enfant Roi and L'Ouragan.

Although not often heard, the Tone Poem, "Don Quixote," by Richard Strauss, is certainly one of the most characteristic of this remarkable composer's works. "Don Quixote" has only been played at the Strauss Festival in 1903, and at the Queen's Hall last February. The orchestra admirably performed the work, the 'cello solo being most skilfully undertaken by Mr. Jacques Renard. A young pianist, Mr. Jean du Chastain, made a most successful first appearance in Eugen d'Albert's sparkling Concerto in E, and being encored gave Schubert's Minuet in B minor. Miss Jessie Rayne was the vocalist, and sang Saint-Saëns' famous air from Samson et Dalila with great ability and expression. There was a large and enthusiastic audience.

Tuesday night's programme at Queen's Hall was of special interest, as it included Wagner's beautiful Prelude to Lohengrin, Bach's Orchestral Suite No. 1 in C (capitally performed by Mr. Wood's clever orchestra), Gluck's overture "Iphigenia in Aulis," as well as a new work by a Flemish composer, Jan Block, heard for the first time in this country. "Symphonie Triptych" is the title of the new production, which is divided into the three sacred festivals of the year—All Souls' Day, Christmas, and Easter. In these three movements the composer make great use of the pianoforte and the bells in All Souls' Day and Easter, and with considerable effect, and although the Flemish composer does not succeed in getting all the interest in his work so fine a subject offers, there is unmistakable talent in the "Triptych"; and the last movement—Easter—has some really fine portions. Under Mr. Wood the work was admirably played. The vocalists were Miss Gwladys Roberts, who was entirely successful in Gluck's "Divinitiés Styx," and Mr. Percy Rhodes, who did himself credit in an air from Handel's Atlanta. Miss Gertrude Meller, who made a first appearance, gave a clever performance of Rubinstein's Fourth Pianoforte Concerto in D Minor. A large audience was present.

The attention of artists is drawn to the benefit matinée which Mr. Lennox Barry is organising to take place at the Hippodrome, Hounslow, at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday next, the 21st inst., in aid of Mrs. Coker, the afflicted mother of the poor boy, James Coker, who was accidentally killed by the Duchess of Connaught's motor-car in the High-street, Hounslow, last week. A letter from Mr. Barry referring to this matinée, appears in another column, and Mr. Barry will be glad to hear from any artists who can conveniently arrange to appear for him at this matinée, which is under the special patronage of Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE fairs ahead for next week are Brierley Hill, Heyford, Idle Feast (Bradford), Woodhouse Feast (Leeds), Arundel, Ashby-de-la-Zouche, Cambridge, Chertsey, Haslemere, Long Sutton, Pickering, Wotton-under-Edge, Hartland, High Wycombe, Moreton (Dorset), Over (Cheshire), Solihull, Spalding, Birmingham, Todmorden, Chesham, Eleven Lane Ends Feast, Long Stratton, Studley (Ripon), Alton, Ampthill, Bracknell, Cranbrook, Dorchester, Hanbury, Uxbridge, Wallingford. In Scotland we have Dumfries, Fraserburgh, Cupar (Fife), Sinclairtown. In Wales, Cowbridge, Fishguard, Llanelly, Llanfyllin, and Maestag.

PENDLEBURY, near Manchester, is an excellent example of a well-managed Corporation Fair. The expert official of the corporation—Mr. George Meech—set out the fair in capital array. The shows and exhibitions were those of Clark, Dyer, Trainer, Hague, and Boscoe. The machine list included John Collins' wheeley-whirley and gondolas, his No. 3 machine (the gallopers), and No. 4 machine (the steam yachts); T. Hurst's farm-yard set; Shuttleworth's gems and overboats, and park swings by the same proprietor; the Winchester ranges and bottle batteries were the well-known concerns of Messrs. Cornwell and White. The other fairground novelties were provided by Williams, Heywood, Clayton, Brennan, Lynch, Worthington, Thomas, and Salter. The next fair at Pendlebury is on March 22, 1907.

THE old-time fair at Wareham was in the capable hands of the local showmen, and the novelties included Burchall's cinematograph theatre, Winchester range and throwing games; Cole Bros. switchback; Smith's galloping horses, highfliers, and variety stalls; Weldon's Winchester range and varieties.

YET another proof of the far-reaching influence of the Showmen's Guild was given at Holbeck Feast, Leeds, last week. We are referring now to that part of the Guild work to which we called attention last week, and that intimately concerns the recognition of the showman's vocation in life and the betterment of his social status. The Press gave currency last week to what was considered a remarkable event on the fairground at Killamarsh—"a preacher using the switchback as a pulpit." That this should happen was considered of sufficient moment to justify the Press agencies paragraphing the occurrence through the length and breadth of the land. But to the members of the Showmen's Guild, and indeed to the whole body of showpeople, there is nothing unusual or startling in the event, for there are a number of towns where the annual fair is utilised by the local clergy, not merely to minister to "the stranger within their gate"—the itinerant entertainer—but it is seized upon as a golden opportunity to enlist the ever-ready co-operation of the showman in order that the clergy may reach crowds of their own people that otherwise would not be touched at all.

CERTAINLY the showman values the ministrations of the clergy, and welcomes all efforts to help him spiritually that do not begin with the fatal Puritanical mistake of regarding him as requiring special Evangelistic effort enterprised with the idea that his work in life is a sort of ante-room of the establishment of the Prince of Darkness. For twenty years past work of the right kind to help the showmen and to help the parish has been done by the Vicars of Holbeck. It is a very wholesome tradition amongst the mothers of the Road on the Yorkshire round to bring their babies to the font for holy baptism at Holbeck Feast.

THE Church Times has an interesting account from the Churchman's point of view of mission work on the fairground; this included a procession of the clergy and choir from the mission church close by the fairground to the centre of the fair, where on the front of Monte Bros. cinematograph theatre an open-air service was held. The immense crowd joined in the service with the greatest possible attention and reverence. This was followed by a second service, at which advantage was taken of the appliances of the show to illustrate the address with beautiful lantern slides. Again at 6.30 the procession (the Church's outside parade) was formed, and again a rousing appeal to the people from the front of the show, followed by the last of the services illustrated by limelight pictures thrown upon the screen in the theatre.

OF course these things may be news to the outside world, but there is no particular novelty about it in the world of shows. A glance at the list of honorary local chaplains in the Showmen's Year Book is sufficient proof, although that list does not cover one-tenth of the ground covered by the Church, encouraged and led by the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild.

GLOSSOP Old Wake commenced on Friday, the 14th inst., and was continued with zest until Tuesday. On the market ground were G. Sudling's football, W. Royle's shooting pavilion, Jas. Hibbert's flying motors and poultry farm, Johnny Walker's steam horses and aerial flight, J. Glynn's aerial flyers, Montgomery's cockerels (juvenile set), Shaw's steam swings, Griffin's Excelsior games, Sutherland's Emma stalls, Whatmore's Emma stall and cocoanut alleys, J. Frail's and M. Thomas's cocoanut alleys, J. Cordwell's cocoanut alley and bazaar, and other minor novelties.

ALVECHURCH is an ancient village in Worcestershire, three miles from Redditch, ten miles from Birmingham, five from King's Norton, and nineteen from Evesham. The population in 1901 was 1730. The Mop will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 3.

ASTWOOD BANK is a large village in Worcestershire, three miles from Redditch, thirteen from Evesham, five from Alcester, and eight from Bromsgrove. Industries—needles, fish hooks, &c.; also large cycle works at Hunt End, one mile distant. No menagerie has been here for several years. A good portable theatre or marionettes would do well during the winter months.

FROM the London Gazette we take the following—"The Fairs Act, 1873. Hucknall-under-Huthwaite fair or feast. The Secretary of State for the Home Department gives notice that a representation has been duly made to him by the Urban District Council of Hucknall-under-Huthwaite, to the effect that a fair or feast has been annually held at Hucknall-under-Huthwaite on the Saturday preceding the third Sunday in July and the two following days, and that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that the said fair or feast should in future be held on the Saturday preceding the first Sunday in September and the two following days. On the 4th day of October, 1906, the Secretary of State will take such representation into consideration, and any person who may desire to object to the alteration of the dates for the holding of the said fair or feast should intimate his objections to the Secretary of State before that day.—Home Office, Whitehall, September 4th."

IT is for our showmen readers on the Derbyshire round to consider the proposal to alter the days of the fair from the month of July to September, and to take action against the change if detrimental to their business.

NEATH Pleasure Fair drew a large number of people last week from the surrounding valleys. Messrs. Henry Studt and Sons' gondolas, switchback, farmyard, and motor-cars, and Mr. John Studt's motor-cars and farmyard were as popular as ever; as were also Messrs. E. Dauter's zoological circus, White's tunnel railway and zig-zag chute, Wadbrook's popular electric bioscope, Messrs. Hagger and Sons' electrograph, which was beautifully illuminated with fairy electric lamps. Messrs. Dooner's biograph, Crecraft's lion show and bioscope, and Wortley's working model of a colliery village were well patronised. The side shows did very well. Amongst them were Nail's fine art gallery, E. Handley's Winchester range, and J. Fossett's rifle saloon; bottle shooters by John North, J. Butlin; booths, Wm. North, Deakin, and Roberts; coker sheets by J. North, J. Jones, Boswell, J. Day, Butlin; miniature ponies by Messrs. J. Alfred and J. Butlin; pipe saloons by Boswell and Butlin; and boxers by Messrs. Tom Thomas and J. Scaretts. Last but not least, Madam Baker and Son's well-known and popular circus was well patronised by friends old and new.

AYR is the venue this week for all the showmen of a wide area. The Newton Public Park is again the spot set apart by the authorities, who have leased the ground to Mr. George Green, of Glasgow Carnival Grounds, who sub-lets to the others. Mr. Green has electric motor-cars, cocks and hens, and a cinématograph and variety show. The other attractions are Wilmot's horses, Wilmot's electric motor-cars, Wingate's bicycles and Wingate's airship, Howard's over boats, Baker's twin yachts, Leo's modern American show, McIndoe's Scottish show, Johnson's circus, Swallow's cocks and hens, Stevenson's fly boats, Moor's boxing saloon, and an innumerable host of booths, dollies, shooting booths, and stands. Special cars are being run to and from the show grounds, and the patronage of the public is great. Given good weather, good business should result.

MR. WILSON'S cinématograph exhibition is paying a week's visit to the Market-place, West Stanley. The pictures are clear and up to date, the film of "Ned Kelly, the Bushranger," being worthy of special mention. The front of the exhibition, which is fully 30 feet wide, is exclusively occupied by a magnificent orchestral organ, which is beautifully illuminated by electricity. Crowds of people flocked to the Market-place to obtain a view and to hear the fine music produced by this excellent piece of workmanship.

IMMEDIATELY following Holbeck Feast we have the two important fixtures of Batley and Chapeltown. To take these two fairs the principal concerns at Holbeck Feast divide. For Batley the concerns were Relph and Pedley, Monti Brothers, Professor Gibson, and Priest with freak show, Waddington's, Howden and Marshall's motor-cars, Ralph and Pedley's whirl, Waddington's yachts, and Houldsworth and Burgess's shooting concerns, and the usual attendant throng of minor novelties.

THE Chapeltown division were Chipperfield's and Testo's shows; Murphy, Hamilton, Dobson, and Morley's machines, and the minor novelties by Messrs. Ratcliffe, Steward, Johnson, Ashcroft, Dobson, Batnes, and some forty or fifty other novelty caterers.

FROM the Midland round our correspondent writes that at Willenhall, near Wolverhampton, the fair was held Sept. 14 to 18, and the novelties on the ground were Mrs. Collins's palace of animated pictures, Captain Bevan's reptiles, Harry Sullis's boxing saloon, motor-cars, mountain ponies, racing cockerels, steam yachts, wheeley-whirly, and slipping the slope by P. Collins. Shooting-galleries by Ford, Dobson, Whyatt, and Stockton. Throwing games and varieties by Humphries, Beech, Wagstaffe, Whyatt, Hodgkiss, and others too numerous to mention.

ON the same days the Staffordshire Fair at Newcastle-under-Lyme had for its amusements, P. Collins' motors Farrell's jumping horses and racing cockerels, Lawrence's cinematograph and nannikins, Gal. Hague's boxers, overboat by Bennett and Farrell, and all the fun of the fair by Wright, Beaumont, and Beech, and the usual big array of pannum stalls and varieties.

THE principal fair in the Metropolitan district this week was at Hemel Hempstead, and attracted a large crowd of the best concerns on the London round. These were Purchase's menagerie, Biddall Brothers' cinematograph theatre and Empire of varieties, Bailey's fine art show, Robert's freak exhibits, and the fistiana colleges of Messrs. E. Elliott and W. Weston. Gondola switchbacks by Barker and Thurston, bicycle track by Thurston, galloping horses by Hewitt, gem motors by Abbott and G. Holmes, and swings by Mrs. Matthew and Mrs. Brinckley. Rifle saloons by Matthews, Wilson, and Hewitt. Varieties by Mayne, Lang, Burgess, Abbott, Wilson, Peters, Harris, Davis, Rowe, Taylor, Lang, and Miller. The stall-holders were Taylor, Bond, Maise, Connard, Saunders, and Burgess.

MR. JAMES PETTIGROVE'S steam switchback railway is at the Central Cricket Ground, Hastings, entertaining large crows each evening. The side-shows include Mrs. Ward's Aunt Sally and giant head shies, swings, shooting galleries, American bagatelle, and cokernut shies, which affords to many young folk much amusement and recreation.

SHOWMAN generally, more particularly those travelling in East Anglia, have lost a good old friend by the decease of Mr. R. Tidman, sen., whose death took place peacefully on September 1. He had reached the ripe old age of eighty-three years, and thirty-five or forty years ago was host of the King's Arms, Bishop Bridge, Norwich. The King's Arms was for many years the winter home of the leading showmen of the day. Amongst the since departed, and some who are with us still, may be mentioned John Barker, Sam Whiting, Alf. Duffield, Charles Bugg, Biddall, J. Crighton, and G. Aspland. The deceased was the founder of the firm of Robert Tidman and Sons, and father of the present members of the firm, Messrs. Robert and Fred. Tidman.

THE funeral took place at the Rosary Cemetery, Norwich, under the shadow of the monument raised (by his colleagues) to the late John Barker, amidst feelings of profound sorrow and sympathy. The chief mourners were:—Mr. and Mrs. R. Tidman, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tidman, Mrs. Watts (sister), Mr. R. J. Tidman (grandson), Miss Clara Watts and Miss Hannah Watts (nieces), Miss Brown (niece), Mr. and Mrs. Burgess (cousins), and Mr. R. J. Knights. There were many wreaths, and other floral tokens of sympathy.

GUILD subscription for 1906, per Mr. Cornwell:—J. W. Taylor, Esq., Gorton, 10s. 6d.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. M. (Blackburn).—You were quite right in demanding full security for so large a deposit as £50. We do not think that the power reserved by the syndicate to close their enterprise at one week's notice justifies them in demanding more than two weeks' rent in advance. The risk should be mutual, and the financial burden equal between the contracting parties. To pay a month's rent in advance, without a guarantee of a month's run of business, is not, in our judgment, an equitable agreement.

J. H. (Uttoxeter). — We are sending you the material you ask for, and we still rely upon your able assistance in the matter of Showmen World news.

H. H. H. (Neath).—Yes; we certainly desire you to continue your excellent work.

THE GOSPEL OF RECREATION.

By the Rev. T. Horne.

It would be extremely comical did not the memory of the past involve so much that is sad, to compare the opinion of men of science to-day with the view held only a few years ago with regard to surcrease from toil and necessary recreation and amusement after work, whether it be work of the hands or of the brain. The dismal scientist of the mid-Victorian era held that all rest from toil was an economic loss, and hence the mistaken crusade of the leaders of the people against the popular amusements of our Fairs, Feasts, and Wakes.

We were told by the highest authority on political economy that when not making money we were actually robbing the State of values due to it. Philosophers and writers of the Dr. Smiles sort held up the blessing of constant work and the glory of success by never, never ceasing to urge men to get; to have; to hold. All joy of life outside of the joy of climbing the ladder of success was held to be waste; criminal waste of natural forces. The youth of the nation were urged to work, work, aye, always work. This philosophy of greed was satirised by one of the early unbelievers in its soundness as being an exhortation "to get on." "Get on—honestly if you can—but, if not, well, get on."

We remember how the poor travelling showman was regarded as a menace and danger to national thrift, and how great towns like Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dublin, and even London itself, made haste to abolish the fairs and open-air carnivals of the workers because political economy said such times of general holidays were saturnalias of extravagance; exhaustion of the wage fund of the people for that that would bring no return of good to the Commonwealth.

Nothing that we know marks the change in the general conception of life more than the utter rout of the dismal scientists—the men of the Jeremy Bentham, John Stuart Mill, and the Cobden school of economists. The new school of political economists began with an entirely different aspect of life and its duties to the Commonwealth. The persistent insistence of The Era has been more than justified; it is a veritable triumph of humanism. We are helping now to create a world in which joy and laughter (as the good God meant it to be) shall find ready outlet, and where toil shall be the means to the great end of human happiness, and where the success of a nation shall not be measured by the number of its millionaires, but the higher standard of a joyous and contented people.

All that we have said is relevant to the question of the hour raised by that greatest scientist, Sir James Crichton Browne, at the Blackpool Congress of Sanitary Inspectors. With the clear precision of the trained thinker and observer of human affairs, Sir James Crichton Browne preached a gospel of recreation. He gave to the most notable section of his presidential address the sub-title of "Mental Hygiene," and it was in that portion of his original dissertation that he touched the very heart of the matter. He declared that we were all valetudinarians in these days, and that it had become the duty of every doctor to preach from time to time the gospel of recreation, and that what had been called advancing civilisation meant an increasing division of labour; and that meant the excessive use of certain parts of the organism to their undue fatigue, and the comparative superannuation of other parts with exposure to rust; that owing to our faulty economies overwork existed, and was bearing fruit in debility and disease. The savage who had to do everything for himself—that was not done by his wife or wives—and the agriculturist who had to divide his attention between herds and crops, and to vary his work with the ever-varying seasons, exercised tolerably, impartially, such brain centres as he possessed; but the workman who had to spend his whole time in making the head of a pin, boring a hole in a button, or watching the to-and-fro of a shuttle, exercised a very small tract of his nerve centres and left wide areas dormant. His work was fatiguing out of all proportion to its value in foot pounds. It tended towards automatism, and if he was to save his soul alive he must come to Blackpool from time to time—he must have recreation."

Continuing his argument, he said "Stimulus was necessary to the brain as well as rest. We must have amusement as well as slumber; that was to say, we must have the exercise of faculties that were not employed in our daily employment, and so daily recreation was demanded. And those of us who worked in any degree had every now and then arrears of fatigue to work off, hence the necessity for the periodical holiday." He contended that "Mental Hygiene"—the sanitation of the brain—"that cunning pattern of excelling nature"—was day by day becoming more and more of urgent and pressing importance; that hygiene had at length forced its way into the school, and it would not stop at ventilation and cleanliness, the protection of the eyes and teeth, or at physical training, but would assert its legitimate control over the exercises of the growing brain.

The Times in a trenchant leader, true to its well-worn traditions, refuses to accept the gospel of recreation, and tries to reincarnate the dismal science of "Work, work, and when you want a change, change your work," and argues that holidays are but occasions for idleness. That the tyrant Pharaoh was altogether right when he said, "Ye are idle, ye are idle; get ye back to your burdens." It would do the superior person good to live as we have done in a great cotton town in Lancashire, to watch the wasting of human life that the spinning mills mean, to see the vacuous look setting in on the face of the worker, and then to go to Blackpool even again as we have done and see the good results in the morals and physique of the people after one of these so-called orgies of idleness and thriftlessness.

Or even to visit Oldham at the time of the Wakes, and to note, as we have done, the brightening up and the refreshing of the people after one of these so-called times of economic waste. We welcome with both hands the new apostle of the gospel of recreation, Sir James Crichton Browne. He is amongst the prophets. "For centuries the school of the prophets has been the poor, despised and much maligned showmen; the clown who bade the people "to laugh and grow fat."

The Silly Billy on the show front who said, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" was also amongst the prophets, but a little before his time, and so he was stoned; and some were (like the greatest of all the prophets of the joy of life) crucified; but, after all, what is the conclusion of the whole matter but "That wisdom is justified of her children"?

WE hear that Prince Samouda, the mystery man, has signed a contract with Messrs. Moss and Stoll, to open his latest novelty in occult mysticism on their circuit, commencing at Edinburgh, and then taking their principal London halls. The Prince is now finishing long-standing contracts, and intends to open with his new mystery, "Hexentirsch," for the first time in Europe. The motive is founded upon the Eastern fable of "the animated table," and embodies some of the most marvellous demonstrations of occult force known to modern magic.

IN Buckinghamshire, at the pretty village of Penn, the annual fair was well maintained by Chittock's Royal London cinematograph, Mathews' steam-horses, gallopers, and ostriches, and range of park swings. Shooting saloons, Emma and coker sheets by numerous caterers, amongst whom were Messrs. Brown, Mayne, Bond, and Matthews.

HOLBECK FEAST.

Leeds, like all great provincial cities, has its outer circle of fairs. These holidays of the people in Yorkshire are known as "feasts." There are around Leeds, Bradford, Huddersfield, Dewsbury, Halifax, and Wakefield belts of popular feasts, that now supply open-air entertainment for the city and town workers, and compensate for the too hasty mistake of the City Fathers in abolishing (as many town authorities did thirty years or more ago) the pleasure fairs of the town.

It is always the country that comes to refresh the town, so that when the town spread out, and octopus-like, grasped in its many spreading tentacles the villages nigh its borders, the feasts of the absorbed villages remained, although the city fair had been unwisely abolished. There are to-day in Merrie England scores of such village feasts now in the thronged suburbs of our large towns, and they fulfil all the necessities of the ancient town and city fairs.

London itself, with its holiday fairs at Hampstead Heath, Wanstead Flats, Blackheath, and Wormwood Scrubs, fully illustrates this adaptation of fairs to modern life. Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, and Leeds bear equal testimony to the conservative instincts of the people as regards the preservation of their old pleasure fairs, and the economic fact (so often forgotten) that as fairs have grown with the onward progress of national life, they have their rootage in the very heart of the people.

At one time, and that not long ago, The Era was the only voice (like unto one crying in the wilderness) raised to proclaim these truths.

Forty years ago, according to all the then authorities, the fairs of the people were dying out, and the travelling showman would soon be as extinct a curio as the Dodo. But these apostles of the dismal science were soon proved to be false prophets, and for every fair abolished ten more sprang into existence, and to-day the shows and fair-ground entertainments come not only in single file but in battalions to amuse and entertain the work-worn people.

The British Press now take up The Era evangel, and with one voice acclaim the saving grace and good honest humour of the fair.

Speaking of Holbeck Feast, the Leeds Mercury says:—"All the youth of Holbeck and half the youth of less-favoured parts of the city which possess no 'feast' of their own, found their way to Holbeck Moor on Saturday, and for the greater part of the present week Holbeck Moor will still be the Mecca of those whose soul longs for revelry.

"For it is Holbeck Feast, and to the loyal Holbecker this is an event sacred in his eyes. It is the day of days in his year, the red-letter day in his calendar. Is it not during 't feeast' that he opens his hospitable doors and in very truth feasts the friends, who would sooner miss the Christmas pantomime than miss a visit to Holbeck during the feast? Is it not, too, the event by which he marks the hours, as it were, on the dial of his life?

"Possibly it was during the feast that he led his blushing bride to the altar. The birthdays of the olive branches are remembered as having taken place so long before or so long after Holbeck Feast, and probably it was during feast week that mother-in-law came to reside with the family. And while the older members of the family tell over again the events that happened at the feasts of long ago, the younger members following, as it were, 'in father's footsteps,' are enjoying the few brief hours of revelry which they, too, will recount as they sit, aged and infirm, in the ingle nook in years to come. For the feast enjoys the blessings of perpetual youth, and in the opinion of the Holbeck patriot, only a cataclysm could justify its cessation.

"In the opinion of some other people also it would require an act of providential intervention to change the established order."

And, again, the same writer:—

"It is surprising how quick the enterprising showman is to scent, as it were, change in popular taste. The mild excitement that satisfied our grandfathers and grandmothers is held in contempt by the sensation-hardened youths and maidens of to-day. The skittle-alley of the old-time fair is too tame nowadays. We must have something to smash, and so we get a bottle swinging on the end of a rope or a pyramid of teacups to tempt the marksman, and exhibit his general incompetence. It looks so easy to smash a dozen teacups standing in a pile not ten yards away, or to send the cocoa-nuts flying from their sawdust perches, but the showman knows his business, and the crowd more generally has to laugh at failure than applaud success.

"Then, too, the old-time Temple of Thespis has disappeared, the heavy tragedian no more struts the boards, a huge dagger in his hand, and some deep but quite incomprehensible scheme on foot. Romance has given place to mysticism, and the drama has fallen into decay, before the marvels of the cinematograph. No longer does the heavily-befurred manager stalk with lordly mien up and down before his 'theatre,' admonishing all and sundry to 'Walk this way—the play is about to commence.'

"Nowadays placards announce that the 'White Mahatma' will reveal the inmost secrets of yourself and your dearest friend, and a gentleman sparkling in gold and diamonds and more or less immaculate linen intimates that the séance is about to commence.

"It used to be that 'the play's the thing,' but now it is the picture that is everything.

"Happily, however, the lion-tamer, the 'smallest human being on earth,' and the 'fat woman' are still with us, and are all to be seen at Holbeck Feast.

"Especially interesting are the changes in what used to be known as the 'merry-go-round.' The mild excitement of going round at a moderate pace on a wooden horse has long since been discarded, and now we fly through the air on the back of a giant cockerel or whirl the whirl on a wheel that plays strange pranks with our centre of gravity, or rush with brief but giddy speed round a hilly circle on a good imitation of a motor-car. Even the babies have their motor-cars, and right merrily they seemed to enjoy them on Saturday night.

"When you can play football with the leading teams in England, or smash crockery or cocoanuts to your heart's content, or see pictures of beautiful women and fearsome beasts, or be whirled about on all sorts of strange contrivances till you are ill, or rush with lightning speed down the outside of a sort of lighthouse tower, and do and see innumerable other things, all to the exhilarating strains of the steam orchestra, and the shrieking siren, it is little wonder that Holbeck Feast is an event to be remembered."

The shows were Monti Brothers, Relph and Pedley's, Crighton and Testo's cinematograph, Walton's boxers, Gibson's mystery, Hasting's ground booths, Westray's freaks, Blakey's wrestling ladies, Chipperfield's menagerie, and W. Shaw's fine art. The mechanical novelties—steam and electric—were by Murphy, Waddington, G. Marshall, and G. Redfern, with motor-cars both aerial and terrestrial, Relph and Pedley, and Howden and Sons, with whirling the whirl machines, Collins and Waddington with farm-yard sets, Tuby and Hamilton with galloping horses, Waddington's yachts, and five sets of steam swings by Messrs. Burgin, Corrigan, Shaw, Amos, and Morley; Dobson's razzle-dazzle, Colling's and Batty's motors; Hutchinson, Thomas, and Johnson with gem swings; Thomas, Doubtfire, Cooper, and Johnson with gem motors; and manual swings by Hughes, Batty, Proctor, Dobson, and Morley. The long length of bazaars were provided by Messrs. Seed, Gledstone, and Howarth Brothers. The refreshment booths were provided by Messrs. Hughes, Hutchinson, and Bates. The Winchester ranges and rifle-saloons were provided by Messrs. Jameson, Cutler, Thomson, Ratcliffe, and Dobson. There were over fifty throwing games of the three-shots-a-penny variety; the principal proprietors were Messrs. Powell, Steward, Johnson, Ashcroft, and Baine.

The above list of names, exclusive as it is of some hundred or more stall-keepers and fair-ground traders, is yet large enough to indicate that the modern fair at Holbeck, Leeds, even if we omit the mention of big local feasts like Armley, Kirkstall, Woodhouse, Chapeltown, and York Road, is sufficient to prove that although Leeds Fair was abolished by the Corporation in the bad old days, there exist to-day in greater Leeds fairs of three times the importance of old Leeds fair.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the popular and courteous acting-manager of this handsome hall, has now firmly established himself a favourite in the district. The programme on the night of our visit was of the usual excellence. First came Mr. Dan Crawley, a quaint comedian, who had a very warm reception, and was as genuinely funny as ever. His songs, "Anywhere does for me," "They can't diddle me," and "Wouldn't you like to be me?" were loudly applauded. Fred Karno's comedians appeared in a screamingly funny sketch, entitled The Smoking Concert. This turn was staged and managed with the ability that characterises all Fred Karno's productions, and was capitally acted all round. Charming Miss Lilian Lea contributed two well-rendered songs, entitled "Peggy Machree" and "My Bungalow." The American Bioscope exhibited some excellent pictures, including "Off to the Foot Hills," "A lucky strike," "Treachery," and "A mining story." Next came Jack Charman, correctly described as "a popular vocalist." Gifted with a good voice, he was heard to advantage in two good songs, entitled "Pals" and "May I come home again?" Silent Tait next appeared in an interesting illusory entertainment, which was plentifully interspersed with quiet fun. Miss Katie Butler, a delightfully clever comedienne, made a considerable success with "Daisy" and "A sad, sad story," and a great hit was made by the Molasses Quartette, whose dancing was remarkably good, their dresses being both rich and tasteful. Miss Lilian Bishop, who looked very pretty in modern male dress, danced well and sang in acceptable fashion. The Dumond Minstrels appear as itinerant musicians and vocalists. The mandolin, the guitar, and the violin in the hands of the trio are, nevertheless, played with the taste and expression that proclaim them to be artists of considerable ability and culture. Indeed, the fiddler is an exceptional performer. Mr. Louis La Rondelle conducts with admirable skill the fine orchestra, which is one of the attractions of the establishment.

"LA MILO."

A CHALLENGE.

In view of Mrs. Ormiston Chant's strictures on "La Milo," in a contemporary, Cruickshank, "La Milo's" manager, has addressed the following letter to Mrs. Chant:—

The London Pavilion, Sept. 19, 1906.

MADAME,—I have read with a great amount of interest your article in the Free Lance, entitled "Morality and the Music Halls," but with regard to the section of it that treats of La Milo, though I feel confident that you write with the best of intentions, yet you must have been sadly misinformed. There is no suspicion even of sinister intention in any portion of the act; on the contrary, our artistic standpoint—I speak for Miss Montague and myself—is based on the fact that any suggestion or feature that might be in the least calculated to appeal to the baser-minded of our audience has been carefully excised, and I claim, without any fear of contradiction from any person who has seen the act, that it is entirely free from offence in any particular; and further—though this is certainly not the raison d'être of the exhibition—it exercises, if anything, a refining and elevating influence on the spectators.

This may perhaps read to you like a sample of professional cant, but I may state that many of our most violent critics now admit the point; indeed, so careful have we been to suppress the "living element" that those who may have gone to the Pavilion hoping to see simply a nude woman have been disappointed, and have openly complained that they saw but a "cold marble statue."

You state that you have never yet been to the Pavilion, and, therefore, I take it that you have never witnessed La Milo's exhibition. As I feel that in you we shall at least have a generous and fair-minded antagonist, might I request you to honour us with a visit, and see for yourself "the worst feature in the programme," and we are perfectly willing to abide the result. By the courtesy of Mr. Frank Glenister, I am enabled to offer you seats any evening you may favour us with your presence, and if you will kindly intimate a convenient time he will at once forward them to you.

I do trust that you will do us the justice of seeing the act you complain of before making any further strictures in the Press.

In conclusion, I may add that I am quite convinced that La Milo's poses will not "shock you profoundly," and, after a visit, I have every confidence that we may number even you amongst our converts.—I remain, Madame, with sincere respect,

CRUICKSHANK (Manager for La Milo).

MRS. COKER'S MATINEE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you allow me space in your valuable paper to draw attention to the benefit matinée which (by permission of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson) I am organising to take place at this hall on Wednesday next, the 26th inst., at 2.30 p.m., in aid of Mrs. Coker, the mother of the poor boy, James Coker, who was accidentally killed by a motor-car in the High-street, Hounslow, last week? This unfortunate accident is made all the more serious by the fact that Mrs. Coker has, within the short space of three months, lost both her husband and two other children.

She now has a baby fourteen months old, and is shortly expecting an addition to her family, which prevents her from following her occupation as a picker in the market gardens. I have communicated these facts to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, who has very graciously consented to extend her patronage to this matinée, and as the time is very short, I shall be glad to hear from any artists who will kindly appear for me, and thus assist me in getting together a substantial sum for this poor woman, whose pitiful case is deserving of every sympathy.—Yours faithfully,

LENNOX BARRY.

Hounslow Hippodrome, Sept. 20, 1906.

(Copy of letter received by Mr. Barry.)

Clarence House,
St. James's, S.W.

The Comptroller of the Household of H.R.H. the Duchess of Connaught is desired by Her Royal Highness to acknowledge Mr. Lennox Barry's letter of the 16th inst. with regard to the matinée performance which it is proposed to give at the Hounslow Hippodrome on Wednesday, 26th September, in aid of Mrs. Coker, and to inform him, in reply, that it will give Her Royal Highness much pleasure to extend her patronage to the performance on that occasion.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

VENGEANCE OF A LAWYER'S CLERK.

A joke played on a lawyer by his clerk results in the latters dismissal. He in revenge puts an advertisement in the paper for cripples and blind folk to call on the solicitor, in quest of a fortune. They arrive in scores, with very amusing results.

180ft. The Subject £3.

LOVE'S THERMOMETER.

Code Word, "BRUME."

Young people sitting in a garden, very much in love with one another, cause the thermometer to rise very quickly. Years after, they being older, the thermometer shows the opposite effect.

98ft. The Subject £1 12s. 6d.

THE DEVIL'S SON.

A modern version of the well-known "Faust" story. Grand quality and wonderful coloring effect.

1155ft. The Subject £19 5s.

SURROUNDED BY GOLD.

Code Word, BROCHOIR.

A poor starving artist dreams that he is carried to a land where money abounds and only beautiful women reside, but wakes to find himself back in his old garret; then decides to hang himself. Surprised by his betrothed, who has sold her earrings to get him money, he finds that love and friendship are better than gold.

444ft. The Subject £7 8s.
Colouring, £3 8s. extra.

THE POACHER.

Code Word, BROUETTER.

A dramatic story, culminating in romance, in which a young lover helps his future father-in-law, who is shot at by a poacher, brings the doctor, fights the poacher, takes him to the lock-up, and is rewarded with the hand of the girl he loves. One event after another, each more exciting and enthralling.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

TRAGIC WEDDING.

Code Word, BRULOIR.

A country scene. The young and pretty peasant girl, betrayed by the evil squire, is turned away from her house by her father. She is neglected by her lover, becomes poorer and poorer with her ailing baby child. The squire is going to be married again. The betrayed girl swears revenge, and kills him coming out of the porch of the church. Intensely dramatic and soul-stirring.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

THE MARBLE INDUSTRY IN CARRARA.

Code word, BRESSANT.

The title almost speaks for itself. Suffice it to say that one is taken into the mountains, workshops, and homes of the people who look after this great industry. Intensely interesting.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE LITTLE NEW BROTHER.

Code Word, BRULOT.

Parents lose their young baby boy. Their other little daughter, wandering in the fields, discovers another little boy in the grass, takes him home, and the parents decide to adopt him. Very pathetic and grand quality.

264ft. The Subject £4 8s.

OUR OUTPUT OF FILMS AMOUNTS TO 32,800 YARDS PER DAY.

REMEMBER OUR FILMS ARE ABSOLUTELY STEADY.

SUCCESS OF THE CHRONOPHONE.

BUSINESS UNPRECEDENTED.

A STRIKING TESTIMONIAL:

NEWS REACHES US THAT THE CHRONOPHONE IS SHOWING AT MAIDSTONE BY THE ST. LOUIS PICTURE CO. MR. W. HOOK, THE GENIAL AND ENTERPRISING MANAGER, WRITES US AS FOLLOWS:—

"I AM GLAD TO SAY BUSINESS AT MAIDSTONE IS UNPRECEDENTED.

"NOTHING HAS HAD SUCH HUGE HOUSES AS THE CHRONOPHONE FOR THE LAST FOUR YEARS; THIS SPEAKS VOLUMES FOR THE CHRONOPHONE."

In spite of all, the CHRONOPHONE will draw and hold.

NORTH & SOUTH, EAST & WEST,
The CHRONOPHONE IS MAKING ITS WAY.

REPORTS REACH US DAILY PROVING THAT THE CHRONOPHONE IS THE CINEMATOGRAPH MACHINE OF THE NEAR FUTURE. GIVEN A FAIR CHANCE, THE CHRONOPHONE CANNOT BE DENIED.

If Business is quiet, TRY A CHRONOPHONE.

ABOUT OUR FIRE.

WE beg to tender our sincerest thanks to the trade generally for the sympathy evinced in respect to our recent misfortune. Practically every concern in the film business hastened to offer us assistance, in most cases placing dark rooms and other accommodation liberally at our disposal. Our own resources are, however, equal to the occasion, for although the damage done is extensive, the loss has only been comparatively insignificant. All negatives, printing, and other apparatus of value, were recovered intact, and dislocation of business has already been overcome. Any of our film subjects, new or old, can be obtained as heretofore, without delay.

With renewed cordial thanks to our business confrères for their freely proffered help and sympathy,

L. GAUMONT & CO.

"ELGE" FILMS.

A Fine Drama. Superbly Staged.

No. 493. CHEATING JUSTICE.

Full of deep and entrancing interest. A temptation, a fall, crime, ruin, disgrace.

A fine young fellow with excellent prospects falls a victim to envy and ambition. To gratify his ambition he takes the life of the very man who is his greatest benefactor. He flees for his life, finding it necessary to commit further crime to accomplish his ends. He passes through many exciting scenes, and finally hides himself in Italy, and disguised, he mixes with gay and beautiful women in gambling saloons and cafés. Relentless justice tracks him down, and he is arrested in the midst of his false security. He endeavours to elude his captors for a time, but he is pursued and captured. But rather than face the final disgrace he commits suicide, and dies in the arms of his captors. Stereoscopic Quality. Length, 740 ft. Price, £14 16s. net.

No. 513. HER MORNING DIP.
A seaside subject, full of laughable incident, which deals with a lady taking her sea bath before breakfast.
Length, 330ft. Price, £6 12s. net.

No. X161. MODERN PIRATES.
A highly sensational and unique subject. The pirates use "cars" for their depredations. They are pursued by police in another car. Exciting incident follows exciting incident, gripping and holding the attention right through. Unsurpassed for originality.
Length, 500ft. Price, £10 net.

No. 475. WILLIE AND TIM GET A SURPRISE.
A highly amusing kid film. Length, 240ft. Price, £4 16s. net.

No. 468. THE TREACLE ROLL COMPETITION.
Two treacle rolls are suspended by string from the ceiling, and two boys with their hands fastened behind them are set to eat the swinging and dangling rolls. Length, 110ft. Price, £2 4s. net.

No. 1498. THE BAD HALF-PENNY. A highly amusing comic. A swell gives a blind beggar a bad halfpenny, the blind man gives chase, and soon a motley crowd of halt, lame, dumb, and blind join in the chase.
Length 155 ft. Price £3 2s. net.

NEW "OLARENDON" FILM. —THE LATEST THING IN SENSATIONAL FILMS.

No. 141. CAUGHT BY THE TIDE. Exciting right through. An original subject. Two lovers are sitting beneath the cliffs by the sea. They are so engaged with each other's society as to be quite oblivious of the encroaching waves. Suddenly they awake to the fact. They make efforts to reach dry land, and flounder about in the water. A rope is lowered to them from above, to this is tied the girl, and hauled up by six stalwart men, who lose their footing and come tumbling down into the sea, three hundred feet below. They are unhurt, and a smart young fellow comes to the rescue with another rope which he fastens to the end of a traction engine and all are drawn up to safety, a straggling and dripping bundle. Length, 305 ft. Price, £6 2s. net.

NEW "NORWOOD" FILMS.

No. 007. DOG DETECTIVE. A first-class specimen of an English retriever, who saves his master's life and the property of a bank by his wonderful sagacity. Length 730 ft. Price £14 12s. net.

No. 006. CHASER CHASED. Amusing complications arise through one man after another becoming a thief to catch a thief. Length 335 ft. Price £4 14s. net.

"FROM WALSIN TO DINANT."

The two films together make 500 ft., forming one beautiful panoramic view. They can also be had in two parts, 275 and 225 ft. The photographic quality is excellent and shows up the well-known lovely scenery with grand stereoscopic effect.

No. 1146.

"A FATAL LEAP."

An exceptional film of great sensation. A highwayman endeavours to make his horse jump a five-barred gate with disastrous results to himself. The wreckage is only too real, as one glance at the picture will show.

THE LAMENTABLE
RAILWAY ACCIDENT

At Grantham makes the following films become of thrilling interest, for some of them were taken in the immediate vicinity.

G.N. Engine Driver and Fireman at work in their cab.
G.N. Signalman working in his box.
Express train taking up water on G.N. Railway near Grantham.
G.N. Engine Works, Doncaster.

Length, 200ft. (the above four).
Code Word—RAILWAY.

PANORAMIC SCENES ON THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY LINE.

Length, 100ft. Code Word—NORTHERN.

Few have seen, or can ever imagine, the scene revealed in this film. A railway track is seen, along which comes a train, which over-runs the signal. An express dashes out of a tunnel, and smashes into a goods train, which is thrown down an embankment.

Length, 40ft. Code Word—COLLISION.

LOVE WINS OUT.

(COPYRIGHTED.)

A novel Urbanora Farce. Natural, refined, superbly acted; far Superior to—and not to be compared with—the usual clap-trap, melodramatic penny novelette productions with which the public are too painfully familiar.

This series of twenty-two pictures forms a fifteen minutes interlude of genuine fun without a suggestion of vulgarity. The pictures as projected are excitingly realistic, and a fine example is given of the progress of the animated photograph industry in the road panorama, with the motor continually seen at full speed during the chase, and an entirely new effect is produced by the presentation of a marriage ceremony conducted in a motor car travelling at express rate.

ORDER OF PICTURES.

1—THE OLD STORY RE-TOLD. Love declared; Accepted; Mother Approves.
2—A GENTLE INTIMATION. Mother in the Way; She Retires.
3—TRYING ON THE RING. Engagement Consummated.
4—FATHER ARRIVES WITH TITLED SUITOR. Explanation; Father indignant; Lover forbidden the House.
5—TITLED SUITOR INTRODUCED AND LEFT WITH DAUGHTER. Declares his Passion.
6—SCORNFULLY REJECTED. Departs, breathing Vengeance.
7—REAPPEARANCE OF LOVER. Bribes willing Servant to deliver a Letter.
8—SERVANT COMPLIES. Gives Billet to young Mistress; Joy; Acquiescence.
9—LOVER ARRIVES WITH MOTOR. Signals by gravel at window; Maiden's Response; Lover's Impatience; Rapturous Meeting.
10—ELOPEMENT BY MOTOR. Lovers mount Car and Depart.
11—ARRIVAL OF REJECTED SUITOR IN BUGGY. Witnesses the Lovers' start; Despair; Vows Vengeance; Summons angry Father.
12—MOTOR CHASED BY BUGGY. Father and Suitor in angry Pursuit.
13—BUGGY SEEN FROM MOTOR. Despair of Lovers; Defiance; Full speed ahead; Skilful Chauffeur.
14—A STERN CHASE. Nearly Caught; Buggy Outpaced.
15—MOTOR ARRIVES AT CHURCH. Lover summons Vicar; Wants immediate Marriage; Service in Motor; Vicar Refuses.
16—VICAR HOISTED INTO MOTOR—which resumes Flight.
17—COMMANDED TO MARRY THE COUPLE. He Declines; Cajolements; He Softens; Consents; All rise except Chauffeur, who still drives at full speed; Bride removes Chauffeur's cap.
18—MARRIAGE BY MOTOR AT EXPRESS RATE. Impressive Service and Priestly Benediction; MAN and WIFE.
19—RETURN HOME. Awaiting Stern Parent; He Arrives; Scene; Disclosure of Marriage; Father Indignant; Disowns Young Couple; Vicar Pleads; Relentless; Couple cast off; Doors closed.
20—MOTHER'S SOLICITUDE. Father Explains; Rages; Mother Entreats; Daughter Arrives; Both Implore; Dawning Hope; Father gradually yields; Reconciled.
21—ARRIVAL OF SON-IN-LAW. Cool Reception by Father; Combined Supplication; Father slowly relents.
22—FORGIVEN.

Length 700 feet. Price £17 10s. (subject to our usual Discounts).

"A CHILD OF NATURE."

A charming Series in Eighteen Pictures, pathetically fascinating and attractive. The story here told concerns the love affairs of a servant girl and the son of her master, a farmer. Her frailty and fall, the consequences, an exciting attempt at suicide and a thrilling rescue, terminating with a delightful scene of forgiveness caused by intertwining baby fingers. This delicate subject has been most carefully handled, and will prove unusually acceptable and popular during the coming season.

ORDER OF PICTURES.

1—SERVANT GIRL GOING INTO A NEW SITUATION. Friendly Carrier gives her a lift on the way; Arrives at Village; Hunts up the Farm.
2—FARMER'S HOUSE. Received by Master; Introduced to son; "Now, no nonsense."
3—SON PROCEEDS TO SHOW SERVANT HER DUTIES—taking toll by the way.
4—WATERING HORSE AT THE FARM POND. Refreshments various, for man and beast.
5—A COUNTRY LANE. Gathering Fruit—of two kinds.
6—COURTSHIP; NIGHT SCENE (tinted to show moonlight effect). Farmer's son is admitted by window.
7—SERVANT DISCOVERED MAKING BABY GARMENTS. Lover appears; Mutual joy when he is told of coming event. They decide to tell the old man, fondly expecting that he will be equally pleased.
8—THEY EXPLAIN, PRODUCING TINY GARMENTS. Farmer indignant; Entreaty vain; Son's Expostulations Useless; the Servant is Ejected.
9—WEARY GIRL ARRIVES at MATERNITY HOSPITAL. Scene in Ward; Happy Mother; Baby's First Toilette.
10—MOTHER DISCHARGED, WITH BABY, FROM HOSPITAL. Determines to return to Lover; Scene by the way; Tired and Hungry, an old beggar man gives her food.
11—ARRIVES AT FARM. Farmer and Son at work in fields; She seeks them out; Altercation; Expelled a second time; She retires, dejected.
12—SON PROTESTS; FATHER STRIKES HIM. He follows the servant and their baby.
13—THE RIVER SIDE. Men unloading barges; Servant and baby approach, unseen.
14—SUICIDE. Clasping her child, she jumps into the swift river; She is seen
15—THRILLING RESCUE. Man after man dives into the water; Found; Baby handed out first to woman on wharf; Mother tenderly lifted; Doctor arrives; Alive; They place baby into her arms.
16—DISTRACTED LOVER APPEARS. Tender meeting; Once more they determine to seek the farmer's forgiveness.
17—FARMYARD. Still obdurate, the farmer repels them with scorn; As a last resort, the baby is produced.
18—HE CAN'T RESIST THE BABY. Gradual softening; Baby fastens on to the old man; He yields.

THE WORLD'S
BIOSCOPE OUTFITTERS.

HOW A BRITISH BULLDOG SAVED THE UNION JACK.

Code Word, "ZULU."

A most exciting episode of the Zulu War, in which the heroism and pluck of the British soldier stand out as usual. The Zulus are attacking a camp, a sentry shoots one, who begs for water just before dying. The sentinel goes to get it, and while his back is turned, the traitorous Zulu shoots him. Then the hordes of Zulus rush round the camp, pull down the British flag and decamp with it. They are pursued by a British officer, who discovers it first. After numerous exciting adventures the Englishman is captured against overwhelming odds, tied to a post, and put to the most degrading torture. The British flag is spat on and insulted, and then the Chief of the kraal puts a light to it. At that moment the bulldog (the pride of the regiment), who has followed his master, the brave officer, rushes at the flag and succeeds in putting out the flames, and so saves the colours. The officer frees himself from his bonds and shoots the cowardly chief, and triumphantly rides back to the British camp with the flag safe and sound. Grand quality and superb dramatic interest is the unanimous opinion of all who have seen this film. 575ft. £14 7s.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanac and Annual for 1906, is not only a valuable collection of information and a history of the dramatic and musical year. It is also a very amusing and entertaining shillingsworth It contains contributions from many well-known actors and actresses. Mr. Frank Despres, the editor, contributes a delightful story about an actress who sold her collection of Press notices in order to help a colleague in distress. There are numerous portraits. The lists of English, French, and German plays produced during the year are very useful. Altogether, "The Era" Almanack is indispensable to all interested in the stage.—The Star, Jan. 24, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
In "The Era" Annual (5, Tavistock-street, Strand, 1s.), Miss Vesta Tilley breaks into verse, and a score or more of her comrades of "the boards" try their hands at fiction. The result is entertaining, and as there is added a list of new plays and revivals during the past year, with other information, the annual is worth a place on the playgoer's bookshelves.—The Yorkshire Post

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, AUGUST 14.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis.—Messager's fascinating work The Little Michus was presented for the first time on Saturday evening before one of the largest audiences which has ever assembled at this theatre. The occasion was a memorable one, marking as it did the return to Melbourne of the Royal Comic Opera Co. after an absence of over six months. The Michus Marie Blanche and Blanche Marie were charmingly played by Miss Florence Young and Miss Alma Barber. Miss Young sang as well as she has ever done. Mr. George Laurie as the choleric General Des Ifs is amusing; Gaston Regaud is well played by Mr. Reginald Roberts; Miss Clara Clifton is a picturesque Mme. Michu; Messrs. Percy and Leslie, Mr. Claude Bantock, and Miss Nellie Wilson fill minor parts satisfactorily. A sumptuous mise-en-scène has been provided, and the dressing is most elaborate throughout.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—The sensational domestic melodrama Honor Thy Father is still running to good business; nevertheless it will be taken off at the end of the current week to make room for Mr. Anderson's latest production, entitled Man's Enemy, described as "a drama for the times," since it deals with the drink and gambling evils. The leading part will be played by Miss Eugenie Duggan.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Several new artists made their first appearance on Saturday evening. The most notable of them was Brinn, described as a juggler and cannon manipulator. Brinn is an equilibrist and strong man rather than a juggler. He balances cannon balls and shells, varying in weight from 90lb. to 174lb. The most sensational feat of the evening was the balancing of a field gun—carriage and all—on his head. Miss Cassie Walmar, a quadroon lady, made a hit with her quaint singing and remarkably clever buck dancing. Other popular favourites appeared including Fred Bluett, Augustin and Hartly, Blake and Granby, Phillips Bros., Miss Hilda Lane, the Two Colliers, and Irving Sayles.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Joe Solomons.—There was a crowded audience on Saturday evening. Among the new arrivals may be mentioned Miss Gertie Mason (dancer), and Mr. Arthur Morley (baritone). The rest of the company gave a complete change of programme.

SYDNEY, Aug. 14, 1905.—Mr. Charles Holloway returned to the Criterion on the 11th, and produced an amended version of Bleak House, with his daughter, Miss Beatrice Holloway, as the waif Jo. The clever young actress had already given us a taste of her quality in Two Little Vagabonds, so that a good performance was expected, and every anticipation was realised. The new play acts closely and strenghtens several parts hitherto regarded as subsidiary, whilst giving Jo a prominence greater than usual. Miss Holloway submitted a consistent portrait of the "chivvied" victim of the police, and her auditory was moved to tears. Miss Rosa Conroy made Lady Dedlock one of her best impersonations—handsome and dignified and cultured in speech. Then came a fine characterisation of Hortense by Miss Ethel Appleton, the accent and fiery vituperation being excellent. Mr. John Hesford was Inspector Bucket, distinctly good and human. The Sir Leicester Dedlock of Mr. Godfrey Cass was the best we have seen; and Mr. W. Jefferson Taite's impersonation of Snagsby was purely Dickensian. Mr. John P. O'Neil, besides being stage-manager, realised the unctuous humbug Chadband to the delight of the packed house; and Miss Mabel Russell did Ethel Summerson's little bit of ingénue business perfectly.

THE TIVOLI has some startling newcomers. Seymour and Dupre perform a most acceptable turn, both being wildly cheered and recalled many times. Little Cliff is leaving; Vasco and Kelly and Agnes remain, and the bill for Mr. Harry Rickards' patrons is crammed with established favourites.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by C. R. Clarke and H. R. Silva, entitled
"HONOUR THY FATHER."

Honour Thy Father is the type of drama that naturally appeals to the susceptible habitués of Mr. William Bailey's Marylebone playhouse, hence a capital audience assembled to welcome Mr. T. Morton Powell's company this week. The performance of Mr. Walter M. Cameron as Gabriel Garth is one of prominent individuality and carefully thought out effect. The enunciation of Mr. Bertram Ross as Jack Halyard is clear and effective; Mr. W. H. Melrose's Ned Pennycomequick is a typical yokel; Mr. Frank Eden does well as Dr. Sleek; Mr. Fred Rolls is decidely brisk and clever as the rollicking Mike Copplestone; whilst Mr. W. R. Winning accentuates the villainies of Sir Duncan Bly in a forcible way. Decidedly pathetic, yet withal, convincing, is the portrayal of Gertrude Garth by Miss Kate Newton, the several trying scenes with Gabriel being most artistically presented. Miss Mabel Coleman creates a most favourable impression as Lilian Garth; Miss Lizzie Morley is bright and cheery as Poppy Cornleigh; and Miss Winnie Donovan sustains the important rôle of Mercy Merry with much graceful charm and womanly tenderness. Mr. Claude Merton is the stage-manager, and Mr. Frank Eden the general-manager, for Mr. Morton Powell.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Play, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

Seen for the first time in the ancient and Royal borough of Kingston-on-Thames, this bright, witty, and tuneful play obtained a most favourable reception on its presentation at the Royal County Theatre on Monday night. Mr. George Dance has succeeded in securing a most capable company, of whom nothing but praise can be written. As the lively Gustav Babori Mr. J. S. Durant is full of life and activity, and succeeds in investing the part with an interest that never flags. Mr. Fred Payne also is remarkably good in the part of Mr. Girdle, his drolleries causing no end of fun. As Mrs. Girdle Miss Nellie Kavanagh acquits herself with distinction; and good work is also done by Miss Lillian Errol as Emmy-Lou and Mr. Louis Wigby as Stephen Henry. Miss Crissie Leonard is eminently successful in the part of Rosalie, which she invests with a naïve charm that quite captures the house, the omnibus and the tea-ship sketches in which she takes part with Girdle causing great merriment. Others who contribute materially to the success of the play are Mr. Harry Averill as Boniface, Mr. Ralph Holland and Miss Poppy Poole as the Baron and Baroness Papouche, Mr. Edwin Dodds as the waiter Felix, Miss Florence Lee as Dulcie Babori, and Mr. Moon Taylor as the hotel proprietor. The play is elaborately mounted both as regards scenery and dresses, and there are a numerous and well-trained chorus and an augmented orchestra admirably controlled by Mr. Knight Pearce.

IN our last week's issue by a printer's error we alluded to Mr. Gus Livesey as the proprietor of The Village Blacksmith. It is Mr. "Sam" Livesey who is the proprietor of the play, together with his partners, Dottridge and Longden. The company, it may be added, is breaking all previous records in Sheffield.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. George Alexander's company is appearing this week in His House in Order. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart and Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay rise to a high point of excellence in the parts of Hilary Jesson and Nina; Mr. J. Edward Pearce gives an extremely good presentation of Filmer Jesson; and the members of the Ridgeley family are most capably portrayed by Mr. George Fitzgerald, Mr. Ernest R. Holloway, Miss Augusta Haviland, and Miss Elaine Sledall. Miss Eve Grand is highly successful as Mlle. Thome; and the part of Derek Jesson is very charmingly played by Miss Moyna Hill. As this is the week of the Aberdeen Quatercentenary Celebrations, no less than three matinées have been arranged for towards the end of the visit.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The premier place among the attractions this week must be assigned to the Ten Loonies, whose sketch Dotty is most enthusiastically received. Goggin and Davis blend acrobatism and comedy admirably; Mr. Albert Windham and company appear in a highly-enjoyable sketch Frivolity; and among the other artists are Fancourt and Rubie, clever comedians; Miss Ray Ford, a sprightly comedienne and graceful dancer; Miss Janet H. Reynolds a charming vocalist; Mr. David Poole, a versatile ventriloquist; Mr. Mark Leslie, "the dusky Prince"; and Mr. Lachie Thomson's Top Weights, whose boxing, wrestling, and club-swinging are followed with the keenest interest.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—The Power of Gold is presented here this week by Mr. Frank Ayrton's No. 1 company, Miss Lilla Wilde, specially engaged for the part of Lady Brandon, gives a powerful representation; Mr. Chas. Whitlock as the Malay Doctor, is very successful; Mr. Richard Oliver is satisfactory as Paul Judson; Mr. Albert Sefton is well-suited as Mark Harley; Miss G. V. France's Meg Judson is much appreciated; Mr. Frank Ayrton causes great merriment as Sammy Smudge, and he is ably supported by Miss Madge Seymour, who becomes a firm favourite as Nora Donnelly.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Barnes.—Mrs. Bandmann Palmer and her company opened here on Monday in the new addition to her répertoire, entitled From Washerwoman to Duchess. Mrs. B. Palmer gave an excellent performance of Catherine; Fouche by Mr. F. Skein was a good representation; Mr. R. Pittard must be complimented for his reading of Lefebvre; and the Corporal was well played by Mr. A. Wilson Wynne. Miss Katharine Herbert made an ideal Rosalie, and the other parts were safely placed with Miss E. Shepherd, Miss Elsie Howe, Miss A. Cecil. Sapho, East Lynne, and Jane Shore were also included in the week's performances.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parsons.—A good bill is provided at the above hall this week. King and Benson in a very smart turn fairly brought down the house; Mr. J. S. James gives a really clever performance with the bones; Miss A. Royal has a good voice, and is well received; the Three Sisters Jonghman do well; and Happy Attwood is very funny. Bob Sandford gets fairly in touch with the audience with his descriptive songs. Sauteram is one of the best trick jumpers we have had here, and H. T. Wills is always a favourite. The Bioscope complete a good show.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Seldom has Aldershot in its history of theatre life had an opportunity of listening to grand opera rendered as it has been during this week by one of the famous Moody-Manners companies. No less than seven operas are being given during the week, comprising Faust, Lohengrin, Bohemian Girl, Carmen, Il Trovatore, Pagliacci, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Maritana. Crowded houses are naturally the order, and there was no exception on Tuesday night to welcome Miss Enriquita Crichton in her talented portrayal of Elsa; she has indeed a magnificent voice. Mr. Chas. Carter gave an effective embodiment of Lohengrin; whilst Mr. George Neilson's fine delivery of the score allotted to the king caused that rôle to stand out prominently. Miss Mary Norton is both vocally and histrionically a success as Ortrud; and Mr. Marshall Vincent's was a highly satisfactory impersonation of Frederick de Telremund; whilst Mr. Fred Earle's Herald was ably rendered. The chorus showed precision and attack, with excellent training. Magnificent costumes and superb spectacular effect are only a few of the pleasing features of the performances.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche opened here on Monday in the successful farcical comedy entitled What the Butler Saw. Mr. Rignold as Pink, the butler, is admirable; Miss Ada Blanche, as the fascinating mischievous widow, Mrs. Barrington, wins many deserved plaudits. Miss Blanche is an adept in the delineation of character where humour is closely allied to tender feeling. Mr. Rignold as Pink, the butler, is prominent all through, and his dry humour is the cause of much laughter. Mr. Chas. Fawcett's Jack Barrington is a finished portrait of the good-natured Irish gentleman. Effective portrayals of varied characters are also presented by Messrs. Reddick Anderson, George Ascott, Harry S. Rignold, Louis Lingood, Alec Alves, Roy Byford, and Frank Kingsley. Favourable mention must be specially made of Miss Marie Daltra as Miss Foden, Miss Violet Gould as Mrs. Fleming-Smyth, Miss Hylda Davies as Miss Clarissa Dunlop, Miss Vera O'Connell as Miss Selina Dunlop, Miss Annie Goward as Mrs. Hake, Miss Minnie Willett as Sophonisba, Miss Dorothy Garth as Maria, and Miss Jennie Wigney as Nora.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The excellent all-round programme here this week includes J. H. McCann, comedian and roller-skate dancer; Lack and Ford, who are very funny gymnasts; the Dancing Gilberts, an accomplished duo of sisters; the Villions, who give a clever cycling act; Lilian Levey, who sings two songs, in both of which she scores; Monty Biggs, female impersonator; the Troupe Pichel, gymnasts; Felman's Troupe of Juveniles, and the Bioscope pictures.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—In addition to providing the best of entertainment for its patrons, the management of this popular house also looks well after their personal comfort, and to this end the orchestra-stalls have been re-carpeted in lavish manner, which harmonises with the general decorations. This week's programme is an excellent one, and is contributed to by the following artists: Mlle. Lumiere, serpentine and fire danseuse, in her spectacle, "The Fairy Grotto," in which novel electrical effects are introduced; Mr. Bert Kemble, humorist; Miss Bessie Travers, ventriloquial pianist; the Babusio Brothers, clever staircase performers and head to head balancers; Lytton and Bland, comedians and dancers, in a scena, entitled, A Lesson in Love; Mr. Fred Horsfall, double-voiced mimic; Miss Daisy Kay, in coon song and dance; and Mr. E. C. Clayton, with an admirable selection of pictures.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten. — Picture entertainments are still continued here, and are being patronised by large audiences, in which the juvenile element largely predominate.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week the theatre has been occupied by Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company in The Sign of the Cross. The Marcus Superbus of Mr. Frank E. Petley was picturesque, and he had admirable support in the Tigellinus of Mr. Charles Alfred and the Licinius of Mr. J. Weatherall. Glabrio and Philodemus were cleverly taken by Mr. Frank Wood and Mr. Harry Jones; the Nero of Mr. C. York was a fine piece of acting; Favius, Titus, and Melos were in the able hands of Messrs. Walter Fleet, Geo. Stanton, and E. Chapman; and Stephanus was made most affecting by Miss Effie Dane. Miss Marie Leonhard as Mercia was responsible for a sweet portrayal of the saintly character; the Berenice of Miss Gertrude Price was a fine conception; and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia lightened the scenes in which she appeared.

BACUP. — New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. P. Howard Sturgess's company is here this week with A Queen of Villainy. Mr. Gordon Carnegh as Sir John Desborough makes the most of his small part; Mr. Alfred B. Calver gives a pleasing rendering of Alex; Mr. Lawrence Stevenson is well placed as Kit; Mr. Arthur E. Maskell as Reuben Hawk, a poacher; and Miss A. Ross Clyde as Sally Chimes, give clever studies. Dick Leicester finds a clever exponent in Mr. Owen Harris; Mr. Edward Hanley's performance as Stephen Faucit is sufficiently repulsive; and Miss Edith Blande as Cora Granville displays much malignant intensity. Miss Cecilia Desmond shows feeling as Rose Delmayne; and Mr. P. Howard Sturgess as Timothy and Miss Jessie Crammonde as Mollie keep the house fully amused.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison's company, in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, is paying a return visit here. Mr. Mollison again impersonates Lachlan Campbell in the same masterly manner as heretofore and Miss Evelyn McKay is a picturesque and winning Flora Campbell. Mr. Kendal Chalmers is a fine Tammas Mitchell; Mr. Archie W. Chappell a capital Lord Hay; and Mr. Alec F. Thompson a characteristic Wee Posty; while Miss Josephine Woodward plays Margaret Howe with much distinction.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Native Choir from Virginia, a troupe of excellent singers, consisting of six male and four female artists, are here, and please immensely by their pleasing singing.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Captain Lemar's Tennessee Guards do some lightning drill and wall-scaling acts, and Narow Brothers some good comedy cycling; the Sisters Poole prove pleasing duettists and dancers; Jack Martin is an entertaining actor-vocalist; Zanfretta and Napio are capital musical eccentrics; and Billy Hobbs is a capable coon comedian and dancer.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. Gilbert Heron and his company are this week presenting the modern comedy, The Superior Miss Pellender, which has met with a cordial reception. Miss Jessie Danvers gets every ounce of fun out of the character of Mrs. Pellender; as the frigid Miss Grace Pellender Miss Jessie Belmore is excellent; to Mr. George Belmore and Miss Muriel Meek as Noel and Nancy the piece owes much of its brightness, the boyish candour of Mr. Belmore and the spontaneous laughter of Miss Meek causing great merriment; Miss Enid Meek enacts Edith in a lackadaisical style befitting the part; Mr. Gilbert Heron himself appears as Mr. Tister, his amorous scenes with Miss Danvers being capitally carried through; the new comedietta, A Lesson in Pearls, precedes the comedy, a notice of which will be found in another column.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—Bonnie Goodwin's Real Apollo Picaninnies are creating quite a furore this week, the dancing of the youngsters securing them many recalls. After a long absence two popular favourites (Kitty Wager, comedienne, and Fred Poplar, comedian,) are paying welcome return visits, their success being more pronounced than ever; Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers, gain plenty of applause for their merry turn; Baker E. Belphor is retained for a second week, and gives fresh illustrated songs with admirable effect; Florrie Bray, comedienne, and Saxo, musician, also come in for their share of favour. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are showing the Cambridge-Harvard boat race.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitby.—A City of Sin is here this week. The company, under the direction of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott, is efficient. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman, a sound actor, is conspicuously successful in the heavy part; Mr. Conrad Heywood plays with power; Mr. W. H. Burton acts with discrimination; and Messrs. Wilfrid Grahame, C. H. Spencer, and V. W. Gully lend useful assistance. Miss Edith Wallis as the persecuted heroine presents a telling portrait; and Miss Jenny Weston deserves praise.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company in the drama The Dear Homeland, by David Muskerry. Mr. Charles O'Connor makes an excellent Roy Trevelyan; Mr. Harold C. Macartney cleverly depicts the evil Duncan Tremaine; and Mr. A. Trail as Father Gregory leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Violet Hammersley impersonates Doreen Trevelyan with vigour; Miss Olive Fulton interprets with success the rôle of Judith.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company opened here on Monday in Sunday. Miss Emelie Polini, a charming actress, ably sustained the title-rôle. Mr. Leonard Pagden was an excellent Col. Brinthorpe; and the difficult rôle of Arthur Brinthorpe was creditably sustained by Mr. G. Wallace Johnston. Mr. William Lockhart was a most amusing Towser; and Mr. Sidney Renouf submitted a skilful impersonation of Davy. Congratulations are due to Mr. Arthur Vezin for his interpretation of Jacky; and in the rôle of Lively Mr. Cecil Yapp did well. Miss McAimee Murray submitted a clever impersonation of Mrs. Naresby.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—The leading attraction at this popular hall is provided by Hill and Whitaker, vocalists and instrumentalists; Mr. Gustave Fasola executes some startling feats; the Gregson Trio appear to advantage in their comedy sketch, The Dummy; and the Athlones appear in their marvellous athletic speciality. A feature of the bill is provided by the Deer Family of genuine North American Indians, in their sensational act, Indians of the Past; and also here are Mr. Chas. Austin, Mr. Fred Arthur, and the Palace pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Harry Tate's company tops the bill, and in the first house presents Motoring, and in the second Fishing. Much amusement is also created by the Smythson's Comedy Company in The Lie Alarm; the Monte Myro Troupe introduce with much effect their sketch, Terrible Adventures in a Café; and the Stella Troupe are capital vocalists and dancers. Also appearing are Miss Nettie Starr, a charming comedienne; the Bros. Obo, ably described as "laughing comedians"; Mr. Charles Leonard Fletcher, and the Empire pictures.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company continues its successful career here, good houses nightly being the rule. This week Hand in Hand, by Mr. Fred Benton, is the attraction, and congratulations are due to that charming actress Miss Nina Blake-Adams for her skilful impersonation of Grace Edmondson. Mr. Cyril Grier furnished a clever impersonation of Edgar Hartington; and the villainies of Herbert Hartington were realistically portrayed by Mr. Horace Denton. Miss Alice Clarke made a skilful Polly; and the humour of the piece was in the safe hands of Mr. T. H. Solly, who was certainly very funny as the poetical Billy Barton. Miss Norah Caronne was seen to advantage as Elsie Marchant; and other rôles were admirably sustained.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—With good scenery and characteristic dresses, Napoleon the Great is being played here by Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company. In the title-rôle Mr Hugh Montgomery takes advantage of his opportunities; Miss Elsie Warner's Marie is interesting; the two colonels, Lavarennes and Jules Meuron, have satisfactory exponents in Mr. Henry Earlsmere and Mr. Phil Harper; Miss Maud Russell is a capable Leonie; and Mr. Bartlett Garth, a fierce Paul Laczinkska. Very good service is also rendered by Mr. Frank M. Thorne, Mr. Albert Sinclair, Miss Marie Harcourt, and Miss Florence Thorne.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Walter Reynolds's new play, Mr. Smith, forms a strong attraction here. A capital rendering of the title-rôle by Mr. Cecil Du Gue receives flattering recognition; the Earl of Oxted is well represented by Mr. Sydney Price; the Duke of Angleland is in the capable hands of Mr. Wm. Dunlop; and Mr. Geo. F. Rose gives an admirable interpretation of Herr Deidrich Anheuser. Lady Mary Hildergate is finely played by Miss Elaina Gaunt; Miss Mildred Cottell is stately and effective as the Duchess; Miss Daisy England is well suited as Mrs. Smith; Ruth Anheuser is admirably undertaken by Miss Phyllis Relph; and remaining parts are capably played by Mr. Austin Spencer, Mr. Russell Norrie, and Mr. A. W. Jones.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Six Brothers Luck are continuing a successful engagement, appearing this week in the pantomimic absurdity Blazes, with excellent results. Mr. Melot Hermann, in his mystifying entertainment, is a big favourite; and Lieut. Travis, the popular ventriloquist, is also a leading feature. Other prominent attractions are Miss Minnie Cunningham, a charming comedienne; Mr. Cliff Ryland, comedian; Johnson and Bert, in their sketch A Queer Customer; Miss Gracie Taylor, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The White Chrysanthemum reveals its attractions here for the first time, gaining most flattering encomiums for Mr. Frank Curzon's company. Miss Nora Guy, a most accomplished actress and vocalist, merges herself in the title-rôle with charming effect; Miss Daisy Le Hay, who proves a most delightful chaperone, discourses on "Hints" in an arch and well-pointed manner; Miss Katie Vesey, whose exquisite dancing and shapely form are admired in the rôle of the wealthy Cordelia, is an undoubted attraction; Mr. O. E. Lennon capers nimbly, and makes a big hit as Sin Chong; Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., disports well as the ingenuous Perks; Mr. F. Pope-Stamper is acclaimed for his vigour and good humour as Lieut. Reginald Armitage; and those clever and well-contrasted comedians, Messrs. Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins, swell the mirth as Lieutenant "Chippy" Belmont and Admiral Amitage respectivey.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Belle of Mayfair, which is also on its initial visit, is bringing honours and full houses to Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and Chas. Frohman's company. First, Mr. Percy Yorke deserves a special meed of praise for his splendid enunciation as the Earl; Mr. Vernon Davidson plays the rôle of the ardent lover, Raymond, in a most efficient way; Mr. Chas. McNaughton appears in capital and quaint relief as the old parvenu, Chaldicott; Mr. Wensley Russell sustains the rôle of Hugh Meredith with much éclat and spirit; Miss Alice Russon invests the dainty Julia with sparkling animation, and sings the songs allotted her with rare sweetness; Miss Joan Keddie is much appreciated for her happy style as the Princess; and the Misses Blanche Massey, Barbara Huntley, Rosa Snell, and Maud Aston, together with Messrs. Robert Whyte, jun., Trueman Towers, A. W. Metcalfe, Cecil Clayton, and G. F. Ide, certainly contribute to the success achieved.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The Village Blacksmith is here in the person of Mr. Sam Livesey, who for his vigorous and dramatic exposition of the title-rôle, John Strong, receives a rousing reception nightly. Mr Joseph Carter gives a graphic study of villainy as Captain Lee; Miss Maggie Edwards arouses the strongest admiration and sympathy as the persecuted wife, Kate; Miss Bertha Hanbury delights the audience as Harry Strong; Mr. G. V. Campbell affords many amusing moments as Billy Twigg; Mrs. T. C. Livesey's clever powers of comedy are seen to advantage in the rôle of Sal Parkins; Miss Cassie Le Grand proves an effective actress as Ruth; Mr Edwin Maydew acts in a suitable style as the catspaw, Lucas Marlow; and Mr. Thos. E. Marshall is highly successful as Jeremiah Parkins.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris. Felton.—The Power of the Cross has signified its attractiveness by drawing a full house here nightly. Mr. Lingford Carson supplies the company, with Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby as Baron Woulfe Curzola, a character which originates from an old Hungarian legend, and which, in the present case, is acted with great skill and power. Mr. H. C. Rutland meets with much applause for his clever acting as Gerald Fairfax; Mr. Royce Carleton depicts Leslie Fairfax with much success; Miss Stanley Burt gains sympathy as the unfortunate Margaret Seaton; Miss Cissie St. Elmo gives full play to the rôle of Rita Lascelles; Miss May Grayce appears as Blanche Kingsley with good effect; and the humorous sallies of Mr. Richard E. Nugent as Timothy O'Dowd and Miss Etta Turner as Dolly Gray prove most diverting. Other clever rôles include Mr. L. Fred Tenour as Benjamin Hawke, Mr. J. Murton as David Kingsley, and Mr. Rupert Ronald as Inspector Blake.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—An Unwedded Wife made its first appearance in Birmingham on Monday, when its reception proved distinctly favourable. Miss Ethel Van Praagh, in the title-rôle, showed remarkable emotional power, sympathy for the betrayed woman being heartfelt and sustained; Mr. Edward Whitty as John Hawthorne acted in a highly satisfactory manner; Mr. E. St. Claire Forbes played the part of Philip Blackstone with a thoroughness that won him eloquent manifestations of success; Little Ella showed wonderful intelligence as the boy, Reggie; Miss Violet Wilson as the persecuted Elsie Langham acted finely; Mr. Reginald Payne gave the necessary ring of sincerity to the part of Frank Armstrong; and some excellent comic relief was forthcoming from Mr. F. C. Imbert as Napoleon Boomer, Miss Amy Coralli as Caraway Crumpet, and Mr. Harry Townley as Perkinson Pimple.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Swiss Express is running successfully here. Messrs. C. and F. Renad in their rôles of the doctor's servants continue to contrive many mirth-provoking situations; Mr. Johnny McElroy takes an active part as Dr. Gull; Mr. George Martin shares in the plot with much success as Bob Rollington; Mr. Alec Wylie is egergetic as Dudley Green; Miss Ida Ernest figures to much advantage and charm as the bride, Virginia; and the Misses Blanche Lee, Rosa George, Violet Lee, Dore Moorhouse, and Messrs. A. E. Cooke, G. Mason, Harwood Cooper, C. Gray, and Mons. Leloire shine in the production, which is also supported by the Edene Quartette of vocalists and dancers.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Her Fatal Past is being played here by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. Miss Ward, in the titular part, Honor Symes, is responsible for many tears, her clever acting striking a deep, pathetic note. Miss Adeline Raby excites due aversion by her bold and skilled acting as the adventuress, Bella de Lara; Mr. Wilson Coleman still further excites the antipathies of the audience by his strenuous acting as Gilbert Fernside, the villain; Mr. Geo. M. Newall as Mark Desmond has the sympathies of the house deep set; Miss Audrey Sutherland is admired as Little Leonard; Mr. T. Edward Ward is a pillar of strength as the truly humorous Nobbs; and the comedy parts, which are numerous and strong, include Mr. Sydney Byrant as Dicky Bird, Mr. Claude Pagett as Treadaway, Miss Gertie Reid as Kitty Sprigwell, and Miss Ettie Spalding as Martha Sprigwell

Empire Palace. — Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—T. E. Dunville is attracting crowded audiences here, his eccentric mannerisms, songs, and patter being most entertaining. Wilson and Waring come in for a good deal of applause; Harriet Vernon renders her songs with her usual success; some clever dances are done by the Eight Sunrays. Professor Therese in a comedy hypnotic act; Hans and Lux; and Roy Glen and Ryder Slone, comedians, appear with success; and another good turn is Barnard's Mannikins.

Gaiety Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The ever popular Vesta Victoria is here again; her songs are repeatedly encored. Gladys Mavius sings well; the McConnell Trio are seen in an amusing musical farce; the Sisters Chester, vocalists and banjoists, are excellent; and other popular turns are those of the Bros. Bright, Eily Adair, Leslie Race, and Fields and Lewis.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Leo Dryden presents his song scenas, which are received with loud applause; Roxborough and Wright have an amusing sketch, Cockie, which goes well; Daisy Dormer sings her coon songs in an effective manner; Mlle. Kloet poses in an artistic manner; and a long programme concludes with a series of pictures shown by the Barrascope.

Bordesley Palace. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The Amber Light is being presented here by Fred Eustance and company, all the parts being well acted, the principal rôle being in the hands of Mary Eustance. The Haytors are as popular as ever; Vernando gives a novel and clever ventriloquial turn; Edith Courtney sings sweetly; and Fred Lincoln and Halter and Ray are applauded.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Charles Carey's company is here this week in After the Ball. Colonel Menit is admirably played by Mr. Algernon W. Lee; Mr. Percy Baverstock as Colonel Joseph Menit and Mr. Buckstone Clair as Martin are responsible for much laughter; Dick Seymour is capably handled by Mr. Norman Bowyer; Miss M. Sadie is a vivacious and captivating Nancy; as Kitty Miss Nellie James is good; Miss Eva Ellis is pleasing as Ruth Gay; and Miss Queenie Finnis sings some excellent coon songs in the rôle of Nellie Mather.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Mr. Edward Terry and company are paying another of their very welcome visits here this week, and meeting with their usual and well-deserved successes. Liberty Hall, which has only recently been added to Mr. Terry's répertoire, was the play selected for Monday, and the part of William Todman found in Mr. Terry an ideal exponent. Sir Hartley Chilworth was played in a very pleasing manner by Mr. Allan Pollack, whilst Gerald Harringay was ably accounted for by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun. Miss Fyfe Alexander as Blanche Chilworth and Miss F. Glossop Harris as Amy Chilworth play their respective parts in the right spirit; and Miss Eugenie Vernie is a capital Crafer. The Magistrate and Sweet Lavender have also been presented during the week.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergeanson.—A Girl on the Stage, most capably performed by one of Mr. George Edwardes' best companies, is proving an immense attraction here this week. There is not a weak spot in the whole cast. With Miss Queenie Leighton as Marie Montrose, Mr. Arthur Longley as Algernon Southdown, Mr. J. R. Hale as Lord Congress, Mr. John Humphries as Shingle, Mr. Lennox Pawle as Lord Sanctobury, Miss Fanny Dango as Lady Isabel, Miss Valli Valli as Lady Dorothy, Mr. Colin Coop as Alderman Briggs, and Mr. Nelson Keys as Ethelbert, together with a strong and tuneful chorus, pretty dresses, and magnificent scenery, a brilliant success is the natural result.

Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A brilliant star programme is provided here this week. The Harmony Four appear in a musical sketch; Jock Whiteford is a popular Scotch comedian; Sanford and Lyons catch on as dancers; Leonard and Francis cause hilarity with their bull-fighters' burlesque; Henri Cazman gives his one-man music hall turn; Horace White is a clever ventriloquist; Dolly Golden dances well; and Charles Norton is a favourite mimic.

Hippodrome. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—Marie Collins tops this week's bill. Walter Curtis is also a great favourite. Other capital turns are given by Baker and Balfe, xylophone artists; Mezzetti and Mora, acrobats; Jimmy Shields, comedian; Bessie Lind, comedienne; The Cranleighs, vocalists; Cleveland Burlesque Company; Rai Walters, comedian; and Sisters Terry, burlesque artists.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The visit this week of Miss Hettie Jeffries' company with the comedy-drama entitled The Curate, has proved a popular one. In the part of the Rev. John Audley we renew acquaintance, after a long absence, with a very old favourite in the person of Mr. Geoffrey Broughton, who gives a powerful reading of a prominent character in the play. To Mr. Whitmore Ledger every praise is due for an admirable portrayal of Gilbert Westwood. Mr. T. Handley as Gregory Verner achieved a success; and Mr. Harry Edlin was an amusing Simon Peter Muggs. The May Verner of Miss Annie Stewart was well received; whilst Dick the Trumpeter, in the hands of Miss Hettie Jeffries, was a decided success, and won the hearty applause of the audience. For Friday night The Bells was underlined, with Mr. Whitmore Ledger in his successful impersonation of Mathias.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. George E. Good. —The week's programme includes Carman's Juveniles, in a pleasing scena, entitled Christmas Eve; the Two Dawns, speciality dancers; and Martengo, 'cellist and baritone.

The Gaiety.—Proprietor, Councillor Jno. Grantham, J.P.; General-Manager, Mr. Snoudeni James.—The Albion Glee Singers top the bill, and are a popular turn; Rolfe, ventriloquist, wins success; Bob Long, dancer; Joe Ritson, tenor; Southall and Palmer, vocalists; George Mayo, in feats of strength; R. D. Grundy, baritone; and bioscope, supply attractive items.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—The attraction here is the old Adelphi drama, The Trumpet Call, from the pen of G. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan. The company presenting it is Mr. Chas. F. Cooke's. Mr. Leonard Yorke ably takes the part of Cuthbert Cuthbertson; Sergeant-Major Milligan is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. F. Cooke; Mr. Joe Bracewell (an old favourite here) is very humorous as Professor Giniifer; Mr. John Dennys plays forcibly the part of Richard Featherstone, the villain; and Mr. Freddie Bentley is sprightly as Tommy Dutton. Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill is sympathetic in her representation of Constance; Miss Doris Gilham appears with success in the trying part of Astrea; and Miss Phyllis B. French is sweet as Lavinia Ginnifer.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Foremost this week are Paulinetta and Piquo in their original gymnastic act. Mary Glenn is an excellent Scottish vocalist; Cavelli, a promising and clever ventriloquist; Dora Lyric, a refined comedienne; the Four Jumels, admirable in their musical act; and George French, "the amiable idiot" comedian, has lost none of his popularity. Other attractions include H. Leslie Bell and Lily Pearl in their comedy vaudeville, A Bit of String; Mark Merry, a quaint comedian in Mirthful Melancholy; Mozzetto, juggler; Mephisto, a clever society contortionist; Hall and Earle, eccentric comedians; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The boards are occupied here this week by Mr. Chas. Harrington's company in the drama Sailors of the King. The play is interesting throughout, and the company a capable one. Mr. Chas. Harrington makes a good Admiral Drake; and Mr. Frank Stephens a powerful and manly Dick Drake. Miss Madge North is pleasing in the character of Felicia Phrynne; and Miss Lilly Prescot is admirable as Daisy Dent. Villainy is well represented by Mr. R. F. Stacey as Orrel Drake; and Miss Sylvia Stella scores as Rebecca Crosby. Much merriment is caused by Mr. K. Black, jun., as Barnet Fair, and Miss Hero Hatherly as Penelope Pen.

BOSTON.—Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrim.—An excellent variety company is engaged here this week. The Marvellous Pardoes score heavily in On the Sands at Brighton; Miss Lottie Holland sings refined songs; and Teddy Voke is amusing in his musical sketch; Fish and O'Neal, Violet Rivers, Tom Hulme, and Elsie Kedwards complete a very good programme. The Bioscope adds to the enjoyment of the audience.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. George Dance's principal company in Lady Madcap, under the management of Mr. J. Parson, is paying a return visit. Mr. J. Knox-Orde has made a careful study of Count St. Hubert, and renders the part with much effect; Mr. Bay Russell, who can sing and dance, does very well as Stratford, and is assisted by Mr. James Graydon as Posh Jenkins. A really excellent study of Oroya Brown is provided by Mr. Harold Parks, who is genuinely humorous, and he is well supported by Mr. G. Whillis as Corporal Ham. The title-rôle is undertaken by Miss Isabelle Dillon, who does full justice to the character, and other good performances come from Miss Ethel Beech as Susan, Miss Maud Davis as Gwenny, and Messrs. Emlyn Jenkins, E. Crestfan, Sherriff Clunes, and Frank Hilton as the four Hussars.

BRADFORD. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Musical comedy still holds the stage here, and a return visit of The Catch of the Season is cordially welcomed by packed audiences. The company is Mr. George Dance's, and a fine exponent of the bustling part of the Duke of St. Jermyns has been found in Mr. Frank Lincoln. In Miss Zena Dare (whose entrance in the character of Angela was the signal for quite an ovation) Mr. Lincoln has a charming, vivacious, and very graceful partner. Mr. E. H. Kelly as Lord Dundreary and Mr. Julian Cross as Sir John Crystal lend admirable support. Master Grata, who is quite a prodigy, elicits much laughter as Bucket, the page; Miss Belle Napier gives a delightful performance of Lady Caterham; Miss Gwynneth Galton is admirable as The Duchess; the stern Lady Crystal has an able exponent in Miss Ida Mann, and Miss Margaret Saville and Miss Jane Eyre are good as her pampered daughters. Mr. Alfred Lloyd well fills the part of the much-married Mr. Gibson, and his daughters and the Lucille Girls are a bevy of very charming ladies. The familiar numbers are well rendered, and the comedy, which goes with a merry swing from first to last, is beautifully staged.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Messrs. Ernest Carpenter and Sidney Cooper are presenting here this week The Spider and the Fly, in which the acting is good and the scenic effects excellent. The much-tried hero, Cyril Girdlestone, has a very capable exponent in Mr. Stanley S. Gordon, and Stella Gray, the Spider of the story, is an able performance by Miss Nancy St. John is a dainty comedienne; Horace Wheatley, comedian, affords great pleasure; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's company opened here on Monday with The Adventures of Lady Ursula. Mr. Norman's Sir George Sylvester was an excellent character study; Miss Beatrice Wilson gave a charming portrayal of Lady Ursula, whose brother found a capital exponent in Mr. Dennis Clough; Mr. Francis Hope was well suited as the Rev. Mr. Blimboe; Miss Sybil Ruskin was a graceful Dorothy Fenton; and Miss Hilda Gregory as Mrs. Fenton and Mr. Brember Wills as Mr. Dent also merit praise. The programme for the week also includes Nell Gwynn.

NEW PALACE PIER.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope proves very attractive here. Prominent among the capital series of pictures are "Chinese Coolies," "Life in the Rand Mines," "The Continental Smugglers," "The Dream of a Rarebit Fiend," and "The Terrible Kids." The bioscope is a happy blend of instruction and humour.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—A large audience was attracted on Monday by Mr. George Alexander's company in Mr. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order. The play is staged in a very complete and artistic manner. Miss Auriol Lee is highly successful in the difficult and exacting part of Nina; Mr. Frank Fenton submits a careful and convincing study of Hilary Jesson; Mr. Cyril Harcourt does full justice to the rôle of Filmer Jesson; Miss Carmen Woods acts prettily as the child, Derek Jesson; Mr. Adam Alexander, capitally made up, presents a clever study of the narrow-minded Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. George Silver makes the most of the rather objectionable part of Pryce Ridgeley; and Mr. Charles Tyrel is admirably placed as Major Maurewarde. Lady Ridgeley has an excellent exponent in Mrs. Kemmis; Miss Audrey Campbell is sufficiently austere and precise as Geraldine Ridgeley; and Mlle. Juliette Milo is pleasing as the French governess, Mlle. Thome. The smaller parts of Dr. Dilnott, Harding, Forshaw, and the two servants are satisfactorily taken by Mr. James Annaud, Mr. Langford Brown, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. W. Barnett Parker, and Mr. Frank Elton.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The popular drama, The Span of Life, is the attraction here, the sensational act of the "Human Bridge" being smartly done by the Almo Trio of Acrobats. Mr. Kyburn Dellar acts with care as Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffat presents an excellent study of Dunstan Leech; Miss M. Douglas plays well as Cecil Jelf; Miss Ella Willmer is pleasing and sympathetic as Kate Heathcote; Miss Phylis Hamilton is stately and effective as Mrs. Jelf; and Miss Kitty Russell and Mr. Walter Dale do justice to the comic parts of Shrove Tuesday and Nutty Brown. The remaining rôles are all carefully performed.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Mr. Fred Ginnett's company is here with the sensational equestrian spectacle, Dick Turpin's Ride to York. The sketch is well staged and carefully played, Mr. Fred Ginnett obtaining much applause for his clever performance of Dick Turpin. Ross and Grayson are highly successful in a mélange of music, singing, and dancing; Carl and Carr amuse with their speciality, Fun Outside the Workhouse; the Karno Trio have a good knockabout sketch, The Traveller's Rest; Miss Lily Stuart is a pleasing coon vocalist and dancer; Walter King, comedian, obtains applause; Frank Maura, Mexican juggler, does a good turn; and the programme also includes interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—The French comedienne, Eugenie Fougère, heads the programme, and, though her cleverly rendered songs are given in the French language, she obtains well-deserved appreciation, and is also much applauded for a graceful dance. George M. Marriott's company scores a success in the romantic musical sketch, The Maid of the Alps, Mr. Marriott appearing as Mother Potard, and Miss Edith Finlay as Louise. Max Duffek, musical contortionist, obtains applause; Bert Brantford, patter comedian, is amusing; Grant and Allen, speciality comedians, are appreciated; Morny Cash, comedian, has a flattering reception; the Itrams score with their speciality perch act; Bromley and Fontein have a good scena, A Musical Birthday; Margaret Agnes, comedienne, is decidedly pleasing; and the Empire animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. Fred J. Watson.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character had a good reception on Monday, when Mr. Douglas Bruce's company drew a large house, who were very appreciative of the good all-round acting. Miss Evelyn Clyde as Molly Vernon was seen to advantage. Villainy was excellently presented by Mr. Frank Adair as Capt. Caversham, and Miss Lydia Manningham as Marian Franklyn; as Rev. Robt. Everton Mr. Edwin J. Collins gave a good study; Mr. C. W. Standing merits much praise for his portrayal of Jack England; Mr. Geo. H. Asquin as Dick Punch, and Miss Daisy Maynard as Isabella Jones revelled in their comedy business; Miss Ethel Bracewell was a charming Rose Seymour; James Sutton (a repentant forger) was played effectively by Mr. George Mitchell. The play was produced by Mr. Douglas Bruce, scenery and staging being first-class.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Large audiences are here witnessing The Geisha, presented by Mr. Mouillot's company. Miss Lydia Bland sings sweetly and acts charmingly as O Mimosa San; Miss Doris Langdon is clever as O Juliette Diamante; Miss Edith Adeson is vivacious as Molly; Mr. Wilfred Heath as Reginald Fairfax makes excellent use of a good voice; Mr. E. Pollard is good as Dick Cunningham; the Marquis Imarie of Mr. J. H. Booth is a clever representation; and Mr. Royton Hoare performs well as Arthur Cuddy. The life of the piece is Mr. Edward Kipling, who plays the rôle of Wun Hi, and is heartily applauded. Mr. Harry Reynolds does well as Takemine; Miss Winifred Knightly is an aristocratic Lady Constance; and Miss Emily Lovell is good as Tom Manley. A Greek Slave was presented on Thursday.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Columbia Comedy Trio give an excellent performance here this week. Paulton and Dooley are smart and funny cyclists; Harry Marte is a good comedian; and Welda and Wynne in a comedy act are most acceptable. Florence Wood, serio, is well received; Zeta Grey and company create endless laughter with their comedy, The Lancashire Lass; the Three Whirligigs are clever dancers; and Farley, Rennie, and Farley in a comedy sketch are very good.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — THE NEW HIPPODROME (late Opera House). — Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Walter.—The new venture has fairly caught on, and crowded houses are the rule. Gulliver gives a clever show with his Lilliputians; the Redferns (Ruby and Elsie) are seen to advantage in dance and with the banjo; Thos. Cook did a turn in place of Mr. Fred Lester, who is indisposed; the Maros cause roars of laughter in their triple bar act; Mabelle May shines in song and dance; an up-to-date trick bicycle exhibition is presented by the Swift Trio; Mlle. Lucretia sings a pleasing song, and her dance fairly captivates the audience; Mr. James Stewart, the original tramp at the piano, is responsible for some smart work; and the Raymond's Bio-Tableaux with good pictures is also in evidence.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — ATHENÆUM HALL. — Manager, Mr. E. A. Crack.—Messrs. Smith and Ramsdale's company in The Babes in the Wood occupied the boards here on Monday. As Dame Koff Droppe, Mr. Fred Ramsdale kept the fun going merrily; Mr. J. H. Maxwell lending excellent aid as the Wicked Baron Whatts-his-name. Miss Lilian Ramsdale was a sprightly Robin Hood; Miss Elsie Douglas played Maid Marion in a captivating manner; and some graceful dancing was contributed by the Sisters Glynne. Aladdin was given on Tuesday night

BUXTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For the first three nights of this week we had Mr. Walter Maxwell's company in The Lion and the Mouse. There can be no two opinions about the excellence of the company. Miss Christine Silver's Shirley Rossmore was a fine piece of acting; Mr. Leslie Carter as John Burkett Ryder contributed a clever study of the millionaire; Mr. Stephen Wentworth played with sound judgment as Jeff Ryder; Mr. J. W. Mackie was amusing as the Hon. Fitzroy Bayley; and Mr. George Lyttleton did well what was required of him as James Rossmore. Mr. Richard Norton was a capable Mr. Stott (Rossmore's legal adviser), and Mr. John Wheatman played J. Whitmore Roberts, M.P., suitably. Miss Dorrie Roberts acted nicely as Kate Roberts, and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon was admirably placed as Mrs. Ryder.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Another excellent piece has been produced here this week in Held in Bondage. Mr. Vivian Grantham is responsible for the production, and also enacts Sir John Hawthorne in a most creditable manner; Mr. Richard Vane makes a capital villain in his personation of Prince Mazaroff; Miss Florence Tyrrell is seen to advantage as Zara; Mr. Charles Stirling plays Ivan Dronski very ably; Mr. George Scully (Harry Dunn), and Miss Maude Merrick (Lisette) supply the comic element, and Mr. Cecil Vernon Procter (Paul). Mr. Robert Dryden (Colonel Ispanoff), Mr. Harold Knight (Dr. Petrovitch), Miss Grace Baring (Leonie Devigne), Miss Amy Rudd (Princess Mazaroff), and Miss Joan Pereira (Baroness Augusta Vallinski), all give adequate support.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Patrons of the Royal are favoured with a visit this week of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and company. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented to a large audience Mr. Benson's impersonation of Shylock was a clever piece of acting, the popular actor being responsible for a most interesting reading of that much-discussed character. Equally successful was Mrs. Benson, whose Portia was excellent. Mr. Clarence Derwent as Antonio acquitted himself creditably; and as Bassanio Mr. George Buchanan displayed ability, Mr. H. O. Nicholson's portrayal of Gratiano being carefully studied delineation. Mr. George R. Weir was good as Launcelot Gobbo; and Miss Helen Haye as Nerissa, and Miss Olive Noble as Jessica, gave two acceptable impersonations. On Tuesday Twelfth Night was presented. Hamlet, Macbeth, As You Like it, and Henry the Fifth, are also in the répertoire of the week.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Under the Czar was staged here on Monday by Mr. Jarman's company. The principal character of Nicholas Yerosloff was taken by Mr. Newton Buckland in a capable manner; Mr. Gerald Smythe gave a life-like portrayal of Captain Johnson; and Mr. W. H. Riley as Rovesky made good use of his opportunities. Sonia was charmingly played by Miss Francesca Strickland; Miss Nancy Newell gave a characteristic rendering of Zara; and Miss Linda Riley was a clever Siomka.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—An excellent programme is being presented here. Tschernoff's animals are certainly clever; another quadruped turn is The Rejected Remounts, a diverting equestrian sketch by Fred Ginnett's company; the attractive comedienne, Carlotta Levey, is a favourite with her capital songs; Kelly and Gillette are extremely amusing; the Lyons Trio evoke applause for a capital pantomime sketch; the Vernon Troupe are certainly smart xylophone players; and Die Obersteirers, with their Swiss singing and dancing; Chas. Vincent, a clever comedienne; and Dorothy Clarke, a pleasing ballad vocalist, with the Bioscope, complete the bill. On Tuesday, the 25th, grand anniversary performances were held to celebrate the sixth year of the Empire, and enthusiastic audiences packed the house.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. J. W. Turner is always a big favourite here, and on the opening night of his engagement, when he appeared as Don Cæsar de Bazan in the ever-popular Maritana, the house was packed in every part. Mr. T. Griffiths as Don Jose again sang and acted with his accustomed refinement and skill; the King of Spain was successfully impersonated by Mr. Sidney Clifford; the title-rôle was in the safe hands of Miss Kitty Brownlees, a charming vocalist and clever actress, and Miss Jessie Dennis did particularly well as Lazarillo.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—A well varied programme is being provided here this week, the principal attraction being the Martelloni troupe of lady acrobats and vaulters, who are making their first appearance in England at this theatre. They do some remarkable feats. J. W. Rickaby is a most amusing comedian; as a humorous imitator of animals Gilbert Girard scores a big success; Cyclumina contributes a smart turn with his electric cycle act, and the Calcotts, who know how to play a banjo, also score as dancers; Miss Jennie Sydney is a particularly neat dancer, and Fraser and Haley, duettists and dancers, and some effective and interesting pictures by the Pepiscope complete the bill.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—The Love that Women Desire is being presented here by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's excellent company, under the personal direction of Mr. Hugh Wallace. Mr. J. O. Stewart's study of the unscrupulous Squire Abington is a strong piece of work, and stands out as one of the best performances of the evening. Mr. Fred Lloyd as Philip Carnaby wins much favour by his excellent acting in a trying part; Miss Laila Stanhope plays Sybil Thorburn, whose trials and troubles she portrays in a winning manner; while from Miss Alice N. Livesey comes a convincing study of Madge Abingdon. Mr. Alfred Grenville gives a capital delineation of the villain Richard Abington; Mr. Chas. Herberte is clever, and makes the most of his part as Frank Hardy; Mr. John Hignett is funny, and causes much laughter as Dennis O'Rourke. Assisting in the comedy scenes, Miss Helen Richmond as Pattie Swift acts with much vigour, and achieves a complete success. The stage-manager, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, as P.C. Sowerberry is also responsible for much unctuous humour. Mr. E. Morris makes a successful Bailiff; while Miss Violet Haye is seen to advantage as Molly.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Are you a Mason? as represented by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, is creating a roar of laughter from start to finish. Mr. E. H. Paterson is highly successful as Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Howard L. Tracy a capital Frank Perry; Mr. Edwin Millins' John Halton is a fine bit of work; Mr. Ernest Cossart's George Fisher is quite a triumph; Miss Adelaide Grace is decidedly good as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; and Miss Minnie Rayner is an amusing little Lotti. The rôles of Eva, Lulu, and Annie, Mrs. Bloodgood's three daughters, are in the safe hands of the Misses Mabel Younge, Babs Stuart, and Madge Merrique respectively. The farce is preceded by the one-act play, The Ruby Heart.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford. — Baron H. Harriss's company in The Prince of Pilsen opened a week's engagement on Monday. Mr. Harry Kilburn as the brewer is inimitably droll and amusing; Miss Sophie Harriss is irresistible as Mrs. Maddison Crocker; Mr. Frank Crimp as the Prince is picturesque, and makes a hit in a duet with the heroine, Miss Dorothy Grasdorff, a very charming skirt-dancer and pleasing vocalist; Mr. Roy Sidney as the young American lieutenant is clever; Miss Florence Deech acts prettily as the Vassar girl; Mr. Bernard Russell is funny as the inevitable dude; Mr. G. W. Hulme is distinctly imposing as the first gendarme; Mr. Ernest Gifford as the waiter, Miss Connie Leon as the lady's maid, and Miss Mollie Wynne are a very lively trio, all being remarkably nimble dancers. The members of the chorus are well drilled.

MUNICIPAL ENTERTAINMENTS. — A complimentary benefit performance was given on Wednesday at the Town Hall to Mr. Alfred W. Newton, the popular director.

CHORLEY (Lancs.)—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—The attraction this week is Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' pantomime, The Babes in the Wood. Miss Gerty McQueen undertakes the part of Robin Hood with capital effect; Miss Fanny Adamson being also good as Maid Marian. Ally Benson is a host in himself as Dame Flossie, and the Baron is well placed in the hands of Mr. Ernest Thirlway; Messrs. Trayner and O'Conner are responsible for much fun as Blustering Bill and Wavering Wally, and Billy the Buttons is excellently portrayed by Paddy Mills. Miss Gertie Wasley is charming as Fairy Goodheart, and Miss Hilda Deacon very effective as Dolly Dimple. The chorus and ballet are particularly smart.

TOWN HALL.—This hall is occupied by Mr. Chas. W. Poole's up-to-date Myriorama. The pictures are relieved by an excellent variety entertainment, the turns including Woolford's performing ponies, dogs, &c.; the Fordyces, attractive singers and dancers; Dane's Marionettes, cleverly worked; Coma, a smart Japanese juggler, and Harry Raymond, an entertaining coon.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—PALACE, LTD.—Dagonet's Society Entertainers, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Blascheck, are here this week. They include Misses Mildred Wrighton and Lily Beaton and Messrs. Henry Stockwell, Claude Hamilton, and Reginald Mountfield.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert I. Montague.—The attraction here this week is the sensational drama No Man's Land, presented by Miss Ida Millais' company (under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne). Miss Millais is worthy of high praise for her careful handling of Mary Bathurst; Mr. Henry Herne gives a highly satisfactory performance of Harry Oatlands; Nat Marsden is convincingly portrayed by Mr. A. G. Lytton; in the dual rôles of Gilbert and Captain Norman Bathurst Mr. Alfred Bryon displays histrionic abilities; Silas Moore is cleverly acted by Mr. Frank Dennis; Mr. Vernon L. Thomas does well as Thompson Poodle; Miss Nancy Mitchell is well placed as Bessie Poodle; and Mrs. Poodle is safe in the hands of Mrs. Mallalieu.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—The attraction this week is that charming lyrical comedy, The White Chrysanthemum, and it is being presented by Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company. In the title-rôle Miss Muriel George was well placed, her voice being both powerful and particularly sweet, whilst as Reggie Armitage Mr. H. Langdon Bruce gave her every assistance; Mr. H. E. Garden as Chippy Belmont and Miss Nellie Groves as Cornelia Vanderdecken were perhaps the hits of the evening, their styles being characteristic and decidedly clever; Mr. Charles Schmiedt as the Admiral, Mr. Richard Jelford as Sin Chong, and Mr. Jamie Dallas as Perky were three extremely clever humorists, and caused some genuine merriment, whilst the gay young widow was worthily represented by Miss Emily Taylor.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—Le Diabelo, looping the devil's wheel, tops this week's bill; the Brown and Kelly combination present a funny sketch entitled The Butler Knows; Miss Harvery has a hearty reception, and is encored for her songs, whilst another turn which finds favour is the Sisters Brooks, duettists and dancers. The pictures are capital, and the bill is completed by Blanche Holt, Anglo-Dutch comedienne and dancer, and Harry Leroy.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarence.—Miss Lillian Beezant's company has fulfilled a three nights' engagement here with An Actor's Romance. Mr. R. Eardley Howard did well as Harold Davenport; as Robert Livingstone Mr. Cecil Flower was capable; Mr. Harry Agar Lyons made an excellent Jack Woodford; as Charlie Cummins Mr. Harry Wren was funny; Ikey Isaacs was in the able hands of Mr. Percy Warlow; and Mr. Ernest F. Wallace was commendable as Lester Bond. Miss Beatrice looked an attractive Louise Davenport; as Florence Hastings Miss Florence Nelson was forcible; Miss Marion Ryder as Phyllis Davenport was deserving of praise; and as Dotty Dillingham Miss Lillian Beezant deserved the applause accorded her. Mr. Bannister Howard's company with The Christian, was billed to appear on Thursday.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company opened here on Monday in Charley's Aunt. In the part of Lord Fancourt Babberley Mr. Stanley Cooke proves himself a comedian of ability; he is intensely amusing. Miss Lena MacNaughton as the Aunt fills the part admirably; Miss Lilyan Lait as Kitty Verdun acts with great taste; and the same may be said of Miss Kitty Carew as Amy Spettigue, As Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham Messrs. H. Lynn and R. B. Mason win success; and the Sir Francis Chesney of Mr. C. B. Keston and the Stephen Spettigue of Mr. W. Beaumont are excellent studies.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The enjoyable entertainment provided here includes the performances of Marco, a clever sleight-of-hand conjurer. The Sisters Aindow, musical speciality artists, give a capital performance, and win considerable favour; Harry Drew possesses a good basso voice, and his singing is a pleasure to listen to. The Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists are marvellous riders; Conan and Doyle, comedians, sing well, and introduce humorous patter; Rita Resden's turn as male impersonator receives applause; Elsie Rubina gives a very clever performance on the slack wire; the Three Seymours are novel speciality artists; and the Lezzette troupe of lady acrobats do smart and difficult acts with skill and ease.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Wm. Bennett.—A large house gathered on Monday to give a hearty reception to a return visit of the drama, A Woman's Pluck, by James Willard, and presented by that gentleman's own company; Miss Grace Lester gives a capital impersonation of Grace Daremont; Dick Derrell is in the capable hands of Mr. Austin Mortimer; Mr. Harry T. Wood is seen to advantage as Winston Dale; Mr. Fred Norburn gives capable impersonations of Mark Scanlon and Jim Daremont; Mr. John Campling is an amusing Sir John Daredevil, and Miss Violet Carr a pleasing Jessie Pope.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—A noteworthy entertainment is being given here by Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs, in which some capital songs are introduced; the Harlfords provide trick cycling, and a horizontal bar performance on a frame attached to the machine; the Cape Girls are responsible for a good exhibition of singing and amusing dancing; Miss Minnie Dare is a capital vocalist and dancer; Miss Alice Maiden is well received as a comedienne, and Yorick and Yorick are amusing as knockabouts.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Messrs. Fred. J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is giving us The Two Hussars this week. Mr. Wilson Benge, as Harry Alford, gives a capable interpretation; Mr. F. J. Webb acts the part of Villiers in a cool cynical style; Miss M. Danvers Smith is responsible for some clever acting as Ellen Maythorne and Will Gunstock; and Mr. J. Stuart is also successful in a dual part; Mr. Paradise make a smart Sergeant; and Mr. Louis Vanton, as Robert Runn, in the first act, and Robert Gunn supplies the humour; Miss Lallah Price shows ability as Molly Cattis; and Miss Sadie Smith makes the most of her part as Marie.

CREWE. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company, in On the Stroke of Twelve is here this week on a return visit. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle plays the part of Jack Rutledge with ability; Mr. Fred Guinness, as George Bainbridge, gives a careful representation; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt is excellent as James Horton; Mr. Fred Ferne is a capable exponent of Henry Rutledge; Mr. Fred J. Little is capital as the nigger, Jasper; Mr. Syd T. Russell as Moses Levi does well; and Mr. Will Bass as Pat Cathill is a favourite. Miss Nellie Moore gives a pleasing rendering of Jess Bainbridge; and Miss Beatrice Moore acts with natural charm as Doris Rutledge. Miss Madge Laverton sustains the part of Marie successfully.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The visit this week of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company is causing no little sensation in Croydon, and the Grand is being filled nightly to its utmost capacity. The staging of the operas can only be described as magnificent; the excellent chorus and ballet render valuable services, and the dresses and properties are worthy of special mention. On Monday the exquisite music of Faust was done full justice to under the bâton of Mr. Eugène Goossens. Miss Elizabeth Burgess made a sweet and winsome Marguerite; Miss Douglas Wilson proved herself a capable actress in the rôle of Martha; Mr. Edward Davies gave a masterly and artistic rendering of Faust; Mr. Arthur Winckworth thoroughly identified himself with the part of Mephistopheles; and Messrs. Dillon Shallard, Frederick Clendon, and Miss Dorothy Mayfield deserve praise as Valentine, Wagner, and Siebel. An imposing performance of Lohengrin was given on Tuesday. Mr. John Ebbeler's noble bearing admirably fitted him for the rôle of Henry the Fowler; Mr. Charles Victor proved himself a veritable tower of strength as Telramund; Mr. Frederick Clendon delivered his lines with expression as the Herald; and Mr. Julius Walther acted in highly finished style and sang to advantage as Lohengrin. Miss Grace Nicoll as Elsa was vocally and dramatically all that could be wished; and Miss Marie Alexander had a part in Ortrud which called her best powers into play. The répertoire for the week includes Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Carmen, Fidelio, and Marriage of Figaro.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's company in When London Sleeps is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. Mr. C. P. Wentworth as Captain Rodney Hayes is very capable; Mr. Sam Arthur as David Eaglehart acts with intensity and power; Mr. Chas. E. Sutton is good as Mr. Furnaby Fuller; Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is mirth-provoking as Sammy Blyth; Mr. Frank Howard as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead is particularly smart; and Mr. Harry Barham does well as Mark Blackwood. Miss Mabel Scudamore as Queen Carruthers acts with convincing sincerity; Miss Maude York as Hilda Carode earns distinction; Miss Bessie Frank scores as Carrie Jones; Miss Daisy Clifford as Maud de Ferler deserves praise; Mrs. Edith Colona ably sustains the rôle of Signorina Robertio Jonesio; and the child Leila is pleasingly impersonated by Miss Josephine Goldsmid.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Visitors are appreciating the entertainment given at this comfortable house. Fred Karno's company is creating quite a furore in the amusing sketch Moses and Son. Fred Kitchen is a host in himself in the principal comedy part, and he is ably supported by Herbert Landeck, Anthony Gordon, Misses Leah Morris, Janet Reeve, Madge Rockingham, and a powerful chorus. Johnny Johnson is a clever comedian and instrumentalist; Sinclair and Whiteford are irresistible in the sketch Getting Even; Curtis and Vanity bring down the house with their eccentric dancing; and acceptable turns are given by George Bendon, comedian; Sylvia du Barry, vocalist; and Cissie Dryden, comedienne.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Robert Perris's company, under the direction of Mr. Karl H. Edwards, opened here on Monday in the excellent drama, A Fight for Millions. Mr. Hugh Newburn is seen to advantage in the heavy rôle of Richard Dudley; Mr. J. C. Carlyle makes a capital hero as Tom Manley; Mr. P. George Berresford is good as Hudson Rivers; whilst Mr. Karl H. Edwards gives a capital impersonation of the Jew, Solomon Mosses. Miss Elma C. Turner submits a fine portrayal of Helen Dudley; Miss Alwynne Ermon is an admirable Pearl Rivers; and little Miss Howe deserves a word of praise for her rendition of Madge. Mr. Harry Howe is distinctly funny as Willie Neverwork; and Nicholas Conway, the butler, assists in with the lighter side of the piece.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's principal company is this week presenting Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Archie Helsby makes a typical villain, and submits a finished performance; Miss Kathleen Magee gives a well-studied interpretation of the part of Margaret Rivers, and Miss Mildred Eversleigh is admirable as Mrs. Carsdale; Captain Frank Carsdale finds favour in the hands of Mr. Beresford Lovatt; General Kingsley is well enacted by Mr. Edward Bikker; Mr. Philip Redgrave is very good as Major Kilkerren, and the two drummer boys have capital representatives in Miss Lily Beverley and Miss Maggie English; Miss Edie Macklin and Mr. J. Magrath, with Mr. Harry Lyndon, keep the audience in merry spirits while they are on the stage, Mr. Magrath being very funny as the Irish Corporal.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The bill here this week is headed by the Seven Zerbinis, in their spectacular scena, The Enchanted Glen—a musical act of a high-class character. Maude Mortimer, a charming burlesque comedienne, is to be congratulated upon her success; Johnny Danvers, comedian, is both amusing and clever; the Three Rubys are graceful trapeze performers; Hugo is an entertaining illusionist; the Jansons are capable gymnasts; Jack Crawley is a praiseworthy comedian and entertainer, and the Palace Bioscope has some interesting pictures.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—Mr Fred J. Kirke's company proving so attractive last week, they have been re-engaged in a piece very popular in the dockyard town, entitled The Naval Detective. Mr. Kirke undertakes the principal part of Lieut. Jack Beresford, and introduces some clever quick-change business; Mr. Frank Beaulieu is a very good villain as Dr. Schreiner; Mr. C. Burns as Hans Winklepump furnishes some acceptable instrumental items; Mr. Lorrimer Stuart is good as the dude, the Honourable B. Fairlox, and the sisters English (Violet and Lillie) enhance their reputation for clever dancing.

DONCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A Royal Divorce is the attraction here this week. Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon is deservedly popular; Mr. Percy H. Vernon is quite an ideal Talleyrand; the Marquis de Beaumont is represented with vigour and unaffected aplomb by Mr. Graham Woods; while Mr. Thomas Harry adds piquancy and interest to General Augereau, and Mr. St. George Frere is powerful as Marshal Murat; Mr. Denis Bryan is humorous as Grimaud; Miss Agnes Imlay is graceful in the rôle of Marie Louise; Stephanie de Beauharnais affords excellent scope for the natural alertness of Miss Clara Russell; a clever representation of the little King of Rome is submitted by Miss Doris Ivaits; and Miss Loyale Frere is also well placed; Miss Edith Cole as Josephine plays the rôle with a womanly pathos and charm that appeals to everybody present.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Grand Theatre Company; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—For the final week of the season Mr. Alfred Hemming puts forward melodrama pure and simple, Mr. Lingford Carson's No. 1 Repertoire Company presenting A Modern Adventuress, The Heart of a Hero, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and The Octoroon. The company which Mr. Carson has enlisted under his banner play for all they are worth. Mr. Charles Draycott and Miss Muriel Thompson impress and interest audiences in any play of emotion in which they appear. Mr. Charles Draycott's Pietro Donelli in A Modern Adventuress, is a particularly fine creation. Miss Muriel Thompson as Violet Meredith, a notorious woman, played with power; Miss Marie Robson was pathetic as the wronged wife; Miss Daisy Norman very quaint in a slavey part; Mr. Sydney C. Cranston worked hard as the titular hero, Harry Delby; Mr. Ernest J. Fare invested the villain, Wallace Dainton, with melodramatic forcefulness; Mr. Arthur Byron as John Crompton evoked laughter; Mr. J. Dobson Clyde as the Detective, Walter Beale, was effective; other parts were excellently played by the members of the company.

THE PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—This popular place of amusement has been packed during this, the last week of the season. Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra discourses delightful music. The variety programme was also exceptionally attractive. Lieutenant Albani submits an illusion, the Lady in Black, which puzzles the pseudo-scientist and charms the unsophisticated. Mr. Harold Hughman is a mimic who reproduces types of the day; Messrs. Craig, Rose, and Craig increase their popularity with their novel gymnastic act; Jennion's Marionettes capture the hearts of children, young and old; Ray and Miles are quaint comedy jugglers; and Vernon's Bioscope has many admirers.

BUXTON'S PIERROTS AND TEA VILLAGE have secured their full share of patronage. In the day, if fine, two performances are given on the Corporation Band Stand; if wet, in the New Grand Pavilion, which Mr. Frederick Buxton has erected on the promenade. At night a special entertainment is given in this building. These shows of Mr. Buxton's attracts thousands, and deservedly so.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Florodora was the attraction the first three nights of this week, and was capitally played by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. The rôle of Dolores was admirably portrayed by Miss Daisy Lake, whose excellent voice was heard to advantage in the pretty musical numbers allotted to the part. A charmingly piquant impersonation of Lady Holyrood was given by Miss Rosa Sullivan, a graceful and talented artist, while Miss Dorothy Dempster played with delightful simplicity as Angela Gilfain. Mr. Gus Danby, the possessor of an apparently inexhaustible fund of natural humour, did full justice to the part of Tweedlepunch, and Mr. Colin Johnston was amusingly dignified as the American millionaire, Cyrus W. Gilfain. Mr. Howard V. Crofton, who has a fine baritone voice, acted most convincingly as Frank Abercoed. Mr. H. Carnelley-Joyce was highly successful as Arthur Donegal, and sang well. An excellent make-up and good business rendered Mr. C. A. Read-Night's impersonation of Leandro most striking, while the efficient chorus, under the direction of Mr. L. S. Tute, gained hearty applause. On Thursday Florodora gave place to The Lights of London, played by Mr. Herbert Hollister and company.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. George Edwardes has this week introduced us again to that charming and clever comic opera The Little Michus, which attracted an appreciative audience on Monday. Mr. Eric Thorne in his amusing and characteristic creation of General Des Ifs received a flattering reception. Miss Iris Hoey portrays the rôle of Blanche Marie in a successful manner, and Miss Thelma Raye makes an admirable Marie Blanche. The humorous representation of Bagnolet by Mr. Jack Cannot is heartily enjoyed, and Mr. Leonard Mackay is encored for his excellent singing in the part of Aristide Vert. Mr. W. Talleur Andrews as Gaston Rigaud is equally successful, and Mr. George Miller is an excellent Pierre Michu. Madame Michu is admirably presented by Miss Florence Parfrey, and the rem Dorcas Crosby as the old housekeeper and Mr. Hawley Francks as Jake are responsible for much humour.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The chief turn is Casey's Court, in which thirty midget mimes appear in a humorous sketch. There are clever singers and dancers among them, and their turn is decidedly novel and entertaining. The Ellimans are musicians of a high order, and their contributions are much enjoyed; Dan Conroy, with a budget of new songs, is cordially received; the Kimberley Boys score a big success; Ethel Dove presents an original performance; Ida Kathrena sings sweetly, and Barney Salmon gives a few military songs in fine style; the Sisters Bartholomew, in song and dance, prove acceptable, and the Bioscope completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—A varied and interesting programme is again in evidence here; Anna Kenwick, an American comedienne and dancer, makes a decided hit; Jessie Star, styled "The Child Harry Lauder," mimics the eminent Scotch comedian to the life; Spencer and Marks, comedians and dancers; Jenny Clare, comedienne; Kenneth and Kane in a musical act; George Raper, comedian; Allis and Allis, patterers and dancers; a very amusing sketch, Fun in a Court, and the Gaiety Bioscope, are other attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—I Defy the World is being presented here this week. Mr. Percy Ballard as the hero plays with considerable force; as Blanche Sarville Miss Violet Crawford is a decided success; Miss Rosie Dane is excellent in the juvenile part of Fanchette; Mr. Charles Conway striking and effective as Laroche; and Mr. Charles Wilton satisfactory as Count de Beaulieu.

ECCLES.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe's company is presenting here this week Lady Godiva, Nell Gwynne, Jane Shore, and Richelieu. On Monday Lady Godiva was staged in pleasing fashion. Mr. F. B. Woulfe gave much expression to the part of Tom; the Lady Godiva of Miss Ethel Griffies was full of tenderness; Miss Edith Lorraine as Elfrida, and Mr. Bob Anderson as Robin Shackleton were most amusing; Leofric was powerfully depicted by Mr. R. Seath Innes, and Mr. Wm. Macready as Algar gave a good account of himself.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Miss Olga Nethersole's répertory for the week has included Carmen, Sapho, Magda, Camille, and The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, so that playgoers have had the opportunity of seeing this talented actress in a round of her most famous parts. Able support has been rendered by Mr. Frank Mills, Mr. Julian Royce, and other members of a strong company. In Carmen Miss Nethersole gave a realistic presentation of the voluptuous gipsy; Miss Molly Pearson was a sweetly sympathetic Dolores; and Miss Rosalind Ivan exceedingly good as Teresa. Mr. Frank Mills in the trying rôle of Don José and Mr. Julian Royce as Lucas Mendez were well received. In Paula Tanqueray, on Tuesday, Miss Olga Nethersole found her opportunity for an intensely interesting piece of work, and achieved a veritable triumph; Miss Ivan was a graceful and intelligent Ellean; the acting of Mr. Mills as Aubrey Tanqueray was powerful and judicious; and Mr. William Clark made a good Cayley Drummle. Dresses, mise-en-scène, and details of stage-setting have been irreproachable, and in some respects a revelation.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Colonel Newcome has the disadvantage of plays founded on such classics as the novels of Dickens and Thackeray, but it gives Mr. Tree a fine character part, and affords good chances for other actors included in the cast. Mr. Tree's portrait of the grand old colonel is a splendid piece of work; Miss Constance Collier brings before us much of the charm and grace of Ethel Newcome; Mr. Edward Maurice reproduces the genial humour of the great Fred Bayham; Mr. Sydney Brough is quite a characteristic Lord Farintosh; Mrs. E. H. Brooke as Mrs. Mason, Miss Annie Schletter as the old campaigner, Miss Mary Sumner as Rosey, and Mrs. Perceval as Madame de Florac give life-like impersonations; and Mr. Charles Quartermaine and Mr. A. E. Benedict deserve praiseworthy mention for their acting as Clive and Barnes Newcome. But the greatest delight of all is the artistic harmony which pervades this most beautiful stage picture—a performance which should be seen and remembered. The latter half of the week's programme has been devoted to others of Mr. Tree's notable productions, including Business is Business, The Ballad Monger, Trilby, and The Man Who Was EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mr. Mark Sheridan's genial philosophy is being conveyed here in lively song and patter, and Mr. R. H. Douglass is another good exponent of the art of comic monologue. Miss Florence Esdaile distinguishes herself as a ballad vocalist; Miss Madge Osmond shows marked ability as a male impersonator; the Three Sisters Sprightly give a turn quite in accordance with their name; and an entertaining novelty is supplied by Ted and May Hopkins in their character sketch, A Cambrian Courtship. The Kaufman Girls provide an exceedingly smart display of trick cycle-riding; the Picquays put in some marvellous work as handbalancers; the Mariano Sisters appear in a thrilling breakaway trapeze act; Marba and Verity are clever dancers and somersaulters; and Mr. Will Cornish produces wonderful effects on silver chimes.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. R. J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—This week we have a visit from Mr. Lingford Carson's No. 1 Company, The Drama of Life. Mr. Edward Hamilton portrayed the hero with much ability, and as Walter Beech Mr. John J. Hooker is quite successful; Miss Kate Hallam as Harry's wife is impressive, and a charming little actress is Miss Elsie May as the boy Robert Beech.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Arnold Bell and company appeared here in Ben-My-Chree during the first half of the week. Mr. Bell, in the principal rôle of Dan Mylrea, acquitted himself with distinct success; Mona Mylrea was portrayed in a thoroughly sympathetic manner by Miss Marion Forrester; Mr. F. C. Robson's Davy Fayle was a capital piece of acting; and the Kitty of Miss Violet Campbell was played in spirited fashion. Mr. Cuthbert Imrie made a stately Bishop; and Mr. W. G. Gregory an impressive Deemster. Mr. Frank Carlile gave an excellent interpretation of Mr. Harcourt; and Ewan Mylrea was intelligently played by Mr. Guy Morville. Hommy-beg was humorously sustained by Mr. Herbert Fuller; and Mr. J. Crow gave a clever representation of the part of Jim Gurphy. On Thursday Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company commenced a three nights' engagement of Under Two Flags, with Miss Mary Thorne as Cigarette.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, in The Worst Woman in London. Miss Florence Dalton as Francis Vere is to be warmly complimented on her spirited acting; Miss Emily Kelsey and Mr. Willie Garvey are responsible for the comedy element; and Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as Vincent Lyle is forcible.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Manager and Lessee, H. J. Snelson.—This week Mr. F. Garton's juvenile company is presenting The Beryl, a bright little musical comedy. The chief parts are in the hands of Mr. C. Torraine, as the owner of the Isle of Verona, and Mr. Buckley, as a stranded actor, and both are well played. Master Harry George does well in the part of a detective; Miss Lucy Garton as a yacht's captain and Miss Etty Garton as Dora are a charming pair of lovers; Baby Ada is a charming little child-actress; Little Annie also makes a hit.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—A special attraction is here this week in D'Oyly Carte's Opera Company, with The Gondoliers, Yeomen of the Guard, Iolanthe, Princess Ida, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Mikado, and Patience. GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—Mr. George Harvey's company appeared here for three nights last week in The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Harvey was seen to great advantage in the trying part of Prince Lucio; Mr. Bertram Croucher was the Geoffrey Tempest; Miss Vera Hodym was a charming Mavis Clare; Miss Eleanor Glover appeared as Lady Sybil; and the other characters were filled by Miss Beattie Wilson, Miss Mabel Saunders, Mr. G. Nelson Turner, Mr. Arthur Bell, and Mr. Gifford Reynolds. On Saturday a melodrama, entitled A True Briton, was played.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General Manager, Mr. Joe May. Starring here this week is Tom Leamore, a quaint comedian; an athlete whose show is above the average is Ben Hur; Will Godwin, descriptive vocalist, scores; the Bros. Harrison, comedians, raise roars of laughter; another pair of mirth-provokers are Margaret and Ruby Laws, in a quick change act; Percy Hannon, a youthful baritone, has many admirers; the Cotton Blossom Quartette render in humorous style a series of part songs; the Five M.P.'s provide an entertaining musical act; and the Bros. Wynford, expert jumpers, complete the bill.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Occupying the top line here this week we have Miss Frances Harrold's company in a comedy sketch entitled My Son's Wife. The trifle causes much amusement, Mr. W. J. Mackay as Peter Dredge being responsible for some very humorous sayings. L. B. Athol, descriptive vocalist, is loudly applauded; Auto is an eccentric musical comedian; Frank Newbury entertains with whistling solos; Crissie Cross, daintily attired, sings two ditties in taking style, and Downey's Living Pictures conclude the entertainment.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France. — Drawing large audiences here this week is Mr. Horace Stanley's company in The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Stanley in the part of Sam Wagstaffe is the cause of much merriment; Mr. George Beverley is a praiseworthy Jack O'Malley; Mr. Chas. Burdon submits a polished impersonation of the villain, James Inderwick; Mr. Edwin Clark is successful as Huntley Mason, and a like remark is applicable to Mr. Alaric Burton, who portrays Cuthbert Leigh; Mr. Elsie Capell cleverly depicts Bessie Leigh; laughter is caused by Miss Evelyn M. Walton in the rôle of an elderly spinster, and another humorous character is Peggy Potts, successfully played by Miss Kate Kilpack.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company in Her Luck in London is here this week. Mr. Chas. A. Leicester as Fitzgerald O'Connor submits a powerful portrayal; Mr. Douglas Tremayne presents an admirable delineation of the character of the Rev. Lionel Strong; and Mr. Tyrone Power gives a fine performance of Stephen Harborne; Mr. G. Langdon ably fills the rôle of Richard Lenowen; Mr. Bruce Chapman is effective as Algie Kircumbrie; Mr. A. J. Harding as Jerry Gotobed and Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny are responsible for much fun; Miss Mary Neil scores as Nellie Harborne; Miss Frances Bruce commendably sustains the part of Lilian Harborne; and Miss Ada Roscoe is good as Madame Gabrielle; Miss Pamela Hodson is prominent as Angelina Plantagenet. Mr. E. S. Nuttall, Mr. G. Stones, Mr. W. Wroe, Miss Daisy Moss, Miss Queenie Lamont, Miss Kitty Gerald, and Miss Dora Woodbery are all effective in their respective parts.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John R. Tomlinson.—Miss Rose Faith's company is here on a second visit with the Georgian costume play, No Cross No Crown. Mr. W. Carriden gives an exceedingly fine performance as Sir Francis Luttrell. Mr. Harrison Chapman is a clever Professor Nebb; Mr. Herbert De Ville acts the rôle of Austin Blake, the villain, with much realism; Mr. C. George plays with dramatic force the part of Rawson Haines; Mr. Fred Gresham is highly amusing as Dr. Ashby. In the character of Clare, Miss Rose Faith holds her audience enthralled; Miss Gwen Stuart shows excellent acting qualities in the dual rôle of Mistress Gray and Lady Margaret Luttrell; Miss Rita Rosslyn is seen to advantage as Dame Priscilla Barclay; Miss Maggie White is a capital Agatha; Miss Ada Clawsen as Plato and Little Ruby as Dorris Luttrell are also worthy of special mention. For the latter part of the week A Wrecker of Men is announced.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Mouillot's company this week is submitting the celebrated burlesque Faust Up-to-Date. Miss Mimi Fisher sings well as Young Faust; Miss Daisy Irving is a charming Marguerite; Mephistopheles is excellently represented by Mr. Roland Henry; Mr. F. W. Bowes is an amusing Valentine; Mr. A. Gambier Melford a comic Lord Chancellor; Miss May Davis an admirable Siebel; and Martha is capitally portrayed by Miss Maisie Riversdale.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—For the last week of the summer season an admirably varied programme is provided. Luis Hardt, the mighty atom, performs wonderful feats of strength; Aerian and Ostara give an exceedingly clever trapeze show; Lilian Rigby sings and dances well; Rebla contributes a smart juggling turn; Gelding provides a novel equestrian show as Shaw, the Lifeguardsman; the Bishops cause plenty of laughter in their comic scena; the Humels give a capital show on barebacked horses; and Frank Craig and his cake-walkers win loud applause. On Monday evening Mr. Tom Culeen had his benefit, when there was a crowded house.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright. — Rob Roy, the ever-popular national drama, is being presented here this week. Diana Vernon is charmingly impersonated by Mme. Alice Esty, her whole performance being delightfully effective; Mr. E. C. Hedmondt, in the rôle of Francis Osbaldistone, scores a distinct success; Mr. W. G. Robb, as Bailie Nicol Jarvie, is worthy of special mention; Mr. Nelson Ramsay as Rob Roy is another fine performance. The Dougal Cratur of Mrs. Herbert Bentone is exceptionally good, and others notable are Miss Marion Lind, Helen McGregor; Miss Jeanie D. Harle, as Mattie; Miss Jennie McIntyre, Jean McAlpine; Mr. Walter Russell, Sir Frederick Vernon; Mr. Montague Corrie, Mr. Owen; Mr. W. E. Holloway, Rashleigh; and Mr. Robert Minster, Capt. Thornton.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—De Vere and Kenwick head the bill here with a novel entertainment, introducing burlesque pictures on popular songs; the Edgar Forest Combination is well received, and was responsible for much laughter; the Bristons are daring trick cyclists. Other turns are George Young, a blind musician, who plays well; Lade Henderson, character vocalist; Henri Bekker is a smart conjurer; Lola Patey sings well; while there is an interesting exhibition of Empire films.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The Two Bees (Harry and Flora Blake) head the bill here this week. They appear in a laughable comedy, entitled, The Man in the Moon; Austin and Cowan, vocal entertainers, do extremely well; the Sisters Carina submit a smart performance on musical instruments. Other good turns are Edgar Budden, bone soloist and roller skate artist; Rob Hamilton, comedian; and Minnie D. Aubyn, comedienne and dancer; and the exhibition of the Pavoscope completes the list.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Price of Her Soul is being presented here by Messrs. Shinton and Greenwood's company. Mr. John B. Shinton himself as Lord Rolfe Mandeville shows to advantage; Miss Ada M. Ryder as the Countess submits a successful impersonation; Miss Mona Gray makes the most of the part of Olga Lavonitz; and Mr. Annesly Hely portrays Major Skoboloff in vivid colours. Miss Ada Arnott is responsible for amusing work as the eccentric Lady Jemima, and Mr. Will Percy creates plenty of fun as the Irishman, Pat Murphy.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. North.—The Black Troubadours are a quartette whose voices blend admirably; smart cycling feats, coupled with refreshingly original comedy, are provided by Newhouse and Ward; Keith, Merson, and Co. occasion considerable merriment in their sketch, The Meet; Hill, Lane, and Co. contribute an entertaining musical turn; Jules Kiaro gives an equilibristic exhibition; and others appearing are Wall Robins, black and white performer; Kit Keen, a coloured comedian; and Cissie Curlette, a pleasing mimetic vocalist.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Billy McClain's coloured sextette give a turn here which embraces plenty of variety. They present a speciality, The Hottest Coon from Dixie, and work in excellent songs, quaint dances, and an abundance of amusing patter. Prince Fee Lung, a Chinese conjurer, proves a capable exponent of his art; George Barrington displays skill as a trick pianist; Lily Vane is versatile; Linton introduces a daring wire-walking speciality; Cole and Rags contribute a capital comic juggling turn; the Custances present an interesting sketch, A Game for Two; and W. J. Lytton sings humorous ditties.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—An enthusiastic welcome was accorded Mr. Norman Macowan and company here on Monday in Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr. Macowan played with much gallantry the title-rôle; Mr. Murray Hathorn made a commanding Duke of Winterset; a faithful Major Molyneaux was found in Mr. J. C. Taylor; and Mr. P. Ramsey Forman did well in the rôle of Captain Badger, Mr. Robert Entwhistle being a plausible Master of Ceremonies; Mr. Nakell had a typical representative in Mr. Conybeare Gough; Miss Violet Sterne was responsible for a sweet and amiable presentation of Lady Mary Carlisle, her efforts being ably seconded by Miss Emil Leslie, a natural Lucy. On Tuesday A Soldier of Fortune was staged.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Don Juan Caceido, a most remarkable performer on the slack wire, holds the exalted position here this week, and is enthusiastically received. Frank H. France and Marie Stewart give us a taste of their quality in a touch and go travesty, The 100 to 1 Chance; La Danseuse is to be commended for her speciality, "Santa Claus"; really smart coloured musical coons are Martinet and Wallace; and Burns and Bentley would be difficult to excel as dancers; J. Reichen's sagacious terriers perform remarkable feats; and the Brooklands, in song and dance, the Llewelyns, operatic vocalists; and the Sisters Geretti, in a novel trapeze act, complete the bill.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Austin Rudd, after a long absence, makes a welcome reappearance here this week; W. H. Downes sings capitally; W. B. Raby is quaint; some good dancing comes from the Olive Trio; a couple of talented vocalists are the tiny Sisters Marion; Bowman and Morton score heavily, as do Sterling and Love, in a vocal and instrumental comedy act. Elton and Elma prove successful in a triple bar act.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company is paying a welcome return visit in that enjoyable comedy Beauty and the Barge. Mr. Blake Adams contributes his admirable portrayal of Captain James Barley, which is thoroughly appreciated; Miss May Fairclough as Ethel Smedley is all that could be desired; Mr. Edward Coventry plays the part of Lieut. Boyne to the life; and Herbert Manners finds a capital exponent in Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu. Mr. Walter Pemberton does well as Major Smedley; Mr. Ewart Drake is good as the innkeeper, Porter; John Dibbs, in the hands of Mr. Charles White, is an interesting character; Mr. Fred Knight is well placed as Tom Codd; Miss Mary Pemberton as Lucy Dallas acts with grace; and Miss Mona Robin is capital as Mrs. Smedley. As Mrs. Baldwin Miss Ruby Wyndham is distinctly successful; as also is Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as Mrs. Porter. Mr. Thomas Pauncefort makes a desirable Augustus. The curtain-raiser Jerry and a Sunbeam is well played by Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu and Miss Mary Pemberton.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwards.—Packed houses greet the engagement of Geo. Hackenschmidt, whose exhibition of wrestling is most interesting; the Poluski Bros. are, as usual, a huge success; Bishop and Hanlon, in their patter and dancing turn, are much appreciated; Harry Weldon sings his songs cleverly; the facial business of Harry Kirk is excellent; the Sisters Anderson are capital duettists and dancers; Miss Adele Lincoln scores successfully in her songs and dances; the Fimans, in their sketch The Fire Station, cause roars of laughter. The Grand pictures are, as usual, excellent.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding-Smith.—For the first three nights of this week we had a return visit of Cousin Kate, presented by the Hutchison company. In spite of the fact that this charming play was here only seven weeks ago quite a large audience was present on Monday. Miss Lilias Earle made an excellent Kate Curtis, and had good support from Mr. Percy Hutchison as Heath Desmond; Mr. Ernest Cox gave a clever reading of the part of Rev. James Bartlett, and Miss Hilda Honiss was well suited to the little prig, Amy Spencer; Miss Amy Coleman made a motherly Mrs. Spencer, and Bobby had an able exponent in Mr. Irwin Barrett. Cousin Kate was preceded by Why Women Weep. For the rest of the week Mr. Walter Maxwell's company in The Lion and the Mouse was down on the bills.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Marquis Itonge, king of cannon balls, in a smart equilibristic act occupies premier position on the bill for this week; the comicalities of Charles Chard are provocative of much amusement; the snake-like contortions of Zaid cause wonderment; quite a novel turn is provided by Willie Gardner, who dances excellently on roller and ice skates; Fred Villiers, a vocalist of a refined order, submits two taking songs; the Three Oxos, harmonising and descriptive vocalists; Edna Latonne, a chorus comedienne; Leo Warner Burl, vocalist; and a new selection of Bioscope pictures contribute greatly to the success of the programme.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday Mr. James Welch, with his company, opened his first visit in Hastings with Chas. Marlowe's amusing farce, When Knights were Bold. Mr. Welch was a most amusing representative of Sir Guy de Vere, and the Rowena Egginton of Miss Audrey Ford was a fine performance; Mr. Edward Sass as the Irishman, Sir Brian, gave excellent support; Mr. Arthur Grenville played cleverly as Mr. Isaacson, and Mr. Henry J. Ford was an amusing Charles Widdicombe; Miss Daisy Cordell was commendable as Miss Isaacson; Miss Estelle Winwood as Millicent and Miss Emma Gwynne as Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave ably sustained their respective rôles, and a very good sketch of the Rev. Peter Pottlebury was supplied by Mr. James Nelson. The play, which was well mounted, was preceded by The Lady Burglar.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident and General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—A full and strong programme is delighting good audiences. Alverton is a remarkably smart conjurer; an attractive comedienne is seen in Miss Sadie Seymour, whose songs are favourably received; the Olma Trio exhibit some interesting performances as statuary acrobats; the scenes of the Hippodrome Bioscope are exceptionally interesting; an amusing episode by Miss Ada Tilley and a little company is well enacted; they also associate in a tabloid comedy, which is thoroughly well played, entitled The Irish Doctor. A Dressing Room Romance provides an attractive turn, being a new and original sketch. Although of the simplest kind, Miss Cora Duncan is charmingly natural as the music-hall artist; and Dr. Gordon is ably impersonated by Mr. Albert Blasque. Dan Agar, character comedian, is very droll, and causes a good deal of merriment. The Ramlos are very nimble and diverting in their comedy triple bar act.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. A. P. Patterson.—Mr. John V. Gordon's company in The Best Woman in the World, a domestic play full of interest, has occupied the boards here for three nights this week. Mr. Arthur Curzon's Captain Sir Arthur Langley is a capital performance; Mr. Basil Mitchell paints Captain Dudley Stewart in very black colours; Mr. John V. Gordon plays Major Ludlow in fine style; Mr. Teddie Smyth as the Hon. Herbert Fitzherbert, a dude, acts the part well, and his songs and dancing are decidedly good; Mr. Horace H. Arthurs gives a natural rendering of Solomon Isaacs; Mr. Joseph W. Boyling appears as Richard Thorp and Miss Lelia Drummond's Grace Beale is a most artistic performance. Miss Lily Annesley's efforts as Muriel Clifford receive full recognition; Miss Phyllis Elton is a vivacious Trixie McKinley of Chicago.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Geo. R. Baker.—This week we are favoured with a visit from Mr. J. H. Clyndes and his company in A Royal Menage. Mr. J. H. Clyndes as Estevan Alvarez and Pedro de Castro is very good, and Miss Aimée Gratton Clyndes as Cora Casilda has scored a great success. Messrs. G. Foster, W. Kenyon, H. W. Bradford, A. F. Dudley, and Misses Enid Edoni, Emmeline Roselle, and Ethel Whitely are admirably suited to their respective characters.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—The Golden Ladder is being played successfully by a company headed by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, who are seen in the parts of Lillian Thornhill and Peranza respectively. Mr. William Clayton is excellent as the Rev. Frank Thornhill. The humour is skilfully supplied by Mr. Joseph Rowlands and Miss Nellie Graham as Mr. and Mrs. Peckaby. Two juvenile parts are well played by Miss Winifred Acton and Miss May Ediss.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A really good bill is headed by Miss Alice Raymond and John Kurkamp in a fine musical turn. Others are the Wartenberg Brothers, foot balancers; Callie and Walker, in song and dance; Story and Trigg, comedy trapeze artists; Dan Fitzgerald and company in The Burglar Prince; Barney, Burke, and Bray in their absurdity, From London to Madrid; the Phydoras, leg maniacs; and new films on the Biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—This week Mr. Morton has been reaping a rich harvest by his enterprise in securing for his patrons Mr. Frank Curzon's musical comedy company with The Girl Behind the Counter, from Wyndham's Theatre. For the first time Mr. Hayden Coffin has travelled North, and that charming singer, Miss Isabel Jay, is also one of the company. The success of the evening is achieved by Mr. J. F. McArdle as General Sir Wilkie Willoughby. Miss Isabel Jay charms and delights the audience by the sweetness of her voice; Mr. Geo. Barrett surpassed himself as the waiter at Baron's Court; Mr. Lionel Victor (succeeding Mr. Horace Mills) made an excellent impression as a page boy.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. Geo. Dance's The Duchess of Dantzic's company is here this week. Miss Kitty Gordon in the title-rôle realises all its possibilities; Mr. Fredk. Moyes is sufficiently Napoleonic; the Lefebvre of Mr. Albert Chapman is a fine piece of work.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company in that fine melodrama, Driven from Home, is doing well here. The company includes such well-known actors as Felix Pitt, a favourite always, who as Anthony Raybrook made a conspicuous success; Miss Frances Ruttledge was a meritorious Laura; Mr. Percy Dawson figuring successfully as Willie, the outcast.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alf Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Rose Elliott receives an enthusiastic reception; and other artists supporting include Lill and Silcott, Will Sullivan, Musical Johnsons, Harry Edson, Russell Carr, Elsie Earle, and Frank Coyle.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Harry Kandall is "the man of the moment"; and Alf Gibson takes second honours. The fine vocalism of Lilian Lowe is much appreciated; Alf Le Fre has a nice breezy style; Hanid Alexander is a young entertainer of promise. Other talented artists include Joly, Burley and Burley, George Reeves, and Ernest Ball.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson. Dyson's Swiss Choir are still drawing crowded houses.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Large houses are being attracted here this week by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's The Female Swindler company. As Lu Valroy Miss Grace E. Leslie looks charming and displays exceptional histrionic ability; Mr. John Millane submits a finished study as John Coulson; the villainous nature of Geoffrey Warden is skilfully depicted by Mr. Wilford Cheetham; and Mr. A. Kenyon Gray as James Oliver is well placed. As Harold Travers Mr. Guy P. Ellis makes a sufficiently ardent lover; and Miss Florrie Kelsey is sweet and sympathetic as May Andrews. Mr. J. Belton as Abraham Mikestein ably portrays the shady side of human nature; Mr. Henry Wright as Binks proves himself a resourceful comedian, and keeps the risible faculties of the audience well employed; whilst Miss Mary Dawson is a pretty and attractive Mary Ann Mee. The play is excellently mounted.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson and company are appearing here this week in the drama, A False Wife, in which Miss Florence E. Florence, as Lady Mansfield, exhibits acting of an excellent order; Mr. Howard Barlow presents a good reading of Lieut. George Mansfield; and Miss Annie Hylton appears with distinction as Agnes Weyland; Zorak, the mad wizard, is capitally represented by Mr. James Chippendale; Mr. Elton Morgan, as Ben Rattler; Mr. Owen Edwin, as Archibald Brown Tee; and Miss Minnie Leslie, as Bessie Blazer, keep the house in a hilarious mood with their comedy business; the part of Sarah Bernstein is well taken by Miss Flo Morgan; Mr. F. Marriott-Watson himself is seen to advantage as Jean Beraud, a French adventurer.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. George Dance's company opened a three nights' engagement on Monday with The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss Blanche Lynd scored all through as Sans-Gêne; Miss L. Hildroe was seen to advantage as Renee de Saint Maynord; and Miss Lilian Drake was a dignified Josephine. Mr. Alfred Ibberson as Napoleon looked the little corporal to the life; the Duke of Dantzic was well played by Mr. Leonard F. Griffiths; and Mr. Cecil Porke as Vicomte de Bethune and Mr. Arthur Ferris in the comedy part of Papillon, a pedlar, gave creditable performances.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—The Earl and the Girl has been played here this week by Mr. William Greet's company, on a return visit. Jim Cheese is well impersonated by Mr. Alfred Donohue; Mr. T. Kennard does justice to the part of Dick Wargrave; and Mr. Ernest Plumpton renders good service as Downham; Miss May Yates is a graceful Elphin Haye,; and Miss Lena Hicks and Miss Ida Statham greatly add to the success.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief item of a varied bill here is George Bastowe, whose "Farmer Giles" at once gains the good opinion of the audience. Other turns include Maude Edwards, a clever ventriloquist; Russel Wallett, humourist and satirist; Lena Brunton, an accomplished mimic of musical stars; the Cullane Trio is amusing sketch; Onda and Leon, in a horizontal bar performance; and Vi Carlyle, who sings "My Mountain Maid," with appropriate scenery; and Barney Armstrong, comedian.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. George Watson.—Mr. J. Poole's Myriorama, has attracted large audiences during the week, a variety company adding to the success. Among the latter are Harry Miers, comedy juggler; the Four Rosaires, acrobats; the Three Boleros, bar performers; and Johnny o' Rourke, patter singer.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company opened here on Monday with Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. Mr. L. Race Dunrobin is an excellent exponent of the part of Captain Harry Peyton; Mr. Franklyn Graham looks sufficiently sinister in the rôle of John Colden; Mr. Fred Dark is exceptionally good as Mr. Valentine; and Mr. H. Grey Dolby as John Edwards, Mr. Donald Young as Sergeant Carrington, Mr. F. G. Martindell as Black Sam, and Mr. J. Thomas as Cuff are efficient representatives of their respective parts. Miss Leonora Braham gives a finished and delightful rendering of Mistress Sarah Williams, Miss Phyllis Back is a taking Molly Edwards, and Miss Lilian Hallows a painstaking Miss Elizabeth.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; General-Manager, Mr. R. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Carson.—The Duchess of Dantzic is entertaining large audiences here; Miss Mary Glenn is artistic in the title-rôle; Mr. Gilbert Yorke as Napoleon is capitally suited to the part; Mr. Ernest Torrance gives a fine rendering of Lefebvre; Mr. Alec Johnstone's Adhémar is entirely satisfactory; and Mr. Steve Fitzgerald is amusing as Papillon.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—One of the best programmes seen here for a long time is topped by that clever and popular coon specialist, Mr. Eugene Stratton, whose melodious singing and excellent dancing prove very acceptable to crowded houses. The Deane Tribune company is a prominent and enjoyable feature in the presentment of a comic episode, Applicants; Goodfellow and Gregson are popular in a boisterous comedy specialty; that smart comedian Josh Dixon is again having a very successful week; and in the same line Alf Hurley hits the popular taste; Rita and Roma are giving pleasing vocal renderings with great success; eccentric yet expert musical specialties by the Two Tees are received with acclamation; whilst Phillips and Terry, comedy sketch artists, and Beatrice Renee, comedienne, are also contributing enjoyable items.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—This week's bill is headed by Lew Lake's company in a mirthful extravaganza, Muggins, V.C., which is popular in that it includes, amongst other things, the eccentricities of that clever comedian Fred Lawrence, and the excellent song and dance abilities of Lottie Stone's Black and White Girls. Another screamer is supplied by Collinson's company in the comedy episode, The Topsy Turvy School. Dandy George again presents his canine companion "Rosie" in a wonderfully intelligent performance; the Baltus Troupe accomplish some marvellous acrobatic feats; Prince Kuroki as Japanese illusionist provides a mystifying entertainment; a popular actor-vocalist, Cyril Carle, finds great favour; operatic duets by Webb and Branston are enthusiastically received; whilst the comedy contributions of Harry Zetter and a comic conjuring act by Carl Howard are also enjoyable items.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Those clever juveniles the New York Nippers are again a big line here; a musical comedy act by that accomplished pair Tom and Marie Motramo is particularly enjoyable; a similar turn by Hallam and Stanton is also a popular feature of the bill; whilst amongst the comedians Tom E. Hughes and Arthur Slater are having a most successful time; the Brothers Voldam are exceptionally smart in acrobatics; Beaty and Blanche with song and dance are an enjoyable turn; and we are further entertained by Nellie Martell and Maudie Ford, both of whom are capable and favourite comediennes.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Another enjoyable attraction is being presented here this week in Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company in Mr. Hopkinson. In the title-rôle Mr. Frank Stanmore's talents are given full scope; Mr. Shirley Lea makes an excellent impression as the Earl of Addleton; and as the Duke of Braceborough Mr. Arnold Lucy is also to be highly complimented. Mr. Reginald Dane is good as Lord Cawthorpe, as also are Mr. George McCloskie as Mr. Smethurst and Mr. C. M. Heslop as the Hon. Otho Dursingham. Miss Alison Alexander distinguishes herself as the Duchess of Braceborough; Miss Gladys Jesson is an attractive Lady Tyra Egglesby; and Miss Katherine M. Romsey a capital Eliza Dibbs. The Snowstorm precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The boards here are held this week by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in The Midnight Mail. As Harry Steyne Mr. Alfred Goddard is seen to advantage; Mr. Fred G. Evison displays versatility as Billy Brewer; and as Nancy Brewer Miss Mildred Carr is to be complimented. Miss Ada Oakley is all that can be desired as Mary Steyne; and Miss Phyllis Dailley is admirable as Lady Phyllis Eustace.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—At the head of this week's bill is Casey's Court, presented by the Midget Mimes (thirty in number), who are headed by Bob King as the Widow Casey. The youngsters display much cleverness in various ways, and the entertainment affords great amusement. At the other end of the programme is Ernie Mayne, a comedian of undoubted ability, whose songs and patter prove most mirth-provoking. Hanvarr and Lee, in The Golfer and the Maid, are popular with a smart and clever show; Colby and May, the former as an entertaining ventriloquist, and the latter in clever impersonations of a dancing doll, are scoring a success; the Three Albions are both amusing and clever in their novel musical act; Stelling and Revell display ability on the bars; Billy Tucker is the best ball-puncher that has been seen here; Bouverie Pleydell is a chic comedienne and a delightful dancer; and the Brothers Lang, comedians, and the American Bioscope are also entertaining features of the programme. On Monday evening the Sisters Kildare presented The Jockey's Temptation.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Bliss and Bliss, comedians, are creating hearty laughter here; Zaro and Arno are good in their novel comedy bar act; Ted Saunders successfully impersonates a number of star artists; Maude Vera is a versatile vocalist; Mlle. de Rose, the lady baritone, secures her usual warm welcome; Lidden and Hayward are funny in their comedy, The Midnight Express; J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, goes well; and Walter H. Pallister's American Bioscope remains a special feature.

ASSOCIATION HALL.—The annual visit of Mr. Fred Clements and his concert party is now looked forward to with much pleasure at Leicester, as they present a programme of all-round excellence and refinement. The company on this occasion is a strong one, and includes Fred Clements, comedian; Charles Coverdale, comedian; Donald Keir, bass vocalist; Mabel Kempton, vocalist; Charles Doré, comedian; Syd Crossley, comedian; Wally Young, actor-vocalist; J. C. Morris, comedian; Jack Clements, baritone; Bob Baddow, ventriloquist; Arthur Royce, comedian; and Horace Bernard, tenor vocalist and accompanist. The sketch The Three Buttercups is presented amid much hearty laughter by Messrs. Fred Clements, Syd Crossley, and Charles Doré. As duettists Keir and Kempton also shine. A singing competition took place yesterday (Friday).

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here this week, with A Midnight Wedding. Mr. Alfred Paumier gives a striking impersonation of Paul Valmar; Miss Annie Saker, in the dual rôles of Princess Astrea and Lieut. Karl Helsburg, must be congratulated upon admirable renderings; the villainy of Captain Rudolph is well depicted by Mr. Clinton Baddeley; Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman acquits himself creditably as the Crown Prince; Kathie is brightly played by Miss Ada Champion; and the comedy element could scarcely be in better hands than those of Messrs. J. B. Page, Percy Compton, and Algie Spalding.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A warm reception has greeted the return visit of Kitty Grey, which is well produced by Mr. George Stephenson and a good company. Miss Hilda Guiver repeats her striking impersonation of the name part; Lady Binfield is nicely played by Miss Marie West; and Miss Nellie Lauraine is specially happy as Mrs. Bright; while Sadie, Mabel, and Violet find smart representatives in Miss Elsie Skillings, Miss Maud Howard, and Miss May Wallace. Among the male performers, Mr. Lauri Lisle comes out strong as the King of Illyria; Mr. Leslie Steward's Lord Plantagenet affords plenty of amusement; and Mr. George Stephenson appears to advantage in the rôle of Sir John Binfield. The chorus is thoroughly efficient, and the staging of the piece in every way creditable to all concerned.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—A Mother's Love is the attraction here this week. Mr. Arthur Mervyn is a capital Paul Wingate; and Mr. Arthur E. Pringle is good as Geoffrey Mannering; Mat Ruddock is capitally played by Mr. Fred L. Connynghame; Miss Nena Ellis plays Elaine very finely; and Miss Rosa Mervyn is excellent as Winny Wingate.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. A. Smith.—A popular attraction this week is the return visit of Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman's company in Sergeant Brue. Mr. E. Russell, despite a severe cold on the opening night, presented a clever picture of the Sergeant; Mr. T. A. Slab, an old favourite, is a most amusing Crookie Scrubbs; Miss Lily Lingard gracefully enacts the part of Lady Bickenhall; and Aurora finds a charming representative in Miss Kitty Dale. Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy is suitably placed as Michael Brue; and Mr. Henry Chichester presents a good sketch of the Magistrate.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the appearance of Mr. Charles Verney's company in The Coal King on Monday. Mr. A. Alexander gives an ideal impersonation of Tom Roberts; Sir Reginald Harford is admirably sustained by Mr. R. Gordon; Mr. R. Shiells is clever as the designing scoundrel Walter Harford; Mr. P. Beaufoy is a capable Dick Shirley; and Seth Baker is well represented by Mr. A. J. Williams. Miss Florence Mitchell deserves praise for her portrayal of Mad Ann; and as Grace Shirley Miss Olive Lloyd acts with charm. The play is relieved by the bright and vivacious humour of Mr. T. Squires as Jem Williams and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff as Araminta.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A good programme is headed by Charles Fisher's Opera Company in Faust and Maritana. A-Be-Kou is a clever juggler and equilibrist. Miss May Marton, comedienne, and Sid Cotterell and company in The Substitute are popular. Francis Melli submit a smart speciality act. Harry Sims, vocalist, and Miss Ray Phillips also appear.

MANSFIELD.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Captain Cecil Clayton; Manager, Mr. Edward Gay.—On Monday and the two following nights, Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company presented here The Eternal City. As Donna Roma Volona Miss Sara de Groot displayed admirable histrionic powers; the part of Baron Bonelli was in the capable hands of Mr. Lewin Mannering; Mr. Henry Deas made a frank and sympathetic David Rossi; Mr. Herbert Legerton played the part of Charles Minghelli with very great credit; Mr. W. O'Flynn as Bruno Rocco was an admirable hot-blooded, but generous-hearted, Italian; Mr. J. Fortescue played the part of Pope Pius XI. with a quiet, dignified bearing; Commendatore Angelelli was ably sustained by Mr. J. Pool Kirkwood; Mr. Edward Comberbach was a sympathetic Father Pifferi; Miss Eva Stuart was good as Elena; the parts of Sir Evelyn Wise and General Potter were carefully interpreted by Mr. A. Jefferson and Mr. G. Roberts. On Thursday and Friday Mr. G. Dance's company occupied the stage with The Orchid.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Lessee, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh. — This week Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon has introduced the interesting musical dream-play, by Mr. Seymour Hicks, entitled Bluebell in Fairyland, with a full company of some forty artists. Mr. Lawrence Emery distinguishes himself by his natural ease and bearing as Dicky; Mr. Harry Vernon and Mr. Will Clement work together with the happiest results as Will and Wont; Mr. Frank Lennard is well suited as the rich city merchant, Joplin; and in the dream, Messrs. Lennard, Clements, and Vernon, put in good work. Mr. Jack Crowe is effective as the Reigning King; Miss Lily Eyton wins all hearts by her charming representation of Bluebell; and the Misses Maud Harris and Rena Robertson have been playing well as Mab and Winnie. Mention should be made of the amusing antics of the Cat, played by Mr. Albert Mack.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The programme this week is contributed to by Charles Banks, the singing comedian, and his dog "Woof," who makes a decided hit; Walter Wallis, comedian, on a return engagement, is again most amusing; Gold and Sterling, duettists, are good, and the painting of a picture during their singing is a novel feature; Los Rupertos, equilibrists, give a clever performance; and Peggy Pryde, the popular comedienne, is recalled several times, her reception being a most flattering one. Johnny Alexander and company are amusing in The Troubles of a Tourist.

MATLOCK.—VICTORIA HALL AND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Webb.—Mr. Geo. Dance's Orchid company appeared here on Monday night. The performance was an excellent one in every respect. Mr. Harry Walsh scored as Meakin; Mr. Clifford Bing was excellent as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, and Miss Poppy Wilkinson as Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Hilda Vining as Caroline Vokins; Miss Sissie Brand as Zelie Rumbert, and Miss Clara Beck as Thisbe were all exceptionally good. Others in the company who added to its strength were the Misses Kitty Smythe and Trilby Collier; Messrs. Frank Manger, Chas. Seymour, Len Neville, Geoffrey Berwick, H. Carson, A. C. Cheshire, H. Gray, and Tom Borrows.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Limited; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—For Better or Worse, presented by Mr. Fred Granville's company is the attraction here this week. Mr. G. E. Clive plays with energy the part of Capt. Hilliard, and Mr. Scott Leighton presents an effective representation of Major Crawford; Mr. Owen Remonde makes an excellent Lieut. Dalrymple; Mr. Willie Black as Horatio Ranter is responsible for a great deal of fun, and Mr. Carthage Coldcleugh is particularly good as Ned Earnshaw. Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson as Olive Heathcote enlists the sympathies of the audience; Miss Chrissie Dunbar shows ability as Belle Baverstock; Miss Nellie De Lacy as Dolly Delaney and Miss Jennie Hallworth as Melinda are also worthy of mention.

TEMPERANCE HALL, EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The programme here includes the marvellous Howards, re-engaged from last week, Parker and Parry, Gracie Logan (soubrette and dancer), the Musical Keiths, Cinizelli (the silent jester), Londoun Cameron (conjurer), and the Biograph with first-rate pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Augustine Knight and company are appearing here this week in The Assassin. Mr. Augustine Knight gives a masterly and highly dramatic portraiture of the villain Prince Demetri; the Ivan Ipanoff of Mr. Ed. E. Ashby is a very careful rendering; Mr. Theo. Balfour is an impressive Duke Carl; Mr. Chauncy Morris is an excellent General Nichol; Mr. Edwin Jenner is interesting as the Irish officer Capt. O'Neil; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is funny as Baron Alphonse; and he is cleverly supported in the comedy by Mr. Tom Taylor (Peter) and Mr. Jack K. Smith (Evengie). Miss Ella Vane gives a capital interpretation of the title-rôle, playing with great power and earnestness; Miss Georgina Hamilton acts delightfully as Connie Jonathan, an American; while Miss Francis Waring performs creditably as Nita. Miss Marie E. Robertson is a pleasing Katrina.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Three Little Maids is being presented here by Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company. Mr. Victor Kerr as Lord Cheyne presents a delightful sketch of that nobleman; Mr. Charles Caffrey is amusing as Cupid, the caddy; Mr. Charles Liverton is exceedingly good as the Vicar; and the Misses Cora Lingard, Daisy Sylveston, and Eva Weigh prove themselves three charming little maids. Mr. Eric Barrington is as droll as ever, and Miss Edith Maynard as Lady Crichton invests the part with much charm.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chattle.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is the attraction here this week. On Monday Tannhäuser was presented in a manner well worthy of the company's reputation. Mr. Wilson Pembroke met with his usual cordial reception in his able portrayal of Tannhäuser. Mme. Fanny Moody was responsible for a charming rendering of Elizabeth; Miss Toni Leiter as Venus was dramatically impressive; Miss Burns created a pleasing impression as the Shepherd; Mr. Chas. Magrath made a dignified Landgrave; Mr. Anderson as Reinmar was seen to advantage; and Mr. Lewys James was a decided success as Wolfram. Romeo and Juliet was billed for Tuesday, and other operas in the répertoire of the week are The Lily of Killarney, Cavalleria Rusticana, Carmen, Lohengrin, and Maritana.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Claude Ginnett and company are the star turn in a sketch entitled Rejected Remounts, which is very entertaining; Clavier and Piccolo provide a clever juggling and balancing turn; Dale and O'Malley are funny comedians; Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene are amusing in their sketch, His Birthday; a clever singing and dancing turn is provided by The Leonards; Vesta and Minnie Pine cause much amusement in their musical comedy, Maggie's Day Out; and Stella Stanley, comedienne, does well.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—An excellent programme is being submitted here. The Mannons, in their sketch, Uncle Yank, create roars of laughter; Edie Gray and White Coons give a successful singing turn; the Three Seabornes are clever acrobats; Angeline, the lady juggler, is well received; and Gus Garrick, comedian, does well. The other turns are Jessie Merrilees, vocalist, Cyrus and Maude, and the Palascope.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company has appeared most successfully in The Breed of the Treshams. The principal character, Lieut. Beresby, "The Rat," is sustained by Mr. E. Tripp Edgar with great success. Miss Tressilian is particularly successful as Margaret Hungerford; and Miss Celestine Bertram charms all by her delightful interpretation of the boy Batty. As Cornet Tresham, Mr. Cecil C. Klein is good; and Mr. Richd. A. Green's Col. Hungerford is made sufficiently villainous. Mr. Oswald Lingard is requisitely severe as Viscount Dorgington; and Miss Madge Sagay and Miss Miriam Holt, as Mrs. Bagshaw and Helena Pierrepont, are well suited to their parts.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is this week appearing in The Sins of a City. Miss Maude herself appears as Seaweed, and wins unlimited applause by her sympathetic rendering of the part; Sandy McDonald is well impersonated by Mr. William Vane; equally good is Mr. Leonard Harrison as Donald McIvon; Mr. Victor Du Cane is excellent as the villainous Blackwater. Mr. Harry Jobson ably sustaining the rôle of Isaac Levi. Mention should be made of Mr. Norton Shields, who successfully doubles the parts of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh. Miss Jenny Hackett is a prime favourite in her song and dance business, and Miss Ethel Tinsley scores in the role of Lesbia.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—This week Messrs. Alf Northway and W. V. Garrod present a revised version of the melodrama, entitled The Prodigal Parson. Mr. W. V. Garrod does some really good work as the Rev. Tom Godley; Mr. Hugh Carmichael cleverly impersonates the character of Enoch Jaggins; Mr. William Hayward is good as Ben Jaggins; Mr. Walter Vincent does well as Ned Kettlepin; Miss Pattie Hastings ably sustains the leading part as Fern Godley; Miss Gladys Conover is pleasing as Myrtle Godley; Miss Gertie Douglas as Gretchen Van Craus and Mr. Herbert Newton as Phil Drive are responsible for the funny element in the piece.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Once again is a welcome visit being paid to the Theatre Royal by Mr. Martin Harvey and company in an attractive répertoire. On Monday evening The Only Way was staged, and upon the curtain rising for the first act after the prologue the popular and accomplished actor was accorded a flattering reception, and at the close of the play was not allowed to quit the stage until he had delivered a short speech, in which he said that he and his company were pleased that the play with which they had won their spurs in Newcastle still appealed so strongly to Novocastrians. Much could be written of the impersonation of Sidney Carton by Mr. Harvey, but it must suffice to say that it was again a masterly one throughout. A wonderfully sweet and touching interpretation of the part of Mimi was given by Miss Ethel Patrick, and equally as graceful and effective was Miss Coleridge as Lucie Manette; Mr. Leonard Craske was an eloquent and manly Charles Darnay, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., a picturesque Dr. Manette, and Mr. Philip Hewland a jovial Mr. Stryver, while a vigorous and passionate impersonation of Ernest Defarge was given by Mr. Charles Glenney. Others in an excellent company are Mr. P. Alexander as Mr. Lorry, Mr. Charles Cameron as President, Mr. Paul Barry as the Public Prosecutor, Miss Mary Rorke as the Vengeance, Mr. A. E. Raynor, Mr. J. E. Frazer, Mr. Alfred Mansfield, Mr. H. Blackmore, Mr. Vincent Sternroyd, Mr. Eugene Wellesley. Mr. Leslie Palmer, Mr. H. Blake, Mr. A. Lingley, Mr. W. Hargreaves, Mr. George Cooke, Mr. John Alexander, Mr. L. Arthur, and Miss Bessie Elder. On Tuesday night Boy O'Carroll was staged, and Hamlet was announced for Thursday, and The Breed of the Treshams on Friday.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Robert Courteidge's company opened with The Dairymaids on Monday. Mr. Harry Dent and Mr. E. Statham Staples as Joe Mivens and Sam Bludenell are responsible for a continual ripple of merriment; Miss Violet Lloyd, who takes the part of Peggy is an excellent lyrical artist, her Sandow girl song is delightfully rendered; Miss Rhoda Gordon as Winfred is excellent; Miss Beryl Vaudrey as Daisy sings with much sweetness, whilst capital comedy is supplied by Miss Nellie Beryl in her sketch of the domestic boarding school; and Miss Edith Blanche is clever as Lady Brudenell. Mr. Clarence Blakeston presents the Irish character of Dr. O'Bryne in a manner which deserves great praise; Mr. George Desmond gives a spirited and dashing impersonation of Lieut. Frank Brudenell.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Messrs. Charles Durrell and George Testo Saute's novelty drama, The Life of a Showman, fills the bill here this week. Feats of strength, clever acrobatic performances, and wonders in the way of music are all to be found in the piece, which has had a good reception. In the part of Hendrick Marias Mr. L. Darra is excellent, and Mr. E. Warden as the Rev. Cyril Arliss secures a warm reception; Mr. George Richardson as Stickers is quite at home; Mr. George Testo Saute gives a fine performance in the part of Brien Leader; Miss Amy McNeil in the rôle of Agatha Winter earns much well-merited applause; Miss Grace Harlington (Lynette Leader), Mr. Fred Vaughan (Ned Chuckers), and Mr. Will Lindsey (Ben Tic Tac) ably add to the attractiveness of the entertainment.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The Indian Mutiny is being presented here this week by Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company. Mr. George Steel gives a sterling impersonation of Lieut. Manley; the part of Captain Manley is ably represented by Mr. Cyril Harrison; and Mr. John Davidson makes an imposing Major Ingleby; Miss Lillie Grey and Miss Agnes Kingston in their respective parts of Mrs. Major Ingleby and Kate Ingleby give clever and pleasing performances. Mr. C. Birch (Ensign Blake), Mr. C. Morand (Terry O'Brien), Miss M. Melrose Millett (Ghwz-nah) are also included in the cast.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews. — The place of honour at the Empire is deservedly filled by Miss Vesta Tilley, and it is a foregone conclusion that crowded houses will be the rule nightly. This was forcibly demonstrated on Monday evening, when many were turned away at the second house, unable to gain admission. Her contributions to the enjoyment of the patrons of the house were as successful as ever, and she was repeatedly recalled. The Wedburns delighted everyone with their patter and ditties; Professor Dunning is a clever ventriloquist; Leo Tell as the equine mimic was well received; Miss Ella Retford rendered her coon songs in a charming manner; Kahn and Kahn mystified the audience with their wondrous modern necromancy; James H. Jee performed many clean and clever feats on the wire; Maude Hillman and Maurice Russell, in the vocal comedy duo The Somnambulist, and Beatrice Willey, vocalist, completed quite a mammoth evening's entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Despite the absence of Phil Ray (who is unable to appear owing to indisposition) the programme is quite up to the high order maintained by the management of this popular hall. An admirable substitute was the Harvey Boys, who are appearing in their amusing rôle as London messenger boys; Harry Champion rendered his songs in his usual quaint style; Grant and Grant, American octoroons, ever a popular turn here, were frequently recalled for their negro songs and dances; Fred Laud, the man with the short stick and the sharp wit, was an outstanding item; the Violas as the White Mahatmas were very interesting and clever; the Five Whiteleys performed some wonderful feats on the wire and in their musical pot-pourri act; Tom Moore, comedian; Cardo, magician; Arley's Combination with their dogs; and Milner Verren, tenor vocalist, also contributed to an enjoyable evening's entertainment. A special word of praise is due to the enterprising management, which produced the launch of the famous Cunarder, the "Mauretania," on the Barrascope.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is here this week with Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy, in the title-rôle, acts with much force, his reading of the part being consistent throughout. As the Hon. Reginald Steighton Mr. Arthur Leigh admirably suggests the struggle between weakness and folly; Miss Alice Esther Belmore, who is sweetness itself, plays naturally the part of Helen Vallerton; Miss Florence Dulhurty does well as the Hon. Margaret Steighton; and Miss Frances Wolviston presents a capital character-study of Lady Mountfallon. The Mrs. Durham of Miss Louisa Gourlay is a delightful piece of acting; Mr. A. E. Walker is good as Mr. Vallerton; and Mr. Robert Forsyth as Lord Mountfallon and Mr. W. V Simmons Lynn as Arthur are satisfactory.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—A strong programme, full of interest, is presented here this week. The Macnaughtons are a funny pair, their patter and repartee being smart; Alice Lloyd sings two popular songs; De Dio executes a weird dance with magnificent effects; and Chas. S. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum, in The Cuckoo, are decidedly successful. Park's Eton Boys are excellent juvenile vocalists; Forest and King perform some clever feats; and Jake Friedman, who has a good voice, adopts a style quite his own. The Bioscope shows some interesting pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—After a very successful career, The Blue Moon has returned to the place of its first production, stamped with the London hall-mark of approval. Since its appearance here it has been revised by Mr. A. M. Thompson, who has brought it thoroughly up to date. Mr. Alfred Clark is still the "goey" Major, as jolly as ever; Mr. Arthur Soames repeats his dignified and consistent rendering of the Ruler of Kharikar, which receives due approval; the part of Chandra Nil, the Blue Moon, is now allotted to Miss Clarice Lockstone, who has a sweet voice and charming method; Mr. Alex. Fraser sings and acts the part of the lover, Captain Jack Ormsby with excellent effect; Mr. Alfred Beer is full of fun as Moolraj; Miss Ethel Callanan as Evelyn Ormsby and Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne as Bobbie Scott present an amusing courting couple; Miss Kathleen Cartaret is very good as Lady Augusta Brabazon; Miss Florence Imeson as Millicent Leroy (Evelyn's maid) and Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor are capital in their efforts at providing fun, the lady's dancing being dainty and charming.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Alma Obrey, character comedienne, is a big success here; the Sisters Daventry, duettists, &c., are well received; Verno and Voyce give two character duets which are highly relished; Phil Rees appears as a coloured comedian; Lethbridge introduces La Somnambula in a weird performance; Box Baxter, comedian, provides some good songs; Ernesto is a juggler and musical equilibrist of great ability, and his clever performance is highly applauded. The Palace Pictures, which still maintain their popularity, complete the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Bert Coote's capable company with The Fatal Wedding is paying a welcome return visit here this week. As Howard Wilson Mr. Ernest Owttrim wins much favour, and Mr. S. Herbert Humber gives a capital impersonation of Robert Curtis; Mr. C. H. Hughes makes a satisfactory Toto; Mr. Cyril Melton is funny as Peter Schwartz; Mr. George Waring makes the most of O'Reily, and Mr. Alan White is prominent as Rev. Doctor Lanceford; Miss Madge Haines successfully fills the part of Mabel Wilson; Miss Gertrude Harrison submits an admirable portrayal of Cora Williams; Miss Maud Locker is highly successful as Bridget, and Jessie, the little mother, has an excellent representative in Miss Marjorie Lawrence.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Four Aces, comedy acrobats, top the bill here, and give a smart performance. Mr. Alec Kendal, a capital comedian, creates much amusement, and Mr. Ragnus Danello, golf ball manipulator, is clever; Mr. J. H. Malva, ventriloquist and mimic, does well; Mr. Tom Reed, comedian; Furber Leath, oil painter, and the Bio-Photoscope are successful.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company gives unmixed pleasure to appreciative audiences in Oliver Twist, as prepared for Mr. Beerbohm Tree by Mr. J. Comyns Carr. Mr. Stanley Drew submits an excellent representation of Fagin; Mr. James Skea (an old favourite in Norwich) is everything desirable as Bill Sikes; Mr. Fred Penley is very good as Mr. Brownlow; and Mr. W. Rotherham does well as Monks and Mr. Grimwig. Mr. Paige Lawrence deserves every praise for his acting as Harry Maylie; Mr. Edward Walsh is successful as Bumble; whilst Mr. T. Williams is humorous as Giles. Miss Dorothy Marsden scores in the rôle of Oliver Twist; and Miss A. Lingham is good as Rose Maylie. Miss Dorothy Mayhew as Mrs. Maylie gives complete satisfaction; and too much praise cannot be accorded Miss Edith Aubon Laing as Nancy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Large audiences testify their appreciation of the programme this week. The Three Panamas (a boy and two ladies) present a pleasing acrobatic and dancing pot-pourri act, and are very attractive; Lilith introduces a lady to the stage who floats about in a mysterious manner and excites wonderment; Michael Nolan, Irish comedian, is well received; Tennyson and Wallis, are a laughable turn; Lilian Warren, with songs illustrated by lantern colour-pictures, is pleasing; the Bensons, in their vocal comedy act, are successful; and the same may be said of Agnes Hazel as a comedienne. Rastus and Banks are amusing coloured American entertainers. The Hippo Bio is also good.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Drury Lane company is presenting The Prodigal Son here this week. Miss Lily Hall Caine as Thora gives an admirable impersonation of the patient, suffering wife. Miss Cecil Cromwell plays Helga with a finish and expression that carried conviction. Miss Alma Murray realises the true womanly nature of Anna, and Miss Mima Renouf gives a happily conceived comedy study of Margaret Neilson. Owing to the unfortunate illness of Mr. Henry Renouf, the part of Magnus was filled by Mr. Herbert Hewetson, who gave a fine performance, full of energy and passion. As Oscar Mr. Norman Partriege aptly assumes this vacillating character, and Mr. Henry George admirably portrays the stern Stephen Magnusson. Mr. Fred Epitaux submits an intelligent reading as Oscar Neilson, and Mr. C. Maynard does well as the Sheriff. Other characters are conscientiously rendered by Messrs. W. Herberte, Howard Russell, C. Douglas Cox, and Gordon Macintosh.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Human Hearts possesses the power of thrilling audiences, and Mr. C. W. Somerset's company has received a gratifying reward for their admirable presentation of the drama. Mr. George Rowlands makes a manly straightforward hero as Tom Logan, and Miss Winifred Pearson plays the erring wife in a manner that calls for approval. The tender-hearted and loving Ruth Western is excellently portrayed by Miss Minnie Silvestre, and Miss Barbara Bateman does well in the part of Jimmy Logan. Mr. Sydney Sarl richly earns the hearty recognition of his character-study of the poverty-stricken Jim Mason, and Mr. Edwin Palmer is easy and natural as Richard Markham. Mr. L. William (Fred Armsdale), Mr. Arthur Estcourt (Mose), Mr. Ben MacDale (James Shaw), and Mr. Frith Leicester (Deputy Western) capitally fill their various rôles.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—As a male impersonator Miss Hetty King is daintiness itself, her versatility and vivaciousness compelling the greatest admiration and enthusiasm. As an artistic turn the Three Olympiers leave nothing to be desired in their grouping, the effect being highly enhanced by the bronze colouring. The Mayvilles draw rounds of applause in a Lilliputian entertainment, and the De Breams show dexterity as jugglers. The piping, dancing, and acrobatic feats of the Sutcliffe Family thoroughly merits their recognition, as also the performance of Nelson's Newsboys. Griff is an old favourite who never fails to please, and the tricks of Max York's dogs are the outcome of much time and patience. Jack Lorimer's Scotch songs are prolific of humour, and the American Bioscope supplies a number of diverting pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is on a return visit here with His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning keeps the audience in a state of hilarity; Mr. Frank Morton is a good Lord Easem; Mr. Chas. Usher submits a capital assumption of Mr. Miffen; Mr. F. Melroyd causes amusement by his humorous acting as Mr. Minks; Miss Leonora Castelle is an accomplished Lady Maud; and Miss May Vernon does good work as Dolly.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—For Life and After is the title of G. R. Sims' latest drama, and Hardie and Von Leer have sent out a first-rate company to interpret. Mr. Vernon Sansbury gives an artistic rendering of Richard Grey; Mr. Sidney Vantier plays well as Gilbert O'Neill; Mr. Henry Hare as Jack and Jim Huggett is capital in the dual rôle, and Mr. C. Osborne as Rube Hexham excellent; as Joe Grimper, a comedy rôle, Mr. Chris Mason shows to advantage, being ably assisted by Miss Edith Barwell as Mrs. Grimper; Mr. Harry G. Wright is good as Zeke, as is Mr. H. F. Wright as Dr. Shand; Miss Grace Heywood is effective in the part of Marion Grey, and Miss Muriel Dean is a good Dora Grey; Miss Rosslyn Vayne makes the most of Loo Hexham, and Miss Marion distinct acquisition to the company; Mr. F. Ludlow is a fine baritone; and Mr. J. M. King an able supporter of the comic business.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company is here in the Lancashire play entitled The Coal King. The chief interest is centred in the masterly assumption of Tom Roberts by Mr. Lauderdale Maitland. Mr. Lionel Thompson as Sir Reginald Harford is to be heartily congratulated on his performance; Walter Harford is ably portrayed by Mr. Escott Robson; Mr. Alfred Terris is seen to advantage as Jim Williams; Dick Shirley is capably sustained by Mr. Frank Dalton. Mad Ann is well represented by Miss Sinna St. Clair; Miss Sybil Coghlan is a smart Araminta Green; Miss Gertrude Valentine contributes a capital interpretation of Grace Shirley.

PORTH. — THE PALACE (late OPERA HOUSE).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—Heading the bill here we have the famous Royal Tokio Japanese Troupe, who are enthusiastically received. The Saletos are marvellous head and hand balancers; Rose, Taylor, and Elvio are responsible for some capital fun; Primavesi, juggler, meets with a cordial reception; Henderson, blind concertina and piano soloist, is well received; Milsted and Bell, with The Belle of Arizona, are much appreciated; Les Uniques, the perpendicular ladder gymnasts, display ability; and the pictures shown are exceedingly pretty.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is here this week with the musical play The Girl From Kay's. The interpretation is a capital one. Miss Nancy Hervyn is most attractive and smart, with just coldness enough to make the scheming Minnie Harborough successful. Miss Aimee Grey plays with simple directness as Norah Chalmers; and the maid Ellen is sustained by Miss Chrissie Ralland with great vivacity. Mr. Herbert Franklyn is capable as Harry Gordon; the Hon. Fitzthistle is amusingly taken by Mr. Tom Shelford; Mr. S. Major Jones makes a pompous Joseph; and Mr. Arthur Stigant is genuinely funny, making the best of the part of Max Hoggenheimer. The chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall, is excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, with the successful drama Her Forbidden Marriage, is the bill of fare here for the week. Mr. Henry Lonsdale makes an excellent and manly George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector personates the scoundrel Charles Devereux very convincingly; he is ably supported in his nefarious plans by Mr. Leonard Maxwell in the part of Geoffrey Broughton. Mr. Kenneth Black as Sir George Lancaster does some capital work; and Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy Tuttutt, together with Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty Lovejoy, score well in their comedy efforts to relieve the sombre portions of the drama. Miss Octavia Noel sustains the rather trying part of Lady Lucretia Lancaster with ability; and Miss Nellie Bonser charmingly impersonates the ward Lucy.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The attractions here this week are much varied. Heading the bill the Nine Akimotos, Japanese jugglers and equilibrists, astonish and delight the audience with wonderfully clean and seemingly untiring feats of balancing. Georgina Lenard, a vocalist of attractive appearance and sympathetic voice, has received quite an ovation; Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, had also a good reception; Mlle. Eldee's refined artistic posings are much appreciated; Howlett's Fantoches are well manipulated, and receive due acknowledgment; the Davenports, lightning magicians and illusionists, are unusually smart; the Morton Trio do exceedingly well; Florence Schuberth, a pleasing burlesque actress, is well applauded for her efforts; and the Sisters Selwyn, comedy musical speciality artists, and Payne's Bioscope wind up a capital programme.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—A return visit of Mr. Sylvanus Dauncy and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company in The Walls of Jericho provides a strong attraction here this week, and the play has again been received with cordial appreciation. Mr. A. E. Anson is thoroughly successful in the rôle of Jack Frobisher; Mr. Alfred S. Barber gives a clever and humorous impersonation of Hankey Bannister; Mr. Cecil Warde is an excellent Marquis of Steventon; Mr A W. Tyrer is well suited to the part of Harry Dallas; and Bertram Hannaford is creditably embodied by Mr. Norman Aveling. Miss Marguerite Cellier gives a sympathetic portrayal of Lady Westerby; Miss Mornington has a vivacious representative in Miss Lilian Rogers; Miss Norah Wynne makes a pleasing Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss May Taverner defines with convincing ability the character of Lady Althea Frobisher.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is here with the successful drama Judy. Mr. George Kirk, in the rôle of Grip, leaves nothing to be desired; Miss Louisa Peach successfully plays the dual part of Alice and Polly; Mr. George Langdon is an excellent representative of Duburg; Miss Connie Laurie as Judy captivates the audience; Mr. J. Telly Dilisen creates much merriment as Jim the Coster; Miss Mara Collings ably sustains the difficult character of Blake; Mr. Stephen Cross deserves great credit for his conception of Sterling, the banker; and Mr. H. M. Hollies gives a capital delineation of Giddles the showman.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—At the head of the bill here this week are Hulo Hodgson and Harry Lowther, who appear with success in a mirth-provoking sketch; Will Letters keeps the audience in continuous laughter with his funny stories; Miss Lottie de Abbey is a vocalist of merit; The Right Road, a sketch presented by Warden Reed and company, is well appreciated; the Montaldos, in a slack-wire act, introduce a number of highly-trained birds; and Copland and Son contribute some popular step-dancing. The Bros. Hampson are amusing patter comedians; and La Belle Lillian gains loud applause for her wonderfully clever trick cycling. A display of exceptionally good pictures on the Bioscope completes an enjoyable programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman. — Miss Florence Baines and company, in Miss Lancashire, Ltd., are drawing their well-merited "full houses." The farce, from beginning to end, is a gigantic success. The conception of the part of Mary Ellen, "the Lancashire lass," by Miss Florence Baines, is most realistic, the lady receiving numerous recalls both for her acting and singing. Miss Annie Mitchell also gives a delightful performance of Eva Lancashire; and Miss Muriel Johnson as Bertha Higgins displays excellent qualities. Miss Pattie Groves is a successful Bridget Thompson; Mr. Burt Burton is a typical Isidore Moses; and as John Higgins Mr. David Donaldson is effective. Mr. Patrick Evans is most successful as Harry; and Mr. Will Casey as Herbert Fox makes a fussy and energetic solicitor. Mr. Walter Hiells as Grant, the butler, adds to the fun.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Henry Borman.—Mr. Gerald Hunt, who is a well-known personality to the Ramsgate public, has been attracting big and extremely appreciative audiences here this week with his combination of fine biograph pictures and attractive variety turns. All the most interesting of recent events are mirrored on the screen, and to these are added living pictures of a thoroughly humorous character. The variety artists who contribute to the programme include Miss Marie Beresford, Mr. Gilbert Serony, Vosco, and Sid and Minnie Morrell.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, the Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee, Mr. J. Richeux.—The boards at the "Pav." have this week been occupied by Mr. Fred Paul's company in the new musical play, entitled The Lady Cobbler originallly produced as The Lord of the Last. Miss Louie Tinsley is admirable as Mrs. Jonas Jones, and Mr. A. Ricketts proves himself a clever comedian as Jackson; and Miss Pauline Hague sings and acts with charm in the title-rôle.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Charles Macdona is presenting the popular comedy with music, Mr. Popple of Ippleton, this week. The play is excellently staged, the motor carnival scene being especially effective. Mr. Morris Harvey acts cleverly in the title-rôle; Miss Maimie-Brickwell is most fascinating as La Bolero; Miss Claire Pridelle is an attractive Violet Brinton; Mr Tom May is diverting as Platt; Mr. Herbert Dickeson is good as Norman Popple; Mr. Fred Maguire sings effectively as Jacques Kenyon; and Mr. Augustin Symonds as George Hennay, Mr. Fred. F. Allen as Henry Doring, Miss Louie Rene as Mrs. Doring, Miss Stella St. Andrie as Mrs. Hennay, and Miss Lulu Londen as Louise, all act well.

RHYL.—QUEEN'S PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Howard Lees.—For the first three nights this week we were favoured with a visit of Mr. Weedon Grossmith's company in The Night of the Party. Mr. Sebastian Smith was a host in himself as Crosbie; Mr. F. H. Denton was natural and convincing as Frank Frayne; Miss Evelyn Howard as Lady Hampshire was both dignified and graceful; Miss Maud Linden played delightfully as Pauline; Alderman Cargen was amusingly portrayed by Mr. Edmund T. Sayers; Mr. Aidan Lovett was successful as Sir Charles Hampshire; and the same may be said of Miss Stanley Ronalds and Mr. Douglas Munro in their respective rôles of Gipsy and Mr. Flambert. For the latter part of the week East Lynne was billed, in which Mr. Herbert Barr's company was to appear.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots conclude a successful season here to-night. Wellesley Lynne's entertaining items are heartily applauded; Charley Harvey, as usual, creates much amusement; Jack Macdermott has a cordial reception nightly, and others appearing are Hulme Sharpe, comedian; and Austin Mahony, tenor.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Mr. George Dance's No. 1 company is here this week in A Country Girl. A delightful performance was witnessed by a large house on Monday. Mr. John M. Hay was successful as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. Arthur Jackson made the most of the amorous Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. F. J. Rooney as the Rajah of Bhong was encored for his capital singing; and Mr. Coningsby Brierley convulsed the audience with laughter in his impersonation of Barry; Mr. H. A. Mather deserved a good word as Granfer Mummery; Miss Barbara Babington charmed her listeners as Marjory Joy, her singing being delightful; Miss Ernestine Desborough made a majestic Princess Melaneh; Miss Cissie Sephton danced and sang with vivacity as Madame Sophie; and Miss Ellaline Thorne made a piquant and attractive Nan.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—Tom White's Arabs, including "Pimple," are here again, creating roars of laughter. The Sisters Russell, comedy artists, are popular; Mlle. La Tosca, artist's model, scores heavily in classical poses; Syd Bazley is an amusing comedian; and other turns include Reve and Smith, speciality artists; Lynn, character actor; Chas. Woodward, swell comique; Clyo and Rochelle, acrobatic comedian and soubrette; and Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—A capital array of talent is here this week. The Boccaccios, including Signor Francia, mandolinist, are vocalists and instrumentalists of exceptional ability; Chas. Diamond and Miss Beatrice quite captivate audiences with their finely executed selections on the harp and saxophone; Gillin, ventriloquial humorist, is genuinely funny with his dolls; Daisy Pearl is a dainty comedienne; and H. B. Raven, comedian; Billy Barns, singing pit lad; Ada Merry, comedian and dancer; and the Empire Bioscope complete the bill.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Harry Starr and company are paying a welcome return visit here with The Unseen Power and an old favourite in Carl the Clockmaker. Mr. Harry Starr is as versatile as ever in his many parts, and his songs receive unstinted applause. Mr. William Miller scores as Harold Granville; and Mr. Edwin Firth is seen to advantage as Antonio Romano and Maurice Helmore. Mr. Will Hee is deserving of mention as George Granville and Count Ivon Nerklevitch; and Mr. Fred W. Graham is amusing as Horatio Cracklesby and Arthur Attwood. Miss Cissie Hastings is pleasing as Lucy Romano; and Miss Lizzie Jacobs is a smart Jennie Shrub. Miss Ella Crossley is sprightly as Jerusha Jane Pickle-finch; Miss Madge Blundell gives a careful rendition of the part of Madge Ryder; and Miss Kate Norris is deserving of mention as Lena Harrigan.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—This week Duse Mohamed and company are here in his one-act sketch, The Jew's Revenge. Duse Mohamed proves himself to be an actor of ability, and is equally at home as a humorist; Mr. Delph also does good service in both sketches. Chee Tou Say, the Chinese juggler, assisted by Madame Chee You Seng and Que-Son, give a capital entertainment; Miss Rosaline Thorne, and Miss Maggy Osmunde are talented vocalists; Miss Madge Bryce is an excellent singer; and Miss Ethel Netherton, as a male impersonator, proves a great success. The Bodina Trio are clever; and Les Bou Bous give an interesting, clever exhibition.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is presenting The Executioner's Daughter, and on Monday a good house followed the story with interest. The title-rôle is well sustained by Miss N. Howitt; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe successfully portrays Monsieur Roche; as Felix Marius Mr. Juan D'Alberti acquits himself admirably; a manly Paul Bovel is presented by Mr. W. Ruddle Brown; and Mr. Willie Hicks is a humorous Tom Holmes; Little Miss Marie Ada Dowsing is a charming Christina; a bright Sally King is presented by Miss Bella Moody; Mr. W. S. Stevenson does well as Kratch; Mr. G. Chate works well as Vivian Ormonde; and Miss Evelyn Robson makes an impression as Felice. The other characters are well presented, and the staging is good

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson. — A brilliant programme includes Albert Whelan, a smart Australian drawing-room entertainer, who is the chief attraction; Ernest Rees, droll comedian; La Belle Nello, lady contortionist; the Wilfords, herculean equilibrists; Charles Stevens, character vocalist; Jean Seul, magician; Speedwell, lightning painter; Walton and Lester, comical illusionists; and the Lurins (Frank and Alice) in their extravaganza Cinders also appear.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The top line here this week is Cattaneo's Troupe of comedy acrobats. The Gondoliers, including Miss Helen Bourne, a wonderful lady tenor, are much applauded; Smarte Brothers do well in a novel specialty. The Jolly Sportsmen. The other turns include Baby Lilybelle, comedienne and sand dancer; Peakman and Walsh, clever comic jugglers; George Foyle, character comedian; the Gladenbecks; Bert Danson, eccentric vocalist and patter comedian; and Edwards and Espinosa, in their new act, The Coon's Holiday.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. T. Carpenter. La Poupée is the attraction here this week. Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia takes the part of the Doll with her well-known ability; Hilarius is in the capable hands of Mr. W. H. Powell, who shows much dash and humour; Mr. Manfred Russell, as Launcelot, ably handles this difficult part, and sings his songs with much fervour; as Father Maxime Mr. Frederick Hobbs delights the audience with his fine voice; Loremois is capitally portrayed by Mr. Fred Seymour, and Mr. Wm. Griffin gives a faithful representation of the Baron; Mr. Harry Rushworth capably handles the chorus and orchestra. On Thursday and Friday Amorelle was given.

SPA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Francis Goodricke.—Miss Emma Hutchinson and Mr. Percy Hutchinson's company is here this week with The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love as Susanne is attractive and in every way charming; Mr. Temple Powell as Chas Trevor acts in a very able manner; Mr. J. Hastings Batson, Mr. T. Whitling, and Mr. R. Neville materially assist as Suzanne's admirers; and Miss Charlotte Mead as Miss Minching secures appreciation.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Hy. Mayhew; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Packed houses are attracted here this week to see Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde in the title-rôle meets with her usual success; Miss Marie Vere as Ruth acts in a convincing manner; Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith is in good voice, and executes some excellent dances; Mr. Will Bereton as Silas Crump provides plenty of amusement; Mr. Henry Ward as Captain Dudley and Mr. Hartley as Hawkins give general satisfaction; and Mr. Walter Ashley as Fielding sings exceedingly well. The variety turns are of the most pleasing character.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Geo. Zalva.—As is usual at this popular place of entertainment, after the close of the season's programme, competitions are held weekly. This week prizes of £10 and £5 were given for a ladies' beauty show. Addison with his fox terriers shows what careful training can do with animals. The Three Henriques give a varied acrobatic show, and are very entertaining; Mr. Alfred Cook gives a novel performance of the life of a sailor on horseback; Vincent does some sensational somersaults; the two Eltons on the triple bar are very smart; and Doodles and Co. provide the funny part of the programme with Love in a Tub.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The winter's programme has now been arranged, commencing this week with Mr. H. K. Bradshaw, a tenor vocalist, who acquits himself admirably; Barry Gilmour, comedian, indulges in absurdly comical songs and discourses; Harley and Horden, as eccentric comedians, are genuinely funny, and their patter is us to date; Horton and Linder spring at once into favour with their gymnastic act; Max Merlin, contortionist, is all activity, and executes his difficult feats with ease and grace; Fanny Humber is a combination of musical attainments; Reade and Lerne, comedians, make a palpable hit; and Curtis Leo, conjurer, is still retained in the programme, which also includes some capital pictures by Vernon's Bioscope.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Kiernan.—Mr. Milton Ray's company fills the bill here this week with the musical farcical episode, The Cruise of the Calabar. Mr. Fred Russell looks and plays well as Captain Frank Fairweather, and Mr. Joe English wins golden opinions by his clever comic rendering of Peter Pauley, his dancing and patter being exceptionally smart. Miss Hettie Lind sings and plays excellently as Maude Chickington; Mrs. Cherrible Chickington is a part well handled by Miss Minnie Mulvey; Mr. Arthur Milton is seen and heard to advantage as Cherrible Chickington; and the smaller parts are ably played by their respective exponents. The principal piece is preceded each evening by a smart little comedy-drama, The Rough Diamond

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company is here this week, playing, for the first time in Seaham, A Gambler's Daughter. Mr. Ayrton's portrayal of Desmond O'Dare is a feature of the performance; Mr. Richard Pitt depicts the gambler, John Grant, in realistic style; Jack Grant, the son, offers Mr. Victor Millaird plenty of scope for his ability; Stephen Brand is played with distinction by Mr. Arthur T. Lennard; Capt. Stanhope is embodied in manly style by Mr. Milton Curtis. Solomon is amusingly sketched by Mr. Alfred Sanders; Mildred and Miriam Grant offers Miss Adria Hill sufficient opportunities for her versatility and skill; Miss Harriett Loydall represents Aunt Zob with much success. Carita is well played by Miss Dot Beresford; Miss Florence Cooke is good as Little Miriam; Miss Annie Broughton, Miss Lottie Sanders, and Miss Maggie Hubert do well.

SHEERNESS. — THE HIPPODROME. — General-Manager, Mr. F. Moul; Manager, Mr. F. Leighton. —The excellent bill of last week is superseded by another of equal merit. Charles Matthews, who is assisted by Miss Doris Reece gains unstinted applause for his remarkable jumping feats; Les Belles Americaines, vocalists and speciality dancers, are well received; Little Rose Pink is a clever juvenile comedienne; Tom Garland gains approbation as an expert ventriloquist; Miss Marie Gibson, balladist, meets with a hearty reception, and Anderson, society conjuror, is likewise highly successful. Other enjoyable turns include Mr. J. G. Scatter, comedian and dancer; and Harry Wenburn, eccentric comedian, who is staying another week. The pictures are also included in the programme.

THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Another excellent company occupies the boards here this week, and business is very fair. Mr. Chas Grantley is a clever comedian and mimic; Miss Lillie Coleman has a good voice, which she uses to great advantage in several high-class songs; Mr. Jack Foley fully sustains his reputation as a first rate comedian; Miss Louie Hurman as a burlesque actress and vocalist would be hard to beat; Dene and Dawson, comedy entertainers, make a hit with their laughable act, Stage Aspirants, and the Andley company conclude with a comedy sketch, A Little Knowledge, which creates roars of laughter.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Russ Whytal and a special company, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Hardy, opened on Monday in J. M. Barrie's play Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire. Mrs. Russ Whytal made Mrs. Grey a charming and altogether delightful creature; Miss Miriam Dudley was a clever representative of a little maid-servant; Miss Beatrice Bramah made a graceful Amy Grey; Mr. J. J. Bartlett was a soldierly representative of Colonel Grey, and other characters were in the able hands of Mr. A. W. Baskcombe, Mr. Claude King, Miss Lucie Verrier; Miss Lilian Locke; and Miss Ada Marius. The performance concluded with the one-act piece entitled The Royal Flower, in which Mrs. Russ Whytal appeared in 18th century costume as a French marquise. Both pieces were staged effectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B Beaumont.—A Message from Mars on Monday came as a welcome change after a long course of sensational drama, and the acting of Mr. Mouillot's company fully brought out the mingled humour, satire, and pathos of Mr. Ganthony's stage sermon. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley made an admirable representative of Horace Parker; Mr. William H. Brougham was a dignified and sonorous visitant from Mars; and Mr. Bruce Lindsay's tramp was a clever character study; Miss Peggy Yeoman was a delightful Bella; Miss Flora Hastings was good as Miss Parker; and Miss Joan Ellis was the embodiment of sweet and ladylike femininity as Minnie Temple; Mr. J. Edgar Stephenson was excellent as Arthur Dicey; and the small parts were all carefully played.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Still Alarm is again being performed here by Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company. Mr. Matthew J. Glenville is a manly and popular hero as Jack; Mr. Fred Osmond's Doc Wilbur is an impersonation full of characteristic humour; the rascally John Bird is depicted in bold colours by Mr. George Arthur; and Mr. Lewis Gordon acts with care as Franklyn Fordham; Miss Maud Warburton makes a womanly and sympathetic Elinor Fordham; and Miss Hettie Zellwood's Carrie Wilbur is a bright and vivacious performance. In the fire station scene the celebrated horses Pegasus and Bucephalus appear.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The famous illusionist, Carl Hertz, opened on Monday in his new mystery, "The Bridal Chamber," and in his travesty on the Chinese methods of conjuring; May Henderson was enthusiastically applauded; the Anartos, with funny patter and good music, provided first-class entertainment; Mr. O. K. Sato submitted a comic juggling act, and the Rio Brothers proved to be smart athletes; the Mezzettis in their funny and agile performance on the bars made a big hit; the Eight of Hearts are comely maidens who sing and dance; Miss Rosie Bartlett sings agreeably; Herr Grais's wonderful baboons do a most interesting show, which was deservedly applauded; and the programme concluded with animated pictures.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—The company this week includes Mr. James Willard's cleverly constructed sketch Did He Deserve It? Miss Ada Parker, serio; Mr. A. E. Parker, vocalist; the Almos, leapers, &c.; Mar and Hill, the Ringling Trio, comic sketch artists; and Pallister's popular Bioscope.

CENTRAL HALL.—Animated pictures, Kyoto, and other variety turns are bringing grist to the mill here.

ALBERT HALL.—Mr. George Burton's Bohemian concert party, including Messrs. Karr and Kooney, opened on Monday for six nights under the personal direction of the "young reliable."

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's capable company was here on the first four nights of the week playing the old favourite musical comedy, A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. Jas. Wilson was a dignified and successful Hang Chow; Mr. Louis Ashmeade played with care and ability the part of Chippie Chop; Mr. Edwin Sykes was a burly and breezy Hi Lung; Mr. C. F. Howard acted creditably, and sang with fine effect as Tom Hatherton; Mr. Lindsay Harman was diverting as Mr. Pineapple, and his matrimonial song was cleverly given; Miss Florence Wilton was vivacious as Mrs. Pineapple, and her singing pleasing; Miss Kitty Clayton as the lively waitress, Fi Fi, herself caused much merriment by her really clever drolleries; Miss Dulcie Greatwick and Miss Sybil Ross were a charming pair of bridesmaids; Miss Alma Bolton was in the well-placed rôle of Mrs. Brown; the Misses May Davies and Louie Love were attractive and successful as maids of honour; Miss Florence Manners was good as Mi Mi, and Miss Francis Olgar merited praise as Loo Loo.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. B. Hewitson.—That vivacious comedy, The Gay Parisienne, is paying a first visit here this week. Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company has been engaged, and is enjoying capital receptions here. Miss Evelyn Hughes as the fascinating Julie plays in a most attractive manner; Miss Madge Soutter gives many quaint and clever touches to the rôle of Ruth; the Misses Holford Meringer and Ethel Ivimey shine as Mrs. and Miss Honeycombe; Mr. Will Harman portrays the humour of Mr. Honeycombe in a diverting manner; Mr. T. Gideon Warren scores as the Major; Mr. Clifford Seyler acts in a dexterous style as Mr. Pompier; Mr. Henry J. Barrett is successful as Amos Dingle; Messrs. Edwin Ashwin and Dutton Nicholls lend able assistance. Special mention should be made of the Imperial Glee Singers, Messrs. Ashwin, Rose, Jones, and FitzJames. The American Bioscope in a new series of up-to-date subjects adds to the enjoyment of the audience.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Lessee, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton. — Mr. Mouillot's own company is here this week with San Toy, which is as popular as ever.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Leonard Mortimer and company are scoring with The Kettledrum. Ben Albert and Harry Brown score great successes; Les Rallis provoke considerable mirth in their sketch, The Artist and His Monkey; Edna Knollys goes well with her illustrated songs; and others who do well are Flo Chalis, contralto vocalist; and Almon, novelty hand acrobat.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Fame and fortune have attended Dr. Walford Bodie on his return visit here. Overwhelming crowds flock to see his marvellous hypnotic and electric experiments. The other members of the company include Arthur Croxon, mimic and entertainer; Mlle. Frederica's toy terriers and Dot, the cake-walking pony; Venie Clements, a clever dancer; the Pasquali Bros., Continental acrobats; Fioretti and Miss Elly, in a novel spade-jumping act; and Natalie and Diana, aerial gymnasts.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The Christian, presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke and powerful company, is gaining capital support and proving immensely popular. Miss Grace Chalmers as Glory Quayle and Mr. Frank Tennant as the Hon. John Storm are seen to every advantage, and win well-deserved recognition. Messrs. Charles Hill and Edward Ling are good as Parson Quayle and Father Lamplugh respectively, Archdeacon Wealthy being well taken by Mr. Charles E. Dering. Lord Robert Ure has in Mr. George R. Montford a clever interpreter, whose villainy is clearly portrayed. Mr. Jackson Wilcox as Horatio Drake is admirably suited, Miss Vashti Welborne is a pleasing character as Polly Love, and as Mrs. Callander Miss Mollie Hayden gives entire satisfaction.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—Lord Watson again presents this weeks' attraction, and his success of last week is well maintained in the production of the musical comedy, The Pet of the Regiment. It has pretty scenery, and the cast consists of a clever troupe of comedians. Mr. Tom Carpenter, a well-known favourite here, is in his element as Percy Featherstone. Lord Watson gives a smart portrayal of Sergeant Smith, being capitally assisted by Messrs. Billy Ross and Harry Watson as Troopers Cook and Green respectively; Bob Leardo provides amusement in the rôle of James Treacle, the waiter; Miss Flo Stanley, the writer of this military play, takes her character admirably, and is well supported by Miss Kittie Harrison as Rosie. Miss Maud Roberts gives a creditable characterisation of Matilda Smith, and the Misses Grace and Lillie Dudley deserve special mention for their excellent dancing. The Kursaal orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Harry Read, give selections in the Dome, which are greatly appreciated.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless. —The attraction for this week is The Earl and the Girl, which is produced by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, who is supported by a strong company. The play has excellent scenery, whilst the dresses are both costly and pretty. Mr. C. D. Cleveland, in the rôle of Jim Cheese, is funny in the extreme, provoking hearty merriment throughout. Mr. Frank Wilson as Dick Wargrave is decidedly good, as also is Mr. E. Fitzgibbon as the Hon. Crewe Boodle. Mr. Alec Godfrey well takes the rôle of Downham, Miss Alice Nixon is good as Elphin Haye, and 'Liza Shoddam is well interpreted by Miss Adele Roze. Miss M. Maude does credit to the character of Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Carmen Cecil is pleasing as Miss Virginia Bliss, and sings tastefully.

ALFRESCO THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless.—Professor Vincent has a capital entertainment for the closing week, and still gains good support. These concerts, which are given more for children, have proved immensely popular to adults. The chief items are perhaps the capital selections of the Bijou Orchestra, the Urban Bioscope, and Professor Le Clair's high-diving dog Spot, whilst Professor Vincent has proved himself a really clever ventriloquist.

PIER HILL BANDSTAND.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless. —This is the closing week of this well-known and attractive place of amusement, the excellent programmes being given with as complete a success as hitherto. Mr. Ballard Brown was given a richly-deserved benefit on Wednesday evening, when a number of talented artists testified their appreciation of his popularity.

SOUTHPORT. — OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Notwithstanding the prevailing extraordinary outside attractions a large audience assembled on Monday evening to witness the first production at this theatre of the comedy Raffles, which was presented by Mr. Charles Frohman's excellent company. The principal rôle was in the capable hands of Mr. Leonard Boyne, who gave a brilliant and skilful representation of the dashing, debonair cracksman who gives the play its title; Miss Hilda Stuart submitted a praiseworthy and powerful impersonation of Mrs. Vidal; Crawshay was characteristically and cleverly portrayed by Mr. Dalziel Heron; Mr. Lewis Edgard was highly satisfactory in the part of Harry Manders; Mr. Arthur Willoughby depicted the Earl of Amersteth with praiseworthy effect; Curtis Bedford, the detective, was exceedingly well acted by Mr. Clifford Brooke. Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald was a commendable exponent of Marie; Miss Amy Thomas was dignified and artistic as Lady Melrose; Miss Hazel Thompson's Gwendoline Conran and Miss Madge Murray's Lady Ethel were both good impersonations; and Mr. Edmund Brecon did well in the character of Viscount Crowley. The play was preceded by a one-act piece, entitled A Lesson in Shakespeare.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS. — Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The Athos Troupe of original acrobats and ball manipulators occupy the premier position in the strong bill presented here during the current week. The programme includes Zarmo, the original Hebrew juggler; Tray and Rich, black and white face comedy team; Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer; Bert Marsden, the six-man comedian; Ethel Ra Leslie, character vocalist; Kate Marsh, actress, vocalist, and dancer; Regan and Ryan, in their high-class comedy act, and the Bioscope with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Conison.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is appearing here this week to good houses in East Lynne. A charming and graceful actress is Miss Julie Kennard, who enacts the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine; Francis Levison is strongly portrayed by Mr. Eric Mayne, and Mr. Alfred Beaumont interprets Archibald Carlyle in a finished style; the comedy element is cleverly supplied by Mr. Alfred Tate (P.-C. Bullock), Mr. C. C. Grattan (Justice Hare), and Miss Ethel Hardacre (Cornelia Carlyle); Miss Ethel Saville as Barbara Hare and Miss Ida Heron as Joyce are both good. Minor parts and the mounting are commendable.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The Boissets cause as much merriment as ever in their laughable sketch The Bricklayers; Bert Williams, a clever ventriloquist, scores heavily; Spry and Austin, old favourites, are enthusiastically received; the Bros. Redmond, grotesque comedians, are much appreciated; De Paci Bros., clever mandoline and guitar experts, are accorded a hearty reception. Other good items are Marion Scott, comedienne; Harry Hayton, eccentric comedian; and the Bioscope, with new films.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—At the top of the bill is Carl Lynn, who gives clever imitations of various animals; Halma contributes some smart juggling tricks; a good marionette show is contributed by Chester and Lee; Minnie Miriam and Fred Mulvey appear in an excellent comedy sketch, In the Studio. The remaining items are Charles Orme, a pleasing comedian; Frederick Clifford, Harvey Briggs, and Walter Payne

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Comedy, by Owen Hall and Liza Lehmann, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Sparkling with the wit and humour of Owen Hall, and the melody of Liza Lehmann, this clever musical comedy can hardly fail to attract anywhere, and the aspect of the King's auditorium on Monday gave plentiful evidence that Sergeant Brue, of the "C" division, bade fair to secure a week's successful run. The audience was highly amused at the repeated failures of the Sergeant in his attempts to obtain promotion, so as to secure the fortune under the will, and the comedy, as presented by Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman's company, went with a swing and a dash that were quite refreshing. Mr. Arthur Reynolds impersonates Sergeant Brue with all the unctuousness of that individual, and deserves every praise. As Crookie Scrubbs, the criminal, Mr. Charles McLagan scores a legitimate success, and causes the audience to roar with laughter at his genuine drolleries. Mr. E. Percy Rogers makes of Michael Brue an easy and manly young man, who sings and acts pleasantly. Mr. Harry Soutar represents Mr. Habisham, the solicitor, effectively; and Mr. Cecil Hood as Inspector Gorringe is excellent. The magistrate, Mr. Crank, finds an exceedingly capable representative in Mr. Charles Sims. Miss Hebe Bliss is an artist of undoubted ability, and her acting as Lady Bickenhall is altogether artistic and smart. Miss Mary Hay plays bewitchingly as Aurora Brue, and in her song, "Under the Panama," easily obtains rapturous encores. Miss Marion Hargrave is a funny Daisy; and Miss Mabel Keith a charming Mabel Widget. The chorus is bright and animated, and the orchestra is ably directed by Mr. Norman Latham. Scenery and costumes are alike artistic.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Tuesday, Sept. 25, the Comedy, entitled
"THE HOUSEKEEPER."

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are paying a very welcome return visit here this week, the engagement opening with the ever-popular play, The Elder Miss Blossom. On Tuesday, the farcical comedy, entitled The Housekeeper, was presented to a well-filled house. Mr. Kendal's acting is too well known to need much comment here. Suffice it to say, in the character of Colonel Lionel Trent, the woman-hater, he plays the part with that degree of finish that characterises all his impersonations. His success is entirely due to his naturalness, and an entire absence of any straining after effect. And what greater compliment can we pay his charming wife, Mrs. Kendal, than to say that the same remarks apply to her in every particular. Mrs. Kendal's reading of the part of Lady Audrey Whitby is admirable, showing an insight into the character as real as it is artistic. Mr. Bassett Roe gives a clever and highly-finished study of the rôle of Lord Brunswick, M.P. The humour of Mr. Ernest Hendrie as William Hickson wins ready appreciation, and evokes persistent laughter; and Mr. Metcalfe Wood presents an amusing combination of perplexity, high spirits, and good nature personified. The part of Subaltern Sledmere is capably undertaken by Mr. Edward Vaughan; and Mr. F. Charles Pool makes a little capital out of the part of Pennington Greene. Special mention must be made of Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd's Crane, the butler. Small as his part is, he makes the most of it, and is quite a shining light in the play. Mrs. A. B. Tapping's Lady Robertson is a capital performance of the deaf old aristocrat; and Miss Marie Lohr is an attractive Cicely Blake. Miss Dorothy Moore-Lane elicits much fully-merited appreciation for her clever assumption of the vivacious little American lady, Mrs. Pennington Greene. Her spirited, yet easy, playing, contributes in no small measure to the enjoyment of the audience. The Iron Master was presented on Thursday.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

Mr. George Edwardes's Gaiety company is attracting crowded houses at the Camden this week in the latest success from the popular Strand theatre. The Spring Chicken, which is adapted from the French by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., is a bright and diverting entertainment, but it undoubtedly owes its success largely to the excellent company of artists engaged. There are several pretty musical numbers, and crowds of charming ladies, and the whole piece is staged in a manner which does credit to Mr. George Edwardes. As Rosalie, we welcome that bright young actress, Miss Gertrude Glyn, who greatly adds to her reputation by this impersonation. She sings and dances well, and her dainty Dutch song and dance is quite the prettiest number in the play. Mr. George Gregory is already a favourite here, and his appearance as Mr. Girdle enhances his popularity. It is an intensely funny character, and he scores heavily. Mr. Gregory is ably seconded by Miss Irene Verona, who is a first-class Mrs. Girdle, and she makes a great hit with her song, "In Regent Street." Another amusing comedian is Mr. John Brabourne, who has quite a style of his own, and his acting of Gustave Babori is full of quaint touches. Dulcie Babori is charmingly portrayed by Miss Gertrude Gilliam, who sings very sweetly, and one wishes she had more to do. Miss Nancy Langtyre, who is well-known here, is decidedly captivating as the Baroness Papouche, whose eccentric husband, the Baron, is played in a most diverting fashion by Mr. Frank Hector. Miss Nellie Lonnen and Mr. Will Spray are both excellent as the pair of young people. Miss Lonnen also joins Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., in a song and dance, which was much admired and an encore insisted on. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., appears as Boniface, and the little he has to do is exceedingly well done. Mr. Ernest Mahar is very good as the head waiter at the Crimson Butterfly; and Mr. Jocelyn Hope is successful as the proprietor of that establishment. The Misses McNulty and Dunbar are seen to advantage as Sylvana and Therese; while the remainder of the cast is well filled. The chorus do most praiseworthy work, and Mr. Ernest Vousden has the orchestra well in hand. The stage is under the direction of Mr. H. C. Portway, and Mr. W. Hesseltine is the general-manager for Mr. Edwardes.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled
"THE TRAITOR."

That stock seasons at the Elephant and Castle are popular there is no doubt. This is due to the careful selection of the best and worthiest specimens of dramatic workmanship which have attained a name, and also the engagement of an excellent all-round company to present them. Mr. J. M. East is general-manager, and it is to him that all praise is due. This week, the second of the season, the drama, The Traitor, has been produced, and as the action of the play takes place abroad, the foreign uniforms and costumes, which are extremely smart, come as a pleasing change, and are much appreciated. Mr. Albert Ward, who obtains a cordial reception, is again seen in the leading part—that of the Crown Prince Rudolph, who masquerades as Colonel Nervi. Mr. Ward scores heavily, playing throughout with distinction, his fine declamatory powers in many telling passages evoking frequent applause. Zula, the avenger, is beautifully portrayed by Miss Kathleen Russell, and she obtains in a constantly increasing degree the deepest sympathies of the audience. Mr. Horace Hunter gives a really finished and realistic performance as the Chief of Police, the traitor, and very ably portrays the cast-iron nature of the man. Mr. Hunter wears his uniforms with an ease and distinction which are seldom seen. Mr. Harold West makes a manly and resolute Lieutenant Nicholas, the martyr; Mr. Walner Gregory is a bluff, breezy sea captain to the life as Captain Ross, R.N.; as Jack Boult, the captain's servant, Mr. Teddy Coleman works hard, and makes the most of his part, winning the appreciation of the audience. Mr. Alfred Holles as General Hertz, and Mr. Brian Daly as Zoff, cause much amusement. A little Japanese girl, much in love with Jack Boult, is daintily and prettily impersonated by Miss Agnes Paulton. Miss Florence Harcourt is very successful in accent and manner as Elsie Duprée, a Paris detective. Countess Zecka, an adventuress character, is in the hands of Miss Ellen Snow, who acts throughout with much power and resource. Mr. T. W. Hurst as General Franz, Mr. Thompson as Speaker of the "Hidden Council," and Mr. E. Vincent as Sergeant Neidroff, ably sustain their parts. The play is capitally staged, and excellent assistance is rendered by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. Nurnberger.

CORONET THEATRE.

A New and Original
Monologue of Character Studies, in One Act,
"PASSING THE DOCTOR."

Bill Hawkins .....
Hoggenheimer .....
Madame Rosa .....
John Barker .....
} Mr. Willie Edouin

Mr. Willie Edouin appeared on Monday, Sept. 24, in a new and original act similar in effect to A Case of Arson or The Factory Fire, in which Mr. Henri de Vries recently appeared, only in this case all the characters impersonated by Mr. Edouin, with the exception of one, are framed on the lines of broad comedy, and he goes one better than the others in making up in full view of the audience. Seated at the desk as an inquisitorial and inquisitive character is the supposititious insurance doctor—with a bouquet of flowers protruding from a frock coat—who puts a string of imaginary personal questions to the would-be aspirants for life insurance. As Bill Hawkins, a painter, Hoggenheimer, a millionaire, Madame Rosa, a fashionable milliner, and John Barker, the aged and honest bookbinder (the one pathetic picture in the piece), Mr. Willie Edouin, who enacts all the parts, contrives to convey a characteristic touch of nature; and both in their actions and speech—however exaggerated for the purposes of the stage—he manages to reproduce the manners and jargon of each craft to perfection. His "business," too, is always apt and amusing, and as the poor old bookbinder he gives quite a miniature Dickensonian sketch.

The farce-comedy Our Flat is familiar as a household word at the Coronet, and everywhere else in and around mirth-loving London. Roars of laughter always ripple along the stream of action in this truly comical and perennial piece. Mr. Willie Edouin once more figures in the cast, and carries the mind back to the first performance of Mrs. Musgrave's farcical comedy at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in June seventeen years ago, prior to its transference to the Opera-Comique, when he was assisted by Miss Fanny Brough as Margery Sylvester and Mr. Albert Chevalier as Mr. McCullum. Little remains to be said of the stage type of theatrical manager, loud, unctuous, and shrewd, as portrayed by Mr. Willie Edouin, except to say that it retains all its pristine excellence and effectiveness. Mr. Charles Steuart has thoroughly mastered the exigencies of the part of the impecunious author Reginald Sylvester, and highly diverting are his more or less successful efforts to evade his creditors. The Margery Sylvester of Miss Daisy Atherton is also a very old and valued acquaintance, and as we wrote in April, 1903, so we can safely say now, that she is not only extremely charming in the part, but acts with a keen sense of humour and finesse and great incisive skill. Miss Pollie Emery is admirably droll and diverting as "our Bella," the presiding deity of the Montmorency Mansions ménage, and her antics are excruciatingly funny. The deft manner in which she and Miss Atherton convert all and sundry useless lumber into handsome art furniture never fails to wring a round of applause from the audience. Miss Katie Yates is excellent as the exasperating little imp Clara Pryout; Mr. Clayton Greene and Miss Rosamund Rokesby are good as the pair of lovers Clarence Vane and Lucy McCullum; Miss Mary Stuart excels in her old part of Madame Volant, alias Jane Brown; and Messrs. Frank Emery, capital as the porter of the flats; S. Carl Lyel as Pinchard, the dairyman; Fred Conyers (who is stage-manager of the show); and H. Lock all do good service. Mr. Cecil S. Lamb assists the courteous and genial Mr. Edward Lytton in the "front" of the house.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

A pleasing series of musical comedies is in store for audiences at the Dalston Theatre, and the first on the list is The Belle of New York, which, judging by the hearty welcome accorded, is a favourite with Dalstonians. The merry play is admirably acted by members of Mr. George Musgrove's principal company, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard. Mr. Paddy Dupres as Ichabod Bronson, the millionaire and anti-cigarette enthusiast, provides a fund of amusement, and his song containing the self-opiniated phrase, "Of course, you can never be like us," retains a prominent position in the performance. Harry Bronson, the son of this erratic philanthropist, has a jolly representative in Mr. John Doran. The duet, "Teach me how to love," which he sings with Fifi, the Parisienne (Miss Lily Maxwell), is one of the most successful items in the production. Mr. Max Copeland appears as the Polite Lunatic, with a mania to "kill Mr. Bronson"; Mr. Alfred Sandoe is Doc Snifkins, manager of a comic opera company; Mr. Walter Uridge is Mugg, a comedian in that company; and Mr. Lionel Yeoman and Mr. R. L. Cody are the twin Portuguese. Blinky Bill McQuirck, the "mixed-ale pugilist," is represented in sprightly style by Mr. Frank Lawton, whose neat dancing and whistling abilities create admiration. Miss Empsie Bowman claims notice for her sweet singing as Violet Grey (the Belle of New York); and Miss Winnie Browne is a decided success as Cora Angelique, prima donna of a comic opera company. Others in the cast include the Misses Florence Hersee, Alice Blanche, Ruth Allandyce, Maud Hewetson, Maud Lena, Blanche White, Ruby Gibbons, and Violet May, and Messrs. A. Linforth, C. W. Anson, Owen O'Brien, and Kenneth Gordon.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE LONDON FIREMAN."

Messrs. Garside and Knowles's company is here in the above drama this week, and good houses have been the result. Admirably adapted for a popular audience, the play has supplied those sensations so dear to the heart of the lover of melodrama, and its reception has been very cordial. The members of the company are in every way capable and hard-working, and exert themselves to the full to ensure a thorough success. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles as Colonel Fleming, and afterwards Hal Curtis, is excellent. Mr. Edward Garside as Curtis is also to be congratulated on a good performance. Mr. Harry C. Boucher gives a fine character-sketch, as does Mr. Frank Hertie as Dr. Gerrard. Mr. William Burgess as Fortnum is always in the picture. Mr. Oliver Birrell gives a capital portrayal of the dissolute nobleman; and Mr. Joe Rockley as Nixey is alert and capable in the comedy scenes. Miss Nellie Waddington as Countess Fleming is dignified, and acts with great sincerity; Miss Florence M. Daly as Grace Curtis gives an intense and effective reading of a difficult part; Miss Nellie Garside as Polly is of great assistance in the lighter portions of the drama; and Miss Nellie Shirley is sympathetic as Ida Curtis. The remaining parts are all in good hands, and the scenery and mounting leave nothing to be desired.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 24, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

The return visit of Mr. William Greet's company in this popular and diverting musical comedy is proving a huge attraction at the Shakespeare this week, and bids fair to excel last year's success. The play is lavishly mounted, and the magnificent scenery and dresses excite general admiration. The chorus, too, is well trained, and their rendering of the concerted pieces is all that could be desired. Mr. William Cromwell scores by his clever impersonation of Jim Cheese, and, in a rôle which gives him ample opportunities, keeps the audience in uproarious laughter throughout. Mr. Robert Hyett is well placed as Dick Wargrave, and uses his fine voice to good effect, his rendering of the "Cosy Corner Girl" being greatly appreciated. He is ably supported by Mr. Stanley Harrison, who gives a natural representation of the Hon. Crewe Boodle, and acquits himself with success. Mr. A. E. Coleby is thoroughly efficient as A. Bunker Bliss; and Mr. Frank Cane as Downham, and Mr. Arthur Cassidy as Mr. Talk, are capable exponents of their respective parts. Mention may also be made of Mr. Fred W. Pattrick as Mr. Hazel, Mr. Charles Greenhill as Dudley Crambourne, Mr. Wilfred Norman as George Bellamy, Mr. F. Payne Palmer as Hugh Wallander, and Messrs. F. R. Edmond and G. W. Rolfe as footmen. Miss Gertrude Simpson as Elpin Haye is the picture of girlish grace and freshness, and acts the part with sincerity. Her songs, too, are rendered in charming style, especially "Zanzibar," which gained a well-deserved encore. Miss Florence Wix cleverly assumes the part of 'Liza Shoddam, and submits a complete character-study. Miss Eva Bevington sings and acts charmingly as Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss Helen Langton is sufficiently dignified as Miss Virginia Bliss. Miss Nellie Grant is an imposing Mrs. Black; and the ladies of Crewe Boodle's party are well impersonated by Mesdames Helen Malo, Grace Massey, Dolly Hunt, and Miss Nellie Lawrence, who also contributes some excellent dances which gain much applause. The chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Percy E. Fletcher; and Mr. Alexander Telford is manager, and Mr. George Highland stage-director, for Mr. William Greet.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, entitled
"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

The above old but still popular drama is the attraction at the Standard this week. The representation given by the Standard stock company is complete in every detail, and the artists engaged seem to have thoroughly grasped the full meaning of their respective rôles, whilst the conscientious acting of each individual member of the company tends to make the performance a huge success. Mr. Frank Lister ably portrays the part of the hard-hearted and unrelenting father, Anthony Raybrook. His very pleasing efforts are amply rewarded with success, and the excellence of his acting is noticed particularly in the latter portions of the play, where he is driven almost mad by sorrow and remorse. Substantial aid is rendered by Mr. Wingold Lawrence as Walter Hatherleigh. He plays exceedingly well throughout, and his histrionic ability is very noticeable in his death scene. Mr. Alfred Russell supplies a satisfactory delineation of George Clissold; whilst Mr. J. C. Aubrey acts the rôle of Geoffrey Waring with his customary skill, and imbues the part with all the hideous cruelty that is necessary. Mr. George Aston is well placed as Peter Pettifer; and Mr. Leslie Jacks as Tom Mortlake causes laughter as a comedian of the knockabout type. Mr. Frank Pentland is all that could be desired as Adam Marley, a solicitor. As the half-witted outcast, Willie, Mr. Roy Redgrave plays with the simple innocence necessary to such a part, affording evidence of exceptional ability. Mr. Willie Reid's delineation of John Anderson is the essence of humour, and he is ably and substantially assisted by Miss Eva Dare as the light-hearted Margaret Bailey. Mr. H. C. Cooper is a satisfactory David Wilson; Mr. Jack Denton is pleasing as Jabez Thomas; and a capital portrait of Dick Saunders, a bad sample of a British workman, is supplied by Mr. George Villiers. Miss Frances Ruttledge acts the part of Laura Raybrook with feeling and ability, and is much appreciated; whilst Miss East Robertson imparts the required amount of cruelty to the rôle of Barbara Ashdown. Miss Beatrice Aimler does all that is possible as Jane, and much praise is due to little Miss Florrie Greene for her Walter Hatherleigh the younger.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Comedy, in Three Acts,
by Charles H. Hawtrey, entitled
"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

A fresh lease of life has been taken by The Private Secretary, which has attained its twenty-second year of popularity, having been performed uninterruptedly since 1884, and has over 13,000 representations to its credit. The comedy brought fame and fortune to the Globe Theatre, where all London was put into throes of merriment at its absurd situations and amusing dialogue. The theatre has long since been levelled with the ground, but the play goes on blithely, and a new generation the world over grows hilarious at its evergreen humour. At the Madison-square Theatre, New York, the comedy ran over 300 nights (a very long run for the States), and in Australia it was played in every principal town with the greatest success; in fact, there is hardly an English-speaking town in the world where The Private Secretary has not brought to its inhabitants many a merry evening. Mr. Eugène C. Stafford, who has had an experience of the theatrical profession extending over thirty years, was the pioneer of The Private Secretary at the Globe, and has booked many tours throughout Great Britain, where the reception accorded to the farce has always been wildly enthusiastic. Mr. Stafford's company is presenting the play this week at the Brixton Theatre, and large audiences have shouted themselves hoarse with laughter and applauded the exponents of the various parts to the echo. A brilliant company of comedians are associated in the production. Mr. W. Hargreaves, who plays Mr. Cattermole, has been identified with the part for upwards of eighteen years, and gives a performance that could not be excelled. Voice and facial expression are admirably combined in depicting with irresistibly comic effect the varied feelings which animate the "uncle from India," and all the best traditions of comedy are recalled in the presentation of the part. Mr. Donald Price-Evans plays the Rev. Robert Spalding, and correctly assumes the meekness and the querulous accents of the effeminate private secretary. Every appearance of the personage, surrounded by his "goods and chattels," is the signal for hearty mirth, and Mr. Evans, who acts with praiseworthy restraint, wins high commendation. Miss Dora Gray makes a captivating Edith Marsland. Her ingenuous manner and cultured delivery are invaluable in perfecting the part, in which the constant vivacity of the talented young actress is agreeably conspicuous. No less engaging is the Eva Webster of Miss Beth Elliott, who makes a prepossessing appearance and wins general admiration. Mr. W. T. Elworthy infuses abundant spirit and energy into his impersonation of Mr. Marsland, whose hunting suit becomes him particularly well. His nephew Harry is capitally acted by Mr. James P. E. Hussey, and Mr. Randolfe Reade is a smart and buoyant Douglas Cattermole. The eccentricities of Sidney Gibson are vividly portrayed by Mr. Vivian Gilbert, who makes a fantastic personage of the Bond-street tailor, and by his efforts adds considerably to the merriment of the evening. Mrs. Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford shows what long experience can do in providing a comic interpretation of a difficult character; Miss Cecily Wade also contributes a finished impersonation in that of Mrs. Stead; and the servant John and Knox the writ-server are creditably played by Mr. D. Benford and Mr. John Macready. The chief piece is preceded by Buckstone's celebrated one-act comedy Good For Nothing, which employs the talents of several of the company. The title-rôle is assumed by Miss Dora Gray, who adds no mean achievement to the long list of actresses with whom the famous part is associated. The slovenliness of the hoydenish maiden is ruthlessly assumed by Miss Gray, who nevertheless cuts a very comely figure after the transformation is complete. Miss Gray, despite her youth, has had an experience of five years spent under the finest managements, and is entirely free from the restraint and awkwardness which are so often fatal in the impersonation of such a character. She is full of resource, and delivers the lines of the part in comically effective style, while the notes of pathos which occasionally recur are struck effectively. Mr. W. T. Elworthy gives a sound and consistent rendering of Tom Dibbles, the outbursts of passion being given in proper stentorian tones; and Mr. Randolfe Reade as Harry Collier is quite in sympathy with the part. Mr. Vivian Gilbert is an amusing Mr. Simpson; and a capable Charley is found in Mr. James R. Hussey. Two such old favourites as the pieces mentioned furnish an evening's amusement that it would be hard to surpass, and while such companies as that directed by Mr. Stafford are travelled the prestige of the theatre is assuredly safe.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Mr. William Greet's principal London company is paying a return visit with the still popular Earl and the Girl, and meeting with great success. The principal parts are in good hands, and the chorus, scenery, and dresses are excellent. As Jim Cheese, Mr. William Stephens continues to "add to the gaiety of the nations." He is as comical as ever, and plays with unflagging energy and spirits. Mr. Arthur Harrold is good as Dick Wargrave, and is well supported by Mr. Percy Wright as Crewe Boodle. Mr. Will Hindson still takes the part of the American solicitor; and Mr. Greene Taylor gives a laughable study of the English solicitor Talk. Mr. H. Courtin represents the irate Bunker Bliss with more than ordinary energy; and Mr. Tom Redmond is a good Hazell. As Elphin Haye, Miss Frances Earle is a distinct success. She is charmingly dainty, and sings delightfully. Miss Jennie Richards is capital as 'Liza Shoddam; and Miss Mary Morison is a stately Miss Virginia Bliss. Miss Gertrude Melville acts and sings brightly as Daisy Fallowfield; while Miss Beatrice Anderson is admirably suited as Mrs. Shimmering Black. There are numerous new songs and dances, of which the "Entente Cordiale" dance is one of the prettiest and most effective. Our old friends "Zanzibar" and "The Cosy Corner Girl" were well given and warmly received. The orchestra, including the special instrumentalists belonging to the company, is under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Ernest Denny, entitled
"ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN PEGGY."

Following the example of another actress not altogether unknown on the lyric stage, Miss Decima Moore has, it is to be hoped for the time being only, forsaken the class of work with which she has hitherto been identified, for comedy. On Monday last she appeared at the Alexandra as the heroine of Mr. Ernest Denny's comedy, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, which is being presented by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood-Ingram, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman. Miss Moore's impersonation of the impulsive, impetuous Peggy is, on the whole, a highly successful one; but it is in presenting the more serious phases of the character that she is seen at her best. Nevertheless, her comedy scenes are delightfully played, the scene at the breakfast-table in the second act being particularly skilfully handled. Mr. Frank Bayley submits a finished and clever performance of the entomological Lord Crackenthorpe, and it is difficult to imagine this character being better filled. Mr. Lionel Glenister appears to advantage as the Hon. Jimmy Keppel, and, although his performance throughout is highly praiseworthy, he, too, seems more happily placed in the scenes which call for stronger treatment. Mr. Henderson Bland admirably realises the impecunious Major Archie Phipps; and Mr. Harold Weston is a fairly satisfactory Jack Menzies. As good as anything in the piece is the sound and effective performance of Mrs. O'Mara, which comes from Miss Annie Brophy; it is a delightful piece of acting, which adds considerably to the enjoyment of the play. Miss Estelle Despar is rewarded with an enthusiastic round of applause at the conclusion of her one scene as the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun; her performance of the part displays genuine ability, and makes a most favourable impression. Millicent Keppel is prettily and naturally played by Miss Violet Barton-Astor. Miss Kate Wingfield is duly dignified and domineering as Lady Crackenthorpe. Mr. Harry Phillips appears as the footman, Parker.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Play, in Four Acts, by J. Gordon, entitled
"SOLOMON SCHARLATAN."

The drama, Solomon Scharlatan, produced at the Pavilion on Monday evening, was received with decided favour by a full house. The vitality and dramatic freshness which are characteristic of the plays of Mr. J. Gordon, are in none of his works more evident than the piece under notice, which was acted with a vigour and verve that reflect high credit on the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, both individually and collectively. The entrance of Mr. S. Feinman in the interesting first act was the signal for loud and continued applause. His powerful but unforced acting as Solomon Scharlatan is full of tender human traits beneath its assumed buffoonery, while his earnestness and versatility did not fail to receive due recognition. Mr. M. D. Waxman's rendering of the book-keeper Mishe was throughout effective; he played with naturalness, commendable reserve, and with every evidence of success. Praise must be generously given to Mr. J. Scherman for his assumption of Mendele, which was both clever and artistic. Although Mr. Goldsmith was too restless as Beines Vassastein, yet he extracted all the humour possible from the part; and an easy characterisation of Simon Muslin was presented by Mr. Schtreng. Mme. J. Kayzer gave a capable reading of Esther Rachel, which at times suffered from being a trifle too lachrymose. Mme. F. Waxman infused much feeling and played with charming archness as Alishbe; and the bright vivacity and unconventional humour of Miss Bryh as Goldeh was quite refreshing. The drama was excellently mounted, and left nothing to be desired. During the week, The Daughter of Jerusalem and Money or the Tramp have been given with great success.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, by E. Hill Michelson, entitled
"ROGUES AND VAGABONDS."

The Lyric's patrons are always ready to witness and appreciate an emotional drama, and a full house nightly was ensured from the enthusiastic reception given to Rogues and Vagabonds on Monday. From their excellent stock company Mr. Arthur Bawtree, an actor of local popularity and great promise, has been chosen by the management for the part of Harry Stanford, and he plays the rôle of the gallant young artist in pleasing manner. Mr. Fred Morgan acts the part of Fernand Delair, a despicable adventurer, with considerable brilliancy, and the applause he is greeted with is certainly his due. Miss Nellie Fletcher as Vera Taverner supplies a well-studied picture of a woman of shady character, giving to her rôle a touch of viciousness which is very effective. As Ben, the pauper newsboy, Miss May Seton is well placed, her make-up being very effective. Ample amusement is supplied by Mr. A. P. Kaye and Mr. Bert Morley in their respective parts of Nathan Baxter and John Lamb. A graceful, yet pathetic, Hilda Jefferies is Miss Sylvia Morris. Good work is done by Mr. Ashton Winslow as Policeman Clegg; and Mr. Geo. K. Ashley as Inspector Mathews, Mr. J. P. Dryden as Jonas Kerr, Mr. J. E. Manning as Dan Calder, and Miss Nell Gillmore as Patty MacGovern deserve commendation.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, in Four Acts,
"TWO LITTLE SAILOR BOYS."

There was a good audience here on Monday, when the fortunes of Two Little Sailor Boys and their companions, as portrayed by Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company, were followed with much interest. Miss Blanche Steele was well suited in the part of Lola Grey, painting the character of this abandoned woman in hard, firm lines, and earning the heartiest execrations of the "gods" from almost her first entrance. Miss Alice Defoe submitted a sympathetic rendering of Mildred Grey, her acting being charmingly natural, and her unaffected style adding to the value of her impersonation. Miss Lizzie Chambers made a bright, hard-working Lucy Wilson; and Miss Ethel Frances Greene gave a touching rendering of Tom Yorke, whose aristocratic confrère, Cyril Grey, was cleverly played by Miss May Day. As Commander Noel Tregarthen Mr. Jerrold Heather acted forcefully, but at the same time with well-considered restraint, and gave a life-like portrayal of the clean-limbed, fully efficient modern naval officer. As Captain Tom Yorke Mr. W. H. Hallatt played a small part with feeling and distinction. Mr. Ellerslie Pyne was sufficiently scoundrelly and vindictive as Lieutenant Richard Redstone; Mr. Tom E. Sinclair was responsible for a good deal of laughter as Ben Baxter; Mr. Oscar Power made a thorough-going "salt" of Jack Jolly; Mr. Ambrose Horton acted strongly as Jim Royston; and Mr. J. Court Havard made the most of the rather unsatisfactory part of the Admiral. The smaller characters were all capably handled, and the mounting and dressing of the drama left nothing to be desired.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Sept. 24, the Drama by Arthur Jefferson, entitled
"LONDON BY DAY AND NIGHT."

The above interesting drama is drawing good houses to the Messrs. W. and F. Melville's popular Rotherhithe house this week. The excellent stock company gives a smooth all-round performance, which brings out the good qualities of the play to the fullest advantage. That popular leading man, Mr. Ashley Page abandons his usual rôle of a young lover and enacts with his customary earnestness and success the character of the silver-haired and middle-aged philanthropist, Richard Thorneycroft. Mr. Tom Taylor gives an effective portrait of Edgar Thorneycroft, and Miss Ida Taylor appears with success as the waif, Dick. Mr. Johnny Chippendale is very funny as Nicodemus Sneezer, an elderly lady-killer with a chronic cold in his head. Mr. C. A. Chandler is an impulsive young Lieutenant Hainsworth, and Miss Marion Denvil acts with her customary ability as his fiancée, Beatrice Thorneycroft. Miss Georgie de Lara makes a striking success as the cold and calculating adventuress, Olga Snake, and her partner in crime, Gideon Snake, is effectively rendered by Mr. Alfred Harding. Mr. John Sargent brings out well the villainy of the Governor of Portland Prison, Major Godfrey Snake. Miss Mattie Everett makes a chic and plump chambermaid as Maria Pink, and the scenes where she is continually pestered by Sneezer's unwelcome attentions cause roars of laughter. Mr. Horace Pollock is good as the repentant rascal, George Fleming. Special mention should be made of the sylvan glade in Epping Forest in the prologue, where many local children appear in addition to a detachment of the St. Olave's Lads' Brigade, and meet with an excellent reception. Mr. Will T. Taylor, the courteous acting-manager, looks well after the comfort of the numerous patrons of the theatre.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Musical Comedy, composed by Leslie Stuart, entitled
"FLORODORA."

Excellent audiences have been the rule during this week at the above popular South London house to witness Mr. Leslie Stuart's delightful musical comedy. The production is excellently presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company. All the favourite airs are welcomed, and some new numbers are introduced which find much favour, notably, "My starlight queen," a coon ditty, which is excellently rendered in Act II. by Miss Nellie Bowman, who charmingly impersonates Angela Gilfain. That excellent comedian Mr. Daley Cooper gives a side-splitting character-sketch of the sham phrenologist, Anthony Tweedlepunch, his ripe humour being much appreciated. Mr. Jos. R. Tate is excellent as the millionaire Cyrus W. Gilfain; Captain Arthur Donegal is well played by Mr. Harold Perry, who renders in appropriately dashing style "I want to be a military man"; Mr. Edwin Oxlee makes an excellent character-sketch of the small part of Leandro; and Miss Violet Grazia sings well and acts with dramatic vigour as Dolores. Frank Abercoed in the hands of Mr. R. Courtier Dutton is a popular favourite by reason of his capital singing and acting; and Miss Edith Housley is an arch and engaging Lady Holyrood, her songs being rendered in a chic manner. The chorus is large and efficient, and the old favourite "Tell me, pretty maiden" is heartily encored. The scenery and effects are beyond reproach. Mr. B. J. Patterson is the skilful musical director of the company, Mr. Henry Spens is the manager, and Mr. Jos. R. Tate stage-manager.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Evelyn Millard have hosts of admirers in Glasgow, and as a result they opened on Monday to a house in which even standing room was at a premium. Sir A. Conan Doyle's comedy, Brigadier Gerard, is the play they are appearing in, and Mr. Lewis Waller's embodiment of that brave but simple follower of Napoleon is an admirable example of his romantic acting, the spice of comedy running through the part being delightful. Miss Millard makes up the Comtesse de Roquelaure, a fine character, and the varying emotions are depicted with the ease of a consummate artiste. Mr. Edward O'Neill gives an incisive touch to the part of the scheming Talleyrand. His satellites are ably acted by Mr. Shiel Barry as D'Albert; Mr. Frank Cochrane as the Secretary; and Mr. R. C. Smith as Pierre. Mr. Frank Woolfe acts well as Major Olivier, Mr. Owen Roughwood is of value to the caste as Major Bron, and Mr. Eric Scott, Mr. S. B. Brereton, and Mr. Herbert Vyvyan ably fill other soldier parts. Miss Helen Leyton makes an effective Agnes, and the other rôles are all well filled. In front of the play proper Mr. Lewis Waller appeared in Mr. Henry Hamilton's monologue, Fortune's Fool.

ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company is this week presenting Oliver Twist, and a large audience followed the play with deep interest. In Fagin Mr. William Mackintosh has a part to which he is admirably suited, and in all phases of an exacting character he is seen at his best. A better Bill Sikes than Mr. Cecil A. Collins it would be difficult to imagine. A capable portrait of Oliver Twist is given by Miss Maudie Ray, and Miss Marie Polini gives a praiseworthy reading of Nancy. As Monks Mr. C. H. Croker-King plays with considerable power and dramatic force. Mr. Harvey Braban gives a typical impersonation of Harry Maylie, and Miss Jane Savile is a capital Rose Maylie. Mr. E. C. Buffum's Mr. Brownlow is a careful study, well acted, and the remaining parts are in good hands.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Geo. Dance's principal company is appearing this week in The Orchid. As Lady Violet Anstruther Miss Mabel Sealby is most successful; Caroline Vokins is capitally represented by Miss Florence Vie; as Zelie Rombert, Thisbe, Countess Anstruther, and Josephine Zaccary, Miss Nell Hope, Miss Constance Hamilton, Miss Dorothy Tempest, and Miss Mary Fraser respectively portray each character in praiseworthy manner. Mr. Fred Thompson's acting as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour is clever. Mr. L. Bullock-Webster makes a first-rate Dr. Ronald Faussett. As Mr. Aubrey Chesterton Mr. Haddon Cave acquits himself in a capable manner, as also does Mr. Wm. Benton as Comte Raoul. Mr. Harry Ray's sterling acting and excellent dancing as Zaccary is highly appreciated. Mr. Bert Lloyd is an irresistibly funny Meakin, and all the other parts are capably represented. The staging is remarkably good and the dresses superb, while the chorus is rich and full.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production, The Blue Moon, shines brilliantly at this large house, opening, as it did, on Monday, our autumn holiday to a very large matinée's audience, and in the evening to a packed house. It is one of the finest entertainments Mr. R. C. Buchanan has ever presented to his patrons, and rapturous applause and persistent encores were continuous. Miss Florence Smithson plays her original part of Chandra in a charming manner, and her beautiful voice and unaffected style delights everyone. Mr. Edward Lewis, as Moolraj, revels in the part; the house roars while he is on the stage. Mr. Bert Gilbert, as Private Charles Taylor, sings and acts with unflagging spirit, and never misses an opportunity. The Major, Mr. Leslie Gaze, is a fine dashing piece of work, and Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Bobbie Scott, proves a journalist of resource. As Captain Jack Ormsby Mr. Herbert Clayton is admirable, and is deservedly applauded. Mr. T. Holding makes a dignified and austere Indian Prince. Misses Daisy Revett and Lulu Valli are exquisite as Evelyn and Millicent respectively. Miss Mary Powell as Bingha and Miss Mabel Lorell as Lady Brabasham are first-rate. The minor parts are presented in a fitting manner, and the chorus sings excellently.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Acting-Manager, Hugh Murdoch.—Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's company is this week presenting The Shadow of a Crime to large and sympathetic audiences. Mr. Stephen Crossley as the heroic lieutenant, Harry Bullington, is capital. Mr. Wm. Matthews as Jim Murdock has some fine chances, and scores notably, and the villainy of Ralph Esmond is well exemplified by Mr. R. Forder. Mr. E. W. Avery and Mr. Alfred Richards prove to be two good humorists in the parts of Brown and Todd, the former being much enjoyed. Mr. John H. Manley is a dignified, yet sympathising, knight and parent, and his daughter, Dora, is nicely treated by Miss Dorothy Riddell. Miss Bertha St. Ruth is lively and piquant as Sarah, and Miss May Rosine as Mrs. Brown makes the part humorous. The quiet and unaffected acting of Miss Ina Grant was a dominant feature of a good all-round performance, which is thoroughly enjoyed METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—A large audience welcomed the return visit of Sentenced for Life, which had a most flattering reception. Special mention is to be made of Messrs. Nevill, Vaughan, Louis, Maud, and Firth in principal parts; while the humorous element is well-sustained in the capable hands of Messrs. Keane and Oldroyd. The lady members of the company are very successful throughout the play. Between the acts of the play selections are given by the Edison Bell Phonograph Company from the répertoire of popular music-hall artists and bands, finishing up with a display by the Metroscope of Animated Pictures.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The attraction for the holiday week is The Beast and the Beauty, and the many stirring scenes were on Monday followed with interest by a large audience. The company is about the same as when at the other Glasgow theatres recently, the most important change being that the part of Jack Barrymore is now played by Mr. W. S. Hartford, who gives an able and convincing rendering of the character. Miss Alice Bowes is still the Beauty, and Mr. Bernard Mervyn ably depicts the evil nature of Lord X.

NEW GAIETY.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—This week's bill consists of that strong drama, The Mockery of Marriage, and the members of the stock company, including Misses Laurie A. Pardy, Marie de Ross, and Crawford, and Messrs. Alfred D. Adams, T. C. Conover, H. Booth, etc., do ample justice to their respective parts.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—George Lashwood, bright, brisk, and debonair as ever, contributes several good songs, and winds up with a picturesque scena representing a colonial settler regretting the happy days (or nights) he used to spend in the gay West-end. Albertus and Millar contribute a smart and varied turn, with club swinging, &c., the lady being also a specially clever cornet player. Fielding and Hull again give their tuneful medley, An Officer's Flirtation. George Langdon sings well in an American illustrated song; Phil Hermann gives a dialect song; the Scottish Meisters harmonise well in their various items; Lillian and Vera are clever shots; Harry Carsdale's farmyard imitations are life-like; and the musical items and animal impersonation of the Lupino Bros. are notably good.

ZOO HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Gotham Quartette in their songs, humorous and serious, are vocalists of a high order, and their comedy is excellent. Griffiths Bros., in a motor incident, keep the audience hilarious. Nipper Lupino Lane is a smart young comedian and popular here. Norman and Saxon are clever vocalists; and in the comic line Dion Wade is well worthy of a special place. The Four Hearnes are neat acrobatic tumblers; Rosalie Jacobi gives a dainty turn; Playfair and Nikola are smart at their paper speciality; and Pick, Thall, and Taylor contribute good singing and dancing.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Malcolm Scott, disguised as Catherine Parr, one of the numerous wives of Henry VIII., keeps the audience in roars of laughter. Lily Morris, a strong Glasgow favourite, again fetches the audience with her catchy songs and animated style. Mirzah, the banjo player, shows marvellous dexterity with that instrument. Dusty Rhodes, a patterer of exceptional ability, meets with a hearty reception. Three Sisters Silcott give their various songs with a fine swing and dash. Mabel Hind sings a pretty Japanese song; May Mars gives a dramatic selection, "In the Shadow of the Pyramids"; The Haverleys contribute a popular illustrated song; Helen Charles is a particularly clever mimic; and attractive turns are given by Joe and Louie Love, two clever juveniles, and Charles Sloman, a droll young comedian.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Lingi Salvini, a clever young musician, opens a long programme in capable style. Bob Nicol has warm recalls for his excellent imitations. B. Troba toys with war missles in a marvellous way. Mamie Iris is a dancer and comedienne who pleases, and Tatten Hall displays much originality in his songs and patter. Cribb and Cribb are nightly encored. Collins and Rice renew acquaintance, as do Harry Mountford and Maud Walsh, in their usual specialities. Baroux and Bion are also here. The chief humours go to J. W. Rowley, whose hearty manner, genial style, and catching songs combine to keep him popular.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—An excellent company is attracting good houses here this week. The Caledonian Boys submit a musical programme which is thoroughly enjoyed. G. W. Hunter has a hearty reception, and his songs and patter provoke much laughter. In conjunction with Amy Desiree, Mr. Hunter also gives a clever magical séance. The company also includes Venola Bros., comedy gymnasts; Ian Colquhoun, baritone; E. J. Sheldon, comedian; Fox and Melville, descriptive vocalists; Lena Willard, comedienne; Lady Mansel's Juveniles, vocalists and dancers; and the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Walker and May, the clever coloured artists, give a wonderfully good turn here. Harry Pleon, in a new absurdity, P.C. Pudden, causes roars of laughter. The Lannons take well in their pedestal dancing. Dick's Comedy Five give a smart acrobatic display. Bros. Dunlop, comedians; Cissy Kent, a neat dancer; Little Lizzie Leaver in her novel turn; and George Antill, "the shadow," complete a very attractive programme.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A big crowd was attracted to this theatre on Monday by the appearance of Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry in their latest success, Dorothy o' the Hall. Miss Neilson plays the leading rôle, and makes a popular success of the part. The more genuine success, however, is that of Mr. Fred Terry as Sir John Manners, a restrained and gallant figure who moves and talks invariably well. Mr. Horace Hodges has good opportunities as Perkin, the dwarf jester; and others who sustain their parts satisfactorily are Mr. J. Carter-Edwards as Sir George Vernon, Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw as Sir Malcolm Vernon, Mr. Frederick Groves as the Earl of Rutland, Miss Claire Pauncefort as Lady Vernon, Miss Mary Mackenzie as Dorothy's maid, Miss Lilias Waldegrave as the unfortunate Mary Stuart, and Miss Miriam Lewes, who makes a dignified Queen Elizabeth. It may be added that the scenery and dresses are excellent.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy and company are here this week in the well-known drama In Holy Russia. Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy plays the important rôle of Renee Rubinoff with admirable lightness and accomplishment; Mr. Carl Rovinelli has a vigorous and telling part as Laurice Steragoff; and Mr. Joe Cuthbertson succeeds in the rôle of Von Pleve, the chief of the Russian police; while Mr. J. Rice Cassidy is exceptionally good in the part of Mickey Nolan.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A highly entertaining programme here this week includes the Seven Wolfrunas, in a comedy acrobatic act; Sheila McNeil, a pleasing Scotch comedienne; Jack Truman, a good tenor vocalist; the Cumberlands, a fine troupe of athletic cyclists; Percy Curry, comedian; the Bros. Levett, champion vaulters; Stanley's Urchins, in a clever speciality act; Mdlle. Du Roche, operatic soprano; and the Two Dixons, in a very pleasing and accomplished banjo and dance act.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—A strong attraction here this week is provided by Mr. C. Watson Mill and company in a romantic drama entitled A Warning to Women. A prominent part in this entertaining play is sustained by Mr. C. Watson Mill, who makes a big success in the rôle of Dr. Marcus Dread; and Miss Rosalind Tate worthily shares the honours as Moira Kennion. Of the long cast supporting these talented principals, great praise is due to Mr. Norman B. Cannon as Fergus McNaughton; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter as Lord Eversleigh; Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Kennion; Mr. C. M. Davidson as the Rev. Wallace; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy as the lively Mike McQuade; Mr. Palliser Acock as De Joules, a clever study; Miss Emmie Barton as Squire Kennion's daughter; Mr. Stanley Wood as Forgie, the Irish lawyer; and Miss Emmie Barton as Molly O'More.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Mr. Walter Howard's success, Her Love Against the World, occupies the stage here again this week.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Ivanhoe has undergone improvements, and bids fair to prove successful here.

GAIETY.—Licensee, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. George Dance's company is here with A Country Girl. In the title-rôle Miss Maisie Gay is charming, singing in good style; as Marjory, Miss Nancy Rossiter is graceful and artistic; Miss Winnie O'Connor as the Princess sings successfully; Miss Dolly Tennyson makes a tall, stately Mrs. St. Quinton; the Mdme. Sophie of Miss Addie Lennard is sprightly; Mr. Charles Walenn is a humorous Barry; Mr. J. C. Graves a clever Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. Percy Carr a satisfactory Geoffrey Challoner; and Mr. St. John Hammund a quietly effective Rajah.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—This week the programme here is headed by Bella and Bijou, who give a very clever and popular entertainment. The Miles-Stavordale Quintette add a cultured musical turn; the Marsumas give a smart exhibition of comedy acrobatics on bicycles; the Primrose Quartette of vocalists sing exceedingly well; Burnetti, character musician, gives a smart turn; Talbot and Pearce are popular in their pretty song-scena The Spider and the Fly; Cull-Pitt, assisted by Mdlle. Adele, is exceptionally smart in a pot-pourri of magic, comedy, and mimicry; Spry and Monti present their comic sketch The Dandy Guardsman; and Bessie Butt, a vivacious sonbrette, dances well. The pictures on the Biograph are entertaining, as usual.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Wilkie Bard, the popular comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is received with enthusiasm by crowded houses nightly. Joe Elvin remains another week, and is presenting Obedient Billy with success. Extremely good turns are given also by the Ongars, terpsichorean artists; Maxwell and Francis, comedy duo; Bert Woodward, the cycling coon; Charles Ulrick, the barrel king; and Will Driscoll, comedian and dancer; while Arthur Boyne, the funny man, and Nellie Stratton, comedienne, complete the bill quite satisfactorily.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Charming Lil Hawthorne, the favourite burlesque artist, tops the bill here this week, and delights with several well-rendered songs. John Le Hay and company present with success a novel musical farce entitled Poor Beggar; and Eadie and Ramsden are seen to advantage in a clever comedy act, introducing some unique eccentric dancing. Harry Grey, the Australian comedian, is full of whimsical ideas, and makes a big hit; the Two Butterflies are exceedingly clever juvenile gymnasts; Cabaret's dogs are wonderfully well trained; the Bisera Troupe are pleasing lady musicians; and Harris and Worth are amusing comedians. An illustrated song, "Two Little Dirty Hands," is nicely sung by Miss Madge Robertson, assisted by the choir, who also render a part-song, "The Miller." The Marble Industry at Carrara is an interesting film shown on the bioscope

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Alexandra Dagmar, the well-known comedienne and burlesque artist, is to the front here this week, and meets with a flattering reception, her songs and stories being very smart. Fred Herbert is a capital topical vocalist, and is well received; Johnny Dwyer, comedian, scores with his song "We keep on 'aving 'em"; Ione Meldon, comedienne, sings and dances nicely; Walter Clyde, tenor vocalist, sings well; the Sisters Florence are very pleasing dancers and duettists; and other good turns are those of Nellie Navette, burlesque actress and dancer; Phinas and Ada in their original revolving equilibristic act; Leslie and Player, comedy duettists; and Raymond's Vivagraph.

KING'S (LONGSIGHT).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Harry Tate's Motoring sketch is the top turn here this week, and, as usual, creates no end of laughter. Tate and Tate are successful in their comedy trampolin acrobatic act; and the Great Penstone, assisted by Tsaou-Ngo, an accomplished lady sleight-of-hand exponent, presents some smart illusions. Carson Hicks is an exceptionally smart rag-time dancer; Merton and Rydon are good in a pleasing musical comedy act; and very enjoyable items are contributed by Bruce and Ross, comedy artists, acrobats, and dancers; Carney Brothers, comedy duettists and character vocalists; Jessie Jukes, juvenile comedienne and dancer; and the Lovelaces, American song illustrators. "The Wolf Trap" is depicted on the bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—"The Land Grabbers" have taken possession of the above hall this week, and cause no end of fun with their burlesque business. King Leo gives a capital ventriloquial act; Juan and McQue are amusing comedians and dancers; Les Bois is a smart comedian; and Little Beattie is a clever juvenile comedienne and dancer. The Rushworths are popular song illustrators; and Lil O'Gorman is a good sentimental singer and a neat dacer. Dickinson and Johnson, deputising for Amy Tiller's Minstrels, gave a clever aquatic display, and an unnamed artist, who excelled in farm-yard mimicry, gave an extra turn. Melly and Morrisy, who figure on the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Jack McKenzie's company are here this week in the musical comedy sketch The Belle of Barcelona, including Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers, after a successful week at the Queen's Park Hippodrome. Texas Hattie is marvellously clever and graceful in her tight-rope performance, and meets with much success. Clifton and Gibson, eccentric comedians, have some smart patter and songs; Alfonzo is a very clever foot equilibrist; and Arthur Stacey is a capital eccentric comedian and dancer. Other enjoyable items are those of the Tiger Lily, a real coon singer and dancer; Cailler in his act of strength; Flo Banks, comedienne; Alex Leo, comedian; and the bioscope pictures.

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A return visit of Lady Madcap has been welcomed here. Miss Vera Vere, in the title-part, proves eminently acceptable, both her dancing and singing being particularly good; Miss Peggy Primrose, as her maid, scored a success; the trooper, Oroya Brown, presented by Mr. H. V. Surrey, provoked endless laughter; Mr. Percival Knight, as Stoney Startiford, and Mr. Oliver Rounds, as his confederate, added much to the fun; Mr. R. S. Comber did well as the Colonel; Mr. Alexander Chentrens was an excellent Count; Miss North made an agreeable friend of Lady Betty; and Mr. Tommy Nelldon provoked much laughter as Corporal Ham.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Much satisfaction has been expressed among playgoers in Liverpool that another opportunity has been afforded them of seeing Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott, who, during the week, have presented Mice and Men, Merchant of Venice, and Hamlet. Particular interest was centred in the second-named play, and on Tuesday evening the efforts of the distinguished artists, as Shylock and Portia, were cordially recognised. Mr. Percy Rhodes well fitted the rôle of Antonio; a capital Bassanio came from Mr. Vernon Green; Mr. Charles Vaughan, both in appearance and action, was a life-like Tubal; the rôles of Launcelot Gobbo and his father were excellently presented by Mr. Charles Bibby and Mr. Sam T. Pearce; praise is due to Miss Dorothy Paget for her Jessica; and Miss Esme Hubbard did every justice to Nerissa. Mr. Hylton Allen submitted an acceptable Lorenzo; and Mr. Charles Langley was the Duke of Venice. The beautiful setting of the comedy was particularly noted.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. Walter Melville's company with Her Second Time on Earth has been here this week. Miss Hilda Beverley was the Dora Grey, a part which she played with much dramatic intensity; Mr. W. H. Porter scored as Guy Brand; Miss Dorothy Hildebrande made a sweet Laura Norman; as Jack Carlton Mr. Frank R. Robertson acquitted himself creditably; Mr. John Nolan did well as Captain Norman; Miss Polly Marsh handled the part of Elizabeth Burke satisfactorily; Mr. Allick McWilliam gave a finished picture of the old farmer Gumbrill; and Mr. Will Corrie proved a humorous Teddy Butterfly.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The ever-popular Silver King has this week been played to crowded audiences. Messrs. Polini and Melford's company is an excellent all-round one. Mr. Fred D. Daviss was a fine Denver; Miss Daisy Scudamore gained great applause for her Nellie; Mr. Edward J. George scored with his Jaikes; as the Spider Mr. L. St. George Lowther made many points; Miss Dorothy Radford gave satisfaction as Olive Skinner; Mr. Byrom Pedley was tactful as Detective Baxter; and Miss Flossie Hall Davies played intelligently as Denver's daughter.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—As Good as Gold has been produced at this theatre for the first time in Liverpool. The trying part of Mark Williams was most satisfactorily undertaken by Mr. H. H. Barington; Mr. William Heilbroon made a manly Jack Stanton; the heavy rôle of Sir Richard Warncliffe found in Mr. Richard Ferris a capable exponent; Miss Gertrude Bonser was a pleasing Nora Williams; Miss Marie McAulay handled the part of Kate D'Arville with discretion; credit is due to Miss Irene Ross for her Kipper, and to Miss Ella Seaton as Madge Merry; while endless fun was caused by Mr. Norman Hall (Horatio Spanker), Mr. F. Thorpe Tracy (Timothy Nias), and Mr. Fred May (Jacob Simpson).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A big attraction at this favourite place this week is Apollo, whose remarkable exhibition of wrestling, including the popular Ju-Jitsu, has been witnessed by delighted audiences. In his work he is ably assisted by Miss Moya Sam, a lady exponent, whose abilities are of a high order. Arthur Rigby's sketch, The March of the Married Men, is particularly funny; the Avocas present a pleasing operatic scena, The Reckless Miner; wonderful feats are performed by Emil Amiel, contortionist; Violet Morgan submits smart mimicry; the boy juggler, Frank Hartley, acquits himself creditably; as lady instrumentalists the Three Transfields are loudly applauded; Tom Yorke has some taking coster songs; and others in the list are Herbert Cyril, comedian; Bert Byrne, comique; and Chas. E. Paton, comedian. The Wednesday matinées here are exceedingly popular.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Selby and Myers, who head the bill here this week, are excellent dancers; Harry Carman, comedian, pays a return visit, bringing with him his latest success "Silent Jimmy"; the highly appreciated illustrated songs by S. B. Geoghegan and Downs are given for another week; a most laughable item, The Mischief Makers, is provided by Haverley and Homer; James Toner, the singing newspaper boy, remains a second week; and Daisy Lane, comedienne, is a good turn.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The "Royal" stock company here is this week producing Wife and Fortune, from the pen of St. Aubyn Miller. Mr. Percy Boucher was as funny as ever in his original part of Tim Larks; Mr. Harry Tresham made a manly Jack Weston; Captain Desmond was ably impersonated by Mr. Sydney Grant; Mr. R. Wilton played well as George Thornton; Mr. E. D. Allen was a capital Daniel Salmon; and Mr. Cecil Ravenswood deserved praise for his Mr. Keen, K.C. Of the ladies, Miss Florence Palmer presented a pleasing Mary Weston, and Miss Beryl Ravenswood acquitted herself well as Beauty Glitters.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Top of the bill here this week are the King's College Boys, whose singing is exceedingly pleasing; Barrett and Knowles are a couple of smart comedians; the Reays have a novel gymnastic act; Liggins and Mulone are a laughable black and white comedy couple; Joe Hocter, as a boy comedian, has some good points; and Ugo, "the man of mystery," also appears.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Welsker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Bros. Ashley are here in big type this week, making everybody laugh with their absurdity, Next, Please; the old favourite, Frank Caffrey, comes with some especially comical songs; Hurman performs several clever feats in juggling and club manipulating; Stave has a smart electric comedy act; and others in the programme are Carlotta Lunn, burlesque artiste; Harry Bent, comedian and mimic; and J. G. Aitken, comedian.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Hengler's comedy sketch, Harum-Scarum, is being presented here by a company numbering 100 artistes, the production creating great laughter; Millie Hylton and Decima Moore have a most complimentary reception for their song scenas; Marie Kendall's taking songs are loudly applauded; a clever exhibition of juggling and hoop manipulating is given by Atroy; Violi, a lady instrumentalist, provides a pleasing turn; C. J. Johnson, a negro comedian, is well received for his humorous songs; the Vivians Operatic Comedy company present a most charming musical playlet, A Reverie; and Rose Naynon, assisted by Clyde Phillips, has a beautiful stage novelty with her 100 trained tropical performing birds.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The dramatic sketch, A Man in a Thousand, is being presented here this week by the "Royal" stock company, principal among the artistes being Messrs. Albert Sember (Owen Penrose); Frank S. Strickland (Gregor Gibson); H. G. Brandon (Darby Quick); Vincent A. Briscoe (Jim Barkis); Miss Florence Barnes (Mrs. Barkis); Miss Lena Pierpoint (Laura Gibson); and Miss Lilian Burns.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A varied programme is drawing excellent business here. The Bloomsbury Burglars, which is immensely funny, heads the bill. F. V. St. Clair again delights audiences with his efforts; Laurence Barclay is decidedly a clever comedian, his smart patter and songs creating roars of laughter. Johnson and Devere are smart trick cyclists; and other turns of note are Amber Austin, Will B. Haines, Lena Mannon, Will Van Allen, and the Lirioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Principal here this week is the popular Chirgwin, who has been greeted by many old admirers; Annie Abbott again mystifies people with her "lifting" show; Whimsical Walker and company present the sketch, Capt. Hamilton, V.C.; Whit Cunliffe raises many a laugh; a smart comedy act, The Intruder, comes from Lord, Murray, and Lord; some neat coon songs are rendered by Esta Stella; and others who appear are José Collins, vocalist and dancer; Steve McCarthy, comedian and dancer; and Berner's Fantoches.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—At the top of the bill here this week are Squire Wyndham and Tom Waters, a smart comedy couple, with their laughable The Professor and His Pupil; the Bohemians submit a neat turn of mirth, music, and melody; Wallace Whitney has some taking character songs; Beatie Foster sings agreeably; Massona, the burlesque boy juggler, is clever and amusing; and T. C. Jaques, comedian, also appears.

At the Pavilion Theatre on Saturday Mr. J. Scherman, at very short notice, gave an excellent representation of the servant, Shamie, in the Yiddish King Lear, in place of Mr. J. Schilling, who was seriously indisposed.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"KLEIN DORRIT."

Comedy, in Three Acts (after Charles Dickens), by Franz von Schoenthan, produced at the Royal Schauspielhaus, Sept 15.

Charles ..... HERR HOCHSTELTER
Sambo ..... HERR H. MULLER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 20.—This latest effort of Herr von Schoenthan is on a par with many of his other works. It flows from his pen lightly and gracefully, but with little originality, and, above all, there is scarcely a trace of Dickens to be found. The author has not only introduced numberless new characters, but has altered the real ones beyond recognition. He has made a plot to suit an everyday audience—an audience, too, which knows and cares not for the sacred name of Charles Dickens. The third act will suffice for an example of this want of consideration. In the story, poor Dorrit is dumbfounded at the sudden acquisition of wealth after his eighteen years of imprisonment, and dies. Herr von Schoenthan makes him live the life of a vulgar parvenu, who well nigh makes ducks and drakes of his late-gotten fortune. The character of Amy, too, is altered, and not to its advantage; and the same applies to nearly all of them. The piece was capitally acted, and the applause was very cordial, the author being called before the curtain several times. It is not improbable that Klein Dorrit will enjoy as successful a run here as it did last season at the Burg Theatre, Vienna.

A TRANSLATION of Triplepatte, the French original of Toddles, recently produced in London, has been staged at the Residenz. The translator is Herr Benno Jacobson, a man well skilled in such work. Herr Alexander—the lessee of the theatre and Berlin's best low comedian—gave, as usual, the chief rôle, that of Vicomte de Houdan, and achieved a tremendous success. The interpretation was, to use the latest Berlin slang, "tip-top." Fräulein Dewal, as the eighteen-years-old bride, was very bright and charming, and, along with the remaining thirty-odd dramatis personæ, supported Herr Alexander in the best possible manner. A long run is a safe prediction, judging from the unceasing roars of laughter and frantic applause.

HERR LEO BLECH, the new kapellmeister at the Royal Opera, commenced his duties the end of last week with Carmen. His début was a brilliant and well-merited triumph, and there is no doubt but that Herr Blech is an acquisition upon which the Intendantur is warmly to be congratulated. He conducts with great individuality; his "temperament," fiery though it is, does not run away with him, but is well under control, and every note tells. The large audience welcomed him cordially, and at the close of the second act broke out into enthusiastic applause. The performance was good throughout. Fräulein Emmy Destinn was very fine in the title-rôle, and the Don José of Herr Neval brought him hearty acknowledgment. Frau Herzog's rendering of Micaela is well known for its excellence; and Mr. Griswold, the new American bass, gave a sympathetic account of Escamillo. All in all, it was a representation worthy of our Royal Opera traditions.

THE Lortzing, having started under favourable auspices, is going on in very satisfactory manner, and when the long evenings come there will, I should venture to prophesy, be a full house nightly. Verdi's popular Der Troubadour (Il Trovatore) was put in the bill on Friday, meeting with a more than cordial reception. The interpretation was good and even Fräuleins Stellion and Waller, as Leonora and Azucena, and Herren Mueller and Maurel as Manrico and Luna, gave excellent renderings. Fra Diavolo, Czar und Zimmermann, and Der Freyschütz are in the bill in addition to Der Troubadour this week, so it will be seen that there is something for everyone's taste.

AT the Luisen Theatre, an old comedy, Ein Kind des Glückes, has been revived, with good results. The authoress, Frau Charlotte Birch-Pfeiffer, has been dead nearly forty years, but her works still form an excellent pièce de résistance for our managers. She was a prolific play-writer, and her pieces, though not pretending to any great literary or artistic merit, are interesting, natural, and refined, and her plots admirably developed. Frau Birch-Pfeiffer was engaged at the Munich Court Theatre at the age of thirteen, coming to Berlin some years later, where at the Royal Schauspielhaus she was much esteemed. Her knowledge of the stage was, therefore, an intimate one, and she used her experience to best advantage. Her plays were largely drawn from the novels of Victor Hugo, G. Sand, and Auerbach, while one of the most popular—Die Waise von Lowood—was adapted from "Jane Eyre." The acting of Ein Kind des Glückes was capital, Fräulein Hamel giving the grateful rôle of Hermance charmingly.

ISSEN'S enigmatical play Hedda Gabler was given last Friday at the Lessing with a very fine cast. Frau Irene Triesch was at her best in the title-rôle, and that is saying much. Herr Rittner played the part of Lövborg, Herr Grunwald that of Tesman, while Herr Sauer was Brack. In the part of Frau Elosted, Fräulein Gernod scored. Many connoisseurs have tried in vain to solve the riddle of Hedda Gabler, but acted as it is at the Lessing it cannot fail to impress even the most critical audience.

MISS GERALDINE FARRAR, the handsome young American singer at the Royal Opera, is not to be lost to us altogether. Her contract with the Intendantur has been renewed for three years, allowing the spoilt child of fortune every possible liberty for touring between times. Miss Farrar's voice has greatly increased in beauty of tone and volume the last few years, and her acting proves the careful study she has given to it. There is no doubt that the loss of Geraldine Farrar would be very disadvantageous to the Casse of the Royal Opera—a fact those in authority have recognised.

THE side-splitting farce-burlesque Wenn die Bombe Platzt has passed its twenty-fifth consecutive performance at the Thalia, and bids fair to run merrily for weeks. The afternoon performance on Sunday is the old draw Bis früh um Fünfe.

PRESENTATION.—At the conclusion of the performance at the Grand Theatre, Heaton, on Saturday evening, Mr. Pat Nevin, who has acted as stage-manager at the theatre since its opening, thirteen years ago, and who has now accepted a similar position at the Empire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, was presented with a handsome gold watch. Mr. R. G. Elder, the resident-manager, made the presentation.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—I note in to-day's Era a suggestion that a history of Drury Lane would be acceptable to theatre-lovers. Kindly allow me to state that I have been at work upon one for some few years, and hope to have it published very shortly.—Faithfully yours, LITA SMITH, 5, Edith-road, Kensington, W., Sept. 22.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR, whose diplomatic exertions in behalf of the Musical Copyright Act were crowned with such complete success, will find an appreciable honour awaiting him on his return from America. In recognition of his work in championing their cause, the popular M.P. is to be entertained to dinner some Sunday in November by a number of music publishers and composers.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has delivered himself frankly to a Glasgow interviewer on the question of social order in that city. "Glasgow," said the eminent actor, "is a good city to be away from on a Sunday. Sunday in Glasgow is a day of Godless gloom. You take away, if you do not forbid, all the chances the people may have of obtaining rational recreation, and then you wonder why drunkenness is the disorder of the day. People talk of the Continental Sunday. I have just come from there; and what is the Continental Sunday? It is a day of joy, of life, of beauty. The people are given opportunities of hearing delightful music. Now, why can't you have such in Glasgow? Why can't the municipality of Glasgow establish places of recreation where the public may obtain their refreshment, seated comfortably, and listening to good music, instead of standing in a crowd on a sawdust-littered floor, drinking as much as they can in the brief while allowed them?"

OPPORTUNITY was taken by Mr. Tree while in Scotland for gathering local colour for Macbeth, which will be produced early in the New Year. "Absolute simplicity," said Mr. Tree, "will be the keynote of Macbeth; rugged simplicity and strength." Asked why the programme at His Majesty's varied between Shakespeare and Mr. Morton and Mr. Belasco, two American dramatists, to the exclusion of the British playwright, Mr. Tree replied, "Well, you must admit that Mr. Morton has made a pretty good job of Colonel Newcome. Certainly I am a patriot, but I have a larger patriotism—the patriotism of the world, so far as art is concerned. But poor Morton! On this side he is taken to task for being an American, while on the other side he is almost daily lectured on the sin of being an Englishman! What is a poor fellow to do between you all?"

REFERENCE to the late Robert Louis Stevenson evoked from Mr. Tree the following appreciation:—"He was a most charming fellow. I was his guest on several occasions, and I have always regarded him as the ideal literary man. A little careless in dress: he wore a flannel shirt, his hair rather long, and a velvet jacket; but, then, he was so occupied in thinking about greater things that he had little time to give to collars and boot varnish. He was fond of life; he liked a good wine and a good dinner."

MR. LEWIS WALLER will have his first singing part in the new Robin Hood play when it is produced at the Lyric Theatre, on Oct. 17. He has a single song in the character of the outlaw. "Musical numbers" are also provided for other members of the company, and a good deal of incidental music will be introduced. Mr. Philip Cunningham will be the Cœur de Lion, Miss Evelyn Millard Maid Marian, Mr. Cameron Allan-a-Dale, Mr. Devereux Prince John, and Mr. A. E. George Friar Tuck.

SIR HENRY IRVING'S tomb in Westminster Abbey is still frequently visited, and floral tokens of remembrance show the world-wide respect in which he was held. Inquiries for the great actor's last resting-place repeatedly come from Americans, and one gentleman from the United States, standing by the graveside, was recently heard to remark, "We Americans remember Irving with affection as well as respect. He endeared himself to our hearts even as he captivated and convinced our intelligence."

MR. E. S. WILLARD and company arrived in America on the 21st inst. They were due the following day at Montreal, where they open their season with Colonel Newcome.

"THE BONDMAN" has been judiciously cut and brought within the limits of regulation time at Drury-lane, and the curtain now rises at 8 p.m. and falls at about 11.20. The revision has resulted in the abandonment of the final tableau, so that a purely dramatic ending is now secured for Mr. Hall Caine's work, which is attracting overflowing houses.

"THE SILVER BOX," produced at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, is Mr. John Galsworthy's first play. He has been a novelist for about eight years, having used the pen name of John St. John at the beginning of his literary career.

MR. LEWIS WALLER has sent a further sum of £2 12s. 6d. to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, obtained by means of his autograph; and Mr. Cecil Paget £1 1s. 5d., which he has collected in the Fund's boxes at the Crown Theatre, Peckham.

TERRY'S THEATRE will be reopened this evening by Mr. W. H. Nation with a compressed version of Holcroft's comedy He's Much To Blame, and a new musical play, entitled Yellow Fog Island, the book of which has been written by Mr. Arthur Sturgess. That admirable comedian Mr. Charles Groves heads the cast of the first-named piece, which also includes Messrs. W. R. Staveley, A. B. Imeson, Norman Wrighton, and Campbell Bishop, and Miss Maie Ash, Miss Alice Barth, and Miss Gladys Archbutt. Yellow Fog Island, which has been founded on a story of Gilbert A'Becket which appeared in the "Covent Garden Magazine," will be sustained by Messrs. Campbell Bishop, Robson Paige, and A. B. Imeson, and Miss Elise Cooke, Miss Maie Ash, and Miss Gladys Archbutt.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has secured the co-operation of Mr. Percy Anderson, who has undertaken to design all the costumes for Macbeth, which Mr. Bourchier will produce at Stratford-on-Avon.

THE Council of the Actors' Association, as the representative body of the theatrical profession, have issued a circular to the authorities in all towns in the United Kingdom calling attention to the necessity of periodical inspection of the dressing-rooms and accommodation behind the scenes in all theatres. The Council gratefully acknowledge that, in the majority of theatres, the managers are anxious to provide for the comfort and convenience of actors and actresses, but there are still cases where the cleanliness and ventilation of the dressing-rooms, the sanitary arrangements, and means of exit are unsatisfactory. The Council, in issuing this circular, do not reflect on any particular theatre. They are merely desirous that thorough inspection of the accommodation provided should be made; and that, where it is found to be defective, the manager should be asked to make reasonable and necessary improvement.

THE third Thursday in October is the day appointed for Actors' Day, inaugurated by the Actors' Association. The date this year will be Oct. 18, when it is hoped a united effort will be made to support a project the excellence of which is manifest.

MISS NORA LANCASTER, daughter of the celebrated actress, Miss Wallis, has made a most successful appearance with Mr. Tree on tour, in Miss Viola Tree's rôle of Inez Izard in Business is Business. The talented young actress will take a notable step in her profession next week, when she will appear with Mr. Tree in the principal lady's part in The Ballad Monger, which is to be added to the company's répertoire.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS, having started The Bondman fairly on its prosperous way, is now giving added attention to the Christmas pantomime, in which a new and elaborate view of Sinbad the Sailor will be presented. Last year's favourites are happily to be included in the cast, in which Miss May de Sousa, Miss Queenie Leighton, Mr. Harry Fragson, and Mr. Walter Passmore are prominent.

AMONG seasonable entertainments at Christmas will be the popular Alice in Wonderland, which Mr. Seymour Hicks will produce, in association with Messrs. Greet and Engelbach, for a series of matinées, at a theatre which is yet to be decided upon. Miss Marie Studholme will be Alice, and Mr. Hicks himself the Mad Hatter. At the Duke of York's Mr. Charles Frohman revives Peter Pan, with Miss Pauline Chase in the name-part. Miss Chase, it will be remembered, appeared in the original production at the Duke of York's two years ago, when she gave a delightful rendering of the First Twin. A tour of the piece, with another company, including Miss Zena Dare in the title-rôle, will be begun on Christmas Eve.

MISS NELLIE COLEMAN is meeting with great success on her American tour. She is at present appearing at Keeney's Theatre, Brooklyn.

MR. CHARLES HARTLEY AND MISS ETHEL GORDON PAULL will bring a very successful dramatic and song recital to a close to-night at Malvern, having visited over forty towns since July 28. To-morrow evening they will fulfil a special engagement at the Hotel Bristol, Paris, after which they will take a short holiday previous to opening a tour on the South Coast at the end of October.

MR. GEORGE HEMSLEY, son of the well-known scene-painter, Mr. W. T. Hemsley, left England on Tuesday for India. Mr. Hemsley is, like his father, a brilliant scene-painter, and he is going to India to assist Mr. Maurice Bandmann in the presentation in that country of English plays, musical and dramatic, staged on the same lines as in England. Mr. Hemsley has for the past few weeks been busily engaged in the preparation of the scenery for the forthcoming Greek play at the New Theatre, Cambridge.

THE musical comedy Lady Madcap has been produced by Messrs. Schubert Brothers, at the Casino Theatre, New York, under the title of My Lady's Maid, the jokes being all Americanised.

THE stock company system under peculiar conditions is about to be started in Chicago, where the New Theatre opens as a repertory house on Monday. No member of the company will be given prominence over any other, and the run of every piece is limited to a fortnight. The project is supported by Chicago merchants and lovers of the drama, and will be under the direction of Mr. Victor Mapes. The first programme will consist of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's poetical tragedy, The Tempter, and an original one-act play by the same gifted author, entitled The Goal.

At West London Police-court on Monday, Henry Blackburn, who enjoys the distinction of being Miss Edna May's chauffeur, appeared to answer a summons for driving a motor-car in a dangerous manner in Holland Park-avenue, Kensington, on July 14. Inspector Stiles said the defendant had been twice convicted at Cromer this summer for excessive speed, and on the last occasion was fined £20, together with suspension of his licence for twelve months. The magistrate imposed a penalty of £10, or one month's hard labour.

MISS FLORENCE GLOSSOP-HARRIS AND MR. FRANK CELLIER, JUN., will, on their forthcoming tour, be supported by a strong cast, including Mrs. Edward Saker, who will play the Nurse in Romeo and Juliet. Miss May Saker, her talented daughter, will also be playing prominent parts in the company. The répertoire will be a large one, including many Shakespearean plays.

MR. HENRY W. BRAME, formerly with Wilson Barrett, Mrs. Bernard Beere, and many years with Mr. Penley's No. 1 Charley's Aunt company, who died on Sept. 13 at the early age of forty-six, at 346, High-road, Kilburn, left a widow totally unprovided for. Mr. Brame, who was the eldest son of Mr. Henry Westland, for a long time a member of Mr. Toole's company, was for twenty-seven years in the profession, and was greatly esteemed by all who came in contact with him. He was ever foremost in the assistance of any deserving case, and the opportunity thus afforded of according to his widow the help he so willingly gave to others will, it is hoped, be readily taken.

MRS. LANGTRY had an enthusiastic send-off from a number of theatrical celebrities at Southampton on Saturday, when she embarked on the Philadelphia for America. The famous actress opens at Proctor's Theatre, New York, on Oct. 1, in Mr. Graham Hill's play, Between the Night and the Light, supported by Mr. Hubert Carter and Mr. Holmes Gore. After a seven weeks' season in New York, Mrs. Langtry will visit Boston, Buffalo, Pittsburg, and other large towns, returning to England next March. On this tour, for which she is receiving the record salary of £500 a week, Mrs. Langtry will also appear in a new comedy in one act, named A Maid of Many Parts, which she has written in collaboration with Mr. Hill. By the same vessel went the Mr. Hopkinson company, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Alice C. Hardcastle, and Barnum and Bailey's company.

EIGHT pens have collaborated in the creation of The New Aladdin, which Mr. George Edwardes will produce at the Gaiety Theatre this evening. The "book" is written by James T. Tanner and W. H. Risque, the lyrics by Adrian Ross, Percy Greenbank, W. H. Risque, and George Grossmith, jun., and the music by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton, with additional numbers by Frank E. Tours. The full cast consists of Messrs. George Grossmith, jun., Arthur Atherton, Harry Grattan, Robert Nainby, Alfred Lester, Charles Brown, Eustace Burnaby, J. R. Sinclair, S. Hansworth, J. W. Birtley, and Edmund Payne, and Misses Adrienne Augarde, Lily Elsie, Olive May, Jean Aylwin, Winifred Dennis, Kitty Mason, Enid Leonhardt, Jessie Hackney, Gladys Desmond, Violet Walker, Minnie Baker, Gaby Deslys, and Connie Ediss.

THE Wednesday afternoon lectures at the Royal Academy of Music during the Michaelmas term consist of two courses—the first by Mr. Stewart Macpherson on "The Evolution of Symphony," the second by the Principal, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, on "The Bohemian School of Music." The first series commences on Wednesday, and the second on Nov. 7.

THE Playgoers' Club report for the year records a most successful season, especially in the matter of debates on plays produced. The Children's Pantomime Fund was the means of giving a treat to nearly 19,000 little ones during the Christmas season. Mr. Hall Caine has accepted the invitation to be the president for the ensuing year, and Mr. H. Passmore Edwards will be proposed as vice-president. It is hoped that Mrs. Patrick Campbell will preside at the annual ladies' dinner in December. The first debate of the season will be held at the Cecil on Oct 21, the subject being "The Importance of First-Night Criticism."

AT the conclusion of the fourth act of The Village Blacksmith at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, on Saturday, Miss Maggie Edwards (Mrs. Sam Livesey), the leading lady, was the recipient of a handsome basket of flowers, composed of roses, maidenhair fern, and white heather, from Mr. William D. Forsdike, with many expressions of good wishes to herself and husband.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS is heartily to be commended upon his latest effort towards promoting the musical education of the people. His matinée at the Camden Theatre on Saturday, when Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor was performed to an audience of children numbering over fourteen hundred, drawn from schools in the neighbourhood, was successful from all points of view. The opera was artistically staged and sung, and the youthful audience followed the performance with the greatest attention, and applauded with enthusiasm. Prior to the beginning of the opera, a lecture explanatory of the work was given by Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, and interest was stimulated by Mme. Fanny Moody's offer of prizes for the three best essays recording the impressions of those who listened to a grand opera for the first time.

AT the close of the performance, Mr. Manners put the question, "How many of you have ever seen a grand opera before?" and in reply no more than ten hands were raised. "How different in Germany!" was Mr. Manners's significant comment. It was with an educational object, he said, that he gave the performance, for the children could not be too highly educated, and a knowledge of good music as represented by grand opera might turn them from organ-grinders and jews'-harps. If anyone wished to experiment further, Mr. Manners said he was willing to place his services and those of his company at their disposal. By the means of such experiments they would possibly ultimately get on to national opera. Mr. Manners was warmly thanked by several prominent members of the London County Council who were present.

A MOVEMENT has been set on foot to raise a testimonial to Mr. R. W. Allum, the acting-manager of the Brixton Theatre, the present management of which terminates during next month. Mr. Allum has held the position for over eight years, and by his genial and unassuming manner and business-like ability has made himself respected in the locality and highly popular with members of the profession. An influential committee, composed of the leading residents of the neighbourhood, including Mr. Nelson Francis, manager of the Empress Music Hall, has been formed, and Mr. Henry Dann, of 457, Brixton-road, is the hon. secretary and treasurer, to whom subscriptions may be forwarded.

MR. HARRY COLBECK, who is at present stage-managing and playing a part in Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company of The Christian, paid a flying visit to King's Lynn on Wednesday last, to play the Rev. Robert Spalding in The Private Secretary. The occasion was the complimentary benefit to Mr. J. Bannister Howard on the second anniversary of the reopening of the New Royal Theatre, under his management. Mr. Colbeck was supporting Mr. Bannister Howard, who appeared in the rôle of Cattermole.

MR. CLAUDE KING sails to-day for India, to fulfil a starring engagement throughout the Far East, in a répertoire of all the most successful plays of recent years, embracing the work of Pinero, H. A. Jones, Alfred Sutro, J. M. Barrie, and other dramatists. He expects to return in about a year's time. Mr. King will be accompanied by his wife, and will carry with him the good wishes of his many friends.

MISS ELLALINE TERRISS has made an agreeable mark with her song "Hyacinth," in The Beauty of Bath, at the Aldwych Theatre. In the same piece this evening, Miss Barbara Deane will introduce a new song, entitled "Friends."

MISS LOUISA PEACH, who is playing a dual rôle in Judy with Mr. Geo. Kirke's company, has several very quick changes, and in rushing to her dressing-room unfortunately strained her knee. She was compelled, by doctor's orders, to rest for a couple of weeks, and, much to her regret, has to relinquish her engagement. Miss Peach managed to play this week in Preston, to enable Mr. Kirke to secure someone else, but returns home to London on Sunday.

A GOOD photograph of Miss Mamie Brickwell, daughter of Mr. H. T. Brickwell, so long associated with Terry's and the Garrick Theatres, figures in the current issue of the Pelican. Miss Brickwell made her first appearance as one of the school girls in the revival of The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown at the Court Theatre, about five years ago, but being the possessor of a pretty face and figure, a good voice, thoroughly well trained, and a natural gift for dainty dancing, she was secured for musical comedy. Miss Brickwell has played principal parts in Mr. George Edwardes's San Toy, Kitty Grey, and Three Little Maids companies on tour with great success, and she is now playing the chief part in Mr. Popple on tour. Her appearance in pantomime at Bradford last Christmas won enthusiastic commendation.

THE London production of The Four Just Men, which has been secured by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, is to take place at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8. In the cast will be Messrs. H. A. Saintsbury, Gordon Bailey, Hubert Willis, E. H. Dobell, H. Elliott Ball, Wilfrid Evesham, Legai Robinson, Algernon J. Hicks, Leonard Williams, Edward Russell, Harry Gregory, Charles Terric, W. T. Best, Louis Scott, James Bell, and Miss Alys Rees and Miss Dorothea Desmond. The duel which takes places in the first act of The Four Just Men is being arranged and rehearsed by the well-known fencing master, M. Felix Bertrand. This gentleman is also responsible for the fencing bouts in Mr. Lewis Waller's forthcoming production of Robin Hood, as well as the duel in The Corsican Brothers, which he is arranging for Mr. Martin Harvey.

THE incidental music running through the play of The Four Just Men has been specially composed by Mr. Fritz Hart, the musical director of the King's Theatre, Hammersmith. The song at the opening of the first act will be sung by Miss Alys Rees.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES'S tour with A Country Mouse, under the direction of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison, has proved so successful that an extension will be made. Miss Hughes will appear on Monday at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, to be followed by the Fulham and Camden Theatres. The comedy will be preceded by the one-act play, A Bit of Old Chelsea, Miss Hughes playing her original parts in each piece.

THE season of grand opera in Italian at Covent Garden will begin on Friday. As at present arranged, the opera for the opening night will be Rigoletto, with Mme. Melba as Gilda, Signor Sammarco as Rigoletto, and the new tenor, Signor Krismer, as the Duke. Mme. Melba and Mme. Giachetti have been specially engaged for the season, and the company has been further strengthened by the engagement of well-known artists, including Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Mme. De Cisneros, Mme. Giaconia, and Mme. Scalar, Signor Zenatello, Signor Sammarco, Signor Amato, Signor Walter, Signor Thos, Signor Zucchi, and Signor Krismer. Performances will be given every evening, excepting on the nights of the fancy dress balls, which take place every alternate Friday.

THE Elizabethan fair and fête, held in the hall and garden of Lincoln's Inn last May, in which a number of prominent actors and actresses took part, has resulted in a profit of £6,700, which has been placed to the credit of the fund for the removal of King's College Hospital to South London.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD had an unexpected and gratuitous advertisement in King's Lynn Parish Church on Sunday last, of his complimentary benefit at the theatre in that town. Both Mr. Howard's benefit and the Harvest Festival Service at the church were announced to take place on the same day, and the vicar, at the conclusion of his sermon on Sunday last, said he was pleased there were to be two performances at the theatre on the Wednesday, and he wished Mr. Howard all success. He only hoped that people would patronise the matinée performance, and thus leave themselves free to attend church in the evening, so that both events would suffer the least possible harm through the clashing of dates.

MISS JOAN DERRY, one of our rising young actresses, has been specially engaged by Miss Marie de Campi to support Mr. Charles Collette in his farce duologue, Tea for Two, to be played as a curtain-raiser before The King's Signet, in which Miss de Campi is so successfully starring in Scotland.

MR. ST. CLAIR BAYFIELD, who is playing the character of Robert Carne in The Two Mr. Weatherbys at the Maddison-square Theatre, New York, has won very flattering testimonies to his ability as a comedian. So great has been his success that he will probably remain with Mr. Walter N. Lawrence, under whose management the piece was produced, for some considerable time, so that Mr. Bayfield's friends in England will not see him until next year. The Two Mr. Weatherbys, it may be mentioned, is by Mr. St. John Hankin, and was produced at a special performance in London by the Stage Society. Mr. William F. Hawtrey has made a great personal success in New York as the "bad Mr. Weatherby."

THE winter term of the Crystal Palace School of Art, Music, and Literature has now commenced. The primary object in establishing the school, it may be recalled, was to utilise for educational purposes the company's magnificent art collections, which include the chefs d'œuvre of every school of art in Europe. The curriculum of the school has, however, been so greatly extended from time to time that the Crystal Palace has now become a great teaching centre. Students of music have exceptional advantages, the ordinary lessons by distinguished teachers being supplemented by lectures, musical recitals, &c., which students can attend at reduced fees.

A BENEFIT was tendered to Mr. Alfred Hemming, managing-director of the Grand Theatre, Douglas, on Thursday evening, when a crowded audience proved the general esteem in which this clever manager, actor, and author is held by all. The pièce de résistance was Mr. Lingford's Carson's A Modern Adventuress. The benefit was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Lady Raglan, and suite, Mr. and Mrs. Hall Caine, and the notabilities of the Island. Mrs. Alfred Hemming, so well known under her stage name of Miss Mabel Allen, as a ballad singer and actress, sang some "old world" songs charmingly. Miss Mabel Hemming, a little maiden of eleven, recited Clement Scott's "Women of Mumbles Head" with fine elocutionary promise. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Buxton appeared with success. Mr. Alf. Hemming said a few gracious and eloquent words to his constituents, and the St. Mary's Dramatic Club presented an amusing Irish sketch, in which Mr. James King, Mr. Charles Carroll, and Miss May Robinson took part. The audience was enthusiastic, and the arrangements, which Mr. Stanley Grafton, Mr. Lingford Carson's general manager controlled, were excellent.

MR. W. COUTTS, the popular lessee and manager of the Star Theatre, Swansea, took a well-deserved benefit on the 20th inst. The Drama of Life was presented in two acts; the Swansea Amateur Dramatic Society appeared in A White Hat; a dramatic scena, The Martyr's Bridal, written by Mr. J. P. Lallen, was enacted; the band of the 1st Glamorgan R.G.A. played selections; and contributions to the bill were made by Miss Ethel Jones, vocalist; Master D. J. Davies (recitations); Elsie May, child vocalist; Bros. Maher, club-swingers and ball-punchers; W. Rees (tenor); Florence Bernard, vocalist; E. Ashbury (impersonator); C. H. Reynolds (baritone); Tom Jones (comedian); Mrs. J. F. Fricker and party (Messrs. G J. Osman, C. L. Trickey, and Mrs. Selwyn); Larry Warner, coon singer and dancer; J. Stephens (Llansamlet); H. White (one of the Merry Madcaps); and Soros, an illusion. Messrs. J. F. Fricker, Hyman Jones, and T. Theophilus accompanied. The Star Bioscope completed the programme. Mr. W. Coutts thanked his patrons, the artists, and the staff for their support.

MR. JOHN WORSWICK, the proprietor of the Court Theatre and Hippodrome, Wigan, is, we regret to learn, passing through a very serious illness. A fortnight ago he was seized with a severe attack of heart trouble, to which he has been subject in a lesser degree for some years. It necessitated his removal to his seaside residence at St. Annes, where he has since been confined to his bed. On Wednesday night, however, Mr. Worswick's condition considerably improved.

MISS NANNIE HARDING (late of D'Oyly Carte's operas) has, we are glad to hear, so far recovered from her accident as to be able to leave hospital. She is now taking a quiet rest at the Lodge, Paddock Wood.

"THE SLEDGE-HAMMER," by the late Wilson Barrett, will, by arrangement with Mr. G. M. Polini, shortly be sent on tour under the management of Mr. George Henry.

MISS FLORENCE HAMER is one of the fortunate actresses who travel to all parts of the world, making their fortunes and numberless friends at the same time. She has been engaged by Mr. Maurice Bandmann for an extensive tour through the East, including India, China, and Japan. Sailing by the Sardinia, P. and O. Line, on Oct. 6, the tour opens in Calcutta early in November.

BY the kind permission of the directors of the Central Pier Co., Ltd., Morecambe, Mr. T. W. Rawson will be given a complimentary benefit on Oct. 10 in the handsome pavilion on the pier. The patronage of the Morecambe and Lancaster amateurs, the Mayor of Morecambe, Canon Gorton (the rector), and many influential people has been secured, and it is confidently expected that the benefit performance will be a very satisfactory one. It will be remembered that Mr. Rawson met with a serious accident at Morecambe on July 15, during his visit to the seaside town in The Bauble Shop, and he has been ill since. Happily the clever actor is nicely recovering, and he has been much helped by the good wishes of his many friends.

ANNOUNCEMENTS were made that a play, entitled Her one Great Sin, would be produced at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, this week. Relying upon the accuracy of the notices, a considerable number of people found their way to the theatre on Monday night, only to find the doors closed and the place in darkness. Owing to the financial position of the theatre, it had to be closed, the last performance being given on Friday, the 21st inst. All bookings have been cancelled. The liquidator is proceeding with the winding up.

MR. ALBERT A. STRONG, a solicitor, who perhaps has had a wider knowledge and experience of theatrical and music-hall cases than anyone in London, is removing next week from his present address to 70, Gracechurch-street, E.C. Mr. Strong is the writer of that very useful an interesting column which has appeared in The Era under the heading of "Legal Notes of the Month."

MR. JERRARD GRANT ALLEN has fixed on Saturday, Oct. 13, for his production at the Criterion Theatre of Mr. W. Kingsley Tarpey's three-act comedy, The Amateur Socialist. As already announced, Mr. Eric Lewis is to appear in the title-rôle, while for the part of the heroine Mr. Allen has secured the services of Miss Lilian Braithwaite. Other important rôles will be fulfilled by Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Ethel Matthews, Mr. Percival Stevens, and Mr. E. Dagnall, who is producing the piece for Mr. Allen. The Amateur Socialist will be preceded by a one-act play, entitled The Lemonade Boy, by Gladys Unger, who, it will be remembered, is the author of Mr. Sheridan, which Mr. Arthur Bourchier will shortly produce. The Lemonade Boy has recently been presented in the United States by Mr. Arnold Daly, who sustained the name-part successfully. Mr. Leon M. Lion will represent Mr. Grant Allen in front of the house.

THE sympathy for poor Miss Stephens is world-wide. This week we have received from the United States a remittance from Miss Lily Seville for £5 12s. 4d., and from South Africa one for £14 1s., collected by Mr. Edmund Sherras, of the Edwards-Wheeler Gaiety Co.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD will present at the Crystal Palace Theatre, on Monday next, Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company, in Are You a Mason? A one-act play, The Ruby Heart, by Josephine Ray and Thomas Sidney, will precede the farce.

MISS EDNA MAY and The Belle of Mayfair, after a long and successful association, have parted company, and the Vaudeville Theatre under the present management will know the popular actress no more. Miss May considered that undue prominence was given in the bills to Miss Camille Clifford, whose sudden ascent of the social ladder has increased her professional fame, and resigned her part. Mr. Charles Frohman thinks with Miss May, and being of opinion that the agreement made concerning her was violated, has seceded from his partnership with the Messrs. Gatti, thus severing a connection of six years' standing. Miss Phyllis Dare has been selected to follow Miss May, and will take up her duties on Saturday next, equipped with a new song from the pen of Mr. Leslie Stuart. In the meantime the part is being played by Miss Ethel Newman.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS has taken determined measures to run to earth a cruel slander, in which his name was associated with a young and talented actress who has only just reached the age of sixteen. The "sensational revelations" promised by some newspapers early in the week proved to be no more than an abominable fabrication of an individual now awaiting trial for criminal libel. On Saturday, Mr. Hicks obtained a warrant for the arrest of a man calling himself Frederick Vernon Dare, who was brought before the Liverpool Stipendiary on Monday. The accused, whose real name is stated to be Frederick William, or Vernon, Woolfries, had passed himself off as the brother of the Misses Zena and Phyllis Dare, and admitted, on his arrest, that his statements were entirely false. He was committed for trial at the assizes, bail being allowed in two sureties of £100.

RELIEF to the long-suffering matinée-goers has at length been found in Paris, where the new theatre hats that are being worn are practically no more than crowns. In most cases, the brim consists of nothing more than a twist of tulle, of the softest ribbon, or of a chaplet of flowers or ornaments. The lightest frames possible are used, and in many cases are merely skeletons of wire covered with net or soft silk. Nothing heavy in the way of trimming is worn, but the hats are made dainty with bright little touches of velvet and a small ostrich tip, which may be mounted to nestle closely to the head.

MR. H. G. DUDLEY BENNETT has secured the valuable services of Miss Winifred Hare for principal boy in the forthcoming pantomime of Dick Whittington at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington.

MR. CHARLES A. WENMAN, stage-manager of the Prince of Pilsen company, was the victim of a nasty cab accident on Sunday last in Manchester. He was on his way to the station to catch the special train by which the company was travelling to Holyhead en route for Dublin, when the vehicle in which he was riding collided with a passing automobile, with disastrous results. Stunned and bleeding, Mr. Wenman resolutely declined all endeavours to take him to the hospital, and insisted upon being conveyed in a passing hansom to the Exchange Station, which was reached in the nick of time.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE will produce his new autumn drama, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, at the Standard Theatre, on Monday. Mr. Melville, by whom the play will be produced, has engaged an exceptionally strong company, including Messrs. Roy Redgrave, Frank Lister, J. C. Aubrey, Wingold Lawrence, Jack Denton, and Willie Reid, and Mesdames Olga Audre, Eva Dare, Jessie Winter, and Frances Ruttledge. The scenery has been painted by H. K. Brown, E. P. Mullen, and Richard Douglass.

THE Amateur Players' Association, whose headquarters are at 92, Victoria-street, have elected Mr. H. Chance Newton president for the ensuing season in lieu of Mr. J. T. Grein, the retiring president, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was accorded. On Oct. 17 Mr. Newton will open a debate on "First-Night Criticism."

MR. WALTER HOWARD'S new romantic play, Her Love Against the World, has proved a remarkable success at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester. The play was produced on Sept. 17, and its first week proved the record week for the autumn season; but in spite of this fact, which one would imagine had completely exhausted a local audience, the second week's takings have entirely eclipsed the first.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN will produce The Chevalier de St. George at the West Pier, Brighton, on Monday. The piece is written by the Rev. Canon Langbridge, part author of The Only Way, and of Mr. Norman's latest successful production, Count Hannibal. The new play will be given on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights, and Wednesday and Saturday matinées; and on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights David Garrick will form the attraction.

THE tenth anniversary of the opening of the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, will be celebrated throughout the whole of next week, when special performances will be given. The work will begin with Mr. Lewis Waller's company, in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, which will be played on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday's matinée. On Thursday, the actual date of the anniversary, The School for Scandal will be presented, with Mrs. Peter Davey, the wife of the popular managing-director, as Lady Teazle. The performance will be under distinguished patronage, and the programme for that evening will give a complete résumé of the ten years' history of the drama in Kingston-on-Thames. Sheridan's comedy will remain in the bill for the rest of the week.

MR. SOUNES still continues to do excellent business at his new Poplar Prince's. This week, with The Two Little Vagabonds, the receipts were most satisfactory, and with the first visit of the principal Florodora company on Monday a financial and artistic success is again assured.

"THE SILVER BOX."

An Original Play, in Three Acts,
by John Galsworthy,
Produced at the Court Theatre at a Matinée on Tuesday, Sept. 25.

John Barthwick, M.P. .....MR. JAMES HEARN
Jack Barthwick .....MR. A. E. MATTHEWS
Mr. Roper .....MR. A. GOODSALL

Mrs. Barthwick .....MISS FRANCES IVOR
Mrs. Jones .....MISS IRENE ROOKE
Mrs. Seddon .....MRS. CHARLES MALTBY
Wheeler .....MISS GERTRUDE HENRIQUES
An Unknown Lady ..MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER

Many of the novels written nowadays are Protests against the existing condition of things. The English stage, however, as a rule, is indifferent to social science. Like Dr. Pangloss, it assumes that everything is for the best in this best of all possible worlds, and leaves to non-artistic effort the task of exposing the defects of our system. They manage these things differently in France, where M. Brieux's plays are practically indictments of the social scheme. It seems, however, as if the Court Theatre might become a refuge in London for the Indignant Dramatist.

Mr. John Galsworthy's piece, The Silver Box, which was presented there on Tuesday afternoon last, is a very bitter pill for the average optimist to swallow. It shows two men, one rich and one poor, committing somewhat the same sort of offences against society; and it also shows the rich man getting off scot-free, while the poor man gets a month's hard labour. The three scenes of the first act all take place in the dining-room of a well-to-do family in the West-end. The son of the house, Jack Barthwick, comes in drunk, after having supped with a cocotte whom he has despoiled of her reticule, which happens to contain her purse with £7 odd in it. Jones, an ex-groom, one of the unemployed, helps the tipsy young man to get into the house, and is afterwards invited by him to "take a drink." Jones does so, and, under the influence of "whisky neat," picks up the purse which has fallen on the ground, and also takes away with him a silver cigarette-box which lay on the table. His wife, a hopeless, gentle, and patient drudge, is the charwoman at the Barthwicks, and is soon suspected of the theft. A detective calls at the wretched home of the pair, and arrests the woman. Then her husband confesses to the crime, and assaults the police in the execution of their duty.

As Mr. John Barthwick is a Member of Parliament, it is imperative that the fact of his son having "conveyed" home a prostitute's bag while in a state of intoxication should not get into the papers; so, in agonised dread, the father summons a solicitor friend named Roper, and implores him to get the family out of their difficulty. The scene of the last act is a police-court, where the case of the silver box is dealt with. The great point in the eyes of the Barthwicks is to suppress all evidence relating to the reticule. This Roper manages adroitly to do, and Jones is sent to hard labour for a month, while the magistrate smiles indulgently at young Barthwick's admission that on the night in question he "had too much champagne."

To a certain extent, Mr. Galsworthy's plea is specious and merely plausible. The crimes committed by Jack Barthwick and Jones are not identical. Jack has no intention of stealing, and he is intoxicated when he takes the cocotte's property. Jones knows very well what he is doing, and his plea that he purloined the silver box out of spite is absurd—he certainly did not take the lady's purse with the £7 in it for the same reason. So much by way of ethical criticism. The merit of the play lies in the careful and well-observed way in which all the picture is worked over; in the portraits of the "long-suffering" wife; the frowsy cocotte, with her anxiety about her rent; and the Barthwick parents, the husband with his talk about "principle" and his twinges of conscience, and the wife with her absolute freedom from the restraints of logic, her complacent class prejudices, and her weak indulgence for her son; the imperturbable manservant, always wearing the mask of servitude; and the other characters, "down to the very humblest"—all are really admirably drawn. Part of the impression of satisfying completeness given by the performance was undoubtedly due to the acting, which was absolutely adequate all round. Each of the personages was depicted with almost flawless fidelity, and the illusion was made all-powerful by the attention paid to every detail of dress and scenery. Mr. James Hearn played John Barthwick capitally, the passionate anxiety of the parent, his disgust with his son's folly and extravagance, and his uneasy doubts about the "principle" on which he claims always to act being suggested with great skill and solicitude. Mr. A. E. Matthews's Jack Barthwick had many subtle traits, the nervous grin of the youth being a quaint item, and his indifference to any considerations but those of his own comfort and enjoyment being very artistically indicated. Mr. A. Goodsall gave a neat and sharp performance as the acute and cynical Roper; and Mr. Frederick Lloyd was the acme of calm and polished subservience as Marlow. Mr. Norman McKinnel's Jones had all the required bitterness and brutality, and was a very picturesque and powerful piece of acting. Mr. Lewis Casson imitated exactly the accustomed "drone" of the Magistrate's Clerk; and Mr. Edmund Gwenn's Relieving Officer might have been—and probably was—studied from life. Miss Frances Ivor supplied a Mrs. Barthwick unimpeachably self-satisfied, obstinately prejudiced, and vigorously self-assertive; and Miss Irene Rooke's Mrs. Jones, though possibly too refined in pronunciation for the average charwoman, was very touching in its submissive gentleness and utterly "vanquished" quietism. Miss Sydney Fairbrother contributed a grimly pathetic portraiture of an over-dressed "unfortunate," which had many points of humour and humanity, and was thoroughly clever and convincing; and Miss Gertrude Henriques was quite commendable as Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Maltby doing useful work as Mrs. Seddon. The police-court in the last act was reproduced with conscientious fidelity, and the stage-management here was capital, all the details and incidents of civic justice being introduced with a care and ingenuity which were very creditable. The Silver Box is unique in its way amongst the entertainments of playgoing London, and should certainly be seen, if only as a curiosity. Its production proves what a vast amount of acting ability we have at our disposal, and what genuine interest can be created by a piece with an intelligent aim—and even a sociological theme for its basis—if only the thing be thoroughly well done, and the performance and production are on a level with the author's intention and idea.

AMASIS: AN EGYPTIAN PRINCESS.

Mr. Frederick Fenn is a young writer possessing hereditary gifts, but that he should be responsible in his first effort for such a brilliant libretto as that to be found in Amasis speaks volumes as to his command of satire. It is true that the numerous witticisms of the dialogue owe something to the influence of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, but precisely the same remark was made of Captain Basil Hood when his first operetta, Gipsies, was presented at the Lyric Theatre some sixteen years ago. Mr. Hood has written much brilliant original work since, and Mr. Fenn, whose serious plays have been found acceptable at that theatre of the intellectuals, the Court, and who reveals such amusing qualities in the lighter vein, will no doubt do the same. Mr. Philip Michael Faraday, the composer, whose association with Mr. Fenn has had such happy results, was practically unknown in the world of comic opera until the public heard his flowing melodies and his ably planned concerted music, on the production of the Egyptian comic opera which has now become an established success at the New Theatre. His name suggests Science; but "Music"—heavenly maid—has claimed him for her own, and his enthusiastic worship of Euterpe is quite justified by his gift of tune and his able orchestration. May the new alliance be productive of many more works of an engaging character.

The opera has just run into fifty performances, and the members of the cast have now settled down to their work, doing complete justice both to librettist and composer. Since the first night Mr. Rutland Barrington has added verses to his topical song "The inference is obvious," and the little breeze at the Vaudeville which has resulted in the secession of Miss Edna May from the cast of The Belle of Mayfair is satirised in a special verse, which was received with much laughter and applause on the night of our recent visit. Mr. Barrington's Amasis the Ninth with his beautiful ringlets—modelled as a matter of course by the only Clarkson from Coptic portraits of the Ptolemies—cuts a genial figure, and possesses a wonderfully expressive smile that doesn't come off during the performance.

Mr. Lauri de Frece, who has suddenly leapt into fame as Sebak, the keeper of the crocodiles, made his mark, we believe, as a comedian during tours in the Rand. He is certainly an acquisition to the London stage. He is vastly amusing in the Egyptian official's report to his monarch on the condition of the sacred reptiles, and scores most unmistakably in his song—assisted by the pretty chorus of eight wives—which may be entitled "I'm adviser in this affair." Mr. De Frece is an excellent dancer, and with such unmistakable gifts for comedy should go far.

What a delightful singer and actress is Miss Ruth Vincent! As the Princess Amasis she looks as fresh and radiant as a May morning, and might be conceding encores all night were she so minded. The number "Little Princess, look up," which caught on so unmistakably the first night, is still listened to with rapture. Another tuneful number to which this popular comic opera heroine does complete justice is entitled "The stars which watched."

In the pretty duett between the Princess Amasis and her lover Prince Anhoteb Miss Ruth Vincent is assisted by Mr. Roland Cunningham—a cultured baritone with a voice of good quality. Mr. Cunningham is particularly happy in his recital of the story of the killing of the "royal mouser"—in which the prince explains that "though tabbies' lives are legion, if you smash the dorsal region" they are liable to "curl up"—and possesses a gaiety of manner that is decidedly inspiriting.

Mr. Whitworth Mitton, who comes from the concert platform, has an excellent voice, and sings with much fervour several numbers, of which we may pick out "What is life, dear princess, what is life?" Mr. Mitton has the only sentimental part in the piece—that of Cheiro, a Scribe, hopelessly in love with the heroine, and he plays with considerable intelligence and no little expressiveness. The cultivation of a clearer enunciation would, however, add much to the value of his singing, which is most favourably received.

Mr. Norman Salmond, who will be remembered as the original Father Maxime in La Poupée, is at hand to give dignity and hauteur to the high priest Nebenchari, whose solo in the second act enables the actor-vocalist to score. Mr. Salmond does not forget either that his part has a humorous complexion.

Mr. Herbert Ross as the Court Embalmer, Ptolemy Theopompus, Allakama, also puts on the antick disposition to some purpose, being especially good in the accusation scene in the first act.

Miss Madge Vincent has much of the charm of voice and manner that distinguishes her sister, and makes a pretty and fascinating Natis. She sings "I'm a lonely little maid" with the greatest success, and her gaiety and abandon are conspicuous in her scena with the mummy guards.

Mr. Frank Perfitt is a tall and commanding captain of the guard, making the most of his few opportunities; Mr. G. Mackarness speaks his few lines well as the wine merchant Zopyrus; and Mr. Leonard Calvert is effective in the small part of the town-crier.

The choruses "Has anyone seen our cat?" and "He has confessed" are capital examples of part writing; and the excellent orchestra does its work extremely well under the capable direction of Mr. J. A. De Orellana. Mr. Clement Barnes has caught the Egyptian spirit, as it were, in his fine paintings of the architecture of the Palace of King Amasis; and the dresses of the ladies have been admirably designed by Mr. Tom Heslewood, Mr. F. M. Kelly being responsible for those of the gentlemen, which seem to be fashioned after the garments worn by the figures carved on the pyramids. The new dances and chorus evolutions have been cleverly arranged by Espinosa; and Mr. Frederick Stanhope's stage-management is a decided factor in a smooth and interesting performance. Mr. Louis Calvert may be heartily congratulated on a most exhilarating production.

"A LESSON IN PEARLS."

A Comedietta, by Mrs. Barry Pain,
Produced at the Theatre Royal, Bath,
Monday, Sept. 24, 1906.

Sir George Fullerton .....MR. GILBERT HERON
Kitty Fullerton .....MISS JESSIE DANVERS
Josephine .....MISS ENID MEEK

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This is an extremely bright and cleverly written little piece. The motif centres around a pearl necklace, the gift of Sir George to his wife on her birthday. The lady carelessly leaves it upon a table (a habit of hers which her husband endeavours to cure), and he, by accident finding it, to frighten and warn her places it in his cigarette-case. At her wits' end to know how to explain her loss, she borrows another necklace from a friend, intending to hoodwink her husband while trying to recover her own, but fortunately he carelessly leaves his cigarette case about, and she, opening it, finds her own pearls, and so is able to turn the tables in her favour, the end coming by the pair deciding to have lunch at a swell restaurant. Mrs. Barry Pain's dialogue is very entertaining, and the morceau was most cordially received. The two important characters were capitally undertaken by Mr. Gilbert Heron and Miss Jessie Danvers; while Josephine, her maid, was hit off in chic fashion by Miss Enid Meek.

BUSINESS MANAGERS.

MR. SYDNEY PAXTON.

To be popular is the natural ambition of all public men; to attain that popularity is the luck of few; to maintain it is the privilege of only those who know how to value it, not from a selfish view, but from a grateful, whole-hearted, manly aspect. This Mr. Sydney Paxton, the courteous resident-manager of the Grand Theatre and astute district-manager of the Hippodrome at Southampton, has done. He has always been the idol of his staff, his co-workers in business, his personal friends, and all confrères who have had the honour of association with him during his short sojourn in Southampton. Although but three and a half years in the town, he has gained a wide circle of friends, and he is esteemed and respected by all classes of playgoers. And now, unfortunately, we have to say "Good-bye"—not merely "Au revoir," but good-bye—for Mr. Paxton, on relinquishing his managerial duties on October 4, intends to leave the town in which he has spent so many happy days. That he will carry away with him many delightful tokens and remembrances of the respect and regard in which he is held we are sure, for an energetic committee have been hard at work for weeks past arranging for a tangible recognition of his many good qualities, so that a hearty send-off is assured.

A grand farewell benefit concert will be given by the townspeople in his honour at the Skating Rink (kindly lent by Alderman E. Gayton) on Thursday next, under the patronage of the Mayor (Councillor H. Cawte, J.P.), Sir George Hussey, Colonel Swalin, and other distinguished public men.

During Mr. Paxton's twenty-seven years' connection with the profession he has made the acquaintance and won the friendship of most of the theatrical celebrities of the period, and it is expected that many of his old friends will assist at his farewell on Thursday. It has been decided that the presentation shall take the form of a handsomely illuminated address and a purse of gold, together with a suitable gift to Mrs. Paxton.

That Mr. Paxton is equally popular behind the stage as in front is evidenced by the numerous presentations and souvenirs he has received during his Grand reign, and he has been thanked and complimented by all the leading managers of the day. We cannot do better than quote the late Sir Henry Irving, who, in his farewell speech at the Grand Theatre on Feb. 1, 1905, said:—"I would also like to thank a very old and valued friend of mine, the manager of this theatre, Mr. Sydney Paxton. I have known him for many years, and I knew his father before him. He came to me as a little bit of a boy, and I told him if he wanted to be an actor he must soon make a start and try. He made a start, and became an actor, and got on very well, and eventually became the manager of this theatre, and I congratulate you on having so conscientious a manager as you have in him. Sydney Paxton is a man who wants to make the theatre a place of recreation for high-minded and intelligent people, and I think he will succeed."

During his stay in the great seaport of the South, Mr. Paxton has thrown his influence and wide experience into many public matters. In the antiquarian affairs of the town he has taken the deepest interest, and he has served no less than three times on the jury of that quaint and ancient ceremonial known as Court Leet. His reverence for the past, however, was equalled by his anxiety for the present, for when the Southampton Development Association was formed, Mr. Paxton was "right there," and the knowledge that he naturally acquired during many years of travel was placed unreservedly at the service of the town. Then he was invited to, and did, join the committee of the Southampton Record Society, and was an enthusiastic member of the Dickens Fellowship.

Mr. Paxton's keen love of all manly sports led him into the presidency of the Bargate Cricket Club, a position which he most successfully filled for two seasons, and this year he had the satisfaction of seeing his eleven carry off the championship bowl and medals. Mr. Paxton also took great interest in the doings of the Southampton Football Club, and when the effort was made to improve the status and financial position of the Hampshire County Cricket Club it was through his instrumentality that a benefit matinée came off at the Grand.

He was always to the fore in the sacred cause of charity, and such deserving funds as the Hospital and Hilda were appreciably aided by the same means, so that it is not only socially, but publicly, that Mr. Paxton will be greatly missed.

As most people know, Mr. Paxton is the son of that celebrated divine, the Rev. Paxton Hood, and the son has proved himself worthy the sire and grandsire, who fought by Nelson's side as an officer of H.M.S. Temeraire. Mr. Paxton was born in 1860, educated on the Continent, and, after a brief commercial and journalistic experience, joined the theatrical profession in 1879. In the twenty-seven years he has passed in the profession Mr. Paxton has, at one time or another, served in almost every capacity in the business, and is exceptionally well qualified by actual experience, both on the stage and in "front of the house."

Mr. Paxton has served on the committee of the Actors' Benevolent Fund for the past twelve years, and for nine years was on the council of the Actors' Association.

He played the late J. L. Toole's part in Walker, London during the illness of that famous comedian, and he sustained the rôle of Spettigue in Charley's Aunt over a thousand times at the Globe Theatre, London. His last engagement before coming to reside at Southampton was as Alderman Hargen in Mr. Weedon Grossmith's Night of the Party, at the Avenue Theatre, London, which part he has played over five hundred times, including two hundred performances in the capital and a visit to America in 1902.

Mr. Paxton married Miss Lillie Garde, a daughter of Mr. George F. Leicester, and niece of the late Miss Eliza Johnstone, in 1894, and is the happy father of two charming little daughters.

"GARRICK AND HIS CIRCLE."

Biographies are so often "dry-as-dust" compilations that it is delightful to meet with one into which the authoress, having conscientiously accumulated material from all available sources, has infused her own bright, humorous, and acute individuality into her treatment of her subject. "Garrick and His Circle" is readable and amusing from beginning to end; and Mrs. Clement Parsons, the authoress of the thick, but not by any means "heavy," volume which has just been published by Messrs. Methuen and Co., must be congratulated on the clever way in which she has done her work, and on the excellent illustrations with which it is embellished. One of these represent the interior of a theatre in Garrick's time; and Mrs. Parsons, in her interesting résumé of the arrangements of the period, says:—"A letter, signed 'T. B.,' in the Garrick Correspondence, proves that, as late as 1762 theatre-goers could not book numbered and reserved seats beforehand. T. B. suggested copper vouchers, and, seven years later, some sort of a modern ticket system was in vogue, at any rate for benefit nights, as the following none too lucid extract from a finely printed playbill of Mrs. Clive's farewell benefit demonstrates:—

"'N.B.—No tickets have been given out, but to those Ladies and Gentlemen who have their Places secured, in the Pit or Boxes, and to prevent any Mistakes or Confusion, no Box Tickets will be admitted into the Gallery. Mrs. Clive begs the Favour of those who have Places in the Pit, to be there by half an hour after Five, and to let their Servants come to keep them a quarter before Four.'

"On this, as on other special occasions, the boxes and part of the pit were 'laid together'—a first presage of stalls. The bill does not state when the play (Mrs. Centlivre's The Wonder, followed by Lethe) was to commence, but probably at six, the usual hour. Garrick's own farewell performance (1776) began 'exactly at half-past 6.' The theatre hour was determined by the dining hour, which was four, half-past four, or five o'clock among the wealthier classes during Garrick's years. Reynolds's famous Leicester-square dinner parties were at five. Thrale's table groaned at four. 'The' Club, when it took to dining, dined at half-past four. Then, as now, Saturday was the smart night at the theatre.

"Places, as we see, could be retained by dint of being sat in by men-servants. Sometimes the man-servants, far from Admirable Crichtons, farmed out this duty, till it was a matter of complaint that ladies who came early to the boxes, in full dress, were subject to the very palpable annoyance of sitting for some time next 'common porters of the street.' On the arrival of their mistresses, the servants moved up to the upper gallery, called the footmen's gallery, where, on one notorious occasion, the second night of the Rev. James Townley's High Life Below Stairs, they gave a good deal of trouble, which resulted in Garrick's abolishing their gratis gallery.

"The genteelest part of the house, where the quality folks sat, was the boxes. This part corresponded to our modern dress-circle, or grand-circle, and each seat in it was five shillings. Readers of Boswell will remember that Sir Joshua Reynolds, having promised to bring 'a body of wits' to Mrs. Abington's benefit, 'secured forty places in the front boxes.' March 5, 1744, when Peg Woffington played Ophelia at Drury Lane to Garrick's Hamlet, is the first recorded date of the front rows of the pit being railed into boxes. A note on the fashions of 1746 is afforded by Mrs. Cibber, who writes to Garrick in Dublin that her brother, Thomas Augustine Arne, the composer of 'Rule Britannia' and 'Where the Bee sucks,' is forced, for his approaching benefit, to put pit and boxes together, which, she reckons, will be no advantage to him, 'ladies' hoops taking up more room than the difference of price.' When not railed in with the five-shilling boxes, the pit was three shillings. It came as far forward as the orchestra, from which it was separated by spikes, on which the pitites spread fans and playbills. Above the boxes was the first or two-shilling gallery, and above that the upper gallery, at a shilling, where such patrons of drama as were fortunate enough to have pockets replete with gingerbread, shrimps, oranges, and possibly a bottle of rum punch, did not mind waiting through the 'first and second music.' Besides the Royal box, there were few private or 'side' boxes, and some were literally stage boxes, deep down the stage and overhanging it in two rows. At Drury Lane there was an enclosure, called Burton's box, at pit prices, in the centre of the first gallery.

"The pit was the place for the coffee-house critics. There sat ancient Macklin, retired from service. There sat Charles Churchill, still the Reverend, before whom all the men-actors, except Garrick, had cause to quake. Poor Churchill! After the Rhadamanthine airs of his Rosciad, his folly and weakness constrained him to make his one eulogy a ground for begging guineas.

"From 1753, plays, at the petition of the bishops, were suspended during Passion Week, whereupon Tate Wilkinson feelingly writes, 'Every player and playeress can recollect that week without a prompter.' The '45 pressed heavily on actors. They were reduced to half salaries, and playing to thin houses. They had other interludes of leanness—three weeks in 1751, at the death of the Prince of Wales ('Fred, who was alive, and is dead'); six weeks in 1760, for the demise of the Crown; a week in 1765, at the death of the Culloden Duke of Cumberland; a week in 1767, when Edward, Duke of York, died at Monaco; nine days in 1772, at the death of the Princess of Wales. In 1768, Barry writes to Garrick, 'The treasurer [of Drury Lane Theatre] has charged me with £48 for the death of the Princess Louisa.' As late as 1796 the following announcement appeared in the Times for February 1:—'The Theatres were shut on Saturday evening, to commemorate, with the greatest solemnity, the Martyrdom of King Charles.'"

The whole of Garrick's career is gone over in this amusing and interesting volume; and not only the great actor himself but his companions and associates are brightly and pleasantly dealt with. Mrs. Parsons does not disdain the use of modern phrase and "up-to-date" allusion in her pithy remarks upon individuals. She is quite a "woman-of-the-world" in her judgments of the personages she alludes to; and the ease with which she handles the large amount of information which she has collected is admirable. Altogether, "Garrick and his Circle" is a really "live" and readable work, and the portraits of actors and actresses are well chosen and most artistically reproduced.

MR. PERCY WILLIAMS, of the Grand Theatre, Plymouth, is credited with the intention of touring Devon and Cornwall with his capable stock company.

THE delicate perfumes of Vinolia Soap have long been familiar in the home of the actress, upon whose facial beauty so much of her success is often dependent, and the reasons why it should be invariably used form a formidable list. The chief recommendations are that the product contains no poison, and is free from chemicals, and irritating essential oils. Vinolia Soap preserves the complexion, softens the skin, and prevents blotches, rashes, &c., and above all is admitted to be the purest, safest, and best that can be obtained. The Vinolia Co., Ltd., claim that they are the only firm who, when they say their soaps are pure, publish analyses. The Vinolia Shaving Soap, which makes that operation a pleasure, and the Vinolia tooth preparations are equally recommended for their beneficent effects, and samples may be obtained from the Vinolia Company, Ltd., London, N.W., at a charge of 3d. to cover postage.

"A WIRE ENTANGLEMENT."

A Comedietta, in One Act, by Robert Marshall, produced for the First time at the Comedy Theatre, on Saturday, Sept. 22.

Thos. Highbury .....MR. GRAHAM BROWNE
Cristabel Tomlinson .....MISS SARAH BROOKE
Josiah Spragge .....MASTER GEORGE HERSEE
Millicent Hicks .....MISS DAISY MARKHAM

A merry prelude to the excitements of Raffles was provided at the Comedy on Saturday, when a new one-act piece by Capt. Robert Marshall was added to the entertainment. Courtship by telephone is not an altogether novel expedient, but Captain Marshall has treated the theme with so much freshness, and has allowed his witty pen such full play, that the laughter, which began almost with the first line, continued without intermission till the end. Exactly how far the office of the Union Jack, a political organ, is removed from that of the Rialto, a "smart" society paper, is not revealed, but on the stage the editorial rooms appear side by side. One is occupied by Thomas Highbury, the assistant-editor of the former paper, and the other by Cristabel Tomlinson, the writer of the ladies' column of the latter. Both are on terms of warm friendship, and when it is suggested that the columns of the Union Jack should be brightened by a ladies' article Cristabel's is the name that comes to Highbury's mind. He rings up the fair journalist, and the discussion of terms soon resolves into the preliminaries of a matrimonial engagement. At a critical moment in the conversation Highbury is summoned to the room of his chief, and the "call" is taken up by his shorthand clerk, who makes such violent love over the wire that Cristabel, after accepting a proposal of marriage, realises that it is not Highbury who is speaking. She cuts the conversation short in dismay, and when Highbury returns to his place pretends to faint, while her assistant answers his anxious inquiries. At length, fortified by her smelling-bottle, Cristabel is induced to resume negotiations, and the love compact is sealed and a luncheon arranged in celebration.

The extent to which the little play depends upon the rendering of the dialogue is evident, but as spoken on Saturday there was no cause for complaint. The telephone receiver is obviously not the best place to sound the different cadences of emotion; but Miss Sarah Brooke managed to project her charming personality, as it were, over the wire, giving reality to all the delicate shades of vocal expression that a maiden is correctly supposed to exhibit under the circumstances. Coyness, embarrassment, and business-like tact were cleverly mingled, and Miss Brooke filled her part to admiration. Mr. Graham Browne also touched the requisite note at Highbury's end of the wire. His eagerness in wooing and his coolness in calculation were drolly combined by Mr. Browne, whose display of irritation towards his assistant Josiah also reached a proper degree. That precocious youth was humorously impersonated by Master George Hersee, whose part, small as it is, once more revealed his talents as a comedian; and the lady shorthand writer was vivaciously presented by Miss Daisy Markham.

Raffles continues on its even way of prosperity. Mr. Du Maurier's fine impersonation of the title-rôle gaining the hearts of all. Cheers and laughter from a crowded house were almost incessant on Saturday, and the success of the piece was further shown by "curtains" innumerable.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
Henry Arthur Jones's Drama, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

A very hearty reception, many calls for the principals and hisses for the villains, gave emphatic signs of approval of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's very able company in this well-known drama. Mr. Horace E. Herbert's distinguished manner was well suited to the part of the hero, the emotions of the part being naturally portrayed, great effect also being given to the recital of Denver's dream in the fourth act. As the long-suffering wife, Nellie, Miss B. Doyle enlisted the sympathies of her audience; and Mr. Percy Foster's Jaikes was a good study of loyalty and integrity. The burglarious Spider of Mr. Oswald C. Cray was not exactly on the lines of Mr. Willard, but was welcome as an easy rendering of an unpleasant part. Mr. William Dempsey's Eliah Coombe was an excellent picture of senile depravity, full of by-play and suggestion; Mr. Seton Bernard was sufficiently brutal as Cripps, the rascally associate of the foregoing old villain, appearing also as Tubbs in the first scene. Miss Dorothea Black played Olive Skinner, the Spider's wife, with much discretion; and the pert and misguided Henry Corket was brightly acted by Mr. Ralph Leo. Mr. Laurie Hunter was effective as the doomed man, Geoffrey Ware; and Mr. Alex Begbie was quite the traditional sleuth-hound, Sam Baxter, the detective. Cissy (Denver's child) was cleverly played by little Madge Gillard; and the many minor characters were well filled. Amongst them we would notice the Mr. Parkyn of Mr. Walter Brooksmith and the Susie of Miss Dorothy Laine. Mr. J. R. Sharpe, the courteous business-manager, is again in front, after his somewhat lengthy sojourn in Spain.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Play, in Five Acts, by Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's Two Little Vagabonds company is receiving a warm welcome at Poplar this week. Not only is the play an excellent one, but it is made further attractive by being skilfully mounted and ably presented, and all the members of the company prove themselves capable exponents of their art. As George Thornton, Mr. William Fazan supplies an admirable bit of acting, especially in the drawing-room scene of Act 1. As Captain Darville, Mr. Henry Watson does good work; and the part of John Scarth is well played by Mr. Edmund Cuthbert. Mr. John Traynor gives a powerful rendering of the villainous Gaffer, his two confederates, Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop, being well represented by Mr. Ernest K. Nelson and Mr. Fred Archer respectively. Miss Laura Hansen quickly wins the favour of the audience by her earnest and painstaking portrayal of the part of Marion Thornton, the sorely-tried heroine; and Miss Mildred Hodson gives a capital performance as Barbara Scarth, playing the part with charm and vivacity. Miss May Hart is to be congratulated on a bright and spirited rendering of Dick, her acting throughout showing evidence of much study and thought. She quickly established herself as a favourite, and was responsible for much of the applause. Miss Margaret Nybloe gives a satisfactory performance as Wally, her portrayal of the poor little vagabond being extremely good. Mr. Leo St. Clair acts as manager for the company in a highly satisfactory manner.

OWING to a printer's error, the name of Mr. Milton Bode, of the County Theatre, Reading, has appeared in connection with the Southport Opera House. We wish to point out that Mr. Bode is in no way associated with that theatre.

"THE MIRACLE WORKER," a novel by Mr. Gerald Maxwell, will be published on Tuesday by E. Grant Richards. The leading personage of the book is an ardent young [illegible]eon, and the story in which he figures is an interesting combination of realism and romance.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Miss Ellis Jeffreys and her London company began an engagement at the Liberty Theatre last Monday, appearing in a three-act comedy, by Inglis Allen, called The Dear Unfair Sex. Mrs. Haviland Brooke is peevish, perverse, and ridiculously vain. But her husband adores her, and is her willing slave. She has been deluding herself with the notion that Jim Melville, a mutual friend of herself and her husband, is desperately in love with her, and when Melville arrives on the scene with Rosie Duveen, whom he introduces as his fiancée, Mrs. Brooke makes a virtue of her own disappointment, insists that the young man is merely trying to shield himself from her own fascinations, and goes to his room at night to persuade him that he is dealing unjustly with the girl in offering to marry her when in reality his heart belongs to another. Melville tries to persuade her to go; but, failing in that, he sends to a neighbouring club to summon the husband. In the meantime, Captain Gleinster, a convivial friend of all parties concerned, drops in, and there is the familiar situation of a wife secreted in a bachelor's apartment with the husband imminent and exposure almost certain. Glenister is ultimately got rid of, but he returns a moment later and discovers Mrs. Brooke. In his maudlin condition he accepts the statement that Mr. Brooke is also in the house, but the subsequent arrival of his wife and Melville's sweetheart, both of whom know Brooke's whereabouts at the moment, provides a complication to be subsequently unravelled. When Brooke comes, and is informed of his wife's escapade, he indignantly refuses to believe in her innocence, and the erstwhile submissive husband becomes a sort of Petruchio, who cows wife, relatives, and servants alike. But he presently relents, thanks Melville for saving the family honour, and joins in the efforts to suppress the compromising incident, a result that is eventually accomplished through the convivial one's desire to keep his own wife in ignorance of his night of hilarity. Miss Jeffreys, as the silly, selfish, and hysterical wife, played with her usual grace and charm, and was given a most cordial greeting. Mr. Charles Cartwright, whose fine work in Leah Kleschna is well remembered by New York playgoers, staged the piece, and was excellent as Haviland Brooke, the husband. Mr. George Giddens gave a most amusing representation of the bibulous Captain Glenister, making a distinct hit and causing hearty laughter. Mr. Gerald Lawrence, as Jim Melville, shared the principal honours of the performance, Mr. Herbert Standing, Mrs. Sam Sothern, and Mr. Herbert Sleath appearing to advantage in important rôles.

"The Tourists," a musical comedy in two acts, by R. H. Burnside and Gustave Kerker, is the Shuberts' first production at the Majestic Theatre, of which they recently became the proprietors. In addition to providing a first-class attraction, the Shuberts have made a wise concession to public opinion by fixing the price of the best seats at one dollar. The scenes of the play are laid in Hindustan, and the principal characters are a young American, known as the "Duke of Plymouth" until he confesses that he is plain John Duke, of Plymouth, Mass., "the place where the rocks come from"; Timothy Todd, Duke's tutor and guardian, an eccentric individual with a weakness for brandy and soda; Benjamin Blossom, an American millionaire, who is travelling with his five daughters; Julia Jellico, an American newspaper correspondent; Gopal Singh, Rajah of Rangapang; Princess Cholulu, the Rajah's daughter; Ram Dow, a rebel leader; Noorian, captain of the Rajah's bodyguard; and Loofah, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel in Rangapang. Duke is in love with Dora Blossom, with whom he intends to elope, and in order to extract some money from the close-fisted Todd he disappears, and sends word to his guardian that he has been kidnapped by the outlaw Ram Dow, and is being held for ransom. Loofah, the hotel-keeper, is in the plot, and is the bearer of the letter detailing all the horrible tortures the young man will have to undergo if the money is not immediately forthcoming. The tutor is blindfolded, and Loofah leads him by what seems to be a circuitous route to the outlaw's stronghold, making him jump over imaginary chasms, and pass through all sorts of wild and dangerous places, while the trembling Todd is really walking in a circle within a few yards of his hotel. Duke roars through a megaphone to simulate the voice of the terrible Ram Dow, and at intervals rattles a heavy chain, speaking in his natural voice between times to describe his sufferings. The scene is indescribably comical, and causes roars of laughter. The blindfolded tutor is completely "taken in," and hands over a note for five hundred pounds to the supposed Ram Dow, whereupon he is carefully conducted once more by way of the dangerous chasms and caves, and when the handkerchief is removed finds himself outside the hotel. The "captive" makes his appearance soon after in a dilapidated condition, and thanks his benefactor for paying the ransom, but the old gentleman turns the tables on him and brings down the house with the remark that the note was a counterfeit. But Todd has other adventures, for he unexpectedly encounters his first wife, and having married again, believing her to be dead, he naturally wishes to make himself scarce. The real Ram Dow turns up with a plan for marrying the Rajah's daughter by impersonating her betrothed, a high official whom she has never seen, but he tells Loofah, and the latter drugs the outlaw, having decided to marry the Princess himself. He drugs Todd also in order to get some cash, and shuts him up with Ram Dow. But Todd wakes up, and in his anxiety to escape dons the habiliments of Ram Dow, which leads to his arrest. He declares that he is the high official who is to marry Princess Cholulu, and is taken to the palace in a chair of state, while Loofah is taken into custody as the outlaw.

The second act passes in the Palace of the Rajah, who, needless to say, is a much-married man, but who has kidnapped Dora, intending to make her number seven on the list. The Rajah's daughter is in despair at the prospect of marrying Todd, while Todd is in no happy mood, knowing that he has two wives to his credit already. As for Loofah, he is to provide a meal for the sacred crocodiles. But when matters are at their worst the captives are rescued by a detachment of English soldiers, and all ends happily. This is a very tasteful and attractive offering, agreeable to both eye and ear, with a sufficiency of plot, a witty dialogue, and a series of laughable situations. Mr. Kerker's music, as usual, is delightful. The piece is capitally acted and sung, and is an undoubted success. Prominent members of the company are Alfred Hickman, Richard Golden, Philip H. Ryley, William Pruette, Albert Froom, Julia Sanderson, Grace La Rue, and Vera Michelena.

Our Lincoln correspondent, in noticing the production of A Miserable Marriage at the Theatre Royal, Lincoln, on the 17th inst., omitted the name of the author, Mr. Arthur E. Pringle.

Mr. Constantine Michael Sofiano, a director of J. Bannister Howard, Limited, and proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Ryde, must not be confused with a gentleman of similar surname who has recently been adjudicated a bankrupt.

Presentation.—At the conclusion of the performance of A City of Sin at the Grand Theatre, Newcastle, on Saturday evening last, Mr. Pat Nevin, who has acted as stage-manager at the theatre since its opening, thirteen years ago, and who has now taken a similar position at the Empire, Newcastle, was presented with a handsome gold watch. Mr. R. G. Elder, the resident-manager, made the presentation.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday, Sept. 20. Jean Chouan is a historical personage. "Chouans" was a name given to the Royalist peasantry of Brittany and lower Maine, who carried on a petty warfare against the Republican Government from an early period of the French Revolution. The name, finally extended to all the Vendeans, was first given to Jean Cottereau, who, with his three brothers, organised these bands in 1792. Jean had joined a gang of dealers in contraband salt, and acquired the surname of "Chouan," from the cry of the screech-owl (in French "Chat-huant"), which he used as a signal with his companions. Jean Chouan was as great a scoundrel as ever lived. Murderer, thief, bandit, cruel and vindictive, he ought to have been hanged by his friends of the old régime guillotined by the Revolutionists. Fate, however, ordained that he should die an honest soldier's death, struck by a bullet whilst fighting in the ranks of the Royalist party. If the authors had shown up Jean Chouan in his true colours their play might have become very interesting, and, perhaps, even sensational. Instead of this, they made him good, respectable, and sympathetic. In fact, everybody in the piece is good, respectable, and sympathetic—except a certain Dagorne—with the result that the work becomes rather tame.

The story, as told by M. Decori—who, by the way, is a well-known actor, and plays a leading rôle in his own piece—and M. Olivier, is as follows. Jean lives in a small village in the Mayenne. He has an angelic soul. He adores his old mother, and dotes on his sister Anne-Marie and his brother François. But he has an arch-enemy, Dagorne, tax-collector in the days before the Bastille was stormed. Jean has also adopted Jacquemine, a young orphan. As he loves her, he wants to make her his wife; but when he discovers that his brother has also lost his heart to the girl he gives her to him. But Jean is not only an angel of goodness, he is also a hero. The "Blues"—a name given to the Republicans—are searching for M. de Talmont, a Royalist, and Jean hides him in a safe place. In truth, Jean does not risk much, for the Capitaine Roger, the Sergeant Floche, and the other "Blues" are so mild and humane that they would not hurt a fly. Moreover, they are all too busy love-making. Bara, a little drummer in the "Blue" regiment, courts Jean's sister Anne-Marie, and Roger, the gallant captain, sighs after Aimé, M. de Talmont's niece. But Dagorne, the villain, watches. He longs to hand M. de Talmont over to his enemies, and sends him a letter to say that his niece, Mlle. Aimée, is dying, and wants to see him. Captain Roger wants to warn the nobleman, but Dagorne intercepts the letter, and through his instrumentality Talmont is arrested, and likewise Roger, who, as an officer in the Republican Army, has betrayed his cause. Roger cannot escape the guillotine, and he knows it. But if he erred it was because he loves Mlle. Aimeé, and because—he is M. de Talmont's illegitimate son! When Roger heard of this it surprised him as much as it did us. Father and son are to be conveyed by the bloodthirsty Dagorne to Paris, where they will be arraigned before the revolutionary tribunal. On the way to the capital Jean Chouan and his followers try to deliver them, and in the fight that ensues Bara, the drummer-boy, and Anne-Marie are killed. Jean Chouan and his friends could have easily despatched every man of the Republican escort and set their prisoners free, but for some unexplained reason M. de Talmont insists on being taken to Paris with his son to be tried there. And the extraordinary situation becomes still more absurd by Jean Chouan making Dagorne promise that M. de Talmont and Captain Roger shall in no case be executed before twenty days have elapsed. Jean thereupon goes to Coblentz, and vainly endeavours to induce the Royalists to take up arms. He returns to Paris, where Roger and M. de Talmont are to be executed the next day. The resourceful Jean has no difficulty in saving them all, but, tracked by the "Blues," he is killed by a bullet, and the silly story comes to an end. The work was fairly well acted. M. Decori had assigned to himself the trying rôle of Jean, and dealt as well with it as he could. Mlle. Mellot, however, made rather a hit by her impersonation of the little drummer-boy, Bara. She was really pathetic, and drew copious tears. MM. Gravier, Péricaud, Renot, Capoul, and Mmes. Bouchetal, Demidoff, and Magda also made praiseworthy efforts to make the piece a success.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your notice of Faust Up-to-Date at Eastbourne, you allude to the dancing of Miss Marie Dale as vivandière. It should have been—Yours faithfully, Susie Raymonde, Aquarium, Yarmouth.

The Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, will be offered for sale at auction by Mr. William Thomson on Tuesday next, at 2.30 p.m., at the Law Association Sale Rooms, 14, Cook-street, Liverpool. The theatre, which is freehold, is an old-established house, occupying a unique position in the best shopping district of the city, close to Lime-street and Central Station, and within easy reach of Exchange Station, and surrounded by the main lines of the electric car system. The frontage to Clayton-square and Clayton-lane is about 42ft., with an average depth of 107ft., and the area is 4,500 square feet or thereabouts. The stage and appliances are of modern construction, and the auditorium seats upwards of 1,000. Vacant possession could be given on completion.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who is one of the new principals at the Gaiety Theatre—he figures as a Lost Constable in the cast of The New Aladdin—tells a good story of a certain comedian with whom he acted in lurid melodrama in the days of their theatrical youth. His friend was given the part, in a stock company, of a stage curate—a weak imitation of the Private Secretary. He could not see the possibility of a single laugh, but finally determined to act the part entirely on his own lines, and boldly declared that he would get a roar of laughter at his first three words. His friends were sceptical. They did not doubt his ability to make a success before the end of the piece, but that was a very different matter from doing so at three little words. On the first night, in a grotesque make-up, he made his entrance at the top of a flight of steps—it was a flight of steps of his own construction, and its appearance greatly surprised the stage-manager—and did a sensational fall from the top to the bottom. This certainly startled the audience, but it did not make them laugh, so the comedian picked himself up and observed, with a smiling glance at his friends in the wings, "I nearly slipped!" Those were his three words, and the audience promptly picked up its cue.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

As it is impossible to communicate personally or by letter with all who are interested in Actors' Day, the committee ask the co-operation of all who are willing to assist in the work of organisation. They would be glad to receive further individual promises of help and programmes of all companies now playing. Copies of the appeal and forms for signature will be sent to those who would be kind enough to write for them. All communications should be addressed to the Actors' Day Organising Committee, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Thursday, Sept. 27,
"THE LITTLE MICHUS."

It was quite a happy thought on the part of the management here to bring over Mr. George Dance's company for a special matinée of this opera, and, judged by the crowded house, there should be no regret at the experiment. The opera is capitally cast, and was merrily rattled through, to the unanifest delight of the audience. Mr. Foster Courtenay cleverly imitated the mannerisms and eccentricities of the original General des Ifs. In a part of this description there is often a tendency to overplay it; the reproof does not lie at the door of Mr. Foster Courtenay. He was excellent throughout; his "gazeka" story went as well as ever, and in Act II., where he is confronted by the Michus in turn, his "business" and humour deservedly won the plandits of the house. Mr. Gilbert Childs worked indefatigably as Bagnolet, and happily seconded the efforts of his General; his song, "Frocks and frills," was rendered with no little energy, and was one of the successes—there were many—of the afternoon. To Mr. Robert C. Harcourt fell the rôle of Aristide Vert; he played it with becoming dignity, and sang superbly. Mr. Leon Simkin had but few opportunities as Pierre Michu, but certainly made the most of them; while Mr. Cecil Moylan succeeded as the guileless shopper with hazy ideas on the question of change. Between the Little Michus, the honours were fairly divided. Miss Alice Coverick as Marie Blanche and Miss Ethel Bryan as Blanche Marie were alike excellent, and it would be invidious to draw distinctions. The "St. Valentine" ballad afforded them vocal opportunities, and quite charming they were; their duet, "Two Little Maidens," was another happy effort. To Miss Florence Hylton was entrusted the part of Mme. Michu. It could not have been in better hands. Mr. William Everard was a fine, manly Gaston Rigaud; Mlle. Marjorie's dances were one of the hits of the performance, and she was greeted with tumultuous applause; valuable assistance was also lent by Messrs. W. Sangster and Standing and Mesdames Mackenzie, Young, Leslie, and Romaine.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Sept. 27,
the Comedy, entitled
"PUBLIC OPINION."

When a Judge of the High Court is faced in the witness-box by a former fiancée, with whom he has committed the indiscretion of amatory correspondence, the result may be imagined; when a lady confides to each of her male acquaintances—and their name is Legion—the fact that he is the only man who ever really understood her, the fun may be imagined. There is no halting about this comedy; the fun starts fast and furious in Act I., and continues till the fall of the curtain. Mr. Charles Harley as Spencer Traughton, C.B., was a comically irascible hypochrondiac with an "enlarged spleen"; delightfully humorous was Mr. Percy Marshall as the badgered solicitor; a capital Judge (Mr. Justice Mulley) was Mr. Fred Lewis; Mr. Ashton Pearse as the defendant in the Pansy breach of promise case (Lord Kilgour) played with unabated energy and no little skill; Viscount Poffley was capitally embodied by Mr. Douglas Greet; and Mr. Douglas Hamilton was sufficiently pedantic as Dr. Mulley. Miss Emma Hutchison was admirable as Lady Diana Caldershaw; Miss Connie Dene did splendidly as Phyllis Dagenham; excellent, too, in a marked degree was the artless, ingenuous Pansy. Other parts meriting mention as lending aid to the success of the representation were the Charlotte of Miss Violet Harley and the Smeeton of Mr. C. B. Wentworth. The comedy was preceded by The Stratagem, satisfactorily interpreted by Messrs. Hamilton, Pearse, Barber, Greet, and Miss Nancy Beresford. Public Opinion was produced by Mr. Percy Hutchison, so long associated with the Wyndham régime.

The Amalgamated Musicians' Union's annual concert in aid of their Benevolent Fund was given at Newcastle-on-Tyne on the 23rd inst. at the Empire Theatre there. The overtures and selections by the orchestra (which numbered over 100 performers), under the direction of Mr. J. W. Dawson, achieved great success with Tschaikowsky's Overture Solonelle, "1812," which won well-merited applause. A special feature of the concert was the violin solo of Mr. John Dunn. The 8th Concerto, A Minor (dramatic), was the selected piece before the interval, of which he gave a most masterly interpretation. Mr. W. J. Dodds, a promising young baritone, rendered a couple of items in fine voice, receiving a recall for "At Thy Shrine." Miss Marie Cooper, who has a soprano voice of clearness and range, used it to advantage. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the committee, with Mr. H. Sculthorpe a hon. sec.

GRAND THEATRE, FOREST GATE.

On Monday, Sept. 24,
the Drama, entitled
"WHEN A MAN HATES."

Following the successful production of A Royal Revenge, Mr. Sydney Spencer presented on Monday an exceptionally strong attraction, When a Man Hates, being played by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company, while on Thursday and Friday A Soldier of France was in the bill. Both plays were performed with the finish that can only be obtained by the members of a company who play into each other's hands. In the first-mentioned piece, Mr. Arthur Hinton as Pietro Danelli looked the part perfectly, and scored at every point. Mr. Gerald Byrne as Paul, the half-witted, and Mr. Leslie Lingham, both maintained the interest of the play during the four acts. A clever, boldly-drawn sketch of the detective Smart was given by Mr. Travis Green; and other parts were played with marked ability by Mr. Frank Brunell, Mr. E. Sampson, and Mr. William Beck. Miss Leila Zillwood acted with power and patnos as Olga Gynne. In the rôle of Dolly Dimple Miss Florence Zillwood was quite at home. The mounting of the two pieces left nothing to be desired, and Mr. Frank Lile's orchestra deserves a word of praise.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—While thanking your respective correspondents for the Theatre Royal, Croydon, and the Lyric, Hammersmith, for their favourable notices, I should esteem it a favour if you would kindly state that the part of Sergeant Bryan in The Death or Glory Boys company has been played for the last three weeks by—Yours faithfully, GEO. K. ASHLEY, Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, Sept. 24.

LOVELY HAIR GOLDEN AUBURN BRONZE CHESTNUT BROWN

Grey or faded hair can be easily restored to Golden, Auburn Bronze, or to several other beautiful Natural shades by "Condy's Fluid," which is non-poisonous and harmless in every way.

The fullest possible directions for obtaining a great many Lovely Natural shades of hair, and copies of a large number of Valuable Testimonials, can be obtained from Condy's Fluid Works, 61, Goswell-road, London, E.C. Sold by all Chemists, 1s 8oz., 20oz. 2s. Beware of Substitutes. Insist on having "Condy's Fluid."

The Lady's Pictorial, The Gentlewoman, and other high-class Ladies' Journals strongly recommend the use of "Condy's Fluid" for restoring the colour when grey or faded.

IN MEMORIAM.

DAVENTRY.—In ever loving memory of my dear husband, George Daventry, who died Sept. 30, 1904. R.I.P.

"I do not grudge your eyes the blessed light
Which gladdens them upon life's further shore;
Although my eyes ache hourly for the sight
Of your dear face, lost, lost for evermore,
Till the old ties again are knit in one,
In an unchanging and immortal Land,
And the sweet links, by Death's rough grasp undone,
Are reunited by a Master Hand."

DAY.—In loving memory of James Day, who departed this life at Glasgow, Sept. 26, 1905. Rest in peace. Inserted by his daughter, Mrs. S. Mackintosh, The Carnival, Glasgow.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1906.

THE RATING OF THEATRES.

The decision of Sir ALBERT DE RUTZEN in the case of the adjourned summons on the Lyceum (1903) Limited for neglecting to pay to the Westminster County Council £1111 odd in rates is decidedly open to criticism. The case is one of great importance, as the amounts of the rates levied upon theatrical property are so large. The case of the Lyceum Limited can hardly be regarded as a "test" one. No attempt had been made to bring the house on a level with the ordinary empty dwelling-house. The usual scenery was on the stage, the floor was carpeted, and there were the usual carpets and rods on the stairs. The music-stands had been left in the orchestra; there were chairs in the auditorium; and, of course, the usual fixed seating accommodation. Not only that, but two rooms on the premises were let at a monthly rental. All these things gave the barrister who appeared for the Westminster City Council food for argument, and doubtless influenced Sir ALBERT'S decision. It was admitted that when the case was first before the magistrate the theatre was ready to be taken over at once if the defendants secured a tenant; and that the condition of the house, ready for immediate occupation and use, greatly added to its chance of being let. The counsel for the Westminster City Council represented to the magistrate the extreme—and very exceptional—instances of a London theatre being burnt down, and a manager wishing to find another playhouse ready for immediate use. In that case, said Mr. RYDE, the Lyceum people could make their own terms. By the ruling in the Queen v. Bradshaw, there is a liability to pay rates even if there is only a visible (and not a beneficial) occupation; and in the case of the Earl's Court Exhibition it was decided that the proprietors were liable to pay rates for the whole of the year, although part of their grounds might not be occupied for the dead season.

This was all most ingeniously argued. But the idea at the bottom of all rating law is obviously that of intercepting, for purposes of local taxation, some of the "benefits" accruing to the owner of property. Empty houses are not rated because the owner is, presumably, suffering loss instead of gaining profit by possession of the premises. The practice is to accept the removal of the out-gone tenant's furniture as evidence of the non-occupancy of the house. But the seats and drapery of a theatre are not, as a rule, taken away by the outgoing tenant; they are practically "landlord's fixtures." If this decision is to hold good, what theatre-proprietors will have to consider will be this: Will it pay them better to dismantle their theatre, "warehouse" their scenery, seats, hangings, and carpets, and thus place the premises on a level with an empty factory; or will the expenses thus incurred, and the disadvantage they would certainly be under in the case of immediate letting, counterbalance the possibility of obtaining remission of rates. For, after all, it is only a possibility. The only question, said Sir ALBERT DE RUTZEN, that he had to decide was whether the theatre was "occupied"; not whether the occupancy was "beneficial."

In the case of ordinary "empty" premises, such as factories and private houses, it is not customary to exact rates from the owners. What is the root idea of this remission? Is it not that while no money is coming in to the landlord no tax shall be taken from him? We say "from him," because, though the tenant usually pays the rates, that fact is always considered in the rent; and, in certain cases, such as small tenements, the rates are paid by the landlord, and he adds them on to the rent which he asks. An empty house, so far as the landlord is concerned is, if this contention of the counsel for the Westminster City Council be valid, in a condition of "beneficial occupation," for it is "ready for immediate occupation and use." Imagine a landlord who owns a London theatre and a house next door to it. Both his playhouse and his dwelling-house are unlet. He is losing his rent in both cases. But, in the case of the house, he is not also called upon to pay rates, whereas in the case of the theatre he is. It often happens that left in a dwelling-house are valuable "fixtures," such as electric light arrangements, &c., &c., which the incoming tenant takes at a valuation. But the local authorities do not make this an excuse for claiming that, because these fixtures are not removed, the landlord is liable to pay rates. In the case of dwelling-houses it is not customary, even when a "caretaker" is on the premises, for rates to be levied. It is true that the real reason of this is that the custom has been to get the rates from the tenant, and so when there is no tenant there is no application for them. But this makes no difference in principle. A theatre which is shut up, unused, and therefore, pro tem., a "dead loss" to its owner, is just in the same condition as an unlet dwelling-house. Indeed, the dwelling-house is in a more "beneficial" state as regards the landlord than a theatre is. A new tenant can arrive at quarter-day with a couple of furniture vans, and the premises can be in a condition of profitable tenancy in much less time than it would take an entrepreneur to instal himself in a theatre. As the counsel for the defence, Mr. TRAVERS HUMPHREYS, argued at Bow Street, there was no "occupation" by anybody in the case of the Lyceum, unless it could be said that what would be called trade fixtures created in law what they did not create in fact. When we speak of an "empty" dwelling-house or an "empty" warehouse, we do not mean that there is not a chair or a table remaining in the premises, or that the blinds left by the last tenant have been removed. We mean that it is "unoccupied" in the sense that the owner is getting nothing out of it, that there is no paying tenant on the premises, and that the house is uninhabited. When it is desired to let a house it often happens that the landlord has it repainted and redecorated in order to attract a tenant. Does this, which certainly makes it "ready for immediate occupation," render the owner liable for rates?

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Commissioners' committee held a meeting on Monday last, when Mr. Quinton McPherson occupied the chair, supported by Messrs. Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). A resolution in connection with the question of unpaid subscriptions was passed, and the draft of a letter it was suggested should be sent to the Press, concerning the general work of the committee, was considered. It was suggested that the members of the committee might with advantage be increased from nine to fifteen, and the question of the appointment of the other six was referred to the council.

The usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last. There were present:—Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Bishop, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, Fewlass Llewellyn, M. R. Morand, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. H. Finestone, of 35, Elizabeth street, Liverpool, surgeon dentist, was appointed an honorary medical officer to the Association.

The secretary reported that he had written to the president and vice-presidents upon the subject of the proposed "Irving Memorial," and that he had posted in the rooms of the Association twenty further notices of the meeting of members, which will be held in the saloon of Drury Lane Theatre on Monday next, at 11 a.m., to consider the questions involved in the scheme, when Sir Squire Bancroft (the president of the A.A.) will occupy the chair.

Messrs. Acton Bond, Spencer Trevor, and Miss Kate Phillips were elected members of the "Selection of Plays" committee. The secretary reported the proceedings at the meeting of the Commissioners' committee, held the day previous, and in pursuance of the recommendation of that body, it was resolved that the number of the committee be increased from nine to fifteen, and that the additional six be co-opted by the original nine. It was agreed that the names of those whose memberships ceased by reason of the non-payment of subscriptions should be posted after removal from the register. The secretary reported the result of an arbitration held since the last meeting of the council. The report of Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. Edwin Oxlee, Frida Gerrard, Isidore Marcil, and Iredale Hope were nominated for election to the Association.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when the chair was occupied by Mr. Acton Bond, supported by Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, J. Cooke Beresford, M. R. Morand, C. Aubrey Smith, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Several questions of importance were discussed at considerable length, and the secretary received instructions to prepare a detailed statement in connection with a scheme which it was intended to place before the council in the immediate future.

THE pantomime at the Kennington Theatre this year will be Humpty Dumpty. The author is Mr. Frank Dix, who has been responsible for many of Mr. Robert Arthur's recent annuals. Humpty Dumpty is to have a most elaborate mounting, the scenery being almost entirely from the brush of Mr. Stafford Hall. A fairy island, a carnival at Venice, an Egyptian city, and a voyage to the planet of Mars will figure among the spectacular effects.

L.C.C. AS AMUSEMENT CATERERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On July 10 this year, at a meeting of the L.C.C., the Parks and Open Spaces Committee recommended that application be made in the next Session of Parliament for authority enabling the Council (1) to arrange for vocal music to be provided as an extension of the music now provided under its existing powers relative to the provision of bands; (2) to make charges for programmes and for the use of seats and chairs at band performances; and (3) to make a charge for admission to such performances as the Council might think desirable to provide within doors, such charges to be made for the purpose of defraying expenses.

The amendments proposed against this resolution were negatived respectively by 61 to 31 and by 40 to 20, and the recommendation was approved by 40 to 17 votes.

On this report appearing in the press the hon. secretary of our Association wrote on behalf of the members to the L.C.C. protesting at the unfairness of the above proposal, and this has met with the stereotyped form of acknowledgment.

The Council, while waiting for powers, which will no doubt be granted if they persist by the present House of Commons, have since moved further in the matter, and already have made offers of contracts to music-hall artists to sing two songs twice daily at the Embankment Gardens, Lincoln's Inn Fields, Kennington, Battersea, Victoria, and Finsbury Parks, and a three months' contract to sing twice daily two songs at one of the following Town Halls, to be selected by the L.C.C.: Battersea, Holborn, and Kensington. The name of the manager engaged is not disclosed, but the ratepayers are to be congratulated on the generous manner in which the Council is prepared to deal with the salaries of the artists approached.

A peculiar situation will arise when an artist under contract to any of our members, containing a proviso that he or she is not to appear at any other place of entertainment within a certain radius, is thus engaged, and we apply for an injunction in the Courts to restrain the said artist from fulfilling an engagement with those in authority who can deprive us of our licences. Surely this will be a real travesty of justice, for it must not be forgotten that the L.C.C. are the supreme licensing authority for all the music halls of London; that it is a court from which there is no appeal, and which has been warned by the High Courts and by various Parliamentary Committees that they should exercise their functions judicially.

Now, Sir, can a body composed of such vast numbers act judicially, and more especially when they have entered into trade competition with those over whom they are to sit in judgment? If the Council persist in this new departure of extended municipal trading, will it not in common fairness surrender its licensing powers? And if not, will the present House of Commons in all equity and common sense, if it permit this competition, deprive this trading body once and for all of exercising judicial functions? With a vengeance we have here further encroachments upon the ratepayers, for to a certainty these municipal concerts, in whatever form they may be disguised, will end in wasting the ratepayers' money, and at their expense they will compete with some of those who contribute a not inconsiderable item to the rates.

To give indoor concerts it is necessary that the Council obtain the permission of the various Borough Councils, and most likely in many instances, though refused some years ago, this will be obtained.

Now, though the music halls to-day are up to date and equipped with all the necessary modern and stringent requirements of the Council, yet the County Council inspector, although a very gracious person in himself, is seldom away from the doorstep, and there are few licencees who are not worried in the course of the year with several notices inviting them to make changes and alterations, which from time to time are varied, and not infrequently in a contradictory sense. I maintain that not a single town hall in the metropolis will compare as to safety with the meanest music hall of the present day; and when the public will be offered something for nothing, we may take it for granted that town halls will be largely patronised, when comic singing, and no doubt later on dancing and probably ballets, are to be given pro bono publico.

The Chairman of the Parks Committee, in introducing his recommendation, mildly protested that this was merely a desire to lessen the strain upon the bands by introducing a little vocal music into the performances; and he further added that there was a great demand for these concerts, but refrained from giving the information whence this demand emanates. "To give the bands a rest" is the most paltry excuse that could be advanced for such an unheard-of innovation. It is further, in some quarters, stated that these concerts, especially in the winter time in town halls, are meant to educate those who cannot afford to pay for legitimate amusement, and that it will be a benefit to the poor. Hypocrisy never went further, and to advance this statement is knowingly a false pretence. The poor who are dissolute will not patronise the various town halls for music. The deserving poor, who require food, shelter, and fuel at the hands of those who can afford to give largely to charity, and which cannot be meted out, according to the present law of the land, out of the rates, will not be fed on music. They will not consent to exhibit their poverty by being shunted into back seats of a town hall gathering at a concert, or stowed away in some obscure corner, while those for whom these concerts are meant to be free of cost—the originators—occupy seats in the best part of the hall with their families, their friends, the officials and their wives, gloating over the fact that at the expense of the ratepaying community they are encompassing the doom of some of their constituents, and largest ratepayers, who cater legitimately for the public.

What with steamboats, a Works Committee, tramways, would-be electric light enterprises, and the continuous rivalry that has for its main object the stifling of private enterprise, which are both the pride and source of wealth of a trading community, there can only be one result—wasting the ratepayers' money and augmenting the enormous number of employees paid at high rates to exercise their voting power on behalf of their employers.

Shareholders in music-hall enterprises are financially interested in this question. Their interests are seriously threatened, and they should combine to resist this monstrous encroachment while there is yet time; and I shall be pleased to hear from any bond-fide shareholders willing to assist in this endeavour.

The L.C.C. elections take place next March, and steps should be taken to organise and send these faddists back to their leisure, to exercise their supposed philanthropic schemes on their own account, and not at the expense of the ratepaying community.—Yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS,
President of the London Entertainments Protection Association.
1, Durham House-street, Strand, W.C.
Sept. 20, 1906.

A NEW concert-hall is to be erected in London at a cost of between £20,000 and £30,000, on the site now occupied by the disused Church of St. Paul, Great Portland-street. The new building is to be erected in the Renaissance style of architecture, and will seat 1,100. It is expected that the hall will be ready for concerts within a year.

"HERNE THE HUNTER."

An "Historical Extravaganza," in Two Scenes, written and invented by Harry Rogerson, produced at the Chelsea Palace on Monday, Sept. 24.

King Hal ..... MR. WALLY SCOTT
Queen Anne Boleyn ..... MR. HARRY BICKLEY
Somers ..... MR. TOM LESLIE
Captain Bochair ..... MR. WILL KIRK
Mrs. Brian ..... MISS JESSIE SINCLAIR
Patch ..... MR. GEORGE BOOTH
The Ass, The Stag ..... THE BROTHERS MORRIS

The historical novels of Harrison Ainsworth were exceedingly popular half a century or so ago, and "Windsor Castle" was probably one of the best known of the series which issued from his prolific pen. In that story a weird interest surrounded that mysterious being, Herne the Hunter, the author making ingenious use of an ancient legend. Mr. Harry Rogerson, the author of the sketch produced at the Chelsea Palace on Monday evening, has found material in the pages of the novelist whose early successes in the domain of fiction date back to the period when the late Queen Victoria had not long been crowned. Mr. Rogerson has chosen to treat Herne the Hunter from a humorous point of view, and the result is a brisk, amusing production, which has met with marked success at Chelsea. The first scene represents the exterior of the Garter Inn near the Royal borough of Windsor; and here a joyous crowd of lads and lassies indulge in that good old English pastime—a maypole dance. Amongst the merry throng is Somers, the Court jester, whose mission is to cheer his Royal master with jape and jest on all seasonable occasions. The Court fool was a highly privileged person, and was accustomed to take liberties that people of rank would not dream of venturing upon. And so it occurs to the mercurial and mischief-loving Somers to have some fun at the expense of King Hal and Queen Anne Boleyn. Aware that the Royal couple intend to take part in a stag hunt in Windsor Forest, the jester resolves to appear in the guise of Herne the Hunter, concerning whose supernatural powers many thrilling stories are current in the district. Under the spreading branches of Herne's Oak their Majesties sit down to a repast, but the jester by means of some ingenious contrivance causes the joints and other good things to disappear ere they can be carved, much less eaten. A roast turkey astonishes the Royal couple by doing a step-dance, and these uncanny manifestations of occult agency cause, as may be supposed, considerable consternation. And this feeling is naturally intensified when a forester is perceived traversing the woodland glade, carrying his head under his arm—a cleverly contrived illusion, by the way. One of the most amusing incidents of the scene is a burlesque stag hunt, and a funny encounter between this nimble animal and the ass that has borne His Majesty. When the jester tires of his practical joke, he enlightens the King as to the real author of it, and the jolly monarch forgives him for having given their Majesties a fright.

Mr. Wally Scott makes a capital representative of the much-married monarch, whose Royal spouse is portrayed with considerable humour and comic power by Mr. Harry Bickley. Mr. Tom Leslie proves to be an excellent exponent of the part of Somers, the Court jester, carrying through the trick played upon the King and Queen in the forest with notable smartness and dexterity. Mr. Will Kirk is well suited in the rôle of Captain Bochair. Patch, another jester, is a character that is safely entrusted to Mr. George Booth, and Miss Jessie Sinclair does well as the hostess of the inn. The animal parts—the eccentric stag and the comical ass—are energetically and amusingly played by the Brothers Morris, whose efforts add greatly to the fun of the piece.

The company engaged here this week includes Mr. C. Emlyn Jones's quartette, whose musical performance affords complete satisfaction. Each member of the party sings a song in character as the representative of the four countries—England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales. All possess excellent voices and a cultured style, so that the effect of their singing, both as soloists and in the choruses, is remarkably pleasing. The reception accorded the quartette is of the most cordial description. The Whitworth Cycling Girls and Campkin give a performance that meets with deserved appreciation. Miss Mignonette Kokin is a vivacious little lady, who sings well, and whose dancing is quite a revelation in the art of Terpsichore. Miss Maud Esmond is another bright particular star in the variety firmament, whose brilliance is readily recognised. Comedy has excellent representatives in Mr. Nat Clifford, who has a reputation to maintain for astral knowledge, Mr. Harry Phydora, who is always welcome, and Mr. Charles Cardow. Mention must also be made of the contributions of the Four Olympians, and Francis and Alfred. Mr. J. Norman Berlin is Mr. Edward Swanborough's able assistant-manager.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

On Thursday, Sept. 20, the programme of the promenade concert at Queen's Hall included an overture, "In Springtime," Op. 21, by Mr. Norman O'Neill, performed in London for the first time. The work, though somewhat sombre for such a subject as spring, revealed talent on the part of the composer, although the composition suffers from too strong contrasts, and is, to a certain extent, wanting in melodic charm. The audience received the overture favourably, and called the composer to the platform. The programme of Thursday was an interesting one, the orchestra giving a fine performance of Wagner's overture to the Flying Dutchman, Berlioz's "Minuet des Follets," "Danse des Sylphes," and "Marche Hongroise," from the composer's Faust, as well as the two Hungarian Dances of Brahms, Tchaikovsky's "1812" overture, and Wagner's Prelude to Die Meistersinger. The vocalists were Miss Edith J. Miller, who was heard in the "Hymn to Aphrodite," from Mr. Granville Bantock's Sappho, and Mr. William Ludwig, who was most heartily applauded for his fine singing of Gounod's "Nazareth." A newcomer, Mr. Serge de Barincourt (a Brazilian violinist), also appeared with success, and gave promise of future excellence in his performance of Wieniawski's Violin Concerto No. 2, in D minor. Every part of Queen's Hall was filled.

MISS ETHEL NEWMAN, who is the present Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville, has been Miss Edna May's understudy since the piece was produced, and played the part for several weeks during the American Belle's summer holiday. Although her methods are different, Miss Newman closely resembles Miss May in appearance, and looks particularly pretty in the second act, when she wears a dainty frock of Brussels lace over white satin, with a turquoise blue belt, and a string of diamonds twined in her hair. A Manchester girl, Ethel Newman went on the stage about eight years ago, getting an engagement in the chorus for the last two weeks of the memorable run of The Geisha. Then she understudied and played the Belle of New York at the Shaftesbury, afterwards touring as the Belle for over a year, followed by pantomime engagements and leading parts in musical comedy. Miss Newman has been called "the girl with grey hair," for, oddly enough, her long, dark tresses lost much of their colour while she was still a child, and she very wisely let them alone, her young face losing none of its attractiveness by the powdered effect of her hair. She will play the leading part at the Vaudeville until the advent of Miss Phyllis Dare.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. HENRI GROS, in the trenchnat letter that we print in another column on page 19, smites the L.C.C. hip and thigh; and a very strong point in his argument against the authorities at Spring Gardens seeking Parliamentary powers to run municipal variety entertainments at town halls is that, if endowed with such powers, they should immediately relinquish their licensing powers. No body elected for judicial functions can discharge them with strict impartiality when it becomes de facto a rival trader, with capital supplied by the rates. Mr. Gros' manifesto comes none too soon. It should rouse the entertainers of the masses and the masses themselves to action, and in March next the Progresives and faddists, who are never tired of harassing proprietors with extensive structural requirements, should receive a message at the polls that they will not readily forget.

MUSIC-HALL directors, managers, and agents are influentially represented on the committee that is carrying out the arrangements for the testimonial benefit to Mr. Paul Valentine, the famous maître de danse and producer of a century of dainty divertissements. The veteran Paul may claim indeed to rank as an apostle of ballet at the halls before the present luxurious conditions prevailed "in front" and when stage mechanism and lighting were much less advanced than now. During his lengthy and honourable career he has done much to sustain the best traditions of the choreographic art, and at the same time has always been eager to adopt the latest developments.

IT WAS Mr. Valentine, we believe, who first utilised in the halls electricity as an additional attraction in the costumes of ballerine, and we remember the brilliancy and attractiveness of the ballet in question, it being produced at the Oxford during the latter days of Mr. Jennings' management. We expect to see a large gathering of the profession and the public at the Canterbury on Friday evening next, which has been fixed for the benefit, for Mr. Valentine deserves well of the profession he has so long adorned. Information concerning the benefit may be obtained from the hon. secretary, Mr. Fred Miller, the Canterbury, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E.

MR. E. A. PICKERING, who has now taken up his duties as acting-manager at the Palace under Mr. Butt, speaks warmly and gratefully of the great kindness of his friends in South Africa. At a dinner given in his honour in Cape Town, Capt. P. C. Baum, a member of the Legislative Assembly, who was in the chair, spoke very feelingly when proposing the toast of "Our Guest," who though he had come to South Africa practically unknown, was leaving behind him troops of friends. Mr. Pickering, who was presented with a silver inkstand and a pair of Zeiss field-glasses, was evidently deeply touched by the kindly sentiment that prevailed, and expressed his heartfelt thanks in a short, manly speech.

MR. R. W. ALLUM, the acting-manager of the Brixton Theatre, who has been associated with that house for eight years, has made many friends in South London. They have resolved to give him some substantial recognition of their esteem on his departure. As already announced in our columns, the theatre is to come under the sway of Mr. Walter Gibbons, and will be run on the twice nightly plan, the inauguration of music hall entertainment being fixed for Oct. 22. The Rev. A. J. Waldron, the vicar of Brixton, is taking a leading part in the agitation against the establishment of a second variety theatre in the neighbourhood, and all the stale old arguments are being trotted out.

MR. HARRY LAUDER for some time past has been suffering from throat trouble that has entirely prevented him from fulfilling engagements. On Thursday, however, he was examined by a specialist, who gave a favourable report, and Mr. Joseph Wilson informs us at the moment of going to press that the famous Scotch comedian will reappear at the Tivoli on Monday week, Oct. 8.

WE are glad to hear better reports concerning the health of Mr. George Fuller Golden, who fulfilled so long and successful an engagement at the Palace Theatre about two years since. He first came over this side as a partner to Mr. Cliff Ryland, in succession to the lamented Irish comedian Sweeney. He did not stay long in the firm, but started on his own in the States, and made a decided hit when he started telling stories in Shaftesbury-avenue.

MR. LAURI DE FRECE, who is making London and suburban playgoers laugh at the New Theatre by his delightful humour in the character of Sebak, keeper of the crocodiles, is the youngest brother of Walter and Jack de Frece, and was born in Liverpool, where his father was a pioneer of variety entertainments. The young actor, at the start of his career, went in for hard work, and toured with the Sass and Nelson combination in South Africa, where he had excellent experience in a number of successful comedies and musical plays. Mr. De Frece has been secured for a term of years, and his position as a comedian should be assured.

THE Palace Theatre meeting took place on Thursday, when Mr. T. Ernest Polden occupied the chair. The balance-sheet of the financial year shows the total receipts to be £57,598, showing a profit of £4,186, which, with the £12,880 brought forward, makes a total of £17,697. The dividend of 5 per cent., which has already been paid, absorbed £4,500. It is proposed to place £3,000 to a fund to meet the expense of alterations that may be necessary to comply with the requirements of the L.C.C. The balance to be carried forward will be £10,197. Mr. Alfred Butt has been unanimously elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Count Max Hollender.

THE plans of the Willesden Empire were passed by the Willesden District Council on Tuesday, and Willesdenites are now looking forward to seeing an immediate commencement being made with the building, a full description of which was given in our issue of Sept. 8. Mr. Walter Gibbons has beaten all other competitors, as, of the three houses for Willesden which have been talked of, his appears to be the only one of which the probabilities have developed into actualities.

THOSE who can recall the remarkable success of the burlesque of Christmas pantomime by The Follies will be able to form some idea of the fun that may be expected in the new skit which Mr. Pelissier and his clever little company will present for the first time at the Tivoli on Monday. In The Bustler of Bath, or The Crash Without Reason (obviously inspired by the musical comedy at the Aldwych), Mr. "Seymour" Pelissier will appear as the Duke of St. Vitus, and Mr. "Camille" Sydney as a Gibson Girl; while a new recruit in the ranks of The Follies—Miss Lily Walbrook—will impersonate a railway station bun, with several jokes on "currant" subjects.

THE Dunedin Troupe and Mr. James Donegan, with their sensational cycling on the telephone wire, are now in San Francisco performing with great success as one of the chief attractions of the Ringling and Forepaugh and Sells shows. This wonderful organization presents three rings and two large stages, and employs one thousand men, the stud numbering five hundred horses. The show is given in a different town every day. Three railway trains are used—No. 1 for the working people, No. 2 for the horses and menagerie, and No. 3 for the performers.

MR. ARTHUR WESTON is to succeed Mr. Sydney Paxton as resident manager of the Grand Theatre, Southampton.

THE New Hippodrome, Portsmouth, is progressing very favourably, and the pretty buff terra-cotta facade, which will be a decided addition to the architectural features of the seaport town, is rapidly raising its head. The new variety house will be a notable addition to the rapidly extending circuit governed by Mr. Walter De Frece and Co., and will be ready for opening on Boxing Day.

MISS VESTA TILLEY will to-day lay the foundation stone of Mr. Richard Thornton's new Empire at Sunderland. "Dick," as the famous entrepreneur of the north of England is always called by his friends, has evidently lost none of his enterprise, but is as keen as ever to discover the possibilities of variety in the busy hives of industry this side the border.

MR. C. FINCH-HATTON, the new acting-manager of the Leicester Palace Theatre, who entered on his duties on Monday evening, comes to Leicester with excellent credentials from the Empire, Edinburgh. He is no stranger to Leicester, having visited the town as proprietor, manager, and actor. He will be remembered by the patrons of the Theatre Royal in the detective drama, Scotland Yard. He was also manager with Mme. Bellamy, Mrs. Bandman-Palmer, and other well-known touring people, and was at one time on the staff of the Eastern Morning News at Hull.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Brighton Corporation Council was held on Thursday afternoon to consider the future conduct of the Aquarium. The ratepayers have lost in the municipal muddle about £13,000 during three years' supervision. The Mayor, Alderman James Coulbourne, presided. The recommendation that application should be made to the Local Government Board for a provisional order to enable the Town Council to let the Aquarium on a lease for any period not exceeding 35 years came before the meeting. Alderman E. J. Reeves said the Aquarium, when opened in 1872, was the finest advertisement Brighton ever had, and now the Council owned the place it ought to be retained.

COUNCILLOR EDWARD JARVIS asserted that the purchase of the Aquarium for £30,000 was one of the worst blunders ever effected. The Town Clerk (Mr. Hugo Talbot) intimated that a provisional order would cost £100, and if opposed by the inhabitants £300. Alderman Carden said it would cost £5,000 a year to maintain the Aquarium. Alderman Chas. Blake admitted that the Aquarium was a white elephant to the ratepayers. Alderman Reeves asked whether there was any chance of procuring a provisional order. The Town Clerk replied, "not under existing circumstances." A division was taken, with the result that 15 members voted in favour of the provisional order and 23 against it. Consequently the burden of the expense will fall upon the rated householders in London-by-the-Sea.

MR. ISAAC R. WILKINSON, formerly secretary and general-manager of the Brighton Aquarium, St. Ann's Spa, Hove, and the West Pier, Brighton, was married on the 19th inst. at the old parish church of St. John, West Bourne, Sussex, to Charlotte Elizabeth, only daughter of Richard Christian, of 3, Round Hill Crescent. The Rev. Lloyd Bartley, M.A., performed the ceremony.

THE Southend-on-Sea Kursaal has had a most successful season, thanks to the enterprising management of the secretary, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon, who is quite sanguine that it will be possible to avoid the usual closing down. We shall watch with interest whether the experiment meets with the support it deserves, particularly as other local places of amusement are announcing last nights.

THE agency carried on so long in Glasgow by Barney Armstrong has been taken over by his nephew, Bernard, who has practically conducted the business for the last five years. Mr. Barney Armstrong finds it necessary to devote his whole attention to his two houses and his professional duties. Artists going north can be booked for four or five weeks round Scotland.

MR. HARRY MARVELLO, proprietor of the Royal Geisha Entertainers, Harbour Green Pavilion, Portobello, took his annual benefit on Friday, the 21st inst., when the Pavilion was crowded. When Mr. Marvello had finished his magical act, Mr. Clifton Hall stepped forward, and, on behalf of the company, presented him with a handsome dressing-case. Mr. Marvello expressed his thanks for the gift, and audience and company broke forth into "He's a jolly good fellow." The company and friends were afterwards entertained by Mr. Marvello to supper in the Bungalow Café.

DR. WALFORD BODIE is breaking all records this week at the Hippodrome, Southampton, despite the fact of its being his second visit. The huge building is packed nightly. Dr. Bodie has been personally complimented by the Mayor and Mayoress. Mr. Geo. Adney Payne has arranged with the doctor to give a lecture on Sunday, Oct. 7, at the Euston, entitled "What is a miracle? Hypnotism v. Scientific Medicine." The Christian Scientists and the Peculiar People, with all the Press of London, will be invited.

A MATINÉE in aid of the Teams Widows and Orphans Fund will be given in the King's Theatre, Gateshead, on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 24. Messrs. Richard Thornton (Newcastle Empire), Will Boardman (Newcastle Pavilion), Sidney Bacon (Grand, Newcastle, and Metropole and Queen's, Gateshead), and Joe May (King's, Gateshead), have promised their support. The committee will be pleased to hear from artists who will give their services in aid of this deserving charity. Mr. George Reeves, Teams, Gateshead, is the secretary.

DOLLY, AGNES, AND MAUD, the "Factory Nightingales," were specially engaged to sing on Saturday last at two grand recitals, promoted by the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Glasgow. By kind permission of Mr. J. Lloyd, of the Pavilion, Glasgow, these ladies illustrated their factory life by making cardboard boxes while they sang some gems of melody.

THE Drolls and Demures, under the direction of Messrs. Fred Solo and Derick Knowles, have terminated a successful season of sixteen weeks on Redcar Pier, where they have created a most favourable impression. A few weeks ago they were specially engaged to give their refined entertainment at Wilton Castle, on the coming of age of Mr. J. G. Lowther, a nephew of the Speaker of the House of Commons. Mr. Solo is re-engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur for his pantomime season.

MR. H. SMITH, the cinematograph operator at the Margate Hippodrome, has been engaged to remain for some time longer, much to the satisfaction of the large number of patrons of this place of entertainment.

THE Herne Bay Urban District Council invites tenders for the privilege of giving entertainments during the seasons 1907, 1908, and 1909, on sites on the East Cliff and beach. The entertainers are to pay themselves by collections. Tenders are also solicited for the privilege of using the Central Hall of the East Cliff Pavilion in connection with the East Cliff Site in times of inclement weather. Here a charge may be made for the use of chairs. Applications on prescribed forms are to be sent to the Clerk of the Council, Town Hall, Herne Bay.

MR. FRED NEIMAN has been elected chairman of the tenth annual general meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, which will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 23, at the Empire, Camberwell.

MISS MARIE LLOYD was present at a most successful meeting of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild on Tuesday at the Savoy Palace Hotel, Savoy-street, and was elected its first president. The secretary is Miss Alma de Grey. Among those present were Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Lily Burnand, Miss Myra Stansfield, Miss Rosie Lloyd, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Misses Mary and Queenie Burnand, and others. A meeting was held yesterday (Friday) at 2.30 to elect a committee.

THE success of Miss Marie Tempest at the Palace has been so emphatic that Mr. Alfred Butt, taking the tide at the flood, has re-engaged the famous singing comedienne to appear for a further period of two weeks. She will considerably vary her programme, and in compliance with many requests, will sing some of her old favourites.

MISS WINIFRED HARE, who is at present prosecuting a successful tour of the Moss-Stoll Empires, has become an expert swimmer. In the various towns she has spent the better part of the day in the baths, and practised with such effect that she is now capable of entering for a championship.

MISS SYRIA LAMONTE, the well-known soubrette and operatic vocalist, has returned to England after three years' absence, during which she has visited Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Moscow, and has toured Roumania, Austria, and the United States.

MR. GUS ELEN, who is spending a fishing and motoring holiday in the vicinity of Deal and Walmer, distinguished himself a few days since on the pier of the former place by landing two splendid soles at once. The Angler's News and Sea-Fisher's Journal is of opinion that this is a feat probably never before accomplished.

MR. GEORGE ROBEY sailed on Saturday to fulfil engagements with Sydney M. Hyman, Ltd., at Johannesburg and Capetown. With a new Constitution on the Rand, Johannesburgers can readily find a place for "the Prime Minister of Mirth."

MR. E. W. LURRING, late the acting-manager of the Ealing Hippodrome, has been transferred by Mr. Walter Gibbons to the Grand, Clapham, where he takes up the position of resident-manager. His place at Ealing is now filled by Mr. W. Draper, who comes from the Duchess, Balham.

IN their match against the Cross Arrows on Tuesday the London Pavilion team wound up their season with a brilliant victory. The chief honours of the game rest with E. L. Jones and Clegg, who took between them nine of the Arrows' wickets. Jones, in addition, scored 68 for the Piccadilly people. On the opposing side were Captain Wynyard, who plays for Hampshire, and two members of the Hearne family.

MR. W. T. STEAD attended a Christian Endeavour Convention held at Dr. Maclaren's chapel in Manchester on Saturday night, and spoke of the music hall as an institution which occupied the leisure and influenced the lives of millions of human beings. He had come to the conclusion that it would be very useful if Christian Endeavour Societies in various towns appointed one or two of their number to visit and report to their members. The whole question of the amusements of the people ought to be taken into consideration by the churches. He believed we were returning to a renaissance of everything that made for the joy of life. We would recommend the L.C.C. to secure the services as music-hall inspectors of a few young men as Christian Endeavourers.

MLLE LA TOSCA, the well-known artists' model, whilst performing last week at the Lyric, Liverpool, met with a serious accident. During her performance of "Popular Paintings," the electric streamers (which figure so largely in her studies) suddenly fused, the live current playing with weird effect through her body, burning her left arm severely. But for the promptitude of Mr. Fox, stage-manager, and the electrician in switching off from the main, and La Tosca's manager, Mr. Lynn, F.O.S., coming rapidly to the front and announcing the next study, the accident would have been far graver. La Tosca, notwithstanding the excruciating pain, bravely struggled on with her act to the finish, and then was attended to by Dr. Owen, of the M.H.A.R.A. The "Artists' Model" is still suffering great pain, but is fulfilling her engagement at the Circus, Rochdale, although under great difficulty.

THERE was a well-attended meeting of the International Artists' Lodge on Sunday night at the Royal Sovereign. A letter was received from a non-member drawing the attention of the Lodge to the business methods of an agent, who, it was alleged, had caused much trouble through his carelessness. A letter was also enclosed from a representative of the Empire Circuit, New York, saying that he was not allowed to do any more business through this agent. The meeting expressed its thanks for the information, but as the artist was not a member of the organisation nothing more could be done. A brother then opened a discussion on the method of selling stamps in vogue in the lodge. It was considered by everyone present that Executive Committee members should be entrusted with stamps to sell to members wanting them. All present agreed that many members were in arrears simply through the difficulty of getting stamps when they were travelling in different countries. The meeting was in favour of the Executive Committee trying a new method. It was also pointed out that it would facilitate business if the London office had lists of the payments already made by members, and also if they were informed by postcard of the deaths occurring.

THE Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons held their regular monthly meeting at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday, the 21st inst., the chair being occupied by W.B. James W. Matthews, in the absence of W.B. Albert Le Fre. The officers were Bros. Serpentello, S.W., T. Rumble, of the Caledonian Lodge, J.W., W.B. Wolfe S. Lyon (treasurer), C. J. Doughty (secretary), W.B. H. Chenery, of the Asaph Lodge, I.P.M., Edwin Brett, S.D., Valazzi, J.D., F. H. Pedgrift, I.G., and Angelo Asher (organist). Brethren present were:—W.B. Harry Nichols, P.G.S.B., Scott Adecker, William Doust, Albert Christian, Jimmy Prior, Eric Farr, Henri C. Radford, Permane, Ernie Chester, Karl Hooper, H. Heriot Hill, G. H. Hill, Fred Neiman (members of the Lodge), and W.B. John Worth, A.G.P., J. J. Orr, and Bros. Hopekirk, Stovold, Abdullah, Locket, King, and R. W. Duce (visitors). The W.M. initiated Mr. William Collinson. W.B. Wolfe S. Lyon passed Bro. Fred Neiman, W.B. James W. Matthews resumed the chair, and subsequently vacated same in favour of W.B. Harry Nichols, who raised Bros. Farr, Doust, and Locket. W.B. Matthews again resumed the chair, and raised Bros. Radford, Prior, and Hill. W.B. Matthews thanked W.B. Nichols and Herbert Chenery for the assistance they had rendered the Lodge, and W.B. Nichols in reply stated that he was deeply sensible of the honour attached to the duties of the consecrating officers of the Lodge. He was always proud to be associated with the Chelsea Lodge.

MR. HARRY RICHARDS, who writes from Marseilles to Tom Pacey, says that he is already much better for the rest on board.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. Pat Carey, who is to be married next Wednesday to a lady of independent means, who was at one time in the profession.

MR. C. DOUGLAS STUART completes to-day his tenth year as hon. secretary and secretary of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association.

MR. FREDERICK MAXWELL and his clever company, which includes Miss Lois Du Cane, will produce a new sketch, in three scenes, entitled A Prodigal Wife, at the Standard, Pimlico, on Monday.

A "ROUND ROBIN" signed by his Happy Valley company at Southend has been received by Chirgwin. The object of this expression was to mark the kindness and liberality which the White-eyed Kaffir has extended to the artists engaged by him during his first season, which has been a great financial success.

MR. P. C. ROWE, who has for the past two years been employed at the head office of Moss Empires in the accountancy department, has just received a well-deserved promotion in being appointed to the assistant-managership of the Swansea Empire. Mr. Rowe was presented with a handsome fitted dressing-case on taking leave of his headquarters' colleagues on Saturday last.

THE new farcical absurdity Neighbours, written by Mr. Charles Wilmott and Mr. Edmund Edmunds, has been repeating at the Holloway Empire during the week the extraordinary success it achieved at Hackney on its initial production the week prior. It has been a big departure from the staple usually submitted by the Albert and Edmunds Troupe, by whom it is played, but its success has justified the experiment.

DR. BODIE'S last evening at the Hippodrome, Colchester, must have been very gratifying to him, as the vast audience continuously showed its delight in loud applause. Just prior to the close the doctor called the popular manager, Mr. Ben de Frece, on to the stage, and presented him with a handsome salad bowl and servers, as a mark of his personal esteem. Mr. de Frece acknowledged the gift in a very graceful speech.

MR. OSWALD BRAND'S sketch The White Squaw, adapted from John Baldwin Buckstone's famous drama The Green Bushes, was booked for the halls immediately after its first production at the author's benefit matinée at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on the 18th inst., and will shortly be reproduced with Miss Helen Bancroft as Miami, a part made memorable at the Adelphi by the talents of Mme. Celeste.

THE demolition of the Great Wheel at Earl's Court has been determined on, and the disintegration of the famous landmark will begin on Oct. 8, and after five months London will see it no more. A million and a half persons have travelled on it since July, 1895. There has been only one serious breakdown, that on Whit-Monday, 1896, when sixty-six passengers were imprisoned on it all night. That incident cost the management £300, but it was worth all that as an advertisement.

MR. STRATTON MILLS has secured the sole rights of a new and original comedy sketch, entitled A Lovely Liar, by Herbert C. Sargent, the initial performance of which will take place on Oct. 1, at the Empress, Brixton. The cast will include Mr. Ralph Nairn, Miss Minnie Blanchard, and Mr. Stratton Mills; the costumes will be provided by Harrisons, Ltd., and the entire production will be under the direction of Mr. E. T. Steyne.

THE New Pavilion, Kingstown, will inaugurate its first dramatic season on Monday next, when Mr. M. Russell Rosse's Répertoire Company will appear in a succession of modern comedies, supported by an efficient company, at the head of which is Mr. David James. The venture is causing a great deal of local interest, for it was after a protracted struggle that the directors have at last got the patent from the Lord-Lieutenant.

AT the Bedford on Saturday, at the conclusion of the performance of The Merchant of Venice, Mr. Lovesey, the manager, publicly presented to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Storey a handsome silver cake-basket inscribed "Presented to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Storey by Mr. B. P. Lucas, Bedford Palace of Varieties, as a token of his esteem and good wishes. Sept. 22, 1906." Mr. Lovesey dwelt upon the excellence of the production and the personal triumph of Mr. Storey as Shylock, which resulted in packed houses nightly, thus demonstrating the fact that Shakespeare is appreciated quite as much on the music-hall stage as in the theatres. Mr. Storey, in thanking Mr. Lucas for the charming gift, said the success of Shakespeare in the music-halls had been a source of delight to him.

THE accomplishments of Miss Lil Hawthorne, who is at the Hackney Empire on Monday, are too well known to need any eulogy. She was the first to sing a song with the refrain being repeated by vocalist in the audience. This has been a wonderful success, and, of course, has found numerous imitators all over the world. During the run of a pantomime at Glasgow, while singing her song, "I'll be your sweetheart," the little lad who was engaged to sing the refrain from the front of the gallery had a strange and somewhat rough experience. It happened that a new attendant had been appointed to take charge of this part of the house, and, knowing nothing of this performance, thought the boy was rudely interrupting. He at once picked up the youthful singer, and with great vigour proceeded to turn him out. The lad, while he was struggling and being so roughly ejected, most pluckily continued to sing. Lil Hawthorne, realising what was happening, could not proceed for laughing. Of course explanations took place, and the little songster, in the midst of wildest applause, once again appeared, and this time sang his verses without further interruption.

THE 482nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music-Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, when the following were present:—Messrs. Fred Newman, Harry Freeman, A. Borelli, R. Abel, Jeff Vendome, Chas. Gardener, Bob Hutt, Frank Gerald, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary); Mr. Fred Neiman was voted to the chair; Mr. J. D. Highley, of the Staffordshire Knot Hotel, Burton-on-Trent, was, on the proposition of Mr. Borelli, seconded by Mr. Freeman, appointed as agent in that town. The following alterations were made in the list of the provincial agencies:—Mr. D. Evans, Court Arms, Merthyr Tydvil, and Mr. G. Cropper, White Hart Hotel, Ashton-under-Lyne. Mr. Frank Gerald proposed, and Mr. Bob Hutt seconded a resolution "That Mr. Harry Mountford be re-instated as a member of the association." Carried unanimously.

THE secretary submitted a draft of the annual report of the committee, which was passed as read. Regarding the disbursement of the amount in hand Mr. Charles Gardener proposed, and Mr. Borelli seconded a resolution, "That the sum of one hundred guineas be donated to each of the four charities: the Railway Benevolent Institution, the Railway Servants' Orphanage, the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Home Fund; also that a sum of £300 be added to the present Reserve Fund, and the remainder carried over to next year's account." This was carried unanimously. Mr. Fred Neiman was asked to occupy the chair at the general meeting, which he consented to do. The meeting then terminated.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "I desire to convey my hearty thanks to the gentleman who sat behind me at the Empire, Liverpool, the other evening, and kept up a humming accompaniment while Chirgwin sang the 'Blind Boy.' I am sorry I could not hear the gentleman in the audience to the best advantage, because Chirgwin's little efforts kept interfering. This made me feel a bit 'raggy,' and I was on the point of getting on my hind legs and shouting: 'Hi, Chirgwin! Do shut up! How can I listen properly to the gentleman behind me when you're making such a drivel of a row up there?' Then I thought 'Chirg' might feel hurt, and I refrained. So did the other chap, he still refrain-ed."

MR. CHAS. M. DALY, the manager, author, and producer of Mr. Chas. E. Machin's sketches, and author of his last success, The Gorilla's Revenge, has just finished what Mr. Machin considers his masterpiece, viz., Three Thousand Years Ago, a twenty-five minutes' sketch, of which the scene is laid in ancient Egypt, the land of weird mystery. The chief features of the production are an eruption and the bringing to life of Amenalius, the mummified remains of a priestess of the Temple of Thieves. To add realism Mr. Machin has purchased two real mummies—one dating back B.C. 1200, a date that establishes the fact that it is 3106 years old. Upon its pedigree Mr. Daly has based his plot, which is as interesting as it is novel.

MISS MAIE HOEY, who is only fourteen, has learnt dancing under the incomparable Genée and deportment from Mesdames Francesca Zanfretta and Cormani. She has other talents, being a cultivated musician and a painter. With such credentials and the endowment of personal attractions Miss Maie should be successful on the stage, where she is shortly to appear.

MR. WILL MURRAY, of "The Casey Circus," has presented Mr. Dan Lipton (C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton) with a valuable bull-pup of the Champion Rodney Stone strain. The pup is registered at the Kennel Club as "Mrs. Casey."

OWING to the success of Mr. Arthur Jenner's musical leaflet, "The Land of the Maple Leaf," which was produced at the Cambridge on Thursday, Mr. Richards has engaged the turn for the Commercial-street house next week. The chief parts were sustained with the greatest success by Mr. Arthur Jenner and Miss Millie Warde.

MISS MILLIE PAYNE, both in Ireland and Wales, has evidently hit the public fancy, and the local Press has been loud in its praise of what Oswald Stoll describes as comedy of refinement and quite a refreshing style. Miss Payne returns to town on Oct. 22 with new songs.

"BILLY," the educated pony, introduced by his trained, J. De Voye, has returned to London, after a long and successful tour. Billy is at the Surrey this week.

IN consequence of the great success of the popular recruiting scena, "Come, my boy, and be a soldier," by Ralph Nairn, produced at last Saturday's Palace Theatre matinée, Mr. Dennis Drew has been requested to reproduce it at to-day's matinée. Only the difficulty of the boys' licences prevents its presentation nightly.

FANNY ROBINA and Florry Cooper, who have been meeting with great success on their first visit to the Richmond Theatre, start a six months' tour on Oct. 8.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS is fulfilling a very successful engagement at the Keith and Proctor vaudeville houses, New York, his characters from Dickens arousing keen interest and earning appreciative applause. Mr. Williams's "act" is a decided novelty in the States, and is quite in keeping with the efforts of the vaudeville managers to improve the quality of their programmes.

MISS MABEL SINCLAIR, lady ventriloquist, has scored a hit with our American cousins in Philadelphia and New York. She is touring the United States until 1907, when she returns to the London Pavilion.

IT is not generally known that at one or other of their London district theatres Moss Empires every Monday afternoon give provincial artists a private trial. The judge on these occasions is Mr. Will Collins, the well-known district manager for the metropolis. Next Monday a rather unique trial will take place. Eight troupes of pierrots from various seaside resorts, who have never before appeared in London, will at 2 p.m., at the Holloway Empire, give new and original "shows" with the object of securing the Moss-Stoll tours of thirty-eight weeks.

AMONG those whom Mr. Sterling Mackinlay has coached in the expression and rendering of songs two have since been singing at the Palace Theatre, while three others were engaged for Miss Agnes Fraser, Miss Evie Greene, and Miss Isabel Jay's parts in the principal touring companies.

MLLE. GENÉE, as stated in our columns last week, will conclude her present agreement with the Empire management at the end of 1907. She is considering a tempting offer to go to the United States, and may be permitted by the directors to pay a visit.

MR. WALTER F. MUNROE had the misfortune a few days since to gash his left wrist with a sharp piece of corroded metal, and blood poisoning has followed, the entire arm being affected. His wife (Miss Emma Don) and their company had therefore reluctantly to cancel engagements at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, and at Belham.

MISS BESSIE TRAVIS, the lady ventriloquist, has now fully recovered from her recent illness, and wishes to thank the eighty-four professional friends who wrote letters of sympathy. She is making her usual success this week at the Palace, Attercliffe.

THE Palace Theatre, Darlington, Limited, has this week been registered with a capital of £6,000 in £1 shares. The architect for the building is Mr. G. F. Ward, of 71, Colmore-row, Birmingham, and the site is well placed at the corner of Parkgate and Borough roads.

MR. FRED CURRAN thanks his friends for their numerous kind inquiries concerning his health, and is pleased to state that he has entirely recovered. On Nov. 16 he sails for Australia on the liner Ortona.

MR. FRED WRIGHT, JUN., who made a successful début at the Palace Theatre recently, has placed his business in the hands of that rising young agent, Mr. Harry S. Hart, and opens on Monday on the Barrasford Tour.

MRS. MAUD SIMS-REEVES, the widow of the great tenor, will make her reappearance on the variety boards, after four years' absence, at the Empire, Islington, on Monday next, when she will sing some of the songs made famous by her husband. Her business has been placed in the hands of Messrs. Somers and Warner.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The entente cordiale in art is very happily called to mind at the Alhambra by the engagement of Mlle. Anne Dancrey, whose trio of songs prove her to possess a voice of exceptional brilliance in the upper register. The French artist cuts a superb figure in a wonderful pink confection that fits her like a glove. Of the three numbers to which she does complete justice, two are written to dance measures—the one a gavotte and the other a waltz. The first, a spirited march, has all the liveliness and gaiety that characterise popular music from across the Channel. The gavotte, too, is an engaging melody, and the waltz has dreaminess and charm. Mlle. Dancrey sweeps round her skirts in graceful illustration of both dances, and rouses the house to enthusiasm. Early in the evening the Bellong Brothers are responsible for athletics that display much strength, intrepidity, and a complete understanding of the niceties of equipoise. On a raised platform with a staircase one of the brothers stands erect on the larger wheel of a safety bicycle, the machine being unfixed. A feat of much greater difficulty is when the same brother rapidly climbs a pole balanced by his stouter partner, and, reaching the summit, stands once more on the wheel of a bicycle placed thereon. The house watches in breathless silence, and then applauds. A fine specimen of the modern gladiator is Bobby Pandur of the Pandurs, whose muscular frame seems equal to exceptional strain. This pair of athletes is also concerned with difficult balancing feats, and perform the greater part of their tricks on a platform apparently supported by the figure of a Hercules. Both men realise in their muscular development the perfection of manly grace, and their feats are accomplished throughout with rare aplomb. The final tour de force is the suspension by a stout webbing hanging from the neck of Bobby—who places his feet on the uppermost rungs of two ladders—of a bicycle on which his partner is seated. A remarkable show indeed.

New comers to the Alhambra are the Aquamarinoff Troupe, which includes an adult male, whose wonderful agility is agreeably displayed in the peasant dances of the Slavs. He is run very close in popularity by a lad who pirouettes with extraordinary facility. The chanting of the crowd is somewhat monotonous, the tune being most probably a Russian volkslied; but the entertainment is interesting, and the pretty national costumes are worn with much grace by the women. The Petching Brothers present a musical garden, in which climbing roses conceal tuned sleigh-bells, on which an American melody is played. "Believe me if all those endearing young charms"—Moore's Irish melody—loses most of its grace and beauty when the cadences are produced by short, disjointed notes that are sounded by instruments concealed among pots of flowers. A comic effect is obtained when the musical brothers extract the soothing influences of tune from the illuminated fruit of a pear tree. The electric effects are decidedly pretty.

Mr. Charles Urban is still putting the world before the Alhambra patrons. He now takes us to that wonderland of vast lakes and still vaster enterprise—Canada, and presents many most interesting pictures of the life of the people and the industries of the country—pictures that are engrossing and attractive throughout. But the developments of animated photography, as Mr. Urban long since proved to us, are not restricted to the production of the real: they are equal to the fanciful representation of comedietta without words—such a one as Love Wins Out; or, A Motor Marriage, which illustrates an amusing series of adventures in a most graphic manner.

Some reflection of the glories of buried grandeur and ancient civilisation is shown in the ballet, L'Amour, in which is set forth a well-defined and dramatic story, with a superb Oriental setting, and wonderful pictures of an Assyrian garden and palace, by Mr. E. H. Ryan. The tale of the love of Mylitta, and the difficulties that hedge it round, has probably been drawn from the rich storehouse of Eastern lore by Mrs. Hay-Ritchie, the authoress of the libretto, and with such a perfect mistress of movement as Signorina Maria Bordin, and such a dramatic mime as Signor Alfredo Curti, the plot is revealed with rare significance. The sinuous grace of the gifted prima ballerina, who comes from Milan, is perhaps best displayed in the temptation scene, wherein Prince Nashar el Din has to pass a probationary night in the temple, subject to the fascinating allurements of sirens; but Signorina Bordin is responsible for a series of brilliant pas in the final scene. The music of M. François Thomé, which has a very pretty love motiv, is very finely rendered by the orchestra, under Mr. George Byng. Parisiana, in its second edition, now employs the talents of Signorina Enrica Varasi as principal danseuse, and she is well received in a variation of considerable difficulty. The music of Mr. Jimmy Glover always sounds the joyous note, and the picture of the fête at Neuilly is full of animation.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

The task of filling the vast auditorium of the South London is no ordinary one, but that happy state of affairs is frequently effected, and both houses usually present the crowded state for which the managerial heart yearns. No exception to the rule was apparent on the evening of a visit this week, when a large audience gave every evidence of appreciation of the bountiful entertainment overseered by Mr. William Payne, the new manager. A melodramatic sketch is included in the programme, and is entitled The Secret Spy. It is not easy to conceive a spy who is not secret, but no effort is made to cloak the evil wrought by the villain, a renegade Frenchman in the employ of the German Emperor. He endeavours to steal a despatch sent by the English Government to the Czar and to connect a young officer with the crime; but he is foiled by a regenerated drunkard, with whom he engages in a terrible fight with daggers. There is a certain love interest in the plot, over the representation of which the audience grows very excited. The little piece is strongly represented by Mr. Fred G. Brooke's company, and is elaborately mounted and dressed.

A brightly-shining star of the bill is found in Miss Lily Burnand, who was never in better trim. Her fine voice is heard agreeably in the refrain "When she was in the ballet," which tells of a fascinating young dancer who was wooed and won by a peer of the realm, and the finesse with which she invests the words gives them added point. Miss Burnand's vocal ability receives further proof in her ballad of "The Stowaway," the chorus of which is thoroughly grasped by the gallery and echoed with enthusiasm. Miss Burnand's popularity is great in South London, as everywhere else, and applause of the heartiest denotes the delight of her admirers. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope occupies an important position in the entertainment, and the pictures shown are highly appreciated. The first series depicts a daring cavalry ride, in which mounted soldiers are seen leaping precipitous slopes and fording streams, many an awkward tumble befalling some of the troopers. The representation of a horse's sagacity in bringing aid to a wounded man is also greatly enjoyed, and the interesting films are loudly cheered.

An unmistakable hit is achieved by Mr. Edward Ford, who gives imitations that are varied and comprehensive. His facial manipulation is unique, and the way in which he contorts his features is incredibly grotesque. An encore is insisted upon, and extracts from the artist perhaps the most comical impersonation—that of an orator delivering a speech, in which the most extravagant phrases are used. The Great Northern Troupe win admiration for the neatness of their dancing, their jigs and reels being executed in the smart manner which long since won recognition. An old couple who dance energetically add the element of humour to the show, which thoroughly pleases all. The art of Terpsichore has also doughty champions in the Eight Lancashire Lads, to whose efforts we refer in the notice of another hall. The clever lads are much in demand this week, and their success at the South London is equal to that at the other houses at which they appear. A feature of the bill is the sketch, A Poor Weak Woman, an amusing trifle, only recently produced, in which the physical proportions of Miss Helen Kinnaird are utilised in the title-rôle to droll advantage, and Mr. Willis Searle renders capable assistance. The nimble-limbed Herbert La Martine, who sings tunefully while he dances inimitably, is another attraction of the programme, which also includes Miss Trixie Lee, comedienne, and Drew and Alders. The well-manned orchestra is led with credit by Mr. Charles E. Howells.

THE SURREY.

Of the thirteen items on the programme this week at the Surrey sketches claim the larger number, and the one that provokes the most merriment is The Casey Cirkus, one of Mr. Harry Cadle's "Casey Court" series, illustrating some amusing episodes of juvenile life in a slum quarter. We find that Mrs. Casey's weekly washing of dirty linen has been appropriated by the juveniles to advertise the performance of The Casey Cirkus on the broadest lines of burlesque and pantomime. Paraded before us are most wonderful specimens of the animal world, labelled according to "Ruzvelt speling." In the background is Casey's special "Orkester." To attempt to describe all the absurdities in this revel of foolery would be to attempt the impossible. In quick succession come a bareback rider on a marvellous steed; the marching and drill of Casey's Guards; a clever parody of Sandow by an emaciated specimen of mankind; and an exhilarating burlesque of Turpin's Ride to York. Will Murray as the moving spirit—Mrs. Casey—is delightfully droll, and his juvenile comedians are deserving of the warmest praise.

In direct contrast is the one-act miniature drama, Her Good Name, admirably played by Miss Diana Hope and company. Miss Hope, as the chemist's flighty wife, Adelaide, invests her part with grace and charm; as the Hon. James Augrum, Mr. F. S. Ingleby gives a character-study of rare merit; and Mr. Monte Bayly's delineation of the outraged husband is a creditable performance.

In the farcical sketch, The Little Wonder, the personality of Little Tony claims attention for this miniature comedian as Mr. Gorfunkle, a stockbroker, who has to impersonate a baby, is responsible for one of the best pieces of comedy acting to be seen on the variety stage. As the domineering wife who assumes the rôle of mother, Miss Nora Layton is chic, smart, and decidedly clever; Mr. Harry Gribben as the massive plumber, Mr. Piper, who reluctantly consents to act as father to the baby—pro tem.—puts in some strong and effective work. As the rich Uncle, Mr. John Wilkinson helps in no small measure the humorous intentions of the author. This bright and merry sketch deserves to be seen and appreciated by many audiences. "Dronza's" talking head will long remain a mystery, for although a committee invited from the audience surrounds the pedestal on the stage and closely inspects the intricate mechanism, the members of it leave the stage profoundly mystified, for this wonderful piece of mechanism, designed and built in Sunny Italy, not only answers all the questions accurately, but indulges in thought-reading and prophesies future events.

The Sisters Lytton are charming vocalists, whose voices are heard to advantage in selections from our most popular operas. For animal intelligence Mr. James De Voye's beautiful horse, "Billy," would be hard to beat, for this highly-educated quadruped is not only a good arithmetician, but plays Nap with his master, and wins. Herbert Rule is a quaint comedian with original methods. His droll spoof song, "This is the chorus," keeps his audience in a good humour all the time. Daisy Sillcott is chic and smart, and has a good song in "Woman wants everything she sees." Leah Arden has a well-cultured voice, and sings with perfect expression and sweetness a pretty ballad, "Say your heart is mine." Jack Heath's comic ditty, "I'll have a little bit of meat," finds favour. The Kays, in a pretty drawing-room scene, and costumed in a series of smart and becoming confections, give a musical sketch that is interesting all the time. Their "Cuckoo" song is rendered with great purity of tone and facile execution. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are, as usual, highly interesting.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

Obstructions beset the path of the pedestrian on Denmark-hill, where the electric tramway is being laid down, but a haven of safety is secured within the elegant and cosy Palace, which now dispenses lavish entertainment on the twice nightly principle. A beacon light looms large on the bill in the name of Miss Marie Lloyd the incomparable. Her account of the country maiden who at home is always "strictly proper," but in town gives rein to her frivolous instincts, is highly relished by the audience, who also enjoy the dainty little measure which is danced. "The custom of the country" is a song which proves no less instructive than amusing, and Miss Lloyd renders it in her most artistic fashion. Another lady vocalist gifted with piquancy and charm is Miss Gracie Grahame, whose refrain "The bells were ringing in the steeple" refers to a wedding which did not take place owing to the lady changing her mind and sending round her husband to declare it off. Miss Grahame, who is attired in a becoming bridal dress, assumes another pretty costume for her song "Fishing," in the course of which the youth of Camberwell is invited to come into the matrimonial net, much to the embarrassment of certain young men in the stalls who are selected for special invitation. It is a pleasing variant on Miss Grahame's song of "Charley," and the delight of the audience is loudly expressed.

Rich and Rich are jesters of a most original kind, their "cross-talk" being fresh and ingenious. The laughter of the audience is continuous during their turn, which includes a droll parody of "Mary of Argyle." Signor and Mme. Borelli have introduced a new entertainment, which begins with a skilfully executed pianoforte duet. Imitations of Continental comic singers reveal laughable travesties of Italian, German, and French vocalists, and in response to an enthusiastic recall the old favourite "Cats' Duet" is given realistically, but no less also harmoniously. Mimicry is cleverly supplied by Mr. George Newburn, who puts the voice and mannerisms of Alec Hurley, Fred Earle, and Harry Lauder faithfully before the audience. An encore is inevitable, and Mr. Newburn accedes to the demand with a clever reproduction of Mr. George Lashwood bidding good-bye to his latch-key. The Lomas Trio give a skilful display on the flying rings, many feats of muscular endurance being performed. In the second part of their performance a picturesque effect is created by a revolving trapeze gleaming with coloured electric lights, upon which the trio execute graceful gymnastic feats. The show is a pretty one, and is applauded as it well deserves.

Dancing in many varied forms is supplied by the Eight Lancashire Lads, who give a fine exhibition of footplay in addition to singing a tuneful chorus, supplemented by some curious terpsichorean movements. Their smart stepping on the pedestal, on which each member of the troupe gives a specimen of his own particular style, is neatly executed, and proves a very exhilarating item. Mr. Billy Williams, the Australian comedian, gets a good reception, his parody on "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you" proving very diverting, and a vivid picture of "A Slippery Intruder" is shown on Vernon's Bioscope. The Sisters Warner, singers and dancers; and the Moncktons, in a comedy act, are also on the bill; and on the night of our visit an "extra turn" was supplied in the charming person of Miss Amy Allnutt, who thoroughly amused the house with her rendering of "Why don't you finish the job?" and "You have a bit on me," in which her low comedy talents were agreeably apparent. Additional strength is given to the entertainment at the second house by Mr. Harry Freeman, Miss Cora Casselli, and Mr. Ernest Montefiore, in the sketch The Little Colonel. Mr. P. A. Lennon is the manager of the hall, the musical forces of which are still capably directed by Mr. Leon A. Bassett.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

Mr. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians are on a visit to the Islington Empire in their latest skit, entitled Muscles; or, Muscular Development Personified. Although devoid of a connected story, this new production fulfils its purpose. It affords an audience much cause for boisterous merriment by a harmless skit on the "physical culture" which in the case of some people becomes a positive craze. The scene is a school in which the latest system of muscular development is carried on; and the characters introduced include a decrepit old military officer, an inebriated swell, a couple of muscular maidens, an ancient auntie in charge of a comical kid "who won't grow up," a strong man, and a parson. The business is of the pantomimic order, the lifting of a supposed heavy weight being one of the numerous devices for exciting the mirth of the onlookers. In a merry, bustling scene all the principal performers work hard and successfully in promoting the continuous hilarity of the audience, and "twenty minutes' solid laughter" can be accepted as a correct description of the result of their energetic efforts. Quite different in character is the little piece entitled Her Birthday, which is founded on one of those misunderstandings between man and wife that, skilfully used for stage purposes, never fail to interest and amuse an audience. In this capital duologue the lady is first seen at home awaiting the return of her husband, who has promised to take her to a Covent Garden ball, it being her birthday. She discovers a telegram which she rather hastily assumes to be addressed to her husband by a lady, making an appointment, so that when that gentleman at length appears he finds his better half in a very bad temper, and she attacks him vigorously with the weapon of her sex—her tongue. He offers no defence, and matters reach a domestic crisis, when Charles accidentally drops from his pocket a parcel, which proves to be a lady's garter brilliant with diamonds. Of course this was bought as a birthday present for the wife, and the telegram was also intended for her. These explanations being forthcoming, peace reigns again, the lady expressing her regret that she so nearly lost her temper. The duologue is excellently played by the couple known as Hunt and Thomas, the lady giving at the opening an admirable rendering of a song called "In Dreamland." Another clever pair are Barlee and Smith, who appear in an episode entitled A Rehearsal, in which the gentleman assumes the character of a theatrical agent and the lady that of a young stage aspirant. In a duet they give imitations of ways of making love by various people, including a coster and an aristocrat. This turn is loudly applauded.

An acceptable variation from the ordinary programme is found in D'Arc's marionettes, which are very smartly worked and voiced by a lady and gentleman. The novel feature of the turn is that the dolls represent in miniature such well-known variety stars as George Robey, R. G. Knowles, Vesta Tilley, May Henderson, and Eugénie Fougère, the voice of each being cleverly mimicked by the unseen workers of the figures. The effect is remarkably realistic, and the audience evince their keen appreciation of a capital show by vigorous applause. The Three Delareys in their speciality act, The Demon, give a notable performance on the hanging rings and double trapeze, some of their feats being marked by pleasing novelty. Mr. Harry Conlin, comedian, is the cause of much merriment by his quaint impersonation of a middle-aged female, who wears a hat ornamented with real fruit and carries a muff made of a loaf of bread from which the middle has been extracted. Mr. Gus Barra, musical comedian, makes his appearance in a miniature motor-car, and wears an overcoat to which are attached "tooters," on which, accompanied by the orchestra, he plays melodies. He also affords proof of his skill as a concertina player. The Clarkes, a lady and gentleman, distinguish themselves as banjoists, their selections including the well-known overture to William Tell. Miss Madeleine Rees sings in good style "When love comes knocking at the door"; and Miss Jessie Albini scores with "There's not another girl like me." On Monday evening Miss Nellie Farrell appeared in the place of Miss Lilian Elfreda, mimic, and gave an Irish song and dance. The bioscope presents a series of pictures entitled "A Free Pass," depicting the laughable adventures of a family who, having been given an order, pay a visit to a theatre on a hot summer's evening. Mr. George L. Wilson is the popular manager at this flourishing hall, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Harry Blight, acting-manager.

THE PARAGON.

Amongst the many attractive turns in the current Paragon programme prominence is appropriately given to that favourite comedian Mr. Alec Hurley, who, with a numerous and excellent company, is appearing in the sketch in three scenes entitled The Coster's Beanfeast. It might be called "The Coster's Courtship," for running through the sketch is a vein of sentiment, Bill's true affection for his pretty little "donah," Emma, being portrayed with some clever touches by Mr. Hurley. When the young lady shows temper, for which there appears to be very little cause, Bill sings to her in plaintive tones and expressive language that tells of undying devotion. She is the only "gal" for him in the wide world; and Emma would indeed be a very hard-hearted young woman if the appeal failed to have its intended effect. Of course she yields, and the couple go off together quite reconciled and loverlike. This little episode happens on the road to "The Old Rye House," the scene revealing a pretty landscape; but it is at that famous pleasure resort that we get a complete picture of the sunny side of the coster's life. The party have travelled from the Mile End-road in a char-à-banc, and we see them tripping it merrily to some popular melody of the day. And there is no doubt about the genuineness of their enjoyment; it is expressed in every movement of their merry dance. And when the shadows begin to lengthen Bill and his campanions, having had a real good day, take their places again on the brake, which is drawn by two live horses; but not before they have made the welkin ring with a rattling chorus song that can be heard a mile away. Of Mr. Alec Hurley's embodiment of Will, the coster, there is nothing new to be said, and his singing retains all those excellent qualities to which we have already frequently borne testimony. He is fortunate in being supported by a company who display all the spirit and vim which a sketch of this kind imperatively demands. The scenery is also of a thoroughly satisfactory character.

Here also are Mr. Arthur Conquest and company in the pantomimic sketch entitled The Sioux, which we fully noticed when it was played recently at the Euston. Mr. Conquest's embodiment of the ape, known as Chadi, is a remarkably clever animal-study, and moreover it is a part which requires for its perfect representation considerable muscular strength, much agility, and the skill of being able to climb a rope like a monkey. All these qualifications Mr. Arthur Conquest possesses, in addition to which he is an actor of experience who learnt his business in that one-time excellent training school the Surrey Theatre. The part of the little girl who is Chadi's playmate, and whom he saves from death at the cost of his own life, is prettily played by the youngest member of the company.

A very cordial reception is extended to Miss Victoria Monks, a dainty and clever comedienne, whose ditty in praise of "London Town" is likely to receive the approval of every true cockney. She also introduces one of the latest American song successes, entitled "Moving Day." A married couple have taken a flat, and as they cannot pay the rent the furniture is removed by order of the landlord. The lady finds herself in the street with only a wooden box to sit upon, and even then she is moved on by a policeman. Miss Monks sings the ditty with the most successful results. The Holloway Trio present one of the most interesting and cleverly-worked wire acts we have seen for a long time, one of the features being an imitation of a coon dance. This is given on the wire by two members of the company, and is loudly applauded. Mr. Frank Harwood is excellent as a descriptive vocalist, opening with "May and December." His song addressed to his pipe, his "only pal," with spoken passages, is highly dramatic and effective. Radford and Valentine give a good turn as speciality artists, the gentleman being most ingenious in his devices for causing merriment. Mr. George Mozart, the favourite comedian, scores in his comic description of the meetings of various people, and his song given in the character of the Colonel of the "Fighting Nuts" is well received. Mr. Harry Maxam's funny policeman impersonation ditty deserves special mention; and Mr. Walter Stanley, comedian, has a most flattering reception. Miss Maude Courtney, "the American girl," sings a duet with a gentleman vocalist stationed in the circle, and their efforts are rewarded with loud applause; Miss Hettie Chattell, character burlesque artist, and Oakley and James (Bert and Polly) also meet with a hearty welcome, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures, is appreciated. During the interval, a selection of popular American melodies is played by the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Arthur Grimmett, and the front of the house is carefully looked after by the manager, Mr. Chas. Beecham.

EALING HIPPODROME.

A shuffling of the cards occurs in the management this week. Mr. E. W. James loses his popular acting-manager, who is transferred to the Clapham Grand, while Mr. W. Draper comes to Ealing from the Duchess, at Balham. Hearty wishes accompany Mr. E. W. Lurring to his new post, and his successor is accorded a most cordial welcome.

Many moons have risen and set since Miss Lottie Collins sent London into a furore of excitement over her unforgetable "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-Ay" song and dance, and the torrent of cheers that arises as her number goes up testifies to her unceasing popularity. Miss Collins has been furnished with some excellent numbers, which include "Only a giddy Gaiety girl," "I'm a widow," and "A marriage of convenience," this last by George Arthurs and Orlando Powell. With three changes of costume, each of which would do honour to Worth, Miss Collins makes a striking stage picture, and she is accored a reception with which she must be very gratified. Ancillotti and his thought-reading dog Pilu unite in mystifying alike stalls, pit, and gallery. As question after question is set by the audience and put to Pilu by his excitable master, who is in himself a veritable bubble of volatility, the "doggie," after profound cogitation, proceeds to reverse certain cards bearing numbers answering to the queries. Endless merriment is the outcome of the replies as to age, addresses, and prospects in the matrimonial market of the numerous questioners, a merriment which is increased by the happy outbursts of Ancillotti himself at the success of his aged companion—for Pilu, sad to relate, owns to seventeen years. A very happy alliance of song and picture is found in the "pictorial songster" of Miss Belle Braham. "The Only Way"—a romance of the "conciergerie" and the French Revolution—is graphically told in a series of lantern views, the while that Miss Braham unwinds in song the sad history of Sydney Carton. In "Popular Songs and Singers" a happier vein is struck, and an almost endless procession of well-known favourites grows and fades upon the magic disc. To mention names would be to catalogue the variety stage, but to one and all is allotted a line that "fits."

A most laughable interlude is provided in the "comedy duologue," Saucy Maid, from which much fun is squeezed by the Buontes. In the opening, the saucy maid, a boarding-house drudge, is discovered immersed in the perusal of one of the "love for ever sixpenny awfuls," and, upon the entrance of a certain Captain Rudolph, falls incontinently in love with him. The Captain is in expectation of the arrival of Maud Cunningham, an actress, and a letter he addresses to her is mistaken by the "maid" as being intended for herself. Thinking her love returned, she casts herself into the gentleman's arms. Soon undeceived, however, she determines to impersonate the actress, and so well does she counterfeit the expected guest that she is received with rapture by the Captain, who is sadly undeceived in the end at finding he is pressing kisses upon the lips of the dreadful "saucy maid." The scena is most briskly played by the Buontes, who receive a most hearty and well-earned recall. Miss Queenie May, "the juvenile prize packet," instils an immense amount of energy into her two numbers, and obtains an enthusiastic recall; but songs more appropriate to her age might well be chosen. Miss Jane Temple, American comedienne, is most entertaining in her two songs, and as a raconteuse is especially amusing, some of her tales being particularly ben trovato, while every point is exploited to its full value. In a rollicksome medley of song and dance, Messrs. Allsopp and Beckwith depict the incidents of the courtship of a lady who would and a gentleman who wouldn't. The little comedy culminates in the end to the mutual satisfaction of the happy pair and their audience. Mr. John Callan, comedian, is very welcome. In his "game of Bridge" the varying potentialities of diamond, club, heart, and spade are most graphically illustrated, and Mr. Callan establishes a true note of sympathy betwixt the house and himself. It is reserved, however, to Mr. Will Johnson, in his "I live down a quiet street," to raise a storm of laughter. In his make-up as a lady he is quite too utterly funny, while his patter is comic in the extreme. Mr. Johnson is happily termed a "lively comedian." An absolutely side-splitting production is presented in Three of a Kind, "a conglomeration of mirth, mystery, and muddle, wherein chance resemblances in features provide laughter, both loud and hearty, under the direction of Arden and Abel, Limited." Muddle there certainly is, and mystery worse confounded. A plot so full of surprises was surely never before invented.

HOUNSLOW HIPPODROME.

Ever ready in sweet charity's cause, Mr. Lennox Barry, the courteous manager, organised, quite successfully, a benefit entertainment here on Wednesday. It had already been pointed out in the columns of The Era that aid from outside sources would be welcomed, and a number of artists generously responded to Mr. Barry's appeal in our last issue. The programme was under the distinguished patronage of H.R.H. the Duchess of Connaught. Mr. John Sale renounced for the time his bâton at the Holborn Empire to conduct the augmented orchestra, and Mr. John Burgess filled the rôle of hon. stage-manager with every success. Miss Nellie Chantler opened the proceedings with a really tasteful rendition of "The Flight of Ages." Phillips and Merritt afforded considerable amusement, Miss Merritt winning quite an ovation for her whistling solo. Miss Ethel Walker, at the pianoforte, amused with her clever ditties. "It did go," her first item, caused a lot of fun, and her imitations of Vesta Tilley, Millie Lindon, &c., were excellent. Mr. Fred Errick told of the reception accorded him by his spouse after falling from a balloon; bright, winsome little Violet Duprez danced herself at once into the hearts of the audience; and another dancer, of the opposite sex, who deserves honourable mention for his cleverness was Mr. Percy Dalton. Mr. Rollo Balmain's fine elocution was heard to distinct advantage in his recitation "Karl, the Martyr," enunciation, gesture, and tone being alike excellent. Miss Madge May, as a coon lady with aspirations, was quite amusing, the audience apparently thinking "Mr. Simpson" had only met his just fate; and Miss Nellie Chandos confided to the crowded house that she had "A Bungalow in Borneo." From Borneo to the snow slopes of Canada is a far cry, but Miss Bella Bashall was responsible for the trip, and enjoyable enough it appeared, if one may judge by the enthusiasm displayed. Mr. Johnnie Hanson knows his Dickens, his make-up in a "Sairey Gamp" part being extraordinarily amusing. "Sarah Stinger," indeed, was one of the hits of the afternoon, and the house fairly rocked with hilarity.

During the afternoon Mr. Lennox Barry announced from the stage that the entertainment had realised £25, which would be handed to Dr. A. S. Gordon, who would act as hon. treasurer. He cordially thanked all the artists who had so unselfishly given their services in a good cause.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

It seldom happens in the experience of a manager that he is compelled to close the doors of his theatre as the only means of keeping would-be patrons out, but this was the experience of Mr. Arthur J. Barclay at the second house here on Monday night. When the "first house" audience with difficulty made their way into the street, it was only to find the surrounding thoroughfares filled with a surging throng waiting to get in for the second performance. The result was, as has been hinted, that very shortly after the doors were opened for the second house, they had to be closed again, as neither Mr. Barclay nor Mr. Slatter, strive as they would, could find another inch of standing-room for the crowd of applicants, and hundreds had to go way disappointed. The regular bill presented is in itself sufficient to ensure good business, but to this must be added the fact that a five-nights' ticket-benefit in aid of a deserving local charity helped to swell the numbers. One of the most attractive features of the programme this week is the welcome reappearance of Miss Victoria Monks, whose handsome presence, exquisite costumes, and sparkling gems are only eclipsed by her brilliant talents. Miss Monks sings delightfully of "London Town," and is no less successful in imitating the bona-fide "coon"; she is recalled three times. Miss Daisy James, looking younger and more sprightly than ever, sings her latest success, "Tell me, Jane," as only she can sing it, and afterwards gives her smart imitation of "The Gibson Girl." Miss Aline Sudbury is a pretty lady in pretty frocks. Her voice is good and her manner charming. The Three Prestons—two gentlemen and a lady—are very amusing in their absurdity, The Lift Man's Rise, keeping the audience in a constant state of merriment, and concluding with a bewildering dance. Mr. John Lawson and his company appear in one of their latest successes, The King's Minister. This intense little drama, written by Mr. Cecil Raleigh, may not afford Mr. Lawson so many opportunities as some of those with which his name is associated, but he presents a vivid picture of the Jewish Prime Minister. Miss Cissie Lawson is charming as the Minister's daughter, Muriel. The gentleman who plays "the villain of the piece" is also good. The mounting of the sketch leaves nothing to be desired. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents some new and attractive pictures. In honour of the philanthropic society which "benefits" this week a host of "extra turns" are forthcoming. Master George Phillips (late of Park's Eton Boys) sings delightfully, and proves himself an expert dancer. Mr. Leslie Gordon is the possessor of a fine baritone voice, used with great effect. Miss Elsie Croft, a charming young singer, appears in a new musical scena, "The Basket of Flowers." A poor flower-girl, thanks to the discovery of a locket, finds herself heiress to a fortune, and is translated to Park Lane. Miss Croft sings admirably, and acts with a rare amount of intelligence. Many other "turns" appear during the week.

"THE WOMAN WHO WAS."

A New Sketch, in One Scene, by Harry Pleon, Produced for the First Time in London at the Oxford Music Hall on Monday, Sept. 24.

Adam Fair ..... MR. ARTHUR ROBERTS
Lord Boodle ..... MR. CHRIS BURN
Don Asbestos ..... MR. S. DAMERELL
Fewkey ..... MR. HUDDLESTON
Lizette ..... MLLE. ANDRÉE CORDAY
Lady Boodle ..... MISS FRANCES DARLEY
Diana Chetwynd ..... MISS BURGWITZ
Bella ..... MISS CORA PLEON
Mme. Elise ..... MISS RUBY CELESTE

The Woman Who Was, which was produced on the 17th inst. at the Brighton Hippodrome, is a sketch that quite fulfils its purpose, inasmuch as the leading character affords Mr. Arthur Roberts abundant opportunities for the display of his quaint humour as a comedian. Adam Fair is a chauffeur whose fondness for a flirtation places him in an exceedingly awkward position. While on the Continent he has made ardent love to a charming French dancer named Lizette, who treats the matter seriously, and follows her fickle admirer to England. Discovering that the French girl is close upon his heels, Adam seeks refuge in a West-end shop, the manageress of which is a certain Mme. Elise, and, having explained his predicament, implores that lady to provide him with a temporary place of concealment. Madame suggests that he shall impersonate her new assistant, Miss McGinty, and Adam thereupon hastily disguises himself as the young lady, thus baffling the French maid, who is in pursuit of him. As one may readily suppose, a number of amusing complications follow. Lord Boodle, a director of the company owning the "Bon Marché," puts in an appearance, and has something to say to the supposed assistant, who is also called upon to measure a lady customer, Miss Diana Chetwynd, for a new dress. The entrance of Lizette, accompanied by her father, Don Asbestos, and both swearing to be revenged on the false Englishman who courted the young lady, does not tend to Adam's peace of mind. Moreover, Lizette, whose suspicions have been aroused, warns her father to keep an eye upon Miss McGinty. Lord Boodle again enters, and is induced to exchange clothes with the new assistant, she explaining that it is early-closing day, and the shop girls would enjoy a little fun and frolic. No sooner, however, has his lordship put on feminine garb than he encounters his wife, Lady Boodle. Lizette and her father also put in an appearance, and demand to know where Adam Fair is to be found. Eventually, Lizette penetrates Adam's disguise, and calls upon him to fight a duel with her father, the alternative being self-destruction by a pistol shot; but the would-be suicide escapes death through his bad marksmanship.

Mr. Arthur Roberts, in the character of the supposed lady shop assistant, is exceedingly funny, and Miss Ruby Celeste as Mme. Elise cleverly co-operates in the scheme of amusement. Mr. Chris Burn supplies a capital sketch of Lord Boodle; Mr. S. Damerell is good as the truculent Don Asbestos; and Mr. Huddleston is well placed as Fewkey. Mlle. Andrée Corday scores in the rôle of Lizette; Miss Frances Darley plays excellently as Lady Boodle; Miss Burgwitz is successful as Diana Chetwynd; and Miss Cora Pleon as Bella completes the cast.

WOODHOUSE FEAST finishes the Leeds round, and in the same way the Manchester suburban round of fairs comes to an end at Altrincham this week. All the great concerns are making for the big round of back-end fairs, which includes Birmingham, Nottingham, Leicester, and Hull. We are also at the commencement of the autumn hiring fairs, known as "statties" in the Northern counties, and as "mops" in the Midland, Western, and Southern counties. The word "statties" is a corruption of "Statutes," fairs held primarily for the hiring of servants, and in all cases accompanied by holidays and a pleasure fair. According to the best authorities, the singular term "mop" is derived from the word "mappa," and the story connected with it is that the Roman Emperors, as the signal for the sports and carnival to begin, dropped a napkin, the "mappa." It is interesting to remember that in our village sports to this day it is usual to drop a handkerchief or a small white banner as the signal for the races or sports to begin. Anyhow, from "mappa" we are said to have derived our word "mop," which of course is merely local patois for "hirings," or statutory fair.

THE most celebrated of these mops are those at Gloucester, Stratford, Warwick, Burton-on-Trent, Banbury, and Woodstock, and the Northern hirings include important centres like Pontefract, Wetherby, Malton, Driffield, and York. It is somewhat the fashion to lament the supposed decadence of these hiring fairs, but it is nearer the truth to say that in the great agricultural centres they still serve a very useful purpose under modern conditions, and in these districts no self-respecting servant would think of renewing a contract of continued service without the all too short spell of freedom and pleasure afforded by the mop, or hiring fair.

WE have a note of considerable alarm for Lancashire show-people. The Darwen Corporation General Purposes Committee have determined to recommend drastic regulations with regard to Darwen Fair, held on the market ground during the July holidays. We hear that it has been resolved to exclude from the fair-ground steam and other power organs, and in the second place to close the fair at eleven o'clock at night. In a matter so important it is obvious that the Showmen's Guild and other trade societies in the fair-ground business will have something to say, and however legal the Markets Committee may be in this restriction of music, there is no doubt whatever that they have no power without an Act of Parliament to close the fair at eleven o'clock at night. A number of corporations in recent Private Bill legislation have sought power to do this, but in every instance the clause has been thrown out. The question, it will be remembered, was first raised by the Corporation of Mansfield, and after full argument before the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons the Corporation lost the day, and it was decided (and has been held so ever since) that the ordinary law of the land as regards hours of opening or closing business is the same for the travelling showman as for the regular fixed shopkeeper or market trader. The justice of this is so obvious that we feel sure it only needs to be brought home to the Town Council of Darwen, and they will not attempt any unfair interference with their showman tenants at the time of the fair.

ILKLEY FEAST was, as regards its open-air amusements, under the capable management of Mr. Waddington, the well-known Yorkshire caterer, who provided gondolas, high-fliers, swings, shooting concerns, and other varieties.

WOODHOUSE FEAST caters for an entirely different crowd of people than that that resorts to Holbeck crowd of people from that which resorts to Holbeck pre-eminently a well-to-do middle-class suburb, and yet, although socially the Woodhouse crowd differs from the Holbeck patrons of the world of shows, it is none the less a popular and well-patronised fair. The principal shows at Woodhouse we have already mentioned as being at Holbeck; and other fairs on this round include Chipperfield's menagerie; Monte Bros.' and Testo's cinematographs; Rhodes' Theatre Royal; Professor Gibson, Hastings, Westray, Priest; the wrestling ladies; Murphy's, Howden's, Relph and Pedley's, Hamilton's, Collings', Waddington's, Corrigan's, Redfern's, Hughes's, and Johnson's machines, great and small; Thomson, Cutler, Jameson, Dobson, Houldsworth, Powell, Crowther, Baines, Illingworth, and some seventy other Yorkshire caterers and stallholders.

AT High Wycombe the Michaelmas Hiring Fair in the ancient market-place attracted an immense gathering from all parts of the county. It is about the oldest and largest fair of its sort in the country. Shepherds appeared with tufts of wool in their hair, while ploughmen sported knots of horse-hair and whipcord in their caps and buttonholes, proud of their distinctive callings. There was no dearth of farm servants, and the supply was much larger than the demand. The shows and fair-ground novelties included the best concerns on the metropolitan district and southern rounds, and all did excellent business.

AT Whichford Wake were Forrests' roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, &c.

AT the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, this week the attractions are Mr. C. Herbert's roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, cokernut sheets, and other amusements.

THE principal agricultural shows and horse and cattle fairs for October:—Brough Hill (Westmorland) and Alnwick, on the 1st; Downton (Wilts.), Lambourn, Retford, Thurles and Ballinasloe (Ireland), on the 2nd; Preston, Clonmel, and Peterborough on the 3rd; Huddersfield, Macclesfield, Yarnboro' Castle, Armagh, Blandford, Chester, Epworth (Lincs.), Nottingham, and Ripon, on the 4th; Wibsey (Bradford), Oakham, Chatteris (Cambs.), and Moy, on the 5th; Corby, Glastonbury, Grimsby, St. Ives (Hunts.), and Falkirk Tryst, on the 8th; Bingley, on the 9th; Weyhill, Drogheda, and Worksop, on the 10th; Barnsley, Hull, Malton, and Leicester, on the 11th; Banbury, Leyburn, Caistor (Lincs.), and Alston (Cumb.), on the 12th; Farningham (Kent), Luton, and Sherborne, on the 15th; Thrapston, on the 16th; Donington (Lincs.), Maidstone, Market Harboro', Knaresboro', Leek, Royston, and Partney, on the 17th; Yarm, on the 18th; Wooler, Ashborne, Brampton, and Lincoln, on the 19th; Rugeley and Rugby, on the 22nd; Ripley, Stockport, Winchester, and Ashford (Kent), on the 23rd; Gravesend, Melton Mowbray, East Ilsley, Stow-on-the-Wold, and Gainsborough, on the 24th; Clitheroe, Dorchester, Brampton (Devon), Bourne, Clones, Ely, and Limerick, on the 25th; Grantham, Warminster, Salisbury, Louth, and Tonbridge, on the 26th; Kirkby Stephen and Horncastle, on the 27th; Burton-on-Trent and Morpeth, on the 29th; Newcastle, on the 31st.

MR. TOM GREEN, who is so well known for his picture productions, in addition to turning out new sensations for the Walturdaw Co. and Gaumont and Co. has just finished one of the longest comics yet seen, 1000ft., for the well-known firm of Cricks and Sharp, and is still busy at his studio at Croydon.

LORD JOHN SANGER'S hippodrome and menagerie paid a visit to Bromley, Kent, on Saturday last, and gave two successful performances. Among the items of the programme were Zampo, the bounding wonder; M. Roberts, Continental jockey; Pimpo and his performing dogs; the pony with the human brain; Miss Lina, with her educated horse; and Sanger's famous troupe of elephants.

THE showmen at Gloucester, through Mr. Jacob Studt, the lessee of the Corporation fairground, have sent an urgent request to the Rev. T. Horne to address a Guild meeting there on Sunday next. (See announcement in our advertisement columns.) This Mr. Horne has promised to do. Will all showmen on the Gloucester Round make a point of attending this big rally in support of trade organisation and defence.

THE Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union will hold its annual Nottingham Fair meeting on the fair, Thursday.

GUILD SUBSCRIPTIONS, 1906.—Per Mr. Mitchell: P. Knowles, Esq., Accrington, £1 1s.; J. D. Humphries, Esq., 5s.; per Mr. Cornwell: J. Bleackley, Esq., 10s.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. B. A. (Crediton).—Our advice to you is that you curb for the present your desire for the life of the road. Wait until the circumstances of your home life make it possible for you to go forward undeterred by duties and responsibilities, which we cannot advise you to ignore.

J. MILLER (Blackburn).—We thank you for newspaper cutting, and notice with pleasure that you are again to the front as local champion of showmen's rights.

WEEK-END golfers are offered special facilities by the Great Eastern Railway for visiting, during the autumn months the fine and exhilarating links which follow the line of the Essex, Suffolk, and Norfolk coasts. During October, first and third-class restaurant-car accommodation will be provided on the train leaving Liverpool-street at 1.30 p.m. for Felixstowe, Lowestoft, Yarmouth, Mundesley, Sheringham, and Cromer. For those who are desirous of returning on Sunday evening table d'hôte dinner will be served on the train leaving Cromer at 5.45 p.m., with which, trains leaving Yarmouth at 5 p.m. and Lowestoft at 5.8 p.m., will connect at Ipswich, and trains from Clacton and Frinton at 7.16 p.m. will connect at Colchester. Express dining-car trains will also leave Liverpool-street daily for Cromer, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Felixstowe, Hunstanton (and on Fridays to Sheringham), breakfast-cars being run on the morning expresses to London from the same resorts. The principal towns in the Eastern Counties, including Norwich, Ipswich, Lynn, and Cambridge, are also served by the restaurant and dining-car trains. These facilities will enable the railway journey, both going and returning, to be accomplished with the maximum of comfort in minimum time, and will, it is anticipated, attract a goodly company of golfers to the East Anglian links.

BIRMINGHAM GREAT ONION FAIR.

It is a curious and interesting historical fact that the ancient fair rights of Birmingham, secured by Royal charter, still remain, although since 1875 no facilities have been accorded by the Corporation for the due enjoyment of those rights. The charter provides for the holding of two fairs, one within the high festival of Whitsun, and the other during the festival of St. Michael and All Angels, commonly called Michaelmas. In the days of its ancient glory as a big market as well as pleasure fair it obtained its name, "the Great Onion Fair," from the fact that it was the biggest centre for the sale of onions in the United Kingdom. The Michaelmas Fair was changed to the last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in September, in order not to clash with the date of the Birmingham Musical Festival. Like many another historic fair, it was not under the control of the Corporation until recent years; in fact, it was a little over half a century ago that Birmingham obtained control of the fairs. It was a manorial right and source of revenue to the Lords of the Manor, whose agents, the officers of the Court Leet, the high and the low bailiffs, managed the fairs and drew the tolls.

The pomp and ceremony of proclaiming the fair at certain stopping-places, and in accordance with the ancient civic ritual, is still well within memory of old inhabitants of the Midland capital. The officers of the Court, the bailiffs of the manor, the town crier, with a band of music, perambulated the principal streets, and with these officials went the prominent men of the town. The fair was proclaimed in the Bull Ring, New-street, Dale End, Smithfield Market, and Jamaica-row, and well within the centre of the town, as indicated by these thoroughfares, the fair was held. The ceremonial of proclaiming the fair meant the declaiming by the town crier, from the words of the charter, the fair rights and franchises of the people of Birmingham, as well as the Lord of the Manor, to hold a "mercate" or fair. The various steps taken by the Puritanical majority on the Council to do away with the fair were cunningly arranged and carried out. No attempt was made to obtain the consent of the people or to exercise the statutory powers of the Abolition of Fairs Act, for this reason—that to do so would involve an appeal to the people and a vote being taken for or against abolition. The Puritans remembered that any appeal to the people would defeat their purpose, and so they began to curtail the ground space and to diminish the facilities for holding the fair. Originally the fair could extend itself through the Bull Ring, the lower part of Bull-street, the whole of High-street, part of New-street, Dale End, Digbeth, Allison-street, Spicehall-street, Jamaica-row, and the whole of Smithfield. Their first step was to limit the fair ground to the Bull Ring, Smithfield Market, and the upper part of Digbeth. This was in the year 1860. Then followed a series of still greater curtailment of the available ground, and in 1875 arbitrary decisions were made by the Borough Council—(1) not to let any Corporation ground for shows or exhibitions, and (2) not to allow the streets of the town to be used by stalls or temporary erections during the weeks of the fairs. The showmen of England in 1875 were without any cohesion or organisation. Right and left of them—as at Birmingham, so in other towns—fairs were being abolished by the arbitrary decision of local authorities, and the whole of the show business was at the mercy of any jack-in-office or elected person. It was fifteen years later, when the Puritanical crusade of George Smith and his allies compelled them to unite and defend their business and their character, that it became possible for the travelling showman to influence public opinion against the unwarrantable encroachments of public bodies.

From 1890 up to the present day every attempt of public bodies to interfere with the trade rights of showmen and the pleasure fair rights of the common people has been challenged by the Showmen's Guild, and almost without exception the fairs have been preserved, and, in some instances, improved by the mutual effort of both showmen and corporations. Birmingham has many associations with the historic past of British shows. Mme. Tussaud's waxworks were exhibited in Birmingham in 1813, at the Shakespeare Tavern in New-street, and here again she came in 1822. Ryan, with his circus, held the fair in 1815 on the Old Moat Ground, now the City Market, for the Whitsun week fair, and with him on the ground were Haddock's mechanical exhibition, Ingleby, the magician, with conjuring booth, Cartwright's scientific show, the philosophical fireworks and musical glasses, with many other novelties and entertainments of a smaller kind. We have a memory of a visit to Birmingham Fair in the early sixties, before the era of steam-driven machines. The shows included Wombwell's menagerie, Newsome's circus, Holden's glass-blowing, Chapman's performing birds, Buckley's walk-up van, Ewen's waxworks, and the usual attendant throng of fair-ground novelties. But, to come to modern times, it is no exaggeration to say that Birmingham Great Onion Fair is dearer than ever to the hearts of the people, and that the attempt to abolish it without consulting the wishes of the people has only resulted in creating a strong public opinion in its favour.

The men to gauge the strength of that public opinion, and to provide for its full gratification, were Messrs. P. and J. Collins, who very soon secured an admirable fair-ground, called the Old Pleck. Upon this site, near to where the people dwell in their thousands—in fact, at their very door—the fair is set out, under the personal supervision of Messrs. Collins and their expert staff of managers. Thus, whilst Smithfield Market, the Bull Ring, and Dale-street, are bright no more with the interesting array of the fair, the Old Pleck rejoices in the glory, pomp, and magnificence of one of the best-ordered fairs in the world. When we paid our visit to Birmingham there was no doubt as to the trend of the vast crowds emptied into every railway station on pleasure bent. Every tram-car going to the Old Pleck was loaded. No distance ever daunts a British crowd in search of a fair, so

"Hey-ho, and away we go."

So sang the ballad-monger in the olden time. As we left the car at the nearest point to the fair-ground, and entered the great avenue leading to the fair, we found ourselves carried along in the surging crowd making for the goal of its ambition, and speedily we were in the throng of the fair. Oh! the swing and joy of it, the magnetism of its thousand-and-one attractions, the extraordinary blend of much music, the bright and varying effects; for all the gold there did glitter. The show fronts in a blaze of electric light, whirling gondolas, undulating Japanese airships, ascending switchbacks, rampant horses, careering cockerels, flying ostriches, racing ponies, motor-cars, great and small, and the other mechanical and ingenious contrivances, and all available for the nimble penny. The shows numbered ten in the front rank, and included cinématographs, variety theatres, circuses, menageries, freak and novelty booths, conjurers, and the inevitable boxing booth. Fifteen to twenty machines, little and big; swings, shooting galleries, photo. booths and vans, and literally miles of stalls and throwing games—such is Birmingham Great Onion Fair, and, comparing the ancient with the modern, it demonstrates the too often forgotten fact that, at any one of our great fairs, like Birmingham, Nottingham, or Hull, there are more shows in number alone, without regard to value, than could have been found in the whole of the United Kingdom sixty years ago. That, we take it, is the answer direct to the ignorant talk that sometimes one hears of the decay of British fairs, and that showmen are, in their business matters, out of date.

A COUNTRY RECTOR ON TRAVELLING THEATRES.

The Rev. F. J. Metcalfe, Rector of Killamarsh, near Sheffield, has kindly consented to act as hon. local chaplain to the Showmen's Guild.

For some years past the reverend gentleman has held a service on the fair-ground at the time of the annual feast. This, as rector of the parish, he, good man, regarded as but part of his ordinary work. This year, however, the press agencies got hold of the interesting and (to them) novel fact that a parson had the platform of a switchback as a pulpit, and had led the prayers and praises of the people on a fair-ground.

Mr. Metcalfe is a man of wide sympathies, and in the truest sense a priest of generous mind and broad views. His book, recently published, "Colliers and I," is a storehouse of "live" experiences. Thirty years and more in one centre of throbbing life either makes or mars a man. That Mr. Metcalfe has realised how to minister to the sons and daughters of toil is fully shown in the deeply interesting chronicle of his work amongst the colliery folk of his Derbyshire parish. The chapter on theatres—especially the portable theatre—is of immense interest to a considerable class of people, and in these days of rapid transition, when the portable coliseum and the empire of varieties penetrates in districts where there are, and cannot be for many years yet, permanent theatres or variety halls, the attitude of the local clergy and the leaders of the people is of the utmost importance.

We may safely take Mr. Metcalfe as an example of the better mind now animating the clergy with regard to the necessary amusement of the people. Speaking of theatres in general he says:—

"In my younger days I was taught to look upon these places as bad and harmful; in fact, I own to have been somewhat bigoted in this matter; and it was only by very slow degrees that my opinions began to alter, until at last I gave my name to patronise the very places that I had often fined my boys for attending.

"I began by slowly realising that the desire to see, and the power to appreciate, acting and mimicry was universal, and natural to all nations and peoples, whether religious or otherwise.

"The desire is found in the youngest of children; the child who cannot act or imitate is of weak intellect, and will never make its way in the world. Then again, I thought that the highest development of intellect finds, and has always found, its climax in the writing and interpretation of the drama.

"The man who reads, recites, preaches, or sings without dramatic effect in tone, eye, hand, or posture is a duffer, powerless to elevate or move his audience for want of inward fire. The working men—above all, colliers—cannot be moved by the deeply thought-out essays or the discourse of polished English, however beautifully read from a manuscript.

"This power of living representation is a tremendous gift of God; but it is, as all such brilliant gifts are, a very sharp-edged tool.

"Greeks and Latins of old, each in their time and place, moved the world, and still do move thousands, by the God-given powers of their great and celebrated dramatists.

"What would the histories of the world and the nation be unless they were filled by living interest? Merely exploded volcanic craters. It is the power of the imagination in the reader that fills every ode, every chapter, every hill and valley, every plain, every rock and lane, the sea coast, the mountains, with the living forms of the gods, the heroes, the armies, the fishermen, the pastoral shepherds, the maidens, and the swains described therein.

"Now turn to Holy Scripture: it is full of dramatic expression. I have heard the finding of Ahab by Elijah read in the sanctified, assumed nasal twang of the sixteenth century without being the slightest degree moved; and, on the other hand, I have hardly been able to sit still for thrilling when I have heard the same passage read by my father. May I here venture to say that I believe anyone desiring to learn how to move and be moved would find their time well and profitably spent in the study of George Adam Smith's book on 'Isaiah'? Every page, every line, will thrill him as if all were really enacted in his sight. See also the 'Song of Solomon,' as set forth in Jeremy Taylor's 'Marriage Ring.'

"To condemn the drama, then, is simply to condemn the best literature of the cultured and civilised world, and one of the highest gifts God has given to man. This overwhelming desire and power cannot be suppressed unless you can suppress the almighty himself. After a graphic and dramatic scene, did not our Saviour say 'Go thou and do likewise'?

"What cannot be suppressed can be directed. Under direction its power for good is seen, as at Oberammergau. Its power for moral force is seen in the representation of Shakespeare and the best of modern playwriters.

"Its influence for evil is seen most in houses condemned by severe public criticism.

"To condemn and ostracise the whole profession and its work has the effect of driving it out of cultivation, until it becomes a weed of evil and deadly influence. Many actors, both great and small, have been good men, good citizens, and religious withal.

"Queen Victoria was always a great patron of the drama up to the end of her life. She showed how to deal with the matter by inviting the most worthy companies to act before her; and she, above all people, would not encourage anything immoral. Her life is held up to her subjects as a model and example by even those who have most bitterly condemned the theatre. How they explain their inconsistent position I fail to see. The Queen took much delight in ballet dancing—i.e. acting without words—and had the most famous dancer of the day as a teacher for her Royal children.

"The strict attention and severe strain which their profession makes on actors entirely precludes the idea of more immorality than is common to outsiders.

"Sin in the boxes, dress circles, pit, and galleries ought not to be accounted to the stage.

"In the beautiful forms of a nude figure in pure marble there is no sin; no suggestion of sin; no copy of sin. The sin, if sin there be, is in the man who gazes, and excites his lust rather than glorifies his God as the Creator of purity and beauty."

In the same chapter he gives his own experience with regard to portable theatres. We reproduce it with great pleasure as being of that wisdom that contact with life as it is brings to the man of God.

"The country parson's attitude of dragooning the unpretending theatre, when it comes to his parish, has simply the effect of driving immorality deeper down—i.e., from the theatre to the music hall, thence to the publics, street corners, and chip shops. But more of these anon.

"Driven objects of attack always sink lower and lower, making cure more difficult, and open fresh fields of temptation."

Travelling theatres (in which I am much interested) are what we make them. Respectable folk and their denunciations ruin all. "I wouldn't be seen in such a place," say they. No, they prefer refined vice.

"In both the places in which I have worked as priest I have found these theatre people most thankful to be helped to raise the tone of their performances. They have welcomed the assistance of our bands and patronage. At both places the proprietors used to come and ask us to name some play we should like to see. I have paid a 'pop visit' several times, and only once did I hear a questionable song. When it was over, I jumped up on the stage, and, addressing the audience, I said, 'I am going to ask the manager a favour, and I am sure you will all approve; I am going to ask him not to allow such songs as the last to be sung any more while they stay here.' The effect was wonderful—on players and people; and I never had occasion to speak again, though, after that, I was often invited by the proprietor to address the people from the stage, which I was pleased to do, sometimes acting a little play on my own account, and, though I say it myself, bringing down the house. One night, after I had been playing the fool a bit, the manager said to the audience, 'The reverend gentleman is the only performer who has succeeded in obtaining an encore to-night. Should misfortune ever overtake him, he need have no fear of not getting a living, for I will give him a good salary to be my comedian.' During the visit of one of these theatres, the clog-dancer and singer, after one of his performances, was taken very ill. I was away from home, but came at once on receipt of a telegram. When I got home, the poor fellow was unconscious in bed; the theatre people stood weeping around. I held a short commendatory service; the poor fellow passed away, and I buried him. On the following Monday night I went to the theatre, and, addressing the audience, I said: 'Now then, you fellows don't often give anything to anyone; now is your chance to do a good action, and I know you will do it. See, here's my hat; pass it round, and give something for this poor widow and her three children.' The hat went round, and I had the pleasure of giving the woman before them all £4 all but a shilling or two.

"Some twelve months after this the proprietor himself died suddenly, and though the theatre was some miles away in Nottingham, I was sent for and asked to take the funeral, which I did in the Mansfield Cemetery. The following is a copy of a letter I received from the stage-manager a few days after:—

'Queen's Theatre,
'Sutton-in-Ashfield,
'April 17, 1901.

'MR. METCALFE,

'DEAR SIR,—Allow me to thank you on behalf of the Queen's Theatre company for your most thoughtful and sympathetic letter to them in their bereavement, which I had the pleasure of reading to them this morning. I can assure you I can find no words strong enough to express to you our gratitude for the kindly feeling which prompted such an action on your part, and can only say that the kind wishes expressed by you are thoroughly reciprocated by them. We have also to thank you for officiating at our late manager's funeral, and hope that you will feel no ill effects from the inclemency of the weather. It is such actions as these that tend to give us better thoughts, and, I trust, induce us to think more seriously of religion, by letting the poor players know that there is at least one clergyman who respects them—and in his heart. If it would not inconvenience you, Mrs. Bates's family and company would be pleased to see you here in Sutton on Monday next, the 22nd inst. If in your power to come, would you kindly let me know? And your presence will be welcome to all, and to none more so than—Yours respectfully,

'ALF SANDERS, Stage-Manager.'"

We have one great hope, and that is that, through the action of the Showman's Guild, all good men and true, whether clergy or lay-folk, will be drawn together by the common desire of showing fellowship (as Mr. Metcalfe and others like-minded are now doing in increasing numbers) with the travelling entertainers of the people.

MR. JOHN LAWSON INJUNCTED

In the Vacation Court on Wednesday, before Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane, was heard the case of the Canterbury and Paragon (Limited) v. Lawson.

This was a motion to continue an injunction, granted on Monday, restraining the defendant, John Lawson, his servants, employees, and agents, from performing or taking part in a performance of any description at the London, Shoreditch.

Mr. J. F. Carr appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. W. H. Draper for the defendant.

The plaintiffs were the proprietors of the Canterbury and Paragon, and the defendant was the well-known music hall artist, who performs with a troupe of assistants under the name of John Lawson and Co. By an agreement, dated Sept. 22, 1905, the defendant was engaged to perform at the above halls during four separate non-consecutive weeks, extending over a period of more than a year. In the agreement was a clause forbidding the defendant "prior to or during the fulfilment of this contract," to perform at, among other specified halls, the London, Shoreditch. In pursuance of this agreement he was bound to appear at the Paragon during the week beginning Nov. 12 next. In breach of this last clause the plaintiff, for the week commencing on Sept. 24 last, had engaged himself to fulfil a week's engagement at the London in a sketch, entitled Sally in our Alley. The London is situated within a mile of the Paragon, and it was stated by the plaintiffs that the defendant is "the great music hall artist in the East End of London," and that his performing at the London now would injure the receipts at the Paragon on Nov. 12. On behalf of the defendant it was said that the clause forbidding him to appear at the London was struck out in ink and initialled by Mr. G. Adney Payne, the managing-director of the plaintiff company.

Mr. Draper, on behalf of the defendant, submitted that the proper remedy was not injunction, but damages. He cited "Whitwood Chemical Company v. Hardman" (1891, 2 Ch., 416); and "Ehrman v. Bartholomew" (1898, 1 Ch., 671). There was a conflict of evidence as to the striking out of the prohibition clause, which it would be difficult for the learned Judge to decide. He submitted also that it was a hardship on the defendant that he should be prevented from earning a livelihood during the gaps by a contract which scattered four weeks' performances over a period of more than a year.

Mr. Carr pointed out that Mrs. Lawson, who transacted Mr. Lawson's business at times, in a letter dated Sept. 12 to Mr. Payne, said, "It is understood that the Cambridge and the London may be worked in the meantime." This was not consistent with the contention that defendant had a right to perform there. Leave to perform at the Cambridge, one of the prohibited halls, had been, in fact, granted. The real reason of the breach of the contract was that the proprietors of the London had offered the defendant a much higher salary than that given by the plaintiffs.

Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane said that the contract was quite clear. (His lordship read the above clause.) The defendant proposed to perform at the London Music Hall during this week. Mr. Payne had drawn his attention to the matter in a letter dated Sept. 20. The reply was a telegram beginning "Unkind," which was not consistent with the defendant's present contention. It was then contended that the contract was unreasonable. He could not say that when he observed that it was in a common form such as had been entered into by the defendant many times before. The injunction must be continued until the end of the week commencing Nov. 12 next.

"BURNING TO SING; or, SINGING TO BURN."

A Satire on the Methods of Grand Opera.
Music by Gustave Kerker, and Libretto by R. H. Burnside.
Produced at the Empire, on Monday, Sept. 24.

Mme. Marguerite Tremolini..MISS ANNA HICKISCH
Signor Eduardo Tremolini..MR. OTTLEY CRANSTON
Bill Jones .....MR. HENRY FRANKISS
Tomassini .....MR. T. TREMAYNE
Jim Higgins .....MR. N. MASON
Tom Harris .....MR. V. BOOTH

Mr. Gustave Kerker, the composer of the tuneful score of The Belle of New York, had a warm welcome on taking the conductor's seat at the Empire on Monday, when he directed the first performance of a really amusing satire on the methods of grand opera. The skit was originally designed for a "gambol" at the Lambs' Club, New York, the members of which world-known coterie have often extended the heartiest of welcomes to English actors and entertainers. It was suggested to Mr. Kerker by one of the "shepherds" that he should found the score of a musical comedy on selected airs of classic opera; but this meant too much research, and the composer therefore thought it would be quicker to compose an original work. The idea of the skit occurred one evening at a home musical party. Observing an alarming fire in the next thoroughfare, he kept his knowledge to himself, and the informal concert was continued, the ladies being saved from much fright. In Burning to Sing; or, Singing to Burn, the librettist introduces us immediately on the lifting of the curtain to a young married prima donna, who is occupying a bed-sitting room in the Hotel Pitz. Dressed in an elaborate peignoir, she pours out in roulades her sorrow and disappointment at the indifference of her husband, who at 4 a.m. still remains at his club. When at 4.5 a.m. he returns—singing rather hilariously and uncertainly—he brings with him a couple of long French loaves as a peace-offering to his neglected wife, who strikes him to the ground, but eventually forgives him in "accents sweet" and joins him in singing a love duet, an inevitable convention in grand opera. The skit becomes more hilarious with the arrival of Bill Jones, the page boy, who opens the door while at the same time requesting in agitato tones to be allowed to enter. He is not supposed to do so until the prima donna and her baritone husband have finished their second duet, "Let us see who can it be." When Bill is at length admitted, with the manager's compliments he gives them a polite message—a string of lengthy sentences set to music in the manner of grand opera recitative—that as the hotel is on fire they should make all reasonable haste and leave. Still singing, madame sits down to arrange her coiffure, and the signor, with a light-hearted air—in a double sense—commences to shave. Neither is in the slightest degree disturbed by the arrival of the hotel manager Tomassini, who in ponderous recitative enunciates his very strong opinion that it is time they should be going—an opinion that is strongly emphasised by the crumbling of the scorched walls, and the commencement of the destruction of the ceiling. But the departure cannot be made without a farewell—a long farewell (in song) to the furniture. They then hurriedly make for the door, but the wife returns for the canary—an incident that provokes a madrigal concerning the song of birds and spring's delights. When at last the door is reached the prima donna hurts her toe—another opportunity for a long concerted piece. Even when flames flash in at the door the quartet sit down calmly to cards. A couple of firemen come and leisurely move the furniture, and it is only when the streaming water from the hose begins to play upon the interior of the hotel that the operatically mad quartet seek—their umbrellas. When we take our leave of them they still seem to be enjoying a crescendo of jubilation.

The sketch is conceived throughout in the true spirit of parody, and the numbers—notwithstanding their absurdity—showed musicianly skill, a knowledge of part-writing, and a flow of melody that one naturally expects from so gifted a composer as Mr. Kerker. Miss Anna Hickisch sang with brio and enthusiasm, displaying no little humour; and Mr. Ottley Cranston, whose operatic training stands him in good stead, has a lively sense of fun, and was responsible for a capital sketch of the husband, his voice being of excellent quality, and giving considerable pleasure. Mr. Henry Frankiss cut a whimsical figure as the page-boy Bill Jones; and Mr. T. Tremayne was effective as the hotel proprietor.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

There is a perfect prodigality of good things in the bill here this week, and capital business is resulting. Leverto dances with wonderful agility, and lives up to his title as a "dancing marvel." A duologue, bearing the title of A Misunderstanding, afford Mr. Henry J. Corner and Miss Queenie Essex respective opportunities, each suspecting the other of madness. The duologue should, however, be played under its proper title—A Pair of Lunatics, if we mistake not. As usual at this house, the orchestral selections are always well done. This particularly applies to the excerpts this week; special mention may be made of The Toreador (Ivan Caryll), the band being ably conducted by Mr. F. R. Kinkee. As musical grotesques, Messrs. Barton and Franklin give an excellent show, their versatility with a number of musical instruments—including banjos, glasses, concertinas, &c.—being quite wonderful. Dashing Fanny Robina displays a remarkable vocal register, and her selection on "Contentment" was hugely enjoyed by the audience. A capital melologue, entitled Under the Maple Leaf, teemed with excitement and tragic situations; the sketch was capitally interpreted, chief honours going to the author, Mr. John Henderson, who, as the Scotch packman-carrier, Sandy Macfarlane, was admirable. Mr. Cyril Fairlie was quite a respectable villain, paradoxically; and the Troop Sergeant-Major was satisfactorily played by Mr. Charles Beckville. As the post-mistress of the lonely station among the Rockies Miss Millie Henderson filled the rôle with no little ability; Miss Florrie Cooper sang a pathetic ballad with much sweetness, and was applauded. The Walonells, a couple of comic gymnasts, caused considerable fun; while the Dandies, a clever company of artists, repeated their success in a mélange, entitled Song, Mirth, and Dance. The bioscopic scenes here are much appreciated, while Mr. Kay Draco keeps an ever-watchful eye on the comforts of his clientèle, and does much to enhance the popularity of the house.

"THE SCARECROW."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I saw in your last issue an announcement that a scarecrow song had just been written and accepted for publication. I have been singing a song on the same subject since the middle of April. The words are by A. E. Sidney Davis, and the music by Hermann Darewski, jun., and it has been so successful that I have to thank it greatly for securing two years on the Stoll tour, a good panto engagement, and a number of other contracts. If there has been any cribbing of ideas it has certainly not been on the part of the author and composer of my scarecrow song.—Yours truly,

BESSIE BUTT.

Ardwick Empire, Manchester, Sept. 26.

MR. CHARLES CORNELL, author and composer, after a critical operation at the Charing Cross Hospital, is now well on the road to recovery.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MISS WINIFRED WARD is featuring with much success, Will Hyde's latest chorus song, "My Houseboat Queen." This song is of the "free" order, and should be a great pantomime number. It has been secured for publication by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

MISS MARGUERITE BROADFOOTE will shortly produce a new march song—"Singapore"—by the composer of "Hiawatha." This is an ideal number for principal boys for pantomime, and already numerous permissions have been given by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, the chocolate-coloured Coon, has been singing with marked success his new song, "A Lonely Bachelor Coon." This worthy successor to that fine ditty, "My Havana Queen," of Gifford and Lawrance, is by H. F. Greenfield, and Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have already placed it on the market. The writer has just written another for Mr. Elliott and one for Mr. Frank Harwood.

THAT clever and consistent author and actor-vocalist, Mr. Herbert Shelley has, in conjunction with Stephen Philpot, written and composed a striking number in "The Old Oak Wall," which Mr. David Day is publishing. With a view to pantomime a special topical version has been prepared.

MR. TOM LEO has this week made his initial bow to Brixton audiences, and his "Too Lazy to Live" song has been greatly to their liking. The Simple Simons, the Page Boys, and especially the Idle Apprentices of pantomime, are already making this song as their own for Christmas use.

MR. FRED EARLE'S forthcoming comic song, entitled "Birdseed" is in the Press, having been secured for publication by Mr. David Day.

MISS ADA REEVE has scored a very big and artistic success at the Tivoli in a new Chinese scena, entitled Sansy Pansy Soo, written by Herbert Shelley, and composed by Ernest Bucalossi.

"THERE'S A MAN IN MANITOBA," Murphy and Lipton's wonderful march chorus-song, is gaining fresh admirers every day. Two of the best-known pantomime producers in the kingdom have spoken in the highest terms of this number, and the writers are being warmly congratulated by their brother authors and composers.

"RUN, RUN, YOU LITTLE ONES," the highly-successful "Sweep" song, written and composed by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, has this week been placed on the list of Francis and Day's "Sixpenny" edition.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD has just secured from Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton a comedy waltz song, which he will produce as soon as possible. Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have this number in the press.

MR. ERNEST SHAND has achieved a signal success at all his "turns" this week with Messrs. Harrington and Tate's comedy "Curate" song, "Oh, dearly beloved breth-er-en," and so great have already been the trade demands for this song that the publishers (the Monte Carlo Publishing Company) are pushing forward the publication of the number with all speed.

MISS EDIE KING has just accepted from Messrs. Harrington and Tate a new song, entitled "Let me show you," in which she will illustrate the distinctive dances of various nations.

MR. JOHN P. HARRINGTON has signalised his return to business by writing two remarkably quaint songs for Happy Fanny Fields, entitled: "Hello, Gretchen!" and "He Blow! Blow! Blow!" the melodies to which have been composed by Mr. Jas. W. Tate. So highly is the latter song thought of that it has been accepted for early inclusion in the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "Sixpenny Successes."

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have this week accepted from Mr. J. F. Lambe a charming new song, written and composed by him, entitled, "My Lily Love," which bids fair to rival this gifted author-composer's two great successes, "Widow Doolin" and "Queen of Old Samara," published by the same enterprising young firm.

MISS MARIE LLOYD'S latest comedy success, "Customs of the Country," by Harrington and Tate, is now in the press, and will be issued at an early date by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

MESSRS. NEWTON BUTTS and Herbert Rule have this week disposed of a striking new comedy song, entitled, "She Didn't Come from Borneo," to the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., the expert "song-placers," which go-ahead firm hope and expect great things of this highly-humorous and melodious number.

ONE of the songs in great request for pantomime is the new number which is being placed on the market by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, entitled "I want Molly, and she wants Me," by F. W. Leigh, whose "Molly, I love you" has proved such a hit everywhere.

A WELL-KNOWN humorist was marvelling recently how Mr. Lester Barrett managed to get his coat on and off at this time of the year, having in view the number of "good things" he usually has up his sleeve for the Christmas "annuals." Among them this year must be reckoned the coon song, entitled "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out," which that dainty artist Daisy Dormer has been singing in the provinces. The song is by Charles Collins.

MISS VICTORIA MONKS' latest acquisition is from the joint pens of Murphy and Lipton, and is named "Ain't the old place good enough for you?" Mr. David Day has secured the number.

HENRY E. PETHER, whose "I can see red roses blooming," written in conjunction with Fred W. Leigh, is acclaimed as one of the most charming ballads of the day, has just completed a number entitled "Mona's daughter (in the sweet Isle of Man)." This popular composer is now seeking inspiration in a new domicile in the neighbourhood of Harringay.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday evening a well-attended concert took place in the Central Hall. The Westminster Singers, consisting of Messrs. George May, Wilfrid Kearton, Bertram Mills, and W. H. Brereton, My Lady Sleeps" and other contributions equally rendered admirable service in the part-song "While commendable. Another number which called for meritorious recognition was that of "Tell Her I Love Her So," by Mr. Walter Hyde. The violin solos of Senor Jose Gomez called forth rapturous applause. Miss Esta D'Arco, who possesses a rich and cultured voice, won golden opinions by her renderings of "A Butterfly Song" and "If No One Ever Marries Me." No less successful was Miss Edna Thornton, who charmingly sang "The Ship that Sailed into the Sun," and "I Know a Lovely Garden." Mr. Charles Sullivan gave Irish songs, including "I Know of Two Bright Eyes" and "The Little Irish Girl." Mr. Bertram Mills and the Quartette, Misses Esta D'Arco and Edna Thornton, and Messrs. Charles Hyde and Charles Sullivan also deserve mention, and to the accompanist, Mr. G. D. Cunningham, is due unstinted praise for his untiring efforts in that capacity; his organ solo was also successful.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—GRAND.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Chas. R. Whittle, comedian, is a pronounced success here; the Three Laurels are clever tumblers; J. P. Ling, mimic, is applauded; Walter Monroe is still the same good old Irish comedian; Howard and Collinson, the British Quartette, Percy Mayer, and the pictures complete a good programme.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors Messrs. George and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—Sidney Bacon's comedy, The Duchess of Tooting, is the great draw this week, and is well played by the company. Atlas Nuicana, athletes, are applauded for their feats of strength; the Jalvans, oriental entertainers, the Five Olracs, acrobats, Paragon Trio, vocalists, Paulin Zaro, comedienne, Lily Sharplin, mimic, and the Fitzops, gymnasts, are also in the programme.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical-Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—The management are this week submitting an entire change of programme to their patrons, having engaged Mr. Herbert Darnley's vaudeville company. One of the most interesting items in a well-varied bill is Volcano, an Herculean athlete, whose feats of strength are marvellous; Nellie Gannon scores with her well-rendered patriotic songs; and Harry Wright makes a great hit with his songs, both artists being awarded unbounded applause. Lilian Sinado, a clever lady gymnast; and Peggy Fame, an accomplished comedy girl, are two enjoyable turns; while the Dunlops cause considerable laughter with their cycle performance. Marcus Boyle, comedian; Arthur Dornton, Doyle and Marney (dancers), the Chromo Bioscope, and two amusing sketches, entitled Moving In and Skirmishers, complete the bill.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY HALL.—Manager, Mr. F. Hughes.—Miss Maggie Morton's company paid a flying visit here on Saturday night with Life's Sweetest Sins, under the management of Mr. Fred Herman. Mr. Otto Minster, as Captain Harold Marston, gave a fine rendering of a difficult part; Mr. Dudley Wynton as Dr. Colebrooke made a polished villain; Mr. Ernest Turner as Bob Tanner and Mr. C. H. Brooke as Martin, with Miss Phyllis Esdaile as Bess Gregson, were responsible for some amusing comedy scenes; Mis Maud Burleigh was a decided success in the emotional part of Doreen Rivers, the heroine; Miss Mabel Liston as Fay Colbrooke, the doctor's daughter, gave a capital representation of the character.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. H. Armitage and Mr. Arthur Leigh's company opened a week's engagement on Monday with Leah Kleschna. In the name part Miss Bessie Rignold played with consummate ability; the Paul Sylvaine of Mr. William F. Grant was characterised by real feeling, restraint, and dignity; the Kleschna of Mr. Paul Belmore was an admirable embodiment, and Mr. Hamilton Deane portrayed the part of Raoul Berton with considerable discretion and talent; Mr. Max Alison as General Berton was good, and the Schran of Mr. Campbell Goldsmid was excellent.

PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—The season here concludes this week, and the popular Olmypian Entertainers are paying a return visit. Miss Doris Lee is an artist of attractive personality, and is repeatedly encored; Miss Haidee St. George also does well, and her talented singing is much appreciated; Mr. Philip Ritte has a tenor voice of exceptional power, and the applause with which he is received is fully merited; Miss Evelyn Keath's recitations are well received, and Mr. J. G. Taylor, an old favourite, causes general hilarity; Mr. Harry Harmer is heard to advantage in some new humorous songs, and Mr. Paul Mill is as popular as ever; Miss Flora Ledna is also a capable artist, and Mrs. Paul Mill is an accompanist of unusual ability.

TREHERBERT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole; Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—The first visit of At Duty's Call drew a crowded house on Monday, when the audience fully appreciated the efforts of Mr. John Gerant's capable company. Mr. Gerant gives a powerful and successful reading of the part of Harold Allison; Mr. Harry Scott deserves great credit for his impersonation of Captain George Allison; Mr. Ernest St. John makes the most of his opportunities as General Gordon; and Mr. Harry Ugar is thoroughly amusing as Terry O'Halloran. Jack Spencer is effectively represented by Mr. Walter P. Carr; Miss Lily Crammonde evinces marked ability in the part of Dora Drummond; Salema is charmingly played by Miss Beatrice Western; and Miss Eva Bell acquits herself well as Mary the maid. Able support is given by Mr. A. H. Harvey, Mr. J. T. Lewis, Mr. Harry Austin, Mr. Ivan Mavis, Miss L. Cleveland, and Miss Hetty Poplin.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt presented by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey's and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company, has had a successful three nights' season. The part of Lady Clarice was played with fascination and verve by Miss Gladys Mason; Mr. Reginald Darice gave a clever interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton made an excellent representation of the gallant colonel, whose faith in Lady Clarice is unshaken; and the other parts are undertaken with equal success.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr Lindon Travers.—Walter George's Smart Set Entertainers head the bill here, and are accorded a flattering reception; the Seven Savonas and Six Cycling Elliotts remain under engagement, and continue to please by their excellent and original turns; Miss Ruby Bijou is a smart and dainty dancer. There is also an excellent show of animated pictures.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—This week we have a visit from Mr. Alexander Loftus and company in the musical comedy, The New Barmaid. Mr. James Grant is well suited in the character of Colonel Claymore; the part of Bertie White finds a clever exponent in Mr. Charles Adeson; Mr. Alexander Loftus causes much merriment in his smart rendering of William White; and Mr. W. E. Chewd acquits himself well as the Frenchman. Mr. Michael Dwyer is a capable Captain Lovebury; Miss Amy Preston a fascinating Ethel Joy; Miss Maude Nichols a good Brenda Louth; Miss Violet Osmund is seen to advantage as Dora Heather; and Miss Winifred acts with dignity as Lady Moulton. Smart dancing is contributed by Misses May Hawthorne and Mona Grey.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Les Papillons, a quartette of charming lady vocalists and dancers, contribute a smart turn; Ariel and Astarte give a skilful gymnastic exhibition; Bert and Dora, comedy couple, win applause; Molly Doon is a dainty vocalist; Aldro Lukos, in a swinging perch act, merits favour; the Paulo Brothers, comedy acrobats, contribute successfully; and Will Daniels, comedian, is amusing.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A capital illusion is Buddha's Blackboard, which quite astonishes the audience; Frank Sylvo's comedy juggling is thoroughly enjoyed; Mona McDonald, comedienne, is most successful; Will Vokes, the loose-legged dancer, Linda Wasey, and the Three Sisters Kilner, comediennes and dancers, add greatly to the attraction of the programme. Roberts, Hayes, and Roberts in a singing and dancing act meet with a good reception. The pictures shown by the American Bioscope are very good.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is appearing here this week in Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Douglas Vigors makes a capital George Thornton; the Captain Darville of Mr. Edward McLean is in every way efficient; Mr. Lionel Ellis is well placed as Bill Mullins; Miss Valerie Crespin is successful as Marion Thornton; Miss Lucy Beaumont as Dick and Miss Gladys Vernon as Wally play their respective parts to the life; Mr. Frank Gordon and Mr. Gerald Valentine both do well as Dido Bounce and the Cough-drop.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company, including Mr. James Danvers and Miss Josephine Ellis, is here this week, in the comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. As Professor Septimus Stoney Mr. Danvers has ample scope to display his versatile powers as a comedian; Miss Josephine Ellis is a charming Gaye Sparkleton, acting vivaciously throughout; Mr. Edward Chester submits a clever sketch of Theocritus Ward Sparkleton; and the two undergraduates, George Barker and Albert Perrin, are well represented by Mr. R. Harley West and Mr. Roy Barraclough; Mr. Frank Lilliput as the diminutive college scout, is humour personified; Miss Nellie Parker Dent is well placed as Mrs. Barker; and Maud Stoney is well interpreted by Miss Beatrice Egerton; Miss Nellie Beacon is an excellent Eva Stoney. A pretty curtain-raiser, The Last Hour, precedes The Varsity Belle, and Messrs. Danvers and Warley West and the Misses Dent and Egerton score well.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Ike Scott and Son appear here again this week, in new business, and score well; Geoffreys and Benson are seen to advantage in the sketch Spoofed; Guf Rider is a sweet singer; and the Sisters Cora are refined dancers. Carr and Rose are a humorous pair; and Miss Rosie Archer is a clever mimic; J. H. Wakefield is an up-to-date coon; and the Royal Bioscope pictures are pleasing all.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Junius Booth's company in the costume play Monte Cristo is here this week. Mr. Junius Booth in the rôle of Edmund Dante gives an interesting interpretation, and is ably assisted by Mr. Leonard Marshall as M. Morel. As M. Nortier Mr. E. Howard Templeton makes a marked impression; whilst the important part of General Fernand Mondego is admirably rendered by Mr. C. W. Crowe. Baron Danglers finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Augustine Bowerman; Miss Emma Robberds is responsible for the portrayal of La Carconte; and as Mercedes Miss Clare Elston wins appreciative applause. A well-studied part is that of Sophie Danglers, successfully played by Miss Doris White.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's highly interesting drama, The Little Bread-Winner, is paying a visit here. Mr. Eugene Santley gives a clever impersonation of Lord William Dorrington; Mr. M. Boulton is good as Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice as Joseph Prior is excellent. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Allen Charles and Miss Nellie Thorn-Haliam, who work well, and keep the house in a good humour; Miss Mary Fulton is suitably placed in the character of Margaret Daventry. The success of the piece is the exceedingly smart and clever acting of Little Emmie Thomas as Meg, the little bread-winner; a word of praise must also be given to Miss Lissa Young for her artistic rendering of the somewhat difficult part of Bobby Trott.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvestor; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Mr. Tom Lloyd is highly successful as the star turn here; the quaint style of Jack Pleasants causes the audience much pleasure, and he well deserved the many encores accorded him; a clever turn is submitted by the Bros. O'Brien, horizontal bar experts; Halm and Cozens appear with great success; Yenton Swift contributes some clever dancing; Billy Ross and Co. give a good turn; and so does Miss Evelyn Taylor; Amasis, assisted by Iseult, submits a pleasing musical turn; and the latest pictures shown by lime have proved very interesting.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—A return visit is being paid this week by E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company in The Traitor. The principal rôles are filled by Mr. E. E. Clive, who deserves unreserved praise for his acting in the character of Prince Rudolph; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, who capitally fills the thankless but telling part of Chief of Police; Miss Catherine Vere, as Elsie Dupres; Miss Ruth Shepard, who gives a piece of most impressive acting as Zula; Miss Gwynne Warren, as Countess Zicka; Miss Isabel Hunt, who enlists sympathy as Lieut. Nicholas; Mr. T. W. Hurst, as Captain Ross; Mr. Ed. Duff, as General Franz; and Mr. Arthur McCulloch, as General Hertz.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Davis and Gledhill, roller champions, in a cycle and motor-paced sensation, are a great attraction; Stylo, hoop manipulator, gives an exhibition that is almost incredible; Gus Harris is at all times a popular turn, and his latest creation, The Synagogue, increases his popularity; Beatrice Bonnie pleases immensely: the eccentric comedy business of Harry Cotton is decidedly amusing. Considerable merriment is caused by the bull-fight introduced by the Two Bostons, novelty showmen; Helen Martin, vocalist, has a pretty voice, and her songs are much appreciated; Harry Walker, eccentric singer; and a new display of Bio-tableaux were also in the bill.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Lawrence Brough's company is on a return visit here this week in The Lady of Ostend and The Cruise of the Saucy Sally. The former was staged on Monday. Mr. Lawrence Brough gave a richly humorous and artistic impersonation of Le Baron de Longueville; Mr. H. Hampson rattled through the part of Dick Whortles to the delight of the audience; the Joseph Carbury of Mr. Charles Groves, jun., was a really good character study; Mr. Watkin Wynne made an excellent Toby Krockitt; Mr. H. Collier (John Humbert), Mr. Hewson Elliott (James), and Mr. H. Douglas Cottell (Thompson) all did good work in their respective parts; Miss Kate Milford looked charming, and gave a finished piece of acting as Dorothy Whortles. It would be difficult to speak too highly of Miss Bessie Harrison's Matilda Carbury; Millie Grace was delightfully portrayed by Miss Evelyn Ormonde, and Miss Daisy Cook was distinctly good as the Lady of Ostend; Jane found an able exponent in Miss Ida Vynall.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Jack Haddon and company are presenting the drama Under the Russian Flag here. Mr. Haddon is responsible for some powerful acting as Capt. Demetrius; Mr. Geo. Herbert gives a fine portrayal of General Romanoff, while his two sons, Michael and Ivan, are faithfully represented by Mr. Edward Avinal and Mr. C. Melton; Mr. Fred Haming is a comical Alexis Skopolophi; Mr. W. Wilson is an imposing Colonel Souvaroff; Mr. Hal Ford is responsible for an amusing embdiment of Peter Poulski; Mr. Chas. Liddon plays Wolf Larischla in capital style; Miss Elaine Vanburgh is a pleasing Vera Vassiloff; Miss Marie Raynor scores as Luke Marischla; Miss Violet Lytton is a vivacious Orgarita.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. J. Cassidy.—Miss Grace Warner, supported by Mr. G. Gordon and company, opened here on Monday with The Scarlet Clue, and the week's bill includes The Little Widow and My Artful Valet. Miss Grace Warner as Sal Scarlet proved that she is an actress of no mean ability; Mr. Geo. Gordon submitted a powerful portrayal of Michael Stanton; Mr. Reginald Brown in the dual rôles of Jack and Harry Esmond played in good style; Mr. S. Brien made a capital Edward Croker; Mr. Jack Clarence gave an imposing presentation of Sir Desmond Lisle; Mr. J. L. Leigh as Billy was responsible for some capital singing; Little Violet Palfrey was a clever Little Polly; Mr. Arthur Page, Mr. Edgar Bruce, Little Phyllis Massey, Miss Hilda Herne, Miss K. Kranston, Miss M. Stamer, Miss Mowbray, Miss Esther Dean, Mr. W. Bird, and Mr. Reynolds sustained their respective rôles in a creditable manner.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Clark.—A return visit is being paid here by Messrs. Chas. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company in the drama, The Blind Foundling. Mr. Chas. Phelps is earnest in the character of Gerald Dalton, and Mr. Frank Harvey is good as Parson Ray. Mr. A. G. Fry makes a capital villain, and Mr. Bernard Webb is dignified as Jasper Waterford. The comedy element is strong in the hands of Mr. Harry Tilbury as Dobbins, and Miss Millie Doris as Winnie, and Miss Mabel Hall is clever in the title-rôle. Miss Amy Dalby is pleasing as Viola, and Miss Belle Tilbury capably acts the thankless character of Isabel.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week we have here Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company in The Days of Cromwell. Mr. Henry Belding plays the part of Ironhand with much force; Mr. Robertson Foulis does capital work as Sir Marsden Mardyke, and Mr. Howard Hardy is equally capable in the part of Matthew; Mr. Jack C. Gray acts Walter Clifford with marked ability; Mr. Geo. P. Lester is a grim figure as the Protector; the Sir Wilfred Avondale of Mr. T. R. White is soundly played; Mr. Stephen Herbert is a typical host as Shadrack, and the Toby of Mr. Geo. Harvie is a piece of humorous characterisation; Miss Cecilia Crawford is an effective Mistress Judith; Miss Kate Brand an excellent Mrs. Shadwell, and Miss Annie Clunn as Betsy does well; Miss Gertrude Gilman in the difficult part of Ruby Avondale shows conspicuous ability.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—The members of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's principal company, in the successful musical comedy, Florodora, are renewing acquaintance with Wigan audiences this week. Tweedlepunch as represented by Mr. Alf E. Passmore is as humorous as ever, and Gilfain, played by Mr. Stanley White, is an admirable colleague of the punster. Mr. Allan Morris as Frank Abercoed gives an excellent rendering of the tenor solo, "In the Shade of the Palm," and Mr. Herbert St. John as Arthur Donegal creates a good impression. The part of Dolores is ably taken by Miss Josephine Sullivan; Miss Lily Cullick sings well as Angela Gilfain; and Miss Kate Leicester is also favourably received in the rôle of Lady Holyrood.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worsick.—Jack and Evelyn in their sketch, Cigarette Papers, are great favourites. Yamamoto and Miss Koyoshi are clever and daring Japanese equilibrists, and Mlle. Haydee's bijou theatre and miniature performing characters are a remarkably interesting and entertaining form of marionettes. The Tabloid Farce Comedy, The Collar Stud, as performed by four artists, is an original and amusing sketch, and Lily Lonsdale, who possesses a rich soprano voice of great range, is recalled for each of her songs. George Prince, comedian, is also very popular; "Lady Julia" is a cleverly trained monkey, which impersonates several characters; Ernie Myers is an acceptable patter comedian; Yorkshire Tom is a good farmyard mimic; and the Society Quartet are skilful singers and speciality dancers.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—The bright and attractive musical comedy The Cingalee is being played here this week by one of Mr. George Dance's excellent companies. Mr. Cyril Dane appears as Harry Vereker, and does full justice to the part. Mr. Helier C. Maistre is an excellent Boobhamba; Mr. Grafton Williams is seen to advantage as Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is a capable Bobby Warren; and Mr. Jack Crichton is a host in himself in his admirable impersonation of Chambhuddy Ram. Miss Georgina Middleton takes the part of Nanoya in excellent fashion; Miss Marjory Clark sings well and has a good stage presence as Lady Patricia Vane; and Miss Gladys Guy is a smart and charming Peggy Sabine.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The leading light here is Sam Mayo, comedian; while an attractive bill also includes Clown Barker; Miss Roziska, with performing animals; Conway and Garland; Alice Blandford; Pete and Juno, comedians and dancers; Violet Nunn, and Ossi Somplessi.

HIPPODROME.—The Marvellous Craggs, in their excellent sketch, Billy, head the bill this week. The programme also includes Hayman and Franklin, and other capital artists.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After an absence of several years, Mr. F. R. Benson has resumed his associations with the city by sending his entire North Shakespearean company upon a week's visit. A change of programme each evening has been provided, and an admirable selection of works has served to secure such a measure of support as it is hoped will lead Mr. Benson to personally visit the Theatre Royal at no distant date. The week's performances opened with Taming of the Shrew, and upon successive evenings the plays produced have been The Merchant of Venice Twelfth Night, Macbeth, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and Richard. The company is a capable one, and includes Mr. Hy. Herbert and Miss Dorothy Green, who are well-known in the provinces. Other members of the numerous company are Mr. Ross Shore, Mr. Gerald Ames, Mr. E. Spencer Geach, Miss Rosa Burgess, Miss Mary Webb, Miss Louise Graeme, &c.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday night Mr. Gilbert Payne and his company presented The Honeymoon to a large and appreciative audience. As Noodle, Mr. Payne's quaint humour and singing were delightful, and he was frequently applauded. Mr. John Hames as the Colonel was amusingly eruptive; Mr. L. Erle was pleasing as Jack; and Mr. Harry Farrow was lively as Archie; Miss Pattie Farley played and sang effectively as Madge; Miss Nellie Dyson was graceful as Stella. Her songs were tastefully rendered. Miss Rene Walton gave satisfaction as Emeretta; the Florentine Dancers were applauded

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company is here with The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Wallace G. Court gives a manly delineation of the character of Jack Frobisher; and Mr. Lionel Gadsden does well as Hankey Bannister. Mr. A. Collins-Rolfe is excellent as the Marquis of Steventon; and Mr. B. Martin Pellar is at home in the character of Harry Dallas. Too much praise cannot be allotted Miss Maud Stuart as Lady Alethes Frobisher; and Miss Bertha Frances is also excellent as Lady Lucy Derenham. The remaining characters are well enacted. On Thursday Mr. Lewis Waller's company appeared in Brigadier Gerrard.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week Mr. J. H. North, eccentric comedian, has paid a welcome return visit. Trick and Trixie, musical comedy artists, proved a big attraction; and Mr. Alf Chapell, coon vocalist and dancer; the Two Ogdens, comedians; and Miss Beattie Anthony, dancer; with the pictures, completed a good programme.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre. The Kellinos, who head the bill here this week, score a great success; Mr. Wm. McIvor is heartily applauded for his clever scena, Dreaming; Hess and Lisbon cause much amusement as trick skaters; Dale and Vale delight with their novel dancing; Kyoto is a good conjuror and clever contortionist; Mike Goldman scores with his humorous songs; Miss May Geraldine, comedienne and dancer, is well received; and Baffin and Lucas give a good musical turn. Some capital pictures by Payne's Bioscope complete the programme.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Miss Lillie Soutter is a great attraction this week, her success in character impersonations being most pronounced; Mr. Geo. D'Albert in some clever songs scores well

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK

THE POOR MOTHER.

A most dramatic and affecting story. The young child of a poor doting mother, looking out of the window from their little attic to watch the soldiers go by, falls out and is killed. The poor mother, distracted, takes to drink, and constantly sees visions of her child; finally dies in a hospital. Very pathetic.

354ft. The Subject £5 18s.

THE CAB.

The amusing encounter of two gentlemen hailing and entering a cab from different sides, finally a lady taking it. The two gentlemen again entering the cab, a restaurant scene, &c., are all part of this very effective film.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

A STRANGE MOUNT.

A horse stolen by a drunken man, and ridden by him in mistake to a racecourse, results in his winning the race, much to the disgust of the crowd assembled, who maltreat him.

148ft. The Subject £2 9s. 4d.

SURROUNDED BY GOLD.

Code Word, BROCHOIR.

A poor starving artist dreams that he is carried to a land where money abounds and only beautiful women reside, but wakes to find himself back in his old garret; then decides to hang himself. Surprised by his betrothed, who has sold her earrings to get him money, he finds that love and friendship are better than gold.

444ft. The Subject £7 8s.
Colouring, £3 8s. extra.

TRADE MARK

IN SEARCH OF ADVENTURES.

A story of one hundred years ago, in the busy war time. A young peasant is cajoled to join the army, leaves his sweetheart, gets wounded badly, dreams of his betrothed, and manages to return to her. Grand quality, beautiful scenery.

545ft. The Subject £9 1s. 8d.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

Monks spy on lovers, who do all in their power to get away from them. Finally the young man pours a bucket of water on the most obtrusive one. Wonderfully fine facial expressions.

198ft. The Subject £3 6s.
Colouring, 6s. 8d. extra.

VENGEANCE OF A LAWYER'S CLERK.

A joke played on a lawyer by his clerk results in the latter's dismissal. He in revenge puts an advertisement in the paper for cripples and blind folk to call on the solicitor, in quest of a fortune. They arrive in scores, with very amusing results.

180ft. The Subject £3.

TRAGIC WEDDING.

Code Word, BRULOIR.

A country scene. The young and pretty peasant girl, betrayed by the evil squire, is turned away from her house by her father. She is neglected by her lover, becomes poorer and poorer with her ailing baby child. The squire is going to be married again. The betrayed girl swears revenge, and kills him coming out of the porch of the church. Intensely dramatic and soul-stirring.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EXHIBITORS.

FURTHER STARTLING SUCCESSES.

ANOTHER STRIKING TESTIMONIAL.

STILL THEY COME.

THE CHRONOPHONE AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

An enthusiastic send off. The Chronophone is showing at the Olympia, Newcastle-on-Tyne, under the auspices of that well-known and charming manageress, Miss Audrey Appleby. It is well known that the Northener is a hard-headed cool business man, demanding full value for his money, and this fact when considered adds astounding weight to Miss Appleby's wire.

On the 25th inst., MISS APPLEBY wires us:—

NEW "OLARENDON" FILM.

No. 141. CAUGHT BY THE TIDE.

AN ORIGINAL SUBJECT. EXCITING AND SENSATIONAL. EXTREMELY COMIC.

Two lovers are surprised by the tide and make frantic efforts to escape. Others who come to their rescue are drawn into their predicament. At last they are drawn up the face of the cliff by means of a rope attached to the rear of a traction engine.

Length 305ft. Price £6 2s. 6d. net.

NEW "NORWOOD" FILMS.

No. 007. THE DOG DETECTIVE.

How a high-class English retriever saves the property of a bank and his master's life by his wonderful sagacity, which equals any human intelligence.

Length 730ft. Price £13 12. net.

No. 006. CHASER CHASED.

An original plot in which one man after another becomes a thief to catch another thief, which ends in a grand climax.

Length 235ft. Price £4 14s. net.

"ELGE" FILMS.

An Original Picture full of startling and exciting incidents.

No. 161. MODERN PIRATES.

Natural Scenery throughout.

The old pirates of the high seas are things of the past, but this remarkable film proves that pirates of the high road are things of the present. A motor car, apparently built for the purpose of pirateering, makes depredations on a private dwelling, seriously injuring those who try to prevent them. Police in a "car" rapidly get on the track of the depredators. The pirate car flies along country lanes, the pursuing car hot on the scent. Finding they are losing in the chase, the pirates lie in wait for the pursuers down a bye lane. When the police arrive at the place where they have lost the scent, out flies the pirate car, dashes into the police car, sending the police flying in all directions. Away the pirates dash through lanes and streams. An exciting finish comes with the pirate car dashing down a steep incline into a river, at the bottom of which it gets out of its depth, capsizes, explodes, and sinks; the pirates only just escaping with their lives.

Length 500ft. Price £10 net.

No. 513. HER MORNING DIP.

AN ENTIRELY NEW IDEA OF MUCH MIRTH AND MERRIMENT.

A beautiful damsel is escorted to the sea for her morning dip by a crowd of amorous young swains, who suffer a terrible mental shock upon beholding the object of their infatuation in bathing costume. Truly the change is remarkable, for from a winsome beauty with a dainty step and a Venus-like figure she has changed to a thin, gaunt-looking female of austere and repelling aspect.

Length 330ft. Price £6 12s. net.

No. 509. THE MASQUERADERS.

FUN AND FANCY RUNNING RIOT.

Lovers of clean, high-class fun will thoroughly appreciate the Masqueradors. Length 420ft. Price £8 8s. net.

No. 519. THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY.

A ROLLICKING "KID" COMEDY FILM. FULL OF FURIOUS LAUGHTER.

It takes a pair of mischievous youngsters to make things hum, and we offer a pair which for unadulterated devilry has ever been equalled.

Length 486ft. Price £9 14s. 6d. net.

No. 511. A SAILOR'S COURTSHIP.

A fine little film of unique quality. Two sailors come courting two girls under difficulties, and carry it on under difficulties, for it is only due to their resourcefulness that they are able to do any courting whatever.

Length 185ft. Price £3 14s. net.

No. 418. IN OUR ALLEY.

A lively little comic taken from London slum life. A characteristic picture.

Length 88ft. Price £1 18s. 3d. net.

Hepwix

SPLENDID PANORAMA.

No. 1137.

"A RIDE THROUGH THE ARDENNES."

"FROM ARDENNES TO WALSIN."

No. 1142.

"FROM WALSIN TO DINANT."

The two films together make 500 ft., forming one beautiful panoramic view. They can also be had in two parts, 275 and 225 ft. The photographic quality is excellent and shows up the well-known lovely scenery with grand stereoscopic effect.

No. 1146.

"A FATAL LEAP."

An exceptional film of great sensation. A highwayman endeavours to make his horse jump a five-barred gate with disastrous results to himself. The wreckage is only too real, as one glance at the picture will show.

PAUL'S LATEST FILM.

OH, THAT DOCTOR'S BOY!

Dr. Killem's residence opens the picture. The Doctor's Boy, starting out on his round with the medicine, meets some of his particular chums in the shape of the butcher's boy and the baker's boy, and they all indulge in a game of marbles. The harmony of the game is interrupted by a cyclist colliding with the baker's basket, which is upset, and the butcher's boy throws some of the baker's boy's bread at the cyclist, general confusion ensuing, followed by the boys mutually exchanging volleys with their various commodities. Some of the physic bottles get broken in the tussle, and the Doctor's lad decides to replace them by some means or other, and he is next seen taking a devilish delight in filling up some bottles with paraffin, turpentine, weed-killer, &c., and then continues his round.

We next witness the patients taking their physic, the first being an elderly gentleman afflicted with the gout, who is immediately seized with horrible paroxysms consequent upon the noxious stuff that has been given him. Then a young lady patient receives her medicine from the nurse, and again follow terrible consequences. It is not long before the effect of the Doctor's strange physic is observed in the film, for messengers are seen gathering hastily at his house from all directions, evidently charged with news that will not wait, and the Doctor coming out detects the reason of all the trouble, and rushes to the relief of his patients. The boy plotter is then caught and given a dose of his own physic, but he escapes, and takes temporary refuge in a water-butt; but the defence is useless, and the water-butt is turned over, while the contents flow over the unhappy boy.

OUR LATEST SUBJECTS

1863.

WONDERS OF CANADA.

BY COURTESY OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

A grand selection of special Pictures arranged for the purposes of this display, comprising the most wonderful and awe-inspiring of the many wonders which the Bioscope has been the means of introducing to public notice: marvels of Nature, of human handiwork and industry such as the world has never before seen. No pains or expense have been spared in the preparation of these subjects, which are selected from miles of film and represent absolutely the finest photographic quality.

ORDER OF PICTURES. . . .

1—ARRIVAL AT MONTREAL. A run up the St. Lawrence River by steamer.
2—WHEAT HARVEST ON A MANITOBA FARM. A combined reaper, thresher, and sacking machine, drawn by a team of forty horses.
3—FRASER RIVER FALLS. A glorious panorama.
4—THE IMPERIAL LIMITED EXPRESS (C.P.R.) on its 3,000 miles run across the Continent.
5—THE GREAT LOOP AT GLACIER HOUSE, KICKING HORSE PASS, taken from the front of the express engine. The railroad forms a complete loop or circle at this point, and by a gradual ascent passes over itself at the higher altitude. A snow shed in process of construction is also shown.
6—KICKING HORSE PASS, FROM THE FRASER RIVER CANYON. A monument of engineering skill, and a sublime panorama of mountain and river scenery.
7—BEAVERMOUTH CANYON, AS SEEN FROM THE OBSERVATION CAR. The Rocky and Selkirk Mountains, crowding together, force the river through a deep, narrow gorge, the railway clinging to the slopes high above it.

NOTE.—These pictures differ from all other Railway Panoramas ever photographed, as they not only show the approaching and passing scenery, but the entire train is constantly in view. The flight of the "Imperial Limited" Express is also a marvel of Bioscopic art. A new sensation.

9—TREE FELLING IN THE FORESTS. Axemen supported on platforms eight feet from the base first attack the gigantic tree, then expert sawyers cut through the trunk, finally a wedge is driven into the cut, and the giant falls with a crash.
10—METHOD OF TRANSPORTING LOGS THROUGH A GULLY. Hauled by means of block and tackle to the vicinity of the corduroy roads. Some idea of the depth of the gully may be formed by watching the descent of the horse.
11—HAULING LOGS THROUGH FOREST TO SEA. "Snigged" by teams of ten horses. This "train" is composed of ten logs, each averaging forty feet in length, and weighing from one to one-and-a-half tons.
12—CORDUROY ROADS THROUGH THE FOREST. Made by placing timbers across the road. Grooved blocks act as guides to obviate side rolling. The man in front greases the grooves to prevent friction and facilitate draught.
13—SLIDING LOGS INTO THE RIVER. As the log-train reaches the chute, the team is hitched to the back, the connecting "dogs" are removed, and each log, as it arrives at the end of the chute, falls into the water with a splash.
14—HOISTING LOGS TO THE MILLS. Drawn from the water over a log way by means of an endless chain gear, which conveys the logs to the mill.
15—PANORAMIC VIEW OF STEVESTON, B.C. The water front. Steveston is one of the most important salmon fishing villages on the Pacific coast.
16—HAULING IN THE SALMON NETS. Fraser River during the salmon season. This picture shows thousands of salmon struggling in the nets as the latter are drawn to the surface and finally emptied of their contents.
17—TRANSFERRING SALMON TO SCOWS. Each scow holds from 6000 to 10,000 salmon, and the fish is delivered at the factories within a few hours of being lifted.
18—FILLING SCOWS BY STEAM HOIST. The lifting of the catch from the salmon traps. By means of "steam brailing" 15,000 fish may be lifted in half-an-hour.
19—SPECIMEN SALMON, weight 32lb.
20—TRIBAL DANCE OF THE OJIBWAY INDIANS.
21—INDIAN CHIEF SMOKING THE PIPE OF PEACE.
22—THE WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS, NIAGARA (where Captain Webb lost his life), as seen from the gorge railway. A grand subject, showing the Cantilever Bridge, with train crossing.
23—GENERAL VIEW OF THE AMERICAN FALLS, NIAGARA.
24—BRINK OF THE AMERICAN FALLS CLOSE VIEW.
25—PANORAMA OF THE HORSESHOE AND AMERICAN FALLS, as seen from the Canadian side.
26—NIAGARA IN WINTER, showing the break-up of the Ice Bridge, the columns of shooting spray, wonderful mist effects, and the formation of ice hummocks, never before reproduced by animated photography.

NOTE.—Pictures 22 to 26 are tinted to show a beautiful moonlight effect, and form a superb ending to this remarkably successful and novel series, which illustrates the natural beauty and resources of Canada with extraordinary plenitude and variety of detail. So striking a sequence of animated illustrations of the Great Dominion has never yet been photographed.

Length 725 feet. Price £18 2s. 6d. (Subject to our usual Discounts.) Sold in Complete Lengths only.

LOVE WINS OUT.

(COPYRIGHTED.)

A novel Farce. Natural, refined, superbly acted; far Superior to—and not to compared with—the usual clap-trap, melodramatic penny novelette productions with which the public are too painfully familiar.

This series of twenty-two pictures forms a fifteen minutes' interlude of genuine fun without a suggestion of vulgarity. The pictures as projected are excitingly realistic, and a fine example is given of the progress of the animated photograph industry in the road panorama, with the motor continually seen at full speed during the chase, and an entirely new effect is produced by the presentation of a marriage ceremony conducted in a motor car travelling at express rate.

A CHILD OF NATURE.

A charming Series in Eighteen Pictures, pathetically fascinating and attractive. The story here told concerns the love affairs of a servant girl and the son of her master, a farmer, an exciting attempt at suicide and a thrilling rescue, terminating with a delightful scene of forgiveness. This delicate subject has been most carefully handled, and will prove unusually acceptable and popular during the coming season.

Length 575 feet (supplied in complete length only).
Price £14 17s. 6d. (subject to our usual Discounts).

ONE OF MANY PRESS OPINIONS PUBLISHED THIS WEEK:

Sportsman.—"The 'Urbanora' is of such value as an educational institution, as well as for its capacity to carry one into the extremes of the Empire, that its exclusion from the Alhambra programme would be well-nigh a calamity. The series is never dull, and the new films put in this week, illustrating the natural wonders and breezy life of Canada, are a triumph of the photographer's art, and should not fail to be seen."

VALUABLE FREEHOLD PROPERTY IN THE CENTRE OF LIVERPOOL.
By Mr. WILLIAM THOMSON,
On Tuesday, the 9th day of October next, at Half-past Two o'clock, p.m., at the Law Association Sale-rooms, 14, Cook-street, Liverpool (unless previously disposed of by private treaty).
All those VALUABLE PREMISES, known as the
PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE,
Situate in Clayton-square, Liverpool, with a frontage to Clayton-lane.
The tenure is freehold, without chief or ground rent.
The Prince of Wales Theatre is an old-established house, occupying a unique position in the best shopping district of the city, close to Lime-street (L. and N.W.) and Central Station (Midland Great Central and Great Northern), and within easy reach of Exchange Station (L. and Y.), and surrounded by the main lines of the electric car system.
The frontage to Clayton-square and Clayton-lane is 42ft. or thereabouts, with an average depth of 107ft., and the area is 4,500 square feet or thereabouts.
The stage and appliances are of modern construction, and the auditorium contains seating accommodation for upwards of 1,000.
Besides their uses as a theatre, the premises, owing to their central position, are admirably adapted for many business purposes, such as general stores, a large drapery or millinery establishment, pianoforte show-rooms, motor and cycle salerooms, or any business requiring a central position and ample space. They also have the advantage of being recessed from the main thoroughfare in the centre of the square, and so enabling carriages to drive to the front entrance out of reach of the electric car and general traffic.
Vacant possession could be given on completion.
For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, 5, Cook-street, or to TOULMIN, LAWRENCE, and SHIELD,
Solicitors, 25, Lord-street, Liverpool.

HERNE BAY URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.
THE COUNCIL
INVITE TENDERS
for the privilege of giving ENTERTAINMENTS
during the Seasons 1907, 1908, and 1909, on Sites on the East Cliff and Beach as under:—
1. EAST CLIFF.—The portion of the Cliff opposite the north end of Belle Vue Road.
2. CENTRAL.—The portion of the Foreshore between the Culvert and the Groyne west thereof.

The Tenders should be in the alternative for one, two, or three seasons.
The successful Tenderers will be allowed to make a Collection, but will not be allowed to charge for the use of chairs.
Full particulars should be furnished as to the nature of the Entertainment proposed to be given.
The Council also invite Tenders for the privilege of using the Central Hall of the East Cliff Pavilion in connection with the East Cliff Site in times of inclement weather, &c. The successful Tenderer would not be allowed to charge for admission to the Hall during the Entertainments, but would be permitted to make a charge for the use of Chairs therein.
Copies of the Conditions to be observed, and forms of Tender and other information, may be obtained from the undersigned.
Sealed Tenders, endorsed "Open Air Eentertainments," to be delivered at my Office by SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1906.
The Council do not bind themselves to accept the highest or any Tender, and will consider no Tender except on the prescribed form.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present isue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.
